

CIHM Microfiche Series
(Monographs)

ICMH Collection de microfiches (monographies)

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques

© 1998

COMPANY PRECEDENTS.

ELEVENTH EDITION.

PART I.
GENERAL FORMS.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON PREVIOUS EDITIONS.

"Despite his many competitors, Mr. Palmer 'Holds solely sovereign sway and masterdom,' and he does so by reason of his thoroughness, his practical good sense, and his familiarity with the business as well as the legal side of his subject."—Law Quarterly Review.

"Mr. Palmer's works on Company Law are all beyond criticism. He knows more of the subject than, perhaps, any other member of the legal profession. His books have for many practical purposes been treated as being, in fact, the very law itself. It is a subject for congratulation of all concerned that this book has been brought up to date, and that the important statute 63 & 64 Vict. c. 48—upon which Mr. Palmer has written a separate treatise—is now considered throughout the text."—Law Magazine.

"The new edition will form the standard authority on the particular aspect of Company Law which they deal with. . . . It is not often that the draftsman finds that Palmer's works do not contain what he requires, whilst the Notes are admitted on all hands to contain a mine of information on the details of Company Law."—Law Journal.

"The new edition of Mr. Palmer's work is a distinct improvement even upon its excellent and unrivalled predecessors, and we can confidently recommend it to the profession and to all others interested in Company Law."—Law Times.

"This edition of the indispensable 'Palmer' bears many traces of the care which has been bestowed upon it, both in the way of re-arrangement, of the introduction of New Forms and other fresh matter. Company drafting is the last development of Conveyancing, and Mr. Palmer, who has had so large a share in its development, spares no pains to make the results suggested by recent experience accessible to the Profession. . . . Mr. Palmer's work is of the highest utility as a book of Precedents, and it is interesting also by reason of his discussion of important questions in Company Law."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The sixth edition of this work is one more evidence of the high appreciation in which this classic of the Companies Acts is held."—Financial News.

"To estimate the value of Mr. Palmer's book, we have only to picture to ourselves what would be the condition of Company promoters, directors, vendors, syndicates and other such persons without it. . . . The value of the book is too well recognized both in the Profession and out of it to need any recommendation. . . . It would be difficult to name any law book which has been more successful—and deservedly successful—than these Company Precedents of Mr. Palmer. The flowing tide of company enterprise floated him into popularity, and Mr. Palmer knew how to take advantage of it. It is by the care which he has bestowed upon every edition, and by his ready adaptation of his forms to the growing wants of the commercial world—not by any mere good luck—that he has maintained and maintains his prestige as a company lawyer."—The Law Quarterly.

"We can confidently recommend Mr. Palmer's book to the large class whom it concerns."—Times.

"Not only draftsmen, but secretaries, managing directors, and other officials, will find in this volume varied precedents and forms which cannot fail to be of the greatest service."—Law Magazine.

COMPANY PRECEDENTS

FOR USE IN RELATION TO

COMPANIES

SUBJECT TO THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

Part I.

ARRANGED AS FOLLOWS:—

PROMOTERS.	NOTICES.	PLEADINGS.
PROSPECTUSES.	RESOLUTIONS.	JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS.
UNDERWRITING.	CERTIFICATES.	APPEALS TO HOUSE OF LORDS.
AGREEMENTS.	POWERS OF ATTORNEY.	RECONSTRUCTION.
MEMORANDA & ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION.	BANKING & ADVANCE SECURITIES.	AMALGAMATION.
PRIVATE COMPANIES.	PETITIONS.	ARRANGEMENTS.
EMPLOYÉS' BENEFITS.	WRITS.

With Copious Notes,

AND AN

APPENDIX CONTAINING ACTS AND RULES.

ELEVENTH EDITION.

BY

SIR FRANCIS BEAUFORT PALMER,

Bencher of the Inner Temple,

ASSISTED BY

THE HON. CHARLES MACNAGHTEN, K.C.,

Of Lincoln's Inn,

AND

EDWARD MANSON,

Of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

LONDON:

STEVENS AND SONS, LIMITED,

119 & 120, CHANCERY LANE.

TORONTO: CANADA LAW BOOK COMPANY, LIMITED.

PHILADELPHIA: CROMARTY LAW BOOK COMPANY.

1912.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

Twenty-Seventh Edit. Demy 12mo. 1911. Price 2s. 6d. net, Cloth.

THE
SHAREHOLDERS, DIRECTORS, AND VOLUNTARY LIQUIDATORS' LEGAL COMPANION.

A Manual of Everyday Law and Practice for Promoters, Shareholders, Directors, Secretaries, Creditors, Solicitors, and Voluntary Liquidators of Companies under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, with Appendix of useful Forms.

"Invaluable to shareholders, directors, secretaries and solicitors of companies—in fact, to all persons who have any connections or dealings with companies."—Financial News.

Twenty-Sixth Edition. Demy 12mo. 1912. Price 1s. net.

PRIVATE COMPANIES:

THEIR FORMATION AND ADVANTAGES.

Being a Concise Popular Statement of the Mode of Converting a Business into a Private Company, with Notes on Limited Partnerships.

"Crammed from end to end with knowledge useful to the parties to whom it is specially addressed."—Financial Times.

STEVENS AND SONS, LIMITED, 119 & 120, CHANCERY LANE, LONDON, W.C.

PREFACE

TO ELEVENTH EDITION.

WHEN upwards of thirty years ago Company Precedents—in a volume of some 700 pages—first appeared, the Author by no means foresaw the future of the work. He trusted that it would “be found practically useful to members of both branches of the Profession,” and the outcome has surpassed his most sanguine expectations.

Many judges, law officers of the Crown, officials of the High Court, and numerous members of both branches of the Profession, have again and again testified to the utility of the work, in its various editions, and thousands of users of it have become clients of the Author.

Moreover a large proportion of the companies registered since the publication of the work show, in their constitution, regulations, contracts, securities and proceedings, the influence of the work, or the hand of the Author, and often the views and principles advocated in the work have prevailed in the Companies.

When the work was first published the paid-up capital of companies under the Acts of 1862 to 1877 was about 307,000,000*l.*, whereas the paid-up capital under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, now exceeds 2,222,000,000*l.* (a), besides which the debentures and debenture stock of such companies represent, it is believed, a further sum of 500,000,000%.

(a) The late Viscount Goschen in his Essays and Addresses, 1905, refers to the wonderful development of the company system between 1877

The Author took part in the various Committees appointed by the Board of Trade, which resulted in the Companies Acts of 1900 and 1907, and in the Consolidation Act of 1908. It has been a pleasure to bring this part of the work up to date, and the Author trusts that the result of his labours will merit that kindly consideration which has been so liberally accorded to former editions.

Cordial thanks are due from the Author to the Honourable CHARLES MACNAGHTEN, K.C., to Mr. EDWARD MANSON, and to Mr. ROBERT MORRIS, all of the Chancery Bar, for kind assistance in passing the work through the press, and preliminary thereto, and to many members of both branches of the Profession, as well at home as abroad, for valuable communications and suggestions.

F. B. P.

5, NEW SQUARE, LINCOLN'S INN,

May, 1912.

and 1903, when the paid-up capital amounted to 1,850,000,000%, and says, "Surely such stupendous amounts are instructive, as showing by their magnitude how large a proportion of the business of the country is concentrated in the hands of joint stock companies. . . . The number of shareholders has grown even in a much larger ratio than the colossal growth of the aggregate capital; the profits and risks of nearly every kind of business have been spread from year to year over fresh thousands of individuals, and the middle class with moderate incomes are more and more participating in that accumulation of wealth, from business of every description, which formerly built up the fortunes of individual traders, or of bankers, or of single families."

TABLE OF FORMS.

CHAPTER I.—PRELIMINARY (pp. 1—119) [contains no forms].

CHAPTER II.—PROMOTERS (pp. 121—163).

Form	PAGE
1. Agreement by promoters to pay preliminary expenses in consideration of vendor's shares	153
2. Agreement to pay preliminary expenses in consideration of commissions	154
3. Agreement for sale of concession to promoter who is to form company	154
4. Agreement to contribute to a preliminary expenses fund	156
5. Syndicate agreement for purchase and re-sale of mines	157
6. Agreement by shareholders to pool their shares and have them sold by trustees	160
7. Another	163

CHAPTER III.—PROSPECTUSES (pp. 165—274).

8. Skeleton prospectus	247
9. Application for shares	257
10. Bankers' receipt	257
11. Advertisement as to prospectus	258
12. Resolution to sign and file prospectus	260
12a. Notice avoiding allotment in contravention of sect. 4 of the Act of 1900	261
Statement in lieu of prospectus	264

CHAPTER IV.—UNDERWRITING (pp. 275—319).

13. Underwriters' application	296
14. Underwriting letter with signed application and deposit	300
14a. Acceptance of underwriting proposal	302
15. Sub-underwriting letter	302
16. Underwriting letter to trustee for company about to be formed	303
17. Underwriting letter where application not to be made till list closed	304

Form	PAGE
18. Underwriting contract with the company where commission paid out of profit	305
19. Agreement to procure underwriting for a lump sum	306
20. Underwriting of a debenture issue	307
21. Another	309
21a. Certificate of right to call for allotment of shares	311
22. Underwriting clauses in memorandum of association	312
23. Authority to subscribe	313
24. Agreement for underwriting shares: A. for underwriters, and B. for proposed company	313
25. Agreement to allot paid-up shares in satisfaction of commission	314
26. Underwriting contract as to debenture stock before company formed	315
27. Agreement to underwrite debenture stock	317
28. Notice to underwriters	318
29. Heading to draft prospectus	318
30. Another	319

CHAPTER V.—AGREEMENTS (pp. 321—445).

31. Agreement to sell business to new company. General form	345
32. Guarantee of profits by vendor	363
33. Vendors' shares deferred	365
34. Another	365
35. Option to vendor to subscribe for shares at par	365
36. Exclusion of objectionable assets	366
37. Vendor may pay promoter syndicate	366
38. Arbitration	367
39. Guarantee of certain assets	367
40. Agreement with agent or trustee for intended company	367
41. Agreement by company adopting contract made on its behalf before its incorporation	369
42. Agreement by company adopting with modifications contract made before its incorporation	370
43. Agreement by company for sale of its entire business as a going concern	371
44. Memorandum of ratification	373
45. Agreement for transfer of life assurance business	374
46. Clauses upon transfer of assurance business for special funds in hands of the transferee company	377
47. Agreement for sale of patents. Consideration: Cash and founders' shares	378
48. Agreement to grant license to company to manufacture goods for licensor	382
49. Agreement for sale to company of foreign mines	384
50. Option to buy concession	386
51. Agreement for sale of ship to single ship company	387
52. Satisfaction of part of price in paid-up shares	388

TABLE OF FORMS.

ix

Form	PAGE
53. Issue of paid-up shares to vendor's nominees	389
54. Agreement to issue paid-up shares in satisfaction of debt due by company	390
55. Agreement by subscriber to memorandum of association to sell his share and hold in trust	391
56. Contract to take qualification in proposed company. Sect. 72 of Act of 1908	392
56a. Contract with trustee to take qualification in proposed company	393
56b. Agreement to take qualification shares by director not appointed by articles but named in prospectus	394
57. Agreement on behalf of ordinary shareholders for sale to another company of all ordinary shares subject to ratification	394
57a. Agreement for transfer of lighting order to new company	398
58. Registered debenture one of series	400
58a. Agreement for funding arrears of dividend on preference shares (no clause in articles of association for modifying rights of any class of shareholders)	404
59. Funding certificate	406
60. Agreement for satisfying preference dividends for a term by the issue of debenture stock where a majority clause is in articles	407
61. Agreement by debenture holders to extend time for payment	409
62. Agreement by debenture holders allowing creation of prior lien debentures and making interest payable out of profits only (majority clause)	411
63. Agreement to satisfy declared bonus in paid-up shares	413
64. Agreement as to requisition and general meeting	414
65. Requisition for extraordinary general meeting. Sect. 66 of Act of 1908	415
66. Bond deposit agreement	416
67. Agreement that directors shall take up leases and shall grant sub-leases to company	420
68. Agreement as to sale of goods by a manufacturing company to a firm as intermediary for supplying retail traders and the public: minimum prices	421
69. Agreement by cold-storage keepers to pool gross earnings and fix minimum rates for storage of produce during a term of years	425
70. Agreement for sale of debenture stock to capitalists who may offer same for public subscription	428
71. Agreement for the appointment of a manager by a company	430
72. Agreement for the appointment of a secretary by a company	431
73. Commission on surplus profits	432
74. Commission on dividends	432
75. Agency agreement for foreign country	433
76. Agreement to employ agent to go abroad and examine title and character of mining property	434
77. Agreement continuing appointment of person who has been editor of a company's newspaper and has become a director	436
78. Agreement to appoint two directors as general managers—delegation of powers—to share new business—remuneration of managers, &c.	438

CHAPTER VI.—MEMORANDA OF ASSOCIATION (pp. 447—590).

Form	PAGE
79. Memorandum of company limited by shares . . .	490
80. Memorandum of company limited by guarantee . . .	492
81. Memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee and registered pursuant to sect. 20 of the Companies Act of 1908 (sect. 23 of Act of 1867) . . .	495
82. Licence of Board of Trade . . .	499
83. Notice of Board of Trade . . .	500
84. Memorandum of unlimited company . . .	503

Object Clauses.

Form	PAGE	Form	PAGE
85. To acquire a business . . .	504	105. To purchase property, &c. . .	508
86. To acquire undertaking of another company . . .	504	106. To build, &c. . .	508
87, 88. To acquire and amal- gamate other concerns . . .	504	107. To construct works . . .	508
89. To acquire mines . . .	504	108. To invest . . .	509
90. To acquire patents . . .	504	109. To receive money or lend and guarantee . . .	509
91. To acquire concession . . .	505	110. To borrow on mortgage, &c. . .	509
92. To adopt agreement with trustee for company . . .	505	111. To remunerate . . .	509
93. To acquire and amalga- mate other concerns . . .	505	112. To accept bills, &c. . .	509
94. To enter into a contract . . .	505	113. To act as trustee . . .	510
95. To acquire, &c., and to enter into three con- tracts . . .	505	114. Sale of undertaking . . .	511
96. To acquire undertaking and shares therein . . .	506	115. To advertise products of company . . .	512
		116. To obtain Acts . . .	512
		117. Foreign registration . . .	512
		118. To sell, &c. . .	512
		119. To act through trustees, &c. . .	513
		120. General words . . .	513
		121. Interpretation clause . . .	513

Common Forms.

97. To carry on other busi- nesses . . .	506
98. To purchase other busi- nesses . . .	506
99. To purchase patents . . .	506
100. To enter into partner- ship, take shares, &c. . .	506
101. To take shares in other companies . . .	507
102. To make arrangements with authorities . . .	507
103. To benefit employes, &c. . .	507
104. To promote companies . . .	508

Additional Object Clauses.

122, 123. To build on and improve land . . .	513
124. Amalgamation . . .	514
125. To divide assets in specie . . .	514
126. To obtain Act of incor- poration . . .	515
127. To acquire the company's own shares . . .	515
128. Labour difficulties . . .	516
129. Special for guarantee companies . . .	516

[Objects of Specific Companies.—Forms 130—209, pp. 518—574.]

Capital Clauses, pp. 575—590.

Form	PAGE
210. Cumulative preference shares	578
211. Power to alter without reference to the articles	579
211a. Power to alter	579
212. Non-cumulative preference shares	579
213. Preference shares fixed dividend and to participate pari passu in surplus	580
214. Preference shares fixed dividend and half surplus profits	580
215, 216. Preference shares	580, 581
217, 218, 219. "B" shares conferring special rights	581, 582
220. Management shares	583
221. Preference and management shares	583
221a. Life governor's share	584
222, 223, 223a. Ordinary and deferred; the former taking all profits till 100 per cent. paid	585, 586
224. Special voting power to holders of founders' shares	587
225. Reserve capital	589
226. Statement of capital and shares where company formed to acquire mining property in France (Stamp duty lessened)	589

CHAPTER VII.—ON THE CONSTRUCTION OR INTERPRETATION OF MEMORANDUM AND ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION
(pp. 591—604).

CHAPTER VIII.—REGISTRATION OF COMPANIES—CONTRACTS
MORTGAGES—NOTICES, &c. (pp. 605—627).

227. Statutory declaration on registration of company	605
228. Consent to act as director	606
229. Consent to act and be named in prospectus as director	607
230. Consent to name in prospectus merely	607
231. List of persons consenting to be directors	607
232. Application to registrar when no directors named	608
232a. Statutory declaration before commencing business. Sect. 87 of Act of 1908	608
233. Another where statement in lieu of prospectus is filed	609
233a. Return of allotments	610
234. Notice of situation of office	612
234a. Notice of change of name	612
235. Notice of increase of capital	613
236. Copy of special resolution(s)	613
236a. Copy of extraordinary resolutions	614
237. Report to be submitted to statutory meeting. Sect. 65 of the Act of 1908	614
238. List of members to be submitted to statutory meeting. Sect. 65 of Act of 1908	615

Form	PAGE
239. Particulars of mortgages and charges	618
240. Particulars of debentures or debenture stock	619
241. First issue	619
242. Certificate of registration of debentures	620
243. Registration under sub-sect. 3 of sect. 93 of Act	620
243a. Certificate of registration of trust deed	620
244. Memorandum of satisfaction	621
245. Copy of register of directors or managers	621
246. Annual summary and list	622
247. Resolution for registration of existing company	624
248. Application for registration with limited liability	624
249. Application for registration as unlimited company	625
250. List of persons holding shares, &c.	625
250a. Statement of capital, &c.	626
250b. Statutory declaration on registration	626
250c. Resolution for registration with provisions for increase of capital	627
250d. Resolutions for filing	627

CHAPTER IX.—ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION (pp. 629—908).

251. Articles of a company limited by shares (general form)	642
252. Where Table A to apply	789
253. Articles of association of a company limited by guarantee without share capital. Council	798
254. Articles of association of society limited by guarantee without a share capital. Committee of management	801
255. Company limited by guarantee (no share capital)	802
256. Company limited by guarantee and not having a capital divided into shares. Participation certificates to be issued to members	804
257. Articles of association of an unlimited company not having a capital divided into shares	810
258. Provision in articles of an unlimited company as to member- ship	810
259, 260. Power to acquire business	811
261. Capital divided into cumulative preference shares and ordinary shares (simple form)	820
262. Non-cumulative dividend with no right to participate in surplus	820
263. Preference and ordinary shares (non-cumulative preference shares)	821
264. Preferred ordinary shares and deferred ordinary shares	821
265. Preference shares with further rights	822
266. Preference dividend and quarter surplus reducible	822
267. Guarantee preference and ordinary shares. Contingent ter- mination of preference	823
268, 269, 270. Clauses providing for appropriation of profits	823, 824
271. Percentage of directors, &c.	824

TABLE OF FORMS.

xiii

Form	PAGE
272. Special form as to division of part of profits to some members only	824
273. Conversion of preference into ordinary shares	824
273a. Power of holders of certain shares to convert others into preference shares	825
274. Conversion of preference into ordinary shares and vice versa	825
274a. Provision for securing British control	826
274b. Shares to be transferred to company's nominees	828
275. Management of one company by another company	829
275a. Another	830
276, 277. Debenture directors	830
278. Power for trustees of a will of a former owner of the business taken over by company to appoint a permanent director	831
279. Power for class of shareholders to appoint and remove directors	831
280. Alternate or substituted directors	832
281. Assistant directors	832
282. Share of surplus profits to directors	832
283. Commission to directors	832
284. Directors to have percentage of profits	833
285. Managers	833
286. Appointment of first manager	833
287. Common seal	833
288. Custody of securities	834
289. Appointment of ships' husbands	834
290. Provisions for managers and committee	835
291. Executive committee	835
292. Special provisions as to debentures	837
293. Bye-laws for club	837
294. Remuneration for promoter	838
295. Members' inventions, &c. Company to have right of pre-emption	839
296. Single account	840
297, 298. Separate capital and revenue account to be kept and dividends payable out of latter	841
299. How profits to be ascertained	841
300. Differences to be referred	842
300a. Balance sheet not to be submitted to meeting	842
301. Winding-up—how surplus assets to be distributed	843
302. Winding-up—preference to holder of "A" shares	843
303. Winding-up—founders' shares	843
304. Winding-up—distribution of surplus assets (special)	843

CHAPTER X.—PRIVATE COMPANIES (pp. 909—1015).

305. Agreement by partners to convert their business into a private company (simple form)	955
306, 307. Agreement for sale of business	956
308. Introductory note to articles of association	960
309, 310. Restriction on issue of shares	960, 961

Form	PAGE
311. Clause in articles as to deed of covenant to make certain clauses in articles unalterable	962
312. Restrictive right of transfer	962
313. Fair value of shares to be declared by general meetings	906
313a. Fair value of share estimated by reference to amount paid up and to past dividends	966
314. Preferential offer of shares to directors and then to other members	967
315, 316. Preferential offer of shares to specified individuals and then to directors	967
317. Preferential offer of shares to larger holders and then to other holders	968
318. How shares to be offered	968
318a. Special transfer clauses	969
319. Executors or administrators to transfer to approved nominees or be deemed to serve transfer notice	970
320, 321. Retirement of dismissed employé	970
322, 323. Forfeiture where member interested in competing concern	971
324, 325. Compulsory retirement	971
326. Option in founder or his directors to purchase outstanding shares	972
327. Option in surviving founder to buy shares of deceased founder	973
328. Compulsory retirement in case of bankruptcy	974
329. On death, survivors to buy ordinary shares of deceased	975
330. Forfeiture where interested in rival concern	977
331. Retiring member not to compete	977
332. Over-riding powers of two-thirds majority in value of share-holders	977
333. Conversion of ordinary into preference shares and vice versa	978
334. Votes of members, restriction on preference shares	980
335. Power to give irrevocable proxies in respect of particular shares	4
336, 337. Governing directors	982
338. Appointment of directors when governing director vacates	985
339. Two governing directors	985
340. Permanent directors	986
341. Founders, while specially qualified to be directors but with power to appoint new directors	986
342. Permanent governing director, power to resign and resume office	987
343. Power for governing director to appoint successors	989
344. Permanent directorship in right of shares held by another party	990
345. Directors to be appointed by trustees of will	990
346. Power for managers to act in own names	990
347. Power to appoint other directors	991
348. Directors' proxies	991
349. Power for meeting to appoint managing director	991
350, 351, 352. Remuneration of directors	992
353. Employment of directors	992

TABLE OF FORMS.

xv

Form	PAGE
354. Instruction of son	993
355. What time directors to give	993
356. Continuance of directors in office	993
357. Voting at directors' meetings	993
358. Chairman and deputy chairman	994
359. When chairman absent from meeting	994
360, 361. How questions at board meetings decided	994
362. Another. Provision for votes as per share	995
363. Provision for proxies	996
364. Absence from board meetings	997
365. Powers of directors limited	997
366. Interest on unpaid share	997
367. Balance sheet	997
368. Minutes of first meeting of directors	998
369. Minutes of second meeting	999
370. Power in will for trustees to convert testator's business into a company	1002
371. Special clauses where sanction of Court requisite	1004
372. Originating summons to obtain sanction of Court to conversion	1004
373, 374, 374a. Forms of originating summons to obtain sanction of Court to conversion	1004, 1005
375. Affidavit in support of application for sanction of reconstruction	1006
376. Another affidavit in support of a scheme of conversion	1006
377. Order	1010
378. Proposal taken into chambers for conversion of business	1011
379. Order on above originating summons	1012
380, 380a, 381. Orders for the sanction of a conversion	1012-1015

CHAPTER XI.—EMPLOYEES' BENEFITS (pp. 1017-1046).

382. Employés' shares	1027
383. Co-operative fund	1028
384. Provision in articles as to deposits made by employés with a company	1028
385. Acquisition of shares by employés out of earnings	1030
386. Profit sharing scheme	1031
387. Agreement by employé for re-transfer of shares	1033
388. Participation certificate, as if payee were the holder of a specified number of shares	1034
389. Trust deed constituting superannuation fund	1035
390. Miscellaneous clauses in articles as to employé directors	1039
391. Trust deed constituting pension fund	1040
392. Trust deed constituting guarantee fund (re a banking company)	1041
393. Bond for faithful service	1044

CHAPTER XII.—NOTICES (pp. 1047—1090).

Form	PAGE
394. Allotment letter	1052
395. Letter of regret	1053
396. Allotment (by way of offers at a premium)	1053
397. Fractional certificate	1055
398. Request to allot	1055
398a. Allotment by way of offer	1056
399. Circular offering shares (tenders)	1058
400, 401. Application annexed to above	1059
402. Tender for shares	1059
403. Application for debentures	1060
404. Application for debenture stock	1061
405. Letter of allotment of debentures	1061
406. Minutes as to bonus shares	1063
407. Allotment letter of bonus shares pursuant to above	1064
408. Fractional certificate as above	1065
409, 410. Instalment reminder	1066, 1067
411. Notice that certificate is ready	1068
412, 413, 414, 415. Notice of call	1068
416, 417. Receipt of call	1070
418, 419. Bankers' receipts	1071
420. Notice under sect. 86 of Act of 1908, avoiding allotment	1072
421. Notice avoiding allotment where contract induced by misrepresentation	1073
422. Circular when misrepresentation discovered	1073
423. To be used with the above	1074
424. Another, in lieu of reminder	1074
425. Notice with a view to investigation	1075
426. Receipt on deposit of transfer	1076
427. Notice of presentation of transfer	1076
428. Balance ticket	1077
429. Notices where shareholder dead	1078
429a. Other notices where shareholder dead	1078
430. Letter to executors	1078
431. Letter from executors	1078
432. Notice before forfeiture for non-payment of call	1079
433. Notice of ordinary general meeting	1080
434, 435. Notice of extraordinary general meeting	1080
436. Notice of extraordinary general meeting for passing special resolution	1081
437. Notice of meeting to confirm special resolution	1082
438. Notice of ordinary and extraordinary general meetings to be held on same day	1082
439. Notice of meeting to alter articles	1083
440. Notice of confirmatory meeting	1083
441. Requisition of members for a general meeting	1083
442, 443, 444. Notice of members calling meeting	1084
445, 446, 447, 448. Notice of dividend and warrant	1085, 1086
449. Dividend notice and warrant	1085

Form	PAGE
450, 451. Direction by shareholder to pay dividends into a bank .	1085
452. Debenture stock interest	1088
453. Authority to bank to pay dividends to a third party .	1088
454. Power of attorney to receive dividends	1088
454a. Notice as to the appointment of a receiver or manager .	1089
455. Consent to new company using name of old	1090
456, 457. Advertisements as to last certificate	1090

CHAPTER XIII.—RESOLUTIONS (pp. 1091—1136).

458. Alteration of articles	1102
459. New regulations	1103
460. Modification of Table A.	1103
460a. Increased capital	1104
461. Ordinary shares at a premium	1104
462. New shares at par and bonus to be paid	1105
463. Contingent power to directors and adventurers	1105
464. Preference shares. Cumulative	1106
465. Another form. Non-cumulative	1106
466. Another form	1107
467. Variation	1108
468. Preference shares; power to issue more	1108
469. Second preference shares	1109
470. Conversion of preference into ordinary shares	1110
471. Another. (As soon as aggregate dividends amount to nominal value of preference shares.)	1110
472. Preference shares; power to issue further	1111
472a. Authority to directors to convert into preferred and deferred stock	1111
473. Converting ordinary shares into preferred ordinary and creating new ordinary	1112
474. Capitalisation of profits (bonus and corresponding new shares). .	1112
475. Creation of debentures and special preference shares. Debentures offered to members at discount subject to their subscribing new shares	1113
476. Conversion of shares into stock	1114
477. Another	1114
478. Consolidation of shares	1114
479. Division of shares	1115
480. Subdivision and reduction. Renumbering and further division into preferred and deferred shares	1115
481. Division of existing shares into classes (Power in memorandum. Preference shares free from restrictions in articles as to transfer)	1116

Form	PAGE
482. Another	1116
483. Conversion of shares into preferred and deferred stock	1117
484. Subdivision into preference and ordinary shares	1117
485. Simple subdivision	1117
486. Subdivision with direction as to portion unpaid	1117
487. Reduction of capital. Payment off out of profits	1117
488. Another. Reduction of liability	1117
489. Return of capital	1118
490. Return liable to recall	1118
491. Cancelling lost capital	1118
492. Reducing ordinary shares exclusively	1119
493. Reduction of capital by paying off and extinguishing specified ordinary and founders' shares	1119
494. Cancelling lost capital by extinguishing two classes of shares and part of capital paid up on a third class	1120
495, 496. Cancelling purchased shares	1120
497. Confirming past returns, &c.	1120
498. Reducing ordinary shares and preserving arrears of calls	1121
499. Reduction where several classes in accordance with agreements	1121
500. Reducing without prejudice to liability for unpaid calls	1122
501. Cancellation of unissued shares	1122
502. Cancellation of shares and consolidating others	1122
503. Reduction by payment off of one of two classes	1123
504. Reduction by payment off and issue of debentures	1123
505. Cancellation of issued shares	1123
506. Cancellation of shares	1124
507. Paying off capital out of profits	1124
508. Provision for issue of income certificates in respect of arrears of preference dividend	1124
508a. Resolution for re-organisation of capital	1125
509. Resolution cancelling founders' shares	1125
510. Provisional agreement for cancelling founders' shares	1126
511. Reserve liability	1127
512. Change of name	1127
513. Borrowing on debenture stock. Extension of directors' power	1127
514, 515. Creation of debentures to pay off old debentures	1128
516. Authority to directors to acquire by amalgamation another concern, and sanction of provisional agreement, and when latter absolute to increase capital	1128
517. Division in specie in a winding-up	1129
518. Resolution of debenture holders sanctioning agreement for modification of rights	1129
519. Resolution of members for acquiring new Memorandum and Articles under sect. 264	1130
520. Resolution for extension of objects under sect. 9	1130
521. Another	1130
522. Resolutions appointing a local board in Ireland	1130

Various Resolutions.

Form	PAGE	Form	PAGE
523. To seal agreement	1131	531. To give notice before forfeiture	1135
524, 525. To allot	1132	532. To forfeit shares	1135
526. To allot paid-up shares	1132	533. To appoint committee	1135
527. To appoint solicitors	1132	534. To accept offer	1135
527a. To open banking ac- count	1132	535. To offer	1135
528. To approve prospectus	1132	536, 537. To seal agreement	1135
529. To adopt common seal	1133	538. To call meeting	1135
530. To make call	1133	539. To pay interim dividend	1135
540. Resolution of directors giving instructions to bankers as to mode of company's dealings with them
541. Resolutions as to conditions for issue of share warrants
542. Adoption of Forged Transfers Act

CHAPTER XIV.—CERTIFICATES (pp. 1139—1154).

543. Ordinary share certificate	1143
544. Certificate of preference shares	1144
545, 546. Provisional certificates where instalment	1144, 1145
547. Certificate of stock	1146
548. Certificate of debenture stock	1146
549. Certificate to bearer, (provisional) debenture stock	1146
549a. Form of interest coupon	1147
550. Provisional certificate—debenture stock to registered holder	1147
551. Provisional certificate to bearer for debentures to bearer	1147
552. Certificate in favour of liquidators	1149
553. Form of share warrant	1150
554. Coupon to share warrant	1151
555. Voucher for fresh coupons	1151
556. Letter of indemnity in issue of fresh certificate	1151
557. Certificate of incorporation	1152
558. Certificate of registration under Part VII. of Act of 1862	1152
559. Certificate of shares held in trust by American Corporation	1152
560. Certificate of registration of order of Court confirming altera- tion of objects or form of constitution	1154

CHAPTER XV.—POWERS OF ATTORNEY (pp. 1155—1178).

561. Power to manage property abroad (ordinary)	1161
562. Power under sect. 79 (Companies' Seals Act, 1864)	1162
563. Power in relation to mining property in New Zealand	1163
564. Power of attorney to local board	1165
565. Power from reconstructed English company to obtain incorpo- ration and carry on business in South Africa	1166
566. Power from an Englishman going abroad; and agreement for sale of property to a company to be carried out	1167

Form	PAGE
567. Power of mine-owner going abroad to concur in converting partnership business into a company	1164
568. Power from English company to execute debenture security in Cape Colony	1169
569. Power from mining owner abroad for promoting company in England to purchase property	1170
570. Power to local board in colony (wide)	1172
571. Power from the receiver and manager under order of Court for carrying on the business of the company abroad (debenture holders' action)	1174
572. Power from liquidator appointing three persons to carry on the business in Bombay	1175
573. Power from shareholder for attorney to appoint proxies at meetings	1175
574. Power from shareholder to fill up blanks in proxies	1176
575. Notary's certificate of execution	1177
576, 576a. Notary's certificate of declaration	1177
577. Notary's statutory declaration of execution of power of attorney	1178

CHAPTER XVI. -BANKING AND ADVANCE SECURITIES
(pp. 1179—1233).

578. Agreement for deposit subject to bank's usual clauses (set out) [applicable to land]	1216
579. Memorandum in shape of letter	1218
580. Agreement for deposit similar to Form 578, but applicable to registered shares, stocks, debentures, &c.	1218
581. Affidavit for distringas	1221
582. Distringas notice annexed to affidavit	1221
583. Notice as to address	1222
583a. Withdrawal notice	1222
584. Proposal for deposit in order to obtain overdraft	1222
585. Power of attorney to execute mortgage	1223
586. Agreement for deposit of securities to bearer	1223
587. General deposit security	1223
588. Agreement for deposit of goods warrants	1224
589, 590. Agreement for deposit of securities to secure loan of specified sum	1225, 1226
591. Advances on debentures payable on demand	1228
592. Memorandum as to deposit of debentures to secure current account	1229
593. Another, where debentures put into names of trustees	1230
594. Mortgage of uncalled capital to secure a sum advanced by bank	1233
595. Mortgage of uncalled capital by way of continuing security	1235
596. Security for a loan on debentures and charge on undertaking	1236
597. Security of bank on bills, and by deposit of debentures in bank	1239

TABLE OF FORMS.

xxi

Form	PAGE
595. Mortgage of securities for present and future advances	1241
596. Debentures to register and bearer	1244
597. Joint and several guaranties (general clauses)	1244
598. Letter on footing of above conditions	1249
599. Charge by surety	1250
600. Letter on above conditions	1250
601. Deed of indemnity from company to directors, and another for becoming sureties for company to bank	1251
602. Resolution approving of proposed deed of indemnity	1253

CHAPTER XVII.—PETITIONS (pp. 1255—1288).

603. Petition for company's cancellation of capital lost or "unrepresented"	1269
607. Dispensation order as to "and reduced"	1270
608. Notice dispensing with	1271
609. Summons for dispensation order	1272
610. Order dispensing with "and reduced"	1272
611. Summons to fix a day for hearing, &c.	1272
612. Order on special summons	1273
613. Form of advertisement	1274
615. Affidavit in support of petition for reduction by cancelling lost capital	1275
616, 617. Causes of loss of capital	1276, 1277
618. Loss by fire insurance company	1277
619. Actuary's affidavit. Insurance office	1280
620. Accountant's affidavit in support	1280
621. Affidavit by secretary proving the calling of meetings	1281
622. Order confirming reduction by cancelling lost capital	1281
623. Advertisement of order reducing capital	1283
624. Reasons for reduction	1284
625. Petition to confirm reduction of capital under Act of 1867 [where creditors not affected]	1288
626. Summons for directors	1290
627. Order for inquiry as to debts, &c.	1290
627a. Reduction of capital. Order as to debts, notice of presentation, list of creditors, &c.	1290
628. Advertisement of petition	1291
629. Special notice	1291
630. Affidavit where no creditors	1292
631. Affidavit verifying list of creditors	1292
632. Notice to creditors	1292
633. Summons for order to serve by advertisement	1292
634. Advertisement as to list of creditors	1292
635. Notice where no creditors	1293
636. Affidavit of result	1294
637. Notice to prove	1294
638. Affidavit proving debt	1294

Form	PAGE
639. Master's certificate	1295
640. Certificate where no creditors	1296
641. Note that certificate has become binding	1296
642. Advertisement of day fixed for hearing	1296
643. Notice of intention to appear and oppose	1297
644. Order confirming reduction	1297
645. Order where assets distributed—payment into bank for security of non-consenting creditors	1297
646. Another lodgment in court where creditors do not consent	1300
647. Reduction of capital by cancellation of paid-up shares and substitution of debentures for same	1300
647a. Redeeming founders' shares	1301
647b. Order confirming reduction (Kodak, Limited)	1302
648. Advertisement of order, &c.	1306
648a. Article providing for issue of surplus certificates on reduction of capital	1306, 1307
649. Order on abandonment of proceedings	1308
650. Reduction of capital. Order staying proceedings	1308
650a. Reduction plus arrangement	1309
651. Petition to confirm extension of objects (sect. 9 of Act)	1315
652. Another. [Power to acquire other business]	1317
653. Petition for obtaining memorandum and articles under sect. 264 of Act	1318
654. Summons for declaration as to creditors being unaffected by extension, and for fixing date of hearing petition	1321
655. Order in chambers for petition to be heard, and advertisement	1322
656. Another	1322
657. Master's certificate as to creditors and notices	1323
658. Advertisement notice as to presentation and intended hearing of petition	1323
659. Another (debenture holders)	1323
660. Order on petition	1324
661. Order for adoption of memorandum and articles in substitution for deed of settlement (sect. 264)	1326
662. Another	1326
663. Order extending objects under sect. 9 of Act	1326
663a. Advertisement of order made on petition	1328
663b. Certificate of registration	1328
664. Petition to confirm transfer of life assurance business	1332
665. Petition for restoration to register under sect. 242 of Act	1335
667. Order on petition of restoration	1337

CHAPTER XVIII.—WRITS OF SUMMONS (pp. 1339—1364).

Form	PAGE
668. Common form of writ	1339
669. Special for call	1339
670. Company's claim for calls and interest	1343
671. Claims where shares forfeited	1343
672. Claim for call	1343
673. Notice by advertisement to defendant	1344
674. Claim for recovery of deposit where application for shares withdrawn before allotment	1345
675. Rescission of contract to take shares	1345
676. Rescission and damages (fraud alleged)	1345
677. Damages for fraud	1349
678. Compensation under the Directors' Liability Act, 1890	1350
679. Damages under sect. 81 of the Act	1350
680. Specific performance of agreement to allot shares	1350
680a. Rescission of contract for sale of mine to company	1351
681. Bribe to directors	1352
682. Promoter's secret profit	1352
683. Debenture foreclosure	1352
684. Ultra vires agreement	1352
684a. Action against personal representative of deceased shareholder who has transferred property to avoid payment of calls	1353
685. Debenture trust deed	1354
686. Ultra vires resolution	1354
687. Ultra vires business	1354
688. Dividend in prejudice of preference shares	1355
689. Dividend out of capital	1355
690. Recovery of dividends improperly paid	1356
691. To enforce resolution of company	1356
692. Exclusion of director	1357
693. To restrain de facto directors from acting	1357
694. Interrogatories	1364

CHAPTER XIX.—PLEADINGS (pp. 1365—1396).

695. Action for calls. Statement of claim	1365
696. Defence to action for calls	1367
697. Defence to action for calls. Specially indorsed writ	1368
698. Another	1370
699. Misstatements in prospectus. Claim to rescind contract to take shares	1372
700. Defence to action for rescission	1373
701. Summons for further particulars	1375
702. Action for rescission	1375
703. Another, framed under sect. 10 of the Companies Act, 1900	1377
704. Defence to 703	1378
705. Sect. 84 of Act	1379

Form	PAGE
706. Action under sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, and under Directors' Liability Act, 1890	1378
707. Defence to the above	1381
708. Action to recover bribe given to directors	1382
709. Defence to 708	1383
710. Ultra vires contract. Injunction	1384
711. Defence to 710	1385
712. Action for ultra vires purchase of shares	1385

CHAPTER XX.—JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS (pp. 1387—1426).

713. Usual order to rectify	1392
714. Notice of motion to rectify register	1392
715. Order rectifying register of members	1393
716. Rectification where invalid forfeiture	1393
717. Motion to be placed in non-witness list	1394
718. Where contract not filed under sect. 25 of Act of 1867	1394
719. Another	1395
720. Order rescinding contract to purchase shares from company	1395
721. Another	1396
722. Test action order	1397
723. Judgment setting aside sale of concession and ordering repayment	1398
724. Contract for sale of mine set aside	1399
725. Setting aside contract for sale and conveyance where liquidator sold to company in which he was largely interested	1400
726. Director ordered to pay value of shares	1401
727. Order for directors to pay over moneys to company	1401
728. Directors ordered to make good breach of trust	1402
729. Another	1403
730. Order against promoters to refund illegal profit	1403
731. Restraining threatened forfeitures	1404
732. Injunction restraining forfeiture of shares	1404
733. Judgment granting perpetual injunction against forfeiture	1405
734. Injunction to restrain exclusion of director	1406
735. Order restraining directors from holding meeting at improper period	1406
736. Restraining directors from improperly rejecting votes	1407
737. Restraining confirmation of irregular resolution	1407
738. Order on appeal from restraining order. Costs only to be paid	1407
739. Amalgamation declared ultra vires and restrained	1407
740. Sale of assets declared ultra vires and restrained	1408
741. Order restraining issue of preference shares	1408
742. Rights of preference stockholders declared and infringements restrained	1409
743. Declaration as to rights of founders' shares	1409
744. Payment of dividend out of capital restrained	1410
745. Payment of dividends out of capital	1410

TABLE OF FORMS.

XXV

Form	PAGE
746. Injunction refused	1410
747. Order restraining company from purchasing its own shares	1411
748. Order restraining presentation of winding-up petitions	1411
749. Order restraining bankruptcy proceedings against company in France	1412
750. Injunction against infringement of patent	1412
751. Order restraining use of name	1412
752. Perpetual injunction against running omnibus	1413
753. Another	1413
754. Perpetual injunction. Infringement of trade mark, sale of goods, publishing illustrations	1413
754a. Injunction—trade secret	1414
755. Injunction against telephonic trespass and obstruction	1414
756. Injunction against publishing libel on bank	1415
757. Injunction against breach of covenant giving option	1415
758. Interim order restraining company from enforcing regulation as to transfer of bankrupt's shares	1415
759. Order for plaintiff company to give security	1416
760. Order for plaintiff company to furnish security for costs	1417
761. Another, more modern	1417
762. Another. Fund to be paid into a bank	1417
763. Order dismissing	1418
764. Order of foreclosure of ordinary mortgage	1418
765. Appointment of receiver and manager of theatre	1419
766. Liberty to add word "limited" to old trade-marks	1419
767. Memorandum approved by the Court of Appeal in Brutton v. Burney , (1901) 1 Ch. 643	1420
768. Notice of motion to extend time for registration of mortgage or charge	1424
769. Order extending time	1426
770. Extension of time under sect. 15 of Act of 1900	1426

CHAPTER XXI.—APPEALS TO HOUSE OF LORDS
(pp. 1427—1429).

770a. Form of petition and case	1427
---	------

CHAPTER XXII.—RECONSTRUCTION (pp. 1431—1480).

771. Agreement with a view to reconstruction	1439
772. Special provision as to distribution of shares	1465
773. Power to rescind subject to a consideration	1465
774. Notice and resolutions with a view to reconstruction	1465
775. Circular	1467
776. Scheme	1467
777. Another	1468
778. Supplemental agreement—specifying shares	1469

Form	PAGE
779. Liquidators' direction to allot	1469
780. Circular	1470
781. Notice of allotment	1471
782. Reply to last	1472
783. Fractional certificate	1472
784. Request for allotment of shares in exchange for fractional certificates	1472
785. Request for allotment to specified persons	1473
786. Letter of allotment	1473
787. Resolution for sale of undertaking	1474
788. Notice of dissent pursuant to sect. 161	1474
789. Reconstruction on special lines	1474
790. Agreement for exchange of shares	1476
791. Circular as to distribution in specie	1478
792. Form of request for allotment	1480

CHAPTER XXIII.—AMALGAMATION (pp. 1481—1491).

ARRANGEMENTS AND COMPROMISES (pp. 1492—1520).

793. Agreement with a view to amalgamation	1488
794. Resolution for amalgamation	1489
795. Resolution for the amalgamation of two companies with a third	1491
796. Resolution for amalgamation to be effected by the formation of a new company	1491
797. Summons for meetings	1503
798. Scheme of arrangement	1505
799. Another	1506
800. Another	1507
801. Order for meetings	1508
802. Another	1509
803. Notice of meeting	1510
804. Resolution	1511
805. Form of proxy	1511
806. Report of chairman	1512
807. Petition (skeleton)	1513
808—810. Orders confirming scheme	1514—1518

APPENDIX.

TABLE OF CASES.

A.		PAGE
A—Agg
A. Company, (1894) 2 Ch. 349	- - - -	1411
A 1 Biscuit Co., W. N. (1899) 115	- - - -	724
Aaron's Reefs, Ltd. v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, 284; 65 L. J. P. C. 54; 74 L. T. 794	- 143, 144, 174, 177, 186, 188, 196, 198, 203, 204, 212, 224, 240, 241, 661, 1366
A. B., Re , W. N. (1899) 233	- - - -	949
Abbotsford Hotel v. Kingham, 102 L. T. 108 (C. A.)	- - - -	118, 666, 1408
Abbott v. Middleton (1858), 7 H. L. C. 88	- - - -	398, 1158
Abbott v. Stratton, 3 Jo. & Lat. 613	- - - -	1158
Abel Morrell, Ltd. v. T. Hessin & Co., 19 R. P. C. 567	- - - -	454
Aberaman Ironworks Co. v. Wickens, 4 Ch. 101; 20 L. T. 89; 17 W. R. 211	- - - -	1400
Aberdeen Rail. Co. v. Blaikie, 1 Macq. 461; 23 L. T. 315; 2 Eq. R. 1281	- - - -	138, 732
Abraham & Sons, (1902) 1 Ch. 695; 71 L. J. Ch. 307; 86 L. T. 290; 50 W. R. 284	- - - -	617, 618, 1423
Abrath v. G. E. Rail. Co., 11 A. C. 247; 32 W. R. 50; 55 L. T. 63	- - - -	38
Accidental Ins. Co. v. Davis, 15 L. T. 182	- - - -	656
Acland v. Lewis, 1 K. & G. 334; 30 L. C. P. 29; 9 C. B. N. S. 32	- - - -	28
Actieselskabet Damskl Hercules v. Grand Trunk Pacific Rail. Co., 28 T. L. R. 28; 106 L. T. 695	- - - -	86, 1341
Adair v. Young, 12 C. D. 13; 41 L. T. 361; 28 W. R. 85	- - - -	381
Adams v. G. W. Rail. Co., 6 H. & N. 404; 4 B. & S. 326	- - - -	86
Adams v. Newbigging, 13 App. Cas. 308; 57 L. J. Ch. 1066; 59 L. T. 267; 37 W. R. 97	- - - -	1400
Adamson's Case, 18 Eq. 670; 44 L. J. Ch. 125; 22 W. R. 820	- - - -	732, 733
Addie v. The Western Bank of Scotland, 1 H. L. Sc. 145, 167	- - - -	41
Addinell's Case, 1 Eq. 225; 35 L. J. Ch. 75; 13 L. T. 456; 14 W. R. 72	- - - -	30
Addison v. Ness, 9 T. L. R. 607	- - - -	364
Addlestone Linoleum Co., Re , 37 C. D. 191; 36 W. R. 57	- - - -	60, 478
Aerators, Ltd. v. Tollit, (1902) 2 Ch. 319; 71 L. J. Ch. 727; 86 L. T. 651; 50 W. R. 584	- - - -	451, 452
African Association v. Allen, (1910) 1 K. B. 396; 102 L. T. 129; 79 L. J. K. B. 259	- - - -	441
Agar v. Athenæum Society, 3 C. B. N. S. 725; 27 L. J. C. P. 95; 4 Jur. N. S. 211	- - - -	79, 761
Agency Land and Finance Co. of Australia, 20 T. L. R. 41	- - - -	658
Aggs v. Nicholson, 1 H. & N. 165; 25 L. J. Ex. 348	- - - -	334

Agr—Alm	PAGE
Agra and Masterman's Bank, Re, Ex parte Asiatic Banking Corporation, 12 Eq. 409; 2 Ch. 397; 36 L. J. Ch. 222; 16 L. T. 162; 15 W. R. 414; 48 L. T. 114	- 1452
Airey, Re, Airey v. Stapleton, (1897) 1 Ch. 164; 66 L. J. Ch. 152; 76 L. T. 151; 45 W. R. 286	- 1159
Ajello v. Walsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274; 77 L. T. 783; 46 W. R. 245	- 445
Alabama New Orleans Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 243	- 1493, 1496, 1497, 1500, 1501, 1502
Albion Assurance Society. See Winston's Case.
Albert Life Assurance Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 381; 40 L. J. Ch. 505; 24 L. T. N. S. 768; 19 W. R. 670	- 1332, 1497
Albert Life Assurance Co., Re Tait's Claim, 16 Sol. J. 46	- 443
Albion, &c. Co. v. Martin, 1 C. D. 580; 45 L. J. Ch. 173; 33 L. T. 660; 24 W. R. 134	- 594, 732
Alcock, Re, Prescott v. Phipps, 23 C. D. 372; 49 L. T. 240	- 1193
Alderson v. Maddison, 5 Ex. D. 293; 8 App. Cas. 467; 52 L. J. Q. B. 737; 43 L. T. 249; 49 L. T. 303; 29 W. R. 105	- 187, 337
Alexander v. Automatic Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56, 59, 63; 69 L. J. Ch. 428; 82 L. T. 400; 43 W. R. 546 (C. A.)	- 22, 46, 47, 75, 485, 603, 654, 656, 704, 1356, 1360
Alexander v. Simpson, 43 C. D. 139, 147; 59 L. J. Ch. 137; 61 L. T. 708; 38 W. R. 161; 1 Meg. 457	- 692, 693, 696, 1047, 1049, 1081
Alexander Mitchell's Case, 4 App. Cas. 567; 40 L. T. 758; 27 W. R. 873	- 686
Alexandra Palace Co. (1882), 21 C. D. 149, 159; 30 W. R. 771; 46 L. T. 730; 51 L. J. Ch. 655	- 714, 766, 787, 860, 871, 872, 902
Alexandria Co. v. Musgrove, 11 Q. B. D. 174	- 90, 93, 98, 100
Alianza Co. v. Bell, (1904) 2 K. B. 666; 21 T. L. R. 134; 73 L. J. K. B. 755; 91 L. T. 463; 53 W. R. 23; 20 T. L. R. 634; (1906) A. C. 18	- 101
Alkaline Reduction Syndicate, Re, 45 W. R. 10; 12 T. L. R. 534	- 60
Allen, Re, Adcock v. Evans, (1896) 2 Ch. 345; 65 L. J. Ch. 760; 75 L. T. 136; 44 W. R. 644	- 1247
Allen and Driscoll's Contract, (1904) 2 Ch. 226; 52 W. R. 681; 20 T. L. R. 605	- 355
Allen v. Flood, (1898) A. C. 1; 67 L. J. Q. B. 119; 77 L. T. 77; 46 W. R. 258	- 445
Allen v. Gold Reefs of West Africa, (1900) 1 Ch. 656; 69 L. J. Ch. 266; 82 L. T. 210; 58 W. R. 452; 7 Mans. 417	- 479, 575, 589, 630, 636, 639, 658, 662, 677, 692, 704, 719, 781, 818, 819, 1050, 1078, 1080, 1102
Allen v. Taylor, 19 W. R. 25; 24 L. T. 249	- 358
Alliance Bank v. Broom, 34 L. J. Ch. 256; 2 Dr. & Sm. 289	- 1180, 1182
Alliance Marine Ass. Co., (1892) 1 Ch. 300; 61 L. J. Ch. 176; 65 L. T. 554; 40 W. R. 329	- 1311
Allsopp & Sons, Ltd., 51 W. R. 644; W. N. (1903) 132	- 1124, 1259
Alma Spinning Co., Re, 16 C. D. 681; 29 W. R. 133; 43 L. T. 620; 53 L. J. Ch. 167	- 728, 740, 742
Almada and Tiritto Co., Re, 38 C. D. 415, 423; 57 L. J. Ch. 706; 59 L. T. 159; 36 W. R. 593; 1 Meg. 28	- 60, 63, 465, 478
Alman v. Oppert, (1901) 2 K. B. 576; 70 L. J. K. B. 745; 84 L. T. 828 (C. A.)	- 218, 1379

Alt—Apt	PAGE
Alton Urban Council v. Spicer, (1904) 1 K. B. 678; 90 L. T. 376; 52 W. R. 624 - - - - -	106
Aluminium Co., W. N. (1894) 6 - - - - -	1266, 1268
Amalgamated Syndicates, Re , (1897) 2 Ch. 600; 66 L. J. Ch. 783; 77 L. T. 431, 432; 4 Manson, 308 - - - - -	470, 600, 602
Ambergate Rail. Co. v. Norcliffe, 6 Ex. 629; 20 L. J. Ex. 234 - - -	655
Ambrose Lake Tin Co., 14 C. D. 390; 28 W. R. 783; 42 L. T. 604; 49 L. J. Ch. 457 - - - - -	133
American Pastoral Co., 62 L. T. 625 - - - - -	1119, 1259, 1283
American Surety Co. v. Wrightson, 27 T. L. R. 91 - - - - -	521
American Thread Co. v. Joyce, 28 T. L. R. 233 - - - - -	93, 95, 119
Amor v. Tesson, 9 A. & E. 548 - - - - -	442
Amos v. Chadwick, 4 C. D. 869 - - - - -	1397
Anderson's Case, 7 C. D. 75, 102; 26 W. R. 442; 37 L. T. 560; 47 L. J. Ch. 273 - - - - -	62, 63, 143, 240, 592
Anderson's Case, 17 C. D. 373 - - - - -	1389
Anderson v. Anderson, (1895) 1 Q. B. 749; 64 L. J. Q. B. 457; 72 L. T. 313; 43 W. R. 322; 14 R. 367 (C. A.) - - - - -	601
Andrews v. Abertillery Urban Council, (1911) 2 Ch. 398 - - - - -	537
Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 361; 66 L. J. Ch. 246; 76 L. T. 132; 45 W. R. 321 - - - - -	479, 481, 575, 637, 639, 818, 819, 1102, 1105, 1106
Andrews v. Mockford, (1896) 1 Q. B. 372, 378; 65 L. J. 807; 55 L. J. Ch. 579 - - - - -	180, 204, 1350, 1373
Andrews v. Ramsay & Co., (1903) 2 K. B. 635; 72 L. J. K. B. 865; 89 L. T. 450; 52 W. R. 126 - - - - -	733
Anglo-African Steamship Co., 32 C. D. 348, 350; 54 L. T. 807; 55 L. J. Ch. 579 - - - - -	782
Anglo-American, &c. Co., Re , (1898) 1 Ch. 100; 67 L. J. Ch. 45 - - - 1312, 1337
Anglo-Continental, &c. Corporation, (1898) 1 Ch. 327, 335; 78 L. T. 157 - - - - -	657, 784
Anglo-Danubian, &c. Co., Re , 20 Eq. 339, 341; 23 W. R. 783; 33 L. T. 118; 44 L. J. Ch. 502 - - - - -	686, 688, 747
Anglo-French Co-operative Society, Re , 21 C. D. 492; 31 W. R. 177; 47 L. T. 638; (1902) 2 Ch. 845, 851 - - - - -	715, 788, 838, 1262
Anglo-French Exploration Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 845; 71 L. J. Ch. 800; 51 W. R. 8 - - - - -	878
Anglo-French Society, Re , 21 Ch. D. 501 - - - - -	1403
Anglo-French Exploration Corporation, (1902) 2 Ch. 846; 71 L. J. Ch. 800; 51 W. R. 8 - - - - -	1256
Anglo-Italian Bank v. De Rosaz, L. R. 2 Q. B. 452 - - - - -	1474
Anglo-Oriental Carpet Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 914; 72 L. J. Ch. 458; 88 L. T. 391; 51 W. R. 634 - - - - -	618, 1424
Angus v. Clifford, (1891) 2 Ch. 449; 60 L. J. Ch. 433; 65 L. T. 274; 39 W. R. 498 (C. A.): reversing 63 L. T. 684; 39 W. R. 252 - - - 205, 213, 216	193
Anthony v. Seger, 1 Hagg. Consist. 913 - - - - -	700, 701
Appleyard's Case, 18 C. D. 587; 30 W. R. 147; 45 L. T. 552; 50 L. J. Ch. 554 - - - - -	391, 617
Appleyard v. New London and Suburban Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 621; 98 L. T. 663; 15 Mans. 154 - - - - -	617
Apthorpe v. Peter Schoenhofen Brewery Co., 80 L. T. 385 (C. A.) - - -	96, 97

	PAGE
Arco—Att
Archer's Case, Re North Australian Territory Co., (1892) 1 Ch. 322 ; 61 L. J. Ch. 129 ; 65 L. T. 800 ; 40 W. R. 212 (C. A.) -	142, 715, 720, 721, 722
Arling v. Lomax (1854), 24 L. J. Ex. 80 - - - -	442
Argus Life Ass. Co., 39 C. D. 571 ; 58 L. J. Ch. 166 ; 59 L. T. 680 ; 37 W. R. 215 - - - -	78, 511, 636, 639, 640, 1329
Argyle, &c. Co., Re , 54 L. T. 237 - - - -	47, 484
Arizona Copper Co. v. Smiles, 29 L. R. Sc. 134 - - -	100
Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 C. D. 322 ; 28 W. R. 529 ; 29 W. R. 455 ; 44 L. T. 393 ; 50 L. J. Ch. 372 -	172, 189, 190, 203, 204, 208, 215, 228
Armitage v. Garnett, Re Armitage, (1893) 3 Ch. 337 ; 63 L. J. Ch. 110 ; 69 L. T. 619 ; 7 R. 290 - - - -	754, 768
Armitage v. Moore, (1900) 2 Q. B. 363 - - - -	99
Army and Navy Co-operative Society v. Army, Navy, and Civil Service Co-operative Society of South Africa, 19 R. P. C. 575 -	451
Army, &c. Soc. v. Craig, 8 T. L. R. 227 - - - -	227, 229
Arnison v. Smith, 40 C. D. 567 ; 41 C. D. 348, 372 ; 61 L. T. 63 ; 37 W. R. 739 ; 1 Meg. 388 -	189, 190, 192, 193, 195, 203, 205, 208, 213, 215, 221, 244, 281, 1347
Arnot's Case, 39 C. D. 702 ; 57 L. J. Ch. 195 ; 57 L. T. 353 -	54
Arnot v. United African Lands, (1901) 1 Ch. 518 ; 70 L. J. Ch. 306 ; 84 L. T. 309 ; 49 W. R. 322 ; 8 Mans. 179 - -	26, 1699
Artizans' Land and Mortgage Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 796 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 581 ; 52 W. R. 330 - - - -	770, 1257, 1305
Ashanti Development Co., 27 T. L. R. 498 - - - -	1274
Ashburner v. Sewell, (1891) 3 Ch. 405 ; 60 L. J. Ch. 784 ; 65 L. T. 524 ; 40 W. R. 169 - - - -	351
Ashbury Railway, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653 ; 33 L. T. 451 ; 44 L. J. Ex. 185 ; 9 Ex. 263 - 30, 31, 42, 75, 76, 459, 460, 462, 464, 466, 472, 479, 480, 588, 592, 600, 631, 694, 712, 1102
Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376 ; 33 W. R. 182 ; 54 L. T. 27 ; 54 L. J. Ch. 985 - 30, 76, 481, 576, 588, 592, 631, 638, 811, 817, 818, 1102, 1495
Ashby v. Costin, 59 L. T. 224 - - - -	677
Ashley's Case, 9 Eq. 263, 268, 269 ; 18 W. R. 395 ; 22 L. T. 83 ; 39 L. J. Ch. 354 - - - -	197, 198
Ashton v. Dalton, 2 Coll. 568 - - - -	1185
Ashton Gas Co. v. Att.-Gen., (1906) A. C. 10 - - -	102
Ashurst v. Mason, 20 Eq. 225 ; 23 W. R. 506 - - -	788, 1403
Askew's Case, 9 Ch. 664 ; 22 W. R. 833 ; 31 L. T. 55 - -	1390
Astley v. New Tivoli, (1899) 1 Ch. 151 ; 68 L. J. Ch. 90 ; 79 L. T. 541 ; 47 W. R. 326 ; 6 Mans. 64 - - - -	729
Atkin v. Wardle, 61 L. T. 23 - - - -	510, 752
Atkinson v. Hutchinson, 3 P. Wms. 258 - - - -	603
Atkinson v. Newcastle and Gateshead Waterworks Co., 2 Ex. D. 441 - - - -	176
Attenborough v. Jay, 14 T. L. R. 365 - - - -	44
Att.-Gen. v. Alexander, 10 Ex. 428 - - - -	94
Att.-Gen. v. Ashton Gas Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 621 ; 73 L. J. Ch. 673 ; 53 W. R. 49 - - - -	765
Att.-Gen. v. Bauwens, 4 M. & W. 171 - - - -	342

TABLE OF CASES.

xxxi

Att - Bad	PAGE
Att.-Gen. v. Caledonian Rail. Co., 27 T. L. R. 557 - -	488
Att.-Gen. v. Corporation of Leicester, (1910) 2 Ch. 359 - -	537
Att.-Gen. v. Day, 2 Atk. 212 - - -	74, 1100
Att.-Gen. v. Gas Light and Coke Co., 15 T. L. R. 517 - -	487
Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co., 11 C. D. 449; 5 App. Cas. 473; 27 W. R. 759; 28 W. R. 769; 40 L. T. 265; 42 L. T. 810; 48 L. J. Ch. 429; 49 L. J. Ch. 545 - - -	460, 461, 467, 471, 854
Att.-Gen. v. G. N. Rail. Co., 1 Dr. & Sm. 213 - - -	465
Att.-Gen. v. George Smith, Ltd., (1909) 2 Ch. 534 - - -	44
Att.-Gen. v. Hanwell U. D. C., (1900) 2 Ch. 377 - - -	465
Att.-Gen. v. Jameson, (1904) 2 Ir. Rep. K. B. D. 644 - -	927, 950
Att.-Gen. v. Lockwood, 9 M. & W. 378 - - -	220
Att.-Gen. v. Manchester Corporation, (1906) 1 Ch. 643; 54 W. R. 307; 22 T. L. R. 261 - - -	466
Att.-Gen. v. Mayor of Brecon, 10 C. D. 204 - - -	512
Att.-Gen. v. New York Breweries Co., (1898) 1 Q. B. 205; 67 L. J. Q. B. 86; 78 L. T. 61; 46 W. R. 193 - - -	42, 678
Att.-Gen. v. N. E. Rail. Co., (1906) 1 Ch. 675; 95 L. T. 512; 22 T. L. R. 695 - - -	466
Att.-Gen. v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 70; 61 L. J. Ch. 693; 72 L. T. 340 - - -	466
Att.-Gen. v. Ray, 9 Ch. App. 402, n. - - -	213
Att.-Gen. v. Regent's Canal and Dock Co., (1904) 1 K. B. 263; 73 L. J. K. B. 50; 52 W. R. 211 - - -	487
Att.-Gen. v. Swansea Corporation, (1898) 1 Ch. 602; 67 L. J. Ch. 356; 78 L. T. 412; 46 W. R. 534; 62 J. P. 408 - - -	512
Att.-Gen. v. Till, (1910) A. C. 50; 70 L. J. K. B. 141; 101 L. T. 819 - - -	694
Attwood v. Munnings, 7 B. & C. 278; 1 M. & G. 66 - - -	1157
Atwool v. Merryweather, 5 Eq. 464 - - -	640, 703, 1157, 1358, 1360
Austin's Case, 24 L. T. 912 - - -	654
Australian, &c. Co. v. Mounsey, 4 K. & J. 733; 6 W. R. 734; 31 L. T. O. S. 246 - - -	473, 509, 686, 687
Australian Estates, &c. Co., (1910) 1 Ch. 414; 79 L. J. Ch. 202; 102 L. T. 458 - - -	1264, 1283, 1520
Australian United Gold Mining Co., W. N. (1877) 37 - - -	1462
Austrian Lloyd Steamship Co. v. Gresham Life Assurance Society, (1903) 1 K. B. 249; 72 L. J. K. B. 211; 88 L. T. 6; 51 W. R. 402 (C. A.) - - -	344
Automatic Self-Cleansing Filter Co. v. Cunningham, (1906) 2 Ch. 34; 94 L. T. 651; 22 T. L. R. 378 (C. A.) - - -	75, 736, 747
Aveling v. Wood, (1891) 1 Ch. 115 - - -	1205
Ayre v. Shelsey's Adamant Cement Co., 21 T. L. R. 464 - -	1096, 1100

B.

Badger, Re , Mansell v. Viscount Cobham, (1905) 1 Ch. 568 - -	473
Badische Anilin &c. v. Isler, (1906) 1 Ch. 605; 94 L. T. 367; 22 T. L. R. 326 - - -	380, 424
Badische Anilin, &c. v. Schott, (1892) 3 Ch. 447; 61 L. J. Ch. 698; 67 L. T. 281 - - -	357, 358

	PAGE
Bad—Ban
Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Basle Chemical Works, (1898)
A. C. 200	119
Bagge's Case, 2 Dr. & Sm. 439	662
Baglan Hall Colliery Co., 5 Ch. 346; 18 W. R. 499; 23 L. T. 60;
39 L. J. Ch. 591	58, 60, 61, 69, 331, 467, 471, 476, 484
Baglehole, Ex parte , 1 Rose, 432	1186
Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 C. D. 371; 26 W. R. 243; 37 L. T. 481; 47
L. J. Ch. 30	122, 133, 139, 142, 1400
Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., (1901) 1
Ch. 196; 70 L. J. Ch. 128; 83 L. T. 667; 49 W. R. 265; affirmed on appeal (Dec., 1901), 18 T. L. R. 161; (1902) 1 (L. T. 146 - 147, 322, 323, 381
Bahamas Plantations v. Griffin, 14 T. L. R. 139	290, 295
Bahia and San Francisco Rail. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584; 37 L. J.
Q. B. 176; 18 L. T. 467; 16 W. R. 862	674
Bailey v. Birkenhead Co., 12 Beav. 433; 19 L. J. Ch. 377	655
Bailey v. Sweeting, 9 C. B. N. S. 843	335, 336
Baillie's Case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110; 67 L. J. Ch. 81; 77 L. T. 523; 46
W. R. 187; 4 Mans. 393	49, 73, 200
Baillie v. Kell, 4 Bing. N. C. 638	442
Baily v. British Equitable Asso. Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 374; 73 L. J. Ch.
240; 90 L. T. 335; (1906) A. C. 35	631, 636, 640, 1329
Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 C. D. 642; 60 L. T. 879; 37 W. R. 594	596, 633, 720, 737, 1357, 1405
Baines v. Geary, 35 C. D. 154; 56 L. J. Ch. 935; 56 L. T. 367; 36
W. R. 98; 51 J. P. 628	367
Baines v. Swainson, 4 B. & S. 270	1208, 1209
Baird's Case, (1899) 2 Ch. 593; 68 L. J. Ch. 521; 80 L. T. 870; 47
W. R. 695; 5 Ch. 725	58, 495, 520, 678, 913, 919
Baker v. Hedgecock, 39 C. D. 520	358
Baker v. Plaskit, 5 C. B. 262	122
Balaghat Gold Mining Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 665; 17 T. L. R. 660;
70 L. J. K. B. 866; 85 L. T. 8; 49 W. R. 625 (C. A.)	71, 688, 771
Balchin v. Ebury (Lord), 22 L. T. R. 60	1022
Balfour v. Crace, (1891) 1 Ch. 733; 86 L. T. 144; 71 L. J. Ch. 358	1246
Balgoolie Distillery Co., 17 Irish L. R. Eq. 263	749
Balkis Co., W. N. (1888) 3; 58 L. T. 300; 36 W. R. 392	669
Balkis (New) Eersteling Randt Gold Mining Co., (1904) A. C. 165;
73 L. J. K. B. 341; 90 L. T. 494; 52 W. R. 561 (H. L., E.)	665
Bangor, &c. Co., Re , 20 Eq. 39; 32 L. T. 389; 23 W. R. 785	578, 816, 1106
Bank of Africa v. Salisbury Gold Mining Co., (1892) A. C. 281; 61
L. J. P. C. 34; 66 L. T. 237; 41 W. R. 47	664
Bank of Bengal v. Macleod, 7 Moo. P. C. 33, 74	1158
Bank of England v. Cutler, (1907) 1 K. B. 889; (1908) 2 K. B. 208;
96 L. T. 636; 98 L. T. 336; 23 T. L. R. 374; 24 T. L. R.
318	674, 1159
Bank of England v. Vagliano, (1891) A. C. 144; 60 L. J. Q. B. 145;
64 L. T. 353; 39 W. R. 637	1094, 1204
Bank of Hindustan v. Alison, L. R. 6 C. P. 73; 19 W. R. 705; 23
L. T. 616; 40 L. J. C. P. 1	28
Bank of Ireland v. Evans' Trustees, 5 H. L. C. 389	83
Bank of London v. Tyrrell, 10 H. L. C. 26; 31 L. J. Ch. 369; 8 Jur.
N. S. 849	157

San-Bar	PAGE
Bank of Mexico v. Apethorpe, 64 L. T. 416 - - -	93
Bank of New South Wales v. Goulbourn Valley Co., (1902) A. C. 543; 71 L. J. P. C. 112; 87 L. T. 88; 51 W. R. 367 (P. C.) -	1193
Bank of Scotland v. Morrison (1911), 8 C. 593 (Ot. of Sess.) -	1196
Bank of South Australia, Re, (1895) 1 Ch. 578; 64 L. J. Ch. 397; 72 L. T. 273; 43 W. R. 339; 12 R. 166 -	1439
Bank of Syria, Re, (1900) 2 Ch. 272; 83 L. T. 165, 547; 49 W. R. 100 -	744
Bank of Turkey v. Ottoman Co., 2 Eq. 369; 14 W. R. 819; 14 L. T. 545, 884 -	239, 748
Bannatyne v. Direct Spanish Cable Co., 34 C. D. 287; 35 W. R. 125; 55 L. T. 716; 56 L. J. Ch. 107 -	818, 879, 1119, 1258
Banner v. Berridge, 18 C. D. 251; 29 W. R. 844; 44 L. T. 680; 50 L. J. Ch. 630 -	141
Barber's Case, 5 C. D. 963; 26 W. R. 3 -	719, 738
Baring-Gould v. Sharpington Combined Pick and Shovel Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80; 68 L. J. Ch. 429; 80 L. T. 739; 47 W. R. 564 (C. A.) -	147, 148, 631, 733, 738, 780, 1445, 1446, 1457, 1487
Barkworth v. Young, 4 Drew. 1 -	1184
Barnacle v. Clerk, (1900) 1 Q. B. 279 -	733
Barnes' Banking Co., 3 Ch. 105; 16 W. R. 193; 17 L. T. 269; 37 L. J. Ch. 81 -	36, 45, 82, 456, 467, 507
Barnes, Ex parte, (1896) A. C. 146 -	603
Barnes v. Addy, 9 Ch. D. 244 -	140
Barnett v. South London Tramways Co., 18 Q. B. D. 815; 35 W. R. 640; 37 L. T. 436; 56 L. J. Q. B. 452 -	41, 759
Barnton Hotel Co. v. Cook (1899), 36 Sc. L. R. 938 -	759
Baron de Berville's Case (1868), 7 Eq. 11 -	58
Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 36 C. D. 685; 10 A. C. 334 -	30, 460, 509, 1455
Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co. (No. 2), 19 Q. B. D. 155 -	43, 686, 1188, 1199
Barrett's Case, 4 De G. J. & S. 416; 12 L. T. 193; 13 W. R. 559 -	48
Barrow's Case, 14 C. D. 433; 42 L. T. 991; 49 L. J. Ch. 498; 28 W. R. 341 -	759
Barrow Hematite Co., 39 C. D. 582; 58 L. J. Ch. 148; 59 L. T. 500; 37 W. R. 249; (1900) 2 Ch. 846 -	79, 639, 843, 865, 867, 876, 1119, 1258, 1262, 1263, 1298
Barrow-in-Furness Investment Co., 14 C. D. 403 -	68
Barrow v. Isaacs, (1891) 1 Q. B. 417; 60 L. J. Q. B. 179; 64 L. T. 686; 39 W. R. 338; 55 J. P. 517 (C. A.) -	355
Barrow v. Paringha Mines, (1909) 2 Ch. 658 -	289, 1440, 1450
Barry v. Croskey, 2 J. & H. 117 -	204
Barry v. Halifax Commercial Banking Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 188 -	1193
Bartholomay Brewery Co. v. Wyatt, (1893) 2 Q. B. 499; 62 L. J. Q. B. 525; 69 L. T. 561; 42 W. R. 173; 5 R. 564 -	93
Barton's Trusts, 5 Eq. 238 -	768
Barton v. Fitzgerald, 15 East. 540 -	594
Barton v. L. & N.-W. Rail. Co., 24 Q. B. D. 77; 59 L. J. Q. B. 33; 62 L. T. 164; 38 W. R. 197; 38 C. D. 149 -	54, 667, 674, 675, 678, 1142
Barton v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co., 38 C. D. 458; 57 L. J. Ch. 800; 58 L. T. 549; 36 W. R. 754 -	674, 678, 770

	PAGE Bar—Ben
Barwick v. English Joint Stock Banking Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 259
(Ex. Ch.); 36 L. J. Ex. 147 - - - - -	36, 40, 41
Bassett, Re , 2 Mans. 171 - - - - -	751
Batard v. Hawes, 2 E. & B. 287; 3 B. & R. 277; 23 L. J. Q. B. 443;
17 Jur. 1134 - - - - -	149
Bateman v. Mid-Wales Rail. Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 499; 14 W. R. 672;
35 L. J. C. P. 203; 12 Jur. N. S. 483 - - - - -	510
Bath's Case, 8 C. D. 334; 26 W. R. 441; 38 L. T. 267; 47 L. J. Ch.
601 - - - - - 33, 455, 467, 468, 472, 601, 751
Bath v. Standard Land Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 618 - - - - -	712
Baty v. Keawick, 85 L. T. 18 - - - - -	289
Bawden v. London, Edinburgh and Glasgow Co., (1892) 2 Q. B. 534 -	42
Baxter v. Brown, M. & G. 210; 8 Sc. N. R. 1019 - - - - -	27
Baxter v. Holdsworth, (1899) 1 Q. B. 286; 68 L. J. Q. B. 154; 47
W. R. 179 (C. A.) - - - - -	1362
Baxter v. London and County Printing Works, (1899) 1 Q. B. 901 -	442
Bayley-Worthington and Cohen's Contract, (1909) 1 Ch. 648; W. N.
(1909) 68 - - - - -	354
Beard v. London General Omnibus Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 530; 69
L. J. Q. B. 895; 83 L. T. 362; 48 W. R. 658 (C. A.) - - - - -	37, 41
Beattie v. Lord Ebury, 7 Ch. 777; 20 W. R. 994; 27 L. T. 398; 41
L. J. Ch. 804 - - - - -	187
Beaumont (Duke of) v. Neeld, 12 Cl. & Fin. 248 - - - - -	293
Bechuanaland Exploration Co. v. London Trading Bank, (1898)
2 Q. B. 658; 67 L. J. Q. B. 986; 79 L. T. 270 - - - - -	1243
Beckett v. Addyman (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 783 - - - - -	1246
Becket v. Tower Bridge Assessment Committee, (1891) 1 Q. B.
638 - - - - -	1248
Beckford v. Wade, 17 Ves. 97 - - - - -	141
Beckwith, Ex parte , (1898) 1 Ch. 324; 46 W. R. 376; 67 L. J. Ch.
164; 78 L. T. 155; 5 Mans. 168 - - - - -	441, 636, 724, 739
Beer v. London and Paris Hotel Co., 20 Eq. 412; 32 L. T. 716 -	334
Beeston Pneumatic Tyre Co., 14 T. L. R. 378; W. N. (1898) 34 -	1442
Belfast Banking Co., 1 Ir. C. L. R. 693 - - - - -	1247
Belhaven's (Lord) Case, 3 D. J. & S. 41 - - - - -	756
Bell Brothers, Re , 65 L. T. 245; 7 T. L. R. 689 (Chitty, J.) -	671, 672
Bell v. National Provincial Bank of England, (1904) 1 K. B. 149; 73
L. J. K. B. 142; 90 L. T. 2; 52 W. R. 406; 20 T. L. R. 97 (C. A.) -	103
Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 562 - - - - -	187, 192, 195, 203
Bellamy v. Brickenden, 3 J. & H. 137 - - - - -	1216, 1217
Bellerby v. Rowland and Marwood's Steamship Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 14
(C. A.); (1901) 2 Ch. 265; 17 T. L. R. 510; 70 L. J. Ch. 616;
84 L. T. 651 - - - - - 515, 749, 750, 1389, 1390, 1411
Bellhouse v. Mellor, 28 L. J. Ex. 141 - - - - -	718
Benett v. Wyndham, 4 De G. F. & J. 259 - - - - -	787, 921
Bennett v. Brumfit, L. R. 3 C. P. 28; 16 W. R. 131; 17 L. T. 218;
37 L. J. C. P. 35; 1 H. & P. 407 - - - - -	781, 1047
Bennett v. Cooper, 9 Beav. 252 - - - - -	1183
Bennett Bros., Ltd. v. Lewis, 48 S. J. 14 - - - - -	717, 728, 736
Bennett-Clarke v. White, (1899) 1 Ch. 316; 68 L. J. Ch. 104; 47
W. R. 406 - - - - -	346

Ben-Bis

PAGE

Bennett v. Lord Bury, 5 C. P. D. 339; Dan. Ch. Pr. 7th ed. 1610; Seton, 6th ed. 833	-	-	-	-	1397
Bennett, Re , Masonic and General Life Assurance Co. v. Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. 154; 61 L. J. Ch. 193; 65 L. T. 806; 40 W. R. 241 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	862, 871
Bennett v. Stone, (1903) 1 Ch. 509; 72 L. J. Ch. 240; 86 L. T. 35; 51 W. R. 338 (C. A.); (1902) 1 Ch. 226	-	-	-	-	354
Bentham Mills Spinning Co., Re , 11 C. D. 900; 28 W. R. 26; 41 L. T. 10; 48 L. J. Ch. 671	-	-	-	-	672, 679
Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 652	-	-	-	-	137, 138
Bentinck v. London Joint Stock Bank, (1893) 2 Ch. 120; 62 L. J. Ch. 358; 68 L. T. 315; 42 W. R. 140; 3 R. 120	-	-	-	-	1187
Bentley v. Black, 9 T. L. R. 580	-	-	-	-	188, 193
Bentley (Henry) & Co., 69 L. T. 204	-	-	-	-	88
Berkeley v. Standard Discount Co., 13 C. D. 97	-	-	-	-	1363
Berry v. Halifax Commercial Bank, (1901) 1 Ch. 188; 70 L. J. Ch. 85; 83 L. T. 665; 49 W. R. 164	-	-	-	-	1219
Bertie v. Walthamstow Overseers, 68 J. P. 545; 2 L. G. R. 1178	-	-	-	-	109
Bothell v. Trench Tubeless Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 408; 69 L. J. Ch. 213; 82 L. T. 247; 48 W. R. 310 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	693, 695, 849
Betts v. Gibbins, 2 A. & E. 57; 4 N. & M. 64	-	-	-	-	226
Betts, Ltd. v. Macnaghten, (1910) 1 Ch. 420; 25 T. L. R. 552	-	-	-	-	692, 700, 849, 1097, 1449
Betts v. Wilmot, L. R. 6 Ch. 239	-	-	-	-	381
Bevan v. Webb, (1901) 2 Ch. 59; 84 L. T. 609; 49 W. R. 548	-	-	-	-	71
Beyfus v. Masters, 39 C. D. 110	-	-	-	-	351
Bidwell Brothers, Limited, (1893) 1 Ch. 603; 62 L. J. Ch. 549; 68 L. T. 342; 41 W. R. 363; 3 R. 377	-	-	-	-	699, 1098
Biggerstaff v. Rowatt's Wharf, (1896) 2 Ch. 93; 65 L. J. Ch. 536; 74 L. T. 473; 44 W. R. 336	-	-	-	-	79, 81, 686, 710, 739
Bigg's Case, 1 Eq. 309; 14 W. R. 244; 13 L. T. 627	-	-	-	-	659
Binney v. Ince Hall Coal Co., 35 L. J. Ch. 363; 14 L. T. 392	-	-	-	-	651, 754, 871
Birch v. Cropper, 14 App. Cas. 545	-	-	-	-	578, 579, 588, 764, 783, 784, 816, 843, 1439
Bird v. Bird's Patent Deodorising, &c. Co., 9 Ch. 358; 30 L. T. 281; 43 L. J. Ch. 399	-	-	-	-	1408, 1439
Birkbeck Permanent Building Society, 28 T. L. R. 46	-	-	-	-	1201
Birmingham Banking Co., 36 L. J. Ch. 150	-	-	-	-	782
Birmingham Breweries v. Jameson, W. N. (1898) 15; 46 W. R. 376; 67 L. J. Ch. 403; 78 L. T. 512	-	-	-	-	359
Bisgood v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 743; 98 L. T. 809; 24 T. L. R. 510 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	373, 457, 511, 786, 1434, 1445, 1454, 1455, 1457, 1458, 1483
Bisgood v. Nile Valley Co., (1906) 1 Ch. 747; 94 L. T. 304; 54 W. R. 397	-	-	-	-	1457
Bishop v. Balkis Co., 25 Q. B. D. 512; 59 L. J. Q. B. 565; 63 L. T. 601; 39 W. R. 99; 2 Meg. 292	-	-	-	-	676
Bishop v. Smyrna and Cassaba Rail. Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 265; 72 L. T. 773	-	-	-	-	784

	PAGE
Bla—Boo
Black v. Homersham, 4 Ex. D. 24; 48 L. J. Ex. 79; 39 L. T. 671;
27 W. R. 171 - - - - -	768
Black v. Mallaloe, 5 Jur. N. S. 1018; 7 W. R. 303; 33 L. T. 267 -
	687, 732
Blackburn Building Soc. v. Cunliffe, Brooks & Co., 9 App. Cas. 857;
22 Ch. D. 61; 31 W. R. 98; 48 L. T. 33; 52 L. J. Ch. 92; 33
W. R. 309 - - - - -	686
Blackburn v. Vigors, 12 App. Cas. 531 - - - - -	1051
Blackford v. Davis, 4 Ch. 304 - - - - -	1216, 1217
Blackie v. Osmaston, 28 C. D. 123 - - - - -	1375
Blaiberg and Abrahams, Re , (1899) 2 Ch. 340 - - - - -	351
Blaiberg v. Keeves, (1906) 2 Ch. 175; 95 L. T. 412; 54 W. R. 451 -	350
Blake's Case, 34 Beav. 639; 13 W. R. 486 - - - - -	191, 199
Blake v. White, 1 Y. & C. Exch. 620 - - - - -	1247
Blakeley, Re , 9 Morr. B. R. 173 - - - - -	1248
Blakely Ordnance Co., Re , 3 Ch. 159; 16 W. R. 533; 18 L. T. 132;
37 L. J. Ch. 230 - - - - -	748
Bland's Case (Westmoreland Green, &c. Co.), (1893) 2 Ch. 612; 62
L. J. Ch. 975; 66 L. T. 370; 67 L. T. 700; 2 R. 509 (C. A.) -	645
Bland v. Buchanan, (1901) 2 K. B. 75 - - - - -	699
Blood, Ex parte , 9 Eq. 649 - - - - -	1448
Bloomenthal v. Ford, (1897) A. C. 156; 66 L. J. Ch. 253; 76 L. T.
205; 45 W. R. 449; 4 Manson, 156 - - - - -	42, 674, 1141
Bloxam, Ex parte , 33 Beav. 529a - - - - -	48, 898
Bodega Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 276; 73 L. J. Ch. 198; 89 L. T. 694; 52
W. R. 249 - - - - -	662, 727, 728, 731
Boden & Co. v. Overseers of Chard, and Gifford, Fox & Co. v. Same,
7 T. L. R. 431 (July, 1890) - - - - -	107
Boehm v. Goodall, (1911) 1 Ch. 135 - - - - -	1419
Bolton Partners v. Lambert, 41 C. D. 295; 58 L. J. Ch. 425; 60
L. T. 687; 37 W. R. 434 - - - - -	644, 741
Bolton v. Buckingham, (1891) 1 Q. B. 278; 60 L. J. Q. B. 261; 64
L. T. 778; 39 W. R. 293 (C. A.) - - - - -	1247
Bolton v. Natal, &c. Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 124; 61 L. J. Ch. 281; 65
L. T. 786 - - - - -	863
Bolton v. Salmon, (1891) 2 Ch. 48; 60 L. J. Ch. 239; 64 L. T. 222;
39 W. R. 589 - - - - -	1246
Bombay Burmah Trading Corporation v. Dorabji Cursetji Shroff, (1905) A. C. 213 (P. C.); 91 L. T. 812; 12 Manson, 169,
P. C. - - - - -	706
Bomora Road (No. 9), Re , (1906) 1 Ch. 359; 94 L. T. 403; 54 W. R.
312 - - - - -	112, 1328
Bompas v. King, 33 C. D. 279 - - - - -	1217
Bond, Re , Pares v. Att.-Gen., (1901) 1 Ch. 15 - - - - -	112
Bond v. Barrow Haematite Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 353, 362 - - - - -	588, 754,
755, 765, 766, 814, 840, 866, 872, 874, 884, 889, 895
Bonomi v. Backhouse, 9 H. L. C. 503 - - - - -	221
Bonsar v. Cox, 4 Beav. 379 - - - - -	1245
Bonzi v. Stewart, 4 M. & G. 295 - - - - -	1212
Boord v. African Consolidated, &c. Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 596; 77 L. T.
553; 46 W. R. 150 - - - - -	71, 688, 771

Boo—Bra

PAGE

Booth v. New Afrikander Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295; 72 L. J. Ch. 125; 87 L. T. 309; 51 W. R. 193 (C. A.) -	12, 14, 280, 283, 288, 511, 648, 1449, 1450
Booth v. Walkden Spinning Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 368 -	1498
Bootle Cold Storage, W. N. (1901) 54 -	1423
Boote Overseers v. Liverpool Warehousing Co., 85 L. T. 45; 65 J. P. 740 -	108, 109
Borax Co., Re , Foster v. Borax Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326; 70 L. J. Ch. 162; 83 L. T. 638; 49 W. R. 212 (C. A.) -	468, 511, 514
Borland's Trustees v. Steel Bros. & Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 279; 70 L. J. Ch. 51; 49 W. R. 120 -	651, 679, 949, 962, 969, 973, 1416
Borough Commercial and Building Soc., (1893) 2 Ch. 242; 62 L. J. Ch. 456; 69 L. T. 96; 41 W. R. 313; 3 R. 339 -	467, 515, 551, 810
Bos v. Helsham, L. R. 2 Ex. 72; 15 W. R. 259; 15 L. T. 481; 36 L. J. Ex. 20; 4 H. & C. 642 -	349
Bosanquet, &c. v. St. John del Rey (1897), 77 L. T. 207 -	766, 864, 889
Boschoek Proprietary Co. v. Fuke, (1906) 1 Ch. 148; 94 L. T. 398; 54 W. R. 359 -	691, 720, 725, 727, 741, 744
Boston Deep Sea Co. v. Ansell, 39 C. D. 339; 59 L. T. 345 -	147, 370, 442, 719, 722, 732, 733
Boston v. Ansell, 39 C. D. 339 -	1352, 1400
Bouch v. Sproule, 12 App. Cas. 385; 33 W. R. 621; 57 L. T. 345; 56 L. J. Ch. 1037 -	49, 754, 767, 768
Boulter v. Peplow, 9 C. B. 493 -	149
Bound v. Lawrence, (1892) 1 Q. B. 226; 61 L. J. M. C. 21; 65 L. T. 844; 40 W. R. 1; 56 J. P. 118 (C. A.) -	1021
Bovill v. Endle, (1896) 1 Ch. 648; 65 L. J. Ch. 542; 44 W. R. 523 -	1193
Bowater and Sons v. Mirror of Life Co., 50 W. R. 381 -	347
Bowen v. Defries & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 37; 73 L. J. Ch. 1; 52 W. R. 253 -	618, 1424
Bowen v. Hall, 6 Q. B. D. 339; 29 W. R. 367; 44 L. T. 75; 50 L. J. Q. B. 305 -	444
Bower v. Marris, 1 Cr. & Ph. 351 -	1192
Bowes, Re , 33 C. D. 586 -	1194
Bowes v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 468 -	595, 596
Bowles v. Att.-Gen., (1912) 1 Ch. 123; Times, December, 1911 -	104
Bowles v. Mayer, 19 C. B. N. S. 76 -	1247
Bowyer v. Percy Supper Club, (1893) 2 Q. B. 154; 69 L. T. 447; 42 W. R. 29; 57 J. P. 470; 5 R. 472 -	567
Boyle's Case, 33 W. R. 450; 52 L. T. 501; 54 L. J. Ch. 550 -	54, 258
Bradford Assessment Committee v. White, (1898) 2 Q. B. 630 -	107
Bradford Bank v. Briggs, 12 App. Cas. 29; 35 W. R. 521; 56 L. T. 62; 56 L. J. Ch. 364 -	632, 650, 651, 662, 663, 664
Bradley v. Carritt, (1903) A. C. 253; 72 L. J. K. B. 471; 88 L. T. 633; 51 W. R. 636 (H. L., E.) -	1239
Bradley v. Rhodesia Consolidated, (1910) 2 Ch. 95 -	1443
Bramah v. Roberts, 3 Bing. N. C. 963; 1 Scott, 350; 3 D. P. C. 392 -	510
Brandao v. Barnett, 12 Cl. & Fin. 787 -	1194, 1195
Branksea Island Co. (No. 1), Re , 1 Mag. C. R. 12 -	787
Bray v. Ford, (1896) A. C. 44; 65 L. J. Q. B. 213; 73 L. T. 609; 12 T. L. R. 119 -	501, 792, 793, 1400

Bra—Bri		PAGE
Brazilian Rubber Plantations, (1911) 1 Ch. 425	- 127, 130, 134, 148, 152, 178, 225, 231, 326, 362, 644, 645, 710, 713, 714, 748, 788
Brazilian Submarine Telegraph Co., Limited, Re , 63 L. T. 275; 39 W. R. 55	- - - - -	1158
Breay v. Royal British Nurses' Ass., (1897) 2 Ch. 272; 66 L. J. Ch. 587; 76 L. T. 735; 46 W. R. 86	- - - - -	469
Brett v. East India, &c. Co., 2 H. & M. 404; 12 W. R. 596; 10 L. T. 187; 3 N. R. 688	- - - - -	441
Brick and Stone Co., Re , W. N. (1878) 140; 22 S. J. 625	- 691, 717, 737, 1098
Brickwood v. Reynolds, (1898) 1 Q. B. 95; 77 L. T. 456; 46 W. R. 130	- - - - -	100
Bridger's Case, R. 5 Ch. 305; 39 L. J. Ch. 478; 22 L. T. 737; 18 W. R. 412	- - - - -	55
Bridger and Neill's Cases (1869), L. R. 96	- - - - -	661
Bridgewater Navigation Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 317; 64 L. T. 576 (C. A.)	- - - - -	755, 784
Bridport Brewery Co., Re , 2 Ch. 191; 15 W. R. 291; 15 L. T. 643	- - - - -	692, 722
Briggs, Ex parte , 1 Eq. 483; 14 L. T. 39; 35 L. J. Ch. 320; 12 Jur. 322	- - - - -	17, 200
Brin's Oxygen Co., W. N. (1899) 44	- - - - -	1315
Brinsmead (T. E.) & Sons, (1897) 1 Ch. 406; 66 L. J. Ch. 290; 76 L. T. 100; 4 Mans. 70; 13 T. L. R. 3	- - - - -	602
Bristol United Breweries v. Abbot, (1908) 1 Ch. 279; 98 L. T. 22; 24 T. L. R. 91	- - - - -	615
Britannia Mills Co., W. N. (1888) 103	- - - - -	1285
British and American Trustee, &c. Corporation v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 399; 63 L. J. Ch. 425; 70 L. T. 882; 42 W. R. 652; 1 Manson, 256; 6 R. 652 (H. L.)	- 30, 465, 482, 515, 637, 684, 751, 1117, 1119, 1256, 1259, 1260, 1305, 1495
British Asbestos Co. v. Boyd, (1903) 2 Ch. 439	- 691, 728, 729, 730, 740, 744
British Assoc. of Glass Bottle Manufacturers v. Nettlefold, 27 T. L. R. 527	- - - - -	26, 116
British Building Stone Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 450; 99 L. T. 608; 77 L. J. Ch. 752	- - - - -	1440
British Burmah Co., W. N. (1887) 101; 56 L. T. 815; 4 T. L. R. 631	- - - - -	190, 194, 195, 200, 213
British Columbian Exploitation and Gold Estates, W. N. (1899) 32	- 1388
British Empire Match Co., 59 L. T. 292	- - - - -	728, 740
British Equitable Assurance Co. v. Bailly, (1906) A. C. 35; 94 L. T. 1; 22 T. L. R. 152	- - - - -	639, 818
British and Foreign Cork Co. See Leifchild's Case.
British Guiana Bank v. British Guiana Ice Co., 104 L. T. 754	- 1192
British India Steam Navigation Co. v. Leslie, 17 T. L. R. 104	- 100
British Land and Mortgage Co. of America, W. N. (1883) 205	- 1270
British Marine, &c. Co. v. Jenkins, (1900) 1 Q. B. 299	- - - - -	796
British Mutual Co. v. Charnwood Forest Rail. Co., 18 Q. B. D. 714; 35 W. R. 590; 55 L. J. Q. B. 399; 56 L. J. Q. B. 449	- 37, 41, 759
British National Life Assurance Association, Ex parte , 8 C. D. 679; 27 W. R. 88; 39 L. T. 136; 48 L. J. Ch. 118	- 456, 465, 507

TABLE OF CASES.

xxxix

Bri—Bro	PAGE
British Seamless Paper Box Co., Re , 17 C. D. 467; 29 W. R. 690;
44 L. T. 498; 50 L. J. Ch. 497 -	135, 645, 839, 909, 1384, 1402
British Share Co., Re , 6 L. T. 215 -	- 701
British South Africa Co. v. De Beers, (1910) 2 Ch. 502 -	31, 344
British Sugar Refining Co., Re , 3 K. & J. 408 -	- 692
British Vacuum Cleaner Co. v. New Vacuum Cleaner Co., (1907)
2 Ch. 312; 97 L. T. 201; 23 T. L. R. 587 -	- 451, 452
British Wagon Co. v. Gray, (1896) 1 Q. B. 35; 65 L. J. Q. B. 75;
73 L. T. 498; 44 W. R. 118; 12 T. L. R. 64 -	- 363, 782
British Wagon Co. v. Lea, 5 Q. B. D. 149 -	- 1460
Briton, &c. Co., 35 W. R. 803 -	- 1330
Briton Medical, 37 W. R. 52; 39 C. D. 61; 57 L. J. Ch. 874; 59
L. T. 134 -	- 624, 690, 763, 1330, 1332
Briton Medical Co. v. Jones, 61 L. T. 384 -	- 722, 744
Broad Street Building Co., Re , W. N. (1887) 149 -	- 1395
Broad v. Munton, 12 C. D. 131 -	- 232, 350
Broderip v. Salomon, (1895) 2 Ch. 323; 43 W. R. 612 (C. A.) -	- 27, 96, 940, 942
Bromley v. Holland, 7 Ves. 28 -	- 1158
Brooke, Re , 64 L. J. Ch. 27 -	- 340
Brookes v. Hansen, (1906) 2 Ch. 129; 94 L. T. 728; 54 W. R. 502 -	- 170, 254
Brooks, Jenkins & Co. v. Mayor of Torquay, (1902) 1 K. B. 601; 83
L. T. 785; 66 J. P. 293 -	- 512
Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586; 72 L. J. Ch. 251; 88 L. T. 580;
51 W. R. 258 (C. A.) -	- 211, 215, 227, 228, 229
Broughton Coal Co. v. Kirkpatrick, 14 Q. B. D. 491 -	- 100, 103
Brown's Case, 9 Ch. 102; 22 W. R. 171; 29 L. T. 562; 43 L. J. Ch.
153 -	- 719, 720, 721
Brown-Bayley's Steel Works, 21 T. L. R. 375 -	- 1338
Brown & Co. v. Brown, 35 L. T. 54; 36 L. T. 272 -	- 364, 381
Brown v. Croft, 6 C. & P. 16 -	- 442
Brown v. Dale, 9 C. D. 78 -	- 112
Brown v. Haig, W. N. (1905) 120; 74 L. J. Ch. 591; 93 L. T. 99 -	- 1362
Brown v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., 4 B. & S. 326 -	- 86
Brown v. Rotherham Assessment Committee, 83 L. T. 193 -	- 106
Brown, Shipley & Co. v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, (1895)
2 Q. B. 598; 66 L. J. M. C. 241; 73 L. T. 377; 14 R. 661 -	- 106, 1215
Brown and Tucker's Cases, 41 L. J. Ch. 157 -	- 50
Browne v. Furtado, (1903) 1 K. B. 723; 88 L. T. 309; 67 J. P.
161 -	- 105
Browne v. La Trinidad Co., 37 C. D. 1; 36 W. R. 289; 57 L. J. Ch.
292; 58 L. T. 137 -	- 147, 148, 441, 633, 635, 690, 736, 740, 741, 1405
Browne v. Lockhart, 10 Sim. 420 -	- 1193
Brownfield's Guilds Pottery Soc., W. N. (1898) 80 -	- 1499 Browning v. Great Central Mining Co., 5 H. & N. 856; 29 L. J. Ex.
399 -	- 334, 441
Brownlie v. Campbell, 5 App. Cas. 950 -	- 196, 206, 240
Brownlie, Petitioner (Scottish Heritage Co.) (1898), 6 S. L. T.
326 -	- 62

	PAGE Bru—But
Bruce v. Hunter, 3 Camp. 467 - - - -	1193
Bruner v. Moore, 20 T. L. R. 125 - - - -	52
Bruner v. Moore, (1904) 1 Ch. 305; 73 L. J. Ch. 377; 89 L. T. 738; 52 W. R. 295 - - - -	52, 642, 780
Brunswick, &c. Co. v. Muggeridge, 1 Dr. & Sm. 383 - - - -	185
Bru-sels Palace, &c. v. Prockter, 13 T. L. R. 72 - - - -	294, 297
Brutton and Burney, Limited, Re, (1901) 1 Ch. 637; 70 L. J. Ch. 309; 84 L. T. 130; 49 W. R. 360 (C. A.) - - - -	1421
Bryant v. Banque du Peuple, (1893) A. C. 170; 62 L. J. P. C. 68; 68 L. T. 546; 41 W. R. 600; 1 R. 336 (H. L.) - - - -	686, 1157, 1159
Brynmawr Coal Co., W. N. (1877) 45 - - - -	1099
Bryon v. Metropolitan, &c. Omnibus Co., 3 De G. & J. 123 - - - -	473, 509
Buchan's Case, 4 App. Cas. 580 - - - -	678
Buckland v. Papillon, 2 Ch. 67 - - - -	1460
Budden v. Roberts, 12 C. D. 288 - - - -	680
Buenos Ayres Water Co., 66 L. T. 408 - - - -	1506
Bugg's Case, 2 Dr. & Sm. 459 - - - -	63
Bulawayo Market Co., (1907) 2 Ch. 458; 23 T. L. R. 714; 76 L. J. (Ch. 673) - - - -	734, 829
Bulkeley v. Stephens, (1896) 2 Ch. 241 - - - -	768
Bull Hotel Company, Limited, 27 S. J. 434 - - - -	1298
Bull v. Morrell, 12 Ad. & E. 745 - - - -	510
Bullock v. London G. O. Co., (1907) 1 K. B. 264; 95 L. T. 905; 23 T. L. R. 62 - - - -	1378
Bultfontein Sun, &c. Mine, 12 T. L. R. 461 - - - -	290, 294
Burchell v. Wilde, (1900) 1 Ch. 551 - - - -	453
Burdett-Coutts v. True Blue (Hannan's) Gold Mine, (1899) 2 Ch. 616; 68 L. J. Ch. 692; 81 L. T. 29; 48 W. R. 1 (C. A.) - - - -	1440, 1444, 1457
Burdett v. Standard Exploration Co., 16 T. L. R. 112 - - - -	634, 653
Burgess's Case, 15 C. D. 507; 28 W. R. 792; 43 L. T. 45; 49 L. J. Ch. 541 - - - -	199
Burke v. Amalgamated Society of Dyers, (1906) 2 K. B. 583; 75 L. J. K. B. 533 - - - -	115
Burkinshaw v. Nicholls, 3 App. Cas. 1004; 26 W. R. 819; 39 L. T. 308; 48 L. J. Ch. 179 - - - -	42, 1140, 1141
Burland v. Earle, 85 L. T. 553 (P. C. 1901); (1902) A. C. 83 - - - -	29, 75, 137, 588, 633, 640, 703, 712, 715, 724, 734, 754, 755, 766, 14, 866, 1355, 1358, 1360
Burn v. London & S. Wales Coal Co., W. N. (1890) 209; 7 T. L. R. 118 - - - -	771, 772
Burnes v. Pennell, 2 H. L. Cas. 497; 13 Jur. 897 - 668, 766, 857, 872, 873
Burnley Equitable Society v. Casson, (1891) 1 Q. B. 75; 60 L. J. M. C. 59; 63 L. T. 652; 39 W. R. 124; 55 J. P. 166 - - - -	36
Burrows v. Matabele Gold Reefs, (1901) 2 Ch. 23; 70 L. J. Ch. 434; 84 L. T. 478; 49 W. R. 428 (C. A.) - - - -	13, 280, 284, 1450
Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240; 99 L. T. 342; 15 Mans. 272 - 11, 15, 18, 19, 22, 23, 69, 258, 261, 648, 1072
Burton v. Gray, 8 Ch. 932 - - - -	1186
Burton v. St. Giles-in-the-Fields, (1901) 1 K. B. 650 - - - -	106, 109
Bury v. Famatina Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 754 - - - -	63, 466
Bush's Case, 6 Ch. 246; 19 W. R. 393; 24 L. T. 1; 40 L. J. Ch. 205 - - - -	672
Bute's Case, 13 Eq. 566; (1892) 2 Ch. 101 - - - -	48, 714

TABLE OF CASES.

xli

But—Can	PAGE
Butler v. Manchester and Sheffield Rail., 21 Q. B. D. 207 - -	38
Butler v. Northern Territories Mines, 96 L. T. 41; 23 T. L. R. 179 -	470, 601
Byrne v. Van Tienhoven, 5 C. P. D. 344 - - -	48, 258
C.
Cackott v. Keswick, (1902) 2 Ch. 458; (1901), 50 W. R. 10; 85 L. T. 14 - - -	174, 227, 228, 229, 232
Cade v. Daly, (1910) Ir. R. 306 - - -	116
Cadiz Waterworks Co. v. Barnett, 19 Eq. 182; 23 W. R. 408; 41 L. T. 640; 44 L. J. Ch. 529 - - -	1411
Cadogan, &c. Co., W. N. (1886) 91 - - -	652
Cahn v. Pockett's Bristol, &c. Co., (1899) 1 Q. B. 643; 68 L. J. Q. B. 515; 80 L. T. 269; 47 W. R. 422; 8 Asp. M. C. 516 (C. A.) - - -	1205, 1207, 1208
Caledonian Railway Co. v. Solway Junction, 49 L. T. 526; 32 W. R. 164; 23 W. E. 164 - - -	512
Calgary v. Edmonton Land Co., 50 S. J. 126; (1906) 1 Ch. 141 -	1304, 1305
Callao Bis Co., Re, 42 C. Div. 169; 58 L. J. Ch. 826; 61 L. T. 534; 38 W. R. 21; 1 Meg. 261; W. N. (1900) 44 - - -	1451, 1461
Callao Bis Mining Co. v. Ronaldson, W. N. (1887) 176 - - -	1461
Callard v. Taylor, 3 T. L. R. 698 - - -	358
Callo v. Brounclear, 4 C. & P. 518 - - -	442
Caloric Engine Co., Re, 52 L. T. 846 - - -	699
Calthorpe v. Trechmann and MacLeay v. Tait, (1906) A. C. 24; 94 L. T. 68; 54 W. R. 365 - - -	227, 230
Calthrop, R v Ch. 252 - - -	751
Calton v. 1 g, 15 East, 223 - - -	1193
Calvert v. Gordon, 3 Man. & Ry. 124 - - -	1246
Cambeford v. Chapman, 19 Q. B. D. 229 - - -	1250
Camberwell Assessment Committee v. Ellis, (1900) A. C. 510; 69 L. J. Q. B. 828; 83 L. T. 201 (H. L., E.); affirming 48 W. R. 162 (C. A.); 16 T. L. R. 504; (1900) 1 Q. B. 68 - - -	108
Cambrian Co., Re, 48 L. T. 114 - - -	1452
Cambrian, &c. Co., W. N. (1875) 6; 31 L. T. 773; 23 W. R. 405 - - -	698, 708, 1095, 1096
Cannell, Ex parte (Printing Telegraph, &c. Co. of Agence Havas), (1894) 2 Ch. 392; 63 L. J. Ch. 536; 70 L. T. 705; 1 Manson, 274; 7 E. 191 (C. A.) - - -	683, 719, 720, 723
Campbell's Case, 9 Ch. 1; 22 W. R. 113; 29 L. T. 519; 43 L. J. Ch. 1 - - -	78, 240, 694, 1048, 1097, 1103, 1104
Campbell's Case, 4 C. D. 470; 25 W. R. 299; 35 L. T. 900 - - -	687
Campbell v. Fleming, 1 A. & E. 40 - - -	201
Campbell v. Maund, 5 A. & E. 863; 1 N. & P. 558; 2 H. & W. 457 - - -	700, 701
Cann v. Willson, 39 C. D. 39 - - -	213
Canning Jarrah Timber Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 708 - - -	1503
Cannock v. Edwards, (1896) 2 Ch. 679 - - -	112
Cannon v. Trask, 20 Eq. 669; 44 L. J. Ch. 772 - - -	666, 1406

Cap—Cat	PAGE
Cape Breton Co., Re , 29 C. D. 795; 33 W. R. 788; 53 L. T. 181; 34 L. J. Ch. 822 (C. A.); 12 App. Cas. 652 (H. L.)	133, 137, 715, 732, 1247
Capel v. Butler, 2 S. & S. 457	1247
Capel v. Sims' Ships' Composition Co., W. N. (1888) 97; 57 L. J. Ch. 713; 36 W. R. 689; 58 L. T. 807	155, 185, 191, 192, 228
Capital and Counties Bank (The) v. The Governor and Company of the Bank of England, 61 L. T. 516	953
Capital Fire Insurance Association, Re , 24 C. D. 408; 32 W. R. 260; 49 L. T. 697; 53 L. J. Ch. 71	771
Capper's Case, 3 Ch. 458	45, 57, 672
Caratal New Mines, Ltd., (1902) 2 Ch. 498; 71 L. J. Ch. 883; 87 L. T. 437; 50 W. R. 572	700, 1100
Cardiff Workmen's Cottage, (1906) 2 Ch. 627; 95 L. T. 669; 22 T. L. R. 799	617
Carez, Re , 6 Rep. Pat. Cas. 532	43
Cargill v. Bower, 10 C. D. 502	203, 714, 788
Caridad Copper Mining Co. v. Swallow, (1902) 2 K. B. 44; 71 L. J. K. B. 501; 86 L. T. 699; 50 W. R. 565	725
Carlill v. Carbolic, &c. Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 256; 62 L. J. Q. B. 257; 67 L. T. 837; 41 W. R. 210; 57 J. P. 325; 4 R. 176-51, 290, 338, 1182
Carling's Case, 1 C. D. 115; 24 W. R. 165; 33 L. T. 645; 45 L. J. Ch. 5	68, 722, 733, 1352
Carling v. London and Leeds Bank, 56 L. J. Ch. 321; 56 L. T. 115; 35 W. R. 344	191, 195, 199, 205
Carliah v. Salt, (1906) 1 Ch. 335	351
Carmichael, Ex parte , Re Hannan's Empress, &c. Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 643; 65 L. J. Ch. 902; 75 L. T. 45	292, 293, 298
Carpenter v. Patent Boat Co., 1 Meg. C. R. 26	1338
Carriage Co-operative Association, 27 C. D. 322	714, 841
Carriage Supply Association, 27 C. D. 322	715, 722
Carter v. Rigby, (1896) 2 Q. B. 113; 65 L. J. Q. B. 537; 74 L. T. 744; 44 W. R. 566; 60 J. P. 581 (C. A.)	1347
Carter v. St. Mary Abbott's Vestry, (1900) 64 J. P. 548	204
Carter v. Wake, 4 C. D. 605	1186
Carter v. White, 25 C. D. 666	292, 298, 708, 1158, 1247
Cartmell's Case, 9 Ch. 691	57, 739, 833
Cartwright v. Sculcoates Union, (1900) A. C. 150; 69 L. J. Q. B. 403; 82 L. T. 157; 48 W. R. 394; 64 J. P. 229 (H. L., E.)	108
Carus-Wilson, Re , 18 Q. P. D. 7; 56 L. J. Q. B. 530; 55 L. T. 864; 35 W. R. 43	349
Cary-Elwes Contract, Re , (1906) 2 Ch. 143; 94 L. T. 845; 54 W. R. 480	694
Casey v. Bentley, (1902) 1 L. R. 376	666
Cash (J. & J.), Ltd. v. Cash, Times, May 26, 1900; 82 L. T. 655; 86 L. T. 211	451
Castell and Brown, Ltd., Re , (1898) 1 Ch. 315; 78 L. T. 109; 46 W. R. 248	401
Castellain v. Preston, 11 Q. B. D. 380	361
Castelli v. Middleton (1901), 17 T. L. R. 373	358
Castlehow, Re , (1903) 1 Ch. 352	911
Catt v. Tourle, 4 Ch. App. 655; 38 L. J. Ch. 665; 21 L. T. 185	359, 441
Cattewater Harbour v. Plympton Union, 63 J. P. 297	106

Cat—Cit	PAGE
Cattle v. Thorpe, W. N. (1900) 83 - - - -	358
Cave v. Cave, 15 C. D. 639 - - - -	141, 1051
Cavendish v. Greaves, 24 Beav. 163 - - - -	1235
Cawley & Co., 42 C. D. 209; 58 L. J. Ch. 633; 61 L. T. 601; 37 W. R. 692; 1 Meg. 251 - 655, 665, 666, 667, 675, 722, 1366
Central De Kaap Gold Mines, W. N. (1899) 216; 69 L. J. Ch. 18; 7 Mans. 82 - - - -	726
Central Klondyke Gold Co., Thomson's Case, 5 Mans. 282 - - - -	199
Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; 15 W. R. 821; 16 L. T. 500; 36 L. J. Ch. 849 - 73, 185, 190, 193, 196, 197, 198, 200, 239, 240
Cercle Restaurant v. Laveny, 18 Ch. D. 557 - - - -	1411
Cesena Sulphur Co. v. Nicholson, 1 Ex. D. 428 (1876) - - - -	93
Ceylon Land and Produce Co., 7 T. L. R. 692 - - - -	672
Chaco (Paraguay) Land Co., W. N. (1901) 124 - - - -	1337
Chad v. British South Africa Co., (1896) 2 Q. B. 153; 65 L. J. Q. B. 635; 74 L. T. 755; 44 W. R. 658 (C. A.) - - - -	1363
Chamberlain Wharf v. Smith, (1902) 2 Ch. 605; 69 L. J. Ch. 783; 83 L. T. 238; 49 W. R. 91 (C. A.) - - - -	117
Chambers v. Manchester and Milford Rail., 5 B. & S. 588 - - - -	1455
Chapleo v. Brunswick, &c. Society, 6 Q. B. D. 696; 29 W. R. 529; 44 L. T. 449; 50 L. J. Q. B. 372 - - - -	687, 710, 1198, 1199
Chapman's Case, 1 Eq. 346; 12 Jur. N. S. 44 - - - -	444
Chapman and Barker's Case, 3 Eq. 361; 15 W. R. 334; 15 L. T. 528 - - - -	63, 652
Chapman v. Smethurst, (1909) 1 K. B. 727 - - - -	334
Charitable Corporation v. Sutton, 2 Atk. 405 - - - -	711, 713, 714
Charles Denham & Co., 32 W. R. 920; 53 L. J. Ch. 1113; 51 L. T. 570; 25 C. D. 752 - - - -	714, 788, 873, 1401
Charlesworth v. Mills, (1892) A. C. 231; 25 Q. B. D. 425 - - - -	616
Chase v. Box, Freem. Rep. 261 - - - -	1190
Chaytor, Re, W. N. (1904) 195; (1905) 1 Ch. 233; 74 L. J. Ch. 106; 92 L. T. 290; 53 W. R. 251 - - - -	949
Chesterfield and Boythorpe Co. v. Black, 26 W. R. 207 - - - -	145, 732
Chesterfield Brewery Co. v. Inland Revenue, (1899) 2 Q. B. 7; 68 L. J. Q. B. 204; 79 L. T. 559; 47 W. R. 329 - - - -	341, 1477
Chida Mines, Ltd. v. Anderson, 22 T. L. R. 27 - - - -	667, 759
Chillington Iron Co., Re, 29 C. D. 159; 33 W. R. 442; 52 L. T. 504; 54 L. J. Ch. 624 - - - -	701, 855
Chivers, S., & Sons v. S. Chivers & Sons, Ltd., 17 R. P. C. 420 - - - -	450
Churchward v. The Queen, L. R. 1 Q. B. 173 - - - -	443
Citizens' Bank v. First National Bank, L. R. 6 H. L. 360; 43 L. J. Ch. 269; 22 W. R. 194 - - - -	188
Citizens' Life Ass. Co. v. Brown, (1904) A. C. 423; 73 L. J. P. C. 102; 90 L. T. 739; 53 W. R. 176; 20 T. L. R. 497 (P. C.) - - - -	38, 41, 546
City Bank Case, 3 D. F. & J. 629 - - - -	1194
City Bank, Ex parte, 3 Ch. 758; 16 W. R. 919; 18 L. T. 457 - - - -	509
City and County Investment Co., Re, 13 C. D. 475; 28 W. R. 933; 42 L. T. 303 - - - -	1440, 1446, 1447, 1487
City Discount Co. v. McLean, L. R. 9 C. P. 692 - - - -	1191, 1192
City Lands Investment Corporation, W. N. (1897) 162 - - - -	1337
City of London Brewery Co. v. Pennant, 9 Ch. 212, 216 - - - -	33

Cit—Col	PAGE
City of London Electric Lighting Co. v. Mayor of London, (1903) A. C. 434; 72 L. J. Ch. 737; 89 L. T. 310; 52 W. R. 159; 67 J. P. 437 (H. L., E.) - - - - -	731
City of Moscow Gas Co. v. International Financial Society, 7 Ch. 225; 41 L. J. Ch. 350; 26 L. T. 377; 20 W. R. 394 - - -	1416
Clark, Ex parte , 7 Eq. 550; 20 L. T. 774; 38 L. J. Ch. 562 - - -	443
Clark & Co. (1911), S. C. 243, Ct. of Sess. - - - - -	700, 1092, 1110
Clarke v. Burley, 41 C. D. 422 - - - - -	1247
Clarke v. Clarke, W. N. (1899) 130 - - - - -	1364
Clarke v. Dickson, E. B. & E. 148 - - - - -	17
Clarke v. Hart, 6 H. L. C. 633 - - - - -	658
Clarke v. Henty, 3 Y. & C. (Ex.) 187 - - - - -	1247
Clarke v. Imperial Gas, &c. Co., 4 B. & Ad. 315 - - - - -	83
Clarke v. London and County Bank, (1897) 1 Q. B. 552; 66 L. J. Q. B. 354; 76 L. T. 293; 45 W. R. 383 - - - - -	1193
Clarke v. Sunhurst Gold Co., 12 T. L. R. 411 - - - - -	1461
Clay v. Crofts, 20 L. J. Ex. 361 - - - - -	338
Clay v. Rufford, 5 De G. & S. 768; 8 Hare, 281; 19 L. J. Ch. 295; 14 Jur. 803 - - - - -	511
Clayton's Case (Devaynes v. Noble), 1 Mer. 585; Tudor's L. C. Merc. 3rd ed. 1, 25 - - - - -	1191, 1192
Clayton v. Leech, 41 C. D. 103 - - - - -	351
Clegg v. Hands, 44 C. D. 503 - - - - -	359
Clegg v. Rowland, 3 Eq. 318 - - - - -	679
Clerical Medical, &c. Co. v. Carter, 22 Q. B. D. 444 - - - - -	102
Clergy Orphan Corporation, (1894) 3 Ch. 145 - - - - -	496
Cleveland Iron Co., 15 W. R. 95 - - - - -	200
Clifford (Lord de), (1900) 2 Ch. 707 - - - - -	715, 1402
Clinan v. Cook, 1 S. & L. 40 - - - - -	1185
Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 5 Eq. 481; 4 Ch. 117; 18 L. T. 197; 37 L. J. Ch. 281 - 472, 694, 695, 848, 1097, 1360, 1408, 1439, 1443, 1445, 1487
Clinton's Claim, (1908) 2 Ch. 515 - - - - -	147
Clough v. L. & N. W. Railway, L. L. 7 Ex. 36 - - - - -	201
Coalport China Co., Re , (1895) 2 Ch. 404 - - - - -	647, 671
Coasters, (1911) 1 Ch. 86; 103 L. T. 632 - - - - -	672
Coates v. Coates, 33 Beav. 249 - - - - -	1247
Coates v. London, &c. Rail. Co., 41 L. T. 553; 44 J. P. 154 - - -	1141
Coats, Limited v. Chadwick, Limited, (1894) 1 Ch. 347; 63 L. J. Ch. 328; 70 L. T. 228; 42 W. R. 328; 8 R. 159 - - - - -	43
Coats, J. . . Ltd. v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, (1897) 2 Q. B. 423 - - - - -	1478
Coats, J. P., Ltd. v. Crossland, 20 T. L. R. 800 - - - - -	715, 1352
Cobb v. Becke, 6 Q. B. 936 - - - - -	743
Cocker's Case, 3 C. D. 11; 35 L. T. 290; 45 L. J. Ch. 822 - - -	1329
Cohen, Re , (1905) 2 K. B. 704; W. N. (1905) 138 - - - - -	680
Coker, Ex parte , 10 Ch. 652 - - - - -	207, 222
Cole v. North Western Bank, L. R. 10 C. P. 369 - - - - -	1208, 1212
Coleman v. Bucks, &c. Bank, (1897) 2 Ch. 243; 66 L. J. Ch. 564; 76 L. T. 684; 45 W. R. 616 - - - - -	1192
Coles v. Bank of England, 10 Adolph. & Ellis, 437 - - - - -	675
Collen v. Wright, 7 E. & B. 301; 8 E. & B. 647 - - - - -	334, 335, 687, 710, 711

TABLE OF CASES.

xlv

Col—Con	PAGE
Collie's Claim, 12 Eq. 258; 19 W. R. 1022; 25 L. T. 526; 40 L. J. Ch. 567 - - - - -	744
Collin v. Thompson's Trustees, 4 Macq. 424 - - - - -	713
Collins v. Barker, (1893) 1 Ch. 578; 62 L. J. Ch. 316; 68 L. T. 572; 41 W. R. 442; 3 R. 237 - - - - -	679
Collins v. Birmingham Breweries, 15 L. T. R. 180 - - - - -	586
Collins v. Brown (1857), 3 K. & J. 423 - - - - -	453
Collins v. Collins, 26 Beav. 306; 7 W. R. 115; 32 L. T. 233; 28 L. J. Ch. 184; 5 Jur. N. S. 30 - - - - -	349
Collins v. Locke, 4 App. Cas. 674 - - - - -	117
Collison v. Warren, (1901) 1 Ch. 812; 70 L. J. Ch. 382; 84 L. T. 482 (C. A.) - - - - -	1373
Colman v. E. C. Rail. Co., 10 Beav. 1; 8 L. T. O. S. 330; 16 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 73; 11 Jur. 74; 4 Ry. Cas. 513 - - - - -	459, 465
Colmer, Ltd. (James), (1897) 1 Ch. 524 - - - - -	639, 1102, 1118
Colonial Bank v. Cady and Williams, 15 App. Cas. 267; 63 L. T. 27; 39 W. R. 17 - - - - -	670
Colonial Bank v. Whinney, 11 App. Cas. 436; 34 W. R. 705; 55 L. T. 363; 56 L. J. Ch. 43; 3 M. B. R. 207 - - - - -	651, 1142, 1143
Colonial Life Assurance Co. v. The Home and Colonial Assurance Co., Limited, 33 Beav. 548; 12 W. R. 783; 10 L. T. 448; 33 L. J. Ch. 741 - - - - -	452
Colquhoun v. Brooks (1889), 14 App. Cas. 493, 510 - - - - -	95, 97
Coltman v. Coltman, 19 C. D. 65 - - - - -	465
Coltness Iron Co. v. Black, 6 App. Cas. 329; 29 W. R. 717; 45 L. T. 145; 46 J. P. 20 - - - - -	100, 103, 881
Columbian Fireproofing Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 120 - - - - -	616
Combe v. Woulfe, 1 M. & S. 241; 8 Bing. 156 - - - - -	1247
Commercial Bank of Tasmania v. Jones, (1893) A. C. 313; 62 L. J. P. C. 104; 68 L. T. 776; 57 J. P. 644; 1 R. 367 - - - - -	1247
Commissioners of Income Tax v. Pemsel, (1891) A. C. 531; 55 J. P. 805; 61 L. J. Q. B. 265; 65 L. T. 621 - - - - -	103
Commissioners of Inland Revenue v. Angus, 23 Q. B. D. 579; 38 W. R. 3 - - - - -	937, 1464
Common Petroleum Engine Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 759; 65 L. J. Ch. 76; 73 L. T. 338; 2 Manson, 598; 13 R. 840 - - - - -	68
Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, (1899) A. C. 431 - - - - -	1341
Compañia Sansinena v. Houlder, (1910) 2 K. B. 354; 79 L. J. K. B. 1094; 103 L. T. 333 (C. A.) - - - - -	1349
Components Tube Co. v. Naylor, (1900) 2 I. R. 1 - - - - -	186, 192
Concessions Trust, (1896) 2 Ch. 757 - - - - -	676
Connolly Bros., (1911) 1 Ch. 731 - - - - -	1419
Conquest's Case, 1 C. Div. 334; 45 L. J. Ch. 336; 33 L. T. 762 - - - - -	511, 1448
Consett Iron Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 236; 70 L. J. Ch. 198; 84 L. T. 258 - - - - -	1311, 1312
Consolidated Telephone Co., 33 W. R. 408 - - - - -	1271
Consort Deep Level Gold Mines, (1897) 1 Ch. 575; 66 L. J. Ch. 122; 76 L. T. 300; 45 W. R. 227 - - - - -	275, 289, 290, 293, 297, 303, 1311, 1312, 1313, 1389

Con—Cou	PAGE
Continental Union Gas Co., 7 T. L. R. 496 - - -	639
Cook v. North Metropolitan Co., 18 Q. B. D. 683 - - -	1021
Cook v. Ward, 2 C. P. D. 255 - - -	743
Cooke v. Midland G. W. Rly. of Ireland, (1909) A. C. 229; W. N. (1909) 56 - - -	37
Cooke v. Welby, 25 C. D. 769 - - -	1158
Coolgardie, &c. Mines (1897), 76 L. T. 269; 14 T. L. R. 278 - - -	470, 600
Coolgardie Gold Fields, (1900) 1 Ch. 475; 82 L. T. 23; 48 W. R. 461 -	1391
Coombe, Ex parte , 17 Ves. 369 - - -	1186
Cooper, Cooper & Johnson, 51 W. R. 314 - - -	1504
Cooper v. Griffin, (1892) 1 Q. B. 740; 61 L. J. Q. B. 563; 66 L. T. 660; 40 W. R. 420 (C. A.) - - -	590, 720
Cooper v. Johnson (1903), 51 W. R. 314 - - -	1264
Copiapo Mining Co., 9 T. L. R. 615 - - -	674
Copiapo Mining Co. (No. 2), W. N. (1899) 25; 6 Mans. 320 -	1311
Copin v. Adamson, 1 Ex. D. 17 - - -	362, 782
Copper Mines Tinplate Co., W. N. (1897) 20 - - -	1311, 1315
Corbett v. General Steam Navigation Co., 4 H. & N. 482 - - -	86
Cordova Union Gold Co., Re , (1891) 2 Ch. 580; 60 L. J. Ch. 701; 64 L. T. 722; 39 W. R. 536 - - -	649
Cork and Bandon Rail. Co. v. Goode, 13 C. B. 826; 22 L. J. C. P. 198; 17 Jur. 555 - - -	221, 649
Cork and Youghall Rail. Co., 4 Ck. 748 - - -	474
Cornbrook v. Law Debenture Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 103; 73 L. J. Ch. 121; 89 L. T. 680; 52 W. R. 242; 20 T. L. R. 140 (C. A.) - - -	616, 617
Cornell v. Hay, L. R. 8 C. P. 328; 21 W. R. 580; 28 L. T. 475; 42 L. J. C. P. 136 - - -	229
Cornford v. Carlton Bank, (1899) 1 Q. B. 392; 68 L. J. Q. B. 196; and affirmed, (1900) 1 Q. B. 22; 68 L. J. Q. B. 1020; 82 L. T. 415 (C. A.) - - -	38, 546
Cornish v. Clark, 14 Eq. 184 - - -	1354
Cornwall Minerals Co., (1897) 2 Ch. 74; 66 L. J. Ch. 561; 76 L. T. 832; 46 W. R. 5 - - -	770
Cornwall Mining Co. v. Bennett, 5 H. & N. 423; 29 L. J. Ex. 157; 6 Jur. N. S. 539 - - -	655, 657
Cory & Son v. Harrison, (1906) A. C. 274; 93 L. T. 818; 75 L. J. Ch. 714 - - -	358
Cory Brothers v. Owners of the SS. Mecca, (1897) A. C. 286; 66 L. J. P. 86; 76 L. T. 579; 45 W. R. 667 - - -	1190, 1191
Costa Rica Rail. Co. v. Forwood, (1900) 1 Ch. 756; 69 L. J. Ch. 408; 83 L. T. 19; 48 W. R. 553; on appeal, (1901) 1 Ch. 740 -	732, 733
Cottam v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co., 1 J. & H. 243 - - -	1140
Cotterell v. Stratton, 8 Ch. 295 - - -	1217
Cotton v. Imperial, &c. Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 454; 61 L. J. Ch. 684; 67 L. T. 342 - - -	373, 457, 468, 511, 1453, 1454, 1455, 1456, 1457
Couch v. Steel, 2 E. & B. 402 - - -	284
Coulthard v. Clementson, 5 Q. B. 42 - - -	1240
Council of Law Reporting, Re , 22 Q. B. D. 279 - - -	104
County of Durham, &c. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, (1909) 2 K. B. 604; 78 L. J. K. B. 1158; 101 L. T. 51 - - -	343

TABLE OF CASES.

xlvii

Con—Cro	PAGE
County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629; 64 L. J. Ch. 451 - 79, 81, 84, 240, 686, 710, 742, 760, 761, 834
County Life Ass. Co., Re , 5 Ch. 288; 18 W. R. 390; 22 L. T. 537; 39 L. J. Ch. 471 - 78, 79, 81, 83, 710, 741, 760, 761
Coventry's Case (Britannia Fire Assoc., Re), (1891) 1 Ch. 202; 60 L. J. Ch. 186 (C. A.) - - - - - 48
Coventry's Case, 14 C. D. 660 - - - - - 1357
Coventry, &c. Co. v. Great Eastern Rail. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 776 - 42
Coventry and Dixon's Case, 14 C. D. 660; 28 W. R. 775; 42 L. T. 559 - - - - - 720
Cowley v. Newmarket Local Board, (1892) A. C. 345 - - 176
Cowper v. Smith, 4 M. & W. 519 - - - - - 1247
Cox v. Bishop, 8 De G. M. & G. 815; 5 W. R. 437; 29 L. T. 44; 3 Jur. N. S. 499; 26 L. J. Ch. 389 - - - - - 328
Cox and Neve's Case, (1891) 2 Ch. 109; 64 L. T. 733; 39 W. R. 412 - 350
Coxon v. Gorst, (1891) 2 Ch. 73; 60 L. J. Ch. 502; 64 L. T. 444; 39 W. R. 600 - - - - - 111, 858, 873, 1451
Crace, Re , Balfour v. Crace, (1902) 1 Ch. 733; 86 L. T. 144; 71 L. J. Ch. 358 - - - - - 1198, 1246
Craddock v. Scottish Provincial, &c. Co., 69 L. T. 30 - - 1180
Cragoe v. Jones, L. R. 8 Ex. 81 - - - - - 1247
Crawley's Case, 4 Ch. 322 - - - - - 17, 52, 54, 56, 200, 290
Crawshay, Re , 60 L. T. 357 - - - - - 951, 1003
Crears v. Hunter, 19 Q. B. D. 345 - - - - - 1182
Creaver Wheal Mining Co., 8 Ch. 45 - - - - - 672
Credit Assurance Corporation, (1902) 2 Ch. 601; 71 L. J. Ch. 775; 87 L. T. 216; 51 W. R. 20 (C. A.) - 1119, 1121, 1258, 1259
Crédit Foncier, Re , 11 Eq. 356; 19 W. R. 405; 23 L. T. 801; 40 L. J. Ch. 187 - - - - - 1298
Croe v. Somervail, 4 A. C. 648 - - - - - 63
Crewe v. Cummings (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 420 - - - 1423
Creyke's Case, 5 Ch. 63; 18 W. R. 103; 21 L. T. 572; 39 L. J. Ch. 124 - - - - - 661
Crichton's Oil Works, Re , (1901) 2 Ch. 184; 70 L. J. Ch. 639; 84 L. T. 864; 49 W. R. 556; (1902) 2 Ch. 86, 93 - 755, 784, 817
Crickmer's Case, 10 Ch. 614; 24 W. R. 219; 46 L. J. Ch. 870 - 484, 1141
Crockett v. Northampton Union, 18 T. L. R. 451 - - 106, 107
Crockett v. Nottingham Assessment Committee, 72 L. J. K. B. 320 - - - - - 106, 107
Croft v. Day, 7 Beav. 84 - - - - - 450, 453
Crook v. Corporation of Seaford, 6 Ch. 551; 19 W. R. 938; 25 L. T. 1 - 42
Crookhaven Mining Co., 3 Eq. 69 - - - - - 1451
Crookson v. Inland Revenue, (1911) S. C. 217 (Ct. of Sess.) - 94, 119
Crosbie-Hill v. Sayer, (1908) 1 Ch. 866; 99 L. T. 267; 24 T. L. R. 442 - - - - - 1201
Croskey v. Bank of Wales, 4 Giff. 314; 8 L. T. 301; 2 Jur. N. S. 595 - - - - - 656, 748, 838
Cross, Re , 20 C. D. 109; 30 W. R. 376; 45 L. T. 777; 51 L. J. Ch. 645 - - - - - 141
Cross v. Fisher, (1892) 1 Q. B. 467; 61 L. J. Q. B. 609; 66 L. T. 448; 40 W. R. 265; 56 J. P. 373 (C. A.) - - - 1200
Crosskill v. Bower, 32 Beav. 86 - - - - - 1193

	PAGE
Cro-D'A
Crosley (John) & Sons, W. N. (1892) 55 - - -	1083
Crouch v. Steel, 3 E. & B. 402 - - -	176
Crown Bank, Re , 44 C. D. 634; 39 L. J. Ch. 739; 62 L. T. 823; 38 W. R. 666 - - -	470, 600, 1355
Crown Lease Proprietary Co., 14 T. L. R. 4; - - -	291, 294
Crowther v. Thorley, 32 W. R. 330; 50 L. T. 43 - - -	111
Crum v. Oakbank Co., 8 App. Cas. 65; 48 L. T. 537 - - -	634, 815
Cuff v. London and County Land, (1912) 1 C. D. 440; 28 W. R. 218 - - -	777
Cullen, Ex parte , (1891) 2 Q. B. 151; 60 L. J. Q. B. 567; 64 L. T. 801; 39 W. R. 543; 8 M. B. R. 174 - - -	705
Cullen v. Elwin, 90 L. T. 840; 20 T. L. R. 490 - - -	113, 116
Cullen v. Thompson's Trustees, 4 Macq. 424; 6 L. T. 870; 9 Jur. N. S. 85 - - -	526
Cullerne v. London and Suburban Soc., 25 Q. B. D. 465 - - -	788
Cummings v. Stewart (1900), 1 Ir. R. 236 - - -	379
Cunard Steamship Co. v. Coulson, (1899) 1 Q. B. 865; 68 L. J. Q. B. 554; 80 L. T. 326 - - -	100
Cunard Steamship Co. v. Hopwood, (1908) 2 Ch. 564 - - -	617, 618
Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 A. C. 450 - - -	49, 200
Cunliffe Brooks & Co. v. Blackburn Building Soc., 1 App. Cas. 857 - - -	1198, 1199, 1200
Cunningham, R. N., Re , 58 L. T. 16; 36 C. D. 532; 57 L. J. Ch. 169 - - -	510, 710
Curl Bros., Ltd. v. Webster, (1904) 1 Ch. 685; 73 L. J. Ch. 540; 90 L. T. 479; 52 W. R. 413 - - -	357
Currie v. Miss, L. R. 10 Ex. 162 - - -	1180, 1194
Curry v. Edensor, 3 T. R. 524 - - -	1214
Curtis's Case, 6 Eq. 455 - - -	672
Cuthbert v. Roberts, Lubbock & Co., 25 T. L. R. 583; W. N. (1909) 11, 125 - - -	1194
Cutler v. Southern, 1 Wms. Saund. 115 - - -	1245
Cyclists' Touring Club, (1907) 1 Ch. 269; 96 L. T. 780; 23 T. L. R. 220 - - -	1026, 1312

D.

Daimler Motor Co. v. British Motor Traction Co., 18 R. P. C. 465 - - -	453
Dale v. Plant, 43 C. D. 255; 61 L. T. 209; 1 Meg. 338 - - -	147, 323, 725, 739, 759
Dale's Case, 6 Q. B. D. 453 - - -	1205
Dalton v. Midland Rail. Co., 13 C. B. 478; Lindley, 437 - - -	765
Dalton Time Lock Co. v. Dalton, 66 L. T. 704 (C. A.) - - -	45
Damiens v. Modern Soc., 27 T. L. R. 174 - - -	1350
Danby, In re , Ex parte Brougham, (1911) 1 K. B. 95 - - -	126, 954, 1384
Danby v. Coutts, 29 C. D. 500; 54 L. J. Ch. 577; 52 L. T. 401; 33 W. R. 559 - - -	1157
Danubian Sugar Factories v. Inland Revenue, (1901) 1 Q. B. 245; 70 L. J. Q. B. 211; 84 L. T. 101; 65 J. P. 212 (C. A.) - - -	340, 342
D'Arcy v. The Tamar, &c. Rail. Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 158; 4 H. & C. 463; 36 L. J. Ex. 37 - - -	710, 744

Dar—Dee	PAGE
Darley Main Co. v. Mitchell, 11 App. Cas. 127 - - -	221
Darlington Forge Co., Re , 34 C. D. 522; 35 W. R. 537; 58 L. T. 627; 56 L. J. Ch. 730 - - -	1305
David v. Froud, 1 My. & K. 209 - - -	679
David & Matthews, (1899) 1 Ch. 378; 68 L. J. Ch. 185; 80 L. T. 75; 47 W. R. 313 - - -	357
David Payne & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 608; 20 T. L. R. 590; 73 L. J. Ch. 849 - - -	142, 686, 710, 778
Davidson v. Tulloch, 3 Macq. 783 - - -	208
Davies v. R. Bolton & Co., (1894) 3 Ch. 678; 63 L. J. Ch. 743; 71 L. T. 336; 43 W. R. 171; 8 R. 685 - 81, 83, 686, 710, 760, 761, 834
Davies v. Burnett, (1902) 1 K. B. 606; 71 L. J. K. B. 353; 86 L. T. 565; 50 W. R. 391 - - -	567
Davies v. Davies, 36 C. D. 359; 36 W. R. 86; 56 L. T. 401; 56 L. J. Ch. 481 - - -	357
Davies v. Davies, (1892) 3 Ch. 63; 61 L. J. Ch. 595; 67 L. T. 548; 41 W. R. 13 - - -	677, 678
Davies v. Ebbw Vale Urban Council, 27 T. L. R. 543 - - -	442
Davies v. Gas Light and Coke Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 248 - - -	71
Davies v. London & Prov. Co., 8 C. D. 475 - - -	1196
Davies, Turner & Co. v. Lowen, 64 L. T. 655 - - -	358
Davis v. Bank of England, 2 Bing. 393 - - -	667, 674
Davis v. Foreman, 43 W. R. 168 - - -	441
Davison v. Duncan, 7 E. & B. 229 - - -	697
Davison v. Gillies, 16 C. D. 347, n. (1880); 44 L. T. 92, n.; 50 L. J. Ch. 192, n. - - -	859, 873, 878, 907
Davoren v. Wotton, (1900) 1 I. R. 273 - - -	207, 222
Davy v. Walker, 81 L. T. 107 - - -	1157
Daw v. Terrell, 33 Beav. 218 - - -	1185
Dawes' Case, 6 Eq. 232; 37 L. J. Ch. 901; 16 W. R. 995 - - -	58, 661
Dawkins v. Antrobus, 17 C. D. 615; 29 W. R. 511; 44 L. T. 557 - - -	638
Dawkins v. Radnor, 3 Dow. 535 - - -	718
Dawson & Jenkins' Contract, (1904) 2 Ch. 219 - - -	1157, 1158
Dawson v. African Consolidated Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 6; 46 W. R. 132 - - -	730, 741
Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. 505 - - -	345
Dawson v. Isle, (1906) 1 Ch. 633; 95 L. T. 385; 54 W. R. 452 - - -	617
Day, Re , 1 C. D. 699 - - -	110
Day v. Brownrigg, 10 C. D. 304; 27 W. R. 217; 39 L. T. 553; 48 L. J. Ch. 173 - - -	452
Day v. Singleton, (1899) 2 Ch. 320; 68 L. J. Ch. 593; 81 L. T. 306; 48 W. R. 18 (C. A.) - - -	355
Deane v. Wilson, (1906) 2 Ir. R. 405, K. B. D. - - -	1020
Dearle v. Hall, 3 Russ. 1 - - -	651
De Beers Consolidated Mines v. Howe, (1905) 2 K. B. 612 (C. A.); 54 W. R. 9; 22 T. L. R. 756; (1906) A. C. 455 - - -	95, 1341
Debenham v. Sawbridge, (1901) 2 Ch. 98 - - -	351
De Bouchont v. Goldsmid, 5 Ves. 213 - - -	1157, 1159
De Bussche v. Alt. 8 C. D. 300 - - -	733, 734
De Clifford (Lord), Re , (1900) 2 Ch. 707; 23 L. T. 160; 69 L. J. Ch. 828 - - -	715, 1402
Deeley v. Lloyds Bank, (1910) 1 Ch. 648 - - -	1190, 1191

Def-Dit	PAGE
Defries & Co., In re , (1904) 1 Ch. 37; 73 L. J. Ch. 1; 52 W. R. 253 - - - - -	618, 1424
De Hart v. Stevenson, 1 Q. B. D. 313 - - - - -	1417
Deighton & Harris's Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 458; 78 L. T. 430; 46 W. R. 341 - - - - -	352
De la Rue & Co., (1911) 2 Ch. 361 - - - - -	1257, 1259
Delves v. Gray, (1902) 2 Ch. 606; Seton, 2333 - - - - -	1400
De Mattos v. Gibson, 4 De G. & J. 276 - - - - -	405, 664
Denham & Co., Charles, Re , 25 C. D. 752; 50 L. T. 523; 32 W. R. 487; 25 C. D. 766; 32 W. R. 920; 53 L. J. Ch. 1113; 51 L. T. 570 - - - - -	185, 714, 765, 872, 904, 906
Dent v. London Tramways Co. (1880), 16 C. D. 344 - - - - -	860, 879
Dent's Case, 8 Ch. 765 - - - - -	484
Denton v. Macneil, 2 Eq. 352, 356; 14 W. R. 813; 14 L. T. 721-189, 192
Denton v. Paddison, 68 L. T. 409 - - - - -	1246
Denver Hotel Co., Re , (1893) 1 Ch. 495; 62 L. J. Ch. 450; 68 L. T. 8; 41 W. R. 339; 2 R. 330 (C. A.) - - - - -	751, 1495
Denver United Breweries, W. N. (1890) 143; 63 L. T. 96 - - - - -	1393
De Pass' Case, 4 De G. & J. 544; 7 W. R. 682; 28 L. J. Ch. 769 - - - - -	665
Derby Canal Co. v. Wilmot, 9 East, 359 - - - - -	84
Dermatine v. Ashworth, 21 T. L. R. 510 - - - - -	510, 711, 752
De Rosaz's Case, 21 L. T. 10 - - - - -	51
De Rosaz v. Anglo-Italian Bank, 4 Q. B. 462; 17 W. R. 724; 38 L. J. Q. B. 161 - - - - -	1444, 1446, 1474
Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337; 58 L. J. Ch. 864; 61 L. T. 265; 38 W. R. 33; 1 Meg. 292 - - - - -	186, 187, 189, 192, 203, 204, 205, 206, 216, 224
De Ruvigne's Case, 5 C. D. 306; 25 W. R. 476; 36 L. T. 329; 46 L. J. Ch. 360 - - - - -	306, 714, 718, 722, 1352
Devala Mining Co., Re , 22 C. D. 593; 31 W. R. 425; 48 L. T. 259; 52 L. J. Ch. 434 - - - - -	190, 192
Development Company of Central Africa, (1902) 1 Ch. 547; 71 L. J. Ch. 310; 86 L. T. 323; 50 W. R. 456 - - - - -	1259, 1263
Deverges v. Sandeman, Clark & Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 579; 71 L. J. Ch. 328; 86 L. T. 269; 50 W. R. 404 (C. A.) - - - - -	1142, 1226
Dexine Patent Packing & Rubber Co., W. N. (1903) 82 - - - - -	1264
Dexter v. United Gold, &c. See Hilda v. Dexter .
Diamond Fuel Co., 13 C. D. 400 - - - - -	1416
Dicido Pier Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 354; 64 L. T. 695; 39 W. R. 486 - - - - -	754, 821, 1119, 1123, 1258
Dickenson v. Valpy, 10 B. & C. 128; 5 M. & R. 126 - - - - -	510
Dickin, Ex parte , 20 Eq. 767 - - - - -	1192
Dickinson v. Barrow, (1904) 2 Ch. 339; 73 L. J. Ch. 701; 91 L. T. 161 - - - - -	337
Dickson v. Law, (1898) 2 Ch. 62; 64 L. J. Ch. 490; 72 L. T. 680; 43 W. R. 596; 13 R. 431 - - - - -	1341
Didisheim v. London & Westminster Bank, (1900) 2 Ch. 15 - - - - -	667, 680
Dimes v. Grand Junction Canal, 3 H. L. C. 759 - - - - -	731
Direct Spanish Telegraph Co., Re , 34 C. D. 307; 35 W. R. 209; 55 L. T. 804; 56 L. J. Ch. 353 - - - - -	879, 1119, 1258, 1261, 1283
Discoverers' Finance Co., Cooper's Case, (1908) 1 Ch. 141; Lindler's Case, (1910) 1 Ch. 212 - - - - -	665, 666
Ditcham v. Worrall, 5 C. P. D. 410; 29 W. R. 59; 43 L. T. 286; 49 L. J. C. P. 688; 44 J. P. 799 - - - - -	672

TABLE OF CASES.

li

Div—Duk	PAGE
Dive, Re , Dive v. Roebuck, (1909) 1 Ch. 328 - - -	715
Dixon v. Evans, 5 H. L. 606 - - -	751, 756
Dixon v. Kennaway & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 533; 69 L. J. Ch. 501; 82 L. T. 527; 7 Mans. 446 - - -	1141
Dixon v. Muckleston, 8 Ch. 155 - - -	1186
Dobson v. Land, 8 Ha. 216 - - -	1217
Dodd v. Churton, (1897) 1 Q. B. 562; 66 L. J. Q. B. 477; 76 L. T. 438; 45 W. R. 490 - - -	359
Dowds, Re , Ex parte Brown & Coates, 64 L. T. 476 - - -	668
Edwards v. South Shields Union, (1895) 2 Q. B. 133; 64 L. J. Q. B. 508; 72 L. T. 645; 43 W. R. 532; 59 J. P. 452; 14 R. 422 (C. A.) - - -	108
Doman's Case, 3 C. D. 21; 34 L. T. 929; 45 L. J. Ch. 801 - - -	511, 636, 639, 640, 1481
Dombey v. Playfair Brothers, (1897) 1 Q. B. 368; 66 L. J. Q. B. 328; 75 L. T. 676 - - -	1342
Dominion Brewery Co. v. Foster, 77 L. T. 507 - - -	1416
Dominion of Canada General Trading Syndicate v. Brigstock, (1911) 2 K. B. 648 - - - 280, 282, 916, 1449, 1450, 1499, 1503
Donald v. Suckling, L. R. 1 Q. B. 585 - - -	1195
Doré Gallery, Re , W. N. (1890) 62; 62 L. T. 758; 38 W. R. 491 - - -	1391
Dorté v. South African Super-Aeration (1904), 20 T. L. R. 425 (Div. C.) - - -	690, 763
Dougan's Case, 8 Ch. 545; 21 W. R. 495; 28 L. T. 649; 42 L. J. Ch. 460 - - -	514, 1481
Douglass v. Howland, 24 Wendell, 35 - - -	1249
Dover Coalfields Extension, Re , (1908) 1 Ch. 65; 98 L. T. 31; 24 T. L. R. 52 - - -	728, 734
Dovey v. Cory, (1901) A. C. 25; 70 L. J. Ch. 753; 85 L. T. 257 - - - 713, 714, 766, 777, 864, 865, 892, 897, 899, 904, 906
Downes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 359; 19 L. T. 471; 37 L. J. Ch. 642 - - - 52, 184, 196, 242, 258
Dowse's Case, 3 C. D. 384; 35 L. T. 653; 46 L. J. Ch. 402 - - -	1329
Dowson, Re , W. N. (1889) 222 - - -	1391
Dowson and Jenkins' Contract, (1904) 2 Ch. 219 - - -	1158
Doyle and O'Hara's Contract (1899), 1 Ir. Rep. 113 (C. A.) - - -	354
Drant v. Brown, 3 B. & C. 666 - - -	338
Driffield Gas Light Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 451; 76 L. T. 162 - - -	657, 785
Dringbier v. Wood, (1899) 1 Ch. 393; 68 L. J. Ch. 181; 79 L. T. 548; 47 W. R. 252; 6 Mans. 76 - - - 192, 217, 259, 1347
Drum Slate Co., Re , McLean's Case, 53 L. T. 250; 55 L. J. Ch. 36 - - -	142, 1401
Drummond's Case, 4 Ch. 772 - - -	59
Du Boulay v. Du Boulay, L. R. 2 C. P. 441; 17 W. R. 594; 38 L. J. C. P. 35 - - -	452
Duck v. Bates, 12 Q. B. D. 79; on appeal, 13 Q. B. D. 843 - - -	44
Duck v. Tower Galvanizing Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 314; 70 L. J. K. B. 314; 84 L. T. 847 - - -	81
Duckett v. Gover, 6 C. D. 82; 25 W. R. 554; 46 L. J. Ch. 407 - - -	74, 1359, 1360
Duffin v. Mexican, &c. Co., W. N. (1890) 116 - - -	1391
Duke's Case, 1 C. D. 620 - - -	470, 485
Duke of Beaufort v. Neeld (1845), 12 Cl. & F. 248 - - -	293

Dun—Eas	PAGE
Duncan, Re , Terry v. Sweeting, (1899) 1 Ch. 387; 68 L. J. Ch. 253; 80 L. T. 322; 47 W. R. 379 - - - - -	207
Duncan, Fox & Co. v. North and South Wales Bank, 6 App. Cas. 1 -	1247
Duncuft v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 189 - - - - -	1350
Dunkley's Case, 7 T. L. R. 234 - - - - -	197
Dunlop v. Dunlop, 21 C. D. 583 - - - - -	658
Dunlop v. Higgins, 1 H. L. C. 381 - - - - -	48
Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Actien Gesellschaft für Motor, &c., (1902) 1 K. B. 342, 349 - - - - -	1341
Dunne v. English, 18 Eq. 624; 31 L. T. 75 - - - - -	733
Dunster's Case (Glory Paper Mills Co.), (1894) 3 Ch. 473; 63 L. J. Ch. 885; 71 L. T. 528; 43 W. R. 164; 1 Manson, 438; 7 R. 456 (C. A.) - - - - -	47, 485
Dunston v. Imperial, &c. Co., 3 B. & Ad. 125 - - - - -	29, 724
Durham County Society, 12 Eq. 516 - - - - -	1199
Duthy and Jesson's Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 419; 67 L. J. Ch. 218; 78 L. T. 223; 46 W. R. 300 - - - - -	363
Dutton v. Marsh, 6 Q. B. 361 - - - - -	510
Duval v. Gans, (1904) 2 K. B. 685; 91 L. T. 308; 53 W. R. 106 -	344
Duvall Ceylon Estates v. Ura Ceylon Rubber Estates, 103 L. T. 416	452
Dyett's Case, 43 L. T. 85 - - - - -	1440, 1441, 1464
Dymock v. Showell's Brewery Co., 15 T. L. R. 13; 79 L. T. 329 (C. A.) - - - - -	355
Dynevor Co. v. - - - - - 11 C. D. 605 - - - - -	1496, 1497, 1503
Dypanion, - - - - - 1 Ch. 223 - - - - -	668

E.

E. W. A., Re , (1901) 2 K. B. 642; 85 L. T. 31; 40 W. R. 642 -	1245
Eagle Co., Ex parte , 4 K. & J. 549; 6 W. R. 779 - - - - -	79, 761
Eaglesfield v. Marquis of Londonderry, 4 C. Div. 693; 25 W. R. 190; 35 L. T. 822 - - - - -	187, 194, 1190
Eales v. Cumberland Blacklead Co., 6 H. & N. 481; 3 L. T. 681 -	442, 729
Earl of Jersey v. Guardians of Poor of Neath, 22 Q. B. D. 555 -	470, 602, 604
Earl of Strafford v. Maples, (1896) 1 Ch. 235; 65 L. J. Ch. 124; 73 L. T. 586; 44 W. R. 259 (C. A.) - - - - -	354
Earl Russell (Trial of), (1901) A. C. 446; 85 L. T. 253; 70 L. J. K. B. 998 - - - - -	600
Earl's Trust, 4 K. & J. 300 - - - - -	1158
East v. Bennett Bros., (1911) 1 Ch. 163 - - - - -	579, 698
East Anglian Rail. Co. v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co., 11 C. B. 775; 21 L. J. C. P. 23; 16 Jur. 249 - - - - -	460, 465
East Anglian Rail. Co. v. Lythgoe, 2 L. M. & P. 221 - - - - -	442
East Pant, &c. Co. v. Merryweather, 2 H. & M. 354; 13 W. R. 216; 10 Jur. N. S. 1231; 4 N. R. 541 - - - - -	703, 1361
East Wheel, &c. Co., 33 Beav. 119 - - - - -	675

TABLE OF CASES.

liii

Case--Ell	PAGE
Eastern and Australian Steamship Co., Limited and Reduced, 68
L. T. 321; 41 W. R. 373	754, 768, 1262
Eastern Counties Ry. v. Broome, 6 Ex. 314	38
Eastern Counties Ry. v. Marriage, 9 H. L. C. 32	603
Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, (1899) 1 Q. B. 835; 68 L. J. Q. B.
564; 80 L. T. 459 (C. A.)	355
Eaton v. Bell, 5 B. & Al. 34	1193
Ebbett's Case, 5 Ch. 302	57
Ebbw Vale Steel Co., 4 C. Div. 827 (1877); 36 L. T. 308; 46
L. J. Ch. 241	477, 859, 878, 887, 893, 1255, 1258
Eddystone Marine Ins. Co., Limited, (1892) 2 Ch. 123	60
Eddystone Marine Ins. Co., Limited, (1893) 3 Ch. 9; 61 L. J. Ch.
362, 423; 66 L. T. 370; 40 W. R. 441	465, 478
Edelstein v. Schuler, (1902) 2 K. B. 144; 87 L. T. 204; 50 W. R.
493	1243
Eden v. Ridsdale's Co., 23 Q. B. D. 368; 58 L. J. Q. B. 579; 61
L. T. 444; 38 W. R. 55	733, 1352
Edger v. Knapp, 7 Jur. 583 (C. P.); 5 M. & G. 753	149
Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459; 33 W. R. 911; 53 L. T.
369	188, 189, 195, 203, 205
Edinburgh American Land Co. v. Lang's Trustees (1909), S. C. 488
(Ct. of Sess.)	1494, 1503
Edinburgh and District Aerated Water, &c. Assoc. v. Jenkinson, 5
F. 1159 (Ct. of Sess.)	115
Edmondson v. Copeland, (1911) 2 Ch. 301	1226
Edmunds v. Foster, 45 L. J. M. C. 41; 24 W. R. 368; 33 L. T.
690	624, 690, 763
Edmundson v. Render, (1905) 2 Ch. 320; 74 L. J. Ch. 585; 93 L. T.
124; 53 W. R. 632; W. N. (1905) 121	358
Edwards v. Godfrey, (1899) 2 Q. B. 333	1045
Edwards v. Midland Rail. Co., 6 Q. B. D. 287; 29 W. R. 609; 43
L. T. 694; 50 L. J. Q. B. 281; 45 J. P. 374	38, 546
Ehrman v. Bartholomew, (1898) 1 Ch. 671; 67 L. J. Ch. 319; 78
L. T. 646; 46 W. R. 509	358
Ehrmann Brothers, (1906) 2 Ch. 697; 54 W. R. 555; 22 T. L. R.
734	617, 1424
Eichbaum v. City of Chicago Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 459; 61 L. J. Ch. 28;
40 W. R. 153	750, 751
Elder v. New Zealand Land Co., W. N. (1874) 85; 30 L. T. 285	646
Elderslie Steamship Co. v. Borthwick, (1905) A. C. 96; 92 L. T. 274;
74 L. J. K. B. 338; 53 W. R. 401 (H. L., E.)	594
Electromobile Co. v. British Electromobile Co., 97 L. T. 196; 98 L. T.
258	451, 452
Eley v. Positive Government, &c. Co., 1 Ex. Div. 20, 88; 24 W. R.
338; 34 L. T. 190; 45 L. J. Ex. 451	147, 148, 441, 633, 634,
	635, 643, 728, 748, 758, 838
Elkington's Case, 2 Ch. 511; 15 W. R. 665; 16 L. T. 301; 36 L. J.
Ch. 593	55, 257
Ellerby's Claim, 2 W. R. 855	1149
Elleamere Brewery Co. v. Cooper, (1896) 1 Q. B. 75	1245
Elliman, Sons & Co. v. Carrington, (1901) 2 Ch. 275	117, 368, 424
Elliott v. Turquand, App. Cas. 79	1158

	PAGE
Ell—Eup
Ellis v. Barfield , W. N. (1891) 84 - - - -	769
Ellis v. Dodson , 60 L. J. Ch. 353; 7 T. L. R. 318 - - -	381
Ellis v. Joseph Ellis & Co. , (1905) 1 K. B. 324; 74 L. J. K. B. 229;
92 L. T. 718; 53 W. R. 311 (C. A.) - - - -	1021
Ellis v. McHenry , 6 L. R. C. P. 228 - - - -	1497
Ellis v. Rowbotham , (1900) 1 Q. B. 740 - - - -	768
Ellison v. Wright , 3 Russ. 450 - - - -	1216
Elphinstone (Lord) v. Monkland , 11 App. Cas. 332 - -	1447
Ely, Re, Trustee, Ex parte , 82 L. T. 501; affirmed 48 W. R. 693
(C. A.) - - - -	947
Emma Mining Co. v. Grant , 11 C. D. 918; 40 L. T. 804; 17 C. D.
122; 29 W. R. 481; 50 L. J. Ch. 449 - 122, 123, 131, 133, 138, 140, 207, 1400
Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis , 4 C. P. D. 396; 27 W. R. 836; 40 L. T.
168; 48 L. J. C. P. 257 - - - -	122, 123, 125, 133, 139
Emmens v. Pottle , 16 Q. B. D. 334 - - - -	546
Empire Life , 31 C. D. 78 - - - -	1498
Empire Mining Co., Re , 44 C. D. 402 - 1493, 1496, 1497, 1501, 1502
Empress Engineering Co. , 16 C. D. 125; 29 W. R. 342; 43 L. T. 742
67, 322, 323, 324, 366, 370, 441, 644, 1149
Englefield Colliery Co. , 8 C. D. 388; 38 L. T. 112 - 715, 722, 748, 788, 839, 1403
English and Colonial Produce Co. , (1906) 2 Ch. 435; 95 L. T. 580;
22 T. L. R. 669 - - - -	139, 147, 148, 323, 361, 748, 759, 839
English and Foreign Credit Co. , 1 Times L. R. p. 1 - 514, 786
English Bank of River Plate , 69 L. T. 14 - - - -	1229
English Crown Spelter Co. v. Baker , 99 L. T. 353 - - -	100
English, Scottish, and Australian Bank , (1895) 3 Ch. 385 - 707, 1497, 1502
Englishman (The) and Australia (The) , (1895) P. 212; 64 L. J. P.
74; 72 L. T. 203; 43 W. R. 670; 11 R. 757; 7 Asp. M. C. 605 - 1247
Ennis, Re , (1893) 3 Ch. 242 - - - -	1245
Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States v. Bishop ,
(1900) 1 Q. B. 177 - - - -	101
Era Assurance Co.'s Case , 30 L. J. Ch. 137; 32 L. J. Ch. 207; 1 D.
J. & S. 29; 11 W. R. 59; 7 L. T. 404 - - - -	514, 1481
Erichsen v. East , 8 Q. B. D. 414 - - - -	94, 119
Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co. , 3 App. Cas. 1218; 27 W. R. 65; 39
L. T. 269; 48 L. J. Ch. 73 - 33, 42, 121, 131, 132, 133, 134, 136, 137, 138, 141, 143, 239, 645
Ernest v. Croysdill (1800). 2 D. F. & J. 175 - - -	712, 1356
Ernest v. Loma Gold Mines , (1897) 1 Ch. 1; 66 L. J. Ch. 17; 75
L. T. 317; 45 W. R. 86 - 698, 699, 703, 708, 1096, 1096
Ernest v. Nicholls , 6 H. L. C. 401; 8 C. D. 679; 3 Jur. N. S. 919 - 78, 239, 456, 466, 506, 710
Eedaile v. La Nanze , 1 Y. & C. 394 - - - -	1157
Esparto Trading Co., Re , 12 C. D. 191 - - - -	47, 658
Espuela Land and Cattle Co. , W. N. (1900) 139; 48 W. R. 684 - 696, 814, 817, 1081
Essex and Suffolk Equitable Insurance Society , W. N. (1909) 102 - 1319
Estates Investment Co. , 27 S. J. 585 - - - -	1337
Euphrates and Tigris Steam Navigation Co. , (1904) 1 Ch. 360; 73
L. J. Ch. 175; 90 L. T. 56; W. N. (1904) 23 - - -	1311, 1313

TABLE OF CASES.

iv

Eup-Fau	PAGE
Eupion Fuel and Gas Co., W. N. (1875) 10 - - -	1401
European Bank, Re , Agra Bank Claim, 8 Ch. 41 - -	1192, 1194, 1195
European Co. v. Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733 - - -	1354
Evans's Case (1867), 2 Ch. 420; 36 L. J. Ch. 501; 16 L. T. 232; 15 W. R. 543 - - -	46, 47, 484
Evans v. Beattie, 5 Esp. 26 - - -	1248
Evans v. Brown (1843), 5 Beav. 114 - - -	112
Evans v. Chapman, 86 L. T. 381; 18 T. L. R. 506 - -	641
Evans v. Coventry, 8 De G. M. & G. 835; 5 W. R. 436; 29 L. T. O. S. 118; 26 L. J. Ch. 400 - - -	833
Evans v. Hearts of Oak Society, 12 Jur. N. S. 163 - -	1406
Evans v. Rival Granite Quarries, (1910) 2 K. B. 979 - -	616
Evans v. Smallcombe, L. R. 3 H. L. 249 - - -	42
Evans v. Truman, 1 Moo. & R. 10 - - -	1210
Everitt v. Automatic Weighing Machine Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 506; 67 L. T. 349; 62 L. J. Ch. 241 - - -	664, 665
E. W. A., Re , (1901) 2 K. B. 642 - - -	1245
Ewing v. Ewing, 8 App. Cas. 822 - - -	602
Exchange Drapery Co., 38 C. D. 171 - - -	658, 783, 784
Exchange Trust, Limited, Larkworthy's Case, (1903) 1 Ch. 711; 72 L. J. Ch. 387; 88 L. T. 56 - - -	660
Exeter and Crediton Rail. Co. v. Buller, 5 Ry. Cas. 211; 11 Jur. 527 - - -	74, 75, 1360
Exploring Land and Minerals Co., 94 L. T. 234 - - -	714
Express Fuel Co., Re , W. N. (1875) 10 - - -	873

F.

Fairbairn Engineering Co. (Ex parte Iadd), (1893) 3 Ch. 450; 63 L. J. Ch. 8; 69 L. T. 415; 8 R. 16 - - -	655, 658
Fairbrother v. England, 40 W. R. 220 - - -	358
Famatina Co. v. Bury, (1910) A. C. 439 - - -	1125
Family Endowment Co., 5 Ch. 118 - - -	1448
Farley, Ex parte , 1 M. D. & De G. 683 - - -	1186
Farmer v. Pitt, (1902) 1 Ch. 964; 50 W. R. 453; 71 L. J. Ch. 500 - 1185, 1186, 1217
Farmer v. Scottish American Co., (1912) A. C. 118 - - -	98
Farmer & Co. v. Inland Revenue, (1898) 2 Q. B. 141; 67 L. J. Q. B. 775; 79 L. T. 32 - - -	340
Farnham Flint, &c. Co. v. Farnham Union, (1901) 1 Q. B. 272; 16 T. L. R. 199 - - -	106
Farnham v. Milward, (1895) 2 Ch. 735 - - -	680
Farrar v. Farrars, 40 C. D. 395; 58 L. J. Ch. 185; 60 L. T. 121; 37 W. R. 196 - - -	29
Farrer v. Lacy, Hartland & Co., 25 C. D. 636 - - -	1217
Faure Accumulator Co., 40 C. D. 141; 58 L. J. Ch. 48; 59 L. T. 918; 37 W. R. 116; 1 Meg. 99 - - -	30, 277, 466, 587, 672, 712, 789

Fau—For	PAGE
Faure Accumulator Co. v. Phillipart, 38 L. T. 525 -	654, 656, 661, 728, 740, 744, 1342
Federal Supply and Cold Storage v. Augensen, 103 L. T. 150 -	442
Felix Hadley & Co. v. Hadley, 77 L. T. 136; (1898) 2 Ch. 680 -	42, 62, 135, 347, 945
Fell v. Goslin, 7 Ex. 185 -	1245
Fenwick v. Schmalz, L. R. 3 C. P. 313 -	601
Fenwick, Stobart & Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 507; 71 L. J. Ch. 321; 86 L. T. 193 -	142, 759, 1051
Ferguson v. Wilson (1866), 2 Ch. 77; 15 W. R. 27 -	29, 36, 57, 710, 711, 723, 789, 1351
Fergusson v. Fyffe, 8 C. & F. 121 -	1193
Fernandez's Executors, 5 Ch. 314 -	678
Fielding and Rimington's Case, 2 Ch. 714 -	477, 1115
Filby v. Hounsell, (1896) 2 Ch. 737 -	335
Finance and Issue, Limited v. Canadian Produce Corporation, (1905) 1 Ch. 37; 73 L. J. Ch. 751; 91 L. T. 685; 53 W. R. 170 -	11, 18
Financial Corporation, 27 S. J. 199 -	1337
Financial Corporation, In re (Goodson's Claim), 28 W. R. 760; W. N. (1880) 88 -	467, 507, 514, 787
Finck v. Tranter, (1905) 1 K. B. 427; 92 L. T. 297; 74 L. J. K. B. 345 -	1186
Firbank's Executors v. Humphreys, 18 Q. B. D. 54; 56 L. J. Q. B. 57; 56 L. T. 36; 35 W. R. 92 -	335, 687, 710, 711, 741, 1141, 1199
Firmstone's Case, 20 Eq. 524; 23 W. R. 867; 44 L. J. Ch. 617 -	484
Fisher's Case, 31 C. D. 120; 55 L. J. Ch. 497, 597; 53 L. T. 832; 34 W. R. 49, 335 -	55, 257
Fisher v. Black and White Publishing Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 174; 70 L. J. Ch. 175; 84 L. T. 305; 49 W. R. 310; 8 Mans. 184 (C. A.) -	643, 765, 766, 790, 814, 866, 871
Fisher v. Hull and Barnsley Rail. Co., 25 S. J. 353 -	871
FitzGeorge, In re , (1905) 1 K. B. 462 -	1250
Fitzgerald, Re , (1905) 1 K. B. 462 -	1250
Fitzgerald's Trustee v. Mellersh, (1892) 1 Ch. 385; 61 L. J. Ch. 231; 66 L. T. 178; 40 W. R. 251 -	1193
Fitzroy Bessemer Co., Re , 32 W. R. 475; 32 W. R. 312; 50 L. T. 154 -	141, 144, 1401
Flatau v. Cullen, 81 L. T. 402; W. N. (1899) 206; 48 W. R. 36 (C. A.) -	1341
Fleetwood Estate Co., W. N. (1897) 20 -	1311, 1315
Fleming v. Bank of New Zealand, (1900) A. C. 577 -	644, 741, 1180
Fletcher v. Galland, 90 L. T. Notes, 278 -	313
Flitcroft's Case, 21 C. D. 519; 31 W. R. 174; 48 L. T. 86; 52 L. J. Ch. 217 -	27, 28, 30, 150, 465, 712, 714, 715, 766, 860, 871, 872, 873, 1311, 1315, 1356
Floating Dock of St. Thomas, (1895) 1 Ch. 691 -	589, 1120, 1259
Florence Land and Public Works Co., Limited, 10 C. D. 530; 27 W. R. 236; 39 L. T. 589; 48 L. J. Ch. 137 -	401, 616, 1180
Forbes' Case, 8 Ch. 768; 42 L. J. Ch. 857 (C. A.) -	476
Forbes and Judd's Case, Re Hayford Ironworks Co., 5 Ch. 273; 39 L. J. Ch. 422; 22 L. T. N. S. 187; 18 W. R. 302 -	61

For—Fri	PAGE
Forbes v. Jackson, 19 C. D. 615; 51 L. J. Ch. 690; 48 L. T. 722; 30 W. R. 632	1247
Forder v. Handyside, 1 Ex. D. 233; 45 L. J. Ex. 809; 35 L. T. 62; 24 W. R. 764	100
Fore Street Warehouse Co., 59 L. T. 214; W. N. (1888) 155; 1 Meg. 67	1118, 1257, 1306
Foreign and Col. &c. Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 395; 65 L. T. 78; 39 W. R. 699	1311, 1312
Forest of Dean, &c. Co., Limited (1879), 10 C. D. 450; 27 W. R. 594; 40 L. T. 287	712, 713, 714, 789
Forrest v. Manchester Rail. Co., 30 Beav. 40	488
Foss v. Harbottle, 2 Hare, 461	74, 75, 633, 1356, 1357, 1353, 1359, 1360
Foster v. Borax Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326; 70 L. J. Ch. 162; 83 L. T. 638; 49 W. R. 212 (C. A.)	457, 1447
Foster v. Coles, 22 T. L. R. 555	813
Foster v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, (1894) 1 Q. B. 516; 63 L. J. Q. B. 173; 69 L. T. 817; 42 W. R. 259; 58 J. P. 444; 9 R. 161 (C. A.)	27, 29, 939, 956
Foster v. Liverpool Athenæum, 97 L. T. 692	105
Foster v. L. C. & D. Rail., (1895) 1 Q. B. 711	467
Foster v. New Trinidad Lake Asphalt Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 208; 70 L. J. Ch. 123; 49 W. R. 119; 8 Mans. 47	286, 765, 766, 865, 871, 873, 880, 889, 896
Foster v. Pontoons and Dry Dock Co., 9 T. L. R. 450; 63 L. J. Q. B. 50	674
Fothergill's Case, 8 Ch. 282; 21 W. R. 301; 27 L. T. 124; 42 L. J. Ch. 481	484
Foulkes v. Quartz Hill Co. (1884), 1 C. & E. 156; Em. Dig. 1884, p. 102	201
Fowler v. Broad's Patent, &c. Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 724; 62 L. J. Ch. 373; 68 L. T. 576; 41 W. R. 247; 3 R. 295	649, 689
Fox's Case, 6 Ch. 183; 24 L. T. 336; 40 L. J. Ch. 433	75, 786, 1355, 1444, 1445, 1448, 1451, 1486, 1487
Foxton v. Manchester, &c. Bank, 44 L. T. N. S. 406	1192
Frames v. Bultfontein Mining Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 140; 60 L. J. Ch. 99; 64 L. T. 12; 39 W. R. 134; 2 Meg. 374	432, 725
France v. Clark, 26 C. D. 257; 32 W. R. 468; 50 L. T. 1; 53 L. J. Ch. 515	652, 669, 670, 708, 1142
Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 504; 69 L. J. Q. B. 147; 81 L. T. 684; 7 Mans. 347 (C. A.)	222, 1346, 1349
Frank Mills Mining Co., 23 C. D. 52, 56	76, 878
Fraser v. Whalley, 2 H. & M. 10	655, 1406
Frazer v. Jordan, 26 L. J. Q. B. 288; 8 El. & Bl. 303	1247
Freehold Land Co. v. Spargo, W. N. (1868) 94	1416
Freehold Land Co. v. Suffield, (1897) 2 Ch. 608	83
Freeman v. Appleyard, 32 L. J. Ex. 175	1207
Freeman v. Cooke, 2 Ex. 654; 6 D. & L. 187; 18 L. J. Ex. 114	1140
Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Nev. 40	771
Freeman v. Green, 1 J. & W. 135	771
Freeman v. Pope, 5 Ch. 538	1354
Frewen Co., Re, 60 L. T. 953	679
Friend v. Young, (1897) 2 Ch. 421; 66 L. J. Ch. 737; 77 L. T. 50; 46 W. R. 130	1190

	PAGE
Fri-Gen
Frith v. Frith, (1906) A. C. 254; 94 L. T. 363; 54 W. R. 618	- 1158
Frost (S.) & Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 207; 68 L. J. Ch. 544; 80 L. T. 849; 48 W. R. 39 (C. A.)	- 169
Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A. C. 187; 71 L. J. Ch. 433; 86 L. T. 242 (H. L., E.)	- 1458
Fuentes v. Montis, L. R. 4 C. P. 93; 38 L. J. C. P. 95; 19 L. T. 364; 17 W. R. 208	- 1211
Fuller v. McMahon, (1900) 1 Ch. 173	- 679
Fuller v. White Feather Roward, (1906) 1 Ch. 823; 95 L. T. 404; 22 T. L. R. 400	- 1457, 1458
Fullerton v. Provincial Bank of Ireland, (1903) A. C. 309; 72 L. J. P. C. 79; 89 L. T. 79 (H. L., L.)	- 1181
Furness Rail. v. Commissioners, 33 L. J. Ex. 173	- 670
Furnival v. Coombes, 5 M. & Gr. 736; 6 Sc. N. R. 522; 12 L. J. C. P. 265; 7 Jur. 309	- 328

G.

Gadd v. Houghton, 1 Ex. D. 357; 24 W. R. 875; 35 L. T. 222; 46 L. J. Ex. 71	- 334, 711
Galloway v. Schill, Seeböhm & Co., W. N. (1912) 131	- 624
Gallsworthy v. Selby Dam Commissioners, (1892) 1 Q. B. 348; 61 L. J. Q. B. 372; 66 L. T. 17; 8 T. L. R. 60	- 37
Gandy v. Gandy, 30 C. D. 57; 33 W. R. 803; 53 L. T. 306; 54 L. J. Ch. 1154	- 149, 323
Garden Gully, & Co. v. McLister, 1 App. Cas. 39; 24 W. R. 744; 38 L. T. 408	- 654, 658, 660, 736
Gardner v. Iredale, (1912) 1 Ch. 700 [see Addenda]	- 689
Gardner v. London, Chatham & Dover Rail. Co., 2 Ch. 201; 15 W. R. 326; 15 L. T. 494, 552; 36 L. J. Ch. 323	- 474, 566
Garnett v. McKewan, L. R. 8 Ex. 10	- 1192, 1195
Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Cannon Brewery Co., (1903) 1 K. B. 393; 72 L. J. K. B. 308; 88 L. T. 314; 51 W. R. 565 (C. A.)	- 349
Gate v. Fry, 2 Ex. D. 265	- 708
Gatling Gun Co., Re, 43 C. D. 628; 59 L. J. Ch. 279; 62 L. T. 312; 38 W. R. 317; 2 Meg. 114	- 1119
Gaussen v. Morton, 10 B. & C. 731	- 292
Gelly Deg Colliery Co., 38 L. T. 440	- 364
General Accident Assurance Corporation v. McGowan, (1908) A. C. 207; 98 L. T. 734; 24 T. L. R. 533 (H. L.)	- 101
General Accident Assurance Corporation v. Webster, (1902) 1 K. B. 377; 71 L. J. K. B. 236; 86 L. T. 555; 50 W. R. 381	- 359
General Accident Assurance Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 147; 73 L. J. Ch. 557; 52 W. R. 602	- 112
General Auction, & Co. v. Smith, (1891) 3 Ch. 432	- 467, 473, 509
General Bank, 17 W. R. 304	- 1293
General Bill Posting Co. v. Atkinson, (1908) 1 Ch. 537	- 359

TABLE OF CASES.

lix

Gen—Glo	PAGE
General Credit Co., W. N. (1891) 133; (1902) 2 Ch. 601 -	1263, 1311
General Estates Co., Re , 3 Ch. 762 -	510
General Exchange Bank, Preston's Case , 4 Eq. 138; 37 L. J. Ch. 618; 16 W. R. 1097 -	141, 142, 751
General Exchange Bank, L. R. 6 Ch. 818 -	662
General Industries Development Syndicate, W. N. (1907) 23 -	1305
General Phosphate Co. v. Horrocks, 8 T. L. R. 350 -	589
General Property Co. v. Matheson's Trustees, 16 C. of S. Cas. 282 (Sc.) -	465
General Rail. Syndicate, Whiteley's Case , (1899) 1 Ch. 770; 80 L. T. 868; 68 L. J. Ch. 365 -	199
Gentle v. Faulkner, (1900) 2 Q. B. 267; 69 L. J. Q. B. 777; 82 L. T. 708 (C. A.) -	354
Geo. Newman & Co., 1895) 1 Ch. 674; 64 L. J. Ch. 407; 72 L. T. 697; 43 W. R. 483; 2 Mans. 267; 12 R. 228 (C. A.) -	27, 715, 724, 725, 909, 1002
George v. Skivington, L. R. 5 Ex. 1 -	213
George Whitechurch, Limited v. Cavanagh, 85 L. T. 349; (1902) A. C. 117 -	745, 759
German Date Co., Re , 20 C. D. 169; 30 W. R. 717; 46 L. T. 327; 51 L. J. Ch. 464 -	470, 600
German Mining Co., 4 De G. M. & G. 19 -	787
Gerson v. Simpson, (1903) 2 K. B. 197 (C. A.) -	226
Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 59; 51 L. J. Q. B. 313; 46 L. T. 248; 30 W. R. 591 -	206
Gibbs v. Société des Métaux, 25 Q. B. D. 399 -	1497
Gibbs and West's Case, 10 Eq. 312; 18 W. R. 970; 23 L. T. 350; 39 L. J. Ch. 667 -	509, 686
Giblan v. National Amalgamated Labourers' Union, (1903) 2 K. B. 600; 72 L. J. K. B. 907; 89 L. T. 386 (C. A.) -	445
Giblin v. McMullen, L. R. 2 P. C. 317 -	713
Gibson v. Barton, L. R. 10 Q. B. 329; 23 W. R. 858; 32 L. T. 396; 44 L. J. M. C. 81 -	441, 624, 690, 763
Gibson v. Holland, L. R. 1 C. P. 1 -	335, 336, 1184
Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 278 -	138
Gifford v. Willoughby's Mashonaland Expedition Co., 16 T. L. R. 24 -	125
Gilbert's Case, 5 Ch. 559; 18 W. R. 938; 23 L. T. 341; 39 L. J. Ch. 837 -	603, 654, 655, 657, 665, 722, 724, 747
Gilbert v. Endean, 9 C. D. 266; 27 W. R. 252; 39 L. T. 404 -	190
Gilchrist, (1895) 1 Ch. 367 -	496
Giles v. Perkins, 9 East, 14 -	1195
Gill v. Downing, 17 Eq. 317 -	1216
Gillate and Watts v. Colquhoun, 33 W. R. 258 -	100
Gillespie v. Alexander, 2 Russ. C. C. 136 -	679
Gillingham v. Beddow, (1900) 2 Ch. 242; 69 L. J. Ch. 527; 82 L. T. 791; 64 J. P. 617 -	357
Gilman's Case, 31 C. D. 420 -	485
Glamorganshire Canal Co. v. Merthyr Tydfil Union, 89 L. T. 85 -	106
Glamorganshire Quarter Sessions v. Wilson, (1910) 1 K. B. 725 -	102
Glasgow v. Independent Printing Co., (1901) 2 I. R. 278 -	1020
Glazier v. Rolls, 42 C. D. 436; 58 L. J. Ch. 820; 62 L. T. 133; 38 W. R. 113 -	138, 191, 203, 871
Glenton and Saunders, Re , 53 L. T. 434 (C. A.) -	352

Glo—Gra	PAGE
Glory Paper Mills Co. (Dunster's Case), (1894) 3 Ch. 473; 63 L. J. Ch. 885; 71 L. T. 528; 43 W. R. 164; 1 Manson, 438; 7 R. 456 (C. A.) - - - - -	168, 721
Glossop v. Glossop, (1907) 2 Ch. 370; 97 L. T. 372; 76 L. J. Ch. 610 - - - - -	724
Gloucester Municipal Election Petition, (1901) 1 Q. B. 683 - - - - -	733
Glover v. Giles, 18 C. D. 180; 50 L. J. Ch. 568; 45 L. T. 344; 29 W. R. 603 - - - - -	26
Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240; 69 L. J. Ch. 385; 82 L. T. 393; 7 Mans. 321 (H. L., E.) - - - 131, 132, 134, 135, 136, 138, 141, 142, 143, 144, 150, 174, 192, 241, 645, 839	1216
Godfrey v. Watson, 3 Atk. 517 - - - - -	93
Goetz & Co. v. Bell, (1904) 2 K. B. 136; 73 L. J. K. B. 448; 90 L. T. 673; 53 W. R. 64 - - - - -	26, 1099
Gold Co., Re , 11 C. D. 719 - - - - -	1411
Gold Hill Co., 23 C. D. 210; 31 W. R. 853; 49 L. T. 66 - - - - -	1342
Gold Ores Reduction Co. v. Parr, (1892) 2 Q. B. 14; 61 L. J. Q. B. 522; 66 L. T. 687; 40 W. R. 526 - - - - -	1361
Gold Reefs of Western Australia v. Dawson, (1897) 1 Ch. 115 - - - - -	947, 954
Goldburg, In re , Ex parte Silverstone, (1912) 1 K. B. 384, reversed on appeal - - - - -	672
Goldschmidt v. Jones, 22 L. T. 221 - - - - -	467
Gonty v. Manchester, &c. Rail. Co., (1896) 2 Q. B. 439 - - - - -	1447
Gooch v. London Banking Ass., 32 C. D. 41 - - - - -	672
Gooch's Case, 8 Ch. 266; 21 W. R. 161; 28 L. T. 148; 42 L. J. Ch. 381 - - - - -	1149
Goodwin v. Roberts, 1 App. Cas. 476 - - - - -	355
Goodwin v. Saturley, 16 T. L. R. 437 - - - - -	358
Gophir Diamond Co. v. Wood, (1902) 1 Ch. 450; 86 L. T. 801; 50 W. R. 603 - - - - -	361
Gorely, Ex parte , 4 De G. J. & S. 477 - - - - -	200
Gorriessen's Case, 8 Ch. App. 519 - - - - -	595
Goss v. Lord Nugent, 5 B. & Ad. 65 - - - - -	658
Goulton v. London Architectural Co., W. N. (1877) 141 - - - - -	771
Gourand v. Edison, 59 L. T. 813; W. N. (1888) 194; 57 L. J. Ch. 498 - - - - -	340
Gourlay v. Duke of Somerset, 30 Ves. Jun. 430 - - - - -	132, 142, 193, 227, 229
Gover's Case, 1 C. D. 182; 24 W. R. 125; 53 L. T. 619; 45 L. J. Ch. 83 - - - - -	616, 718
Government Stock, &c. Co. v. Manila Rail. Co., (1897) A. C. 81; 66 L. J. Ch. 102; 75 L. T. 553; 45 W. R. 363 (H. L., E.) - - - - -	1313
Government Stock Investment Co. (No. 2), (1892) 1 Ch. 597; 61 L. J. Ch. 381; 66 L. T. 608; 40 W. R. 387 - - - - -	1348, 1349
Gower v. Couldridge, (1898) 1 Q. B. 348 - - - - -	567
Graff v. Evans, 8 Q. B. D. 373; 51 L. J. M. C. 25; 46 L. T. 347; 30 W. R. 380; 46 J. P. 282 - - - - -	658, 692
Graham v. Van Dieman's Land Co., 26 L. J. Ex. 73; 1 H. & N. 541 - - - - -	1021
Grainger v. Aynsley, 6 Q. B. D. 832 - - - - -	94, 119
Grainger v. Gough, (1896) A. C. 325 - - - - -	75, 96, 736, 747
Gramophone and Typewriter v. Stanley, (1908) 2 K. B. 89; 99 L. T. 39; 24 T. L. R. 480 - - - - -	101
Granite Supply Association v. Inland Revenue, 8 F. 55 (Ct. of Sess.) - - - - -

TABLE OF CASES.

lxi

Gra—Gre	PAGE
Grant v. Gold Explorers, &c. Syndicate, (1900) 1 Q. B. 233; 69 L. J.
Q. B. 150; 62 L. T. 5; 48 W. R. 280 (C. A.) -	134, 141, 733, 1400
Grant v. Langton, (1900) A. C. 383 -	103
Grant v. United Switchback Rail., 40 C. D. 136; 38 L. J. Ch. 211;
37 W. R. 313; 60 L. T. 625; 1 Meg. 117 -	37, 74, 457, 511, 692, 694, 711, 732, 741, 1048, 1049, 1100, 1454
Gray v. Ford, (1896) A. C. 44 -	1180
Gray v. Johnson, L. R. 3 H. L. 1 -	1192
Gray v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1030; 21 W. R. 923; 29 L. T. 12; 43 L. J.
Ch. 281 -	29, 151, 640, 1355, 1358
Gray v. Pearson, 6 H. L. C. 106 -	594, 597
Gray v. Stone and Funnell, 69 L. T. 282; W. N. (1893) 133; 3 R.
692 -	664
Great Britain Mutual, 20 C. D. 351; 30 W. R. 374; 46 L. T. 616;
51 L. J. Ch. 7, 506; 16 C. D. 246; 19 C. D. 39 -	1331
Great Eastern Rail. Co. v. Turner, 8 Ch. 152; 21 W. R. 163; 27
L. T. 697; 42 L. J. Ch. 83 -	27, 485, 711, 712, 1356
Great Northern Salt, 44 C. D. 472; 59 L. J. Ch. 288; 62 L. T. 231;
2 Meg. 46 -	717, 734, 742, 744, 745, 746
Great North-West Central Rail. v. Charlebois, (1899) A. C. 115; 68
L. J. P. C. 25; 79 L. T. 35 (P. C.) -	30, 42, 283
Great Western Rail. v. Rushout, 5 De G. & S. 290 -	512
Great Western Steamship Co., 35 W. R. 154 -	1283
Great Wheel Polgooth, Re , 32 W. R. 107; 49 L. T. 20; 53 L. J. Ch.
42; 47 J. P. 710 -	126
Greaves v. Tofield, 14 C. D. 571 -	1205
Green v. London General Omnibus Co., 7 C. B. N. S. 290; 29 L. J.
C. P. 13; 1 H. & C. 526 -	38
Green v. St. John's Mansions, W. N. (1900) 9 -	1362
Green v. Wright, 1 C. P. D. 592 -	441
Green v. Wynn, 4 Ch. 204 -	1247
Greenwell v. Porter, (1902) 1 Ch. 530; 71 L. J. Ch. 243; 86 L. T.
220 -	704, 718, 734
Greenwich Pier Co. v. Thames Conservators, 21 T. L. R. 669 -	466
Greenwood's Case, 3 De G. M. & G. 459 -	913
Greenwood v. Francis, (1899) 1 Q. B. 312; 68 L. J. Q. B. 228; 79
L. T. 624; 47 W. R. 230 (C. A.) -	1247
Greenwood v. Humber & Co. (Portugal), W. N. (1898) 162 -	207, 222
Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421; 81 L. T.
395; 69 L. J. Ch. 131; 7 Mans. 210 (C. A.) -	174, 192, 214, 216, 227, 230, 232
Gregory v. Patchett, 33 Beav. 395 -	898
Gregson, Re , (1893) 3 Ch. 233; 62 L. J. Ch. 764; 69 L. T. 73; 41
W. R. 641 (C. A.) -	668
Gresham Life, Re , 8 Ch. 449; 42 L. J. Ch. 183; 28 L. T. 150; 21
W. R. 186 -	737, 747
Gresham Life Assurance Co. v. Bishop, (1901) 1 Q. B. 153; 70 L. J.
Q. B. 298; 63 L. T. 654; 65 J. P. 4 (C. A.); (1902) A. C. 287 -	101
Gresham Life Soc. v. Styles, (1892) A. C. 309; 62 L. J. Q. B. 41;
67 L. T. 479; 41 W. R. 270; 56 J. P. 709 -	97, 98

Gre-Hal		PAGE
Greymouth Point, ac. Co. , (1900) 1 Ch. 32; 73 L. J. Ch. 92	732, 740	74
Griffith, Re parte, Re Wilkinson , 23 C. D. 60	-	1094, 12
Griffith v. Paget, 5 C. D. 894; 6 C. D. 541; 23 W. R. 323; 57 L. T. 141; 46 L. J. Ch. 493	76, 78, 143, 239, 509, 786, 7	843, 108, 1441, 1442, 1443, 1452, 1476, 1
Griffith v. The Earl of Dudley, 9 Q. B. D. 337; 51 L. J. Q. B. 343	-	-
47 L. T. 10; 30 W. R. 797; 40 L. P. 11	-	1022
Griffith Cycle Corp. v. Humphreys, (1899) 2 Q. B. 414; 81 L. T. 310	68	-
L. J. Q. B. 939	-	336
Grill v. General, & Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 60; affirmed , L. R. 3 C. P. 476; 35 L. J. C. P. 324	-	713
Grimwade, Ex parte, Re Tennent , 17 Q. B. D. 357	-	1367
Grindley, Re, Clews v. Grindley , (1898) 2 Ch. 593; 79 L. T. 105; 47 W. R. 53	-	715, 1402
Griswell's Case, 1 Ch. 528; 14 W. R. 1015; 14 L. T. 843; 35 L. J. Ch. 752	-	29
Groves v. Wimborne, (1898) 2 Q. B. 102; 79 L. T. 284; 47 W. R. 87	-	176, 264
Grundy v. Briggs, (1910) 1 Ch. 444	-	168, 721
Guardian Fire & Life Assurance Co. v. Guardian & General Insurance Co., 43 L. T. 791; 50 L. J. Ch. 253	-	450
Guardians of St. Leonards v. Franklin, 3 C. P. D. 377	-	44
Guerreiro v. Sale, 3 B. & Ad. 615	-	1157
Guest, Re, Nettlesfield v. Foster , (1910) 1 K. B. 713	-	101, 117
Guinness v. Trade Mark, 5 Sup. Pat. Cas. 316	-	346
Guinness v. Land Corporation of Ireland, 22 C. D. 349; 31 W. R. 341; 47 L. T. 517; 52 L. J. Ch. 17	76, 465, 476, 482, 592, 631, 784, 861, 871, 873	-
Gunn's Case, 3 Ch. 40; 38 L. T. 139	-	51
Gunn v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., 1 Ch. 192	-	1207
Gurney & Co. v. Gill, 5 H. L. 480	-	713
Gurnard's Case, 8 Eq. 438; 17 W. R. 15; 21 L. T. 196; 38 L. J. Ch. 610	-	672
Guthrie v. Armstrong (1822), 5 B. & Ald. 626	-	1161
Guy v. Waterlow Bros., 25 T. L. R. 515	-	675, 1143
Guyot v. Thompson, (1894) 3 Ch. 388; 64 L. J. Ch. 32; 71 L. T. 416	-	381

H.

Hastings Gold Mines, (1900) 2 Ch. 419; 69 L. J. Ch. 631; 400	-	26, 1099
Hatfield, Re, W. N. (1868) 86; 18 L. T. 144	-	14
Haggo v. Miff, 5 D. M. & G. 910	-	1158
Haggen v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, 23 Q. B. D. 519	-	1341
Hague v. Danderson, 2 Ex. 741; 17 L. J. Ex. 269	-	711
Halbot v. Lens, (1901) 1 Ch. 344	-	335, 711
Halifax Commercial Bank and Wood, 47 W. R. 194; 79 L. T. 183 (C. A.)	-	350

Hal-Har		PAGE
Halifax Sugar Refining Co. v. Franklyn, 62 L. T. N. 8
39 L. J. Ch. 591; 2 Meg. 120		779
Hall (A. W.) & Co., Limited, 37 C. D. 712; 57 L. J. Ch. 288, 58
1 T. 138		1051, 1141
Hall (W. J.) & Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 321; W. N. (1909) 49		755, 785, 817
Hallam v. Blackburn, 17 C. B. N. S. 678		601
Hallett, Re, Ex parte National Insurance Corp. 1 Mans.		680
Halliday v. Holgate, 3 F. 209		1195
Hallmarck Case, 9 C. D. 529		906
Hallows v. Fernes, 6 H. 477; 16 W. R. 873		36 L. T.
Ch. 267		145, 18
191, 1		722
Hamro v. Bismund, (1904) 2 K. B. 10		1157, 11
Hamilton's Lord's Lunde Case, 8 Ch. 548		689
Hammerton v. Brogden, 1 N. (1891) 38; 60 L.		727
Hammerton v. Vaughan, Merrin, & Co., (1894) 3 C. 588, 66
65; 71 L. T. 2		43 W. R. 126; 8 R. 750
		672
Watson, 1 C. & F. 109		1197
Hamp v. Talisher Distillery, (1894) A. C. 20		71 L. T. 1;
540 (H. L., Sc.)		343, 344
Hamp v. Wood, (1891) 2 Q. B. 488; 60 L. J. Q. B. 734; 65 L. T.
W. R. 24		443
62 L. T. 808		349
Hamp & Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 747; 65 L. J. Ch. 860; 75 L. T.
V. R. 136		142, 686, 692, 696, 710, 778, 1051
Hamp's Patent Candle Co., 45 L. J. Ch. 437; 34 L. T.
24 W. R. 764		75, 446, 508, 686, 688, 747, 765, 1025
Hampton Urban Council v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., (1900) A. C. 3; 16 T. L. R. 60; 69 L. J. Q. B. 72; 81 L. T.
347; 48 W. R. 209; 64 J. P. 260 (H. L., E.)		108
Hanau v. Ehrlich, (1911) 2 K. B. 1056		441
Hanbury v. Cundy, 58 L. T. 155		358
Hannan's Empress, & Co., Ex parte Carmichael, (1896) 2 Ch.
65 L. J. Ch. 902; 75 L. T. 45
Hannan's King, & Co., 14 T. L. R. 314
Hannan's Lake View Central v. Armstrong, 16 T. L. R. 2
Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. D. 14; 31 W. R. 173; 48 L. T.
633, 705, 737, 740, 744, 1356, 1357.
Harburg India Rubber Co. v. Martin, (1902) 1 K. P. 778
K. B. 629; 86 L. T. 345; 50 W. R. 449 (C. A.)
Hardoon v. Belilios, (1901) A. C. 118; 70 L. J. P. C. 1
573; 49 W. R. 209 (P. C.)		63, 323, 652, 660
Hare's Case, 4 Ch. 503; 17 W. R. 628; 20 L. T. 157
Hargreaves (Joseph), Limited, (1900) 2 Ch. 347		104
Hargrove, Ex parte , 10 Ch. 542; 23 W. R. 939; 32 L. T. 7
L. J. Ch. 569		520
Harman's Case, 1 C. D. 326; 45 L. J. Ch. 332; 33 L. T. 760
Harman v. Ainslie, (1904) 1 K. B. 698; 73 L. J. K. B. 698; 90 L. T.
624; 52 W. R. 615
Harmer v. Cornhill, 5 C. B. N. S. 238
Harper v. Godsell, 5 Q. B. 422; 39 L. J. Q. B. 185; 18 W. R. 954
Harper v. Paget
Harrington v. Victoria Dock, 3 C. B. D. 549		733,

Har—Hem	PAGE
Harris' Case, 7 Ch. 587; 20 W. R. 690; 26 L. T. 781; 41 L. J. Ch. 621	52, 258, 739, 743
Harris v. Fawcett, 8 Ch. 866	1248
Harris v. Irvine Corporation, W. N. (1901) 18	103
Harris v. North Devon Rail. Co., 20 Beav. 384	650
Harrison, Ex parte , 26 C. D. 522	679
Harrison, Ainslee & Co. v. Barrow-in-Furness Corp., 63 L. T. 84	355
Harrison v. Mexican Rail. Co., 19 Eq. 358; 23 W. R. 403; 32 L. T. 82; 44 L. J. Ch. 403	480, 575, 637, 1106
Harrogate Estates, Limited, (1903) 1 Ch. 498; 72 L. J. Ch. 313; 88 L. T. 82; 51 W. R. 334	617
Harrold v. Plenty, (1901) 2 Ch. 314; 70 L. J. Ch. 562; 85 L. T. 45; 49 W. R. 646	1186
Hart v. Clarke, 6 H. L. Cas. 633; 32 L. T. O. S. 380; 27 L. J. Ch. 615	658
Hart v. Frontino Co., L. R. 5 Ex. 111	674, 1140
Hart v. Hart, 18 C. D. 685	349
Hartley's Case, 10 Ch. 157; 23 W. R. 203; 32 L. T. 106; 44 L. J. Ch. 240	8
Harvey, Ex parte , 4 D. M. & G. 801	1247
Harvey Lewis' Case, 26 L. T. 673	725
Hastings v. Pearson, (1893) 1 Q. B. 62; 62 L. J. Q. B. 75; 67 L. T. 553; 41 W. R. 127	1206
Hatfield v. Phillips, 9 M. & W. 647	1212
Hatteraley v. Shelburne, 10 W. R. 881	1359
Haven Gold Co., 20 C. D. 151; 30 W. R. 389; 46 L. T. 322; 51 L. J. Ch. 242	469, 600, 700
Hawke v. Hulton, (1909) 2 K. B. 93; W. N. (1909) 88	44
Hawkes, Ackerman v. Lockhart, (1898) 2 Ch. 1; 67 L. J. Ch. 284; 78 L. T. 336; 46 W. R. 445 (C. A.)	771
Hawkes v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co., 5 H. L. C. 331; 3 W. R. 609; 24 L. J. Ch. 601	454, 710
Hawkins v. Rutt, Peake, 186; Leake, 897	770
Hawksley v. Outram, (1892) 3 Ch. 359; 62 L. J. Ch. 215; 67 L. T. 804 (C. A.), reversing 61 L. J. Ch. 429; 66 L. T. 765	1158
Hay's Case, 10 Ch. 593, 604; 33 L. T. 466; 44 L. J. Ch. 721	722
Haycraft Gold Reduction and Mining Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 230; 69 L. J. Ch. 497; 83 L. T. 166; 7 Mans. 243	50, 691, 740, 744
Haynes v. Doman, (1899) 2 Ch. 13; 68 L. J. Ch. 419; 80 L. T. 569 (C. A.)	337
Heap v. Hartley, 42 C. D. 461; 58 L. J. Ch. 790; 61 L. T. 538; 38 W. R. 136	381
Heather, Re , (1906) 2 Ch. 230; 95 L. T. 352; 75 L. J. Ch. 568	769
Hebb's Case, 4 Eq. 9; 36 L. J. Ch. 748; 16 L. T. N. S. 308; 15 W. R. 754	48, 67, 290
Heffield v. Meadows, L. R. 4 C. P. 595	1246
Helby's Case, 2 Eq. 175; 14 W. R. 417; 14 L. T. 47	878
Helby v. Matthews, (1895) A. C. 471; 64 L. J. Q. B. 465; 72 L. T. 841; 43 W. R. 561	1212
Helmors v. Smith (No. 2), 35 C. D. 449	442
Hemans v. Hotchkiss Ordnance Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 115; 68 L. J. Ch. 69; 79 L. T. 681; 47 W. R. 270; 6 Mans. 52	695

TABLE OF CASES.

lxv

Hem—Hig	PAGE
Hemming v. Maddick, 7 Ch. 395 - - - - -	63, 652
Henderson's Nigel Co., 105 L. T. 370 - - - - -	1448, 1451
Henderson v. Aylward, (1904) A. C. 163 - - - - -	1217
Henderson v. Bank of Australasia (Pension Case), 40 C. D. 170; 58
L. J. Ch. 197; 59 L. T. 856; 37 W. R. 332 - - - - -	467, 508, 1023
Henderson v. Bank of Australia, 45 C. D. 330; 59 L. J. Ch. 794; 2
Meg. 301 - - - - -	692, 695
Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249; 16 W. R. 328; 17 L. T. 537 - - - - -	185,
190, 196, 203, 206, 213
Hendricks v. Montagu, 17 C. D. 638; 30 W. R. 160; 44 L. T. 879;
50 L. J. Ch. 456 - - - - -	451, 453
Henniker v. Wigg, 4 Q. B. 792 - - - - -	1191
Henriques v. General Privileged Dutch Co., 2 Raym. 1532 - - - - -	119
Henry Bentley & Co. (Ex parte Harrison), 69 L. T. 204 - - - - -	48, 292, 293, 294
Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Re , (1892) 3 Ch. 549; 67 L. T. 614;
62 L. J. Ch. 143; 3 R. 29 - - - - -	346
Henry v. Great Northern Rail. Co., 1 De G. & J. 606; 30 L. T. O. S.
141; 27 L. J. Ch. 1; 3 Jur. N. S. 1133 - - - - -	577, 813, 814
Henthorn v. Fraser, (1892) 2 Ch. 27; 61 L. J. Ch. 373; 66 L. T.
439; 40 W. R. 433 - - - - -	48, 52, 237, 238, 780, 1461
Herbert Gold Co. v. Haycraft, C. A., 27 March, 1901; Times, 28
March, 1901 - - - - -	649, 670
Herbert v. Salisbury, &c. Co., 2 Eq. 221 - - - - -	1225
Hercynia Copper Co. (Richardson's Case), (1894) 2 Ch. 403; 63 L. J.
Ch. 567; 70 L. T. 709; 42 W. R. 593; 1 Mans. 286; 7 R. 214
(C. A.) - - - - -	723
Herdman v. Wheeler, (1902) 1 K. B. 361; 71 L. J. K. B. 270; 86
L. T. 48; 50 W. R. 300 - - - - -	768
Hereford, &c. Waggon Co., Re , 2 C. Div. 621; 24 W. R. 953;
35 L. T. 40; 45 L. J. Ch. 461 - - - - -	148, 838
Hereward (The), (1895) P. 284; 64 L. J. P. 87; 72 L. T. 903; 11 R.
798 - - - - -	388, 559
Heritage's Case, 9 Eq. 5 - - - - -	57
Hort's Case, 1 C. D. 307 - - - - -	640
Herts and Essex Waterworks Co., W. N. (1909) 45 - - - - -	618
Hesketh v. Bray, 21 Q. B. D. 444 - - - - -	100
Hester & Co., Re , 44 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 757 - - - - -	1439, 1441, 1445, 1487
Hetling and Merton's Contract, (1803) 3 Ch. 269; 62 L. J. Ch. 783;
69 L. T. 266; 42 W. R. 19 - - - - -	354
Heward v. Heatley, 3 De G. M. & G. 628 - - - - -	58
Hewlett v. Allen, (1894) A. C. 383; 62 L. J. Q. B. 608; 71 L. T. 94;
42 W. R. 670; 58 J. P. 700, 6 R. 175 (H. L.) - - - - -	1019
Heyl-Dia v. Edmunds, W. N. (1899) 222 - - - - -	563
Heyman v. European Central Co., 7 Eq. 154 - - - - -	186, 193
Hibblewhite v. McMorine, 6 M. & W. 200 - - - - -	652, 669
Higg's Case, 2 H. & M. 657 - - - - -	1414, 1481, 1483
Higgins v. Scott, 2 B. & Ad. 413 - - - - -	1194
Higginson and Dean, Re , (1899) 1 Q. B. 325; 68 L. J. Q. B. 199;
79 L. T. 673; 47 W. R. 285; 5 Mans. 289 - - - - -	112, 1338
Highett and Bird's Contract, (1903) 1 Ch. 287; 72 L. J. Ch. 220;
87 L. T. 697; 61 W. R. 227 (C. A.) - - - - -	355

	PAGE
Hj - Hon
Hilda's (St.) Incorporated College, (1901) 1 Ch. 556	1313, 1314
Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474; 71 L. J. Ch. 781; 87 L. T. 311
(H. L., E.)	13, 279, 282, 283, 285, 313, 587, 588, 647
Hill's Case, 20 Eq. 585; 23 W. R. 646; 32 L. T. 747; 44 L. J. Ch. 423	476, 630, 677
Hill's Waterfall, &c. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 947; 65 L. J. Ch. 476; 74 L. T. 341	1440
Hill & Co. v. Hill, 53 L. T. 769; 35 W. R. 137; 51 J. P. 246	358
Hill v. Manchester, &c. Co., 5 B. & Ad. 866	83
Hilton v. Eckersley, 6 E. & B. 47	113, 117
Hindley's Case, (1896) 2 Ch. 121; 65 L. J. Ch. 591; 74 L. T. 627; 44 W. R. 630	48, 290, 291
Hippisley v. Knee Bros., (1905) 1 K. B. 1; 74 L. J. K. B. 68; 92 L. T. 20	733, 1157
Hiram Maxim Lamp Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 70; 72 L. J. Ch. 18; 87 L. T. 720; 51 W. R. 74	1368
Hirsch & Co. v. Burns, 77 L. T. 377 (H. L., E.)	366, 381, 443
Hirsche v. Sims, (1894) A. C. 654	1142
Hirst v. West Riding Union Banking Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 560; 70 L. J. K. B. 828; 85 L. T. 3; 49 W. R. 715 (C. A.)	44
Hirth, Re , Ex parte Official Receiver, (1899) 1 Q. B. 612; 80 L. T. 63; 68 L. J. Q. B. 287; 47 W. R. 243; 6 Mans. 101 (C. A.)	946
Hitcham v. Congreve, 1 Russ. & My. 150	131, 133
Hitchcock v. Humphrey, 5 M. & G. 599	1245
Hoare & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 208; 73 L. J. Ch. 601; 91 L. T. 115; 53 W. R. 51 (C. A.)	755, 865, 867, 876, 1122, 1258, 1261, 1262, 1263, 1277
Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 C. D. 256	679
Hobson v. Bass, 6 Ch. 792	1248
Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182	343
Hockey v. Clydesdale Bank, 36 Sc. L. R. 120	40
Hockey v. Western, (1898) 1 Ch. 350; 67 L. J. Ch. 166; 78 L. T. 1; 46 W. R. 312 (C. A.)	652
Hodgson v. Bell, 24 Q. B. D. 525	1205
Hogg v. Smith, 2 Taunt. 317	1158
Holbrooks, Limited, 18 Rep. Pat. Cas. 447	346
Holland v. Bygrave, 6 M. & G. 653	1195
Holland v. Dickson, 37 C. D. 669	771
Holland v. Holland, 4 Ch. 449	770
Hollinwood Estate Co., Limited, W. N. (1887) 17; 31 S. J. 125	1337
Holmes' Case, 2 Ch. 714	1115
Holmes v. Higgins, 1 B. & C. 74	149
Holmes v. Newcastle, &c. Co., 1 C. D. 682; 24 W. R. 505; 45 L. J. Ch. 383	872, 1300
Holroyd v. Marshall, 10 H. L. C. 191	1183
Holt v. Collier, 16 C. D. 720	595
Holt's Case, 1 C. D. 307	636
Horn & District Co., 39 C. D. 546; 56 L. J. Ch. 134; 60 L. T. 97; 740, 741, 1311, 1389	50,
Hong Kong and China Gas Co., W. N. (1898) 158; W. N. (1899) 25	1311
Honig v. Blackett's Mines, 49 S. J. 770	511
Honour v. Equitable Life, (1900) 1 Ch. 852	1418

	PAGE
Hoo—Hoy
Hood & Moore's Stores v. Jones, 81 L. T. 160; 22 T. L. R. 451 -	357
Hoole v. G. W. Rail. Co., 3 Ch. 262; 16 W. R. 260; 17 L. T. 453 -	75, 514, 768, 1063
Hoole v. Speak, (1904) 2 Ch. 732; 73 L. J. Ch. 719; 91 L. T. 1083; 20 T. L. R. 619 -	228, 230
Hooley, Re, (1899) 2 Q. B. 579; 79 L. T. 706; 68 L. J. Q. B. 993; 6 Mans. 404 -	43, 690
Hooper v. Herta, (1906) 1 Ch. 549; 94 L. T. 324; 54 W. R. 350 -	670
Hooper v. Kerr, Stuart & Co., 45 S. J. 139; 83 L. T. 729 -	691, 740, 741, 759
Hooper v. Western Counties, &c. Co., 41 W. R. 86; 48 L. T. 78 -	1432
Hooper v. Willis, 94 L. T. 624 -	357
Hope v. Croydon Tramways, (1898) 1 Ch. 354 -	692
Hope v. International Financial Society, 4 C. D. 327; 25 W. R. 209; 35 L. T. 924; 46 L. J. Ch. 200 -	659, 660, 750; 751, 1309, 1411
Hopkins v. Linotype, Ltd., 101 L. T. 838 -	379
Hopkins' Trusts, 38 Eq. 686; 43 L. J. Ch. 722; 30 L. T. 627; 27 W. R. 687 -	768
Hopkinson v. Rott, 9 H. L. 514; 34 L. J. Ch. 408 -	663, 664, 1495
Horbury Bridge Co., 11 C. D. 306; 27 W. R. 433; 40 L. T. 353; 48 L. J. Ch. 341 -	503, 699, 701, 1092, 1096
Hornsey School of Art v. Edmonton Union, 94 L. T. 203; 4 L. G. R. 178; 70 J. P. 121 -	109
Horse Estate, Ltd. v. Steiger, (1906) 2 Q. B. 239; 67 L. J. Q. B. 747; 79 L. T. 116 -	1458
Hort's Case, 1 C. D. 307; 33 L. T. 706; 45 L. J. Ch. 321 -	1329
Horton & Son v. Walsall Assessment Committee, (1898) 2 Q. B. 239; 67 L. J. Q. B. 804; 78 L. T. 684; 46 W. R. 607; 62 J. P. 437 -	105
Hotel and General Advertising Co. v. Wickenden, 14 T. L. R. 480 -	443
Hotel Metropole (Blackpool) Case, Financial News, 7 Aug. 1900 -	598
Ho Tung v. Man On Insurance Co., (1902) A. C. (P. C.) 232; 71 L. J. P. C. 46; 85 L. T. 617 -	76
Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 326; 28 W. R. 677; 42 L. T. 194 -	36, 41, 76, 203
Houldsworth v. Yorkshire Woolcombers, (1903) 2 Ch. 284; 72 L. J. Ch. 635; 88 L. T. 811 (C. A.); (1904) A. C. 355 -	617
Household Fire Insurance Co., Re, 4 Ex. D. 216; 27 W. R. 858; 41 L. T. 298; 48 L. J. Ex. 577 -	52, 257, 258, 780
Hovenden & Co. v. Millhoff (1900), 16 T. L. R. 506; 83 L. T. 41 (C. A.) -	141, 753
Howard's Case, 1 Ch. 561; 14 W. R. 942; 14 L. T. 747; 36 L. J. Ch. 42 -	654, 739
Howard v. Patent Ivory Co., 38 C. D. 166; 57 L. J. Ch. 878; 58 L. T. 395; 36 W. R. 801 -	81, 324, 710, 722, 749, 761
Howard v. Sadler, (1893) 9 Q. B. 1; 68 L. T. 120; 41 W. R. 120; 5 R. 45 -	720
Howbeach Coal Co. v. Teague, 5 H. & N. 151; 29 L. J. Ex. 137; 8 W. R. 264 -	654, 717, 730, 744
Hoylake Rail. Co., Re, 9 Ch. 257 -	649
Hoyle & Jackson v. Oldham Union, (1894) 2 Q. B. 372; 63 L. J. M. C. 178; 70 L. T. 741; 58 J. P. 669; 9 R. 287 -	109
Hoyle v. Hoyle, (1893) 1 Ch. 84; 62 L. J. Ch. 182; 67 L. T. 674; 41 W. R. 81; 2 R. 145 (C. A.) -	335, 336, 1184

	PAGE
Hub—Inc
Hubbard, Ex parte , 17 Q. B. D. 600 - - -	516
Huggett v. Miff, 5 D. M. & G. 910 - - -	1158
Huggins v. Comptoir d'Escompte, 23 Q. B. D. 519 - - -	1341
Hughes and Ashley's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 595; 83 L. T. 390; 49 W. R. 67 - - -	350
Hughes v. Morris, 2 De G. M. & G. 356 - - -	1185
Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co. (No. 2), (1902) 2 K. B. 485 - - -	1348
Huguenin v. Baseley, 14 Ves. 273 - - -	138
Hulkes, Re , 33 C. D. 552 - - -	142
Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 520 - - -	350
Hume v. Record Reign Jubilee Synd., 80 L. T. 404 - - -	110
Hume v. Rundell, 2 E. & S. 177; 7 H. L. C. 89 - - -	597
Hunnings v. Williamson, 11 Q. B. D. 533 - - -	728
Hunt, Re , (1900) 2 Ch. 54 - - -	667
Hunt's Claim, W. N. (1872) 53; 20 W. R. 435; 26 L. T. 384 - - -	787
Hunt v. Great Northern Railway, (1891) 1 Q. B. 601 - - -	1021
Hutchinson's Case, (1895) 1 Ch. 226; 64 L. J. Ch. 131; 71 L. T. 667; 43 W. R. 267; 13 R. 56 - - -	723
Huth v. Clarke, 63 L. T. 348; 25 Q. B. D. 391; 50 L. J. M. C. 120; 50 W. R. 655 - - -	743
Huttly v. Simmons, (1898) 1 Q. B. 181; 67 L. J. Q. B. 213 - - -	445
Hutton v. Scarborough (Cliff, & Co. (1865), 4 De G. J. & S. 672; 2 Dr. & Sm. 514; 13 W. R. 1059; 13 L. T. 87; 34 L. J. Ch. 643; 11 Jur. N. S. 551 - - -	480, 481, 482, 575, 637, 638, 639, 819
Hutton v. West Cork Rail. Co., 23 C. D. 654; 52 L. J. Ch. 689; 49 L. T. 420; 31 W. R. 827 - - -	76, 466, 508, 1025, 1025
Hyde v. New Asbestos Co., 8 T. L. R. 121 - - -	192
Hyderabad Deccan Co. (1896), 75 L. T. 23 - - -	1261
Hyslop v. Morel, 7 T. L. R. 263 - - -	185

I.

Ilfracombe Building Society, (1901) 1 Ch. 102; 70 L. J. Ch. 66; 84 L. T. 146 - - -	110
Illingworth v. Houldsworth, (1904) A. C. 355 - - -	616
Illustrated Newspaper Corp., 16 T. L. R. 157 - - -	441
Imperial Assurance v. Coleman, 6 Ch. 568; 19 W. R. 481; 24 L. T. 290; 40 L. J. Ch. 262; L. R. 6 H. L. 190 - - -	173, 710, 732, 733
Imperial Bank of China, &c. v. Bank of Hindustan, &c., 6 Eq. 91 - 1097, 1448, 1486 - - -
Imperial Continental Gas Co. v. Nicholson, 37 L. T. 717 - - -	93
Imperial Fire Ins. Co., 35 L. T. 371 - - -	100
Imperial Hydropathic Co. v. Hampson, 23 C. D. 1 - 632, 633, 634, 695, 735, 736, 1102, 1357, 1406 - - -
Imperial Institute v. St. Mary Abbots, Times, 7 March, 1895 - - -	108
Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, 12 Eq. 504; 41 L. J. Ch. 113 - - -	146, 1441, 1445, 1474, 1487
Ice Hall Co., Re , 33 C. D. 545, n. - - -	478
Inchbald v. The Western Neilgherry Co., 17 C. B. N. S. 733; 13 W. R. 95; 11 L. T. 345; 34 L. J. C. P. 15 - - -	443
Inchiquin's (Lord) Case, (1891) 3 Ch. 28 - - -	719, 720

TABLE OF CASES.

IxiX

Inc—Jac	PAGE
Incorporated Council of Law Reporting, 22 Q. B. D. 279 - -	501
Inderwick v. Snell, 2 M. & G. 216; 2 H. & Tw. 412; 19 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 542; 14 Jur. 727 - - -	737
Indian Mechanical, &c. Co., (1891) 5 Ch. 538; 61 L. J. Ch. 31; 40 W. R. 184; W. N. (1891) 153 - - -	1311, 1312
Indian Zoedone Co., 28 C. D. 70 - - -	699, 701, 708, 746
Inglis v. John Buttery & Co., 3 App. Cas. 554 - - -	595
Inglis v. Robertson, (1898) A. C. 616; 67 L. J. P. C. 108; 79 L. T. 224—H. L. (Sc.) - - -	1206, 1207, 1212
Inland Revenue v. Forrest, 15 A. C. 334 - - -	104
Inland Revenue v. Müller & Co.'s Margarine, Limited, (1901) A. C. 217; 70 L. J. K. B. 677; 84 L. T. 729; 49 W. R. 603—H. L. (E.) - - -	340, 341, 342
Inman v. Ackroyd & Best, (1901) 1 K. B. 613; 84 L. T. 344; 70 L. J. K. B. 450; 49 W. R. 369 (C. A.); 82 L. T. 620 - -	725, 726, 727, 728
Innes & Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 254; 72 L. J. Ch. 643; 89 L. T. 142; 51 W. R. 514 (C. A.) - - -	62, 135
Inns of Court Hotel Co., 6 Eq. 82 - - -	749
International Cable Co., 66 L. T. 253 - - -	441, 636, 724, 725, 727
International Contract Co., W. N. (1869) 24; 17 W. R. 454; 20 L. T. 100 - - -	488, 507, 591
International Conversion Trust, W. N. (1892) 100 - - -	1283
International Society of Auctioneers, Baillie's Case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110; 77 L. T. 523; 46 W. R. 187 - - -	48
International Sponge Importers v. Watt, (1911) A. C. 279 (H. L. Sc.)—	1158
Ireland v. Hart, (1902) 2 Ch. 527; 71 L. J. Ch. 276; 86 L. T. 385; 50 W. R. 315 - - -	652, 666, 667
Iron Ship, &c. Co. v. Blunt, L. R. 3 C. P. 484; 16 W. R. 868; 37 L. J. C. P. 273 - - -	442, 654, 729, 730
Iron Shipbuilding Co., Re , 34 Beav. 597 - - -	1391
Irrigation Co. of France, Ex parte Fox, 6 Ch. 183 - - -	1439
Irvine v. Union Bank of Australia, 2 App. Cas. 366; 25 W. R. 692; 37 L. T. 176; 46 L. J. P. C. 87 - - -	37, 82, 686, 710, 711, 761
Isaac's Case, Re Anglo-Austrian Printing Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 158; 61 L. J. Ch. 481; 66 L. T. 593; 40 W. R. 518 (C. A.) - -	636, 723, 724
Isaacs v. Royal Insurance, L. R. 5 Ex. 396 - - -	718
Isaacs v. Towell, (1898) 2 Ch. 285; 67 L. J. Ch. 508; 78 L. T. 619 - -	353
Isle of Wight Rail. v. Tahourdin, 25 C. D. 320; 32 W. R. 297; 50 L. T. 132; 53 L. J. Ch. 353 - - -	601, 692, 694, 736
Islington and General Electric Supply, W. N. (1892) 81 - 1123, 1261, 1265
Issue Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 226; 71 L. T. 667; 43 W. R. 267 - - -	720
Ixion Tyre Co. v. Spilsbury, (1898) 2 Ch. 484 - - -	381

J.

J. & J. Cash v. Cash, 86 L. T. 211 - - -	460
Jackson & Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 348; 68 L. J. Ch. 190; 79 L. T. 662; 6 Mans. 125 - - -	617, 1422
Jackson's Case, 16 W. R. 894 - - -	197
Jackson v. Dickinson, (1903) 1 Ch. 947; 72 L. J. Ch. 761; 88 L. T. 507 - - -	786, 1403

	PAGE
Jac-Joh
Jackson and Haden's Contract, (1903) 1 Ch. 603; 74 L. J. K. B. 359; 92 L. T. 591; 53 W. R. 428; (1906) 1 Ch. 412	352
Jackson v. Turquand, L. R. 4 H. L. 303	80, 192
Jacobs, Ex parte , 10 Ch. 211	1247
Jacobs v. Crédit Lyonnais, 12 Q. B. D. 599	343, 344
Jacobs v. Morris, (1901) 1 Ch. 261; 70 L. J. Ch. 183; 84 L. T. 112; 49 W. R. 365; 86 L. T. 275; (1902) 1 Ch. 861	1157, 1158
Jacobs v. Revell, (1900) 2 Ch. 858; 69 L. J. Ch. 879; 49 W. R. 109	351
Jacoby v. Whitmore, 49 L. T. 335; 32 W. R. 18; 48 J. P. 325	345, 357
Jaegen, &c. Co. v. Vallen, 77 L. T. 180	778, 1051
Jamaica Rail. Co. v. Colonial Bank, (1903) 1 Ch. 677; 74 L. J. Ch. 410; 92 L. T. 548; 53 W. R. 564 (C. A.)	1341
James Colmer, Limited, (1897) 1 Ch. 524; 66 L. J. Ch. 326; 76 L. T. 323; 45 W. R. 343	639, 1102, 1118
James v. Buena Ventura, &c. Syndicate, (1896) 1 Ch. 456; 65 L. J. Ch. 284; 74 L. T. 1; 44 W. R. 372	684
James v. Eve, L. R. 6 H. L. 335	278, 718, 871, 1485
James v. Institute of Chartered Accountants, 98 L. T. 225; 24 T. L. R. 27	362, 780
James v. May, L. R. 6 H. L. 328	787
James v. Smith, 1 Ha. 43	1051
James Wingate & Co. v. Commissioners, W. N. (1898) 129	102
Jamieson v. Jamieson, 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 193	450
Jarrah Timber and Wood Paving Corporation, (1904) A. C. 323	1239
Jay v. Budd, (1898) 1 Q. B. 12; 66 L. J. Q. B. 863; 77 L. T. 335; 46 W. R. 34 (C. A.)	1341
Jay, Ex parte , Re Harrison, 14 C. D. 19; 28 W. R. 449; 42 L. T. 600	679
Jeffreyes v. Agra, &c. Bank, 2 Eq. 674	1195
Jenkins v. Price, (1907) 2 Ch. 229; S. C., (1908) 1 Ch. 10 (C. A.); 23 T. L. R. 608; 24 T. L. R. 70	355
Jenner's Case, 7 C. D. 132; 26 W. R. 291; 37 L. T. 807; 47 L. J. Ch. 201	719
Jenner Institute of Preventive Medicine v. St. George's Assessment Committee, 69 L. J. Q. B. 814; 83 L. T. 344; 16 T. L. R. 444	109, 1081
Jennings v. Broughton, 5 D. M. & G. 126; 17 Reav. 234; 1 W. R. 441; 22 L. J. Ch. 585	194, 201
Jennings v. Hammond, 9 Q. B. D. 225; 31 W. R. 40; 51 L. J. Q. B. 493	110
Jennings v. Jennings, (1898) 1 Ch. 378; 67 L. J. Ch. 190; 77 L. T. 786; 46 W. R. 344	357
Jersey (Earl of) v. Guardians of Neath Poor, 22 Q. B. D. 555	470, 602, 603
Jervis v. Wolferstan, 18 Eq. 18	679
Jewan v. Whitworth, 2 Eq. 692	1212
Jewish Colonization Trust, (1908) 2 Ch. 287; 99 L. T. 243; 24 T. L. R. 595	1312
Johannesburg Hotel Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 119	68, 147
Johannesburg Mining and General Syndicate, W. N. (1901) 46	1337
John Brinsmead & Sons v. T. E. Brinsmead & Sons, Ltd., 13 T. L. R. 3; (1897) 1 Ch. 49, 406; 66 L. J. Ch. 290; 76 L. T. 100; 4 Mans. 70 (C. A.)	451
John Brown & Co. v. Rotherham Union, 83 L. T. 193; 64 J. P. 580	109
John Crossley & Sons, Re , W. N. (1892) 35	1083

TABLE OF CASES.

lxxi

Joh—Kel

PAGE

John Morley Building Co. v. Barnes, (1891) 2 Ch. 386; 60 L. J. Ch. 496; 64 L. T. 856; 39 W. R. 619	-	-	-	696, 717, 742
Johns v. Balfour, 5 T. L. R. 389	-	-	-	467
Johnson & Co. (J. C.), (1902) 2 Ch. 101 (C. A.)	-	-	-	617, 1192, 1423, 1424
Johnson v. Crédit Lyonnais Co., 3 C. P. D. 32	-	-	-	1208
Johnson v. Lyttle's Iron Agency, 5 C. D. 687; 25 W. R. 548; 36 L. T. 528; 46 L. J. Ch. 766	-	-	-	634, 655, 658, 659, 660, 745
Johnson v. Renton, 9 Eq. 181; 18 W. R. 284; 22 L. T. 90; 39 L. J. Ch. 390	-	-	-	1140
Johnston Foreign Patents Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 234; 73 L. J. Ch. 617; 91 L. T. 124; 33 W. R. 189 (C. A.)	-	-	-	43, 467, 686, 687
Johnston v. Toronto Gas Consumers' Co., (1898) A. C. 447; 67 L. J. P. C. 33; 78 L. T. 270 (P. C.)	-	-	-	176
Joint Stock Dis. Co. v. Brown, 8 Eq. 381; 17 W. R. 1037; 20 L. T. 692, 844; 3 Eq. 150	-	-	-	456, 466, 471, 507, 508, 712, 716, 753, 759, 789, 1403
Jones v. Cwmorthen Slate Co., 5 Ex. Div. 93	-	-	-	103
Jones v. Gordon, 2 App. Cas. 616	-	-	-	1210, 1211
Jones v. Heavens, 4 C. D. 636; 25 W. R. 460	-	-	-	358
Jones v. Pacaya Rubber Co., (1911) 1 K. B. 455	-	-	-	198, 658
Jones v. Peppercorne, Johns. 430; 28 L. J. Ch. 150	-	-	-	1194
Jones v. St. Dunstan Overseers, 95 L. T. 787; 23 T. L. R. 13; 5 L. G. R. 147	-	-	-	109
Jones v. Scottish Accident Insurance Co. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 421	-	-	-	86
Jones v. Vancouver Land Co., (1910) A. C. 317	-	-	-	659, 660
Jones v. Victoria Graving Dock Co., 2 Q. B. D. 314; 25 W. R. 348; 36 L. T. 144; 46 L. J. Q. B. 219	-	-	-	336, 441, 1184
Jonmenjoy v. Watson, 9 App. Cas. 561	-	-	-	1157
Joplin Brewery, (1902) 1 Ch. 79; 50 W. R. 75	-	-	-	617, 1423, 1424
Jordan v. Money, 5 H. L. C. 352	-	-	-	188
Joseph Hargreaves, Limited, (1900) 2 Ch. 347	-	-	-	104

K.

Kaltenbach v. Lewis, 10 App. Cas. 617	-	-	-	1212
Karberg's Case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1; 66 L. T. 184	-	-	-	184, 185, 186, 191, 197, 201, 242, 268, 289
Kaye v. Croydon Tramways, (1898) 1 Ch. 358; 67 L. J. Ch. 222; 78 L. T. 237; 46 W. R. 403 (C. A.)	-	-	-	694, 696, 732, 1048, 1449, 1486
Keatinge v. Paringa Consolidated Mines, W. N. (1902) 15	-	-	-	282
Keeton v. Sheffield Coal Co., (1901) 1 Q. B. 26; 70 L. J. K. B. 374; 84 L. T. 387; 49 W. R. 349; 65 J. P. 341	-	-	-	199
Keighley, Maxted & Co. v. Durant, (1901) A. C. 240	-	-	-	741
Kellock v. Enthoven, L. R. 9 Q. B. 241; 22 W. R. 322; 43 L. J. Q. B. 90	-	-	-	668
Kelly's Directories v. Gavin, (1901) 2 Ch. 763	-	-	-	1378
Kelly v. Larking, (1910) 2 L. R. 550	-	-	-	366
Kelner v. Baxter, L. R. 2 C. P. 174; 15 W. R. 278; 15 L. T. 313; 36 L. J. C. P. 94	-	-	-	147, 322, 326, 327

Kem—Kno	PAGE
Kemble v. Farren, 6 Bing. 1	359
Kemp v. Baerselman, (1906) 2 K. B. 604; 75 L. J. K. B. 873	1460
Kemp v. Falk, 7 App. Cas. 565	1207
Kemp v. Walbrook, 1 Ves. 279	1195
Kent's Case, 39 C. D. 259; 57 L. J. Ch. 977; 36 W. R. 818; 59 L. T. 449; 19 Meg. 69	391, 657
Ker v. Coal Exploration Co. v. Martin, 16 T. L. R. 486	1349
Kent Coalfields Syndicate, (1898) 3 Q. B. 754; 14 T. L. R. 77; 67 L. J. Q. B. 500; 78 L. T. 443; 46 W. R. 453; 5 Mans. 88 (C. A.)	71, 688, 772
Kent Outcrop Coal Co., W. N. (1912) 26 [see Addenda]	689
Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588; 3 Ch. 493; 17 L. T. 77	17, 190, 191, 193, 197, 199, 200, 281
Kepitigalla Rubber Estates v. National Bank of India, 25 T. L. R. 402	759
Kerly, Re, (1901) 1 Ch. 467; 70 L. J. Ch. 189; 83 L. T. 699; 40 W. R. 211 (C. A.)	1361
Kerr v. Jones, 1 Dow. 538	718
Key & Son, Ltd., (1902) 1 Ch. 467; 71 L. J. Ch. 254; 86 L. T. 374; 50 W. R. 234	70, 680, 1139
Keynham Blue Lias Co. v. Barker, 2 H. & C. 729, 733	87
Kharaskhoma Syndicate, (1897) 2 Ch. 451; 66 L. J. Ch. 675; 77 L. T. 82; 46 W. R. 37	66
Kimberley Co., Re, 58 L. T. 305	669
Kimberley North Block Diamond Mining Co., W. N. (1888) 126; 59 L. T. 579 (C. A.)	1390
King v. Howell, 27 T. L. R. 114	1160
King, The v. De Berenger and others	234
Kingdon v. Kirk, 37 C. D. 141	1340
Kingsbury Collieries, (1907) 2 Ch. 259; 96 L. T. 829; 23 T. L. R. 497	457, 467, 474
Kingston, Ex parte, 6 Ch. 632	1192, 1195
Kingston, Miller & Co. v. Thomas Kingston & Co., (1912) 1 Ch. 576. See Addenda.
Kingston Cotton Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 284; 65 L. J. Ch. 673; 74 L. T. 568; 3 Mans. 171	775, 776, 777, 864
Kinnaird (Lord) v. Saltoun (Lady) (1816), 1 Madd. 227	1158
Kinnaird v. Webster, 10 C. D. 139	1191
Kintrea, Ex parte, 5 Ch. 95; 18 W. R. 197; 21 L. T. 688; 39 L. J. Ch. 193	196, 1389
Kirby's Case, 46 L. T. 682	68
Kirby v. Duke of Marlborough, 2 M. & S. 18	1190, 1246
Kirby v. Hunslet, (1906) A. C. 43	106
Kirk v. Bell, 16 Q. B. 290	740
Knight's Case, 2 Ch. 321; 15 W. R. 294; 15 L. T. 546; 36 L. J. Ch. 317	659
Knight v. Bulkeley, 38 L. T. 7; 3 Jur. N. S. 817; Storey on Agency, 2, 475	705
Knight, Re, (1893) 1 Ch. 257; 67 L. J. Ch. 136; 77 L. T. 773; 46 W. R. 289 (C. A.)	680, 745
Knowles v. McAdam, 3 Ex. D. 23; 47 L. J. Ex. 139; 37 L. T. 795; 26 W. R. 114	881

TABLE OF CASES.

lxxiii

Kno—Lan

PAGE

Knowles v. Scott, (1891) 1 Ch. 717; 60 L. J. Ch. 284; 64 L. T. 135; 39 W. R. 523	-	-	-	111
Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137	-	-	188, 192, 195, 203, 205
Kodak, Ltd. v. Clark, (1903) 1 K. B. 505; 72 L. J. K. B. 369; 88 L. T. 155; 51 W. R. 459 (C. A.)	-	-	-	96, 97
Koffyfontein Mines v. Moseley, (1911) A. C. 409	-	-	-	1104
Kruse v. Johnson, (1898) 2 Q. B. 91; 67 L. J. Q. B. 782; 78 L. T. 647; 46 W. R. 630; 62 J. P. 469; 19 Cox, C. C. 103	-	-	-	735
Kyshe v. Alturas, 36 W. R. 496	-	-	-	1405

L.

La Bourgoigne, (1899) A. C. 431; 68 L. J. P. 104; 80 L. T. 845; 8 Asp. M. C. 530; (1899) 1 P. 1-	-	-	-	1341
La Compagnie de Mayville v. Whitley, (1896) 1 Ch. 788; 65 L. J. Ch. 729; 74 L. T. 441; 44 W. R. 568	-	-	741, 1356, 1361
La Société, &c. Panhard v. Panhard, &c., (1901) 2 Ch. 513; 50 W. R. 75	-	-	-	1413
Labouchere v. Dawson, 13 Eq. 322; 20 W. R. 309; 25 L. T. 894; 41 L. J. Ch. 427	-	-	-	357
Lacon v. Allen, 3 Drew. 579	-	-	-	1185
L. L. Syndicate, Ltd., W. N. (1900) 164	-	-	-	1392
Ladies' Dress Association v. Pulbrook, (1900) 2 Q. B. 376; 69 L. J. Q. B. 705; 49 W. R. 8; 7 Mans. 465 (C. A.)	-	-	-	25, 661, 1285
Lady Forrest (Murchison) Gold Mine, (1901) 1 Ch. 582; 84 L. T. 560	-	-	-	134, 138, 140
Ladywell Mining Co. v. Brookes, 35 C. D. 400; 35 W. R. 785; 56 L. T. 677; 56 L. J. Ch. 684	-	-	-	132, 133, 137
Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Nitrate Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392; 68 L. J. Ch. 699; 81 L. T. 334; 48 W. R. 74 (C. A.)	-	-	-	37, 123, 127, 134, 136, 142, 144, 145, 150, 160, 184, 192, 211, 713, 839
Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Schroeder (1901) 17 T. L. R. 625; 85 L. T. 22	-	-	-	765, 767
Laing v. Overseers of Bishopwearmouth, 3 Q. B. D. 299	-	-	-	106, 107
Lake View Extended Gold Co., W. N. (1900) 44	-	-	-	1462
Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218	-	-	-	442
Lamb v. Great Northern Rail. Co., (1891) 2 Q. B. 281; 60 L. J. Q. B. 489; 65 L. T. 225; 39 W. R. 475; 56 J. P. 22	-	-	-	1020
Lamb v. Sambas Rubber, (1908) 1 Ch. 845; 98 L. T. 633; 77 L. J. Ch. 386	-	-	-	198, 658
Lambert v. Northern, &c. Co., 18 W. R. 180	-	-	-	725, 737
Lamson, &c. Co., Re, (1895) 2 Ch. 726; 64 L. J. Ch. 777; 73 L. T. 311; 44 W. R. 42	-	-	-	1288, 1290
Lamson Pneumatic Tube Co. v. Phillips, W. N. (1904) 134; 91 L. T. 363	-	-	-	357
Lancashire Banking Co., W. N. (1897) 3	-	-	-	1311, 1315
Lancashire Insurance Co. v. Inland Revenue; Vulcan Boiler v. Same, (1899) 1 Q. B. 353; 68 L. J. Q. B. 143; 70 L. T. 731; 47 W. R. 396; 63 J. P. 21	-	-	-	524
Lancashire Plate Glass, 105 L. T. 570	-	-	-	1331
Lancashire Telephone Co. v. Overseers, 14 Q. B. D. 267	-	-	-	108

	PAGE
Lan-Lee
Lancaster, Ex parte , 3 C. D. 911; 23 W. R. 669; 36 L. T. 674; 40 L. J. Bank. 90 -	703, 708
Lancaster Banking Co., W. N. (1897) 3; 75 L. T. 647 -	1311, 1315, 1328
Land Credit Co. of Ireland, Re , 4 Ch. 469; 17 W. R. 689; 20 L. T. 641; 39 L. J. Ch. 389 -	79, 334, 510, 739, 741, 761
Land Credit Co. of Ireland v. Lord Fermoy (1870), 5 Ch. 722 -	203, 465, 714, 788, 1402
Land Credit Co. v. Markwell, 21 W. R. 35 -	679
Lander and Walford's Contract, W. N. (1900) 183 -	353
Lands Allotment Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 616; 63 L. J. Ch. 291; 70 L. T. 286; 42 W. R. 404; 1 Mans. 107; 7 R. 115 -	141, 456, 712, 746, 863, 872, 1402
Lane's Case, 1 D. J. & S. 509 -	745
Langer's Case, 37 L. J. Ch. 202; 18 L. T. 67; W. N. (1868) 8 -	668
Lanston Monotype v. Anderson, (1911) 2 K. B. 15 -	101
Larocque v. Beauchemin, (1897) A. C. 358 -	66 L. J. P. C. 59; 76 L. T. 473; 45 W. R. 639 -
68, 69, 135, 391, -	485
Last v. London Assurance Co., 10 App. Cas. 438 -	101
Latham v. Chartered Bank, 17 Eq. 205 -	1247
Laughlan v. Miller, 6 F. 413 -	715
Laughton v. Bishop of Sodor and Man, 4 P. C. 495 -	697
Laurie v. Scholesfield, L. R. 4 C. P. 622 -	1246
Law Car and General Insurance Co., 55 S. J. 407 -	616, 617
Law Courts Chambers Co., 61 L. T. 669 -	1448
Law Guarantee Society v. Bank of England, 24 Q. B. D. 408; 62 L. T. 496; 38 W. R. 493; 54 J. P. 592 -	672
Law v. Local Board of Redditch, (1892) 1 Q. B. 127; 61 L. J. Q. B. 172; 66 L. T. 76; 56 J. P. 292 (C. A.) -	359
Law's Case, 1 De G. M. & G. 430 -	692
Lawrence's Case, 2 Ch. 412; 16 L. T. 222; 36 L. J. Ch. 490 -	72, 242, 258
Lawrence & Bullen, Ltd., W. N. (1901) 158 -	1283
Lawrence v. Wynn, 5 M. & W. 355 -	656
Laxon & Co., Re (No. 2), (1892) 3 Ch. 555; 61 L. J. Ch. 667; 67 L. T. 85; 40 W. R. 621 -	25, 26, 46, 483
Laythorpe v. Bryant, 3 Scott, 250 -	1180
Leach v. Jay, 9 C. D. 45 -	595
Leatham v. Craig, 2 Ir. R. 667 -	445
Lee v. Alexander (1883), 8 App. Cas. 853 (H. L., Sc.) -	595
Lee v. Butler, (1893) 2 Q. B. 318 -	1212
Lee v. Gaskell, 1 Q. B. D. 709 -	343
Lee v. Haley, 5 Ch. 161; 18 W. R. 242; 22 L. T. 251; 39 L. J. Ch. 284 -	451, 452
Lee v. Jones, 14 C. B. N. S. 386 -	1197
Lee v. Neuchatel Co., 41 C. D. 1; 57 L. J. Ch. 622; 58 L. T. 553; 58 L. J. Ch. 408; 37 W. R. 321 -	766, 840, 862, 863, 865, 866, 867, 871, 874, 876, 880, 884, 889, 890, 892, 893, 894, 895, 897, 898, 901, 903
Leeds Banking Co., Ex parte Barrett, 2 Dr. & Sm. 415; 3 D. J. & S. 30; 34 L. J. Ch. 558 -	50
Leeds Banking Co., Matthewman's Case, 3 Eq. 781 -	45
Leeds Estate Building Society v. Shepherd, 36 C. D. 787; 57 L. J. Ch. 46; 57 L. T. 684; 36 W. R. 322 -	712, 723, 743, 766, 776, 777, 862, 891, 898, 904, 906, 1356

TABLE OF CASES.

LXXV

Lee-Liv		PAGE
Leeds and Hanley Theatre of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 800	- 122, 124, 131, 134, 137, 138, 139, 141, 144, 732
Leeds and Hanley Theatre of Varieties v. Broadbent, W. N. (1897) 175; W. N. (1898) 1; (1898) 1 Ch. 343; 77 L. T. 665; 46 W. R. 230	- - - - -	1225
Leeke's Case (1870), 11 Eq. 100; 6 Ch. 400	- - - - -	50
Lees Brook Spinning Co., Is re , (1906) 2 Ch. 394; 95 L. T. 54; 54 W. R. 563	- - - - -	1257, 1305
Leese v. Martin, 17 Eq. 224	- - - - -	1194
Legal and General Investment Co., W. N. (1901) 72	- - - - -	1391, 1424
Leicester Club Co., Re , 30 C. D. 629; 55 L. J. Ch. 206; 34 W. R. 14; 33 L. T. 340	- - - - -	725
Leitch's Case, Re British and Foreign Cork Co., 1 Eq. 231; 13 L. T. 267; 14 W. R. 22	- - - - -	467
Leith Council v. Leith Harbour Commissioners, (1899) A. C. 308	- - - - -	512
Leith, Hull, &c. Co. v. Musgrave, W. N. (1900) 210; 1 Fraser, 1117	- - - - -	100
Leroux v. Brown (1852), 12 C. B. 801	- - - - -	335
Lester v. Foxcroft, 1 Coll. P. C. 108; 1 Wh. & Tu. L. C. Eq. 768	- - - - -	1185
Letheby v. Christopher, Limited (Jones' Case), (1904) 1 Ch. 815; 73 L. J. Ch. 509; 90 L. T. 774; 52 W. R. 460	- - - - -	669, 671
Lever's Case, W. N. (1878) 203	- - - - -	483
Lever Bros. v. Beddingfield, 80 L. T. 100	- - - - -	450
Lever v. Koffler, (1901) 1 Ch. 543	- - - - -	337
Levi v. Ayres, 3 App. Cas. 852	- - - - -	668
Levita's Case, L. R. 3 Ch. 36; 17 L. T. 337; 16 W. R. 95	- - - - -	48
Levita's (G. H.) Case, L. R. 5 Ch. 489	- - - - -	48, 51
Levy v. Walker, 10 C. Div. 436; 27 W. R. 370; 39 L. T. 654	- - - - -	450, 453
Lewis, Re , 6 Ch. 818; 19 W. R. 791; 24 L. T. 787; 40 L. J. Ch. 429	- - - - -	662, 664
Lewis v. Nicholson, 18 Q. B. 503	- - - - -	595
Leyland and Taylor's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 625; 69 L. J. Ch. 764; 83 L. T. 380; 49 W. R. 17 (C. A.)	- - - - -
Liberian Government Concessions, 9 T. L. R. 136	- - - - -	192, 196
Licensed Victuallers' Association, Re , 42 C. D. 1; 58 L. J. Ch. 467; 60 L. T. 684; 37 W. R. 674; 1 Meg. 180	- - - - -	275, 278, 298
Life and Health Assur. Assoc., (1910) 1 Ch. 458	- - - - -	520
Limmer Asphalt Co. v. Commrs. of L. R., L. R. 7 Ex. 211	- - - - -	381
Limpus v. London General Omnibus Co., 1 H. & C. 526; 39 L. J. Ex. 34	- - - - -	36, 41
Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Hurd, L. R. 5 P. C. 221	- - - - -	138
Lindus v. Malrose, 3 H. & N. 177	- - - - -	711
Lion Insurance Co. v. Tucker, 12 Q. B. D. 276	- - - - -	476
Liquidators of Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189	- - - - -	142
Lister & Co. v. Stubbs, 45 C. D. 1	- - - - -	141
Liverpool, &c. Co. v. Houghton, 23 W. R. 93	- - - - -	780
Liverpool Corporation v. Birkenhead Union, 94 L. T. 509; 4 L. G. R. 273	- - - - -	108
Liverpool Corporation v. Ilanfyllin Amuse. Com., (1899) 2 Q. B. 14; 68 L. J. Q. B. 762; 80 L. T. 667; 63 J. P. 452 (C. A.)	- - - - -	108
Liverpool Guarantee Co., 30 W. R. 378; 46 L. T. 54	- - - - -	657
Liverpool Household Stores, 62 L. T. 876; 59 L. J. Ch. 616; 1 Meg. 83	- - - - -	646, 697, 739, 743, 789

Liv—Lon	PAGE
Liverpool Household Stores v. Smith, 37 C. D. 170 - -	1411
Liverpool, London & Globe v. Bennett, (1912) 2 K. B. 41 - -	102
Llewellyn v. Brown, (1900) 1 Ch. 489; 69 L. J. Ch. 234; 82 L. T. 83; 49 W. R. 461; 64 J. P. 327 - - -	680
Lloyd's Estate, (1911) 1 Ir. R. 153 (C. A.) - - -	1194
Lloyd's v. Harper, 16 C. D. 290, 309 - - -	1248
Lloyd v. Lloyd (1837), 2 My. & Cr. 192 - - -	397
Llynvi, Tondlo, &c. Co., 20 W. R. 55; 37 L. T. 373 - 1119, 1123, 1258
Lock v. Queensland Investment Co., (1896) A. C. 461; 65 L. J. Ch. 798; 75 L. T. 3; 45 W. R. 65 - - -	453, 593, 603, 657, 871
Lock v. Wrigley, 9 Q. B. D. 397 - - -	1200
Lockett v. Lagunas Nitrate Co., The Times, 27 Mar. 1900 - -	443
Lockhart v. Moldacott, 3 T. L. R. 307 - - -	745
Lockwood v. Hop Bitters Co., 3 T. R. 698 - - -	469
Lothwick v. Earl of Perth, 1 T. L. R. 76 - - -	191
Logan, Ex parte , 9 Eq. 149 - 18 W. R. 273; 21 L. T. 742 - -	442
Logan v. Bank of Scotland, (1904) 2 K. B. 495; 73 L. J. K. B. 191; 91 L. T. 252; reversed by H. L., 21 Dec. 1905 - - -	1140
Logan v. Courtown (Earl), 13 Beauv. 22; 20 L. J. Ch. 347 - - -	1196
Logan (Thomas) Ltd., v. Davis, 104 L. T. 914 - - -	736, 1117
London and Brighton Rail. v. Fairclough, 2 M. & G. 674 - -	949
London and Caledonian Co. (1879), 11 C. D. 140; 27 W. R. 710; 40 L. T. 686 - - -	111, 140
London and Canadian Loan, &c. Co. v. Duggan, (1893) A. C. 506; 63 L. J. P. C. 14; 1 R. 413 (P. C.) - - -	670
London and City Land and Building Co., W. N. (1885) 137 - -	1270
London and Colonial Finance Corporation, 77 L. T. 146; 13 T. L. R. 576 (C. A.) - - -	588, 467
London and County Banking Co. v. Goddard, (1897) 1 Ch. 642; 66 L. J. Ch. 261; 76 L. T. 277; 45 W. R. 310 - - -	1217
London and County Banking Co. v. Lewis, 21 C. D. 490 - -	1190
London and County Banking Co. v. Radcliffe, 6 A. C. 722 - -	1191
London County Council v. Attorney-General, (1901) A. C. 26; 70 L. J. Q. B. 77; 83 L. T. 605; 49 W. R. 686; 65 J. P. 227 (H. L., E.) - - -	88, 92, 101, 102
London and Eastern Counties, &c. Co. v. Cressway, W. N. (1897) 48 -	346
London and Edinburgh Shipping Co. (1909), H. C. 1 Ct. of Sess. -	1313
London and General Bank (No. 1) (auditor an. officer), (1895) 2 Ch. 166, 673; 63 L. J. Ch. 853; 43 W. R. 481; 72 L. T. 811 - -	714
London and General Bank (No. 2), (1895) 2 Ch. 673; 64 L. J. Ch. 866; 73 L. T. 304; 44 W. R. 80; 2 Mans. 555; 12 R. 520 (C. A.) - - -	863, 872, 898, 906
London and General Bank (No. 3), (1895) 2 Ch. 673 - - -	775, 777
London and Globe Finance Corp., (1903) 1 Ch. 728; 88 L. T. 194; 51 W. R. 651 - - -	873, 1401
London and India Docks v. Poplar Union, 83 L. T. 371 - -	106, 108
London and Mashonaland Co. v. New Mashonaland Co., W. N. (1891) 165 - - -	734
London and Mercantile Discount Co., Re , 1 Eq. 277; 14 W. R. 219; 13 J. T. 665 - - -	703
London and Midland Bank v. Mitchell, (1899) 2 Ch. 161; 68 L. J. Ch. 368; 81 L. T. 263; 47 W. R. 602 - - -	1186, 1187, 1194

Lon—Lon		PAGE
London and New York Investment Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 860	- 37, 711, 1259
London and Northern Bank, Ex parte Jones, (1900) 1 Ch. 220	- 69
1 L. J. Ch. 24; 61 L. T. 312; 7 Mans. 60	- 48, 32, 257, 780
London and North-Western Rail. Co. v. Prico, 11 Q. B. D. 485	- 468
London and Provincial Co., Re , 5 C. D. 525; 55 L. T. 670	- 46, 201, 485
London and Provincial Law Assurance Society v. London and Provincial, &c. Co., 17 L. J. Ch. 37	- - - - 432
London and Southern Counties Land Co., 31 C. D. 223; 34 W. R.
163; 34 L. T. 44; 53 L. J. Ch. 224	- - - - 717
London and Southwark to London and Lancashire, 28 W. R. 565;
42 L. T. 247	- - - - 1380
London and Staffordshire Co., 24 C. D. 149; 31 W. R. 781; 48 L. T.
955; 53 L. J. Ch. 78	- - - - 189, 101, 195, 245, 1389
London and Westminster Bank v. Smith, 65 J. P. 613; 87 L. T.
224; 67 J. P. 229	- - - - 105
London and Westminster Bread Co., Re , W. N. (1890) 3; 59 L. J.
Ch. 165; 62 L. T. 224; 38 W. R. 377; 2 Meg. 30	- 1443, 1474
London and Yorkshire Bank v. Cooper, 15 Q. B. D. 7	- 1363
London Assurance Corporation v. The London and Westminster
Assurance Corporation, Limited, 9 Jur. N. S. 843	- - - - 432
London Bank of Mexico v. Apporpe, (1891) 2 Q. B. 378; 60 L. J.
Q. B. 633; 65 L. T. 601; 39 W. R. 564 (C. A.)	- - - - 96
London Chartered Bank v. White, 4 App. Cas. 422 (J. C.)	- 1194
London County Council v. Att.-Gen., (1902) A. C. 165	464, 465, 466
London County Council v. Churchwardens of Erith, (1893) A. C.
362; 42 W. R. 330; 57 J. P. 821; 6 R., Feb. 1st (H. L.)	- 108
London, &c. Electric Lighting Co., 35 L. T. 670	- - - - 197
London Financial Assoc. v. Kelk, 26 C. D. 107; 50 L. T. 492; 53
L. J. Ch. 1025	- - - - 42, 468, 507, 778
London Founders' Association v. Clarke, 20 Q. B. D. 576	- - - - 666
London Freehold, &c. Co. v. Suffield, (1897) 2 Ch. 608; 66 L. J.
Q. B. 790; 77 L. T. 443; 46 W. R. 102	- - - - 83, 84
London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, (1901) 1 Ch. 135	- - - - 453
London India Rubber Co., 5 Eq. 519; 16 W. R. 334; 17 L. T. 530;
37 L. J. Ch. 235	- - - - 577, 784, 816, 843
London Joint Stock Bank v. Simmons, (1892) A. C. 201	- 1142, 1187, 1210, 1211
London Marine Association, Re , 8 Eq. 176; 20 L. T. 943; 17 W. R.
784	- - - - 110
London (Mayor of) and Tubbs' Contract, (1894) 2 Ch. 621; 62 L. J.
Ch. 580; 70 L. T. 719	- - - - 354
London, Paris, &c. Association, Re , 13 T. L. R. 569	- - - - 275
London Printing Alliance v. Cox, (1891) 3 Ch. 291	- - - - 381
London Steamboat Co., 31 W. R. 781; W. N. (1883) 123	- 1284, 1308
London and S. W. Canal, (1911) 1 Ch. 341 - 168, 392, 670, 715, 722, 1402
London United Tramways v. Brentford Union, 96 L. T. 528; 5
L. G. R. 682	- - - - 108
Long v. Andrews, 25 T. L. R. 93	- - - - 357
Longdale, Re , (1901) 1 Ch. 3	- - - - 667
Longman v. Bath Electric Tramways, (1905) 1 Ch. 646; 74 L. J.
Ch. 424; 92 L. T. 743; 53 W. R. 480 (C. A.)	- - - - 676

	PAGE
Lop—Lys
Lopez v. Chavarri, W. N. (1901) 115	80, 1341
Lord Belhaven's Case, 3 D. J. & S. 41	756
Lord Claude Hamilton's Case, 8 Ch. 548	689
Lord de Clifford, Re , (1900) 2 Ch. 707; 83 L. T. 100; 69 L. J. Ch. 828	715, 1402
Lord Elphinstone v. Monkland Co., 11 A. C. 332	1447
Lord Inchiquin's Case, (1891) 3 Ch. 28; 64 L. T. 841; 39 W. R. 610	719, 720
Lord Kinaird v. Lady Saltoun (1816), 1 Madd. 227	1158
Lord Lurgan's Case, (1902) 1 Ch. 707	47, 58
Lord Wallcourt's Case, W. N. (1900) 189; 7 Mans. 235	658
Loring v. Davis, 32 C. D. 625	666, 668
Lorraine's Case, 2 Ch. 27	52
Los's Case, 12 L. T. 690; 34 L. J. Ch. 609; 11 Jur. N. S. 661; 13 W. R. 883	1444
Louis v. John, 9 Sim. 360	1216
Louis v. Smellie, W. N. (1895) 115	442
Louisiana and Southern States, &c. Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 532	1262, 1271, 1276, 1277
Lovell and Christmas v. Wall, (1908) A. C. 46; 104 L. T. 85	103, 119, 358
Lowenfield, Ex parte , 70 L. T. 3	783, 785
Lowndes v. Earl Stamford (1852), 18 Q. B. 425	727
Lubbock v. British Bank of South America, (1892) 2 Ch. 198; 61 L. J. Ch. 498; 67 L. T. 74; 41 W. R. 103	386, 765, 863, 865, 868, 870, 869, 880, 1411
Lucas, Re , 17 Jur. 1186	705
Lucas v. Beach, 1 Man. & Gr. 417; 4 Jur. 631	149
Lucas v. Dorrien, 7 Taunt. 278	1194
Lucas v. Fitzgerald (1903), 20 T. L. R. 16	767, 868
Lucky Guss, Limited, 70 L. T. 722	1422
Lumley v. Gye, 2 E. & B. 216	444
Lumley v. Wagner, 1 D. M. & G. 604	441
Lumsden's Case, 4 Ch. 34	57
Lundy Granite Co., Harvey Lewis's Case, 26 L. T. 673	992
Lurgan's Case (Lord), (1902) 1 Ch. 707	483, 484
Lydney and Wigpool, &c. Co. v. Bird, 33 C. D. 85; 34 W. R. 749; 35 L. T. 538; 55 L. J. Ch. 875	123, 126, 133, 139, 277, 283, 469, 1416
Lynde v. Anglo-Italian Hemp, &c. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 178; 65 L. J. Ch. 96; 73 L. T. 502	185
Lyon's Case, 35 Beav. 646	192
Lysaght, Re , Lysaght v. Lysaght, (1898) 1 Ch. 115; 67 L. J. Ch. 65; 77 L. T. 637 (C. A.)	768, 911
Lyster's Case, 4 Eq. 233; 15 W. R. 1007; 16 L. T. 824; 36 L. J. Ch. 616	740, 743

M.

Mac Mad	PAGE
Macdonald v. Law Union Insurance Co. (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 328; 22 W. R. 530; 30 L. T. 545; 43 L. J. Q. B. 131 -	651, 664
Macdonald, Sons & Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 80; 63 L. J. Q. B. 193; 69 L. T. 567; 1 Manson. 319; 7 R. 322 (C. A.) -	42
MacDougall v. Gardiner, 1 C. D. 13; 24 W. R. 118; 45 L. J. Ch. 27 - 29, 33, 74, 632, 633, 640, 691, 702, 1357, 1358, 1359, 1406
MacDowall's Case, 32 C. D. 366 - - - - -	444
Macduff v. Macduff, (1896) 2 Ch. 451 - - - - -	496
Macfarlane v. Dumbarton Steamboats Co., 36 Sc. L. R. 771 -	357
Mack's Claim, W. N. (1900) 114 - - - - -	730
Mackay, Re, (1911) 1 Ch. 300 - - - - -	715
Mackay v. Commercial Bank, 5 P. C. 394; 22 W. R. 473; 30 L. T. 180; 43 L. J. P. C. 31 -	41
Mackley's Case, 1 C. D. 247; 45 L. J. Ch. 158; 33 L. T. 400; 24 W. R. 92 - - - - -	47
Macleay v. Tait, Calthorpe v. Trechman, (1906) A. C. 24; 94 L. T. 68; 54 W. R. 365 - 174, 177, 178, 194, 205, 214, 227, 229, 230, 232
MacLure, Ex parte, 5 Ch. 736; 39 L. J. Ch. 685; 23 L. T. 685; 18 W. R. 1122 - - - - -	364, 443
Macmurdo, Re, Penfield v. Macmurdo, W. N. (1892) 73 -	664
MacNee v. Gorst, 4 Eq. 315 - - - - -	1212
McCollin v. Gilpin, 5 Q. B. D. 390 - - - - -	711
McConnell's Case, (1901) 1 Ch. 728; 70 L. J. Ch. 251; 84 L. T. 557 - - - - -	725, 726, 730
McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 546; 72 L. J. Ch. 347; 88 L. T. 431; 51 W. R. 661 (C. A.) - 209, 211, 212, 214, 215, 220, 227, 229, 1350
McCullum, Re, (1901) 1 Ch. 143 - - - - -	206
McDougall v. Jersey Imperial Hotel Co., 2 H. & M. 528; 12 W. R. 1142; 10 L. T. 843; 34 L. J. Ch. 28 - - - - -	646, 857, 873, 1360
McEacharn v. Colton, (1902) A. C. 104; 71 L. J. P. C. 20; 85 L. T. 594 (P. C.) - - - - -	355
McGruther v. Pileher, (1904) 2 Ch. 306; 53 W. R. 138; 20 T. L. R. 652 - - - - -	358, 424
Melver's Case, 5 Ch. 424 - - - - -	817
McKay's Case (No. 1), 2 C. D. 1; 24 W. R. 490; 33 L. T. 517; 45 L. J. Ch. 148 - - - - -	139, 759, 1352
McKeown v. Boudard, Peveril Gear Co., 65 L. J. Ch. 735; 74 L. T. 712; 45 W. R. 152 - - - - -	186
McKeown v. Joint Stock Institute, Limited, (1899) 1 Ch. 671; 68 L. J. Ch. 390; 80 L. T. 641; 6 Mans. 338 - - - - -	43
McMahon, Re, Fuller v. McMahon, (1900) 1 Ch. 173; 69 L. J. Ch. 142; 81 L. T. 715; 7 Mans. 38 - - - - -	655
McMillan v. Le Roi Mining Co., (1906) 1 Ch. 331 - - - - -	701
McMullen v. Sir Alfred Hickman Steamship Co., 71 L. J. Ch. 760; 18 T. L. R. 650 - - - - -	338, 707, 708, 854
McNeill's Case, 10 Eq. 303 - 18 W. R. 1102, 1126; 23 L. T. 297; 39 L. J. Ch. 822 - - - - -	199
Middleover, Re, 27 C. D. 523 - - - - -	1354
Muddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 497; 52 L. J. Q. B. 737; 49 L. T. 305; 31 W. R. 820; 47 J. P. 821 - - - - -	187, 188, 1184, 1185

Mad—Mar	PAGE
Madras Irrigation Co., W. N. (1881) 120 - - -	1499
Madrid Bank Re, Ex parte Williams , 2 Eq. 216; 14 W. R. 706; 14 L. T. 456; 35 L. J. Ch. 474 - - -	646
Madrid Bank v. Pelly, 2 Eq. 216; 14 W. R. 706; 14 L. T. 456; 35 L. J. Ch. 474; 7 Eq. 442 - - -	838, 839
Magee, Re , 15 Q. B. D. 332 - - -	1158
Magnolia Metal Co.'s Trade Marks, (1897) 2 Ch. 371; 66 L. J. Ch. 598; 76 L. T. 672 - - -	346
Mahoney v. East Holyford Co., L. R. 7 H. L. 869; 33 L. T. 383 - 78, 79, 81, 83, 686, 710, 743, 752, 760, 761 - - -	1239
Mainland v. Upjohn, 41 C. D. 126 - - -	441
Mair v. Himalaya Tea Co., 1 Eq. 411; 14 W. R. 165; 13 L. T. 586; 11 Jur. 1013 - - -	495
Malam v. Hitchens, (1894) 3 Ch. 578; 63 L. J. Ch. 41; 69 L. T. 778; 58 J. P. 148; 17 Cox, C. C. 704; 13 R. Jan. 178 - 49, 788, 769
Malleon v. General Mineral Patent Syndicate, Limited, (1894) 3 Ch. 538; 63 L. J. Ch. 868; 71 L. T. 476; 43 W. R. 41; 13 R. Jan. 296 - - -	589, 630, 636, 1102
Malleon v. National Insurance Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 200; 63 L. J. Ch. 286; 70 L. T. 157; 42 W. R. 249; 1 Manson, 249; 8 R. 91 - - -	361
Malvern Urban District Council v. Malvern Link Gas Co., 83 L. T. 326 - - -	1448
Manchester and London Life Assurance Co., Re , 9 Eq. 649 - - -	1389
Manchester and Oldham Bank, W. N. (1885) 169; 54 L. J. Ch. 926 - - -	359
Manchester Brewery Co. v. Coombs, 16 T. L. R. 299; 82 L. T. 347; (1891) 2 Ch. 608 - - -	451
Manchester Brewery Co. v. North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co., (1899) A. C. 83 - - -	33
Manchester Corporation v. Williams, (1891) 1 Q. B. 94; 60 L. J. Q. B. 23; 63 L. T. 803; 39 W. R. 302; 54 J. P. 712 - - -	1211
Manchester Trust v. Furness, (1895) 2 Q. B. 539; 64 L. J. Q. B. 766; 73 L. T. 110; 44 W. R. 447 - - -	1247
Manchester Union Bank v. Beech, 34 L. J. Ex. 133 - - -	672
Mann's Case, 3 Ch. 459, n. - - -	278, 283
Mann v. Edinburgh Northern Tram. Co., (1893) A. C. 69; 62 L. J. P. C. 74; 68 L. T. 96; 57 J. P. 245; 1 R. 86 (H. L., &c.) - - -	1457, 1493
Manners v. St. David's, &c. Mines, (1904) 2 Ch. 503; 73 L. J. Ch. 764; 91 L. T. 277 - - -	149
Mant v. Smith, 4 H. & N. 324; 32 L. T. 319 - - -	105
Maple & Co. v. Wilson, 49 W. R. 670; 85 L. T. 229 - - -	514
March v. Martin [not reported] - - -	476
Maria Anna Co., 6 C. D. 447 - - -	500
Marine Mansions Co., 4 Eq. 601; 37 L. J. Ch. 113 - - -	520
Marine Mutual v. Young, 43 L. T. 443 - - -	669
Marino's Case, 2 Ch. 596 - - -	80
Markham and Butler's Case, (1899) 1 Ch. 414; 68 L. J. Ch. 215; 80 L. T. 202; 47 W. R. 509; 6 Mans. 84 - - -	1141
Marks v. Samuel, (1894) 2 K. B. 287; 90 L. T. 590; 53 W. R. 88 - - -	607
Marnor, Ltd. v. Alexander (1904), N. C. 78 (Ct. of Sess. - - -	725, 745
Marnham v. Weaver, 80 L. T. 412 - - -	207

Mar-Mag

PAGE

Marquis of Bute's Case (Cardiff Savings Bank), (1892) 2 Ch. 100; 61 L. J. Ch. 357; 66 L. T. 317; 44 W. R. 538 -	-	-	-	714
Marr v. Thompson, 86 T. T. 759 -	-	-	-	111
Marsden v. Samson, 28 W. R. 954 -	-	-	-	352
Marrett & Co., 7 Ch. 161 -	-	-	142, 710, 744, 778, 1051
Marshall & Salt's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 202; 69 L. J. Ch. 542 -	83	-	-
L. T. 147 - 48 W. R. 508 -	-	-	-	355
Marshall v. Glamorgan Iron and Coal Co., 7 Eq. 137 -	-	-	-	79
Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 36; 72 L. T. 542 -	-	-	-	366
Marshall's Limited v. Leak, 17 T. L. R. 26 -	-	-	-	357
Marshall's Valve Gear Co. v. Manning, Wardle & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 267 -	-	-	75, 737, 747, 1350, 1361
Marsland Granville, Re, 24 C. D. 17 -	-	-	-	350
Martin's Case, 2 H. & M. 669 -	-	-	-	1444
Martin v. Reid, 11 C. B. N. S. 730 -	-	-	-	1195
Martin v. Shuppiesser, 81 L. T. 147 -	-	-	-	603
Marzetti's Case, 28 W. R. 541; 42 L. T. 206; W. N. (1880) 50 -	150,	-	-
	715, 748, 789	-	-
Mason's Case, 30 W. R. 378 -	-	-	-	727
Mason, &c., (1896) 1 Ch. 57, 596 -	-	-	-	406
Mason v. Harris, 11 C. D. 97 -	-	-	640, 703, 1360
Mason v. Motor Traction Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 419; 74 L. J. Ch. 273; 92 L. T. 234 -	-	-	511, 1440, 1487
Masonic and General Life Co. v. Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. 154 -	-	-	-	712
Mathias v. Yetta, 46 L. T. 497 (C. A.) -	-	-	190, 104, 1347
Matthews v. Great Northern Rail. Co., 28 L. J. Ch. 375 -	-	-	-	813
Matthews v. Usher, 81 L. T. 542 -	-	-	-	355
Maude's Case, 6 Ch. 51; 19 W. R. 113; 23 L. T. 749; 40 L. J. Ch. 21 -	-	-	76, 650, 764, 783, 784
Maud v. Monmouthshire Canal Co., 4 M. & Gr. 452; 3 Ry. Cas. 159; Car. & M. 606; 2 D. N. S. 113; 5 Scott. N. R. 457 - 6 Jur. 932 -	-	-	-	37
Maxim Nordenfeldt v. Nordenfeldt, 1894; A. C. 595; 63 L. J. Ch. 908; 71 L. T. 489; 11 R. Jan. 1 (H. L.) -	-	-	-	379
Maxim Weston Co., W. N. (1888) 211 -	-	-	1270, 1272
Mayer's Limited, (1898) 1 Ch. 515; 67 L. J. Ch. 100 - 74 L. T. 150; 46 W. R. 346; 77 L. T. 150 -	-	-	-	1305
Maynard v. Consolidated Kent Collieries Corp., (1903) 2 K. B. 121; 72 L. J. K. B. 681; 88 L. T. 676; 52 W. R. 117 (C. A.) -	-	-	606, 670, 672
Mayor of Portsmouth v. Smith, 10 A. C. 304 -	-	-	-	603
Mayor of Salford v. Lever, (1891) 1 Q. B. 168 -	134, 141, 733, 1400	-	-
Mayor of the Staple v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160 -	33, 742	-	-
Mears v. Western Canada Pulp and Paper Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 355; 74 L. J. Ch. 581; 93 L. T. 150 (C. A.) -	-	-	15, 648
Messure Bros. v. Inland Revenue, 82 L. T. 680 -	-	-	-	343
Messure Bros., Ltd. v. Messure, (1910) 2 Ch. 248 -	442, 443, 739, 977	-	-
Mecca (The), (1897) A. C. 284 -	-	-	-	1191
Melrose's Trust, 26 Beav. 568 -	-	-	-	1191
Merge and Augier's Case, W. N. (1875) 209 -	-	-	-	6.

	PAGE
Meg—Mid
Meyrath v. Gray , L. R. 9 C. P. 216	1247
Melbourne Tramways Co. v. Fitzroy Corp. , (1901) A. C. 153	108
Melhado v. Hamilton , 29 L. T. N. S. 364; 21 W. R. 619	1108
Melhado v. Porto Alegre Rail. Co. , L. R. 9 C. P. 503; 23 W. R. 57; 31 L. T. 57; 43 L. J. C. P. 233	140, 633, 748
Mellor v. South Australian Land , (1907) 1 Ch. 72; 95 L. T. 724; 76 L. J. Ch. 44	655, 679
Melwood v. Thatcher (1892), 2 T. L. R. 81	442
Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Works , 9 Ch. 350; 22 W. R. 396; 30 L. T. 209; 43 L. J. Cl. 330	75, 389, 640, 703, 818, 1359, 1360
Mercantile, &c. Co. v. International Companies of Mexico , (1893) 1 Ch. 484	685
Mercantile Bank of Sydney v. Taylor , (1893) A. C. 317; 37 J. P. 741 (P. C.)	1245, 1247
Mercer v. Whall (1845), 5 Q. B. 447	442
Merchant Banking Co. of London v. Merchants', &c. Bank , 9 C. D. 560; 26 W. R. 847; 47 L. J. Ch. 828	450, 451, 452
Merchants' Banking Co. v. Phoenix Bessemer Steel Co. , 5 C. D. 216; 25 W. R. 467; 36 L. T. 395; 46 L. J. Ch. 418	42, 43, 1207
Merchants' Fire Office v. Armstrong , 17 L. T. R. 709; W. N. (1901) 163	714, 725
Merchiston Steamship Co. v. Turner , (1910) 2 K. B. 923	102
Meredith, Re , 67 L. J. Ch. 409; 78 L. T. 492	768
Merryweather v. Moore , (1892) 2 Ch. 518; 61 L. J. Ch. 505; 66 L. T. 719; 46 W. R. 840	442
Mersey Docks Board v. Birkenhead Assessment Com. , (1901) A. C. 1775	106
Mersey Docks v. Gibbs , L. R. 1 H. L. 93; 14 W. R. 872; 11 L. T. 677; 12 Jur. 571	37, 42
Mersey Docks v. Lucas , 8 App. Cas. 891	98, 103
Mervana and Adams Co., Re , 5 T. L. R. 680; 1 Meg. 341	465, 871
Metcalf's Case , 13 C. Div. 915; 49 L. J. Ch. 347; 42 L. T. 178; 28 W. R. 435	139, 140, 714, 1352
Metropolitan Asylums Board v. Kingham , 6 T. L. R. 217	741
Metropolitan, &c. Bank, Ex parte Davis , 16 W. R. 608	771
Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron , 5 Ex. Div. 310; 29 W. R. 370; 43 L. T. 676	42, 141, 144, 724
Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Association v. Seringecour , (1895) 2 Q. B. 604; 65 L. J. Q. B. 22	278, 284, 466, 469
Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Co., Wainwright's Case , W. N. (1890) 3	1393
Metropolitan Electric Supply v. Ginder , (1901) 2 Ch. 799; 84 L. T. 819; 49 W. R. 508	441
Metropolitan Electric Tramways v. Tottenham Urban District , 28 T. L. R. 234	108
Metropolitan Saloon v. Hawkins , 4 H. & N. 90	33
Michael v. Hart & Co. , (1901) 2 K. B. 867	1351
Midland Banking Co. v. Chambers , 4 Ch. 398	1268
Midland Coal, &c. Co. , (1895) 1 Ch. 267, n.; 74 L. T. 744	1496, 1498
Midland Counties District v. Attwood , (1905) 1 Ch. 357; 74 L. J. Ch. 286; 92 L. T. 360	443, 444
Midland Rail. Co. v. Att.-Gen. , (1902) A. C. 171; 71 L. J. K. B. 315; 86 L. T. 206; 80 W. R. 433 (H. L. E.)	467

Mig-Mor	PAGE
Migotti's Case, 4 Eq. 236; 36 L. J. Ch. 531; 16 L. T. 271; 15 W. R.
731 - - - - -	46, 464
Milan Tramway Co., Limited, 25 C. D. 587; 32 W. R. 601; 50 L. T.
545; 53 L. J. Ch. 1008 - - - - -	140
Miles, Ex parte , 1 De G. 623 - - - - -	1248
Miles v. New Zealand, &c. Co., 32 C. D. 263; 55 L. J. Ch. 801;
34 L. T. 582; 34 W. R. 669 - - - - -	651, 1182
Mills v. Fowkes, 5 Bing. N. C. 455 - - - - -	1190
Milman v. The Northern Railway of Buenos Ayres, 5 Ch. 621; 19 W. R.
171; 23 L. T. 719 - - - - -	858, 873
Milman v. Thatcher, 2 T. B. 81 - - - - -	594, 729
Miln v. Arizona Copper Co., 36 S. L. R. 741 - - - - -	813
Milnes v. Gery, 14 Ves. 400 - - - - -	349
Mineral Water Bottle Exchange and Trade Protection Society v.
Booth, 36 C. D. 465 (C. A.) - - - - -	116
Mining Shares Investment Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 660; 62 L. J. Ch. 434;
68 L. T. 578; 41 W. R. 376; 3 R. 480 - - - - -	1265, 1314
Missouri Steamship Co., 42 C. D. 321 - - - - -	344
Mitchell's Case (Alex.), 4 App. Cas. 567 - - - - -	666
Mitchell v. Reynolds, 1 Sm. L. C. 430 - - - - -	357
Moenich v. Fenestre, 67 L. T. 708 - - - - -	357
Moffat v. Farquhar, 7 C. D. 591; 26 W. R. 522; 39 L. T. 18; 47
L. J. Ch. 355 - - - - -	666
Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, Gow & Co., (1892) A. C. 25 - 114, 117
Molineaux v. London, &c. Insurance Co., (1902) 2 K. B. 589; 71
L. J. K. B. 848; 87 L. T. 324; 51 W. R. 36 (C. A.) - - - - -	720, 721, 723, 724, 730
Molyneux v. Hawtrey, (1903) 2 K. B. 487; 72 L. J. K. B. 873; 89
L. T. 350; 52 W. R. 23 (C. A.) - - - - -	351, 355
Molyneux v. Richard, (1906) 1 Ch. 34; 93 L. T. 698; 54 W. R. 177 -	355
Money Penny v. Money Penny, 9 H. L. C. 146 - - - - -	594
Monro v. Taylor, 8 Ha. 51 - - - - -	595
Montaignac v. Shitta, 15 App. Cas. 357 - - - - -	1159
Montefiore v. Guedalla, (1901) 1 Ch. 435 - - - - -	769
Montgomery v. Liebenenthal, (1898) 1 Q. B. 487; 78 L. T. 406
(C. A.) - - - - -	362, 782
Montreal Lithographing Co. v. Sabiston, (1899) A. C. 610; 68 L. J.
C. P. 121; 81 L. T. 135 (A. C.) - - - - -	451, 453
Moore Bros. & Co., Re , Bartholomew's Case, 79 L. T. 70 - - - - -	188, 189
Moore v. Explosives Co., 56 L. J. Ch. 235 - - - - -	192
Moore v. North West Bank, (1891) 2 Ch. 599; 60 L. J. Ch. 627; 64
L. T. 450; 40 W. R. 93 - - - - -	652
Moore v. Voughton, Stark. 487 - - - - -	1193
Morley, Carney & Co., Ltd. and Reduced, 53 L. T. 736 - - - - -	1308
Morgan's Brewery Co. v. Crosskill, (1902) 1 Ch. 698; 71 L. J. Ch.
585 - - - - -	604
Morgan v. Lond. Gen. Omnibus Co., 13 Q. B. D. 832 (C. A.) - - - - -	1021
Morison v. Thompson, L. R. 9 Q. B. 480; 22 W. R. 859; 30 L. T.
869; 43 L. J. Q. B. 215 - - - - -	733

Mor—Mut	PAGE
Morrell v. Oxford Portland Cement Co., 26 T. L. R. 682	- 724, 725, 726
Morris v. Morris, W. N. (1877) 6	- - - 1361
Morrison, Re , Morrison v. Morrison, (1901) 1 Ch. 701; 70 L. J. Ch. 399; 84 L. T. 363; 49 W. R. 441; 8 Mans. 210	- 950, 1002
Morrison v. Trustees, &c. Corporation, 68 L. J. Ch. 11; 79 L. T. 605	- - - 860
Mortgage Insurance Corporation v. Canadian Agricultural, &c. Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 377	- - - 1354
Morton v. Copeland, 16 C. B. 535	- - - 1047
Morvah Consols, &c. Co., 2 Ch. Div. 1; 24 W. R. 490; 33 L. T. 517; 45 L. J. Ch. 148	- - - 733
Moseley v. Cressy's London Co., 1 Eq. 405; 14 W. R. 246	- - 16
Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines (1), (1904) 2 Ch. 108; 73 L. J. Ch. 569; 91 L. T. 266; 33 W. R. 140	- 60, 63, 464, 465, 466, 478, 723
Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines Co. (2), (1911) A. C. 409	- - 683
Moss, Ex parte , 3 De G. & Sm. 599	- - - 1186
Moss, Re , (1905) 2 K. B. 307; 74 L. J. K. B. 764; 92 L. T. 777; 53 W. R. 558	- - - 1250
Mouatt, Re , (1899) 1 Ch. 831; 80 L. T. 406; 47 W. R. 506	- - 1354
Mouffet v. Cole, L. R. 8 Ex. 32; 21 W. R. 175; 27 L. T. 678; 42 L. J. Ex. 8	- - - 358
Mount Morgan, 56 L. T. 622	- - - 191, 200
Mountstephen v. Lakeman, L. R. 5 Q. B. 613; 7 H. L. 17	- - 1248
Mowatt v. Castle Steel, &c. Co., 34 C. D. 58; 55 L. T. 645	- - 84
Moxham v. Grant, (1900) 1 Q. B. 88; 69 L. J. Q. B. 97; 7 Mans. 65 (1. A.)	- 712, 787, 864, 872, 1356
Mozley v. Alston, 1 Ph. 790; 16 L. J. Ch. 217; 11 Jur. 315; 4 Rail. Cas. 636	- 20, 74, 1357, 1358, 1359
Muir v. City of Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 337; 27 W. R. 603; 40 L. T. 339	- - - 652
Mullen v. L. C. C., 61 Sol. J. 82	- - - 1378
Muller & Co.'s Margarine v. Inland Revenue, (1900) 1 Q. B. 310; 69 L. J. Q. B. 291; 61 L. T. 667 (C. A.); (1901) A. C. 217	- 340
Mullett v. United French Polishers' Society, 91 L. T. 133; 20 T. L. R. 595	- - - 115
Municipal Freehold, &c. Co. v. Pollington, 69 L. J. Ch. 734; 63 L. T. 238; 2 Meg. 307	- 723, 760, 871, 872
Municipality of Picton v. Geldert, (1893) A. C. 324	- - 176
Munroe, Ex parte , 1 Q. B. D. 724	- - - 67
Munster v. Cammell Co., 21 C. D. 188; 40 W. R. 312; 47 L. T. 44; 51 L. J. Ch. 731	- 735, 737, 1357, 1406
Munt v. Shrewsbury and Chester Rail. Co., 13 Beav. 1	- 33, 457, 465
Muntz Metal Co., In re , 18 W. R. 1064	- - - 705
Mure, Ex parte , 2 Cox, 67	- - - 705
Murray v. Bush, 6 H. L. 53; 22 W. R. 280; 29 L. T. 217; 42 L. J. Ch. 586	- 670, 722, 744, 876
Murray v. Flavell, 25 C. Div. 89; 33 L. J. Ch. 185; 49 L. T. 690; 32 W. R. 102	- - - 149
Murray v. Scott, 9 App. Cas. 519	- 603, 1198, 1199
Mutoscope and Biograph Syndicate, (1899) 1 Ch. 890; 68 L. J. Ch. 417; 81 L. T. 22; 47 W. R. 520; 6 Mans. 298	- 755, 784
Mutter v. Eastern, &c. Co., 38 C. D. 92	- - - 688, 771
Mutton v. Pent, (1900) 2 Ch. 79; 82 L. T. 440; 48 W. R. 486	- 1192

TABLE OF CASES.

lxxxv

Mut—Nat	PAGE
Mutual Aid P. B. Building Soc., Re , 29 Ch. D. 182 -	1196
Mutual Loan Society v. Ludlow, 5 C. B. N. S. 449 -	1247
Mutual Reserve Fire v. New York Life, 75 L. T. 528 -	441
Mycock v. Beatson, 13 C. D. 385; 28 W. R. 319; 42 L. T. 141; 40 L. J. Ch. 127 -	1400
Myers v. Saril, 3 El. & El. 306 -	396
Mylam v. Market Harborough Advertising Co., (1903) 1 K. B. 708 -	104
Mysore West Gold Mining Co., Re , 42 C. D. 535; 58 L. J. Ch. 731; 61 L. T. 453; 37 W. R. 794; 1 Meg. 347 -	1444

N.

Nant-y-Glo and Blaenau Iron Works v. Grave, 12 C. D. 738; 26 W. R. 504; 38 L. T. 345 -	124, 139, 142, 716, 1352, 1401
Nash v. Galthorpe, (1905) 2 Ch. 237; reversed by H. L., 15 Dec., 1905 -	177, 205, 214, 227
Nassau Phosphate Co., 2 C. D. 210 -	483
Nassau Steam Press v. Tyler, 70 L. T. 376; 1 Mans. 459; 10 R. 382 -	510
Natal Land, &c. Co. v. Pauline Syndicate, (1904) A. C. 120; 73 L. J. P. C. 22; 89 L. T. 678 (P. C.) -	147, 322, 323, 370
National Arms Co., W. N. (1897) 31 -	1290
National Bank of China, Times, Feb. 14, 1905 -	1120
National Bank of Wales, (1899) 2 Ch. 629; (1897) 1 Ch. 298; 66 L. J. Ch. 222; 76 L. T. 1; 45 W. R. 401 -	662, 668, 713, 766, 864, 872, 874, 879, 884, 889, 897
National, &c. Bank v. Games, 31 C. D. 382 -	1216, 1217
National Boiler Insurance Co., (1892) 1 Ch. 306; 61 L. J. Ch. 501; 65 L. T. 849 -	1311
National Coffee Palace, Re , 24 C. D. 367; 32 W. R. 236; 50 L. T. 38; 53 L. J. Ch. 57 -	258, 741
National Debenture Corporation, Re , (1891) 2 Ch. 505; 60 L. J. Ch. 533; 64 L. T. 512; 30 W. R. 707 -	25
National Dwellings Soc., In re , 78 L. T. 144 -	1259
National Dwellings Society v. Sykes, (1894) 3 Ch. 139; 63 L. J. Ch. 906; 42 W. R. 696; 1 Mans. 457; W. N. (1894) 127; 8 R. 758 -	702
National Exchange Co. v. Drew, 2 Macq. 103; 25 L. T. 223 -	41, 772
National Funds Assurance Co., 10 C. D. 118; 27 W. R. 302; 39 L. T. 420; 48 L. J. Ch. 163 -	714, 766, 787, 869, 872
National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228; 99 L. T. 334; 77 L. J. Ch. 796 -	15, 18, 19, 139, 148, 149, 199, 268, 281, 322, 323, 361, 648, 748, 759, 839, 1072
National P. B. B. Society, Re , 5 Ch. 309 -	1198
National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, 27 T. L. R. 239 -	346
National Phonograph Co. v. Edison Bell Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 335; 98 L. T. 291; 24 T. L. R. 261 -	358, 424, 444
National Provincial Bank and Marsh, (1895) 1 Ch. 190 -	350
National Provincial Bank, Ex parte , Re Ross, 17 C. D. 98 -	1248
National Provincial Bank, Ex parte , Re Sans, (1896) 2 Q. B. 12; 65 L. J. Q. B. 481; 74 L. T. 383; 44 W. R. 366; 3 Mans. 125 -	1248
National Provincial Bank v. Marshall, W. N. (1892) 34; 40 C. D. 112 -	369

Mat - New	PAGE
National Society for Distribution, &c. v. Gibbs, (1900) 2 Ch. 290	- 379
National Sporting Club v. Cope, 48 W. R. 446	- 587
National Standard Life Insurance Co., 27 T. L. R. 271	- 1440, 1441
National Telephone Co. v. I. R. Commissioners, (1899) 1 Q. B. 250	- 381
81 L. T. 546; 47 W. R. 247	- 381
National Trustees of Australasia v. General Finance Co., (1905) A. C.	- 715, 1402
373; 92 L. T. 736; 54 W. R. 1	- 715, 1402
Navulshaw v. Brownrigg, 2 De G. M. & G. 449	- 1208, 1210
Neale v. Birmingham Tramways Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 464	- 1119, 1258
Neath Building Soc. v. Luce, 43 C. D. 158	- 1200
Neath Harbour Works, 35 W. R. 827	- 715
Neill's Case, 15 W. R. 894	- 198
Neilson v. Betts, L. R. 5 H. L. 1	- 381
Nell v. Atlanta, &c. Co., 11 T. L. R. 407	- 724
Nelson v. Anglo-American Land Mortgage Agency Co., (1897) 1 Ch.	- 688, 771
130; 66 L. J. Ch. 112; 75 L. T. 482; 45 W. R. 171	- 688, 771
Nelson & Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 551; 74 L. J. Ch. 290; 92 L. T. 404;	- 520, 1332
53 W. R. 361; 22 T. L. R. 406	- 520, 1332
Nelson & Co. v. Board of Trade, 49 W. R. 590; 84 L. T. 365	- 520
Nelson Mitchell v. City of Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 624	- 686
Nettleship, Ex parte , 2 M. D. & De G. 124	- 1186
Nevil v. Fine Arts Insurance Co., Limited, (1895) 2 Q. B. 40; 72	- 38, 546
L. T. 525	- 38, 546
New, Re, Re Leavers, Re Morley , (1901) 2 Ch. 534	- 950
New Balkis Eereteling v. Randt Gold Mining Co., (1904) A. C. 468;	- 660, 661, 665
73 L. J. K. B. 301; 90 L. T. 494; 32 W. R. 561	- 660, 661, 665
New Brunswick v. Muggersidge, 1 Dr. & Sm. 383	- 57
New Brunswick Rail. Co. v. Conybeare, 9 H. L. C. 711; 10 W. R.	- 41, 187, 192, 240, 772
305; 6 L. T. 109; 31 L. J. Ch. 297	- 41, 187, 192, 240, 772
New Chile Co., 45 C. D. 598; 63 L. T. 344; 39 W. R. 59	- 659, 660, 662, 665
New 'berhardt Co., 43 C. D. 118; 38 W. R. 97	- 67
New Fenix Compagnie v. General Accident Corp., (1911) 2 K. B.	- 1417
619	- 1417
New Flagstaff Co., Re , W. N. (1889) 123	- 1445, 1451, 1464
New London and Brazilian Bank v. Brocklebank, 21 C. D. 302; 30	- 651, 662, 665, 949
W. R. 422; 47 L. T. 3; 51 L. J. Ch. 711	- 651, 662, 665, 949
New Oriental Bank Co., 41 W. R. 16	- 906
New Quebrada Co., Pontifex's Case, 15 W. R. 955; Pemberton	- 1270, 1393
659; W. N. (1888) 233	- 1270, 1393
New River Co. v. Hertford Union, (1901) 2 K. B. 620; 70 L. J. K. B.	- 108
740; 85 L. T. 132; 49 W. R. 619; (1902) 2 K. B. 397	- 108
New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. D. 73; 3 App. Cas.	- 125, 139, 142, 143, 207,
1218; 25 W. R. 436; 27 W. R. 65; 36 L. T. 222; 39 L. T. 269;	- 220, 240, 241, 742, 1351, 1396
46 L. J. Ch. 425; 48 L. J. Ch. 79	- 125, 139, 142, 143, 207,
220, 240, 241, 742, 1351, 1396	- 220, 240, 241, 742, 1351, 1396
New Transvaal Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 750	- 785
New University Club, 18 Q. B. D. 720	- 104
New Westminster Brewery Co., 56 S. J. 111	- 1312
New York Breweries Co. v. Attorney-General, (1899) A. C. 62; 68	- 42, 678
L. J. Q. B. 135; 79 L. T. 568; 48 W. R. 32; 63 J. P. 179	- 42, 678
(H. L., E.)	- 42, 678
New York Security and Trust Co. v. Keyser, (1901) 1 Ch. 686	- 680

TABLE OF CASES.

lxxxvii

	PAGE
New - Nor
New York v. Styles, 14 App. Cas. 361	101
New Zealand Gold Extraction Co., (1894) 1 Q. B. 622	781
New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622; 63 L. J. Q. B. 227; 70 L. T. 110; 9 R. 609 (C. A.)	373, 457, 511, 603, 655, 677, 1439, 1454, 1456
New Zealand Joint Stock, 23 T. L. R. 238	1448
New Zealand Loan Co. v. Morrison, (1898) A. C. 349; 77 L. T. 603; 46 W. R. 239	1497, 1504
New Zealand Shipping Co. v. Stephens, 24 C. L. L. 172	95
New Zealand Trust and Loan Co., Re , (1893) 1 Ch. 403; 62 L. J. Ch. 262; 68 L. T. 593; 41 W. R. 457; 2 N. 151	668
Newbiggin Gas Co. v. Armstrong, 13 C. L. L. 316	1361
Newby v. Van Oppen, L. R. 7 Q. B. 705	1341
Newhaven Local Board v. Newhaven School Board, 30 C. D. 363	111, 744
Newling v. Dobell, 19 L. T. 408; 38 L. J. Ch. 111	358
Newman, Re , Ex parte Brooke, 3 C. D. 494	207, 222
Newman (George) & Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 685; 64 L. J. Ch. 407; 72 L. T. 697; 43 W. R. 483	639
Newman v. Oughton, (1911) 1 K. B. 792	526
Newton v. Birmingham Small Arms Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 378	755
Nicholl v. Everhardt, 61 L. T. 489	1498
Nichols and Van Joel's Contract, (1910) 1 Ch. 43	350
Nicholson v. Consolidated Kent Collieries, Times, 19th Apr. 1905	511
Nicholson v. Rhodesia Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 434; 66 L. J. Ch. 251; 76 L. T. 147	765
Nicol's Case (1), 3 De G. & J. 387	192, 195, 200, 204, 710
Nicol's Case (2), 29 C. D. 421; 52 L. T. 933	42, 45, 46, 47, 49, 57, 484, 667
Nidd v. General Union of Operative Carpenters, 103 L. T. 45	113
Niger Merchants v. Capper, 18 C. D. 557, n.; 25 W. R. 305	1411
Nisbet and Pott's Contract, Re , (1895) 1 Ch. 591	350, 351
Nitro-Phosphate Co., W. N. (1893) 41	1311
Nixon's Navigation Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 872; 66 L. J. Ch. 466	1123, 1237, 1262
Nizam Rail. Co. v. Wyatt, 24 Q. B. D. 548	100, 101
Noakes v. Rico, (1902) A. C. 24; 71 L. J. Ch. 139; 86 L. T. 62, 50 W. R. 305 (H. L., E.)	1239
Nobel Dynamite Trust Co. v. Wyatt, (1893) 2 C. L. L. 499	96, 97
Nobel's Explosive Co. v. Jones, 8 App. Cas. 5; 31 W. R. 368; 19 L. T. 490; 52 L. J. Ch. 339	361
Nordenfeldt (Maxim) v. Nordenfeldt, (1894) A. C. 535; 63 L. J. Ch. 908; 71 L. T. 489; 11 R. Jan. 1 (H. L.)	357
Norman, Re , W. N. (1900) 159	1362
Norman v. Mitchell, 19 Beav. 278; 5 De G. M. & G. 648; 2 W. R. 247, 685	655, 1366, 1406
Normandy v. Ind, Goupe & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84; 97 L. T. 872; 24 T. L. R. 57	29, 75, 694, 724, 726, 732, 1360, 1449, 1486
North Brazilian Sugar Factories Co., 37 C. Div. 87; 56 L. T. 229; W. N. (1887) 3	772, 1465
North British, &c. Co. v. Lloyd, 10 Ex. 523	1196, 1197
North British Rail. Co. v. Tod, 12 Cl. & Fin. 722	506

For—Ogi	PAGE
North Central Waggon Co. v. Manchester, &c. Rail. Co., 14 A. C. 544 - - - - -	616
North Charterland Co., 13 T. L. R. 80 - - - - -	290
North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co. v. Manchester Brewery Co., (1899) A. C. 63; 68 L. J. Ch. 74; 70 L. T. 645 (H. L. E.) - - - - -	452, 453
North of England Steamship Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 45; 74 L. J. Ch. 404; 93 L. T. 1; 83 W. R. 499 (C. A.) - - - - -	696, 1049, 1091, 1093
North of England Iron Steamship Insurance Assoc., (1900) 1 Ch. 481; 69 L. J. Ch. 211; 82 L. T. 596; 48 W. R. 604; 7 Mans. 364 - - - - -	1311, 1312, 1314
North Sydney Investment and Tramway Co. v. Higgins, (1899) A. C. 263; 69 L. J. P. C. 42; 80 L. T. 303; 47 W. R. 481; 6 Mans. 321 (P. C.) - - - - -	68, 69, 147, 322, 323
North v. Percival, (1896) 2 Ch. 128; 67 L. J. Ch. 321; 78 L. T. 615; 46 W. R. 552 - - - - -	334
Northern Assurance Co. v. Inland Revenue, 20 Sc. L. R. 330 - - -	99
Northern Counties Bank, 31 W. R. 546 - - - - -	873, 1401
Northampton Coal, &c. Co. v. Midland Wagon Co., 7 C. D. 500; 26 W. R. 485; 38 L. T. 82 - - - - -	1416
Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., Re, 33 C. D. 16; 54 L. T. 777 - 147, 322, 327, 328, 370, 644
North-West Argentine Rail. Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 882; 70 L. J. Ch. 9; 49 W. R. 134 - - - - -	1442, 1443, 1512
North-West Transportation Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 589; 56 L. J. P. C. 102; 37 L. T. 426; 36 W. R. 647 - - - - -	20, 703, 734
North-Western, &c. Co., Re, 3rd ed. of this work, p. 603 - - -	1493
Norwich Equitable, Re, 57 L. T. 241 - - - - -	468
Norwich Union Fire v. Magee, 44 W. R. 384; 3 Tax. Cas. 457 - - -	102
Norwich Yarn Co., 22 Beav. 143 - - - - -	787
Nottingham Brewery Co., 4 T. L. R. 429 - - - - -	1262, 1395
Nowell v. Nowell, 7 Eq. 538 - - - - -	688
Nutley and Finn, Re, W. N. (1894) 64 - - - - -	346
Nye v. Macdonald, 3 P. C. 331 - - - - -	1159

(i).

Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 65; 48 L. T. 337 - - - 76, 77, 78, 79, 504, 597, 598, 599, 602, 764, 784, 1046
Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325; 16 L. T. 808; 36 L. J. Ch. 949 - - - 17, 18, 25, 28, 54, 72, 76, 197, 198, 199, 200, 245, 1398
Ocean Queen Steamship Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 666; 63 L. J. Ch. 193; 68 L. T. 828; 41 W. R. 573; 3 R. 625 - - - - -	1265, 1298
Odeessa Trams Co. v. Mendel, 8 C. D. 246; 26 W. R. 887; 38 L. T. 731; 47 L. J. Ch. 505 - - - - -	57, 655, 1350
Odeessa Waterworks, W. N. (1897) 166; (1901) 2 Ch. 190, n. - - -	755, 785
Ogdens, Limited v. Nelson, and also v. Telford, (1905) A. C. 109 (H. L. E.); 74 L. J. K. B. 433; 92 L. T. 478; 53 W. R. 497 - - -	443
Offord v. Davies, 12 C. B. N. S. 748 - - - - -	1197
Ogilvie v. Currie, 37 L. J. Ch. 541 - - - - -	197

Og—Owe	PAGE
Ogilvie v. Inland Revenue, (1906) 8. C. 1003, Ct. of Sess. -	95
Oldershaw v. King, 2 H. & N. 399, 517 -	1181, 1182
Oliver v. Bank of England, (1901) 1 Ch. 652; 84 L. T. 233; 49 W. R. 391 -	333, 687, 710, 711, 1139
Olympia, Limited, 78 L. T. 150; 14 T. L. R. 236; (1898) 2 Ch. 181 -	122, 145, 239, 302
Oman v. Homan, 4 H. L. C. 907 -	1197
Omnium Investment Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 127 -	1276, 1322
One and All Sickness Assoc., 25 T. L. R. 674 -	111
Onslow's Case, 57 L. J. Ch. 338 -	719
Oreogum Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125; 61 L. J. Ch. 337; 66 L. T. 427; 41 W. R. 90 (H. L.) -	58, 60, 61, 63, 277, 458, 463, 478
Oppenheimer, Re, (1907) 1 Ch. 399; 96 L. T. 631; 76 L. J. Ch. 287 -	767, 768
Oppenheimer v. Attenborough, (1906) 1 K. B. 221; 98 L. T. 94; 24 T. L. R. 115 -	1206, 1210
Oppenheimer v. British and Foreign Co., 6 C. D. 744 -	1447
Oppenheimer v. Frazer, (1907) 2 K. B. 50; 97 L. T. 3; 23 T. L. R. 410 -	1209, 1210
Oregon Mortgage Co., (1910) 8. C. 961, Ct. of Sess. -	1103
Oriental Bank Corporation, 28 C. D. 643; 52 L. T. 170, 172; 54 L. J. Ch. 327 -	1158
Oriental Financial Corp. v. Overend, Gurney & Co., L. R. 7 Ch. 142; L. R. 7 H. L. 348; 25 L. T. N. S. 813; 41 L. J. Ch. 332 -	1247
Oriental Inland Steam Co. v. Briggs, 2 J. & H. 625; 4 De G. F. & J. 191; 31 L. J. Ch. 241; 10 W. R. 125 -	57, 1350
Oriental Telephone Co., W. N. (1891) 153 -	1311
Orleans Motor Co., (1911) 2 Ch. 41 -	616, 1183
Ormerod's Case (Harvey's Oyster Co.), (1894) 2 Ch. 475; 63 L. J. Ch. 578; 70 L. T. 795; 42 W. R. 701; 1 Mans. 153; 8 R. 715 -	57, 289, 294
Ornamental Woodwork Co. v. Brown, 2 H. & C. 63; 11 W. R. 600; 9 Jur. N. S. 579; 8 L. T. 506; 32 L. J. Ex. 190 -	646
Orrett, Ex parte, 3 M. & A. 153 -	1186
Ortigosa v. Brown, 38 L. T. 845 -	698
Orton v. Cleveland Firebrick Co., 3 H. & C. 858; 13 W. R. 869; 11 Jur. N. S. 531 -	724
Osborne v. Amalgamated Soc. of Railway Servants, (1911) 1 Ch. 540 -	113
Osgood v. Nelson, L. R. 5 H. L. 636 -	737
Otto Electric Manufacturing Co., Jenkins Case, (1906) 2 Ch. 390; 95 L. T. 141; 54 W. R. 601 -	23, 324, 329, 332
Ottoman Bank v. Farley, 17 W. R. 761 -	733
Ottom Kopje Diamond Mines, Re, (1893) 1 Ch. 619; 62 L. J. Ch. 196; 68 L. T. 138; 41 W. R. 288; 2 R. 257 (C. A.); Seton, 1918 -	652, 666, 667, 674, 1140, 1391
Outram v. London Evening Newspaper Co., 27 T. L. R. 231 -	452
Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480; 42 L. J. Ch. 67 -	144, 327, 506, 748, 1402
Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Gurney, 4 Ch. 701 -	811
Owen and Ashworth's Claim, (1900) 2 Ch. 272; 83 L. T. 165; 69 L. J. Ch. 412; reversed or affirmed in part in (1901) 1 Ch. 115; 83 L. T. 347; 49 W. R. 100 (C. A.) -	79, 240, 728, 730, 739, 740, 742, 760, 834

	PAGE
Owe—Pat
Owen v. Roberts, 57 L. T. 81	- 1200
Owner v. Hooper, 89 L. T. 130	- 1020
Oxford Building Society, Re , 35 C. D. 502; 56 L. J. Ch. 98; 55 L. T. 598; 35 W. R. 116	- 712, 725, 766, 861, 871, 898, 906
P.
Padstow Total Loss Assurance Association, 20 C. Div. 137; 30 W. R. 326; 45 L. T. 774; 51 L. J. Ch. 344	- 113, 111
Paige's Case, 15 W. R. 892	- 200
Paine v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308; 82 L. T. 44; 48 W. R. 325	- 381
Paine v. Meller, 6 Ves. 349	- 361
Palace Theatre Limited (Simpson v.), 69 L. T. 70	- 1407
Palmer v. Emerson, (1911) 1 Ch. 758	- 715
Palmer v. Johnson, 13 Q. B. D. 351	- 351
Palmer v. Mallett, 36 C. D. 411; 57 L. J. Ch. 226; 58 L. T. 64; 36 W. R. 460	- 358
Palmer v. Wick Steamshipping Co., (1894) A. C. 318; 71 L. T. 163; 6 R. 245	- 788
Panama Co., Limited, 5 Ch. 318; 18 W. R. 441; 22 L. T. 424; 39 L. J. Ch. 482	- 616
Panama and South Pacific Co. v. India Rubber Co., 10 Ch. 515 - 733, 1400	- 719
Pandora Theatre, 28 S. J. 238	- 112
Panes v. Att.-Gen., (1901) 1 Ch. 15	- 1141
Parbury's Case, (1896) 1 Ch. 100; 65 L. J. Ch. 104; 73 L. T. 506; 44 W. R. 107	- 1185
Parish v. Parish, 53 L. T. 37	- 1451
Park Gate Waggon Co., 17 C. D. 239	- 624, 690, 763
Park v. Lawton, (1911) 1 K. B. 588	- 624, 910, 959
Park v. Royalties Syndicate, (1912) 1 K. B. 330	- 1290
Parker, Ex parte , 2 Ch. 685; 15 W. R. 1217	- 1190
Parker v. Guinness, 27 T. L. R. 120	- 733
Parker v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1035; 21 W. R. 928; 29 L. T. 199	- 733
Parker v. McKenna, 10 Ch. App. 118; 23 W. R. 271; 31 L. T. 739; 44 L. J. Ch. 425	- 138, 712, 715, 732, 1160, 1400
Parker v. Smith, 16 East, 382	- 1158
Parnaby v. Lancaster Canal, 11 Ad. & E. 223	- 37
Parr's Banking Co. v. Yates, (1898) 2 Q. B. 460; 67 L. J. Q. B. 851; 47 W. R. 42	- 1192, 1198, 1246
Parrott, 64 L. T. 801	- 705
Parson's Case, 8 Eq. 656; 39 L. J. Ch. 64	- 672
Parsons, Re , (1893) 2 Q. B. 122	- 1423
Parsons v. Surgey, 4 Post. & Fin. N. P. 247	- 697
Partick, &c. Gas Co. v. Taylor, 18 C. of S. Cas. 1017 (Sc.)	- 755
Patent File Co., Re , 6 Ch. 83; 40 L. J. Ch. 190; 19 W. R. 193	- 457, 467, 472, 473, 509, 686, 687, 746, 761, 1188
Patent Invert Sugar Co., Re , 31 C. Div. 166; 55 L. J. Ch. 924; 53 L. T. 698; 34 W. R. 169	- 1103, 1264
Patent Ventilating Co., Re , 12 C. D. 254; 27 W. R. 836; 41 L. T. 82; 48 L. J. Ch. 728	- 1298, 1299

Pau—Pen	PAGE
Paul Boyer, Limited v. Edwards, 7 T. L. R. 16 - - -	290
Pavilion (Newcastle-upon-Tyne), W. N. (1911) 235 - - -	781
Pawle's Case, 4 Ch. 497; 17 W. R. 599; 20 L. T. 589; 38 L. J. Ch. 412 - - -	198, 199
Paxton v. Baird, (1893) 1 Q. B. 139; 62 L. J. Q. B. 176; 67 L. T. 623; 41 W. R. 88; 5 R. 129 - - -	1342
Paxton & Co. v. Snelling, Lampard & Co., (1901) A. C. 30, 311 - - -	453
Payne (David) & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 608; 73 L. J. Ch. 849 (C. A.) - - -	686
Payne v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308 - 631, 686, 786, 1445, 1457, 1487
Peabody Mining Co., W. N. (1897) 170 - - -	583, 785
Peak Hill Goldfield, Ltd., Ex parte , In re A Debtor, (1909) 1 K. B. 430 - - -	1368
Pearce v. Foster, 17 Q. B. Div. 536; 55 L. J. Q. B. 306; 54 L. T. 664; 34 W. R. 602; 51 J. P. 213 - - -	442
Pearks, Gunston & Tee, Limited v. Thompson, Talmey & Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 185 - - -	453
Pearks, Gunston & Tee, Limited v. Ward, Times, 24 April, 1902: (1902) 2 K. B. 1; 87 L. T. 56 - - -	44
Pearl v. Deacon, 24 Beav. 186; 1 De G. & J. 461 - - -	1192
Pearson's Case, 4 C. D. 222; 5 C. D. 336; 25 W. R. 618; 46 L. J. Ch. 339 - - -	139, 714, 722, 733, 1352
Pearson v. Pearson, 27 C. Div. 145; 32 W. R. 1006; 51 L. T. 311; 54 L. J. Ch. 32 - - -	357
Pease v. Courtney, (1904) 2 Ch. 503; 91 L. T. 341; 53 W. R. 75 - - -	355
Peat v. Clayton, (1906) 1 Ch. 659; 94 L. T. 465; 54 W. R. 416 - - -	652
Pedlar v. Road Block Co., (1905) 2 Ch. 427 - - -	470, 601
Peek v. Derry, 37 C. Div. 541; 57 L. J. Ch. 347; 59 L. T. 78; 36 W. R. 899; 14 App. Cas. 337 - 20, 189, 195, 203, 205, 206, 207, 208, 210, 215, 229, 240, 1350
Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 401; 22 W. R. 29; 43 L. J. Ch. 19 - - -	142, 180, 185, 186, 188, 197, 203, 204
Peel's Case, 2 Ch. 674; 15 W. R. 1100; 16 L. T. 780; 36 L. J. Ch. 757 - - -	24, 25, 77, 196, 197, 239, 242, 471, 598
Peel v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., (1907) 1 Ch. 5; 95 L. T. 897; 23 T. L. R. 85 - - -	469, 705, 708, 855
Pegge v. Neath District Tramways Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 183; 46 W. R. 243 - - -	1240
Pell's Case, 5 Ch. 11; 39 L. J. Ch. 120; 21 L. T. 412; 18 W. R. 31 - - -	59, 60, 62, 331, 478, 485, 945
Pellatt's Case, 2 Ch. 527; 15 W. R. 726; 16 L. T. 442; 36 L. J. Ch. 613 - - -	51, 257
Pelly and Jacobs' Contract, 80 L. T. 45 - - -	354
Pelly's Case, 21 C. D. 4 - - -	712
Penarth Pontoon Co., W. N. (1911) 240 - - -	1095
Pender v. Lushington, 6 C. D. 70; 46 L. J. Ch. 317 - 633, 666, 701, 703, 704, 1356, 1357, 1360, 1361
Peninsula Co. v. Fleming, 27 L. T. N. S. 93 - - -	476
Peninsular and Oriental Co. v. Leslie, 82 L. T. 137; 79 L. T. 118 - - -	100
Peninsular and Oriental Co. v. Tsune Kijima, (1895) A. C. 661 - - -	1347
Penney, Ex parte , 8 Ch. 452; 21 W. R. 186; 28 L. T. 150; 42 L. J. Ch. 183 - - -	647, 671, 1390
Penney v. Pickwick, 16 Beav. 246 - - -	770
Penrose v. Martyn, E. B. & E. 499; 28 L. J. Q. B. 28; 5 Jur. N. S. 362 - - -	510, 752

Pep—Pie

PAGE

Pepe v. City and Suburban Permanent Building Society , (1893) 2 Ch. 311 - - - - -	639, 640
Percival v. Wright , (1902) 2 Ch. 421; 71 L. J. Ch. 846; 51 W. R. 31 - - - - -	588, 647, 712, 747
Perkins, Re, Ex parte Mexican Santa Barbara Mining Co. , 24 Q. B. D. 613; 59 L. J. Q. B. 226; 38 W. R. 710; 2 Meg. 197; 7 M. B. R. 32 - - - - -	651, 662, 663
Perls v. Saalfeld , (1892) 2 Ch. 149; 61 L. J. Ch. 409; 66 L. T. 666; 40 W. R. 548 (C. A.) - - - - -	358
Perrins v. Bellamys (1899) 1 Ch. 797; 80 L. T. 478; 47 W. R. 417 - - - - -	715, 1402
Perry's Case , 34 L. T. 717 - - - - -	714
Perry v. Barnett , 15-Q. B. D. 388 - - - - -	669
Perry v. Provincial Bank of England , (1910) 1 Ch. 264 - - - - -	1247
Peruvian Guano Co., Re Kemp , (1894) 3 Ch. 690; 63 L. J. Ch. 818; 71 L. T. 611; 43 W. R. 170; 1 Manson, 423; 8 R. 544 - - - - -	724, 824
Peruvian Railways Co. v. Thames, &c. Co., Re Peruvian Railways Co. , 2 Ch. 617; 15 W. R. 1002; 16 L. T. 644; 36 L. J. Ch. 864 - - - - -	457, 471, 506, 507, 510, 747
Peters v. Anderson , 5 Taunt. 596 - - - - -	1190
Peveril Gold Mines , (1898) 1 Ch. 223; 46 W. R. 198; 77 L. T. 505 - - - - -	381, 593, 631, 640, 786, 1445, 1457
Pharmaceutical Society v. London Supply Ass. , 5 App. Cas. 802; 49 L. J. Q. B. 736; 43 L. T. 389; 28 W. R. 957; 45 J. P. 20 - - - - -	44, 210
Phillips v. Honfray , 24 C. D. 439; 52 L. J. Ch. 833; 49 L. T. 5; 32 W. R. 6 - - - - -	142, 207, 222
Phoenix Bessemer Co.'s Case , 44 L. J. Ch. 683; 32 L. T. 854; 1 C. D. 151 - - - - -	468, 1500
Phoenix Electric Light and Power Co., Re , 48 L. T. 260; 31 W. R. 398 - - - - -	700
Phosphate of Lime Co. v. Green , L. R. 7 C. P. 43 - - - - -	42
Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont , 5 C. D. 394; 37 L. T. 9; 47 L. J. Ch. 661 - - - - -	733
Photographic Co., Re , 23 C. D. 370; 31 W. R. 509; 48 L. T. 454; 52 L. J. Ch. 654 - - - - -	1416
Pickard v. Sears , 6 Ad. & E. 469; 2 N. & P. 488 - - - - -	1110
Pickering v. Stephenson , 14 Eq. 322; 20 W. R. 654; 26 L. T. 608; 41 L. J. Ch. 493 - - - - -	789
Pidcock v. Bishop , 3 B. & C. 605 - - - - -	1197
Piercy, In re , (1897) 1 Ch. 289 - - - - -	1257
Piggot v. Cubley , 15 C. B. N. S. 701 - - - - -	1195
Pike v. Ongley , 15 Q. B. D. 710 - - - - -	334
Pimlico, &c. Tramway Co. v. Assessment Committee of Greenwich Union , 9 Q. B. 9 - - - - -	108
Pinckney & Sons' Steamship Co. , (1892) 3 Ch. 125 - - - - -	1283
Pinet et Cie. v. Maison Louis Pinet, Limited , (1898) 1 Ch. 179; 67 L. J. Ch. 41; 77 L. T. 613; 46 W. R. 506 - - - - -	451
Pinkett v. Wright , 2 Ha. 120; 12 Cl. & Fin. 764; 12 L. J. Ch. 119; 6 Jur. 1102 - - - - -	662
Pinto Silver Mining Co. , 8 C. D. 273; 26 W. R. 622; 38 L. T. 366; 47 L. J. Ch. 591 - - - - -	111, 1451
Pittard v. Oliver , (1901) 1 Q. B. 474 - - - - -	697
Plaistow Working Men's Club v. Harrod , (1910) 1 K. B. 582 - - - - -	567
Pledge v. Buss, Johns . 663 - - - - -	1247

TABLE OF CASES.

xciii

Pol—Pry

	PAGE
Polhill v. Walter, 3 B. & Ald. 114 - - - - -	205
Pollard, Ex parte , 4 Deac. 27 - - - - -	1187
Pommery and Greno v. Apthorpe (1886), 56 L. T. 24 - - -	95
Poole, Jackson and White's Case (1878), 9 Ch. D. 322 - - -	657
Poole v. National Bank of China, (1907) A. C. 229; 96 L. T. 889; 23 T. L. R. 567 - - - 1117, 1119, 1256, 1258, 1259, 1260, 1262, 1271, 1311
Pooley v. Driver, 5 C. D. 458 - - - - -	67
Pope v. Hawtrey, 17 T. L. R. 717; 85 L. T. 263 - - -	1348, 1349
Popham v. Peckham, 7 H. & N. 891 - - - - -	697
Popular Life Assurance Co., In re , (1909) 1 Ch. 80 - - -	1331
Portal v. Emmens, 1 C. P. D. 201, 664 - - - - -	484
Portalis v. Tetley, 5 C. Eq. 540 - - - - -	1207
Portuguese Copper Mines Co., 42 C. Div. 161; 58 L. J. Ch. 813; 1 Meg. 246 - - - 50, 710, 740, 741, 1389
Postage Stamp Automatic Delivery Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 566; 61 L. J. Ch. 597; 67 L. T. 88; 41 W. R. 29 - 135, 362, 645, 715, 722, 1352
Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co., 43 C. D. 452; 59 L. J. Ch. 201; 62 L. T. 60; 38 W. R. 246; 2 Meg. 10 - 1440, 1441, 1443, 1444, 1487
Potter v. Edwards, 20 L. J. Ch. 468 - - - - -	1239
Powell and Thomas v. Evan Jones & Co., (1905) 1 K. B. 11 - -	733, 1160
Powell v. Brodhurst, (1901) 2 Ch. 160 - - - - -	770
Powell v. Lond. & Prov. Bank, (1893) 1 Ch. 610; (1893) 2 Ch. 555 - 652, 666, 668, 669, 670
Powell v. Marshall, Parkes & Co., (1899) 1 Q. B. 710; 68 L. J. Q. B. 477; 80 L. T. 509; 47 W. R. 419; 6 Mans. 157 (C. A.) - - -	353
Power v. Hoey, 19 W. R. 916 - - - - -	788
Power v. O'Connor, 19 W. R. 923 - - - - -	788
Powers v. Fooks, 17 Q. B. D. 537 - - - - -	442
Prefontaine v. Grenier, (1907) A. C. 101; 95 L. T. 623; 23 T. L. R. 27 - - - - -	714
Premier Cycle Co. v. Premier Tube Co., 12 T. L. R. 481 - - -	451
Premier Industrial Bank v. Carlton Manufacturing Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 107; (1909) 1 K. B. 106 - - - 80, 743
Premier Industrial Bank, Ltd. v. J. & W. Crabtree, 25 T. R. 17; (1909) 1 K. B. 106 - - - 37, 510, 1159
Prescott, Dimsdale & Co. v. Bank of England, (1893) 1 Q. B. 351 - -	953
Preservation Syndicate, (1895) 2 Ch. 768; 64 L. J. Ch. 723; 73 L. T. 393 - - - - -	1395
Preston's Case, 16 W. R. 668 - - - - -	138, 839
Price v. Anderson, 15 Sim. 473 - - - - -	768
Price v. Green, 16 M. & W. 346; 16 L. J. Ex. 108; 9 Jur. 880 - - -	358
Princess of Reuss v. Bos, L. R. 5 H. L. 176; 49 L. J. Ch. 665; 24 L. T. 641 - - - - -	26, 45, 559
Printers' Society, (1899) 2 Ch. 184 - - - - -	112
Printing. & Co. v. Sampson, 19 Eq. 462; 23 W. R. 463; 32 L. T. 354; 44 L. J. Ch. 705 - - - - -	379
Pritchard's Case, 8 Ch. 956; 29 L. T. 363; 42 L. J. Ch. 768 - - -	636
Pritchett v. English and Colonial Synd., (1899) 2 Q. B. 428 - - -	1367
Prudential Mortgage Co. v. Marylebone Borough Council, 8 L. G. R. 201 - - - - -	616
Pryce, Re , Ex parte Rensburg, 4 C. D. 685 - - - - -	1186

Pry—Qui

	PAGE
Fryce Jones v. Williams, (1902) 2 Ch. 517 - - -	112
Pryce v. Bury, 2 Drew. 42 - - -	1185
Puckle's Case, L. J. N. C. (1875) 19 - - -	671
Pugh and Sharman's Case, 13 Eq. 366; 41 L. J. Ch. 580; 26 L. T. 274 - - -	45, 48
Pulbrook v. New Civil Service Co., 26 W. R. 11 - - -	468, 514
Pulbrook v. Richmond Co., 9 C. D. 610; 27 W. R. 377; 48 L. J. Ch. 65 - - -	596, 633, 720, 737, 1357, 1389, 1391, 1405
Pulsford v. Devenish, (1903) 2 Ch. 625; 52 W. R. 73 - - -	1448
Punt v. Symons & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 656; (1903) 2 Ch. 506 - - -	630, 636, 640, 647, 655, 704, 747, 1408
Purcell v. Fowler, 2 C. P. D. 215 - - -	697
Pure Spirit Co. v. Fowler, 25 Q. B. D. 235; 38 W. R. 686 - - -	1416
Purvis, Re, (1904) 1 Ch. 373; 90 L. T. 394; 73 L. J. Ch. 281 - - -	680
Pyle Works (No. 1) (1890), 44 Ch. D. 534; 59 L. J. Ch. 489; 62 L. T. 887 - - -	657
Pyle Works (No. 2), (1891) 1 Ch. 173; 60 L. J. Ch. 114; 63 L. T. 628; 39 W. R. 235 - - -	657, 686, 688, 746, 747, 753, 787, 788

Q.

Quartz Hill Co. v. Beall, 20 C. D. 508; 30 W. R. 583; 46 L. T. 746; 51 L. J. Ch. 874 - - -	33, 697
Quartz Hill Gold Mining Co. v. Eyre (No. 1), 11 Q. B. D. 674; (No. 2), 50 L. T. 274 - - -	1411
Quebrada Land Co., 40 C. D. 363; 58 L. J. Ch. 332; 60 L. T. 482; 1 Meg. 122 - - -	1119, 1283, 1494
Queen v. Abney Park Cemetery Co., 8 Q. B. 515 - - -	106
Queen v. Aspinall, 2 Q. B. D. 48; 25 W. R. 283; 36 L. T. 297; 46 L. J. M. C. 145 - - -	238
Queen v. Cooper, 5 Q. B. 457 - - -	701
Queen v. General Council of Medicine, (1897) 2 Q. B. 203 - - -	708
Queen v. Government Stock Investment Co., 3 Q. B. D. 442; 39 L. T. 230; 47 L. J. Q. B. 478 - - -	1406
Queen v. Gurney and others, Finlason's Report, 254 - - -	233, 873
Queen (The) v. The Justices of Kent, L. R. 8 Q. B. 305 - - -	1047
Queen v. Morton, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 22; 21 W. R. 629; 18 L. T. 452; 42 L. J. M. C. 58 - - -	1142, 1143
Queen v. Reed (Sir Charles), 5 Q. B. D. 483; 28 W. R. 787; 42 L. T. 835; 49 L. J. Q. B. 600; 45 J. P. 653 - - -	473
Queen v. Silverlock, (1894) 2 Q. B. 766 - - -	238
Queen v. Thomas, 11 Q. B. D. 282 - - -	701
Queen v. Tyler, (1891) 2 Q. B. 588 - - -	38, 39, 236
Queensland Land, &c. Co., Re, Davis v. Martin, (1894) 3 Ch. 181; 63 L. J. Ch. 810; 71 L. T. 115; 42 W. R. 600; 1 Manson, 355; 8 R. 476 - - -	336, 1240
Quin & Axtens v. Salmon, (1909) A. C. 443 - - -	73, 694
Quinion v. Horne, (1906) 1 Ch. 596; 54 W. R. 344; 75 L. J. Ch. 293 - - -	352

R.

Rail—Reg

PAGE

Railway and Electric Appliance Co., Re , 38 C. D. 597; 57 L. J. Ch. 1027; 59 L. T. 22; 36 W. R. 730	-	-	-	443
Railway Sleepers Supply Co., 29 C. D. 204	-	656, 781, 1049, 1082, 1096
Railway Time Table Co., 42 C. D. 98; 58 L. J. Ch. 504; 61 L. T. 94; 37 W. R. 531; 1 Meg. 208	-	-	56, 63, 73, 465, 466, 478
Raine's Case, 4 T. L. R. 303; 6 Ch. 104	-	-	-	465, 871
Rainford v. James Keith & Co., (1905) 2 Ch. 147; 74 L. J. Ch. 531; 92 L. T. 786 (C. A.)	-	-	467, 674, 1142, 1143
Ralland v. Hart, L. R. 6 Ch. 681	-	-	-	1051
Ramel v. Syndicate, Ltd., (1911) 1 Ch. 740	-	-	-	583, 785
Ramsay v. Margrett, (1894) 2 Q. B. 18	-	-	-	616
Ramsgate Hotel Co. v. Montefiore, L. R. 1 Ex. 109	-	-	-	54
Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 C. D. 100; 34 W. R. 96; 53 L. T. 949; 55 L. J. Ch. 81	-	-	140, 142, 788, 1403
Rance's Case, 6 Ch. 104; 19 W. R. 291; 23 L. T. 828; 50 L. J. Ch. 277	-	-	714, 767, 858, 887, 898, 904
Randall, Ltd. v. British and American Shoe Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 354; 71 L. J. Ch. 683; 87 L. T. 442; 50 W. R. 697	-	-	-	453
Randt Gold Mining Co. v. Wainwright, (1901) 1 Ch. 184; 70 L. J. Ch. 90; 84 L. T. 348; 8 Mans. 61	-	-	660, 670, 708, 1404
Randt Gold Mining Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 468; 73 L. J. Ch. 598; 91 L. T. 174; 53 W. R. 90	-	-	-	660, 661
Ranelagh v. Hayes, 1 Ves. 189	-	-	-	1245
Ranger v. Great Western Rail. Co., 5 H. L. C. 86	-	-	-	36, 40
Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C. B. 161	-	-	-	1187
Rapier v. London Tramways Co., 69 L. T. 361	-	-	-	38
Rawlins v. Wickham, 3 D. & J. 304; 28 L. J. Ch. 188; 5 Jur. N. S. 278	-	-	-	195, 213
Raybould, Re , (1900) 1 Ch. 199	-	-	-	921
Rayner v. Drowitt, 82 L. T. 718	-	-	-	106
Rayner v. Preston, 18 C. D. 1	-	-	-	361
Read v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 128	-	-	-	221
Read, Ex parte , Re Paine, (1897) 1 Q. B. 122	-	-	-	1197
Read v. Friendly Society of Operative Stonemasons, (1902) 2 K. B. 732; 71 L. J. K. B. 994; 87 L. T. 493; 51 W. R. 115 (C. A.)	-	-	-	445
Reidaway v. Ahlers, 19 B. P. C. 12	-	-	-	450
Reidaway v. Banham, (1896) A. C. 199; 65 L. J. Q. B. 381; 74 L. T. 289; 44 W. R. 638	-	-	-	450, 452
Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 C. D. 23; 30 W. R. 251; 45 L. T. 485; 51 L. J. Ch. 113	-	-	143, 196, 205, 241, 1347
Roes v. Berrington, 2 Ves. jun. 540	-	-	-	1246
Reese River Co. v. Atwell, 7 Eq. 347	-	-	-	1354
Reese River Silver Mining Co., 2 Ch. App. 611	-	-	-	197, 213
Reese River Silver Mining Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64; 39 L. J. Ch. 849	-	-	19, 71, 73, 190, 197, 198, 199, 200
Reeve v. Berridge, 20 Q. B. D. 523	-	-	-	355
Reeve v. Jennings, (1910) 2 K. B. 522	-	-	-	441
Reeves v. Lisle, (1902) A. C. 461; 71 L. J. Ch. 768; 87 L. T. 308 (H. L., E.)	-	-	-	1239
Regent's Canal Co., Re , W. N. (1897) 79	-	-	-	743
Regent's Canal Iron Works Co., Re , 3 C. D. 43; 24 W. R. 687; 35 L. T. 288; 45 L. J. Ch. 620	-	-	-	687

Reg-Res	PAGE
Reg. v. Arnaud, 9 Q. B. 806; 16 L. J. Q. B. 50; 11 Jur. 279 -	28, 559
Reg. v. Aspinall, 2 Q. B. D. 48, 59 -	161
Reg. v. Birmingham and Gloucester Rail. Co., 3 Q. B. 223; 9 Car. & P. 469 -	39, 42, 44
Reg. v. Brightwell, 10 A. & E. 176 -	735
Reg. v. Catholic Life, &c. Assurance Institution, 48 L. T. 675; 47 J. P. 503 -	690, 763
Reg. v. Chester, 1 A. & E. 342 -	701
Reg. v. City and County Investment Co., 13 Ch. D. 481 -	1439
Reg. v. Commissioners of Income Tax, 21 Q. B. D. 313 -	103
Reg. v. D'Oyley, 12 A. & E. 139 -	701, 702
Reg. v. Esdaile, 1 F. & F. 213 -	766, 857, 872
Reg. v. Government Stock Co., 3 Q. B. D. 443; 47 L. J. Q. B. 478; 39 L. T. 230 -	700
Reg. v. Graham, 9 W. R. 738 -	701
Reg. v. Great North of England Rail. Co. (1849), 9 Q. B. 315 -	39, 42
Reg. v. Guest, 7 L. J. M. C. 38; 7 Ad. & E. 951 -	106
Reg. v. Hall, (1891) 1 Q. B. 747 -	235
Reg. v. Haslam, 17 Q. B. 220 -	107
Reg. v. Hedges, 12 A. & E. 159 -	701
Reg. v. Judd, 37 W. R. 143 -	546
Reg. v. Lambeth, 8 A. & E. 356 -	701
Reg. v. Langhorne, 6 N. & M. 203 -	697
Reg. v. Lee Overseers, L. R. 1 Q. B. 241 -	108
Reg. v. Mariquita, &c. Co., 1 E. & E. 289; 28 L. J. Q. B. 67; 5 Jur. N. S. 725 -	771
Reg. v. Mayor of Liverpool, 3 East, 86 -	42
Reg. v. Mayor, &c. of London, 9 B. & C. 1 -	702
Reg. v. Mayor of Wigan, 14 Q. B. D. 908 -	724, 731
Reg. v. Morton, L. R. 2 C. C. R. 22 -	84
Reg. v. Newton, 48 L. J. M. C. 77 -	763
Reg. v. Ployer, 2 B. & A. 707 -	735
Reg. v. Price, 11 A. & E. 727 -	235
Reg. v. Registrars of Joint Stock Companies, (1891) 2 Q. B. 598; 21 Q. B. D. 131 -	1002
Reg. v. Saddlers' Co., 10 H. L. C. 404 -	729
Reg. v. St. Pancras, 11 A. & E. 15 -	701
Reg. v. Tewkesbury, L. R. 3 Q. B. 635; 16 W. R. 1200; 9 B. & S. 683; 18 L. T. 851; 37 L. J. Q. B. 288 -	735
Reg. v. Tidy, 2 Q. B. 179 -	442
Reg. v. Tyler, &c. Co., (1891) 2 Q. B. 588; 61 L. J. M. C. 38; 65 L. T. 662; 56 J. P. 118 (C. A.) -	42, 181, 235, 236, 624, 763
Reg. v. West Middlesex Water Works, 1 E. & E. 716 -	108
Reg. v. Wimbledon Local Board, 8 Q. B. D. 459; 51 L. J. Q. B. 219; 30 W. R. 402; 46 L. T. 47 -	593, 700, 701
Reid's Brewery Co. v. Male, (1891) 2 Q. B. 1; 60 L. J. Q. B. 340; 64 L. T. 294; 39 W. R. 459; 55 J. P. 216 -	99, 539
Reid v. Explosives Co., 19 Q. B. D. 264; 56 L. J. Q. B. 388; 57 L. T. 439; 35 W. R. 509 -	444
Reid v. London & Staffordshire Co., 32 W. R. 94; 49 L. T. 468; 53 L. J. Ch. 361 -	200
Reidpath's Case, 11 Eq. 86 -	52

Rem—Ris	PAGE
Remington v. Scholes, (1897) 2 Ch. 1; 66 L. J. Ch. 526; 76 L. T. 667; 45 W. R. 580	1370
Renshaw & Co., W. N. (1908) 210	618
Reuss v. Bos, 5 H. L. 176	26, 45, 559
Reuss v. Pickley, L. R. 1 Ex. 342	335, 336, 338, 1184
Revell v. Edinburgh Life Insurance Co., 5 Tax. Cas. 221	102
Reversionary Interest Society, (1892) 1 Ch. 615; 61 L. J. Ch. 379; 66 L. T. 460; 40 W. R. 389; W. N. (1892) 60	1312, 1313
Rex v. Abrahams, (1904) 2 K. B. 859; 91 L. T. 493; 20 T. L. R. 684	1205
Rex v. Brighton Gaslight Co., 5 B. & C. 466	108
Rex v. Commissioners, 91 L. T. 94	99
Rex v. De Berenger, 3 M. & S. 67	151
Rex v. Gaborian, 11 East, 77	702
Rex v. P. 92 L. T. 662	108
Rex v. Insurance Co., 5 B. & Ald. 899	1406
Rex v. Over, (1903) 1 K. B. 668; 72 L. J. K. B. 210; 88 L. T. 700	701
Rex v. Merchant Taylors' Co., 2 B. & Ad. 115	771
Rex v. Miller, Cowp. 619	108
Rex v. Munday, 2 Cowp. 530	735
Rex v. Rochdale Waterworks, 1 M. & S. 634	108
Rex v. Salop, 8 A. & E. 173	1049
Rex v. Wilts and Berks Canal Co., 3 Ad. & El. 477; 8 Ad. & El. 901	71
Rhodes v. Forwood, 1 App. Cas. 257; 24 W. R. 1078; 34 L. T. 890; 47 L. J. Ex. 396	364, 443
Rhodesian Properties, W. N. (1901) 130	759
Richard Mills & Co. (Brierley Hill), W. N. (1905) 36	112
Richards & Co., Re, 11 C. D. 676	1502
Richards v. Home Assurance Association, L. R. 6 C. P. 591	52
Richards v. Kidderminster Overseers, (1896) 2 Ch. 212; 65 L. J. Ch. 502; 74 L. T. 483; 44 W. R. 505	44
Richardson's Case, 19 Eq. 588	48
Richardson v. Mothley School Board, (1893) 3 Ch. 510; 62 L. J. Ch. 943; 69 L. T. 308; 42 W. R. 27; 3 R. 701	730
Richardson v. Smith, 5 Ch. 648	349
Richardson v. Stormont, Todd & Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 701	680
Richardson v. Williamson, L. R. 6 Q. B. 276; 40 L. J. Q. B. 145	741, 1199
Richmond's Case, 4 K. & J. 325	747
Ridgway v. Hungerford Market Co., 3 A. & E. 171	442
Ridgway v. Wharton, 6 H. L. C. 296	321
Ridley v. Plymouth Co., 2 Ex. 711; 17 L. J. Ex. 252; 12 Jur. 542	710
Ridout v. Fowler, (1904) 1 C. 658; 90 L. T. 147; 73 L. J. Ch. 325	349
Rileys, Limited, (1903) 2 Ch. 590; 72 L. J. Ch. 678; 89 L. T. 529; 5 W. R. 681	44
Ripley v. Paper Bottle Co., 57 L. J. Ch. 327	658
Risdon Iron and Locomotive Works v. Furness, (1906) 1 K. B. 49; (1905) 1 K. B. 304; 74 L. J. K. B. 243; 93 L. T. 687; 54 W. R. 324	28, 60

Ris—Roy

	PAGE
Rishton v. Grissell, 5 Eq. 326	132, 888
Pitso's Case, 4 C. D. 782	47
Robb v. Green, (1893) 2 Q. B. 1, 315; W. N. (1895) 116	442
Roberts v. Croft, 24 Beav. 223; 2 De G. & J. 1	1186
Roberts v. Security Co., (1897) 1 Q. B. 111; 66 L. J. Q. B. 119; 75 L. T. 331; 45 W. R. 214 (C. A.)	84
Robertson v. Willmott, 25 T. L. R. 683	358
Robey v. Snaefell Co., 20 Q. B. D. 152	344
Robinson's Case, 4 Ch. 330; 20 L. T. 96; 17 W. R. 454	51
Robinson v. Ashton, 20 Eq. 28; 23 W. R. 674; 33 L. T. 88; 44 L. J. Ch. 512	878
Robinson v. Bland, 1 W. Bl. 258	344
Robinson v. Currey, 7 Q. B. D. 470	219
Robinson v. Harkin, (1896) 2 Ch. 415; 65 L. J. Ch. 773; 74 L. T. 775; 44 W. R. 702	788
Robinson v. Montgomery Brewery Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 841; 65 L. J. Ch. 915; 3 Manson, 279	42, 686
Robinson v. Restill, 12 T. L. R. 174	1209, 1210
Roddy v. Fitzgerald, 6 H. L. C. 876	594
Rogers' Case, 3 Ch. 633	55
Rogers' Case, Harrison's Case	55
Rogers v. Drury, 36 W. R. 496; 57 L. J. Ch. 504	359
Rokner v. Anderson, 3 Esp. 235	442
Romford Canal Co., Re, 24 C. D. 85; 49 L. T. 118; 52 L. J. Ch. 729	698, 1095, 1096
Roney's Case, 4 D. J. & S. 426; 12 W. R. 815, 894; 10 L. T. 770; 33 L. J. Ch. 731	657, 745
Roney v. Stanton, 17 T. L. R. 272	1440
Roots v. Williamson, 38 C. D. 485; 57 L. J. Ch. 995; 58 L. T. 802; 36 W. R. 758	651, 652, 666
Rosenberg v. Northumberland Land Building Society, 22 Q. B. D. 373; 60 L. T. 358; 37 W. R. 368	639, 1205
Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Eq. 134; 3 Ch. 689; 15 W. R. 104; 16 W. R. 1151; 15 L. T. 272; 19 L. T. 61; 36 L. J. Ch. 54; 37 L. J. Ch. 873	155, 185, 190, 213, 281
Rossiter v. Trafalgar Co., 27 Beav. 380	739
Rotherham Alum. & Co. Co., Re, 25 C. D. 103; 32 W. R. 131; 50 L. T. 219; 53 L. J. Ch. 290	147, 148, 149, 323, 366, 441, 633, 745, 746, 748, 758, 838
Rouse v. Bradford Banking Co., (1894) A. C. 586; 63 L. J. Ch. 890; 71 L. T. 522; 43 W. R. 78; 6 R. 349	1249
Roussell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127	11, 12, 16, 230, 256, 259, 260
Rowe, Re, (1904) 2 K. B. 489; 73 L. J. K. B. 594; 91 L. T. 220; 52 W. R. 628 (C. A.)	655, 658, 662
Rowe's Trustee's Claim, (1906) 1 Ch. 1; (1905) 1 Ch. 597	655, 785
Rowland's Case, 42 L. T. 785; W. N. (1880) 80	1141
Rowland v. Chapman, W. N. (1901) 153	734
Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 C. D. 520 (C. A.)	1195
Roxburghe Press, (1899) 1 Ch. 310; 68 L. J. Ch. 111; 80 L. T. 280; 47 W. R. 281; 6 Mans. 57	1390
Royal Bank of India's Case, 4 Ch. 252; 17 W. R. 359; 19 L. T. 805	334, 507, 755

Roy—Sal

PAGE

Royal Bank of Scotland v. Tottenham, (1891) 2 Q. B. 715; 61 L. J. Q. B. 99; 71 L. T. 168; 43 W. R. 22; 9 R. 569 (C. A.)	-	708
Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 6 E. & B. 327; 24 L. J. Q. B. 327; 1 Jur. N. S. 1086	- 50, 78, 80, 83, 686, 710, 711, 761, 1030,	1159
Royal College of Music v. St. Margaret's Overseers, (1898) 1 Q. B. 809; 67 L. J. Q. B. 540; 78 L. T. 441; 62 J. P. (C. A.)	-	109
Royal College of Surgeons, (1899) 1 Q. B. 871; 67 L. J. Q. B. 705; 79 L. T. 89	-	104, 105
Royal Insurance Co. v. Watson, (1897) A. C. 1; 66 L. J. Q. B. 1; 75 L. T. 334	-	100
Royal Society of London v. Thompson, 17 C. D. 407	-	496
Ruben v. Great Fingall Co., (1906) A. C. 439	- 41, 81, 83, 674, 676, 759, 760, 761, 831, 1140
Ruby Consolidated Mining Co., 43 L. J. Ch. 633	-	1390
Rudd v. Lascelles, (1900) 1 Ch. 814; 69 L. J. Ch. 396; 82 L. T. 256; 48 W. R. 586	-	351
Ruddington Land, 100 L. T. 648	-	112
Rugeley Gas Co., W. N. (1899) 127	-	1266, 1314
Rumball v. Metropolitan Bank, 9 Q. B. D. 194	-	1149
Russel v. Russel, 1 Bro. C. C. 269; 1 Wh. & Ta. L. C. 674	-	1185
Russell v. Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, (1910) 1 K. B. 506; (1912) W. N. 79; 28 T. L. B. 276 (H. L.)	-	113, 115, 116
Russell, Trial of Earl, (1901) A. C. 446	-	600
Russell v. East Anglian Rail. Co., 3 Mac. & G. 125	-	467, 473
Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks, 20 Eq. 474; 23 W. R. 887; 32 L. T. 685; 44 L. J. Ch. 496	- 29, 712, 872, 1353, 1355, 1356, 1359, 1360, 1402
Russell's Executors' Case, 15 S. J. 790	-	679
Ryan v. Mutual Tontine, &c. Assoc., (1893) 1 Ch. 116; 62 L. J. Ch. 25; 67 L. T. 820; 41 W. R. 146; 2 L. 156	-	441
Ryhope Colliery Co. v. Foyer, 7 Q. B. D. 455	-	29, 102, 103
Rylands Glass Engraving Co. v. Phoenix Co., (1911) 2 Ir. R. 532	-	1340
S.
Saccharin Corp. v. Chemische Fabrik von Heyden Actiengesellschaft, (1911) 2 K. B. 516	-	86, 1341
Saccharin Corp. v. Reitmeyer & Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 659	-	119
Sadgrove v. Bryden, (1907) 1 Ch. 318; 96 L. T. 361; 23 T. L. R. 255	-	705, 708
Sadler v. G. W. Rail. Co., (1896) A. C. 450	-	1348, 1349
Safety Explosives Ltd., (1904) 1 Ch. 226	-	1422
Safety Oil Co., W. N. (1892) 133	-	1286, 1294, 1305
Sahlgreen and Carrall's Case, 3 Ch. 323; 16 W. R. 497	-	615, 756
Sailing Ship "Kontmere" Co., W. N. (1897) 58	-	602, 691, 737
Salaman v. Warner, 64 L. T. 598	-	151
Sale Botanical Gardens, Re , 78 L. T. 368	-	135, 839
Sale Hotel, &c. Co., W. N. (1897) 174; 77 L. T. 631; 78 L. T. 368; 46 W. R. 314; W. N. (1898) 40	-	140, 143
Salford (Mayor of) v. Lever, (1891) 1 Q. B. 188	-	134, 111, 733, 1400

Sa1—300	PAGE
Salisbury, &c. Co. v. Hathorn, (1897) A. C. 268; 66 L. J. P. C. 62; 76 L. T. 212; 45 W. R. 591 - - - - -	702
Salisbury-Jones and Dale's Case, Re Bolton & Co., (1894) 3 Ch. 356; 64 L. J. Ch. 27; 72 L. T. 171 - - - - -	57, 636, 720, 723
Salle v. Field, 5 T. R. 215 - - - - -	1158
Salmon v. Quin & Axtens, (1900) 1 Ch. 311; (1900) A. C. 442 - - - - -	75
	736, 747
Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22; (1896) 2 Ch. 237; 66 L. J. Ch. 35; 75 L. T. 420; 45 W. R. 193 - 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 135, 136, 140, 221, 645, 909, 915, 924, 940, 942, 947, 1095, 1399, 1456
Salomons v. Laing, 12 Beav. 339 - - - - -	460
Salt v. Northampton, (1892) A. C. 1 - - - - -	1238
Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co. (2), (1900) 1 Ch. 43; 69 L. J. Ch. 20; 81 L. T. 437; 48 W. R. 92; 7 Mans. 74 - 112, 726, 727, 1158
Samuel Allsopp & Sons, 51 W. R. 644; W. N. (1903) 132; 19 T. L. R. 637 - - - - -	1261, 1263, 1267
San Paulo (Brazilian) Rail. Co. v. Carter, (1895) 1 Q. B. 580; 72 L. T. 214; (1896) A. C. 31 - - - - -	93, 94
Sandbach and Edmondson, Re , (1891) 1 Ch. 99; 60 L. J. Ch. 60; 63 L. T. 767; 39 W. R. 193 (C. A.) - - - - -	350
Sanderson v. Blyth Theatres, (1903) 2 K. B. 533; 72 L. J. K. B. 761; 89 L. T. 159; 52 W. R. 33 (C. A.) - - - - -	1378
Sander and Walford's Contract, W. N. (1900) 183; 83 L. T. 316 - - - - -	353
Sangster v. Netter, 9 T. L. R. 441 - - - - -	294
Sanitary Carbon Co., Re , W. N. (1880) 223 - - - - -	698
Santley v. Wilde, (1899) 2 Ch. 477; 81 L. T. 393; 48 W. R. 90 - - - - -	1194
Sargeant, Ex parte , 1 Roll. 155 - - - - -	1195
Sargent, Ex parte , 17 Eq. 273; 22 W. R. 815; 43 L. J. Ch. 425 - - - - -	669, 1389
Saunders & Co., Re , (1908) 1 Ch. 415; 98 L. T. 533; 24 T. L. R. 263 - - - - -	678
Saunders v. Holborn District Board of Works, (1895) 1 Q. B. 64; 64 L. J. Q. B. 101; 71 L. T. 519; 43 W. R. 26; 39 J. P. 453; 15 R. 25 - - - - -	176
Savigny's Case, W. N. (1890) 1; 5 Mans. 336 - - - - -	48
Savoy Overseers v. Art Union of London, (1896) (A. C.) 296; 65 L. J. M. C. 161; 74 L. T. 497; 60 J. P. 660 (H. L., E.) - - - - -	100
Saxlehner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893; 66 L. J. Ch. 353; 76 L. T. 617 - - - - -	451
Sax, Re , Barnard v. Sax, (1893) 68 L. T. 849 - - - - -	953
Scadding v. Lorant, 3 H. L. C. 418 - - - - -	692, 702
Scarf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 345, 360 - - - - -	201
Schill, Seebohm & Co., Ltd. (Galloway v.), W. N. (1912) 131 - - - - -	624
S. Chivers & Sons v. S. Chivers & Co., Ltd., 17 R. P. C. 420 - - - - -	450
Scholey v. Central Rail. Co., 9 Eq. 266; 32 L. J. Ch. 354 - - - - -	17, 197, 200, 245
Scholfield, Ex parte , 12 C. D. 337 - - - - -	1195
Schooner Pond Coal Co., W. N. (1888) 70 - - - - -	1451
Schroder's Case, 11 Eq. 131 - - - - -	63
Scott and Alvarez's Contract, (1895) 1 Ch. 596; 72 L. T. 455; on appeal, (1895) 2 Ch. 603 - - - - -	350
Scott v. Brown, (1882) 2 Q. B. 724; 61 L. J. Q. B. 738; 41 W. R. 116; 67 L. T. 82; 37 J. P. 213; 4 R. 42 (C. A.) - - - - -	150
Scott v. Corporation of Liverpool, 3 De G. & J. 360; 28 L. J. Ch. 236; 5 Jur. N. S. 104 - - - - -	359, 594

TABLE OF CASES.

ci

See Sha	PAGE
Scott v. Franklin, 15 East, 428	- 1196
Scott v. Lord Ebury, L. R. 2 C. P. 255; 15 V. L. 517; 15 L. T. 306; 36 L. J. C. P. 161	- 327
Scott v. Snyder, & Co. 66 L. T. 283; affirmed 67 L. T. 104 (C. A.)	191, 195
Scottish Economic Life Assurance Society, Ex parte , 45 C. D. 220; 60 L. J. Ch. 14; 62 L. T. 926; 38 W. R. 684	- 520, 1331
Scottish Investment Trust v. Surveyor, 21 Scot. Sess. Cases, 4th Series, 262	- 99
Scottish Mortgage Co. of Mexico v. McKelvie, 26 Sc. L. R. 87; 2 Tax. Cas. 165	- 102
Scottish Petroleum Co., Re , 23 C. D. 413; 31 W. R. 846; 49 L. T. 348	- 47, 73, 191, 196, 197, 199, 200, 646, 728, 740, 1073
Sear v. House Property and Investment Society, 10 C. D. 387	- 355
Seaton v. Burnand, (1900) A. C. 133; 69 L. J. Q. B. 409; 82 L. 205; 5 Com. Cas. 198 (H. L., E.)	- 1197
Seaton v. Heath, (1899) 1 Q. B. 782; 68 L. J. Q. B. 631; 80 L. T. 579; 47 W. R. 487 (C. A.)	- 1197
Second East Dulwich 745th Starr-Bowkett Building Society, 68 L. J. Ch. 196; 79 L. T. 726; 47 W. R. 408	715, 100
Secretary for India v. Scoble, (1903) A. C. 299; 72 L. J. Q. B. 617; 89 L. T. 1; 51 W. R. 676 (H. L., E.)	- 101
Securities Insurance Society, (1899) 2 Q. B. 273	- 1498
Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 326; 74 L. J. Ch. 199; 91 L. T. 793; 33 W. R. 232	- 205
Selby v. Whittaker, 6 C. D. 239	- 598
Self-acting Sewing Machine Co., 54 L. T. 676; 34 W. R. 758	- 719
Seligman v. Prince & Co., Limited, 11 T. L. R. 473 (26 June, 1895); (1895) 2 Ch. 617	- 645
Severn and Wye, & Co. Rail. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 559; 65 L. J. Ch. 400; 74 L. T. 219; 44 W. R. 347	- 765, 770
Sewell's Case, 3 Ch. 131; 18 L. T. 2; 16 W. R. 381	- 72, 77, 476, 477, 1048, 1115, 1411
Seymour v. Bridge, 14 Q. B. D. 460	- 669
Seymour v. Pickett, (1905) 1 K. B. 715; 74 L. J. K. B. 413; 92 L. T. 519 (C. A.)	- 1190
Shackleford, Ford & Co. v. Dangerfield, L. R. 3 C. P. 407	- 1127
Shand v. Stansfield, Seton, 1702	- 1186
Sharp, 45 C. D. 286	- 911
Sharp v. Dawes, 2 Q. B. D. 26; 25 W. R. 66; 36 L. T. 188; 46 L. J. Q. B. 104	- 654, 698, 730
Sharpe, Re , Masonic and General Life Ass. Co. v. Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. 154	- 141, 593, 714, 766, 872, 873, 891, 897
Sharpley v. Louth and East Coast Rail. Co., 2 C. D. 633; 35 L. T. 71; 46 L. J. Ch. 259	- 17, 197, 200, 646
Shaw's, Bryant & Co. W. N. (1901) 124	- 727, 739
Shaw's Case, 34 L. T. 715	- 5
Shaw, Ex parte , 2 Q. B. D. 463	- 1389
Shaw v. Arnott, 2 Stark. 256	- 442
Shaw v. Benson, 11 Q. B. D. 563	- 110
Shaw v. Foster, L. R. 5 H. L. 321	- 1186
Shaw v. Holland, (1900) 2 Ch. 305; 69 L. J. Ch. 621; 82 L. T. 782; 7 Mans. 409 (C. A.)	- 588, 647, 1352

Sha-Sim

PAGE

Shaw v. Port Philip Gold Co., 13 Q. B. D. 103; 32 W. R. 771; 50 L. T. 685; 53 L. J. Q. B. 369	- - - 42, 761, 1140
Shaw v. Rowley, 16 M. & W. 810	- - - 555
Shaw v. Wellesley, 9 Cl. & Fin. 355	- - - 594
Shaw v. Wilson, 9 Cl. & Fin. 355	- - - 597
Shearman's Case, 75 L. T. 585; 66 L. J. Ch. 25	- - 17, 200
Sheffield (Corporation of) v. Barclay, (1905) A. C. 392; 74 L. J. K. B. 747; 93 L. T. 83 (H. L., E.); 54 W. R. 49	- 652, 667, 674
Sheffield P. B. B. Society, Re , 21 Q. B. D. 301	- - 1200
Sheffield, &c. Soc. v. Aislewood, 44 C. D. 412; 59 L. J. Ch. 34; 62 L. T. 678	- - 469, 789
Sheffield (Earl of) v. London Joint Stock Bank, 13 App. Cas. 333; 57 L. J. Ch. 986; 58 L. T. 735; 37 W. R. 33	- 1142, 1159, 1187, 1211
Sheffield & South Yorkshire Perm. Bldg. Soc., Re , 22 Q. B. D. 476; 58 L. J. Q. B. 265; 60 L. T. 186; 53 J. P. 375	- - 27
Sheffield Nickel Co. v. Unwin, 2 Q. B. D. 214; 25 W. R. 493; 36 L. T. 246; 46 L. J. Q. B. 299	- - 364
Sheil, Ex parte , 4 C. D. 789	- - 1029
Shepard v. Jones, 21 C. D. 470	- - 1217
Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342; 73 L. J. Ch. 608; 91 L. T. 178; 53 W. R. 111 (H. L., E.)	- 211, 215, 216, 217, 227, 229, 1347
Shepherd v. Croft, (1910) 1 Ch. 521	- - 351
Sheppard v. Union Bank, 7 H. & W. 661	- - 1208, 1209
Sherman, Ex parte , Buch. 462	- - 1186
Sherry, Re , 25 C. D. 692	- - 1190, 1191, 1192, 1246
Sherwell v. Combined Incandescent Mantles Synd., 23 T. L. R. 482	- 12, 181
Ship's Case, 2 De G. J. & S. 544; 13 W. R. 599; 12 L. T. 256; 11 Jur. N. S. 331	- - 196
Ship v. Crosskill, 10 Eq. 73; 39 L. J. Ch. 550; 22 L. T. 315; 18 W. R. 618	- - 203
Shipley v. Marshall, 14 C. B. N. S. 566	- - 617
Shipway v. Broadwood, (1899) 1 Q. B. 369; 68 L. J. Q. B. 360; 80 L. T. 11 (C. A.)	- - 733
Shirreff's Case, 14 Eq. 417; 20 W. R. 966; 42 L. J. Ch. 5	- 442, 444
Shrewsbury Rail. Co. v. N. W. Rail. Co., 6 H. L. C. 113; 29 L. T. 186; 26 L. J. Ch. 482	- - 460
Shropshire Union, &c. Co. v. The Queen, L. R. 7 H. L. 496; 23 W. R. 709; 32 L. T. 283; 45 L. J. Q. B. 3	- 666, 1139, 1140
Siddall, Re , 29 C. D. 1; 33 W. R. 509; 52 L. T. 114; 54 L. J. Ch. 682	- - 111
Silber Light Co., 12 C. D. 717; 27 W. R. 427; 40 L. T. 96; 48 L. J. Ch. 385	- - 1466
Silkstone and Haigh Moor Co. v. Edey, (1900) 1 Ch. 167; 69 L. J. Ch. 73; 48 W. R. 137	- - 1458
Silvester, Re , Midland Rail. v. Silvester, (1895) 1 Ch. 573; 64 L. J. Ch. 390; 72 L. T. 283; 43 W. R. 443	- - 1246
Simn v. Anglo-American Telegraph Co., 5 Q. B. D. 188; 28 W. R. 290; 42 L. T. 37; 49 L. J. Q. B. 392; 44 J. P. 280	- 675, 1141
Simmons v. London Joint Stock Bank, (1892) A. C. 217	- 1208
Simms v. Registrar of Probates, (1900) A. C. 323; 69 L. J. P. C. 51; 82 L. T. 435 (P. C.)	- - 937

Sim—Smi

PAGE

Simpson's Case, 4 Ch. 184; 17 W. R. 424; 39 L. J. Ch. 121	-	-	-	-	237
Simpson v. Denison, 10 Ha. 51	-	-	-	-	75, 437
Simpson v. Ebbw Vale Co., (1905) 1 K. B. 453; 74 L. J. K. B. 347; 92 L. T. 282; 53 W. R. 390 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	1021
Simpson v. Palace Theatre (1893), 69 L. T. 70; 2 R. 451 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	1441, 1476
Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. C. 712; 6 Jur. N. S. 985	-	-	-	-	75, 373, 457, 461, 467, 471, 1355, 1360
Simson v. Ingham, 2 B. & C. 65	-	-	-	-	1191
Simultaneous Colour Printing Synd. v. Foweraker, (1901) 1 K. B. 771	-	-	-	-	1240
Singer Machine v. Wilson, 3 App. Cas. 376; 26 W. R. 664; 38 L. T. 303; 47 L. J. Ch. 481	-	-	-	-	450
Sisson & Co. v. Sissons, 54 S. J. 862	-	-	-	-	730
Skeat's Settlement, 42 C. D. 522	-	-	-	-	736
Skelton's Case, 68 L. T. 210	-	-	-	-	197
Skinner, Ex parte , 1 D. & C. 403	-	-	-	-	1187
Skinner v. City of London, &c. Co., 14 Q. B. D. 882; 33 W. R. 628; 53 L. T. 191; 54 L. J. Q. B. 437	-	-	-	-	666
Slater's Case, 35 Beav. 391; 12 Jur. N. S. 242; 35 L. J. Ch. 304; 14 W. R. 446; 14 L. T. N. S. 95	-	-	-	-	666
Sleigh v. Glasgow and Transvaal Options, 6 F. 420 (Ct. of Sess.)	-	-	-	-	12, 180, 280
Slater v. Darlaston Steel Co., W. N. (1877) 139	-	-	-	-	1493, 1496, 1497, 1501
Slobodinsky, Re, Ex parte Moore , (1903) 2 K. B. 517; 72 L. J. K. B. 883; 89 L. T. 190; 52 W. R. 156	-	-	-	-	947, 948
Sly, Spink & Co., (1911) 2 Ch. 430	-	-	-	-	717, 728, 740
Small v. Darley, 2 H. L. C. 789	-	-	-	-	779
Smedley and Fletcher, Ex parte , W. N. (1867) 259	-	-	-	-	52
Smelting Co. of Australia v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, (1897) 1 Q. B. 175; 66 L. J. Q. B. 137; 75 L. T. 534; 45 W. R. 203; 61 J. P. 116 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	341, 342, 602
Smith's Case, 2 Ch. 604; L. R. 4 H. L. 79; 15 W. R. 882; 16 L. T. 549; 36 L. J. Ch. 618; 39 L. J. Ch. 849	-	-	-	-	190, 195, 1389
Smith, Knight & Co., 4 Ch. 671	-	-	-	-	1448
Smith, Smith and Lewis, Re , (1902) 2 Ch. 667; 71 L. J. Ch. 885; 51 W. R. 11	-	-	-	-	932
Smith, Re , Smith v. Thompson, 71 L. J. Ch. 411; 86 L. T. 401	-	-	-	-	715, 1402
Smith v. Anderson, 15 C. D. 247; 29 W. R. 21; 43 L. T. 329; 50 L. J. Ch. 39	-	-	-	-	110, 111, 535, 711
Smith v. Betty, (1903) 2 K. B. 317; 72 L. J. K. B. 853; 89 L. T. 258; 52 W. R. 137 (C. A.)	-	-	-	-	1196
Smith v. Chadwick (1884), 20 C. D. 45; 9 App. Cas. 187; 30 W. R. 661; 32 W. R. 687; 46 L. T. 702; 50 L. T. 697; 51 L. J. Ch. 597; 53 L. J. Ch. 873	-	-	-	-	144, 177, 189, 193, 194, 195, 197, 202, 203, 205
Smith v. Duke of Manchester, 24 C. D. 611; 32 W. R. 83	-	-	-	-	751, 787
Smith v. Hull Glass Co., 11 C. B. 897; 21 L. J. C. P. 106; 7 Ry. Cas. 287	-	-	-	-	761
Smith v. Lion Brewery Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 912; (1911) A. C. 150; 101 L. T. 145	-	-	-	-	99, 100
Smith v. Neale, 2 C. B. N. S. 67	-	-	-	-	338
Smith v. Packhurst, 3 Atkins, 136	-	-	-	-	603

Smi—Sou	PAGE
Smith v. Paringa Mines, (1906) 2 Ch. 193; 94 L. T. 571; 75 L. J. Ch. 702 - - - - -	696
Smith v. Peters, 20 Eq. 511 - - - - -	349
Smith v. Richmond, (1899) A. C. 448; 81 L. T. 269; 48 W. R. 115 -	106
Smith v. Robinson, 13 C. D. 148 - - - - -	350
Smith v. Thompson, 71 L. J. Ch. 411; 86 L. T. 401 - - - - -	715, 1402
Smith v. Tompson, 8 C. B. 44 - - - - -	442
Smith v. Wallace, (1895) 1 Ch. 385 - - - - -	352
Smurthwaite v. Hannay, (1894) A. C. 494; 63 L. J. Q. B. 737; 71 L. T. 157; 43 W. R. 113; 6 R. 299 (H. L., E.) - - - - -	1347, 1318
Smyth v. Darley, 2 H. L. C. 789 - - - - -	692, 697
Snook v. Self-Acting Co., 3 Times L. R. 630 - - - - -	191
Société des Manufactures de Glace v. Tilghman's Co., 25 C. D. 1; 53 L. J. Ch. 1; 32 W. R. 71; 49 L. T. 451; 48 J. P. 68 - - -	381
Société Gen. v. Walker, 11 App. Cas. 20; 34 W. R. 662; 54 L. T. 389; 55 L. J. Ch. 169 - - - - -	650, 651, 666, 667, 675, 1140, 1143
Société Panhard v. Panhard Levassor Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 513; 85 L. T. 20; 50 W. R. 74 - - - - -	451, 453
Society of Practical Knowledge v. Abbott, 2 Beav. 567 - - - - -	27
Solway Steamship Co., 61 L. T. 659 - - - - -	1270, 1285
Somerset v. Land Securities Co., W. N. (1897) 29 - - - - -	688, 672
Somerset v. Wade, (1894) 1 Q. B. 574; 63 L. J. M. C. 126; 42 W. R. (1894) 399; 70 L. T. 452; 10 R. 105 - - - - -	358
Somervail v. Cree, 4 App. Cas. 648 - - - - -	652
South African Breweries v. King, (1900) 1 Ch. 88, 273; (1899) 2 Ch. 173; 69 L. J. Ch. 171; 82 L. T. 32; 48 W. R. 289 (C. A.) - - -	344
South African Supply and Cold Storage Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268; 73 L. J. Ch. 657; 91 L. T. 447; 52 W. R. 649 - - - - -	514, 785, 786, 817, 1433, 1482
South African Territories v. Wallington, (1897) 1 Q. B. 692; 66 L. J. Q. B. 551; 45 W. R. 467; affirmed by H. L., 14 T. L. R. 298; (1898) A. C. 309 - - - - -	290, 294
South African Trust Co., Re, Ex parte Hirsch (1896), 74 L. T. 769 -	130
South American Co., 31 C. D. 261 - - - - -	480
South Durham Co., Re , 31 C. D. 261 (C. A.); 34 W. R. 126; 53 L. T. 928; 55 L. J. Ch. 179 - - - - -	480, 575
South Hetton Coal Co. v. N. E. News Association, (1894) 1 Q. B. 133; 63 L. J. Q. B. 293; 69 L. T. 844; 42 W. R. 322; 58 J. P. 196; 9 R. 240 (C. A.) - - - - -	33
South of England Natural Gas, &c. Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 573 - - - - -	13, 175, 229, 235
South of Ireland Colliery Co. v. Waddle, L. R. 3 C. P. 469; 16 W. R. 756; 18 L. T. 405; 37 L. J. C. P. 211 - - - - -	334
South Llanharran Co., Re , 12 C. D. 503; 28 W. R. 194; 41 L. T. 567 - - - - -	42, 364
South London Fishmarket Co., Re , 39 C. D. 324; 60 L. T. 68; 37 W. R. 3; 1 Meg. 92 - - - - -	666, 672
South Wales Atlantic, &c. Co., 2 C. D. 763; 46 L. J. Ch. 177; 35 L. T. 294 - - - - -	110
South Wales Miners' Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co., (1905) A. C. 239; 74 L. J. K. B. 525; 92 L. T. 710; 53 W. R. 593 (H. L., E.) - - - - -	33, 115, 444, 445
South Western of Venezuela, &c. Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 701; 71 L. J. Ch. 40; 86 L. T. 321; 50 W. R. 300 - - - - -	727

TABLE OF CASES.

CV

Sou—Sta		PAGE
South Yorkshire Rail. Co. v. G. N. Rail. Co., 9 Ex. 55; 6 H. L. C.
113	-	460
Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 11 Eq. 65; 6 Ch.
619; 19 W. R. 865; 40 L. J. Ch. 698	- 694, 732, 733, 1049, 1329, 1440, 1444, 1452.	1486
Southampton Co. v. Pinnock, 12 W. R. 30	-	753
Southampton Docks Co. v. Richards, 1 Man. & Gr. 448	-	746
Southend-on-Sea Corporation v. White, 83 L. T. 408	-	109
Southern Brazilian Rio Grande do Sul Railway, (1905) 2 Ch. 78;
92 L. T. 598; 53 W. R. 489	-	632
Southern Counties Deposit Bank v. Rider, 73 L. T. 374	-	691, 1359
Southwark Co. v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315	-	1363
Southwell v. Savill Bros., (1901) 2 K. B. 349; 70 L. J. K. B. 815;
49 W. R. 682	-	101
Sovereign Life Co., Re , 42 C. D. 542; 58 L. J. Ch. 811; 61 L. T.
455; 38 W. R. 58	-	511, 1329
Sovereign Life (Salter's Claim), 7 T. L. R. 602	-	443
Sovereign Life Assurance Co. v. Dodd, (1892) 2 Q. B. 573	-	1496, 1497, 1498
Spackman v. Evans, L. R. 3 H. L. 186; 19 L. T. 151; 37 L. J. Ch.
752	-	656, 658, 773
Spanish Prospecting Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 92	-	443, 785, 868, 881
Spargo's Case, 8 Ch. 407; 21 W. R. 306; 28 L. T. 153; 42 L. J. Ch.
488	-	68, 69, 135, 391, 485
Sparks v. Liverpool Waterworks, 13 Ves. 428	-	658, 660
Spiers v. Pond, W. N. (1895) 135	-	1311, 1315
Spiral Globe Co., Re , (1902) 1 Ch. 396; 71 L. J. Ch. 128; 85 L. T.
778; 50 W. R. 187	-	617
Spitzel v. Chinese Corporation, 80 L. T. 347; 6 Mans. 355-49, 54, 55, 73
Spokes v. Grosvenor Hotel Co., (1897) 2 Q. B. 124; 66 L. J. Q. B.
572; 76 L. T. 679; 45 W. R. 546	-	1356
Spottiswood, Dixon and Hunting, Ltd., Re , (1912) 1 Ch. 410	-	112, 1451, 1482
Squire v. Bayer & Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 299	-	1021
Squire (Cash Chemist), Ltd. v. Ball, 27 T. L. R. 269; 28 T. L. R.
81	-	776, 907, 997
Squire v. Midland Lace Co., (1905) 2 K. B. 448	-	1021
St. Hilda's Incorporated College, Cheltenham, (1901) 1 Ch. 556; 70
L. J. Ch. 266; 49 W. R. 279	-	501, 1313, 1314
St. Louis Breweries v. Apthorpe, 79 L. T. 552; 47 W. R. 334; 63
J. P. 135	-	96
Stace and Worth's Case, 4 Ch. 682; 17 W. R. 751	-	718, 1481, 1485
Staffordshire Gas Co., Re , 66 L. T. 413	-	722, 744
Standard Manufacturing Co., Re , (1891) 1 Ch. 627; 60 L. J. Ch. 292;
64 L. T. 487; 39 W. R. 369; Meg. 418 (C. A.)	-	44, 1183
Standing v. Bowring, 31 C. D. 282	-	669
Stanhope's Case, 1 Ch. 161	-	57
Staple (Mayor of the) v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160-
83	-	742
Staples v. Eastman Photographic Materials Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 302;
65 L. J. Ch. 682; 74 L. T. 479	-	577, 813
Star Fire and Burglary Insurance Co. v. Davidson, 4 F. 997, Ct. of Sess.	-	1416
Star Newspaper Co. v. O'Connor, W. N. (1898) 114, 122	-	441

Sta - Stu	PAGE
Stark, Ex parte , (1897) 1 Ch. 575 - - - - -	293
Starkey v. Bank of England, (1903) A. C. 114 - - - - -	687, 711
Starr v. Bowkett, 42 C. D. 365 - - - - -	352
State of Wyoming Syndicate, (1901) 2 Ch. 431; 17 T. L. R. 631; 70 L. J. Ch. 727; 84 L. T. 868; 49 W. R. 650 - - - - -	691, 740, 741, 744, 759
Steel's Case (Re Whitley Partners), 32 C. D. 337; 49 L. J. Ch. 176; 42 L. T. 11; W. N. (1879) 217 - - - - -	1052
Steele v. Harmer, 14 M. & W. 831 - - - - -	510
Stephen, Re , 2 Ph. 562 - - - - -	149
Stephens v. Mysore Reefs, &c. Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 745 - - - - -	470, 600
Stephenson v. London Joint Stock Bank, 20 T. L. R. 8 - - - - -	1037
Stevens v. Hoare, 20 T. L. R. 407 - - - - -	214
Stevens v. Hudson's Bay Co., 101 L. T. 96 - - - - -	99
Stevenson v. Maclean, 5 Q. B. D. 357; 28 W. R. 916; 42 L. T. 897; 49 L. J. Q. B. 701 - - - - -	258
Stevenson v. Wilson (1907), S. C. 445 - - - - -	666, 1369
Stewart's Case, 1 Ch. 574; 14 L. T. 817; 35 L. J. Ch. 738 - - - - -	184, 196, 242, 1389, 1390
Stewart's Precision Carburettor Co., Ltd., L. J. Notes, 30 March, 1912, 218 - - - - -	1520
Stewart v. Weber, C. A. (Times, Dec. 8, 1903); 89 L. T. 559 - - - - -	151
Stirling v. Burdett, (1911) 2 Ch. 418 - - - - -	1245
Stirling v. Passburg Grains, 8 T. L. R. 71 - - - - -	192
Stocken's Case, 3 Ch. 412; 16 W. R. 322; 17 L. T. 554; 37 L. J. Ch. 236 - - - - -	656, 661
Stocker v. Brockelbank, 3 M. & G. 250 - - - - -	441
Stockport School, (1898) 1 Ch. 611 - - - - -	496
Stockton Malleable Iron Co., 2 C. D. 101; 45 L. J. Ch. 168-665, 666, 671
Stone v. City and County Bank, 3 C. P. Div. 282 - - - - -	199
Stone v. Compton, 5 Bing. N. C. 142 - - - - -	1197
Strand v. London Aquarium Soc., 80 L. T. 243 - - - - -	695
Strand Music Hall, Re , 3 De G. J. & S. 147; 14 W. R. 6 - - - - -	687, 1180
Strange v. Fooks, 4 Giff. 408 - - - - -	1247
Stranton Iron Works Company, 16 Eq. 559; 43 L. J. Ch. 215 - - - - -	666, 704, 1389, 1390
Streatham and General Estates Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 15; 66 L. J. Ch. 57; 75 L. T. 574; 45 W. R. 105 - - - - -	509
Strickland v. Williams, (1899) 1 Q. B. 382; 68 L. J. Q. B. 241; 80 L. T. 4 (C. A.) - - - - -	359
Stride v. Martin, 77 L. T. 600 - - - - -	359
Stringer's Case, 4 Ch. 475; 17 W. R. 694; 20 L. T. 591; 38 L. J. Ch. 698 - - - - -	714, 754, 857, 859, 871, 876
Stringer, Ex parte , 9 Q. B. D. 436 - - - - -	671
Strong & Co. v. Woodefield, (1906) A. C. 448; (1905) 2 K. B. 350; 93 L. T. 361; 53 W. R. 625; 21 T. L. R. 440 - - - - -	98, 101
Stroud v. Lawson, (1898) 2 Q. B. 44; 67 L. J. Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729; 46 W. R. 626 (C. A.) - - - - -	1348
Stroud v. Royal Aquarium Co., W. N. (1903) 146; 19 T. L. R. 658; 89 L. T. 243 - - - - -	76, 466, 467, 1026
Stuart's Trusts, 4 C. D. 213; 46 L. J. Ch. 86; 25 W. R. 295 - - - - -	364
Stuart v. Halstead, 55 S. J. 598 - - - - -	357

TABLE OF CASES.

cvii

Stu—Tai	PAGE
Stubbs v. Lister, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 81 - - -	658
Stuckley v. Kekewich, (1906) 1 Ch. 67; 93 L. T. 718; 54 W. R. 256 - - -	347
Studdert v. Grosvenor, 33 C. D. 528; 34 W. R. 754; 53 L. T. 171; 53 L. J. Ch. 689; 50 J. P. 710 - - -	466, 469, 705, 708, 854, 855
Styles v. Middle Temple (Treasurer), 81 L. T. 426 - - -	103
Sugden v. Alsbury, 45 C. D. 237; 60 L. J. Ch. 29; 63 L. T. 576; 39 W. R. 136; 2 Meg. 346; W. N. (1890) 112 - - -	754
Sulley v. Att.-Gen., 5 H. & N. 711 - - -	94
Sullivan v. Mitcalfe, 5 C. P. D. 455; 29 W. R. 181; 44 L. T. 8; 49 L. J. C. P. 815 - - -	227
Summers v. Boyce, 23 T. L. R. 724; 97 L. T. 505 - - -	442
Sun Fire Office v. Hart, 14 App. Cas. 98; 58 L. J. P. C. 69; 60 L. T. 337; 37 W. R. 561; 53 J. P. 548 - - -	672
Sun Insurance Office v. Clark, W. N. (1912) 79 - - -	98, 101
Surrey County Cricket Club, (1901) 2 K. B. 400; 70 L. J. K. B. 823; 65 J. P. 488 - - -	103
Sussex Brick Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 598; 73 L. J. Ch. 308; 90 L. T. 426; 52 W. R. 371 - - -	692, 1388, 1389, 1390, 1391
Sutton's Hospital Case, 10 Rep. 13 - - -	30, 82
Sutton v. English and Colonial Produce Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 502; 71 L. J. Ch. 685; 87 L. T. 438; 50 W. R. 571 - - -	667, 720, 721, 1357, 1406
Swabey v. Port Darwin Co., Re, 1 Meg. 385 - - -	441, 635, 636, 724, 726
Swain v. Fleming, 81 L. T. 202 - - -	105
Swaine v. Wilson, 24 Q. B. D. 252 - - -	116
Swansea Harbour Trustees v. Swansea Union, 97 L. T. 585; 22 T. L. R. 433 - - -	106
Swansea Improvements and Tramways Co. v. Swansea Urban Sanitary Authority, (1892) 1 Q. B. 357 - - -	108
Swayne v. Inland Revenue, (1900) 1 Q. B. 172 - - -	349
Sweny v. Smith (1867), 7 Eq. 324 - - -	659, 660
Syers v. Brighton Brewery Co., 13 W. R. 221 - - -	472
Sykes' Case, 13 Eq. 225; 26 L. T. 92; 41 L. J. Ch. 251 - - -	657, 727
Sylvester, Re, (1895) 1 Ch. 573 - - -	1246
Symons' Case, 5 Ch. 301; 18 W. R. 366; 22 L. T. 217; 39 L. J. Ch. 461 - - -	57, 672
T.
Taddy & Co. v. Sterious & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 354; 89 L. T. 628; 52 W. R. 152 - - -	424
Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, (1901) A. C. 426; 70 L. J. Q. B. 905; 50 W. R. 44 - - -	114, 115, 444
Tahiti Cotton Co., Re, Ex parte Sargent, 17 Eq. 273; 43 L. J. Ch. 425; 22 W. R. 815 - - -	652, 670, 708
Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 523; 58 L. J. Q. B. 75; 60 L. T. 162; 37 W. R. 51; - - -	617, 1183
Tait v. Macleay, (1906) A. C. 24 - 19, 177, 178, 194, 205, 228, 230, 232
Taite's Case, 3 Eq. 795; 15 W. R. 891; 16 L. T. 343; 36 L. J. Ch. 475 - - -	197

Tal—Tho	PAGE
Talbot v. Earl of Shrewsbury, 16 Eq. 28 - - -	770
Tambracherry Co., Re , 29 C. D. 683; 52 L. T. 712; 54 L. J. Ch. 793 - - -	1271
Tamplin's Case, W. N. (1892) 94, 146 - - -	185
Tanqueray v. Bowles, 14 Eq. 151 - - -	1354
Tate v. Williamson, 2 Ch. 55 - - -	1400
Tatham v. Hasler, 23 Q. B. D. 343 - - -	1210
Tatham v. Palace Restaurants, 53 S. J. 743 - - -	1342
Taunton v. Royal Assurance Co., 2 H. & M. 135 - - -	466, 471
Taurine Co., Limited, Re , 25 C. D. 118; 32 W. R. 129; 49 L. T. 514 - - -	666, 668, 672, 743
Taylor v. Bank of New South Wales, 11 App. Cas. 586 - - -	1247
Taylor v. Chichester Rail. Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 390 - - -	349
Taylor v. Crowland Gas Co., 11 Ex. 6 - - -	86
Taylor v. Hamstead Colliery Co., (1904) 1 K. B. 838; 73 L. J. K. B. 469; 90 L. T. 363; 52 W. R. 417 (C. A.) - - -	1023, 1045
Taylor v. Kymor, 3 B. & Ad. 333 - - -	1192
Taylor v. Midland Rail. Co., 8 W. R. 401 - - -	651
Taylor v. Pilsen Co., 27 C. D. 268; 50 L. T. 480; 53 L. J. Ch. 856 - - -	1103
Taylor, Phillips, and Rickard's Case, Re National Bank of Wales, (1897) 1 Ch. 298; 66 L. J. Ch. 222; 76 L. T. 1; 45 W. R. 401 - - -	1388
Taylor's Agreement Trusts, (1901) 2 Ch. 737; 73 L. J. Ch. 557; 52 W. R. 602 - - -	112, 1338
Taylor's Trusts, (1905) 1 Ch. 734; 74 L. J. Ch. 419; 92 L. T. 558; 53 W. R. 441 - - -	577
Tea Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 12; 89 L. T. 516; 52 W. R. 177 - - -	1499
Teadale's Case, 9 Ch. 54; 22 W. R. 286; 29 L. T. 707; 43 L. J. Ch. 578 - - -	750, 751, 1103
Tebran (Johore) Rubber Synd. v. Farmer (1910), S. C. 906, Ct. of Sess. - - -	99
Teede & Bishop, Limited, Re , W. N. (1901) 52; 84 L. T. 561; 70 L. J. Ch. 409; 8 Mans. 217 - - -	694, 695, 848, 1097, 1448
Tees Bottle Co., 33 L. T. 834; 38 L. T. 147 - - -	669, 708
Telegraph Despatch Co. v. McLean, 8 Ch. 658; Lindley, 436 - - -	364, 443
Tennent v. City of Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 615; 27 W. R. 649; 40 L. T. 694 - - -	199
Terrell v. Hutton, 4 H. L. Cas. 1091; 23 L. J. Ch. 345 - - -	148
Thairwall v. Great Northern Rail. Co., (1910) 2 K. B. 509 - - -	769, 770
Thames Conservators v. Smeed, Dean & Co., (1897) 2 Q. B. 334; 66 L. J. Q. B. 716; 77 L. T. 325; 45 W. R. 691 - - -	1094, 1205
Tharsis Sulphur Co. v. Société, &c. des Métaux, 60 L. T. 925; 38 W. R. 78; 58 L. J. Q. B. 435 - - -	362, 782
Theatrical Trust (Chapman's Case), (1895) 1 Ch. 771; W. N. (1895) 60 - - -	60, 62
Thiery v. Chalmers, Guthrie & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 80; 69 L. J. Ch. 122; 81 L. T. 511; 48 W. R. 148 - - -	680
Thomas, Re , 14 Q. B. D. 379; 54 L. J. Q. B. 336; 51 L. T. 602; 33 W. R. 583 - - -	110
Thomas v. United Butter Companies of France, 127 L. T. News. 345 - - -	1486
Thomas v. Devonport Corporation, (1900) 1 Q. B. 16 - - -	776
Thompson's Case, 4 De G. J. & S. 749; 34 L. J. Ch. 525; 12 L. T. 717; 13 W. R. 958 - - -	55

TABLE OF CASES.

cix

Tho—Tow		PAGE.
Thompson v. City Glass Bottle Co., (1902) 1 K. B. 233; 85 L. T. 661; 71 L. J. K. B. 145	- - -	346
Thompson v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84	- - -	694, 695, 1097, 1449
Thompson v. Universal Salvage Co., 1 Ex. 694; 17 L. J. Ex. 118; 50 D. & L. 380	- - -	510
Thomson's Case (Central Klondyke Co.), 5 Mans. 282	- - -	199
Thomson v. Lord (Lanmorris), (1900) 1 Ch. 718	- - -	219, 220, 221
Thorley's Cattle Food Co. v. Massam, 14 C. D. 763	- - -	33
Thorneloe v. Hill, (1894) 1 Ch. 569; 63 L. J. Ch. 331; 70 L. T. 124; 42 W. R. 397	- - -	346
Thornton v. McKewan, 1 H. & M. 525	- - -	1248
Throgmorton v. Tracey, 1 Plowd. 161	- - -	594
Thynne (Lady) v. Earl of Glengall, 2 H. L. C. 158	- - -	1185
Thynne v. Shove, 45 C. D. 577; 59 L. J. Ch. 509; 62 L. T. 803; 38 W. R. 667	- - -	345
Tibbatts v. Boulton, 73 L. T. 551	- - -	198, 200
Tiessen v. Henderson, (1899) 1 Ch. 861; 68 L. J. Ch. 353; 80 L. T. 183; 47 W. R. 459; 6 Mans. 340	- - -	694, 696, 732, 1048, 1083, 1097, 1449, 1486
Tilleard, Re, 3 D. J. & S. 519; 11 W. R. 764; 8 L. T. 587	- - -	149
Tillett v. Charing Cross Railway, 26 Beav. 419; 28 L. J. Ch. 863; 5 Jur. N. S. 994	- - -	349
Tillott, Re, Lee v. Wilson, (1892) 1 Ch. 86; 61 L. J. Ch. 38; 65 L. T. 781; 40 W. R. 204	- - -	688, 791
Tilson v. Warwick Gas Co., 4 B. & C. 962	- - -	221, 633
Tischler & Co. v. Apthorpe (1885), 52 L. T. 814	- - -	95
Tivoli, Manchester, Ltd. v. Colley, 52 W. R. 632; 20 T. L. R. 437	- - -	357
Todd v. Millar (1910), S. C. 868, Ct. of Sess.	- - -	189
Todd v. Robinson, 14 Q. B. Div. 739; 53 L. J. Q. B. 251; 50 L. T. 298; 32 W. R. 858; 48 J. P. 694	- - -	731
Tolhurst v. Associated Portland Cement Co., (1903) A. C. 414; 72 L. J. K. B. 834; 89 L. T. 196; 52 W. R. 143 (H. L., Ex.)	- - -	1460
Tollemache, Re, (1903) 1 Ch. 935; 72 L. J. Ch. 539; 88 L. T. 70; 51 W. R. 597 (C. A.)	- - -	95
Tomkins & Co., (1901) 1 Q. B. 476	- - -	751
Tomkinson v. S. E. Rail. Co., 35 Ch. D. 675; 35 W. R. 758; 56 L. T. 813; 56 L. J. Ch. 932	- - -	465, 508
Tomlin's Case, (1898) 1 Ch. 104; 46 W. R. 171; 77 L. T. 521	- - -	201, 1373
Tompkinson v. Balkis Co., (1893) A. C. 396; 63 L. J. Q. B. 134; 69 L. T. 598; 42 W. R. 204; 1 R. 78 (H. L.)	- - -	674, 1141
Tom Tit Cycle Co., Fisher's Case, 15 T. L. R. 132; W. N. (1899) 35	- - -	1422
Torbock v. Lord Westbury, (1902) 2 Ch. 871; 71 L. J. Ch. 845; 87 L. T. 165; 51 W. R. 133	- - -	695, 1097
Torva, &c. Syndicate v. Kelly, (1900) A. C. 612; 16 T. L. R. 495; 69 L. J. P. C. 115; 83 L. T. 34 (P. C.)	- - -	125
Tothill's Case, 1 Ch. 85; 16 W. R. 1192	- - -	746
Totterdell v. Fareham Brick Co., 1 C. P. 674; 14 W. R. 919; 35 L. J. C. P. 278; 12 Jur. N. S. 901	- - -	743
Touche v. Metropolitan Co., 6 Ch. 671; 40 L. J. Ch. 496	- - -	129, 149
Towers v. African Tug Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 558; 73 L. J. Ch. 395; 90 L. T. 298; 52 W. R. 532	- - -	465, 714, 767, 787, 868, 872, 1353, 1355, 1359, 1360, 1410

Tow—Tyr		PAGE
Townshend v. Jarman, (1900) 2 Ch. 698; 83 L. T. 306; 49 W. R.
158	-	343
Trade Auxiliary Co., 21 W. R. 336	-	691
Trall v. Baring, 4 D. J. & S. 318	-	196, 206
Transport, Ltd. v. Shonberg, 21 T. L. R. 306	-	724, 731, 740, 744
Trego v. Hunt, (1893) 1 Ch. 462; W. N. (1895) 35 (C. A.); (1896)
A. C. 7	-	357, 771
Trenchard v. Hoskins, Winch. 93	-	598
Trenchman v. Calthorpe, 20 T. L. R. 420; reversed by H. L., 15 Dec.
1903, 22 T. L. R. 149	-	230
Trevor v. Whitworth (1887), 12 App. Cas. 409; 36 W. R. 145; 57
L. T. 457; 57 L. J. Ch. 28	-	36, 38, 364, 460, 465, 477, 478, 515,
		516, 593, 631, 749, 750, 751, 766, 861, 871, 891, 911,
		939, 963, 1118, 1124, 1125, 1390, 1395, 1411
Trott v. National Discount Co., 17 T. L. R. 37	-	41
Truman's Case (Brewery Assets Corporation), (1894) 3 Ch. 272; 63
L. J. Ch. 635; 43 W. R. 73	-	37, 48, 57, 257, 290, 778, 1050, 1284
Trust and Agency Co. of Australasia, 25 T. L. R. 61	-	1312, 1326
Tuffnell and Ponsonby's Case, 29 Ch. D. 444	-	484
Tulk v. Moxhay, 2 Ph. 772	-	664
Tullis v. Jackson, (1892) 3 Ch. 441; 61 L. J. Ch. 655; 67 L. T. 340;
41 W. R. 11	-	231
Tunis Rail. Co., Re, 31 L. T. 264; 10 C. D. 270, n.	-	514
Turnbull v. West Riding, &c. Co., 70 L. T. 92	-	728
Turner, Re, Barker v. Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 536	-	715
Turner, Re, Barker v. Ivimey, (1897) 1 Ch. 373	-	1402
Turner v. Evans, 2 Ell. & B. 512; 22 L. J. Q. B. 412; 17 Jur.
1073	-	358
Turner v. Goldsmith, (1891) 1 Q. B. 544	-	443
Turner v. Mason, 11 M. & W. 112	-	442
Turner v. Sampson, 27 T. L. R. 200	-	1210
Turner v. Sawdon & Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 653	-	443
Turquand v. Kirby, 4 Eq. 123	-	1354
Turquand v. Marshall, 4 Ch. 376; 17 W. R. 935; 20 L. T. 765;
38 L. J. Ch. 639	-	713, 1402
Turton v. Turton, 42 C. D. 128; 58 L. J. Ch. 677; 61 L. T. 571;
38 W. R. 22	-	452, 453
Tussaud v. Tussaud, 44 C. D. 678; 59 L. J. Ch. 631; 62 L. T. 633;
38 W. R. 503; 2 Meg. 120	-	451
Tuticorin Cotton Press Co. (1894), 43 W. R. 190; 71 L. T. 723; 13
R. March, 129	-	679
Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469, 503; 25 W. R. 701; 34 L. T.
812; 46 L. J. C. P. 636	-	19, 69, 122, 133, 150, 178, 208,
		215, 227, 228, 229, 611, 722
Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40; 46 L. J. C. P. 636; 36 L. T. 812;
27 W. R. 87 (C. A.)	-	142, 207, 222, 1350
Tyne Boiler Co. v. Overseers of Longbenton, 18 Q. B. D. 81	-	107
Tyne Mutual Steamship Insurance Assoc. v. Brown, 74 L. T. 283;
75 L. T. 483	-	81, 710, 722, 736, 744
Tyrell v. Bank of London, 10 H. L. C. 26	-	131, 133

U.

Und—Ver	PAGE
Underhill v. Hopwood, 10 Ves. 226 - - - - -	1245
Underwood v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300; 68 L. J. Ch. 201; 80 L. T. 306; 47 W. R. 347 (C. A.) - - - - -	357
Underwood v. London Music Hall, (1901) 2 Ch. 309; 47 W. R. 507; 84 L. T. 739; 70 L. J. Ch. 743; 49 W. R. 507 - - - - -	579, 811, 818
Union Bank of Australia v. Murray Aynsley, (1898) A. C. 693; 67 L. J. P. C. 123 (P. C.) - - - - -	1193
Union Bank of Kingston-upon Hull, Re , 13 Ch. D. 808; 28 W. R. 808; 42 L. T. 390; 49 L. J. Ch. 264 - - - - -	1443, 1444, 1474
Union Bank of Scotland v. Foster, 65 J. P. 824 - - - - -	105
Union Credit Bank v. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, (1899) 2 Q. B. 205; 68 L. J. Q. B. 842; 81 L. T. 44 - - - - -	1207
Union Finance Co., W. N. (1887) 253 - - - - -	1271
Union Hill Silver Co., 22 L. T. 400 - - - - -	779
Union Plate Glass Co., 42 C. D. 513 - - - - -	1494
United Provident Association, (1910) 2 Ch. 477 - - - - -	1407
United Service Co., 7 Eq. 76; 5 Ch. 707; 18 W. R. 1050; 23 L. T. 331; 39 L. J. Ch. 730; 6 Ch. 212 - - - - -	37
United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada v. Brunet, (1909) A. C. 330 - - - - -	424
United States Cable Co., Re , 48 L. J. Ch. 665 - - - - -	1446
United States Debenture Corporation, Times, 2 Aug. 1905 - - - - -	754
United Telephone Co. v. Sharples, 29 C. D. 164; 33 W. R. 444; 52 L. T. 384; 54 L. J. Ch. 633 - - - - -	381
Unity, &c. Association v. King, 25 Beav. 72 - - - - -	1186
Universal Life Assurance Society v. Bishop (1899), 68 L. J. Q. B. 902; 81 L. T. 422; 64 J. P. 5 - - - - -	101
Universal Life Assurance Society, 18 T. L. R. 198 - - - - -	1330
Ural Gold Fields v. Pappa, 15 T. L. R. 330 - - - - -	666
Urmston v. Whitelegg (1875), 63 L. T. 455; 55 J. P. 453 - - - - -	116

V.

Vagliano Anthracite Co., W. N. (1910) 187; 103 L. T. 211 - - - - -	645, 650
Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 16 T. L. R. 522; 83 L. T. 259 (C. A.) - - - - -	450, 451
Vallombrosa Rubber Co. v. Inland Revenue (1910), S. C. 519, Ct. of Sess. - - - - -	101
Valletort Sanitary Laundry Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 654; 89 L. T. 60; 72 L. J. Ch. 674 - - - - -	1189
Vance v. East Lancashire Rail. Co., 3 K. & J. 50 - - - - -	457
Venables v. Baring Brothers & Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 527; 61 L. J. Ch. 609; 67 L. T. 110; 40 W. R. 699 - - - - -	1187
Venning v. Leckie, 13 East, 7 - - - - -	1214
Verner v. General and Commercial Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 239; 63 L. J. Ch. 456; 70 L. T. 516; 7 E. 170 (C. A.) - - - - -	766, 841, 863, 865, 866, 870, 874, 875, 879, 880, 881, 889, 893, 895, 896, 897, 898, 900, 901, 902

Ver--Wal	PAGE
Vernon v. Hallam, 34 C. D. 748 - - - - -	358
Vickers v. Siddell, 15 A. C. 590 - - - - -	237
Vickers v. Vickers, 4 Eq. 529 - - - - -	349
Victory v. Great Eastern Rail. Co., 79 L. T. 121 - - - - -	38
Victoria Steamboats Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 158 - - - - -	1447
Vining's Case, 6 Ch. 96; 19 W. R. 173; 40 L. J. Ch. 79 - - - - -	1446
Violet Consolidated, &c. Co., W. N. (1899) 66; 68 L. J. Ch. 535; 80 L. T. 684 - - - - -	666, 1389
Vivian & Co. (H. H.), (1900) 2 Ch. 654; 69 L. J. Ch. 659; 82 L. T. 674; 48 W. R. 636; 7 Mans. 470 - - - - -	457, 1447
Vivian & Co., Re , 34 W. R. 411; W. N. (1886) 32; 54 L. T. 384, 610; 55 L. J. Ch. 436 - - - - -	1, 19, 1123, 1124, 1158, 1283
Von Heyden v. Neustadt, 14 C. D. 230; 28 W. R. 496; 42 L. T. 300 - - - - -	381
Voss and Saunders' Contract, 103 L. T. 493 - - - - -	355
Vulcan Iron Works, Re , W. N. (1885) 120 - - - - -	1141

W.

Waddell v. Wolfe, L. R. 9 Q. B. 515; 23 W. R. 44; 43 L. J. Q. B. 138 - - - - -	350
Wade v. Ward, 4 Drew. 602 - - - - -	1216
Wainwright's Case, W. N. (1890) 3; 62 L. T. 30; 63 L. T. 429; 59 L. J. Ch. 281; 1 Meg. 463 - - - - -	191
Wakefield Rolling Stock Co., Re , (1892) 3 Ch. 165; 61 L. J. Ch. 670; 67 L. T. 83; 40 W. R. 700 - - - - -	108, 658, 783, 785
Walburn v. Ingilby, 1 M. & K. 61 - - - - -	1363
Walker v. Brisley, (1900) 2 Q. B. 735 - - - - -	105
Walker v. Hackney, 57 L. T. 763 - - - - -	465
Walker v. Levy, 10 C. D. 436; 27 W. R. 370; 39 L. T. 654; 48 L. J. Ch. 273 - - - - -	345
Walker v. London Tramways Co., 12 C. D. 705; 28 W. R. 163; 49 L. J. Ch. 23 - - - - -	630, 636, 754
Walker v. Mottram, 19 C. D. 355 - - - - -	345
Walker v. Remmett, 15 L. J. Ch. 8, 174 - - - - -	294
Walker v. Smith, 72 L. J. Ch. 572; 88 L. T. 792; 51 W. R. 491; W. N. (1903) 82 - - - - -	26, 1285
Walker Steam Trawl Fishing Co. (1908), S. C. 123, Ct. of Sess. - - - - -	1260
Wall v. London and Northern Assets Corporation, (1899) 1 Ch. 550; (1898) 2 Ch. 469; 67 L. J. Ch. 596; 79 L. T. 249 (C. A.) - - - - -	295, 511, 514, 699, 704, 845, 849, 1082, 1098, 1442, 1481, 1483
Wall v. Lord Egmont, 4 D. M. & G. 460; 9 Ha. 449 - - - - -	1051
Wallace's Case, Re Metropolitan Fire Insurance Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 671; 69 L. J. Ch. 777; 83 L. T. 403 - - - - -	50, 51, 257
Wallace v. Gibson, (1895) A. C. 354 - - - - -	1196
Wallace v. Universal Automatic Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 547; 63 L. J. Ch. 598; 70 L. T. 852; 1 Mans. 315; 7 R. 316 - - - - -	1447
Wallasey Brick and Land Co., W. N. (1894) 20; 63 L. J. Ch. 415; 70 L. T. 870 - - - - -	1264

Wal-Web	PAGE
Wallcourt's Case (Lord), W. N. (1899) 258 - - -	638
Waller v. Loch, 7 Q. B. D. 619 - - -	697
Wallis and Barnard's Contract, Re , (1899) 2 Ch. 513; 81 L. T. 382; 48 W. R. 87 - - -	350
Wallis' Case, L. R. 4 Ch. 325, n. - - -	31, 52, 1461
Wallis v. Smith, 21 C. D. 243 - - -	596
Wallwyn v. Shepherd, 4 Ves. 119 - - -	1185
Walsh v. Secretary of State for India, 10 H. L. C. 367 - - -	364, 950
Walters v. Green, (1899) 2 Ch. 696; 68 L. J. Ch. 730; 81 L. T. 151; 48 W. R. 23; 63 L. T. 712 - - -	1348, 1349
Walters v. Northern Canal Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 629; 4 W. R. 140; 26 L. T. 167; 2 Jur. N. S. 1 - - -	328
Walters v. Woodbridge, 7 C. D. 504 - - -	787
Wandsworth, &c. Co. v. Wright, 22 L. T. 404 - - -	699, 701
Ward and Henry's Case, 2 Ch. 431; 16 L. T. 254; 36 L. J. Ch. 462 - - -	1390
Ware v. The Grand Junction Waterworks Co., 2 R. & M. 470 - - -	512
Warner v. Millington, 3 Drew. 523 - - -	338
Warren, Re , 7 Manson, 137 - - -	1197
Warrington v. Furber, 8 East, 245; 6 Esp. 89 - - -	1214
Warwick v. Richardson, 10 M. & W. 284 - - -	349
Warwicke v. Noakes, Peake, 67 - - -	770
Washington Diamond Mining Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 95; 62 L. J. Ch. 895; 69 L. T. 27; 41 W. R. 681; 2 R. 523 (C. A.) - - -	657, 727
Watkin, Ex parte , 1 C. D. 130 - - -	444
Watkins v. Caledonian Rail. Co., (1892) 1 Q. B. 803 - - -	1240
Watkins v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 285 - - -	86, 1340
Watney v. Musgrave, 5 Ex. D. 241 - - -	100
Watson, Ex parte , 21 Q. B. D. 301 - - -	1199
Watson & Co. v. Spiral Globe, Ltd., (1902) 2 Ch. 209; 71 L. J. Ch. 538; 86 L. T. 499 - - -	616, 617
Watson v. Eales, 23 Beav. 294; 28 L. T. O. S. 243; 26 L. J. Ch. 361 - - -	656
Watson v. King, 4 Camp. 272 - - -	1158
Watson v. Sandie and Hall, (1898) 1 Q. B. 326; 67 L. J. Q. B. 319; 77 L. T. 528; 46 W. R. 202 - - -	95, 103, 119
Watson v. Spratley, 10 Ex. 222; 24 L. J. Ex. 53 - - -	26
Watts v. Ainsworth, 1 H. & C. 83 - - -	335
Watts v. Atkinson, 8 T. L. R. 235 - - -	205
Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 766; 72 L. J. Ch. 447; 88 L. T. 845; 51 W. R. 433 (C. A.) - - -	174, 178, 203, 228, 230
Wauthier v. Wilson, 27 T. L. R. 582 - - -	1197
Wear and Tees, Leith Hill, &c. Co. v. I. R., 1 F. 1117; W. N. (1900) 210 - - -	109
Webb v. Earle, 20 Eq. 557; 24 W. R. 46; 44 L. J. Ch. 608 - - -	577, 813
Webb, Hale & Co. v. Alexandria Water Co., 21 T. L. R. 572; 93 L. T. 339 - - -	681, 1106, 1138
Webb v. Whiffin, L. R. 5 H. L. 735 - - -	1439
Webster's Case, 2 Eq. 741; 7 L. T. 618; 14 L. T. 728; 32 L. J. Ch. 135 - - -	196, 660
Webster v. Cook, 2 Ch. 542 - - -	1239

Wed—Wes

PAGE

Wedgwood Coal Co., Re , 6 Ch. D. 627; 31 W. R. 181; 47 L. T. 612 - - - - -	789, 1499, 1502
Weeks v. Propert, L. R. 8 C. P. 427; 21 W. R. 679; 42 L. J. C. P. 129 - - - - -	335, 687, 710
Wegz-Prosser v. Evans, (1895) 1 Q. B. 108; 64 L. J. Q. B. 1; 72 L. T. 8; 43 W. R. 66 - - - - -	1250
Weiker-heim's Case, 8 Ch. 831 - - - - -	45
Weiner v. Harris, W. N. (1900) 234 - - - - -	206
Weir v. Bell, 3 Ex. D. 238; 47 L. J. Ex. 704; 38 L. T. 929; 26 W. R. 746 - - - - -	203, 526, 788
Wells v. Murray, 4 Ex. 843 - - - - -	702
Welsbach Incandescent Gas Lighting Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 87; 73 L. J. Ch. 104; 89 L. T. 645; 52 W. R. 327 (C. A.) - - - - -	480, 576, 579, 581, 685, 811, 818, 1122, 1259, 1260, 1261, 1263, 1363
Welsbach Incandescent Gas Lighting Co. v. New Sunlight Incandescent Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 1; 69 L. J. Ch. 546; 83 L. T. 58; 48 W. R. 595 (C. A.) - - - - -	1363
Welsh Flannel and Tweed Co., Re , 20 Eq. 367; 23 W. R. 558; 32 L. T. 361; 44 L. J. Ch. 391 - - - - -	656
Welsh Whisky Distillery Co., W. N. (1900) 59; 69 T. L. R. 246 - - - - -	785
Welton v. Salford, 1897 A. C. 299; 66 L. J. Ch. 362; 76 L. T. 505; 45 W. R. 508 - - - - -	30, 36, 60, 63, 65, 67, 465, 476, 477, 478, 593, 631, 632, 633, 683, 1457
Wemyss Collieries Trust v. Melville, 8 F. 143 - - - - -	814
Wenlock (Baronesa) v. River Dee Co., 36 C. D. 674; 10 App. Cas. 354 - - - - -	30, 460, 589, 1455
Werderman v. Société Générale, 19 C. D. 246 - - - - -	381, 405
West Coast Gold Fields, Rowe's Trustees, (1905) 1 Ch. 597; (1906) 1 Ch. 1; 74 L. J. Ch. 347; 92 L. T. 596; 53 W. R. 455 - - - - -	661, 843
West Cumberland, &c. Co., 58 L. T. 152; W. N. (1888) 54 - - - - -	1283, 1285
West of England Bank, Re , 11 C. D. 768; 48 L. J. Ch. 577; 27 W. R. 596 - - - - -	44
West of England Bank, Ex parte Booker, 14 C. D. 317 - - - - -	468
West of England Bank v. Murch, 23 C. D. 138 - - - - -	1002
West of England Fire Co. v. Isaacs, (1897) 1 Q. B. 226; 66 L. J. Q. B. 36; 75 L. T. 564 - - - - -	361
West India and Pacific Steamship Co., Re , 9 Ch. App. 11, n. - - - - -	1103, 1264
West London Commercial Bank v. Kitson, 15 Q. B. D. 360; 32 W. R. 757; 50 L. T. 656; 53 L. J. Q. B. 345 - - - - -	187
West London Syndicate v. Inland Revenue, (1898) 2 Q. B. 507; 67 L. J. Q. B. 956; 79 L. T. 289; 47 W. R. 125 (C. A.) - - - - -	340, 341, 342
West Riding, &c. Building Society, Re , 45 C. D. 463; 39 W. R. 74 - - - - -	1200
West Yorkshire Darracq Agency, 25 T. L. R. 77; W. N. (1908) 236 - - - - -	11, 12
Westbourne Grove Drapery Co., 5 C. D. 248 - - - - -	112, 1458
Western Bank of Scotland v. Addie, L. R. 6 H. L. (Sc.) 168 - - - - -	212
Western Counties Steam Bakeries Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 617 (C. A.); 66 L. J. Ch. 354; 76 L. T. 239; 45 W. R. 418 - - - - -	777
Western of Canada Oil Co., W. N. (1874) 148 - - - - -	1502
Western Wagon Co. v. West, (1892) 1 Ch. 271; 61 L. J. Ch. 244; 66 L. T. 402; 40 W. R. 182 - - - - -	290
Westminster Electric Supply Co., (1897) - - - - -	1261, 1262

TABLE OF CASES.

CIV

Wes-Wig	PAGE
Westminster Fire Office v. Glas., &c. Society, 13 A. C. 714 -	361
Westmorland Green, &c. Co. (Bland's Case), (1893) 2 Ch. 612; 62 L. J. Ch. 975; 66 L. T. 370; 69 L. T. 700; 2 R. 500 (C. A.) -	138, 144
Westmorland, &c. Co. v. Feilden, (1891) 3 Ch. 15 -	1367
Weston's Case (No. 1), 4 Ch. 20; 17 W. R. 62; 19 L. T. 337; 38 L. J. Ch. 49 -	76, 602, 665, 666, 722, 1352
Weston's Case (No. 2), 10 C. D. 579; 27 W. R. 310; 40 L. T. 43; 18 L. J. Ch. 425 -	1440, 1443
Weston v. New Guston Co., 60 L. T. 805; 64 H. L. 815 -	1440, 1433
Whaley Bridge Co. v. Green, 5 Q. B. D. 109; 28 W. R. 351; 41 L. T. 674; 49 L. J. Q. B. 326 -	122, 133, 733
Wheatcroft's Case, 29 L. T. 324 -	55, 750, 1389
Wheatley v. Silkstone Co., 29 C. D. 715; 33 W. R. 707; 52 L. T. 798; 54 L. J. Ch. 778 -	616
Wheatley's Trustee v. H. Wheatley, Limited (1901), 85 L. T. 491 -	949
Whelan, Re , (1897) 1 Ir. R. 575 -	1246
Whinney, Ex parte , 13 Q. B. D. 476 -	1367
Whithread, Ex parte , 19 Ves. 209 -	1186
Whithread & Co. v. Watt, (1902) 1 Ch. 835; 71 L. J. Ch. 424; 86 L. T. 395; 50 W. R. 442 (C. A.) -	349
Whitechurch (George), Limited v. Cavanagh, 85 L. T. 349 -	667
White and Smith's Contract, (1896) 1 Ch. 637; 65 L. J. Ch. 181; 74 L. T. 377; 44 W. R. 424 -	353
White v. Hayman, 1 Cab. & Ellis, 101 -	229, 260
White v. Land, &c. Co., W. N. (1883) 174 -	778
White v. Lincoln, 8 Ves. 363 -	771
White v. Metcalfe, (1903) 2 Ch. 567; 72 L. J. Ch. 712; 89 L. T. 164 -	1217
White v. Spafford, (1901) 2 Q. B. 241; 70 L. J. K. B. 658; 84 L. T. 574 (C. A.) -	1364
White, Tompkins and Courage v. Wilson, 23 T. L. R. 449 -	358
Whitechurch (George) & Co., (1901) A. C. 117 -	376
Whitehall Court, Re , 56 L. T. 280 -	25
Whitehouse, 42 L. T. 385 -	708
Whitehouse's Case, 3 Eq. 794; 15 W. R. 892 -	201
Whiteley's Case, Re Gen. Ry. Synd., (1900) 1 Ch. 365; 69 L. J. Ch. 250; 82 L. T. 134; 48 W. R. 440 (C. A.) -	199, 200
Whiteley v. Barley, 21 Q. B. D. 154 -	731
Whiteley Exerciser, Limited v. Gamage, (1898) 2 Ch. 405; 67 L. J. Ch. 560; 79 L. T. 20; 5 Mans. 249 -	111, 1451
Whitfield v. South Eastern Rail. Co., E. B. & E. 115 -	38, 546
Whitley, Re , 65 L. T. 351 -	751, 1047
Whitley Partners, Re , Steel's Case, 32 C. D. 337; 28 W. R. 241; 49 L. J. Ch. 176; 42 L. T. 11 -	52, 84, 258, 484, 491, 1052
Whitwam v. Watkin, 78 L. T. 188 -	75, 1353
Whitwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, (1891) 2 Ch. 416; 60 L. J. Ch. 428; 64 L. T. 716; 39 W. R. 433 -	441
Wighfield v. Potter, 45 L. T. 612 -	111
Wigram v. Buckley, (1894) 3 Ch. 483; 63 L. J. Ch. 689; 71 L. T. 287; 43 W. R. 147; 7 R. 469 (C. A.) -	1189

Wil-Woo	PAGE
Wild v. South African Supply, &c. Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268; 73 L. J. Ch. 657; 91 L. T. 447; 52 W. R. 649 - - -	579
Wilkinson v. Cummins, 11 Ha. 337 - - -	76, 764
Will v. United Lankat Plantations, L. J. Notes, 30 May, 1912 -	685
Willett v. Argenti, W. N. (1889) 66; 60 L. T. 735 - - -	353
William Robinson v. Heuer, (1898) 2 Ch. 451; 67 L. J. Ch. 644; 79 L. T. 281; 47 W. R. 34 (C. A.) - - -	358
Williams, Ex parte , 2 Eq. 218; 14 W. R. 706; 14 L. T. 456; 35 L. J. Ch. 474 - - -	239
Williams v. Cartwright, (1895) 1 Q. B. 142 - - -	86
Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 395 - - -	1142
Williams v. Hathaway, 6 C. D. 544 - - -	328
Williams v. Ingram, 16 T. L. R. 434 - - -	1363
Williams v. North's Navigation Co., (1906) A. C. 136; (1904) 2 K. B. 44; 73 L. J. K. B. 575; 91 L. T. 3; 52 W. R. 564 - - -	1020
Williams v. Stepney, (1891) 2 Q. B. 257; 60 L. J. Q. B. 636; 65 L. T. 208; 39 W. R. 533 (C. A.); reversing, (1891) 1 Q. B. 700; 64 L. T. 795 - - -	842
Williams v. Stern, 5 Q. B. D. 409; 28 W. R. 901; 42 L. T. 719; 49 L. J. Q. B. 663 - - -	665
Williamson v. Williamson, 7 Eq. 542 - - -	1193
Willmott v. London Road Car, (1910) 2 Ch. 525 - - -	44, 221, 355, 421, 1458
Wills v. Murray, 4 Ex. 843; 19 L. J. Ex. 209 - - -	692
Wilmer v. McNameara & Co., Ltd., (1895) 2 Ch. 245; 43 W. R. 519; 72 L. T. 552 - - -	766, 863
Wilson and Stevens' Contract, (1894) 3 Ch. 546; 63 L. J. Ch. 863; 71 L. T. 388; 43 W. R. 23; 8 R. 641 - - -	354
Wilson v. Brett, 11 M. & W. 115 - - -	713
Wilson v. Lord Bury, 5 Q. B. D. 518 - - -	787, 789, 1402
Wilson v. Lloyd, 16 Eq. 60 - - -	1247
Wilson v. Wallani, 5 Ex. D. 155 - - -	705, 1175
Wilson v. West Hartlepool Rail. Co., 2 De G. J. & S. 475 - - -	37, 43, 1185
Wiltshire v. Sims, 1 Camp. 258 - - -	1157
Wilts and Berks Canal Co., 3 Ad. & El. 477 - - -	71
Wimbledon Olympia, (1910) 1 Ch. 730 - - -	175, 229, 235
Wincham Shipbuilding Co., Re , 9 Ch. Div. 322; 26 W. R. 823; 38 L. T. 659; 48 L. J. Ch. 48 - - -	657
Wingate (James) & Co. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, 24 Rettie, 939; W. N. (1898) 129 - - -	102
Winstone's Case, 12 C. D. 239 - - -	479
Winterbottom, Re , 18 Q. B. D. 446 - - -	656, 752
Wise v. Perpetual Trustee Co., (1903) A. C. P. C. 139; 72 L. J. P. C. 31; 87 L. T. 569; 51 W. R. 241 (P. C.) - - -	567
Witham v. Vane, Challis (2nd ed.), 401 - - -	950
Wittaker v. Kershaw, 45 C. D. 320 - - -	679
Wolverhampton, &c. Rail. Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., 16 Eq. 433 - - -	441
Wood's Case, 3 De G. & J. 85; 15 Eq. 236 - - -	55
Wood v. Anderston Foundry Co., 36 W. R. 918 - - -	1340
Wood v. De Mattos, 1 Ex. 100 - - -	1496
Wood v. Odessa Waterworks Co., 42 C. D. 645; 58 L. J. Ch. 628; 37 W. R. 733; 1 Meg. 265 - - -	633, 634, 768, 1063

TABLE OF CASES.

cxvii

	PAGE
Woo-Yor
Wood v. Woodhouse, W. N. (1896) 4	1451
Wood Ships, &c. Co., 62 L. T. 760	725
Woods and Lewis' Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 433; (1898) 2 Ch. 211; 67 L. J. Ch. 475; 78 L. T. 665; 46 W. R. 643 (C. A.)	334
Woolaston's Case, 4 De G. & J. 437; 28 L. J. Ch. 721	659
Woolf v. East Nigel Co., 21 T. L. R. 660	727
Worth's Case, 4 Drew. 329	204
Wragg, Limited, Re, (1897) 1 Ch. 796; 66 L. J. Ch. 419; 76 L. T. 397; 45 W. R. 357	945
Wrexham Mold Rail. Co., Re, (1899) 1 Ch. 440; 80 L. T. 130; 47 W. R. 464	686
Wright's Case, 7 Ch. 55; 20 W. R. 45; 25 L. T. 471; 41 L. J. Ch. 1 (C. A.); 12 Eq. 335	993
Wright v. Chappell, 17 W. R. 655	357, 358
Wright v. Horton, 12 App. Cas. 371; 36 W. R. 17; 56 L. T. 782; 56 L. J. Ch. 378	688
Wright v. Simpson, 6 Ves. 714; Smith's Merc. Law, 11th ed. 625	1245
Wulff v. Jay, L. R. 7 Q. B. 756	1247
Wye Valley Rail. Co. v. Hawes, 16 C. D. 489; 20 W. R. 177; 43 L. T. 715; 50 L. J. Ch. 225	871, 872, 1356
Wylde v. Radford, 9 Jur. N. S. 1169	1186
Wynne's Case, 8 Ch. 1007; 21 W. R. 895; 29 L. T. 381; 43 L. J. Ch. 138	514, 1481

X.

Xenos v. Wickham, L. R. 2 H. L. 310	83
-------------------------------------	----

Y.

Yarborough v. Bank of England, 16 East, 6	37
Yelland's Case, 4 Eq. 350	443
Yeoland Consols, 53 L. T. 922	57
Yolland, Hussion and Birkett, Ltd., (1908) 1 Ch. 152; 97 L. T. 824 - 618, 1285
York Glass Co., 60 L. T. 744	1124
York, &c. Rail. Co. v. Hudson (1853), 16 Beav. 485	711, 712
York Tramways Co. v. Willows, 8 Q. B. D. 685	50, 736, 737, 740, 742, 744
Yorkshire, &c. Co., 9 Eq. 650; 18 W. R. 541	688, 772
Yorkshire Miners' Assoc. v. Howden, 21 T. L. R. 431; (1905) A. C. 256	115
Yorkshire Railway Waggon Co. v. Maclure, 19 C. D. 478; 21 C. D. 309	1248

P.

Yor—Zuc	PAGE
Yorkshire Rail. Co. v. Maclure, 21 C. D. 307; 30 W. R. 761; 47 L. T. 290; 51 L. J. Ch. 837	- 474
Young, Ex parte , 17 C. D. 668	- 1248
Young and Harston's Contract, Re , 31 C. D. 168	- 354
Young v. Ashley Gardens Properties, (1903) 2 Ch. 112; 72 L. J. Ch. 520; 88 L. T. 341 (C. A.)	- 355
Young v. Bank of Bengal, 1 Dea. 622, 677	- 1194
Young v. Brownlee & Co. (1911), S. C. 677 (Ct. of Sess.)	- 752
Young v. David Payne & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 609; 20 T. L. R. 590; 73 L. J. Ch. 849	- 1051
Young v. English, 7 Beav. 10	- 1192
Young v. Naval & Co. Soc., (1905) 1 K. B. 687; 74 L. J. K. B. 302; 92 L. T. 458; 53 W. R. 447	- 712, 724, 725, 745, 787, 788
Young v. South African, &c. Syndicate, (1896) 2 Ch. 268; 65 L. J. Ch. 638; 74 L. T. 527; 44 W. R. 509	- 692, 1099
Ystalyfera Gas Co., Re , W. N. (1887) 30	- 1389
Ystradvodwg, &c. Board v. Newport Assessment Com., (1901) 1 Q. B. 406	- 108

Z.

Zuccani v. Nacupai Co., 61 L. T. 176; 1 Meg. 230	- 1440, 1443
--	--------------

ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA.

Page 102.—Liverpool and London and Globe Co. v. Bennett, reported also in (1912) 2 K. B. 41.

453.—Refer also to Kingston, Miller & Co. v. Thomas Kingston & Co., (1912) 1 Ch. 576; following Fine Cotton Spinners and Doublers' Association v. Harwood, Cash & Co., (1907) 2 Ch. 184.

554.—F. Stacey & Co., Limtd v. Wallis, also reported in 106 L. T. 554.

689.—Clause 56, in note refer to Gardner v. Iredale, (1912) 1 Ch. 700.

691.—Note to clause 59 on the construction of clause 66 of Table A., see Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Assoc. v. Kekewich, 28 T. L. R. 411; W. N. (1912) 139.

1081 at foot.—Add also reference to p. 1048.

1286.—	{	Refer to Oceana Development Co. , W. N. (1912) 121 and p. 138, 17 April and 7 y, 1912, from which it appears that the
1306.—Form 648		ute approved by the Court should, where requisite, show the denoting numbers of the shares, but that the advertisement need not set out the minute.

1339, line 18 from top.—Substitute "Richard Burdon, Viscount Haldane of Cloan" for "Robert Threshie, Earl Loreburn."

ALPHABETICAL SYNOPSIS.

	Page		Page
Accounts	770	Life Assurance Companies	1636
Adjournment	708, 799	Majority, Rights of	73, 1367
Agreements	381	Membership	45
Allotment of Shares	49	Memorandum of Association	427
Alteration of Articles	33, 1103	Minimum Subscription	9, 11, 363
Amalgamation	1481	Minutes	745
Amendments	604, 649	Misrepresentation (Examples of) ..	133
Articles of Association	639	Name of Company	449
Attorney, Powers of	1155	Negligence	36, 713, 738
Auditors	773	Notice of Articles, &c.	77
Banking and Advance Securities ..	1179	Notices	1047
Borrowing Powers	21, 683	Objects (Extension of)	1309
Bribes	133, 733, 1352	Officers (Appointment of)	441
Calls	654	One-man Companies	23, 940
Capital (Changes as to)	420, 578, 320	Petitions	1265
Capital, Fixed and Circulating	354	Pleadings	1385
Capital (Increase)	633, 1104	Polls	700, 850
Capital (Reduction)	684, 1355, 1363	Pooling	169
Certificate of Incorporation	24	Powers of Attorney	1155
Certification of Shares	654	Powers of Company	37, 473
Certification	674	Preference Shares	578, 812 of seq.
Commencement of Business	30, 808	Preliminary Contracts	147, 321, 648
Commissions on Shares	381	Private Companies	909
Common Seal	31, 82	Profits (what are)	875
Company Limited by Guarantee. 448, 795		Promoters	131
Contracts mentioned in Prospectus. 171		Prospectuses	165
Corporation (Characteristics of) 30 of seq.		Proxies	703
Deceit (Action of)	302	Qualification of Directors	718
Directors	710	Quorum	697, 740
Directors' Liability Act	308	Reconstruction	1431
Disclosure	143, 173	Rectification of Register	1387
Discount (Issuing at)	60	Register of Members	70
Dividends	763, 873	Registered Office	84
Division of Shares	684, 1118	Registration of Company	449, 808
Employee's Benefits	507, 1017	Registration of Mortgages, &c.	616
Factors Acts	3019	Resolutions	1091
Filing Contracts (as to Shares) ..	330, 363	Secretary	749
Foreclosure (Order of)	1419	Special Resolutions	1092
Forfeiture	656	Stock Exchange Rules	265
Formation of Company	1 of seq.	Syndicates	158
Founders' Shares	578	Transfer of Shares	965
Fully-paid Shares	347, 578, 819	Ultra Vires	453
General Meetings	699, 840	Undertaking, Sale or Mortgage of ..	345, 367, 1159, 1359
House of Lords Appeals	1423	Underwriting	275
Illegal Associations	109, 1537	Unlimited Companies	503, 804
Income Tax	37	Votes	702
Judgments and Orders	1357	Writs of Summons	1339
Laches (as affecting Rescission) ..	197
Lien on Share	963

[For ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA, see back.]

[To face p. 1 of Sig. B.]

COMPANY PRECEDENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY NOTES.

	PAGE		PAGE
Formation	1	Partnership Law, applicability of ..	75
Restrictions on naming Directors ..	6	Implied Notice of Mem. and Articles ..	77
Minimum Subscription	"	Presumption of Regularity as re-
Commencement of Business	20	gards Indoor Management	79
Effect of Incorporation	24	Common Seal	82
Corporate Capacities	27	Residence or Domicil	84
Action of Company's Agents	36	Income Tax	87
Membership	45	Corporation Duty	104
Subscription	46	Rates	105
Allotment	49	Illegal Associations	109
Liability to pay for Shares ..	58	Dissolution	111
Amount of Consideration	60	Mortmain	112
Register of Members	70	Trade Unions	113
Powers of Majorities	73	Foreign Companies	118

The Formation and Registration of Companies.

THE Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, c. 69), now governs the formation of companies, and has taken the place of the Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 89), and of the many Acts amending and extending the provisions of that Act.

The Act of 1862 was amended and extended by the following Acts:—

1. The Companies Seals Act, 1864 (27 Vict. c. 19).

This Act empowered companies in certain cases to have official seals for use abroad.

2. The Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 131).

This Act provided for reduction of capital, issue of share-warrants to bearer, sub-division of shares and other matters.

3. The Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 104).

This Act extended the powers of the Court in winding-up as to compromises and arrangements with creditors.

4. The Companies Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 26).

This Act provided further for reduction of capital.

5. The Companies Act, 1879 (42 & 43 Vict. c. 76).

This Act provided for re-registration with limited liability of unlimited companies, and also for the creation of reserve capital.

6. The Companies Act, 1880 (43 Vict. c. 19).

This Act provided for payment off of profits in reduction of capital, and empowered the Registrar to strike names of defunct companies off the register.

7. The Companies Colonial Registers Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 30).

This Act provided for colonial registers in certain cases.

8. The Companies Act, 1886 (49 Vict. c. 23).

This Act amended the Act of 1862, as to winding-up in Scotland in certain respects.

9. The Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 62), though not one of the Companies Acts, nevertheless affects the winding-up thereof. See also the Act of 1897, infra.

10. The Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 62).

This Act provided for the extension of objects, &c.

11. The Companies Winding-up Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 63), largely modified provisions of the Act of 1862 in regard to winding-up.

12. The Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict. c. 64).

This Act modified the liabilities of directors in regard to prospectuses, &c.

13. The Companies Winding-up Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 58), modified the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, in relation to winding-up.

14. The Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Amendment Act, 1897 (60 Vict. c. 19).

15. The Companies Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 26), modified sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867.

16. The Companies Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 48), extensively amended the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867.

17. The Companies Act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, c. 50), amended the above Acts in a number of important particulars.

18. The Companies Act, 1908, enabled certain foreign and colonial companies to hold land and other property.

"The Act" and other expressions.

In the following pages the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, is generally referred to as "the Act," but sometimes as "the Act of 1908," and sometimes as "the Consolidation Act."

The Act contemplates the formation of three classes of companies—(1) companies limited by shares; (2) companies limited by guarantee; (3) unlimited companies. Unlimited companies will be found discussed at p. 808; companies limited by guarantee at p. 492. It is with the first class (companies limited by shares) that this work is mainly concerned. This class may be called the normal type of company, that is to say, it is to this category that an overwhelming majority of the companies formed belong. It has proved itself to be the most convenient and effective form for the working of a co-operative business enterprise.

The company limited by shares being then the main objective, it may be useful at the outset to summarise the steps to be taken for forming this w 1900 a duced tion as degree either—

(1)

(2)

The separat prelimi compan prospec

The
(1)

(2)

forming and establishing such a company. Under the Act of 1862 this was a comparatively simple matter, but the Companies Acts, 1900 and 1907, now incorporated in the Companies Act, 1908, introduced certain distinctions—new varieties of formation and constitution as regards the company limited by shares—and with these some degree of complication. Thus a company limited by shares may be either—

- (1) A public company, differentiated again into
 - (a) "A prospectus company," that is to say, a company which is formed on this footing, that on its formation there is to be an invitation to the public by prospectus to subscribe for shares.
 - (b) "A non-prospectus company," that is to say, a company which is formed on the footing that it is not to be a prospectus company or a private company, but is to file a statement in lieu of prospectus; or
- (2) "A private company," that is to say, a private company as defined in sect. 121 of the Act.

The formation and constitution of a private company is dealt with separately in Chapter X., infra, and it will make for clearness if the preliminary steps to be taken respectively in the case of the public company, including therein the prospectus company and the non-prospectus company, are here summarised.

The Public Companies.

Prospectus and Non-Prospectus Companies.

The following are the requisite steps for formation:-

- (1) Prepare the memorandum of association in accordance with sect. 3 of the Act—taking care to state therein—
 - (1) The name of the proposed company, not forgetting the word "limited" as the last word of the name;
 - (2) In what part of the United Kingdom—England, Scotland, or Ireland—the registered office is to be situated;
 - (3) The objects of the company;
 - (4) That the liability of the members is to be limited; and
 - (5) The amount of the capital and of the shares into which it is divided. See Form 79, infra, p. 490.

There must be at least seven subscribers to the memorandum: no subscriber is to take less than one share, and the number each takes must be set opposite his signature. (Sects. 2 and 3 of the Act of 1908.)

- (2) The memorandum must bear a 10s. stamp, and must be signed by each subscriber in the presence of and be

- attested by one witness at the least. (Sect. 6 of the Act of 1908.)
- (3) Prepare also the articles of association, unless the inconvenient course of registering without articles is to be adopted, and let those articles be framed with due regard to the requirements of the Act of 1908. (See infra. Form 251.) And take care that the articles specify the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, as provided for in sects. 85 and 87 of the Act of 1908, unless the company is prepared to postpone allotment until the alternative offered by the section is obtained.
- (4) The articles of association should be expressed in separate paragraphs and numbered arithmetically. They must be printed, and may adopt or exclude all or any of the provisions contained in Table A in the first schedule to the Act. (Sects. 12 and 14 of the Act.)
- (5) The articles must bear a 10s. stamp, and must be signed by the subscribers to the memorandum of association. (Sect. 12 of the Act.) Each subscriber should write opposite his signature his address and description. (See infra. 491.) Each subscriber must sign in the presence of and his signature must be attested by one witness at the least. (Sect. 12 of the Act.) See Form 79, infra. p. 490.
- (6) If any person is appointed by the articles a director, he must, before the articles are registered, sign a consent in writing to act as such (sect. 72 of the Act, see Form 229); and if the articles require the directors to hold a share qualification, he must, also before such registration, either subscribe the memorandum of association for his qualification or enter into an agreement to take such qualification. Ibid. See Form 36.
- (7) Persons who have consented to be directors should, besides signing an assent in writing, as above mentioned, sign an authority to file the assent with the Registrar. (Sect. 72 of the Act.)
- (8) Prepare a list of persons (if any) who have consented to be directors, as by sect. 72 (2) of the Act required. See Form 231.
- (9) Let a statutory declaration be made (if the company is registered in England) by a solicitor of the High Court engaged in the formation of the company, or by a person named in the articles of association as a director or secretary of the company, of compliance with the requisitions of the Acts in respect of registration, and of matters precedent and incidental thereto. See Form 227, and sect. 17 (2) of 1908.

PROSPECTUS AND NON-PROSPECTUS COMPANIES.

- (10) Take the memorandum and articles of association, and (p. 606, infra) the consents (Form 228), and the consent list (Form 231), and declaration (Form 227), and any agreement to take qualification shares, to the Registrar of Companies, Somerset House, Strand, for registration, together with an authority in writing by each director to file his consent to act and to file his contract to take qualification shares. Pay to the Registrar the requisite fees on registration, namely, those fixed by Table B in the first schedule to the Act, and the additional fee of 5s. per 100l. of capital imposed by the Finance Act, 1899.

- (11) In due course the Registrar will issue the certificate of incorporation. As to the effect of which, see infra, p. 24 et seq.

So much for formation, but in the case both of the prospectus company and of the non-prospectus company the Act prescribes further conditions which must be complied with before the company can commence business or exercise its borrowing powers.

These differ somewhat, as appears below:

In the case of a Prospectus Company. In the case of a Non-prospectus Company.

Frame prospectus of the company inviting subscriptions for shares, taking special care to comply with sects. 72 and 81 of the Act, and having due regard to sects. 85 and 87 of the Act, and let such prospectus be printed, dated and signed in duplicate, contain a statement that it has been filed, and be in fact filed in pursuance of sect. 80 of the Act. After the prospectus has been filed let it be issued, and having obtained the minimum subscription (see sect. 85, infra, p. 9), let the company go to allotment, and in due course file the declaration mentioned in sub-sect. (1) of sect. 87 of the Act, and obtain the Registrar's certificate under sub-sect. (2) of same section, that it is entitled to commence business.

Fill up statement in lieu of prospectus, taking special care to comply with sect. 82 of the Act, and let such statement be dated and signed in accordance with the said section and the form set forth in the second schedule to the Act (infra, p. 264). After the statement has been filed, let the minimum subscription be obtained, and let the company go to allotment, and in due course file the declaration mentioned in sect. 87 of the Act, and obtain the Registrar's certificate under sub-sect. (2) of the same section, that it is entitled to commence business.

According to the latest Board of Trade return, the total number of companies registered in 1910 was 7,184, that is, 5,459 private companies, 1,685 public with a prospectus, and 40 public companies with a statement in lieu of prospectus.

Restrictions on naming Directors (sect. 72).

One of the first steps in the formation of a company is the choice of directors. With reference to this sect. 72 of the Act provides that:—

Restrictions on naming directors.

(1.) A person shall not be capable of being appointed director of a company by the articles, and shall not be named as a director or proposed director of a company in any prospectus issued by or on behalf of the company, or in any statement in lieu of prospectus filed by or on behalf of a company, unless before the registration of the articles or the publication of the prospectus, or the filing of the statement in lieu of prospectus, as the case may be, he has by himself or by his agent authorized in writing—

- (i) signed and filed with the Registrar of Companies a consent in writing to act as such director; and
- (ii) either signed the memorandum for a number of shares not less than his qualification (if any), or signed and filed with the Registrar a contract in writing to take from the company and pay for his qualification shares (if any).

(2.) On the application for registration of the memorandum and articles of association of a company, the applicant shall deliver to the Registrar a list of the persons who have consented to be directors of the company; and if this list contains the name of any person who has not so consented, the applicant shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3.) This section shall not apply to a private company nor to a prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company after the expiration of one year from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

Not capable,
&c.

Shall not be capable of being appointed director of a company by the articles unless," &c. These words, so far as the articles are concerned, deal only with actual appointment.

Persons can still, it would seem, without complying with those conditions, be named in the articles (though not in the prospectus) as "proposed" directors, and a power can be inserted for someone (e.g., the subscribers to the memorandum of association, or a majority of them) to appoint such persons to be directors. If no share qualification is required by the articles, a person can be named as a director, subject only to the consent being signed and filed as required by sub-sect. (1) (i). It is not uncommon for the qualification clause in the articles to except the first directors from its operation.

Shall not be named, &c.

"Shall not be named as a director or proposed director of a company in any prospectus issued by or on behalf of the company, or in any statement in lieu of prospectus, unless," &c. These words plainly apply to a prospectus issued after the registration of a company, but it seems very doubtful whether they can be held to apply to a prospectus issued before the company's incorporation. Where they apply they cover both persons named as actual directors and persons named as proposed directors.

RESTRICTIONS ON NAMING DIRECTORS.

7

If no share qualification is required, a director may be named in the prospectus, subject only to the signing and filing of the consent as required by sub-sect. (1) (i).

"Articles." These words refer to the articles in force, whether in their original form or as altered by special resolution. See sect. 285.

"Or by his agent authorized in writing." Where a person is named in the articles as a director the authority under which the agent is authorized to sign must, if required, be produced to the Registrar, and a copy filed (see note to Form 42, Board of Trade Orders, March 29, 1909), in order that he may ascertain whether the statutory requisition has been complied with.

"Consent in writing." This may be a separate document for each director, or several proposed directors may concur in one consent. See Form 42, Board of Trade Orders, March 29, 1909, Form 228, infra, p. 606.

If preferred, an agent to sign and file can be appointed thus:

I, the undersigned, hereby authorize Messrs. —, of —, to sign my consent to act as a director of The — Company, Limited, now about to be registered under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and to file such consent on my behalf with the Registrar of Companies pursuant to sect. 72 of the said Act. As witness my hand this — day of —.

Where the director wishes to postpone as long as possible the filing of his consent, or is about to go abroad, he may in writing authorize his agent not only to file the consent, but also to sign it.

"Either signed the memorandum of association," &c. If the articles do not contain any clause requiring a qualification in shares, the conditions in sect. 72 (ii) have not to be complied with; but if the articles contain such a clause, (ii) must be complied with.

In subscribing the memorandum of association it must be borne in mind that a firm contract is thereby constituted as from the moment of incorporation to take and pay in money or money's worth for the shares subscribed for, and that the subscriber will be liable, even though the company should not become entitled to commence business, under sect. 87. Hence, if the directors subscribe the memorandum for their qualifications and then the company does not float, they will, to the extent of their qualifications, be liable to pay up, e.g., to provide for expenses. But if the alternative is adopted, namely, the filing of a contract, the position of the directors is made easier, for the contract to be filed may be made provisional on the company becoming entitled to commence business.

either signed.

It is presumed that where such a contract is required as a condition precedent to the naming of a person as a director in the prospectus of a company not yet registered, the contract should, as the company will not be in existence at the time, be made with some one as trustee for the company. Hartley's case, 10 Ch. 157. The Registrar, however, appears to be satisfied with the filing of an instrument which does not operate as a contract, see infra, Form 56.

Where the contract is to be filed after incorporation, e.g., as a condition precedent to naming some person as a director in a prospectus, it should be made with the company itself or with a duly authorized agent of the company.

"Shall deliver to the Registrar a list of the persons." This sub-sect. (2) in terms only operates on the application for registration of a memorandum and (sic) articles of association, and therefore does not apply to a company which is registered without articles, e.g., where Table A is to apply. Perhaps, however, the Court will read in the words "if any" after the words "articles of association."

The list is to specify the persons who have consented to be directors, and is therefore not in terms confined to those who are appointed by the articles. It is apprehended that a person cannot be treated as having consented if his consent be merely conditional, e.g., if he has signed a consent in writing to act as a director conditionally on the company being registered with a specified memorandum and articles, or conditionally on a specified board being appointed as the first directors. If, however, the list is to include such persons, it is apprehended that any condition should be stated in it, for otherwise a penalty would be incurred under sub-sect. (3). The consent need not be in writing; a verbal consent brings the person giving it within the words, unless, as seems possible, the consent mentioned in sub-sect. (2) means the signed consent referred to in paragraph (i) of the preceding sub-section. On the other hand, there does not seem to be much object in filing lists of consenting directors when their written consents are already on the file. But for the safety of the applicant a written consent is desirable.

The applicant is to deliver the list to the Registrar, and this statutory duty the applicant must perform. There is no penalty for not delivering the list; but if the list contain the names of any persons who have not so consented, the applicant is to be liable to the fine specified. See Form 43, Board of Trade Order, March 29, 1909, and Form 231, infra.

"(3) This section shall not apply," &c. This sub-section is of great importance. It enacts in effect that the section shall not apply—

(a) To a private company; or,

- (b) To a prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company after the expiration of one year from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

The Minimum Subscription (sect. 85).

The abuse, too common at one time, of going to allotment on a wholly inadequate subscription led to the interference of the Legislature, and sect. 85 of the Act, replacing sect. 4 of the Act of 1900, now provides as follows:-

1.) No allotment shall be made of any share capital offered to the public for subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely,— Sect. 85 of Act.

a.) The amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles, and named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or b.) if no amount is so fixed and named, the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription, has been subscribed, and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named, or for the whole amount offered for subscription, has been paid to and received by the company.

2.) The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

3.) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share.

4.) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of forty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to the applicants without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the forty-eight days: Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

5.) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

6.) This section, except sub-section (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

7.) In the case of the first allotment of share capital payable in cash of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription (that is to say a.) The amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or, b.) if no amount is so fixed and named therein, the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, has been subscribed, and an amount not less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company.

This sub-section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight.

Special points in section.

In regard to the above section the following points must be borne in mind:-

- (1) It applies to prospectus companies. See supra, p. 3.
- (2) It applies to non-prospectus companies. See supra, p. 3.
- (3) It does not apply to private companies. See p. 3.
- (4) Except as regards paragraph (7) it does not apply unless share capital is offered to the public for subscription.
- (5) It does not apply to a company which offers only debentures or debenture stock for public subscription.
- (6) It is not confined to an offer made by or on behalf of the company after incorporation: it applies also, it would seem, to an offer made before the incorporation.

The section evidently contemplates that the offer will be made by a prospectus. (See sub-sects. (1) and (4).) But it must not too readily be assumed that an oral offer would not come within the section.

- (7) Where it has once applied, and the company has proceeded to allotment, it will not (except as regards para. (3)) apply a second time should the company make a second or subsequent offer of shares.
- (8) The section prohibits allotment unless the minimum subscription has been subscribed for, and the sum payable on application for the sum fixed (which must not be less than 5 per cent. of the nominal amount of the shares) has been paid. But "subscribed" here means applied for—not taken; and as long, therefore, as the applications are sufficient, the directors can make as small an allotment as they choose, so far as this section is concerned; but, having regard to sect. 87, the company cannot commence business until the minimum subscription is allotted, and until the company is entitled to commence business it is apprehended that the contract constituted by the application and allotment so made must be regarded as provisional only. See sub-sect. (3) of sect. 87.
- (9) The section leaves it to the parties to fix the amount of the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment. They may by the articles fix a large or small amount; but it must be borne in mind that the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus (see sect. 81 (1) (d), infra) has to specify the minimum subscription, and if an unduly small minimum subscription is fixed, it may discredit the company and deter possible subscribers, especially if newspapers call attention to the fact and comment thereon unfavourably.

- (10) An allotment made by directors before the minimum subscription is obtained is voidable, not void (sect. 86), and may be avoided by the allottee at any time within one month after the statutory meeting. In the case of a company to which the statutory meeting (sect. 65) does not apply there is no limit of time on the allottee's right to repudiate. See Finance and Issue, Limited v. Canadian Produce Corp., (1905) 1 Ch. 37, more fully referred to under sect. 86. The allottee only, and not the company, is entitled to repudiate. Burton v. Beran, (1908) 2 Ch. 240. Considering that the section absolutely prohibits allotment, except under defined conditions, it might well be held that non-compliance rendered the allotment void, except in cases coming within sect. 86 (infra), where the company is one which must hold a statutory meeting, that is to say, a company registered after December 31st, 1900.

- (11) The articles may fix the "minimum subscription" at a specified number of the shares or a specified proportion of the share capital or at a specified percentage or proportion of the shares offered to the public for subscription. West Yorkshire Darracq Agency, 25 T. L. R. 77.

- (12) The section applies not only in the case of a company which issues a prospectus in England, but to the case of a company which issues a prospectus abroad. Roussell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127. In that case the company had issued in France an abridged prospectus not stating the minimum subscription. The plaintiff, a Frenchman resident in France, subscribed for some shares and received an allotment thereof, but the minimum subscription was not subscribed within one month after allotment. He sued the company for the return of what he had paid, relying on sects. 4 and 5 of the Companies Act, 1900, corresponding to sects. 85 and 86 of the Act of 1908. It was held that he was entitled to recover, and that, in his case, "the prospectus" in sub-sect. 4 (85) was the defective prospectus on which he subscribed.

Where the minimum subscription is fixed at a small amount, the prospectus sometimes seeks to justify the fixing of such a figure, or endeavours to anticipate adverse criticism, e.g., by some such statements as follow:—

"The minimum subscription is fixed by the articles of association at — per cent. of the shares offered, but the directors do not propose to allot unless what they consider to be a sufficient subscription is obtained." Examples

"Having regard to the stringent provisions of sect. 85 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, the minimum subscription has by the articles of association been fixed at a nominal amount, namely, — per cent. of the shares offered; but, having regard to the amount underwritten [or to the magnitude of the undertaking], the directors have resolved that a considerably larger subscription is required, and will exercise their discretion accordingly."

"Looking to the fact that the vendors are willing to subscribe for shares to such extent, not exceeding the cash portion of the purchase-money, as the company may require, the minimum subscription has been fixed at 100 shares, thus making it certain that the company will proceed to allotment."

The amount of the minimum subscription may be stated either as so many shares or so many pounds, or as a specified percentage of what is offered for subscription. West Yorkshire Darracq Agency, W. N. (1908) 236. The statement must be express. Roussell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127.

Offer to the public.

What is an offer to "THE PUBLIC" remains to be settled. The Act contains no definition, and an offer "to the public" is not a technical expression: it should therefore be read in its popular sense. Now, in common parlance, an offer to the public signifies an offer made by advertisement or circular to the general public, or some section thereof, as distinguished from an offer made privately, that is, to a select and small circle of friends, customers, or connections. Thus, where a business is converted into a private company, shares offered by the vendors to their friends, relations, or to selected customers, have not hitherto been regarded as having been offered to the public. In such cases it is common to announce publicly that "none of the shares will be offered to the public, the whole having been taken up by the vendors and their friends and customers."

So, too, if a company is formed by the members of a club to provide a house for the club, and the offer of shares is made exclusively to members of the club, it would not in common parlance be termed an offer to the public. Again, an offer by a company of further shares to its own shareholders, however numerous, is not regarded as an offer to the public, but as a domestic transaction.

An offer by a promoter to a few of his friends, relations, and customers was held in a Scotch case (Sleigh v. Glasgow and Transvaal Options, F. 420, Ct. of Sess.) not to be an offer to the public.

So where a syndicate had had a prospectus printed marked "Strictly private and confidential: not for publication," and some of the directors sent copies of it to their friends. Sherwell v. Combined Incandescent Mantles Syndicate, 23 T. L. R. 482

An offer, too, upon the reconstruction of a company, of shares in the new company to members of the old company in respect of their shares in that company is not an offer to the public. Booth v. New Africander Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295.

On the other hand, where a prospectus marked "Private and confidential" was filed with the Registrar of Companies, and not exceeding 3,000 copies were issued by the promoter to shareholders in certain gas companies in which he was interested, it was held by Eady, J., that it was an offer to the public. South of England Natural Gas, &c. Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 373.

The offer, to come within the section, must, it has been said, be an offer by the company not an offer by some individuals, but this is not the case, for the section applies to every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged in the formation of the company, and sect. 80 provides for filing a prospectus "in relation to any intended company," so that shares may clearly be offered to the public though the offer is made by a promoter or director and to a limited circle.

The test seems to be this—is there a sufficient subsisting connection between the company or the person making the offer and the persons to whom the offer is made as friends, customers, or co-adventurers &c., or are the persons mere outsiders? If they are mere outsiders the offer is an offer to the public, and in such a case the fact that the offer is made to a limited circle—e.g., to the members of a single company (not being the company offering its shares, or on whose behalf the offer is made), or to the members of a few companies, or to the members of a particular profession, or to the investors in a particular class of companies—or that the prospectus states that a preference in allotment will be given to a particular class or section of the public, does not make it the less an offer to the public. And it is apprehended that the mere fact that an offer is made by circular addressed by name to a number of persons does not of itself take it out of the category of offers to the public.

In Burrows v. Matabele Gold Reefs, (1901) 2 Ch. 23, 27 (overruled by Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474), Farwell, J., appears to have thought that the terms of sub-sect. (4) of sect. 10 of the Act of 1900 providing that the section "shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe for further shares or debentures," might be treated as a "clue" to what was meant by the word "public," not only in that, but in other sections. And some persons have assumed that the learned judge meant to suggest that every offer of shares, however private or domestic, is to be regarded as an offer to the public, unless the offer is made to the shareholders or debenture holders only; but it is more than doubtful whether his Lordship meant thus to interpret the word "public" throughout the Act, and in any case it is submitted that such an inferential definition of the word as regards other sections ought not to be adopted, (a) because the definition, clause of the Act does not thus define the term "offer to the public", and (b) because the words of sub-sect. (4) of sect. 10 (Act of 1900, s. 81) are confined to that section; and (c) because thus to construe the words would be to depart without sufficient reason from their plain ordinary meaning. And see infra, p. 284.

If a prospectus addressed to the general public, or to a section of the public, is published, that no doubt constitutes an offer to the public, even though none of the public come in. There is no obligation to allot to the public; all that is requisite to bring the case within the section is that there shall be an offer, but possibly if this offer is made without any intention to let the public take up any of the shares (e.g., as where all the shares were already taken firm), it might be found as a fact that there was no real offer to the public. See further as to this, the notes to sect. 89 of the Act of 1908, infra, p. 279.

The promoters, before applying for the certificate to commence business under sect. 87, infra, p. 20, have to determine whether or not an offer has been made to the public, for the application for a certificate that the company is entitled to commence business has to be accompanied by a statutory declaration stating the amount of the share capital offered to the public for subscription, unless, indeed, the company files a statement in lieu of prospectus. See Form 232a.

The following notes in elucidation of expressions in sect. 85 may be added:

For subscription.

"For subscription." The term, offered to the public "for subscription," evidently means an offer of unpaid shares which is to be accepted by allotment, for the section is dealing with and qualifying the right to proceed to allotment. Hence it would not seem to apply to a case in which the company, at the request of the vendors or promoters, offers for public sale fully paid up shares to which they have become entitled.

So also where on a reconstruction paid up or partly paid up shares in the new company are offered to the shareholders in the old company, that would not appear to be an offer to the public "for subscription." Booth v. New Africander Gold Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295.

Subscribed.

"Has been subscribed," &c. As no allotment is to be made until the specified amount has been subscribed, it follows that "subscribed" here means applied for, and does not mean applied for and taken up.

If, then, 50,000 1*l.* shares are fixed as the minimum subscription, and 50,000 shares are applied for and 1*s.* per share (i.e., 5 per cent.) has been paid up on application, the company may proceed to allotment of the whole or any part of the shares applied for. The section does not preclude allotment unless and until the allotment comprises the minimum subscription: it contains nothing to prevent the directors from going to allotment on less than the minimum subscription, if only the minimum subscription has been applied for and the application money has been paid up. Thus, supposing that the minimum subscription is 50,000*l.* and that 30,000*l.* of shares have been applied for. The directors can at once, if they choose, go to allotment as regards the 30,000 shares, or any part thereof; but of course they must bear in mind, regard being had to sect. 87, that they will not be able to commence business until the full amount of the minimum subscription has been allotted; and, what is more, that the contracts for the taking of the shares actually allotted will be provisional only. See sect. 87 (3).

The sum payable on application . . . has been paid to and received by the company." The sum must be paid in cash, it is not enough that the money has been sent by cheque in the ordinary way, for the cheques must be cleared before the allotment can be properly made. Mears v. Western Canada Pulp and Paper Co., (1905) 2 Ch. 427 (C. A.); National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228; Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240.

Exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash." Exclusively Considering that by the words at the commencement of the section its operation is limited to shares "offered to the public for subscription," it is not easy to understand the above words. It is not allowable to go into the history of the section in committee, or to refer to the discussion in Parliament. The intention must be gathered from the words of the section. Perhaps this can best be ascertained by reading into paragraphs (a) and (b) of sub-sect. (1), after the concluding word, the words "such amount to be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash." In the result the words probably refer to shares to be issued to vendors and to shares which must be taken to be made payable otherwise than in cash, e.g., by the transfer of shares in or securities of another company, or other equivalent of cash.

Five per cent." Thus, upon a 1*l.* share, the amount payable on application must be at least 1*s.* (whereas before the Act it was very commonly 2*s.*), and so upon a 10*l.* share the amount payable on application need only be 10*s.*, whereas it is very commonly 1*l.*, or more, per share. Five per cent.

If the conditions," &c. Looking to the very onerous provisions of sub-sect. (4), directors will do well to take the utmost care to preclude any danger to themselves; thus— If conditions.

They may fix the minimum subscription so low that there will be a practical certainty of its being obtained, regard being had to underwriting and to what they themselves will be prepared to do towards making up any deficiency:

They should take care that the application money is made payable into a sound bank, that it cannot be drawn out without their privity and consent, and that it is ear-marked:

They should take care that, until the minimum subscription is obtained and the application money is paid in, no part of the application money is paid out:

If within forty-eight days the minimum subscription is not obtained, and the application money satisfied, they will be enabled at once to repay the application moneys.

The period of forty-eight days runs from the "first issue of the prospectus," which is applicable, unless the contrary be proved, the date of the prospectus. See Roussell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127. See also sect. 80 (2), and the notes on that section, infra.

These precautions are necessary because, looking to sub-sect. (4) it is apprehended that the application money is specifically appropriated for return in the event mentioned, and, until that event, does not become the absolute property of the company. Accordingly Moseley v. Cresney's Co. (1 Eq. 435) will not apply.

"Any condition requiring," &c. These words probably refer to a condition in the prospectus or in the form of application, but the words would not appear to preclude a fresh contract by the applicant, for, although the words at the commencement of sect. 85 ("no allotment shall be made") are very emphatic, it is clear from sect. 86 that they do not make an allotment in contravention illegal, for sect. 86 expressly provides that such an allotment is only to be "voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the statutory meeting." Suppose then that the minimum subscription is not reached, the directors can send out a circular stating the fact, and proposing a modification of the scheme which would render a much smaller subscription sufficient, and ask applicants to sign a fresh application for shares, and agreeing to waive sub-sect. (4) of sect. 85, and sub-sect. (1) of sect. 86; or, in the alternative, the directors might send out a circular stating the facts, and proposing a modification in their scheme and the adoption, by special resolution, of a reduced minimum subscription, and enclosing a fresh prospectus altered accordingly, and then ask the parties to sign and send in fresh applications with reference to that prospectus.

Difficulties, however, beset each of these courses, and they render it very desirable that a company should make sure, as far as it possibly can, of obtaining its minimum subscription. The consequences of disregarding the statutory restrictions on going to allotment are stated in sect. 86, as follows:—

Effect of irregular allotment.

Sect. 86.—(1.) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the last foregoing section shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

(2.) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions [of sect. 85] with respect to allotment he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages, or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby: Provided that proceedings to recover such loss, damages, or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

Voidable at the instance of the applicant.—An allotment in contravention of sect. 85 is not void, but merely voidable. The distinction between void and voidable contracts is well recognized.

Where the contract is void there is no contract in existence; but in the case of a voidable contract there is a contract, and although that contract is capable of being avoided, it is valid and binding until effectually avoided. See Oakes v. Turquand (L. R. 2 H. L. 325, 346), in which Lord Chelmsford, L. C., said: "The distinction between void and voidable contracts is one which will be found very necessary to be borne in mind when we come to consider the words of the Companies Act, 1862, upon which the question of Oakes's liability will ultimately turn. It is a settled rule of law, as Crompton, J., said in Clarke v. Dickson (E. B. & E. 148), 'that a contract induced by fraud is not void, but voidable only at the option of the party defrauded.' If it were otherwise, if a contract induced by fraud were void, there would be an end of the question in this case, because a contract void in itself can have no valid beginning, and Oakes never would have become a shareholder of the company." Hence if an applicant entitled to avoid on the ground that the allotment was made in contravention of sect. 85 does not in fact avoid the contract within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting, he loses his right to make it void on that ground; and further, it is apprehended that if before the expiration of the month he elects unequivocally to affirm the contract, he will be estopped from subsequently avoiding it on such ground, for that is the general rule as to voidable contracts; infra, pp. 196, 197. Thus, if the allottee, after discovery that an allotment has been made in contravention of sect. 85, treats the contract as subsisting—e.g., by endeavouring to sell the shares (Ex parte Briggs, 1 Eq. 482), by executing a transfer of the shares (Crawley's case, 4 Ch. 322), by paying calls or instalments or receiving dividends (Scholey v. Central Rail. Co., 9 Eq. 266; Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588; and Shearman's case, 75 L. T. 385), or by attending and voting at a general meeting in person or by proxy (Sharpley v. Louth, &c. Co., 2 C. D. 663)—he may lose his right to avoid the allotment. See, further, infra, p. 197.

It is not necessary that the applicant electing to avoid the contract under sect. 86 should take actual legal proceedings to avoid the contract within the month. Notice of avoidance followed by prompt legal proceedings, though after the month, is sufficient. Re National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228.

It is only the applicant who is entitled to avoid the contract. The company cannot insist on paying back the application moneys, for the applicant may prefer to keep the shares. Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240. But in such a case the fact that the applicant keeps the shares will not disentitle him to his remedy against the directors who have "knowingly contravened" the section, the right to compel them to make good the loss occasioned to him by the irregular allotment. Ibid.

Statutory meeting.

"The statutory meeting." See as to this, sect. 65 of Act of 1908, infra, Appendix.

This meeting is to be held within a period of not less than one month, nor more than three months, from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business. See sect. 87.

But the only company which is required by sect. 65 to hold the statutory meeting thus referred to is a company "limited by shares," and therefore sect. 86 (1), giving a right to repudiate an irregular allotment within one month after the date of the statutory meeting, would appear to be inapplicable in other cases, e.g., guarantee companies, or unlimited companies having, in either case, a share capital.

Moreover, sect. 65, under which the statutory meeting is to be held, only applies to companies registered after Jan. 1, 1901. It is obvious therefore that sect. 86 (1) does not apply to companies which were registered before Jan. 1, 1901.

But it was held under the corresponding section of the Act of 1900 that where such a company for the first time went to the public after 31st December, 1900, and allotted shares in violation of that section, an allottee was entitled to repudiate the allotment although sect. 5 of the Act of 1900, corresponding to sect. 86 of the Consolidation Act, was inapplicable. Finance and Issue, Ltd. v. Canadian Produce Corporation, (1905) 1 Ch. 37.

Winding-up.

"And shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up." This is a new and noteworthy provision for the protection of the allottee, for apart from this provision it would no doubt have been held that the principle of Oakes v. Turquand (L. R. 2 H. L. 325) was applicable, namely, that a voidable contract of membership cannot be avoided after the commencement of a winding-up, that is to say, after the rights of creditors of the company have intervened.

How avoided.

How to be avoided. In order to effectually avoid the contract, the applicant should notify to the company that he avoids the contract and demands repayment of his money and the removal of his name from the register of members. If the company complies with this request he will be free (Wright's case, 7 Ch. 55; Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64 and 74); but if the company refuses to assent to the avoidance the allottee should, by action or by motion or summons under sect. 32 of the Act, proceed to enforce his repudiation.

It is not necessary, however, that the allottee should take actual legal proceedings to avoid the contract within the month. Notice of avoidance followed by prompt legal proceedings, though after expiration of the month, is sufficient. Re National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228. See further, infra, Chap. XX. The proceedings should be taken in the Court having jurisdiction to rectify the register, or where there is a winding-up, in the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company.

When a winding-up has commenced, the notice should be addressed not only to the company, but also to the liquidator. The form of proceeding will depend on whether the applicant has or has not been placed on the list of contributories. See Part II., and infra, Chapter XX.

Knowingly contravenes," &c. "Knowingly" contravening the section means contravening it with knowledge of the facts upon which the contravention depends. It is immaterial whether the director had knowledge of the law or not. Barton v. Beran, (1908) 2 Ch. 240; and see Treyeross v. Grant, 2 C. P. Div. 542. It may be that if a director wilfully shuts his eyes to the facts he is to be held to have knowingly contravened the section. Tait v. Mackay, (1904) 2 Ch. 631; (1906) A. C. 24.

A director merely hearing the minutes read of a preceding meeting, at which the resolution for irregular allotment had been passed, and voting for their confirmation, will not be fixed with knowledge so as to make him liable under this section. Barton v. Beran, supra.

"Compensate the company and the allottee respectively." Compensation.
This is a heavy burden to cast on the directors, for the number of allottees claiming compensation may be as many as there are applicants for shares. The magnitude of this risk emphasizes the necessity for making the minimum subscription small, or absolutely ensuring the subscription thereof, and in either case taking scrupulous care to comply in all respects with the provisions of sect. 85.

As to the company's "loss, damages and costs," these would appear to include all expenses incurred by reason of the allotment having been made in contravention; but it is apprehended that the words do not include damage occasioned by reason of the loss of membership, for the contravention would be the allotment, and it can scarcely be held that the company is entitled to damages for the avoidance by the allottee of an allotment which ought not to have been made.

As to the loss, damages and costs of the allottee, these should include all his legal expenses of enforcing the repudiation and obtaining repayment of the money paid by him with interest, but should not include damages for loss of the shares. But if the allottee has elected to affirm the contract and keep the shares, or if the time has passed for exercising the right to avoid, it would seem that the measure of damages, if any, must be regulated with reference to the value of the shares. Peek v. Derry, 37 C. D. 592.

Two years.

"Two years from the date of allotment." These words preclude any question as to the period of limitation. The commencement of proceedings is to be reckoned from the issue of the writ.

Commencement of Business.

Commencement of business.

Prior to the commencement of the Companies Act, 1900 (1st January, 1901), a company registered under the Companies Act, 1862, could, by virtue of sect. 18 thereof, commence business immediately after its incorporation, for by that section it was made "capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company," and this power of starting business at once is still conceded to a private company and to a company registered before the 1st of January, 1901, or to a company registered before the 1st day of July, 1908, which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares. See sub-sect. 6 of sect. 87, replacing sub-sects. (6) and (7) of sect. 6 of the Act of 1900 below set forth.

But as regards every company having a capital divided into shares formed after 31st December, 1900, where there is an invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, the powers of the company to commence business or borrow are restricted by sect. 87 of the Companies Act, 1908, replacing sect. 6 of the Companies Act, 1900. This section provides as follows:

Restrictions on commencement of business.

87. (1.) A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless

- (a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription [supra, p. 9]; and
- (b) every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription; or in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares on the shares payable in cash; and
- (c) there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with; and (d.) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statement in lieu of prospectus.

(2.) The registrar of companies shall, on the filing of this statutory declaration, certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled.

Provided that in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him.

(3.) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

(4.) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures.

(5.) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the contravention continues.

(6.) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company or to a company registered before the first day of January nineteen hundred and one or to a company registered before the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares.

The policy of these provisions is obviously to secure a certain degree of substantiality in a company before it enters into engagements with outsiders or obtains money by borrowing.

The following notes deal with the above section in detail:—

"Commence any business." These words are very wide, but they evidently do not include the issue of prospectuses or the making of provisional contracts, or the allotment of shares, or the employment of experts, or the taking of other preliminary steps. See sub-sect. (1) (a) and sub-sect. (4). Unless a company could take these preliminary steps it could never qualify to commence business at all. "Business," looking at the evident purpose of the section, must be construed accordingly.

"Exercise any borrowing powers." Borrowing might seem to be covered by the words "commence any business," but the presence of the additional words emphasizes the intention that borrowing is not to be allowed. Nothing is said about raising money on perpetual debenture stock. Whether that is or is not borrowing, it would seem to fall within the words "commence business."

Under sect. 85 there can be no allotment unless the minimum subscription has been applied for, and under sect. 87 (1), clause (a), the company is paralysed unless the minimum subscription, at least, is allotted; that is to say, until then it cannot commence business.

An allotment of not less than the minimum subscription is a breach of sect. 85, but the company cannot repudiate the allotment and insist on paying back the money. Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240.

Directors' payments.

"Every director of the company has paid." Directors are not to favour themselves or any one of their number in this matter of payment. This seems the moral of the condition. Conf. Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56. The words, it may be noted, put it in the power of any director to preclude the company from commencing business by abstaining from paying up the allotment money on his shares. In view of this risk it would be well to provide in the articles that a director shall ipso facto vacate office if he does not, within a specified period, pay up in accordance with sub-sect. (1) (b) on every share, whether forming part of his qualification or not, which is taken by him.

Statutory declaration.

"A statutory declaration." It is to be noted that, although the filing of the declaration is made a condition precedent to commencing business or borrowing (see sub-sect. (1) (c)), the obtaining of the certificate is not a condition precedent to either of such acts. It is, of course, desirable to obtain the certificate, for that certificate is conclusive evidence that the company is entitled to commence business; but the company is not bound to obtain it before commencing business. It is only evidence of the right. When the conditions (a), (b) and (c) have, in fact, been satisfied, it may at once proceed to business, and obtain the certificate subsequently in due course. See form of declaration, infra, Form 232a.

The Registrar is not given any discretion as to the issue of the certificate; his duty is purely ministerial: the section enacts that on the filing of the declaration the Registrar shall certify that the company is entitled to commence business.

Conclusive.

"Conclusive" evidence. As to the meaning of "conclusive," see the cases cited in the notes to sect. 17, infra, p. 25.

Any contract.

"Any contract," &c. (Sub-sect. (3).) These words are very wide and appear to include every contract, including contracts of membership. It would seem, therefore, that even where the company has allotted not less than the whole of the minimum subscription, and has given notice thereof to the allottees, and so completed contracts with them, each such contract still remains provisional, and will not become absolutely binding until the conditions (b) and (c) have been satisfied.

Provisional.

"Shall be provisional only." "Provisional" here means that the contract is to be read as if it contained a stipulation that it shall not be binding on the company unless and until the company becomes entitled to commence business. Re Otto Electric Manufacturing Co., Jenkin's case, (1906) 2 Ch. 390. There is, therefore, no need to insert an express condition to that effect in each contract, for the statute implies it. Nevertheless, it may be convenient to set out the condition in the contract in some cases.

"And on that date shall become binding." These words on the face of them would make every such provisional contract on that date become binding, and thus confirm by statute every such provisional contract, whatever its merits; but probably the words merely operate to terminate the provisional status of the contract and to make it absolute, but only for what it is worth, so that any right to repudiate or rescind—e.g., for misrepresentation—will remain undisturbed.

"Nothing in this section shall," &c. Under this sub-section Shares or debentures a company is left at liberty to issue a prospectus offering simultaneously shares and debentures or debenture stock for subscription.

"If any company commences." This stringent provision will, Breach of section. no doubt, discourage those who are aware of it from acting in contravention of the section, but it seems not unlikely that the section will be overlooked in a great many cases.

"Every person who is responsible for the contravention." Liability These words include the directors, managers, and other executive officers who take part in any contravention of the section, and, having regard to sub-sect. (1) (c), the secretary will in many cases be hit by the clause.

The person charged will not be responsible, semble, unless he knew or ought to have known the facts. Conf. Burton v. Bevan, 1908) 2 Ch. 240.

"This section shall not apply," &c. Three classes of companies Where not to apply. are exempt:—

1. A private company. See sect. 121, and Chapter X.
2. A company registered before the 1st January, 1901.
3. A company registered before the 1st July, 1908, which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares.

This last exemption, of course, means a company which issues no invitation upon its formation to subscribe for its shares. Thus, if a company on its formation merely issues a prospectus inviting public subscriptions for debentures or debenture stock, the section does not apply. So, too, if the company is a mere reconstruction, and only notifies the shareholders in the old company, through the liquidator, of their right to subscribe, the section would not apply.

Once the company has legitimately commenced business without breach of the section, it is exempt for the future from the provisions of the section. Thus, if a company makes arrangements to purchase a business and to issue its shares or part of them credited as paid up in payment for that business, and determines not to invite the public to subscribe for shares, it can commence business without complying with the conditions of the section, and then later on it can offer shares or debentures or debenture stock for public subscription.

Insufficient Subscription.

Insufficient
subscription.

Where the minimum subscription is not forthcoming, it is open to the company by special resolution to alter the amount specified in its articles and then to get the applicants to re-apply on a fresh prospectus. "Articles of association" in sect. 85 clearly means the articles for the time being in force— not merely the original articles. But the company must be careful to return the application moneys on the original subscription within the forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, as required by sect. 85 (4).

Effect of Incorporation.

Older law.

The Companies Act, 1862, s. 18, prescribed various conditions that must be complied with prior to the issue of the certificate of incorporation of a company, and went on to provide as follows: "A certificate of the incorporation of any company given by the Registrar shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Act in respect of registration have been complied with."

Speaking with reference to this provision, Lord Cairns said in Peel's case (1867), 2 Ch. 674: "When once the memorandum is registered and the company is held out to the world as a company undertaking business, willing to receive shareholders, and ready to contract engagements, then it would be of the most disastrous consequences if, after all that has been done, any person was allowed to go back and enter into an examination (it might be years after the company had commenced trade) of the circumstances attending the original registration, and the regularity of the execution of the document."

Peel's case.

And founding himself on this principle, the same learned judge held in the same case that, where the memorandum of association had, after signature and before registration, been altered without the privity of the signatories so materially that "the alteration entirely neutralised and annihilated the original execution and registration of the document," yet the Registrar's certificate of incorporation was conclusive, and said: "The certificate of incorporation is not merely a primâ facie answer, but a conclusive answer to such objections,

... when once the certificate of incorporation is given nothing is to be inquired into as to the regularity of the prior proceedings."

And shortly afterwards, Lord Chelmsford, L. C., in Oakes v. Tarquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 323, said: "I think that the certificate prevents all recurrence to prior matters essential to registration, amongst which is the subscription of a memorandum of association by seven persons, and that it is conclusive that all previous requisitions have been complied with."

Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22, is to the same effect. The Court of Appeal there, whilst holding that the defendant company had been formed "for an illegitimate purpose," and "for objects not authorized by the Act," nevertheless held the certificate of incorporation conclusive that it was incorporated, although sect. 6 requires that the subscribers should be persons associated together for some "lawful purpose." On the other hand, in National Debenture Corporation, (1891) 2 Ch. 505, a learned judge refused to treat a certificate of incorporation as conclusive where he found as a fact that the memorandum of association had been subscribed by six persons only instead of seven, as required by the Act of 1862; thus in effect treating the words "conclusive evidence" as meaning "prima facie evidence," although the Legislature had obviously used the words "conclusive evidence" in contradistinction to the words "prima facie evidence" used by it in sects. 31 and 37 of the same Act. This decision, however, was reversed on appeal on the ground that the evidence did not establish the fact so found. Unfortunately, however, the judges of the Court of Appeal let fall some dicta to the effect that if the judge below had been right as to the facts, his decision would have been correct in point of law. The Court, however, had no power to overrule the decision of the L. J.J. in Peel's case, and of course these mere dicta could in no way derogate from the authority of the decision in that case. With reference to these dicta, Vaughan Williams, J., in Laxon & Co. (2), (1892) 3 Ch. 555, said that he did not understand how they could be reconciled with the decision and words of the judgment of Lord Cairns in Peel's case, ubi supra. And it is to be noted that the Court of Appeal in Salomon v. Salomon & Co., as appears above, followed Peel's case. And in Ladies' Dress Association v. Pulbrook, (1900) 2 Q. B. 376, 381, a decision on the word "conclusive" in another section of the Act of 1867, where these dicta were relied on, Romer, L. J., whilst holding them not applicable, significantly added that "if it were not so it might be necessary for us to consider whether these dicta could be justified."

The new section (sect. 17 of the Act of 1908, reproducing sect. 1 of the Companies Act, 1900) expressly provides that a certificate of incorporation given by the Registrar of Companies in respect of any association shall be conclusive evidence that "all the requisitions of this Act, in respect of registration and of matters precedent and

*Salomon v.
Salomon & Co.*

Conclusive-ness of certificate.

incidental thereto, have been complied with, and that the association is a company authorized to be registered and duly registered under this Act." The incorporation of a company is to take effect from the date of incorporation mentioned in the certificate of incorporation. See sect. 16 of the Act.

Looking to the above decisions and to sect. 17, it is clear that there is no further room for questioning the conclusiveness of certificates of incorporation. Thus, even if the seven signatories to a memorandum were all written by one person, or were all forged, the certificate would be conclusive that the company was duly incorporated. So, too, if the signatories were all infants, the certificate would be conclusive, whether the remarkable decision in Laxon & Co. (2), (1892) 3 Ch. 555, that an infant is a "person" within sect. 6, can or cannot be supported. See also Gold Co., 11 C. D. 718; Hadleigh Castle Gold Mines, (1900) 2 Ch. 419; Arnot v. United African Lands, (1901) 1 Ch. 518; and Walker v. Smith, W. N. (1903) 82, which all decide that "conclusive" means what it says.

Notwithstanding, however, this weight of authority, Hamilton, J., has in British Association of Glass Bottle Manufacturers v. Nettlefold, 27 T. L. R. 527, held that the certificate is not conclusive that the company is validly registered—e.g., is not a trade union.

As to impeaching incorporation
by scilicet fa.

The question whether a company, once registered under the Act of 1862, could by scire facias or otherwise be removed from the register and disincorporated, was touched on by the Lord Chancellor (Lord Halsbury) in Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22; but the point had been previously adjudicated on by the House of Lords in Princess of Reuss v. Bos (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 176. The question there arose as to the regularity of the constitution of a company—"The General Company for the Promotion of Land Credit, Limd." All the subscribers to the memorandum of this company were foreigners, and there was no intention to carry on business in England. Neither of these circumstances affected its validity, but the articles of association contained provisions contrary to the Companies Act, and Lord Hatherley, L. C., said: "All we have to ask ourselves is this . . . Has this company come into existence? Has it been born? . . . The question is therefore simply whether it has been created. If created, there is no power given in this Act of Parliament, nor in any other Act of Parliament that I am aware of, by which, through any result of a formal application, like an application for scire facias to repeal a charter, the company can be got rid of, unless by winding up"; and the observations of Lord Cairns and Colonsay were to the same effect. See, also, what was said by Fry, J., in Glover v. Giles (1881), 18 Ch. D. 180. The same principle applies to a company under the Act of 1908.

The Registrar of Companies has now, however, jurisdiction under sect. 242 of the Companies Act, 1908 (replacing sect. 7 of the Companies Act, 1880, and sect. 26 of the Companies Act, 1900), to strike the names of defunct or derelict companies off the register, subject to the observance of certain formalities, but the Court has power to reinstate them on the register. See infra, Chap. XVII.

Corporate Powers and Duties.

A company registered (or to be treated as registered, see sects. 245-248) under the Act—whether as an unlimited company or as a company limited by shares or by guarantee—becomes, by virtue of sect. 16 (2) of that Act, upon the issue of the certificate of incorporation, “a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum of association, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands.”

Nature of incorporated company.

The body corporate thus created is a “legal entity.” It is not, like a partnership or a family, a mere collection or aggregation of individual units; it is a distinct entity, existing in contemplation of law but having no physical existence. “The company is a mere abstraction of law.” Per Lord Selborne, C., G. E. Rail. Co. v. Turner, 8 Ch. 152. “A corporation is a legal persona just as much as an individual.” Per Cave, J., Sheffield and South Yorkshire Building Society, 22 Q. B. D. 476. “The corporation is not a mere aggregate of the shareholders.” Per Cotton, L. J., Flitcroft's case, 21 C. Div. 536. If all the existing members be collected together, we do not see the corporation, but only the existing members thereof. “A corporation is a different thing from the individuals who compose it.” Per Kay, L. J., Foster v. Commrs. of Inland Revenue, (1891) 1 Q. B. 530. And, as was said by Lord Langdale, M. R., in Society of Practical Knowledge v. Abbott, 2 Beav. 567, great confusion arises from not distinguishing the body corporate from the individual persons who at one time constitute, “not the corporation, but all the members of the corporation.”

Distinction between corporation and its members.

See, for example, the erroneous decision of the Court of Appeal (Broderip v. Salomon, (1895) 2 Ch. 323), reversed by the House of Lords in Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22, and further considered infra, Chap. X.

If the corporation is entitled to property, the title is in the body corporate, not, as in the case of a partnership, in the members collectively. “An incorporated company's assets are its property, and not the property of the shareholders for the time being.” Per Lindley, L. J., George Newman & Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 685. “In the case of a corporation it is the whole body—the abstraction of law—that is seised. The members are no more seised than the members of a man's body could be said to be seised of his estate.” Per Maule, J., Baxter v. Browne, 7 M. & G. 210. “The individual shareholders are quite distinct from the corporation; they are entitled to no direct interest in the land [of the corporation]; no part of the realty is held in trust for them." Per Parke, B., Walson v. Spratley, 24 L. J. Ex. 53. They have individually no seisin, legal or equitable. Acland v. Lewis, 30 L. J. C. P. 29. The interest of the shareholder in the company while it continues a going concern "is not an interest in the real or personal property of the company, including its business or goodwill; but it is merely a right to have a share of the profits of the company when realized and divided amongst its members." Per Bovill, C. J., Bank of Hindustan v. Alison, L. R. 6 C. P. 73. "The individual members of the corporation no doubt are interested, in one sense, in the property of the corporation, as they may derive individual benefit from its increase or loss from its destruction, but in no legal sense are the individual members the owners." Per Denman, C. J., Reg. v. Arnaud, 9 Q. B. 806; 16 L. J. Q. B. 55. Hence a registered company may hold land, although all the members are aliens and disqualified from doing so.

Even in the case of a so-called "one man company," where the great bulk of the shares in the company are held by one person, the company is a distinct person. "The company," said Lord Macnaghten (Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 51), "is at law a different person altogether from the subscribers to the memorandum; and, though it may be that after incorporation the business is precisely the same as it was before, and the same persons are managers, and the same hands receive the profits, the company is not in law the agent of the subscribers or trustee for them. Nor are the subscribers as members liable in any shape or form except to the extent and in the manner provided by the Act."

Some consequences of such distinction.

Many important consequences flow from the distinction thus emphasized between the incorporated company and its members. Thus:—

- (1) A contract by the company does not give to the other party to such contract any right of action against the members of the company. A creditor of the corporation is not a creditor of the members. The direct remedy of a creditor is solely against the incorporated company. He has no dealing with any individual shareholder, and if he is driven to bring an action to enforce any right he may have acquired, he must sue the company, and not any of the members of whom it is composed. Per Lord Cranworth, Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 357. "The creditor has no debtor but that impalpable thing, the corporation." Per Jessel, M. R., Flitcroft's case, 21 C. D. 533. Even if the company incurs liabilities in a foreign country, by the laws of which the shareholders are liable, they cannot be sued in respect of that liability in England. Ridson Iron and Locomotive Works v. Furness, (1906) 1 K. B. 49. The shareholders and the company do not stand in the relation of principal and agent or trustee and beneficiary. Salomon v. Salomon & Co., supra; Ferguson v. Wilson, 2 Ch. 77, 89.

- (2) As a general rule, the members of the company cannot sue in respect of contracts made with, or wrongs done to, the company; for "where there is a body corporate, that body corporate is the proper plaintiff, and the only proper plaintiff." Per James, L. J., Gray v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1050; Mozley v. Alston, 1 Ph. 790; Macdougall v. Gardiner, 1 C. Div. 13; Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks Co., 20 Eq. 474; Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83; Normanby v. Ind. Coope & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84.
- (3) A member of the company can contract with and become a creditor of the company, and can sue the company and levy execution on its property just as if he were a stranger. "A member of a corporation is for this purpose [suing on a contract] as distinct from a corporate body as any third person." Per Parke, B., Dunston v. Imperial Gaslight Co., 3 B. & Ad. 125. And in the event of winding-up, a member, quâ creditor, can, in respect of such matter, prove and take dividends in competition with outside creditors. Grissell's case, 1 Ch. 528. "A sale by a person to a corporation of which he is a member is not, either in form or in substance, a sale by a person to himself. To hold that it is would be to ignore the principle which lies at the root of the legal idea of a corporate body, and that idea is that the corporate body is distinct from the persons composing it." Per Lindley, L. J., Farrar v. Farrars, Limited, 49 C. Div. 395, 409. And this is so even where the vendors are the only members of the corporation; in such case they are not selling to themselves, but to a third party, namely, the corporation. Per Lindley, L. J., Foster v. Commrs of I. R., (1894) 1 Q. B. 516, 528. See also Ryhope, &c Co. v. Foyer, 7 Q. B. D. 485; and North-Western Transportation Co. v. Beatty, 12 A. C. 589.
- (4) Payment to a member of the company of a debt due to the company is not payment to the company, unless the member has authority from the corporation to receive the money.
- (5) The bankruptcy of all or any of the members of the company or body corporate does not affect the property of, or dissolve, the company; the members have become bankrupt, not the corporation.
- (6) The unanimous consent of the members of the company cannot invest the company with powers not given to it by its constitution, or ratify, as the act of the company, that which the company has no power to do. Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653; Flietcroft's case, 21 C. Div. 519; Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376; Faure Electric Co., 40 Ch. D. 141; British, &c. v. Couper, (1894) A. C. at p. 405; Wellton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299, 321.

And in such a case a judgment by consent gives no greater validity. Great North-West Central Railway v. Charlebois, (1899) A. C. 114.

Functions of company under Companies Acts.

Although sect. 16 (2) of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 18 of the Act of 1862) says that the company when registered is "capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company," these words must be read subject to the other provisions of the Act, and those provisions (and notably sect. 7 (reproducing the Companies Act, 1862, s. 12)), affirming the unalterability of the company's memorandum of association, do undoubtedly limit and restrict the functions of the company to carrying out the objects specified in its memorandum of association, and to the doing of those things which are incidental thereto.

Distinction as to functions between such company and a common law or chartered
company.

In this respect the company differs essentially from a common law corporation constituted by royal charter. The company is a statutory corporation with limited capacities, and accordingly stands on the same footing as railway and other corporations constituted by special Acts of Parliament. As Lord Selborne said, in Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 693: "A statutory corporation, created by Act of Parliament for a particular purpose, is limited, as to all its powers, by the purposes of its incorporation as defined in that Act. The present and all other companies incorporated by virtue of the Companies Act of 1862, appear to me to be statutory corporations within this principle. The memorandum of association is under the Act their fundamental, and (except in certain specified particulars) their unalterable, law; and they are incorporated only for the objects and purposes expressed in that memorandum."

Bowen, L. J., on such distinction.

The distinction between common law corporations and statutory corporations was defined by Bowen, L. J., in Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Company, 36 C. D. p. 685, n., as follows:—

"At common law a corporation created by the King's charter has, primâ facie, and has been known to have ever since Sutton's Hospital case (10 Rep. 13), the power to do with its property all such acts as an ordinary person can do, and to bind itself to such contracts as an ordinary person can bind himself to; and even if by the charter creating the corporation the King imposes some direction which would have the effect of limiting the natural capacity of the body of which he is speaking, the common law has always held that the direction of the King might be enforced through the Attorney-General; but although it might contain an essential part of the so-called bargain between the Crown and the corporation, that did not at law destroy the legal power of the body which the King had created. When you come to corporations created by statute, the question seems to me entirely different, and I do not think it is quite satisfactory to say that you must take the statute as if it had created a corporation at common law, and then see whether it took away any of the incidents of a corporation at common law, because that begs the question; and it not only begs the question, but it states what is an untruth, namely, that the statute does create a corporation at common law. It does nothing of the sort. It creates a statutory corporation, which may or may not be meant to possess all or more or less of the qualities with which a corporation at common law is endowed. Therefore, to say that you must assume that it has got everything which it would have at common law unless the statute takes it away is, I think, to travel in a wrong line of thought. What you have to do is to find out what this statutory creature is and what it is meant to do; and to find out what this statutory creature is you must look at the statute only, because there, and there alone, is found the definition of this new creature. It is no use to consider the question of whether you are going to classify it under the head of common law corporations. Looking at this statutory creature one has to find out what are its powers, what is its vitality, what it can do. It is made up of persons who can act within certain limits, but in order to ascertain what are the limits, we must look to the statute. The corporation cannot go beyond this statute, for the best of all reasons, that it is a simple statutory creature."

See also what Blackburn, J., said to the same effect in Ashbury, de. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 9 Ex. p. 263; also British South Africa Co. v. De Beers, (1910) 2 Ch. 502.

A company under the Act of 1908 (consolidating and replacing the Acts of 1862 to 1907) is, by that Act, endowed with certain specified privileges, and is subjected to certain specified obligations and liabilities, which may be summarized thus:—

Special characteristics of a company under the Companies Acts.

As to the privileges:

1. A company may appoint and act by agents. This power is involved in the provision that the company may exercise all the functions of an incorporated company, and is beyond question absolutely essential to the prosecution of the company's objects. See further, infra, p. 36.
2. It is able, by proper provisions in its articles of association, to define, limit and restrict the powers of its directors or other agents in such manner as may seem expedient.
3. It may have a common seal (sect. 16 (2)), and it is empowered to have an official seal for use in foreign parts (sect. 79).
4. It is relieved from the common law rules which require, in general, all contracts by corporations to be under seal, and is empowered to contract without seal, except in specified cases. See sect. 76.
5. It may hold land in perpetual succession without licence, and is thus relieved from the operation of the mortmain laws; and as it may hold land, it may also acquire land.
6. Its members become bound by its constitution and regulations without signing any document; and they may sue and be sued by the company as if they were strangers. See supra, p. 29.

7. In the case of a limited company it is empowered to admit persons to participate, as members, in its profits without involving them in unlimited liability, and is thus enabled to obtain capital from that large class of small capitalists which is undispensed to undertake the burden of and anxiety attending unlimited liability.
8. The shareholders and strangers dealing with the company are fixed with notice of the memorandum of association, and also of the articles (if any) under which it is constituted. Infra, p. 77. The members are, by membership, without signature, bound by the memorandum and articles. Sect. 14.
9. The powers of the company are limited to the objects specified in its memorandum of association. It may do nothing beyond those objects, and may only apply its funds in furtherance of such objects. See infra, pp. 455 et seq. Nevertheless the members may from time to time, by special resolution, alter certain provisions of its memorandum and articles of association, subject, as to the memorandum, in some cases to the sanction of the Court or the Board of Trade being obtained thereto, thus:
 - (a) The name may be changed with the sanction of the Board of Trade. Sect. 8 (3).
 - (b) The objects in the memorandum may be altered by special resolution sanctioned by the Court. Sect. 9.
 - (c) The articles of association or other regulations may from time to time be altered by special resolution, or new regulations may be thereby adopted. Sect. 13.
 - (d) In the case of a company limited by shares, the capital may be reduced with the sanction of the Court (sects. 46 - 56), and without such sanction the capital may be increased, and the shares may be consolidated or subdivided, or converted, where paid up, into stock. Sect. 4. And such stock may be reconverted into paid-up shares of any denomination. Sect. 41.
10. In the case of a company limited by shares, stock warrants to bearer may be issued in respect of paid-up shares. Sect. 37.
11. In the case of a company limited by shares, any portion of the uncalled capital may be converted into reserve capital. Sect. 59.
12. Underwriting and other commissions may be paid on conditions and subject to the provisions of the Act, whether the company is a public or a private.

13. If it carries on business abroad, in British Colonies, it is empowered to have a local register of members.

14. Inasmuch as it is capable of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, it has the right and power

(a) To resist any unlawful interference with its right and property: Thorley's Cattle Food Co. v. Mossam, C. D. 763, e.g., a trade libel on the company; Qua. Hill & Co. v. Brall, 20 C. D. 501; a libel imputing insolvency to the company; Metropolitan Sanitation v. Hawkins, 4 H. N. 90.

(b) To claim the protection and assistance of the law in support of its rights as an individual: City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant, 9 Ch. 212, 216; Erlanger v. New Sombbrero, 3 App. Cas. 1218; South Hetton Coal Co. v. V. E. Nemes Association, (1894) 1 Q. B. 133; Manchester Corporation v. Williams, (1891) 1 Q. B. 94; South Wales Miners' Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co., (1905) A. C. 239.

(c) To defend or oppose any legal proceedings that may be brought against it.

(d) To compromise any claims made against it. Bath's Div. 3.

It may, however, refuse to impeach, any wrong which may have been done to it, and to waive or abandon any claim it may have. Maddisgall v. Gardiner, 1 C. D. 12.

To petition Parliament, see Munt v. Shrewsbury Rail Co., 13 Ben.

The following are the most notable of the company's obligations and liabilities:

1. The company is bound, under penalty, to supply its members on demand with printed copies of its memorandum of association and regulations. Sects. 18, 70 (3).

2. If under its articles the ordinary shareholders have a right to receive and inspect the balance sheets and auditor's reports, and the company is not a private company, the holders of preference shares and debentures and debenture holders of the company have the same right, and the company is bound to conform thereto. Sect. 114.

3. The company is bound, under penalty, to keep a register of its members. Sect. 25. This register is to be open for public inspection. Sect. 30. Trusts are not to be entered in it. Sect. 30. It may be rectified by the Court. Sect. 32.

4. The company is bound, under penalty, to make certain annual returns as to its members, capital, assets and liabilities to the Registrar of Companies. Sect. 26. And, in addition, every company limited by shares must within a month after allotment make certain returns as to the allottees and capital, and in case of shares issued otherwise than for cash, file certain contracts. Sect. 88. See infra, p. 610.

- (e) Prospectuses issued by or on behalf of any company or in relation to any intended company, must, as a general rule, be dated and signed and then filed, before publication, and the fact of filing must be stated thereon before they are issued. Sect. 80. And prospectuses must, according to circumstances, comply with all or some of the requisites of sect. 81. See infra, p. 165. If the company (not being a private company) does not issue a prospectus, it must file a statement in lieu of prospectus. Sect. 82.
- (f) The company is bound to give notice to the Registrar of increase of capital or members (sect. 44); and of consolidation of shares and conversion of shares into stock (sect. 42), but not apparently of the reconversion of stock into shares. And as to special resolutions. Sect. 70.
- (g) The company is bound to have a registered office (sect. 62), and notice of the situation thereof for the time being has to be given to the Registrar. Sect. 62.
- (h) The company, if limited, is bound to have its name up outside every place where it carries on business, and on its seal and on all bills, &c. Sect. 63.
- (i) Notices and other documents may be served on the company by leaving the same, or sending them by post, addressed to the company at its registered office. Sect. 116.
- (j) The company, if limited, is bound, under penalty, to keep a register of mortgages. Sect. 100. And every mortgage or charge coming within sect. 93, must be filed for registration in the public register at Somerset House within twenty-one days. The Registrar is to keep a register, which is open to inspection by any one, and the company must keep copies of the mortgages, &c. at the registered office, where they are open to inspection by members and creditors. Sect. 93 (2). Effect of non-registration and penalties. Ib., and sect. 99.
- (k) The company, where sects. 85 and 87 apply, must refrain from allotting shares or commencing business until the requirements of these sections have been complied with.
- (l) The company may not directly or indirectly pay underwriting, placing, or other commissions in contravention of sect. 89.
- (m) The company, if limited and carrying on the business of banking or insurance, is bound, under penalty, to publish annually a statement of its affairs in the statutory form. Sect. 108.
- (n) The company must send a list of directors to the Registrar each year, and notify to him any change in its directorate. Sect. 75.

- (o) If the company carries on business for six months after the number of its members is reduced below seven, its members may incur unlimited liability. Sect. 115.
- (p) Instead of the general meeting within four months after its incorporation, the company, if "limited by shares" and registered after the end of 1900, must hold its "statutory" meeting not less than one month nor more than three months from the date at which it is entitled to commence business. Sect. 65. The report then discussed must be filed with the Registrar. Ib.
- (q) The company must hold an annual meeting. Sect. 61.
- (r) The company, if limited by shares, must not prior to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting. Sect. 83.
- (s) The members may apply to the Board of Trade to appoint inspectors to examine the affairs of the company (sect. 109); and inspectors can be appointed by special resolution. Sect. 110.
- (t) The company must comply with sects. 112 and 113 as to audit.
- (u) If a banking company, its accounts must be annually audited, in accordance with sect. 113, and it may be that sect. 112 applies.
- (v) General meetings must be called on requisition, as provided by sect. 66.
- (w) The members of the company are entitled to the assistance of the Court to restrain the doing of that which is ultra vires of the company.
- (x) The company may be wound up by the Court (sect. 129) on the petition of a member or creditor, or of the company itself (sect. 137), or of the official receiver in companies winding-up, if it is already in voluntary liquidation. Ib.
- (y) Its members may voluntarily place it in liquidation ("voluntary liquidation" so called), and so end the business; and bring into operation efficient provisions for the winding-up of its affairs and its dissolution. Sect 193 enables creditors to apply in a voluntary winding-up, as the liquidator or any contributory might apply under sect. 138 of 1862.
- (z) It is subject to the general law, so far as applicable, and if it carries on the business of a money-lender as defined by the Money-Lenders Act, 1900 (63 & 64 Vict. c. 51), it must comply with the requirements of that Act as to registration and otherwise, unless exempted from registration by the Board of Trade. Penalties are imposed on officers of a money-lending company by sect. 4 of the Act. See further, infra, p. 528.

Agents.

The most essential power of a corporation is the power to act by agents. It is a power, however, which it is not necessary to specify in the objects of the company; for it is implied—inherent in the constitution of a company—by sect. 16 of the Act the company is made “capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company,” and those functions undoubtedly include the power to act by agents, since a corporation “cannot act in its own person: for it has no person.” Per Lord Cairns, Ferguson v. Wilson, 2 Ch. 89. Unless, therefore, the company were permitted to act by agents, it could not act at all.

The powers of the directors, managers, or other agents of the company are usually specified in the articles of the company. See further, infra, Form 251.

If the articles do not appoint or provide for the appointment of agents, a general meeting of the members can appoint agents, and authorize them to act on behalf of the company.

Whatever the company can do, its agents can be empowered to do: for instance, they may perform a contract by the company to teach its apprentice his business. Burnley Equitable Society v. Casson, (1891) 1 Q. B. 75. But it is clear that the agents of the company cannot by any means be invested with power to do on behalf of the company that which is ultra vires the company. The scope of their agency must always be circumscribed by the powers of the company. Wellon v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 229, 321; Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409. Nor can its agents be empowered to exercise powers which the Acts vest in the members, and make exerciseable only by resolutions of general meetings, e.g., the power to reduce capital, or to sub-divide shares, or to wind up voluntarily.

As the law by necessary implication confers on an incorporated company the power to act by agents, it holds the company, like any other principal, responsible for the acts or defaults of its agents within the scope of their employment. Ranger v. Gt. W. Rail. Co., 5 H. L. C. 86; Barwick v. English Joint Stock Banking Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 259; Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 326.

Liability of company for acts of agent.

Thus, if the duly authorized agent of the company enters into a contract on its behalf, the company is bound thereby; and if the company's agents commit a breach of that contract, the company is responsible accordingly.

Where, in contracting, particular formalities as to the mode of affixing the common seal are not prescribed, whoever in practice manages the affairs of a trading corporation can use the seal for those acts which he is authorized to perform. Barned's Banking Co., 3 Ch. 105, 116.

And, prima facie, the clerks in a company's registered office, at any rate in the absence of the secretary, may receive notices on othe

(183
R bill sect actu
Ban
A on i cive
v. W
of Cor
A on i cour of t com held beco asso any
TH negl held
Lan
L. R scope Bear
v. M
Mut
An const
Selby
6 Ch
Th gence to tal
1 H.
negli
So respo motio
Synd
A
agent

other communications on behalf of the company. Truman's case, (1891) 3 Ch. 272.

But a company will not, it seems, be bound by any acceptance of a bill of exchange unless the person accepting for the company under sect. 47 of the Companies Act, 1862 (Companies Act, 1908, s. 77), actually, and not merely ostensibly, accepts. Premier Industrial Bank, Ltd. v. J. & W. Crabtree, Ltd., (1909) 1 K. B. 106.

And a company can, ex post facto, ratify that which has been done on its behalf without authority, where the act ratified is not ultra vires the company. Grant v. Switchback Co., 40 C. D. 135; Wilson v. West Hartlepool Co., 2 De G. J. & S. 475; Irvine v. Union Bank of Australia, 2 App. Cas. 366; London and New York Investment Corp., (1895) 2 Ch. 860. Ratification.

A company is liable, moreover, not only in respect of contracts made on its behalf, but in respect of wrongs committed by its agents in the course of their employment, and for the benefit, or intended benefit, of the company. The principle embodied in the maxim, Qui sentit commodum sentire debet et onus, is applied, and the body corporate is held responsible accordingly, although in the result its funds may become applicable to purposes not specified in its memorandum of association, e.g., payment of damages to the injured party, without any corresponding benefit to the company. Torts.

Thus, if the agents of a company are guilty of negligence, that negligence may be imputed to the company, and the company may be held liable in damages to those who are injured thereby. Parnaby v. Lancaster Canal, 11 Ad. & E. 223; Mersey Docks Board v. Gibbs, L. R. 1 H. L. 93; provided, that is, the agent is acting within the scope of his authority, the onus of proving which lies on the plaintiff. Beard v. London General Omnibus Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 530; Cooke v. Midland Great Western Rail. of Ireland, (1909) A. C. 229; British Mutual Bank v. Charnwood Forest Rail., 18 Q. B. D. 714. Negligence.

And the extent of the company's liability is not limited because its constitution limits the amount of its expenditure. Gallsworthy v. Selby Dam Commissioners, (1892) 1 Q. B. 348; United Service Co., 6 Ch. 212—a case as to the loss of deposited securities.

The agents, not the company, have in fact been guilty of the negligence; "for a body corporate never can either take care, or neglect to take care, except through its servants." Per Blackburn, J. (L. R. 1 H. L. p. 104). Nevertheless the company is answerable for the negligence.

So where a company is formed to promote other companies, it is responsible for the acts and omissions of its directors in such promotion. Per Lindley, M. R., in Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 423.

A corporation may also be sued for a trespass committed by its agent (Mound v. Monmouthshire Canal Co., 4 M. & Gr. 452); and it

2

- may be sued for wrongful detention of goods (Yarborough v. Bank of England, 16 East, 6.), and for wrongful disposition of plaintiff's shares (Bahia Rail. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584), although in fact the agent has committed the wrong. Moreover, although doubts on the point have from time to time been suggested, it seems clear that a corporation may be liable to an action for intentional acts of misfeasance by its agents, provided such acts are sufficiently connected with the scope and object of the company's incorporation. Thus, in Whitfield v. South Eastern Rail. Co., E. B. & E. 121, a company was held liable for a malicious libel; and Lord Campbell said: "The ground on which it is contended that an action for a libel cannot possibly be maintained against a corporation aggregate fails. . . . Considering that an action of tort and trespass will lie against a corporation aggregate, and that an indictment may be preferred against a corporation aggregate, both for commission and omission, to be followed up by fine, though not by imprisonment, there may be great difficulty in saying that, under certain circumstances, express malice may not be imputed to and proved against a corporation." Although the servant of the corporation may have had no actual authority, express or implied, to write the libel, if he did so in the course of an employment which is authorized, the corporation is liable. So the Privy Council held in Citizens' Life Assurance Co. v. Brown, (1904) A. C. 423. And see Nevill v. Fine Arts Insurance Co., Ltd., (1895) 2 Q. B. 156. And in Green v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., 7 C. B. N. S. 290, it was held, on demurrer, that an action would lie against a corporation for driving its omnibuses so as wrongfully to molest the plaintiff in the use of the highway. And see Limpus v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., 1 H. & C. 526; explained in Vickery v. Great Eastern Rail. Co., 79 L. T. 121.
- Libel.
- Nuisance. A corporation may also be liable for a nuisance. Rapier v. London Tramways Co., 69 L. T. 361.
- Malicious prosecution. In Edwards v. Midland Rail. Co., 6 Q. B. D. 287, Fry, J., reviewed the authorities, and held that a company was liable to an action for malicious prosecution. And this was followed in Cornford v. Carlton Bank, (1899) 1 Q. B. 392; affirmed, (1900) 1 Q. B. 22, the point being conceded at the bar. See also Abrath v. G. E. Rail. Co., 11 App. Cas. 247.
- Assault. And a corporation may be sued for assault. Butler v. Manchester & Sheffield Rail., 21 Q. B. Div. 207; Eastern Counties Rail. v. Broome, 6 Ex. 314.
- Statutory duty. Where a duty is imposed by statute upon a company in such a way that a breach of the duty amounts to a disobedience of the law, then if there is nothing in the statute either expressly or impliedly to the contrary the breach of the statute is an offence which can be visited upon the company by means of an indictment. The Queen v. Tyler, (1891) 2 Q. B. 588, 592.

In Reg. v. Birmingham and Gloucester Rail. Co., 3 Q. B. 223. Rattison, J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, said: that "on general principles . . . a corporation may be indicted for breach of a duty imposed upon it by law, though not for a felony or for crimes involving personal violence, as for riots or assaults." That was a case of non-misfeasance; but the same doctrine was applied in cases of misfeasance. In Reg. v. Great North of England Rail. Co., 2 Q. B. 315, where Lord Denman, who delivered the judgment of the Court, said: "The argument is that for a wrongful act a corporation is not amenable to an indictment, though for a wrongful omission it undoubtedly is, assuming in the first place that there is a plain and obvious distinction between the two species of offence. No assumption can be more unfounded."

In Reg. v. Tyler, supra, it was held that a proceeding before a magistrate under sect. 27 of the Companies Act, 1862 (now sect. 265) of the Act of 1908), to recover penalties for default in forwarding a list of its members to the Registrar as required by sect. 26 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 26 of the Act of 1908), was a criminal proceeding, and accordingly that where the Queen's Bench Division granted a rule nisi for a mandamus directing a magistrate to hear and determine the application for a summons, there was no appeal, inasmuch as judgment was a judgment in "a criminal cause or matter" within sect. 47 of the Judicature Act, 1873. It was argued in that case that although the sect. 26 imposed a duty on the company, the non-performance of that duty was not a criminal offence by the company. But the Court held otherwise. Bowen, L. J., in the course of his judgment, said: "It would indeed be a remarkable view for the Legislature to take that the obligation imposed upon a company was of such a nature that its breach by the company was not an offence, and yet that a director or manager of the company who stood by and acquiesced in the breach was guilty of an offence. Such a reading of the statute would emancipate the corporation upon whom the duty was imposed from the position of offender and would introduce into the class of offenders the directors and managers only who stood by and knowingly acquiesced. I cannot think that that is the true reading of the sections. . . . Therefore a breach of the provisions of sect. 26 is an offence, and it is none the less an offence because sect. 27 imposes a pecuniary penalty as the punishment for the offence. Sect. 27 gives a summary remedy either in addition to, or in place of, an elaborate and circuitous one. . . . If it is an offence for the company to fail to comply with the requirements of sect. 26, then the proceeding against the company under sect. 27 is a proceeding in the nature of a criminal cause or matter, its object being the punishment of an offence. That appears to me to be the true meaning of the section. . . . The Act says that a company shall do certain things, and a company which neglects to do those things is a criminal offender." Kay, L. J., in the course of his judgment said:

Breach by company of sect. 26 of the Act

"It is not necessary to inquire whether the company could be indicted for the non-feasance under this Act because the Act meant to impose upon the company a positive duty, the omission to perform which would be in the nature of a criminal offence, and even if the remedy given by the Act is the only remedy, as to which I express no opinion, it does not follow that the omission to do the act is any the less a criminal omission on the part of the company." Accordingly it was held that there was no appeal.

Fraud.

Again, a corporation may be held liable for the fraud of its agents. "Strictly speaking, a corporation cannot of itself be guilty of fraud. But where a corporation is formed for the purpose of carrying on a trading or other speculation for profit, . . . these objects can only be accomplished by the agency of individuals; and there can be no doubt that if the agents employed conduct themselves fraudulently, so that if they had been acting for private employers the persons for whom they were acting would have been affected by their fraud, the same principles must prevail when the principal under whom the agent acts is a corporation." Per Lord Cranworth, Ranger v. G. W. Rail. Co., 5 H. L. C. 86. And the law seems to be the same in Scotland. Hockey v. Clydesdale Bank, 36 Sc. L. R. 120.

In Barwick v. English Joint Stock Banking Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 259, a company was held liable for the fraudulent misrepresentation of its agent. Willes, J., in delivering the judgment of the Exchequer Chamber, said: "With respect to the question whether a principal is answerable for the act of his agent in the course of his master's business, and for his master's benefit, no sensible distinction can be drawn between the case of fraud and the case of any other wrong. The general rule is, that the master is answerable for every such wrong of the servant or agent as is committed in the course of the service and for the master's benefit, though no express command or privity of the master be proved. That principle is acted upon every day in running-down cases. It has been applied also to direct trespass to goods, as in the case of holding the owners of ships liable for the act of masters abroad improperly selling the cargo. It has been held applicable to actions of false imprisonment in cases where officers of railway companies, intrusted with the execution of bye-laws relating to imprisonment, and intending to act in the course of their duty, improperly imprison persons who are supposed to come within the terms of the bye-laws. It has been acted upon where persons employed by the owners of boats to navigate them, and to take fares, have committed an infringement of a ferry, or such like wrong. In all these cases it may be said, as it was said here, that the master has not authorized the act. It is true he has not authorized the particular act, but he has put the agent in his place to do that class of acts, and he must be answerable for the manner in which the agent has conducted himself in doing the business which it was the act of his master to place him in."

This case was followed by the Privy Council in Mackay v. Commercial Bank, L. R. 5 P. C. 394; and in Citizens' Life Ass. Co. v. Brown, (1904) A. C. 423. And in Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 326, Lord Selborne referred with approval to the principle laid down by Willes, J., in the passage cited above, and said: "That principle received full recognition from this House in The National Exchange Co. v. Drew, 2 Macq. 103; and New Brunswick Rail. Co. v. Congbeare, 9 H. L. C. 711; and was certainly not meant to be called in question by either of the learned Lords who decided Addie v. The Western Bank of Scotland, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145. It is a principle, not of the law of torts, or of fraud or deceit, but of the law of agency, equally applicable whether the agency is for a corporation (in a matter within the scope of the corporate powers) or for an individual; and the decisions in all these cases proceeded, not on the ground of any imputation of vicarious fraud to the principal, but because, as was well put by Mr. Justice Willes in Barwick's case (L. R. 2 Ex. 259), 'with respect to the question whether a principal is answerable for the act of his agent in the course of his master's business, no sensible distinction can be drawn between the case of fraud and the case of any other wrong.'"

Thus a company may be liable for misappropriation by its clerk. Trott v. National Discount Co., 17 T. L. R. 37.

In Addie v. Western Bank of Scotland, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 145, 167, above referred to, Lord Cranworth said: "Corporate bodies may be made responsible for the frauds of [their] agents to the extent to which the companies have profited from these frauds." But it is submitted that this dictum, if it imports that the liability of the corporation is limited to its profit, rests on no satisfactory principle, and cannot be supported. The corporation, as above appears, is liable by virtue of the law of agency. Now, the liability of a principal who is not a corporation is not so limited to the amount of his profit. Why, then, should a distinction be drawn in favour of a corporation? There is no such limit where a corporation is sued for an intentional trespass committed by its agents contrary to its express instructions (Limpus v. London General Omnibus Co.); why, then, should there be a limit in the case of fraud? In Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 317, 329, Lord Selborne said that the words in italics might require "some enlargement or explanation."

It is, however, to be borne in mind that a corporation is not liable where the act of its agent is for his own benefit and not that of the company (British Mutual Co. v. Charnwood, &c. Rail. Co., 18 Q. B. Div. 714); or where he is acting outside the scope of his authority (Barnett, Hoares & Co. v. South London Tramways Co., 18 Q. B. D. 815; Beard v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 530; Ruben v. Gt. Fingall Consolidated, (1906) A. C. 430).

A corporation may be indicted for a breach of duty imposed on it Indictable offences.

by the law, whether of commission or omission, for misfeasance or nonfeasance. Reg. v. Birmingham Rail. Co., 3 Q. B. 223; Reg. v. Great North of England Rail. Co., 9 Q. B. 315; Reg. v. Mayor of Liverpool, 3 East, 86. And a company which omits to do that which the law requires it to do is a criminal offender. Per Bowen, L. J., Reg. v. Tyler & Co., (1891) 2 Q. B. 588, 596.

Laches and acquiescence.

A corporation may be guilty of laches, and bound by acquiescence (Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218; Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. Div. 319; London Financial Assoc. v. Kelk, 26 C. D. 107; Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 429), except in respect of ultra vires matters (Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653). In matter intra vires the company is bound by the consent of all the members, and general consent may be inferred where a course of dealing is pursued which was within the knowledge of most of the members. Felix Hadley & Co. v. Hadley (1897), 77 L. T. 136; Phosphate of Lime Co. v. Green, L. R. 7 C. P. 43; Evans v. Smallcombe, L. R. 3 H. L. 249. A corporation, though it has no eyes of its own, may nevertheless be treated as having seen what its agents might see; for "although it may not have eyes and see what is going on, it has agents who can see." Crook v. Corporation of Seaford, 6 Ch. 551; Mersey Docks Co. v. Gibbs, L. R. 1 H. L. 93; Baudeen v. London, Edinburgh & Glasgow Co., (1892) 2 Q. B. 534. It must be credited, too, with intelligence and with understanding what the consequences of its acts will be. Merchants' Banking Co. v. Phoenix Bessemer Co., 5 C. D. 205, 217. So, too, a corporation may be estopped by the acts of its agents, e.g., where its directors issue a certificate under the common seal stating untruly that A. is the holder of certain paid-up shares, and B. acts thereon; as against B. the company is estopped from saying that the shares are not paid up. Burkinshaw v. Nicolls, 3 App. Cas. 1004; Macdonald, Sons & Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 89. For other cases of estoppel, see Bahia Rail. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584; Coventry, &c. Co. v. G. E. Rail. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 776; Shaw v. Port Philip Gold Co., 13 Q. B. D. 103; Bloomenthal v. Ford, (1897) A. C. 156; Robinson v. Montgomeryshire Brewery Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 841.

Estoppel.

But "it is quite clear that a company cannot do what is beyond its legal powers by simply going into Court and consenting to a decree which orders that the thing shall be done. If the legality of the act is one of the points substantially in dispute, that may be a fair subject of compromise in Court, like any other disputed matter." Great North-West Central Railway v. Charlebois, (1899) A. C. 115, 124 (P. C.).

A corporation is subject to the general rules of equity, e.g., it may be held to be a trustee. South Llanharran Co., 12 C. D. 503. It may be held to be an executor de son tort. Att.-Gen. v. New York Breweries, (1898) 1 Q. B. 205; affirmed sub nom. New York Breweries v. Att.-Gen., (1899) A. C. 62. It is liable for moneys borrowed ultra vires by its agents to the extent to which such moneys have been applied to the payment of its debts. Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155. And a charge on its assets, which is ultra vires as regards part of the money advanced, may be good as regards the money which finds its way to the hands of the company. Johnston Foreign Patents Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 234. It may by debt lose the right to enforce specific performance of a contract. Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 429. It may be held bound in equity by a parol contract in relation to land where there has been such part performance as would take the case out of the Statute of Frauds if natural persons were parties to the contract. Wilson v. West Hartlepool Co., 2 De G. J. & S. 475. So, too, a company which issues an instrument in a form which will enable the holder to raise money on it may in equity be precluded from setting up a lien as against those who act on the instrument. Merchants' Banking Co. v. Phoenix Bessemer Co., 5 C. D. 205.

The property of a company may be taken in execution, but the execution creditor, as such, can only reach uncalled capital—which is not strictly property—by means of a winding-up. See Prec., Part III.

A company cannot be committed to prison for contempt or otherwise (Re Hooley, 79 L. T. 706), but may be restrained by injunction from continuing that which is a contempt. Coats (J. & P.) v. Chadwick, (1894) 1 Ch. 347.

Moreover, by Ord. XLII. r. 31, it is provided that any judgment or order against a corporation wilfully disobeyed may by leave of the Court or a judge be enforced by sequestration against the corporate property or by attachment against the directors or other officers thereof, or by writ of sequestration against their property; but an order against a corporation will not be enforced by the attachment of a director unless he has been personally served with the order. McKeown v. Joint Stock Institute, Limited, 80 L. T. 641. 1899.

A corporation cannot be the true and first inventor within the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Acts, 1883--1888, but it may apply, in conjunction with the true and first inventor, for a patent (sect. 117 (1) of the Act of 1883); and it seems that in the case of a communication from abroad a patent may be granted to a corporation alone, if in this country. In re Carey, 6 Rep. Pat. Cas. 552.

In the construction of Acts of Parliament questions sometimes arise as to whether the provisions thereof apply to corporations. In each case the answer depends on the terms and objects of the statute.

There can be no doubt that the word 'person' may, and I should be disposed myself to say prima facie does, in a public statute, include a person in law, that is, a corporation, as well as a natural person; but although that is a sense which the word will bear in law, and which, as I said, perhaps ought to be attributed to it in the construction of a statute, unless there should be any reason for a contrary Execution.

Patentee.

When within provisions of statutes.

construction, it is never to be forgotten that, in its popular sense and ordinary use, it does not extend so far. Statutes, like other documents, are constantly conceived according to the popular use of language; and it is certain that this word is often used in statutes in a sense in which it cannot be intended to extend to a corporation. Per Lord Selborne, C., Pharmaceutical Society v. London and Provincial Supply Association, 5 App. Cas. p. 861, and Hirst v. West Riding, &c. Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 560; and sect. 19 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), now gives statutory effect to the above dictum of Lord Selborne by providing that "in this Act, and in every Act passed after the commencement of this Act, the expression 'person' shall, unless the contrary intention appears, include any body of persons, corporate or unincorporate." But the nature of the punishment e.g., whipping may impliedly exclude a corporation. Hawke v. Hulton, (1909) 2 K. B. 93.

In Standard Manufacturing Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 627, the Court of Appeal was of opinion that the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, did not apply to companies under the Act of 1862. And see Richards v. Kidderminster Overseers, (1896) 2 Ch. 212.

The Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1887, does not apply to arrangements by limited companies. Rileys, Limited, (1903) 2 Ch. 590.

A corporation cannot be treasurer of a friendly society within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act, 1875. West of England Bank, 11 C. D. 768. Or a common informer, unless expressly authorized. Guardians of St. Leonard's v. Franklin, 3 C. P. D. 377.

Nor can it in its corporate name carry on the business of pawnbroking. In practice the licences and pledge tickets are in the names of the directors. Per North, J., in Attenborough v. Jay, 14 T. L. R. 365, affirmed Ibid. 439.

A company has been held to be a "person" under the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1873. Pearks, Gunston & Tee v. Ward, (1902) 2 K. B. 1. And under Dentists Act, 1878, see Att-Gen. v. George Smith, Limited, (1909) 2 Ch. 534.

And a corporation has been held to be a person within sect. 6 of Lord Tenterden's Act (9 Geo. 4. c. 14) and therefore not liable for a misrepresentation as to credit made by its agent. Hirst v. West Riding Union Banking Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 560.

A company may be a "respectable and responsible" person within a lease. Willmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 1 Ch. 754.

Appearance
by company.

A company can only "appear" by solicitor. Re London County Council and London Tramways, 13 T. L. R. 254; An. Pr. p. 116.

On the other hand, a company cannot appear or plead by attorney at Courts of Oyer and Terminer, gaol delivery, or sessions of the peace; for no one can appear by attorney to indictment at such Courts. Reg. v. Birmingham and Gloucester Rail. Co., 9 Car. & P. 469. But it is otherwise in the King's Bench Division, and perhaps at the Central Criminal Court.

Membership.

Having thus briefly discussed the powers and duties of a company in its corporate capacity, it may now be convenient to say a few words about the members of the company--how they become members, what is their relation to the company, and how they cease to be members--with special reference to a company limited by shares.

And first, who may become members?

Any seven, or, in the case of a private company, two or more, persons may subscribe the memorandum of association. Sect. 2 of the Act of 1908. And sect. 24 provides that:--

"The subscribers of the memorandum of association of any company under this Act shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company whose memorandum they have subscribed, and upon the registration of the company shall be entered as members on the register of members hereinafter mentioned [sect. 25, see infra, p. 53], and every other person who has agreed to become a member of a company under this Act, and whose name is entered on the register of members, shall be deemed to be a member of the company."

Who are members.

Thus, as regards subscribers, "any" person may subscribe. There is no limitation: no restriction. Indeed, the word "any" excludes limitation or qualification, per Fry, J., Duck v. Bates, 13 Q. B. D. 843, 851. Accordingly, not only may any subject of His Majesty subscribe, but aliens also may subscribe (Princess of Reuss v. Bow 1871, L. R. 5 H. L. 176), in which case all the seven subscribers were aliens. And it has even been held that an infant comes within the words "any person" (Laxon & Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 555), and may be one of the seven subscribers. A firm as such is not a "person." The individual partners, or some duly authorized agent on their behalf, must subscribe. This was decided in Vagliano Anthracite Co., 79 L. J. Ch. 739, and (1910) W. N. 187. See, however, Weikersheim's case (1872), 8 Ch. 831, in which the Court of Appeal held the firm name to be a sufficient description of the members on the register.

As regards non-subscribers, the words of sect. 24 of the Act are nearly as wide, for they comprise "every other person who has agreed to become a member" and is registered as such.

Looking to the generality of these words, it is well settled that any person not under disability may become a member; that a married woman may take shares (Leeds Banking Co., 3 Eq. 781; Married Women's Property Act, 1893, s. 1; that a company having power to take shares may become a member (Barned's Banking Co., 3 Ch. 112); and that an infant may become a member, subject, however, to the right to repudiate the shares when he attains majority (Capper's case, 3 Ch. 458; Pugh and Sharman's case, 13 Eq. 566); and of course an alien or a bankrupt may become a member.

Who may take shares.

How a Person may become a Member.

Sect. 24 deals, it will be observed, with two classes:—

Subscribers.

(1) Those persons who have subscribed the company's memorandum of association.

Others.

(2) Those persons who have agreed to be members, and whose names are entered in the register.

These and these only can strictly be called members in the sense of having acquired the full status of membership. Nicol's case (1884), 29 Ch. D. 421.

A person may, therefore, become a member or shareholder in any of the following ways:—

- (1) By subscribing the memorandum of association before its registration.
- (2) By agreeing with the company to take a share or shares, and being entered on the register of members.
- (3) By taking a transfer of a share or shares, and being entered on the register of members.
- (4) By registration on succession to a deceased or bankrupt member.
- (5) By allowing his name to be on the register of members or otherwise holding himself out or allowing himself to be held out as a member. See infra, pp. 55, 56, 72.

Premising thus much, let us proceed to analyse a little more closely the conditions creating the status of membership; and first of persons subscribing the memorandum.

Subscribers to the Memorandum.

Subscribers to memorandum.

Every subscriber to the memorandum becomes a shareholder ipso facto on the incorporation of the company, and liable as the holder of whatever number of shares he has subscribed for. The 23rd section of the Act of 1862 (now replaced by sect. 24 of the new Act), as Bowen, L. J., pointed out (Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 447), defines the status of a subscriber of the memorandum of association in a different way from the position of other persons who agree to become members. "It is plain," said Lord Cairns in Ecans' case (1867), L. R. 2 Ch. 420, "that the original subscribers are by the Act of Parliament deemed to have taken the shares set opposite their names the object being that the public might rest with confidence on the subscribers of the memorandum becoming members of the company." And see Migotti's case, 4 Eq. 238. In the case of the subscribers of the memorandum, therefore, no allotment is necessary (London and Provincial Co., 5 C. D. 525); no entry on the register of members is necessary. Nicol's case, supra; Alexander v. Automatic Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 63. And the shares subscribed for are to be regarded as issued on the issue of the certificate of incorporation. Dutton Time Lock Co. v. Dutton, 66 L. T. 704 (C. A.). The subscriber is bound to take the shares from the company, and to pay for them i.e., as and when calls are made on him. Alexander v. Automatic Co., supra. He cannot satisfy this obligation by taking a transfer of fully paid shares from another member; the only way he can possibly escape liability is by showing that all the shares have been allotted to others. Mackley's case, 1 Ch. D. 247; Evens' case, supra. See also Esparto Trading Co., 12 C. D. 191, where a subscriber who had not been placed on the register was nevertheless held liable for the shares he had subscribed for after a lapse of nine years. In Argyle & Co., 54 L. T. 237, liability was enforced after a lapse of four years.

Nor can a subscriber repudiate the shares he subscribes for on the ground of misrepresentation. Lord Lurgan's case, (1900) 1 Ch. 597.

But where the subscriber showed that his subscription was made to be on behalf of his firm, and the shares were allotted to it, it was held that he had discharged his obligation. Dunlop's case, (1894) 3 Ch. 173.

As to the subscriber's liability to pay, see infra, p. 58.

Other Members.

To come next to the second class of persons dealt with by sect. 24—every other person who has agreed to become a member of a company under this Act and whose name is entered on the register of members. Other members.

Here the section contemplates two things:—(1) an agreement; (2) entry on the register. An agreement alone does not create the status of membership. It is a condition precedent to acquiring such status of membership that the shareholder's name should also be entered on the register. Per Fry, L. J., in Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 421; see further, infra, p. 72.

The Agreement to take Shares.

There is no difference, as Chitty, J., said in Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 421, between a contract to take shares and any other contract. A formal agreement is not necessary. If, in substance, an agreement is made, the form is not material. Ritso's case (1877), 4 Ch. D. 782. To constitute a binding contract to take shares in a company, when such contract is constituted, as it usually is, by application and allotment, there must be an application by the intending shareholder, an allotment by the directors of the company of the shares applied for, and a communication by the directors to the applicant of the fact of such allotment having been made. Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 C. D. 430.

Agreement to take shares.

Application for Shares.

Application
for shares.

An application for shares is usually made in writing signed by the applicant, but an application by word of mouth will do. Ex parte Blozam, 33 Beav. 529a; Levita's case, L. R. 3 Ch. 36. An application is an offer by the applicant and, like any other offer, it may be withdrawn at any time before acceptance is notified to the applicant, or, if the acceptance is by post, at any time before the letter of acceptance is posted (Hebb's case, 4 Eq. 9; Dunlop v. Higgins, 1 H. L. C. 381; Henthorn v. Fraser, (1892) 2 Ch. 27), i.e., in the usual way (London & Northern Bank, (1900) 1 Ch. 220). Withdrawal may be by word of mouth. Truman's case, (1894) 2 Ch. 272. Withdrawal by post is not effective unless it reaches the company before notice of allotment is posted. Byrne v. Van Tienhoven, 5 C. P. D. 344.

Application
by agent.

The rule Qui facit per alium facit per se applies to a contract to take shares, and, accordingly, A. can authorize B. to apply for shares on A.'s behalf, and, if shares are allotted to A., he becomes a member. Barrett's case, 4 De G. J. & S. 416; Honnan's Empress, &c. Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 643; Hindley's case, (1896) 2 Ch. 121. And it is not essential that the agent should have actual authority: it is sufficient if he is held out as having authority. Thus, where A. gives B. an open letter authorizing him to apply, and gives him private instructions limiting the authority, and B. applies showing his authority but concealing the private instructions, A. is bound, though the application is in contravention of the private instructions. Henry Bentley & Co., 69 L. T. 204. See p. 292, infra.

If A. applies for shares in a fictitious name and is allotted some, he will be held liable as a member in respect thereof, and his real name may be entered on the register. Bute's case, 13 Eq. 566. Where an application is sent in the name of another not sui juris (e.g., an infant son), it has been held that the case is the same as if the application were sent in a false or fictitious name. The transaction is a fabula acta, and the applicant himself may be put on the list of contributories (Pugh and Sharman's case, 13 Eq. 366; Richardson's case, 19 Eq. 588; G. H. Levita's case, L. R. 5 Ch. 489; Savigny's case, W. N. (1899) 1); but, to constitute liability in such a case, there must be a contract, and there can be no contract where there is no intention of contracting, e.g., where there is a mistake on the applicant's part as to the company's identity. International Society of Auctioneers, Baillie's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110. And see Coventry's case, Britannia Fire Association, (1891) 1 Ch. 202 (C. A.).

So where a director without authority applied in the name of a third party who was sui juris, and allotment was made to such third party, it was held that the director could not be made liable as a contributory. So, too, where the applicant makes a mistake as to the company, there is no contract. See Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App. Cas. 450; Baillie's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110.

Allotment.

Acceptance of an application for shares is ordinarily evidenced by what is termed "allotment."

"What is termed 'allotment,'" said Chitty, L. J., "is generally neither more nor less than the acceptance by the company of the offer to take shares. To take the common case, the offer is to take a certain number of shares, or such a less number of shares as may be allotted. That offer is accepted by the allotment either of the total number mentioned in the offer, or a less number, to be taken by the person who made the offer. This constitutes a binding contract to take that number according to the offer and acceptance. To my mind there is no magic whatever in the term 'allotment' as used in these circumstances. It is said that the allotment is an appropriation of a specific number of shares. It is an appropriation, not of specific shares, but of a certain number of shares. It does not, however, make the person who has thus agreed to take the shares a member from that moment; all that it does is simply this—it constitutes a binding contract under which the company is bound to make a complete allotment of the specified number of shares, and under which the person who has made the offer and is now bound by the acceptance is bound to take that particular number of shares. In most cases the act of placing the person who has agreed to become a member on the register is a mere matter of form, and may be described as a mere ministerial act; but it appears to me that in point of law all that is done by the process I have just indicated, and all that was done in this case, was to make a complete and binding contract." Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 421, 426.

This, no doubt, is perfectly sound; nevertheless the term "allotment" is not, in common parlance, confined to an appropriation in response to an application. It is sometimes used where the company, without any preceding application (e.g., upon an increase of capital), allots shares on specified terms in the expectation that they will be accepted. See Bouch v. Sproule, 12 App. Cas. 385; Malam v. Hitchens, (1894) 3 Ch. 582. In such cases the allotment is an offer, not an acceptance.

It may be useful here to refer to what was said by Stirling, J., in Spitzel v. Chinese Corporation, Limited, 80 L. T. 351 (1899). "In the first place," said the learned judge, "I have to consider what meaning is to be attached to these words 'allotment and issue.' First of all, what is an allotment of shares? Broadly speaking, it is an appropriation by the directors or the managing body of the company of shares to a particular person. The legal effect of the appropriation depends on circumstances. Thus it may be an offer of shares to the allottee, or it may be an acceptance of an application for shares by the allottee; but of itself an allotment does not necessarily create the status of membership. The allotment may be, and probably generally is (where it is an offer), such as to give a title to the shares the moment the allottee communicates his acceptance of it to the company, whose directors make the allotment; but it seems to me that the allotment may be subject to a condition, as, for example, that the allottee should not only communicate acceptance, but perform some other act, such as payment of a sum of money. In other words, I think that a company may offer specified shares to A. B. on the terms that the title of A. B. should not arise until he had paid a sum of money to the company, and this being so, a contract may provide, as I think, that allotment shall be subject to conditions. Again, the word 'issue' is one which has not any very definite legal import with reference to shares," &c.

But unless otherwise expressed, the term "allotment" in the following pages means allotment in response to an application—that is to say, the acceptance by the company of an offer.

For an example of the shareholder's first communication with the company being an acceptance and not an offer, see Brown and Tucker's case, 41 L. J. Ch. 457, and compare Wallace's case, (1900) 2 Ch. 671.

To be effective, an acceptance of an application for shares must be unconditional. If it introduces a new term (e.g., says that the shares must be paid up at once under penalty of forfeiture), it is not a good acceptance, and is to be regarded as a new offer made by the company which will not result in a contract unless accepted by the applicant. Lewis & Clarking Co., 24 D. L. Soc. 116; Addicks' case, 1 Ex. 22; Jackson v. Lee, and L. R. 1 H. L. 305.

To constitute a valid allotment there must per se be a duly constituted board of directors. Hunter v. South Western Miners, 39 C. D. 416; Hunter v. The Redgrave and Manning Co. (1900) 2 Ch. 572. But the rule in Central British Bank v. Lee, and Lee v. Lee, p. 79, n. v. sometimes render an allotment by an irregular board effective, and the rule is now supplemented by sect. 74 of the Act of 1908, providing that acts of a director or manager shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification. Most companies' articles contain a similar provision for curing defects or irregularities; conf. Table A, Art. 94. An allotment by a board irregularly constituted may be subsequently ratified by a regular board. Portuguese Consolidated Coffee, 42 C. D. 160. A director who has joined in an allotment to himself will be precluded from alleging the invalidity of the allotment. York Trust Co. v. Willbanks (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 685.

When first Allotment may be made.

In the case of a private company allotment may be made immediately after registration of the company or at any subsequent time. In all other cases the first allotment is by sect. 85 of the Act postponed till certain conditions are complied with by the company. See supra, p. 9 et seq.

Restrictions on where offered to public.

Moreover, by sect. 86 (replacing sect. 5 of the Companies Act, 1900) it is provided that an allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the last foregoing section shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting (infra, p. 689) of the company and so later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company was in course of being wound up. See also supra, pp. 16, 17.

Effect of irregular allotment.

Notice of Allotment.

"I think," said Lord Cairns in Pellatt's case, L. R. 2 Ch. 527, "that where an individual applies for shares in a company, there being no obligation to let him have any, there must be a response by the company, otherwise there is no contract"; and this statement of the law has always been accepted. The communication of the acceptance need not necessarily be formal or in writing, but it must be communicated in some way, whether by writing or verbally, or by conduct. Gamm's case, L. R. 8 Ch. 40. Prima facie, notice of allotment must be given to the applicant or to his agent duly authorised to receive notice of allotment (Levitt's case, 5 Ch. 489; De Rosaz's case, 21 L. T. 49; for an agent to apply for shares has no special authority to receive notice of allotment. Robinson's case, 10 Ch. 325; Wallis's case, L. R. 4 Ch. 325, n).

Notice of allotment.

Thus, if A, in applying, says, "Give notice of allotment to B," and notice is so given, that is sufficient (De Rosaz's case (1889), 21 L. T. 49); and so, too, an applicant may waive notice of allotment (Carbolite, &c. Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 256).

There are other cases also in which notice of allotment is not necessary to complete the contract, e.g., where, by virtue of some arrangement on reconstruction or amalgamation, the company is bound to allot the shares; and a person, entitled to an allotment, responds to a circular calling on him to come in, claim, and take his shares. In such case notice of allotment may not be necessary (Gamm's case, L. R. 8 Ch. 40; unless, indeed, the offer is intended to invite application, not to allot. Wallis's case, (1900) 2 Ch. 671). However, in any case in which the company, by letter or otherwise, in effect offers a certain number of shares to a person, and he writes back accepting, further notice of allotment is unnecessary.

Allotment with notice after incorporation, in response to an application before incorporation, is sufficient to constitute a complete contract (Downes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 343; Lorraine's case, 2 Ch. 412), for in such a case the application operates as a continuing offer and matures, on acceptance by the company after incorporation, into a contract.

By post.

As a general rule, notice of allotment may be given by post (Household Fire Insurance Co. v. Grant, 4 Ex. D. 216; Henthorn v. Fraser, (1892) 2 Ch. 27), and in such case the contract is complete when the letter is posted, even though it is never received. Harria's case, 7 Ch. 587; Brumer v. Moore, 20 T. L. R. 125. But the posting must be regular, for handing to a town postman in the street is not enough. London & Northern Bank, (1900) 1 Ch. 220.

Proof of notice

If notice of allotment is disputed the onus is on the company to prove the notice (Reidpath's case, 11 Eq. 86); but this onus it may discharge by proving acts on the part of the alleged member going to show that he was aware of the allotment and assented to it (Crawley's case (1868), 4 Ch. 325), for formal notice is not necessary. Richards v. Home Assurance Association, L. R. 4 C. P. 391. Notice of allotment, if brought home to the allottee, not from the company but aliunde, will bind him (Wallis's case, L. R. 4 Ch. 325, n.), e.g., if the allottee is present at a board meeting at which the allotment is resolved on. Ex parte Smedley and Fletcher, W. N. 1467, 259.

In Crawley's case, supra, C. had applied for shares that were not allotted to him for fourteen months, and accordingly he might have refused the allotment on the ground that it was not made within a reasonable time. No notice of the allotment was given to him, but some months afterwards, he, at the request of B., signed a blank transfer of the shares, and that was held sufficient to show that he must have known of, and assented to, the allotment. "I think after that act," said Selwyn, L. J., p. 325, "he cannot be heard to say that he did not know of the allotment, or that it had not been communicated to him."

A letter of allotment and letter of renunciation or any other document having the effect of a letter of allotment of any company had by the Stamp Act, 1891, to be stamped with a penny stamp under a penalty on any person executing, granting, issuing, or delivering it out, of 20*l.* Sect. 79 and Schedule I. But by sect. 9 of the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), a duty of 6*d.* is substituted for the 1*d.* duty when the nominal amount which is allotted or to which the letter of allotment relates is not less than 5*l.*, and a separate duty is charged in respect of letters of allotment and renunciation although entered in the same document. A letter of allotment, though unstamped, is, if posted or delivered, an effective acceptance of the application. Whitley Partners, 33 C. D. 337.

Entry in Register.

Where membership is constituted otherwise than by subscribing the memorandum of association, entry in the register of members is, by sect. 24, made a condition precedent to membership. The complete status of membership in such case is not acquired unless and until it can be predicated of the person that he is, within the words of the section, one "who has agreed to become a member of a company under this Act, and whose name is entered in the register."

Entry in register necessary to complete membership.

In this respect there is an essential difference between the requisites of membership as regards persons who subscribe the memorandum, and those who otherwise agree to become members. The former, as we have seen (p. 46), become ipso facto, on the registration of the company, members irrespective of entry in the register of members; the latter do not become members until agreement plus entry in the register. This distinction is clearly recognized in Nicol's case, 29 C. D. 421. There A. had agreed to take shares, and shares had been allotted to him; but his name had not been entered in the register. After some years, the agreement for membership not having been acted on, a winding-up order was made, and it was sought to place A. on the list of contributories, on the ground that he was a member. The learned judges were all of opinion that he had never become a member, that he had only agreed to be a member.

Agreement without registration not sufficient.

Cotton, L. J., said that the question was, whether, under the circumstances, A. had become an actual member or had only agreed to become a member, and stated that "there was in this case no actual membership, although it would have been possible, if proper proceedings had been taken, to render the membership complete"; and Bowen, L. J., said: "It appears to me that A. never acquired the status of a member of the company. I think that he remained with contractual obligations to the company, which the company had for a time a right to enforce against him. . . . According to the twenty-third section of the Act" (now the twenty-fourth of the Act) "I think he had not become a corporate member"; and Fry, L. J., said that the section "makes the placing of the name of a shareholder on the register a condition precedent to membership."

No doubt, where there is an agreement to take shares, but no entry in the register, either party may be entitled to claim and resist on specific performance of the agreement (see p. 57); but that circumstance, as the above case clearly shows, is not equivalent to entry on the register.

So, too, if B. takes a transfer of shares from A., and the company rightly or wrongly refuses to register the transfer, B. is not a member although either A. or B. can enforce registration of the transfer under sect. 32 of the Act of 1908.

Not is the rule, that entry in the register is necessary to establish the status of membership, in any way at variance with the rule as to settling the list of contributories in winding-up, namely, that a person who has agreed to become a member, and whose name is not, but ought to be, on the register, is to be included in such list, for in a winding-up the Court has full power to rectify the register of members (sects. 32, 163 of the Act); but even in contributory cases the Court will not exercise this power unless the agreement relied on is one which, at the commencement of the winding-up, the company was entitled to have specifically enforced. Arnol's case, 36 C. D. 707.

Wrongful removal from register.

The above cases must also be distinguished from those in which a person who has acquired the full status of membership is afterwards wrongfully removed from the register, as, for example, in consequence of a forged transfer having been proved. In such a case the person remains a member; he has acquired the full status, and the wrongful removal of his name does not affect his membership. Barton v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., 21 Q. B. D. 77; Bahia Co., 3 Q. B. D. 595.

Registration subject to a condition.

Moreover, it has been held that where shares are allotted subject to a condition, and the name of the allottee is entered in the register with words expressly referring to the condition, he has not obtained the complete status of a member. Spitzel v. Chinese Corporation (1900), 80 L. T. 347. Properly, his name ought not to be on the register. The mere entry of a person's name on the register cannot, of course, if there is no contract, make him a member. See infra p. 57.

Delay in Allotment.

Delay in allotment.

It is an implied term in an application for shares that the offer must be accepted within a reasonable time, and, if it is not, the applicant is entitled to repudiate the allotment. See Crawley's case 4 Ch. 323; and Ramsgate Hotel v. Montefiore, L. R. 1 Ex. 109. What is a reasonable time must depend on circumstances; but an allottee who receives notice of allotment, after a reasonable time has expired, must exercise his right of repudiation promptly. If he does not he will be bound, a fortiori if creditors' rights have intervened by a winding-up. Boyle's case, 33 W. R. 450; Crawley's case, 4 Ch. 323; Dukes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325.

Conditional Applications.

Conditional applications.

Sometimes an application for shares is made subject to a condition precedent, e.g., A. writes to a hotel company saying, "If you will give me an order for furniture, I will take up fifty shares in your capital, which please allot." In such case an allotment disregarding the condition may be repudiated by the allottee; for where there is a conditional application for shares and an unconditional allotment there is no true consent and therefore no contract constituted. The parties are not ad idem. Rogers' case, Harrison's case (1868), 34 Ch. 633; Wood's case, 3 De G. & J. 85; Shaw's case, 34 L. T. 715; Wood's case, 15 Eq. 236. The condition need not be contained in the letter of application. It is sufficient if the letter containing the condition reach the directors before allotment. Rogers' case, Harrison's case, supra. But in such cases if, after notice of allotment and registration before the condition is complied with, the allottee abstains from repudiating, he will be taken to have waived the condition and be bound (Wheeleroff's case, 20 L. T. 324), unless the entry in the register is expressed to be subject to the condition. Spitzel v. Chinese Corporation, 80 L. T. 347.

In this connection there is a very material distinction between an application with a condition precedent annexed, and an application with a collateral agreement or a condition subsequent. In the latter case the applicant on allotment becomes a shareholder in presenti absolutely, with only a right to enforce (if valid) the collateral agreement or condition subsequent against the company. Elkington's case (1867), L. R. 2 Ch. 511; Fisher's case and Sherington's case (1885), 11 Ch. D. 120; Bridger's case (1870), 5 Ch. 305; and Thompson's case (1865), 4 D. J. & S. 749, are good illustrations of the distinction.

Typical Examples of Contracts to take Shares.

a. A. applies to the company for an allotment of a specified number of shares, and agrees to accept the same or any less number that may be allotted to him. In response to this application, the directors resolve that a specified number of shares be allotted to him, and notice of such allotment is given to him. This constitutes the agreement, and his name should at once be entered on the register.

Examples of contracts to take shares.

b. The company allots or offers to A. a specified number of shares and A. notifies to the company his acceptance of the shares so offered. The agreement is complete, and A. should be entered in the register.

c. A. authorizes some agent to apply for shares on his behalf, and such agent applies accordingly. The shares are allotted to A., and notice is given to him as above, and he is duly registered. He is a member.

d. B. without authority applies for shares on behalf of A., and the directors allot shares to A., and register him. Subsequently A. ratifies B.'s act, e.g., either expressly, or by doing something (e.g., signing a transfer, or taking a dividend), which shows that he assents to the allotment. A. is a member.

e. A. being the holder of shares, transfers them by an instrument complying with the regulations of the company to B.; B. takes the transfer to the company, and the company passes it and places B. on the register. In this case, B. becomes a member in respect of the shares comprised in the transfer, and his name should be entered in the register in the place of A.'s.

(f) A. is duly appointed as a director of the company. The articles of the company state that the qualification of a director is so many shares, and that unless he acquires such qualification within (say) a month after the incorporation of the company, he is to be deemed to have agreed to take the shares from the company, and is to be registered accordingly. A. does not take up the shares within the month, and shortly afterwards he is, by the officers of the company, placed on the register as the holder of such shares. He thereby becomes a member in respect of such shares. By accepting the office he is regarded as in effect agreeing to comply with the articles, and by placing him on the register the company accepts his offer; and see pp. 718, 719, infra.

(g) A. is duly appointed a director. The articles state that the qualification of a director is the holding of so many shares. A. does not acquire this qualification within a reasonable time, and he is, at the expiration of that time, placed on the register of members in respect of his qualification. He is estopped from denying that he is a member in respect of the shares thus registered in his name, and should, therefore, be treated as a member.

h) A., who has not applied for shares, is informed that he has been registered as a holder of a specified number of shares in a company. He signs a proxy paper in respect of such shares, or otherwise, in effect, acts as the owner of such shares. He is estopped from denying that he is the holder of such shares. Crawley's case 4 Ch. 323.

i) A. applies for shares on the footing that he is not to be liable thereon for the full amount, and the company allots shares which involve the full liability. A. nevertheless exercises acts of ownership, e.g., by selling some and obtaining proxies. A. is bound. Railway Time Tables, &c. Co., 42 C. D. 98. "If she assented to have these shares in her name, that is all that is required to make her liable as a member," said Cotton, L. J., and Bowen, L. J., added, "From such assent to be on the register, and from such dealing with the shares which took place after she was on the register, there can be but one inference which the Court ought to draw, namely, that she agreed to be a member of the company, and, her name being on the register, her liability to the company is complete."

The cases under the last two heads come to this: that a person is to be regarded as a member if his name is on the register of members with his consent, or if he is estopped from denying that he is registered without consent. He may not have applied: the shares may have been placed there without his consent and contrary to his wishes, but if he assents to his name being on the register, he is to be considered a member of the company.

Mere entry of a person's name on the company's register, however, without agreement or assent, is not enough. Thus, if a director resigns before the time for taking up his qualification shares has expired, and the company has, notwithstanding, entered his name on the register, without his assent, as the holder of the qualification shares, he may compel the company to take his name off the register. Salisbury-Jones's case, (1894) 3 Ch. 356. So, too, if a man's name is put on the register upon the application of some person professing to act as his agent, but without any authority in fact, the company can be compelled to take the name off. Ormerod's case, (1894) 2 Ch. 475. Or, again, where a man applies for shares, but withdraws his application before acceptance, and the company allots nevertheless and puts his name on the register, he may have it taken off. Hebb's case, 1 Eq. 9; Truman's case, (1894) 3 Ch. 272.

A person improperly registered as a transferee of a share is not bound, and may have his name taken off the register. Heritage's case, 9 Eq. 5; Cartmell's case, 9 Ch. 691.

As to rescinding the agreement, see infra, p. 193.

The above are all cases of persons nisi juris. In the case of persons not nisi juris, such as infants or lunatics, a contract to take shares is voidable. Lumsden's case, 4 Ch. 34; Ebbett's case, 5 Ch. 302; Capper's case, 3 Ch. 458; Yeoland Consols, 58 L. T. 922; Symons' case, 5 Ch. 298. The infant on coming of age may annul the contract, but he must elect promptly.

Specific Performance.

The Court has jurisdiction to specifically enforce a contract by a person to take, or by a company to allot, shares (New Brunswick Co. v. Muggeridge, 1 Dr. & Sm. 363; Oriental Inland Steam Co. v. Brans (1861), 31 L. J. Ch. 341; Odessa Tramways Co. v. Mendel (1878), 8 Ch. D. 235); but if before action brought all the shares have been allotted to other persons, the only remedy of a plaintiff claiming an allotment is an action for damages for breach of contract. Ferguson v. Wilson (1865), 2 Ch. 77. A company may, by delay, disentitle itself to enforce an agreement. Nicol's case, 29 Ch. D. 421.

Specific performance of contract to take shares.

Cessure of Membership.

A person may cease to be a member of a company

Cessure of membership.

1. By transferring his shares to another person. In such case, the transferor ceases to be a member so soon as, but not before, the transferee is registered; but the transferor is still liable to be placed on the B list of contributories as a past member, if the company is wound up within a year. Stanhope's case, 1 Ch. 161; Heritage's case, 9 Eq. 5.

- (2.) By his shares being forfeited. Daire's case, 6 Eq. 232.
- (3.) By his shares being sold by the company under some provision in its articles (e.g., for enforcing a lien), and by the purchaser being registered as holder in his place.
- (4.) By death: but in such a case the deceased member's estate remains liable until the registration of some person entitled under a transfer from his executors or administrators. Heward v. Wheatley, 3 De G. M. & G. 628; Baird's case, 5 Ch. 725.
- (5.) By a surrender in the rare cases where a surrender is valid. Trecor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409.
- (6.) By the trustee in bankruptcy of an insolvent member disclaiming his shares. See Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 55; Bankruptcy Act, 1890, c. 71, s. 13.
- (7.) By rescission of the contract of membership on the ground of misrepresentation (pp. 193, 199) or mistake (p. 200). This, however, does not apply to shares subscribed for in the memorandum of association. Lord Lurgan's case, (1902) 1 Ch. 707.
- (8.) By avoiding within the statutory period an allotment as made in contravention of sect. 85 of the Act. See sect. 5, supra, p. 18.

Liability to Pay for Shares.

Liability on shares.

The terms of the Act of 1908 replacing those of the Act of 1862 in the case of a company limited by shares, and in particular the provisions of sects. 2 and 123, leave no doubt about the obligation of shareholders to pay to the company the full amount of their shares. The words of sect. 2, limiting the liability of members to "the amount unpaid on their shares," can only mean, as Lord Macnaghten pointed out in the Oregum case, (1892) A. C. 145, that the liability of the member continues so long as anything remains unpaid on his shares. Nothing but payment, and payment in full, can put an end to the liability. "All the legislation," said his Lordship, "proceeds on the footing of recognizing and maintaining the liability of the individual member to the company until the prescribed limits are reached." The liability under the Act of 1862 was to pay in money or (with the company's consent) in money's worth.

Thus, in an early case, Romilly, M. R., said:

"A person cannot sign the memorandum of association for shares generally, and afterwards say that some or all of them are paid-up shares, unless money or money's worth was actually paid by him or on his behalf for those particular shares." Baron de Bessille's case (1868), 7 Eq. 11. And in Baglan Hall Colliery Co., 5 Ch. 346, where the owners of a colliery subscribed the memorandum for 600 shares, and by the articles it was provided that these shares should be deemed to be fully paid up, it being obviously intended that they should be paid up by making over the colliery to the company, and the colliery was in fact subsequently made over to the company, it is held that the shares were paid-up shares. In that case, Giffard, L. J., after referring to the provisions of the Act, said that: "Taking these sections together, a person who subscribes the memorandum of association is to be held to have agreed to be a shareholder for the number of shares in respect of which he subscribes it to take them, and to pay a proper consideration for them. . . . There is not any inconsistency between a memorandum which is general in its terms, and articles which state that the payment for shares is to be made in a particular way according to the terms of a contract referred to in the articles—nor do I see that payment in kind according to a subsequent contract with the company is inconsistent with such a memorandum. If there be a contract of such a nature that on bill filed by the company it could not be set aside, a payment of shares in kind according to that contract is legal. . . . The test to be applied is this: Could the company by any proceeding have set aside the transaction by which it was arranged that the owners of the colliery were to have paid-up shares as the price of their interest in the colliery? And I say, on the evidence, that the company clearly could not. It was urged that the parties only agreed with themselves, and that heretofore there was no contract. But every company is started by parties agreeing among themselves, and it is idle to say that they have nobody to agree with." See also Drummond's case, 4 Ch. 772, and Pell's case (1869), 5 Ch. 11. In Leckie's case (1871), 11 Eq. 100, Stuart, V.-C., questioned these decisions, and expressed the opinion that there was nothing in the statute of 1862 to countenance the notion of anything but money being a satisfaction of the limited liability. "Indeed," said the learned judge, "the money due in respect of calls upon shares is by the statute made a specialty debt. Great as the alteration of the law of contract is which the statute has made, the facility for fraud would be intolerable if by any agreement amongst themselves the creditor could be deprived even of his limited right, and of the absolute right to the limited amount of money capital. An agreement amongst the shareholders to contribute their capital not in money but in any commodity, with no criterion of value but the agreement of the shareholders, would make the subscribed capital a mere delusion." But although the decision of the V.-C. was affirmed on appeal (6 Ch. 469), his opinion on this point was extra-judicial, and it is in opposition to a long series of subsequent decisions, including decisions of the House of Lords; and on the appeal from the V.-C. (6 Ch. 469), James, L. J., said he did not wish to be considered as concurring in all that the V.-C. had said. See further, infra, p. 60.

The operation, however, of the Act of 1862 was modified by sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867. By that enactment the Legislature restricted the power to pay otherwise than in cash by providing that every share should be deemed to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash unless the same should have been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing and filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies at or before the issue of such share. And whilst this section was in force it followed that once a share was issued it had to be paid up in full in cash unless a sufficient contract providing for some other mode of payment was duly filed before such issue. See further, infra, p. 68. However, as from 31st December, 1900, this section has been repealed by the Companies Act, 1900, and accordingly the law as it stood under the Act of 1862 is restored. Hence shares, whether subscribed in the memorandum or otherwise taken, may now be paid up in money or (with the consent of the company) in money's worth, e.g., by making over to the company property or rendering to it services. Baglan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 346.

The shareholders' liability is limited even as regards debts incurred in a foreign country. Ridlon v. Iron and Locomotive Works, (1905) 1 K. B. 304.

Amount or Value of Consideration.

Value of consideration for paid-up shares and set-off.

It is well settled that under the Act of 1908, as under the earlier Acts, shares cannot be issued at a discount, that is to say, the liability in respect of a share can only be satisfied by payment or satisfaction of the full amount, and that an agreement by the company to accept in satisfaction a cash payment of less than the full amount is ultra vires. Ooregum Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125. That case was decided whilst sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, was in force, but it was decided on the principle that the liability to pay the full amount is imposed by the Act of 1862 (now 1908); accordingly it is still a governing decision. Hence, to issue shares at a discount is ultra vires (see the case last mentioned, and Almada & Tinto Co., 38 C. D. 423; Addlestone Linoleum Co., 37 C. D. 191; Wellton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299; Moseley v. Koffyfontein, (1904) 2 Ch. 108); and à fortiori to issue bonus shares is ultra vires. Eddystone Marine Insurance Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 423; Alkaline Syndicate, 45 W. R. 10.

Nevertheless, shares may be paid up in money's worth, and there need not be evidence of an exact equivalent in value in the consideration.

As to consideration in kind.

It was held, many years since, that where shares have been issued as paid up, upon the footing that certain specified property shall be accepted by the company as the consideration for such issue, the Court will not, whilst the contract stands, inquire as to the value of the consideration, even at the instance of a liquidator. Pell's case (1869), 5 Ch. 11; Baglan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 346. And see Ooregum Co. v. Roper, ubi supra; Theatrical Trust, (1895) 1 Ch. 771.

Pell's case was decided in 1869. Pell had agreed to sell to a company the goodwill and stock-in-trade of his business, in consideration of 1,500 20l. shares in the company fully paid up. In a winding-up, Lord Romilly, M. R., directed an inquiry as to the value of the property handed over by Pell to the company under his agreement aforesaid, and declared that Pell was entitled to be allowed only the amount of that value. This decision was reversed on appeal; Giffard, L. J., holding that, as the agreement was not impeached, the Court had no ground for going behind it, and that the shares must be treated as fully paid up. In the next year (1870) Lord Hatherley, L. C., in Forbes and Judd's case, 5 Ch. 273, clearly approved of Pell's case; and in Baglan Hall Colliery Co., Giffard, L. J., soon afterwards again laid down what he had stated in Pell's case.

In Ooregum Gold Mining Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125, Lord Watson said: "A company is free to contract with the applicant for its shares; and when he pays in cash the nominal amount of the shares allotted to him, the company may at once return the money in satisfaction of its legal indebtedness for goods supplied or services rendered by him. That circuitous process is not essential. It has been decided that under the Act of 1862 shares may be lawfully issued as fully paid up, for considerations which the company has agreed to accept as representing in money's worth the nominal value of the shares. I do not think any other decision could have been given in the case of a genuine transaction of that nature, where the consideration was the substantial equivalent of full payment of the shares in cash. The possible objection to such an arrangement is that the company may over-estimate the value of the consideration, and therefore receive less than the nominal value of its shares. The Court would doubtless refuse effect to a colourable transaction, entered into for the purpose or with the obvious result of enabling the company to issue its shares at a discount; but it has been ruled that so long as the company honestly regards the consideration given as fairly representing the nominal value of the shares in cash, its estimate ought not to be critically examined." In the same case Lord Herschell said that "not only may a share be allotted as fully paid up in respect of property, goods, or services received by the company, but the Courts will not inquire into the adequacy of the consideration, and certainly have not required it to be proved that the consideration given was equivalent in cash value to the nominal amount of the shares"; and Lord Macnaghten said: "It seems to me that all that has been determined so far is that the Court will decline to rip up a transaction not impeached as dishonest, and not proved to be such, merely because the company may have paid an extravagant price for their property."

The principles laid down and recognized in the case last mentioned were treated for nearly thirty years as sound law, and acted on in thousands of cases; nevertheless they were challenged again in the case of Re Wragg, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 796, and a strenuous attempt made to impugn their authority—an attempt which, if successful, would have introduced endless confusion. In that case the agreement for sale had apportioned the consideration between the various items of property comprised in it, and in a winding-up it was alleged by the liquidator that the consideration apportioned to one item was excessive, and that on this ground the paid-up shares issued to the vendor ought to be treated as unpaid; but the Court considered itself bound by the decision in Pell's case, supra, and declined to intervene.

"It has," said Lindley, L. J., in that case, "never yet been decided that a limited company cannot buy property or pay for services at any price it thinks proper and pay for them in fully paid-up shares. Provided a limited company does so honestly and not colourably, and provided that it has not been so imposed upon as to be entitled to be relieved from its bargain, it appears to be settled by Pell's case, 5 Ch. 11, and the others to which I have referred, of which Anderson's case, 7 C. D. 75, is the most striking, that agreements by limited companies to pay for property or services in paid-up shares are valid and binding on the companies and their creditors. . . . Value paid to the company is measured by the price at which the company agrees to buy what it thinks it worth its while to acquire. Whilst the transaction is unimpeached this is the only value to be considered."

"If," said A. L. Smith, L. J., in the same case, "the consideration which the company has agreed to accept as representing in money's worth the nominal value of the shares be a consideration not clearly colourable nor illusory, then, in my judgment, the adequacy of the consideration cannot be impeached by a liquidator unless the contract can also be impeached, and I take it to be the law that it is not open to a liquidator, unless he is able to impeach the agreement, to go into the adequacy of the consideration to show that the company have agreed to give an excessive value for what they have purchased."

In other words, the Court does not revise the discretion of directors on a business transaction unless they are shown not to have acted in good faith.

See also Felix Hadley & Co. v. Hadley (1897), 77 L. T. 131, in which case the company, being still a going concern, sought to make the defendant, from whom it had bought property, responsible in damages for having sold, as it was alleged, at an excessive price; but Byrne, J., not being satisfied that the price was excessive, dismissed the action. And see Theatrical Trust, (1895) 1 Ch. 771; Innes & Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 251. See also, as to the law as laid down in Scotland, Brownlie, Petitioner (Scottish Heritage Co.) (1898), 6 S. L. T. 326.

Then as to the nature of the consideration. It is well settled that the consideration may consist of property or services, or any other benefits or advantages which the company deems of value and has power to expend its funds on.

But bonus certificates issued with debentures and made payable out of profits only cannot be made the consideration for the issue of paid-up shares. Burg v. Farnatona Co., (1910) A. C. 439. See also Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines, Ltd., (1904) 2 Ch. 108.

The failure of the consideration given for the issue of paid-up shares will not entitle the company to treat the shares as unpaid (see Mege & Angier's case, W. N. (1875) 208). In that case the shares were issued in consideration of the assignment of a patent: the patent never was in fact assigned, but the shares were nevertheless held to be and to remain paid-up shares. So in Schroder's case, 11 Eq. 131, a company, the business of which was to run the blockade during the Confederate rebellion, accepted Confederate bonds in satisfaction of certain shares, and it was held that this was a valid payment, though the bonds subsequently became worthless owing to the issue of the war.

It has even been held that where paid-up shares are issued under an ultra vires contract, such shares cannot be treated by the company or by its liquidator as unpaid. De Rurigne's case, 5 C. Div. 306. The company must, it is said, either approve or reprobate the contract (see Anderson's case, per Jessel, M. R., 7 C. D. 75); but this seems open to question, for no estoppel can arise under an ultra vires contract.

If the contract is ultra vires, it may be that the allottee can within a reasonable time repudiate it, as in Almada & Tirito Co., 38 C. D. 123; but once it is shown that he is on the register with his consent, that imports an obligation to pay (Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299; Railway Time Table Co., 42 C. D. 98; Oregon Co. v. Roper, (1892

C. 125); for persons trust the company on the faith of the names appearing on the register.

Shares, again, though not in fact paid for, may be impressed with estoppel, the character of fully paid-up shares by reason of the company being estopped from saying that they have not been paid for, supra, p. 42.

Who is liable.

The registered holder of a share is the person liable in respect of the amount unpaid thereon, and such registered holder is liable whether he is the beneficial owner or a mere trustee. It makes no difference, when the registered holder is a trustee or whether the company is or is not cognisant of the trust. Chapman and Barber's case, 3 Eq. 301. The cestui que trust cannot be made liable as shareholder or as a contributory (Buggs' case, 2 Dr. & Sm. 459; Cree v. Somervail, 4 App. Cas. 618), but he is liable to indemnify his trustee. Hemming v. Maddick, 7 Ch. 395; Hardoon v. Belilos, (1901) A. C. 118.

The holder's liability to pay in most cases arises from the operation of sect. 14 (2) of the Act of 1908, replacing sect. 16 of the Companies Act, 1862, which expressly provides that "all money payable by any member to the company under the memorandum and articles shall be a debt due from him to the company, and in England or Ireland be of the nature of a specialty debt"; and the articles generally go on to define how and when calls and instalments made payable by the terms of issue shall be paid when due by the holder to the company. Sometimes, however, the articles are defective in this respect, and in such cases it is necessary to resort to the contract under which the shares were issued, and to rely on the promise therein to pay the whole or part by specified instalments. In a winding-up the liability to pay whatever may be called for arises under sect. 123 of the new Act, reproducing sect. 38 of the Act, replacing sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1862. Where the holder dies, his estate remains liable in respect of his share until some other person is registered as the holder thereof. See supra, p. 58. When the holder transfers and the transferee is registered, the transferee becomes liable to pay all moneys subsequently becoming payable in respect of the share. See supra, p. 58. But a person who has, by transfer, forfeiture, or surrender, ceased to be a member, still remains secondarily liable as a past member (B. contributory) in the event of a winding-up commencing within one year after he ceases to be a member, as by sect. 123 (reproducing sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1862) provided.

Returns as to Allotments and Filing Contracts with Registrar.

By sect. 88 of the Act, replacing sect. 7 of the Companies Act, 1900, special provision has been made for prompt filing with the Registrar of particulars of all allotments from time to time made. The section runs as follows:

Return as to allotments.

88.—(1) Whenever a company limited by shares makes any allotment of its shares, the company shall within one month thereafter file with the registrar of companies—

- (a) a return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses, and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share; and
- (b) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment, together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

(2) Where such a contract as above mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall within one month after the allotment file with the registrar of companies the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and those particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891, and the registrar may, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section twelve of that Act.

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues:

Provided that, in case of default in filing with the registrar of companies within one month after the allotment any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such period as the Court may think proper.

The object of this section is to afford those who deal or propose to deal with a company the means of ascertaining approximately the position of the company as regards its issued shares. Under the law as it stood before this Act (sect. 26 of the Act of 1862) a company was only bound once a year to make a return showing its capital issue, and, accordingly, a search at the Registrar's office in many cases afforded very little information, for the filed return very commonly showed only the position six or eight months before the search. This was supplemented by the now repealed sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, which provided for the filing of contracts as to shares issued for a consideration other than cash; but even after compliance with both sections the information disclosed was not up to date. The section now under consideration brings matters up very nearly to the date of search.

The first sub-section is divided into two parts, (a) and (b)

Part (a) requires "a return of the allotments," stating certain particulars, including "the amount (if any) paid, or due and payable on each share"; and a question at once arises whether this return must include shares subscribed for in the memorandum of association, for shares so subscribed do not require allotment (supra, p. 46), the subscriber obtaining a complete title immediately on the incorporation of the company. Upon the whole the answer seems to be that where there is no allotment of shares so subscribed there is no obligation to include such shares in the return; but, though not necessary, it is not uncommon to pass a resolution for allotment of the shares so subscribed for, and where this is done the shares should be included in the return.

Another question which arises on part (a) is whether the return thereby required is to include all shares allotted, including those which are allotted in whole or part for a consideration other than cash, or only those which are to be paid for in cash. Probably the latter construction is the correct one; for otherwise, in the case of shares allotted in whole or part for a consideration other than cash, they must be mentioned in two returns, viz., that under (a) and that under (b), which might lead to confusion.

(b) This paragraph is in substitution for sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, which was repealed by sect. 33 of the Act of 1900. It is peculiarly framed, for in the case specified it requires the filing—

- (1) of a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to such allotment, and
- (2) of any contract of sale or for services, or for other consideration in respect of which such allotment was made, and
- (3) of a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

It is clear that in every case the contract (1) and the report (3) must be filed; but as to (2) it is apprehended that, the word being "any" as distinguished from "a," it means any contract which may have been entered into, supposing there is such a contract—there is no need to file such a contract when there is none—or, in other words, "any contract" must be read "the contract, if any."

The object, presumably, is to meet the case of a principal contract for sale followed by a sub-contract conferring title on the allottee, as in Kharaskhoma, &c. Syndicate, (1897) 2 Ch. 451, 456, and to compel the filing of both in order to furnish the fullest information.

Very commonly, however, the allottee's title is constituted by the sale contract, and where this is the case it would seem sufficient to file the sale contract: in filing that, everything required by the section is in fact filed.

It seems clear that, in order to comply with this section, if the contract "constituting the title to the allotment" has not been reduced to writing before the allotment, the company must file particulars as required by sub-sect. (2). See infra, p. 67.

Allotted.

"Allotted." Sub-section (b), it is to be noted, applies only "in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash." These words are peculiar. They are obviously elliptical, and should, looking to the context, be read as referring to the case of shares allotted upon the footing that the whole or some part of the amount thereof shall be credited as paid up for a consideration other than cash; for the context shows that the Act is here dealing with shares which are to be treated as paid up to some extent, and are allotted in consideration of property or services or other equivalent.

"A Contract in Writing." The section says nothing about the contract being signed by the parties. The words used in sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, for which sect. 7 of the Companies Act, 1900, and now sect. 88 of the Act of 1908, is substituted, were "a contract duly made in writing," and it was held that these words meant signed by both parties. See New Eberhardt Co., 43 C. D. 130. So, in Pooley v. Driver, 5 C. D. 458, it was held that the words "contract in writing" in sect. 1 of 28 & 29 Vict. c. 6, meant contract in writing signed by the parties. And in Ex parte Munro, 1 Q. B. D. 724, it was held that an "agreement in writing" between a solicitor and clients as to costs, under sect. 4 of 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28, must be signed by both parties. Hence it is apprehended that a contract, to satisfy sect. 88, must be signed or executed by both parties.

Contract in writing.

"Constituting the Title of the Allottee to such Allotment." These words primâ facie lead to the conclusion that the contract which is to be filed must be signed before the allotment; for, once the allotment has been made, it would seem that no subsequent contract can constitute the title of the allottee to "such allotment."

Thus, if by oral contract the shares are allotted in consideration of property which is duly conveyed, it is difficult to see how any subsequent contract in writing can "constitute" the allottee's title to the allotment: the title was validly and effectually "constituted" by oral contract. In such case particulars of the oral contract must be filed under sub-sect. (2) of sect. 88.

This is a matter of some importance, for cases very commonly occur in which, by oversight or otherwise, allotments for a consideration other than cash are made without the signature of a sufficient contract to file.

As to the parties to the contract, it would seem that the company or some duly authorized agent of the company must be one of the parties, and primâ facie that the allottee or a trustee for the allottee must also be a party; for, strictly speaking, a contract by the company with A. for an allotment to B. gives B. no title to the allotment, and no right to enforce it (Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. D. 125), unless A. is agent or trustee for B. (Ibid.) Hence it is doubtful whether a contract which provides for the allotment of paid-up shares "to A. or his nominees" can, so far as regards the nominees, be said to constitute the title of the nominees to an allotment. And even if the contract plus the nomination be filed, it is not clear that they "constitute the title."

In such cases any question can be precluded by allotting direct to A. and then transferring to the nominees, or by making a supplemental contract between him and the nominee or a trustee before allotment, and therein providing for the allotment to the nominee.

Under sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, it was held that a nominee was effectually protected by the filing of a contract providing for allotment of paid-up shares to A. or his nominees (Carling's case, 1 C. D. 115), or even without those words (Kirby's case, 46 L. T. 682; Common Petroleum Engine Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 759); but the words of sect. 88 of the Act of 1908 are very different.

When contract to be filed.

The contract is to be filed within one month after the allotment, and the question sometimes arises whether a contract filed before allotment will suffice. Considering that the obvious object is to secure the disclosure, it may be that a contract so filed is sufficient; but it is safer to adhere to the express directions of the section, the policy of which is to ensure disclosure of the actual allotment, not of that which is in contemplation merely.

What is "Cash"?

Cash.

Sub-sect. 1 (b) of sect. 88 deals with shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and the question thereupon arises as to what is cash. There is, of course, no question that if the share is issued expressly on the footing that it is to be paid up by instalments, or with reference to calls, or without any stipulation as to how the amount is to be paid, it is issued on a cash footing.

So, also, if the share is issued credited as fully or partly paid up in consideration of the payment to the company of a sum in cash equal to or exceeding the credit, the share is issued for cash.

But it has been held that where a share is issued as a fully paid-up share in consideration of the release of a debt presently payable by the allottee, it is not issued for cash. Johannesburg Hotel Co. (1891) 1 Ch. 119, 129.

Where a transaction results in this, that there is on the one side a bonâ fide debt payable in money at once for the purchase of property, and on the other side a bonâ fide liability to pay money at once on shares, so that if bank notes had been handed from one side of the table to the other in payment of calls, they might legitimately have been handed back in payment for the property; then if the two demands are set off against each other, the shares have been paid for in cash. Spargo's case, L. R. 8 Ch. 412; North Sydney Investment Co., (1899) A. C. 353; Larocque v. Beauchemin, (1897) A. C. 358. But there must be "cross money payments presently enforceable." Re Barrow-in-Furness Investment Co., 14 Ch. D. 403, supra.

What not cash.

If shares are issued as fully or partly paid up, in consideration of property to be made over to the company or services rendered to the company, or in consideration of the release of a debt or claim, or by way of compromise, the share is issued for a consideration other than cash.

So, also, where shares are issued without any sum credited, but upon the footing that the whole or some part of the amount may be paid up by making over to the company property, or rendering it services, the share is issued, at any rate in part, for a consideration other than cash.

Sub-sect. 1 (b) of sect. 88 only deals with shares allotted for a consideration other than cash; it does not cover the case of shares allowed on a cash basis and afterwards paid up wholly or in part by making over to the company property or rendering to it services which it is willing to accept in satisfaction of the amount of the shares or some part thereof.

Sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 having been repealed (see infra), the law now stands as it stood under the Act of 1862; and accordingly shares, whether subscribed in the memorandum or otherwise taken up, may be paid up in cash or otherwise. "If a man contracts to take shares, he must pay either in money or money's worth, and payment in either will be a satisfaction." Per Giffard, L. J., in Baglan Hall Colliery Co., 5 Ch. 346, 353. And in the same case he says (p. 354) that he does not see that "payment in kind according to a subsequent contract with the company is inconsistent with such a memorandum. If there be a contract of such a nature that on a bill filed by the company it could not be set aside, a payment for shares in kind according to that contract is legal."

Hence, if shares are issued to A. on a cash basis, there is nothing to prevent a subsequent contract that the amount or part thereof shall be satisfied by making over to the company property or rendering it services which the company is willing to accept in satisfaction; but in such a case the company must file a return under sect. 88.

Moreover, the section in no way interferes with Spargo's case, 8 Ch. 407, and accordingly any bonâ fide transaction which in an action for calls would support a plea of payment is, à fortiori, sufficient. Larocque v. Beauchemin, (1897) A. C. 358; North Sydney Investment, &c. Co., (1899) A. C. 263.

As to applications for relief where there has been an omission to comply with the section, see the decisions on the Companies Act, 1898, infra, towards the conclusion of Chap. XX.

Penalty.

The penalty is very onerous, namely, 50*l.* per day; but it is only to be enforced against a director, manager, secretary, or other officer who is knowingly a party to the default. "Knowingly" means "knowing the facts" (Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240), and a man commits the offence if he knows of the allotment or knows of the contract and does not procure compliance with the section; the mere fact that he erroneously believed that he had complied with the section would not, semble, afford a defence. Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469.

Result of Non-filing.

Result of non-filing.

The non-filing of the requisite contract will not, as under sect. 25 of the Act of 1867, below referred to, render the shares liable to payment in cash, but will expose the directors and other officials of the company to heavy penalties. See sect. 88, sub-sect. 3, of the Act of 1908.

Register of Members.

Register of members.

Every company under the Act is to cause to be kept in one or more books a register of its members. See sect. 25 of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 25 of the Act of 1862). This register, as will be seen, is one of the cardinal points of our company system.

Contents.

Contents.

This register must contain:

- (a) Names and addresses and the occupations (if any) of the members of the company.
- (b) A statement of the number of shares held by each shareholder, distinguishing each share by its number (sect. 22) and the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on each share.
- (c) The date at which the name of any person was entered in the register as a member.
- (d) The date at which any person ceased to be a member.

In default the company and every director or manager are liable to heavy penalties.

Notice of any change of address is to be entered on the register. As to share warrants, see sect. 37 of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 31 of the Companies Act, 1867).

Primâ facie a company is not entitled to enter a memorandum of lien on the register. Re Key & Son, (1902) 1 Ch. 467.

As to registering a firm, supra, p. 45.

Inspection.

Inspection.

The register of members commencing from the date of the registration of the company is, by sect. 30, to be kept at the registered office of the company (sect. 62, infra); and by sect. 30 such register is to be open for inspection by members gratis, and for inspection by any other person on payment of one shilling or such less sum as the company may prescribe for each inspection.

A right is also given to receive a copy of such register or any part thereof, and a penalty is imposed for refusal of inspection, and in addition to this penalty, a judge sitting in chambers may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register; and disobedience of that order being a contempt of Court may be punished by imprisonment.

The right of inspection does not carry with it the right to make free extracts. The sum of 6d. per folio of 100 words must be paid. Balaghât Gold Mining Co., (1901) 2 T. B. 665, overruling Boord v. African, &c. Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 596.

The "register" includes the entries of the names of persons who have been, but have ceased to be, members of the company by reason of the forfeiture of their shares or otherwise. Boord v. African Consolidated, &c. Co., supra.

The right terminates on a winding-up. Kent Coalfields Syndicate, (1898) 1 Q. B. 754.

Refusal in this section means a distinct and definite refusal. Rex v. Wilts and Berks Canal Co., 3 Ad. & El. 477. See, too, 8 Ad. & El. 901.

A creditor or member may inspect by his solicitor or agent. Bevan v. Webb, (1901) 2 Ch. 59.

The motive for inspection is immaterial. Davies v. Gas Light and Coal Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 248.

Closing of Register.

The company is empowered to close the register by advertisement, but not for more than thirty days in each year. See sect. 31 of 1908. Closing of register.

Register Primâ facie Evidence.

The register of members is to be primâ facie evidence of any matters by the Act directed or authorized to be inserted therein. Sect. 33 of the Act of 1908. Hence it is not conclusive. Reese River, &c. Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 80.

Publicity of Register.

It is important to note the fact that the register of members is, by the Act, open to the public until winding-up. In this respect the Act of 1862 differs from the Act of 1844. By sect. 50 of the Act of 1844 every shareholder was to have liberty to search the register at all reasonable times, but nobody was to be at liberty to search it who was not a shareholder. Publicity of register.

There was a similar obligation as to keeping a register in the Act of 1862, but that Act introduced an important change in providing (sect. 30) that the register should be open to the inspection not only of shareholders, but, on payment of one shilling, of all other persons. This would, of course, include creditors and persons about to deal with the company, and the change indicates unmistakeably an intention on the part of the Legislature that the creditors and persons who contemplated dealing in some way with the company were to be entitled to look at this document as showing them to what extent they might safely trust the company.

Object of publicity.

While the liability of shareholders remained unlimited "such a power of inspection was not necessary, or, certainly, not at all so necessary. . . . But when the Legislature enabled shareholders to limit their liability not merely to the amount of their shares, but to so much of that amount as remained unpaid, it is obvious that no creditor could safely trust the company without ascertaining first who the shareholders might be, and, secondly, to what extent they would be liable. This is obviously the reason why the new statute opened the register to the inspection of all the world. . . . The Legislature took care to provide the register as the means of enabling persons dealing with the company to know to whom and to what they might trust. It intended to put the persons whose names are on it in the same position towards creditors (subject, of course, to the statutable restrictions) as persons engaged in an ordinary partnership, or persons trading formerly under the Act of 1844." Per Lord Cranworth, Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 366. In the same case his Lordship also said: "It is a fallacy to hold that the liability of the partners in these companies must rest entirely on the same principle of contract which was the foundation of the liability of the partners of any unincorporated companies prior to the institution of this class of associations. The question is not whether there was any privity of contract between the appellant and creditors of the company; but it is whether, under the constitution of these newly-created societies, there is a statutory liability imposed on persons in the position of the appellant. Secondly, it is an error to hold that creditors are not supposed to trust to the responsibility of the shareholders. The careful regulations as to the register of shareholders and the publicity to be given to them form a sufficient answer to that argument. Indeed it is plain, from the reason of the thing, that no credit would otherwise be given to the abstraction of a company."

Doctrine of holding out.

On the same principle, in Sewell's case, 3 Ch. 138, where a registered shareholder wished to disclaim the ownership of certain shares, Lord Cairns, while assuming in the shareholder's favour that he might have had a right to disclaim, was of opinion that "not having done so, and being aware that he was held out to the public as the holder of the shares, it is too late for him, months or even years afterwards, to enter into that question." "It is impossible," the same learned judge remarked on another occasion, "to disembarass these cases of the effect which a man's name being on the register has in inducing other persons to alter their position." Lawrence's case (1867), 2 Ch. 417.

The result of this doctrine of holding out is that if a person's name is on the register with his consent, and he claims a right to have it removed on some ground or other, he must exercise the right promptly, otherwise he forfeits it. See Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 C. D. 434, in which Baggallay, L. J., said: "The delay of a fortnight in repudiating the shares makes it in my mind doubtful whether the repudiation in the case of a going concern would have been in time. No doubt where investigation is necessary some time must be allowed, as in the Central Railway Company of Venezuela, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; but where, as in the present case, the shareholder is at once fully informed of the circumstances, he ought to lose no time in repudiating." Even where a name is, pursuant to a void contract, placed on the register, delay may be fatal. Railway Time Tables Co., 42 C. D. 107; supra, p. 54. Delay.

Nevertheless the reliance to be placed on the register is qualified to this extent, that anyone dealing with the company must be taken to know— Register not conclusive.

- (1) That shares may be transferred in accordance with the regulations, and thus an insolvent shareholder may be substituted for a solvent one.
 - (2) That a member who has been induced to take shares by misrepresentations or mistake, even though on the register for years, may, while the company is a going concern, repudiate his shares and get off the register. See p. 197, infra.
 - (3) That there may be persons on the register placed there without their consent who may subsequently enforce the removal of their names. See further, Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 803; and Baillie's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110, in which a person on the register escaped on the ground that he had made a mistake as to the company.
 - (4) That persons on the register may escape under sect. 86 of the Companies Act, 1908, on the ground of the allotment being irregular.
 - (5) Where the entry on the register is there stated to be subject to some condition membership is not complete. Spitzel v. Chinese Corporation, 80 L. T. 347. See p. 49, supra.
- As to rectification of the register, see infra, Chap. XX.

Powers of Majority.

It is a cardinal rule of the law, as applied to corporations, that primâ facie the majority of its members are entitled to exercise its powers and control its operations generally. Powers of majority.

"Where no special provision is made by the constitution of a corporation, the whole are bound by the acts not only of the major part, but of the major part of those who are present at a regular corporate meeting, whether the number present be a majority of the whole or not." Bacon, Abr. II. 269, citing 10 Mod. 75; 12 Mod. 232; Cowp. 249. "It cannot be disputed that wherever a certain number of persons are incorporated, a major part of them may do any corporate act; so, if all be summoned, and part appear, a major part of those that appear may do a corporate act, though nothing be mentioned in the charter of the major part." Per Lord Hardwicke, C., Att.-Gen. v. Davy, 2 Atk. 212.

This rule is applicable to a company under the Act of 1908, save so far as its constitution, or regulations, or the Act, exclude or modify the rule; and accordingly all the powers of the company are exercisable by resolution of a general meeting, e.g., if there are no directors capable of acting in a particular transaction, and some of the directors do, or propose to do, something beyond their powers, but within the powers of the company, a general meeting can ratify what has been done, or authorize what is proposed to be done. Grant v. United Kingdom Switchback Rail. Co., 40 C. D. 135. And if some person is acting as a director who has not been duly appointed, or is not duly qualified, it is for the majority to object, and if some shareholder brings an action in the name of the company, e.g., to impeach the conduct of the directors in regard to a matter within the powers of the company, it is for a general meeting to decide whether the action shall proceed. Duckett v. Gover, 6 C. D. 82. As to further proceedings, see 25 W. R. 554; Exeter and Crediton Rail. Co. v. Buller, 5 Ry. Cas. 211.

The cases following illustrate the importance which the Courts, and especially Courts of equity, attach to the will of the majority:—

In Foss v. Harbottle, 2 Ha. 461, two members of an incorporated company filed a bill against the directors and others, praying that the defendants might be compelled to make good the losses sustained by the company by reason of the fraudulent acts of such directors; but the Court, being of opinion that the acts of the defendant complained of were capable of confirmation by a majority of the members of the company, declined to interfere. See also Mozley v. Alston, 1 P. H. 790.

So, in Macdougall v. Gardiner, 1 C. Div. 13, where the plaintiff, a shareholder in a company under the Act of 1862, sued in respect of alleged misconduct of a director at a meeting of the company, it was held that he had no locus standi to complain; that the wrong, if any, was a wrong to the company, and that the company in its corporate capacity could alone sue in respect thereof; that if the majority sided with the plaintiff, there was no difficulty in suing in the name of the company; and that if the majority were against the plaintiff, there was no use in litigating the matter, for the will of the majority was entitled to prevail.

"In my opinion," said Mellish, L. J., in that case, "if the thing complained of is a thing which in substance the majority of the company are entitled to do, or if something has been done irregularly which the majority of the company are entitled to do regularly, or if something has been done illegally which the majority of the company are entitled to do legally, there can be no use in having litigation about it, the ultimate end of which is only that a meeting has to be called, and then ultimately the majority gets its wishes." See also Ex parte Fox, 6 Ch. 176; Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. Div. 14; Whitman v. Walkins, 78 L. T. 188; Exeter and Crediton Rail. Co. v. Buller, 5 Ry. Cas. 211; and Normandy v. Ind, Coope & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84.

But the rule of the majority is, as above stated, subject to the provisions of the Acts and of the company's memorandum, and in some cases the articles of association. Thus, if the articles provide for the continuance in office of the directors, and do not contain any power to remove a director, the company cannot remove a director without in the first place procuring the insertion in the articles of a power of removal. Hampton v. Price's Patent Candle Co., 24 W. R. 754.

So, also, where the articles provide that the directors shall have all the powers of the company, subject to any regulations made by the company in general meeting "not inconsistent with the articles," a general meeting cannot override the directors, e.g., by directing them to make a particular contract or to disregard a veto given them by the articles. A special resolution is required. Quin & Ardens v. Salmon, (1909) A. C. 443; Automatic Self-Cleaning Co. v. Cunningham, (1906) 2 Ch. 34; Gramophone Typewriter, (1908) 2 K. B. 89; Marshall Valve Gear Co. v. Manning, (1909) 1 Ch. 267.

And, lastly, the majority have no power to sanction that which is ultra vires the company (Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653, 694; Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. C. 712; Hoole v. G. W. Rail. Co., 3 Ch. 262; Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299); or which is a fraud on the minority (Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Works, 9 Ch. 350; Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 82); or a breach of duty of the directors towards some of the shareholders (Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56, 69). See further notes in Chap. XVIII. on the rule in Foss v. Harbottle.

Partnership Law.

Incorporated joint stock companies differ essentially in many respects from partnerships. It is true that there is a close analogy between the two, and the Courts, in determining the law applicable to such companies, frequently—in the early days of companies resorted for guidance and suggestion to the principles of partnership law.

Analogy to partnerships.

Thus, in Simpson v. Denison, 10 Ha. 54, an agreement between two incorporated joint stock companies was impeached, and Wood, V.-C., said: "The first question to be considered upon this motion is, what are the general principles which ought to be applied to cases of this nature? and I take it to be well settled that the principles which are to govern such cases between the members of large companies are the same as those which regulate the rights in ordinary partnerships."

So, too, in Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325, Lord Colonsay said that it was "a mistake to hold that these companies must, to all legal effects and consequences, be regarded as unqualified corporations and in no respect as partnerships. . . . I think it would be contrary to the tendency and scope of all the statutes to hold that these corporations are stripped of all the characteristics of mercantile partnerships, and clothed with all the attributes of perfect corporations, without qualification."

And, again, in Griffith v. Paget, 6 C. D. 515, Jessel, M. R., said that he would "first of all consider the case on general principles, as applicable to other partnerships; for, after all, these companies are commercial partnerships, and are, in the absence of express provisions, statutory or otherwise, subject to the same considerations."

See also Weston's case, 4 Ch. 20; Maude's case, 6 Ch. 51; Guinness v. Land Corp., 22 C. Div. 377; Houldsworth v. Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 317; Wilkinson v. Cummins, 11 Ha. 337.

These judicial dicta notwithstanding, an incorporated company is not a partnership, as appears elsewhere (p. 27), and partnership rules are for the most part inapplicable to it. For instance, in the case of a partnership, the unanimous consent of the partners can extend the objects of the partnership, whereas the majority of the members of a company have no such power (Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 694; Hutton v. West Cork Rail. Co., 23 C. D. 654, 671; Stroud v. Royal Aquarium Co., W. N. (1903) 146) save as otherwise provided by sect. 9 of the Act of 1908 incorporating the provisions of the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890. So also the practice of the members of a partnership may override the provisions of the partnership deed: whereas practice, in the case of a company, cannot alter or override the provisions of the memorandum, or, as a rule, the regulations of the company. Frank Mills Mining Co., 23 C. D. 52, 56; Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. Div. 376; Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 65. Though long acquiescence may prove the informal adoption by the company of new articles. See Ho Tung v. Man On Insurance Co., (1902) A. C. (P. C.) 232. The agency of directors is circumscribed by the company's articles; the agency of partners only by the scope of the partnership business. The remedies of a creditor of a company are solely against the company, not the shareholders personally, whereas in a partnership the creditors of the firm are creditors of the individual partners. Other illustrations in plenty might be given. And as company law grows

the pa
- TH (1897) which holder the co compa
randu and th easier
The c

A c docum of a c pany,
or Ac
Spe
the co memo the r on the would be he before article
I thin share randu objec obser holde comp docum tradi ment
conte
Ot
All know rand not prop
the t

grows more complex this differentiation between the company and the partnership becomes more and more marked.

"These companies," says Lord Macnaghten in Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 324, "are the creation of statute, and by the statute to which they owe their being they must be bound in regard to shareholders as well as in regard to creditors in all matters coming within the conditions of the memorandum of association. . . . A limited company cannot, in matters coming within the conditions of its memorandum, go on leading two lives, one strict, and precise and regular, and the other a life of greater freedom and laxity, substituting the easier yoke of 'social contract' for the rigour of statutory directions. The confusion would be hopeless."

Notice of Memorandum and Articles.

A company's memorandum and articles of association being public documents registered at Somerset House, not only the shareholders of a company, but all strangers who have any dealings with the company, are fixed with notice of their contents, as well as of the Act or Acts under which the company is constituted.

Notice of memorandum
and articles.

Speaking of this constructive notice, with reference to members of the company, Lord Cairns says, in Puel's case, 2 Ch. 674: "If the memorandum and articles of association are in existence when he [the member] applies for shares, and if he agrees to take his shares on the footing of the memorandum and articles of association (which would seem to be the case here), then I think that he ought to be held bound to look to the memorandum and articles of association before he applies for shares. But where the memorandum and articles of association are not in existence at the time of application, I think that, at the very latest, when he receives his allotment of shares, he ought to satisfy himself that there is nothing in the memorandum or articles of association to which he desires to make any objection." And the same learned judge, in Sewell's case, 3 Ch. 140, observes: "The company was a company consisting of shareholders. It is impossible not to impute to every shareholder of the company the knowledge of what has been called the charter, of documents under which the company was trading. The company was trading under the memorandum of association as its principal document. I think every shareholder must be taken to have known the contents of the memorandum of association."

Other eminent judges have fully recognized the same principle.

All the shareholders of the company must have imputed to them knowledge of the Act of Parliament and also of their own memorandum and articles of association, and of the fact that the articles did not (as they stood before this resolution was passed) authorize the proposed increase of capital; and from the resolutions which convened the two extraordinary meetings it must have been clearly understood that without the sanction of those meetings the proposed increase of capital could not be made." Campbell's case, 9 Ch. 1, per Lord Selborne.

"People who enter into these partnerships under articles of association—that is, articles of partnership—must be taken to have read them, and must be taken to have understood them; and if they are to be taken to have read them, and to have understood them, which they ought to do before entering into these contracts, they cannot complain if the contract is afterwards carried out. That appears to me a conclusive answer to any notion of hardship. Whether it is conclusive in fact or not is a matter upon which men who have experience in the world may have different opinions, but I must hold it to be conclusive in law." Per Jessel, M. R., Griffith v. Paget, 6 C. D. 517.

"Each party must be taken to have made himself acquainted with the terms of the written contract contained in the articles of association, and the Acts of Parliament, so far as they are important. He must also in law be taken (though that is sometimes different from what the fact may be) to have understood the terms of the contract according to their proper meaning; and, that being so, he must take the consequences, whatever they may be, of the contract which he has made." Per Lord Selborne. L. C., Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. at p. 70.

Creditors, &c.

The principle was stated thus by Lord Hatherley in Mahoney v. East Holyford Co., L. R. 7 H. L. 869, 893. "It is settled by a series of decisions, of which Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. C. 401, is one, and Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 6 El. & Bl. 327, a later one, that those who deal with joint stock companies are bound to take notice of that which I call the external position of the company. Every joint stock company has its memorandum and articles of association; every joint stock company, or nearly every one, I imagine (unless it adopts the form provided by the statute, and that comes to the same thing), has its partnership deed, under which it acts. Those articles of association and that partnership deed are open to all who are minded to have any dealings whatsoever with the company, and those who so deal with them must be affected with notice of all that is contained in those two documents."

And see Argus Life Assurance Co., 39 C. D. 571.

In County Life Assurance Co., 5 Ch. 288, 293, Giffard, L. J., said: "In the first place, a stranger must be taken to have read the General Act under which the company is incorporated, and also to have read the articles of association, but he is not to be taken to have read anything more; and if he knows nothing to the contrary, he has a right to assume, as against the company, that all matters of internal management have been duly complied with. The company is bound by what takes place in the usual course of business with a third party where that third party deals bonâ fide with persons who may be tell. ha

In C Lord stock c position acts wh general which c action, compan
Bigger and W Crum.
7 Eq.
Glouce

This inasmu have n fixed w but of impose

Thus
on the anyone otherw that th directo compar
Eagle
725. T
deal w is to sc

Rul

This liamen randum with th
ments, therew into th ley cal that al ford M
L. R.

may be termed de facto directors, and who might, so far as he could tell, have been directors de jure."

In County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629, Lord Halsbury, L. C., further said: "Persons dealing with joint stock companies are bound to look at what one may call the outside position of the company—that is to say, they must see that all the acts which the company is purporting to do, are acts within the general authority of the company; and, if these public documents, which everyone has a right to refer to, disclose an infirmity in their action, they take the consequences of dealing with a joint stock company which has apparently exceeded its authority." See also Biggerstaff v. Rowatt's Wharf, (1896) 2 Ch. 93; Owen, Ashworth's and Whitworth's Claims, (1901) 1 Ch. 115; Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 71; Marshall v. Glamorgan Iron and Coal Co., 7 Eq. 137; Barrow Hematite Co., 39 Ch. D. 582; County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry & Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629.

This rule of constructive notice entails important consequences, for inasmuch as everyone dealing with a company is to be deemed to have notice of its memorandum and articles, it follows that he is fixed with notice of the extent not only of the company's powers, but of the directors' powers and of any limitations and restrictions imposed thereon by the articles or other regulations. Consequences.

Thus, if the articles provide that a bill of exchange to be binding on the company must be signed by two directors, an outsider or anyone dealing with the company must see that it is so signed, otherwise he cannot claim under it. So, too, if the articles provide that the seal of the company is to be fixed in the presence of two directors, who are to sign their names, a person dealing with the company cannot safely rely on an instrument not so signed. See Eagle Co., 4 K. & J. 549; Agar v. Atheneum Soc., 3 C. B. N. S. 725. This is a sufficiently onerous obligation to impose on those who deal with a registered company, but the incidence of the obligation is to some extent lightened by what is known as the Rule in Royal British Bank v. Turquand (6 E. & B. 327).

This rule is that where a company is regulated by an Act of Parliament, general or special, or by a deed of settlement or memorandum and articles registered in some public office, persons dealing with the company are bound to read the Act and registered documents, and to see that the proposed dealing is not inconsistent therewith; but they are not bound to do more; they need not inquire into the regularity of the internal proceedings—what Lord Hatherley called "the indoor management." They are entitled to assume that all is being done regularly. See also Mahoney v. East Holyford Mining Co., L. R. 7 H. L. 869; Land Credit Co. of Ireland, L. R. 4 Ch. 469; County Life Assurance Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 288; Presumption of regularity.

Hambro v. Burnand, (1904) 2 K. B. 10. But see Premier Industrial Bank v. Carlton Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 107.

This rule is based on the principle of convenience, for business could not be carried on if a person dealing with the apparent agents of a company was compelled to call for evidence that all internal regulations had been duly observed. Thus where the articles give power to borrow with the sanction of a general meeting, a lender need not inquire whether such sanction has in fact been obtained. Royal British Bank v. Turquand, ubi supra. He may assume that it has, and if he is acting bonâ fide he will, even though the sanction has not been obtained, stand in as good a position as if it had been obtained.

In another case the directors of a company had, under the articles, power to borrow and power to fix their own quorum, and they fixed three as the quorum. At a meeting of the directors at which two only were present, the secretary was authorized to fix the company's seal to a mortgage. This was accordingly done by the secretary in the presence of the same two directors, and the mortgage was handed over to the mortgagee. It was contended that the seal had not been duly affixed, since the two directors, not being a quorum, had no power to act, but it was held that this was only an internal irregularity, and that the execution of the deed was therefore valid. "All the public documents," said Lord Halsbury, "with which an outside person would be acquainted in dealing with the company would only show this, that by some regulation of their own—what Lord Hatherley described as their indoor management—they were capable, if they had thought right, of making any quorum they pleased; and an outside person knowing that, and not knowing the internal regulations, when he found a document, sealed with the common seal of the company, and attested and signed by two of the directors and the secretary, was entitled to assume that that was the mode in which the company was authorized to execute an instrument of that description. It turns out that their own internal regulation was that the number of directors should exceed two. But that is a matter which was known to them and to them alone. The only external fact with respect to the management of the company of which an outside person would be cognizant, would be that they had power to make any quorum they pleased, and I think he would be entitled to assume that the proper quorum had been properly summoned and had attended to effect the completion of that instrument." And in the same case, Lindley, L. J., said: "What is there to give them notice of anything irregular, if there was anything irregular? If a person looked at the deed and looked at the articles, he would not see anything irregular at all. He would be at liberty to infer, and anyone in the ordinary course of business would infer, that, if the directors had appointed a quorum, they appointed the two who signed that deed. But supposing that three were wanted, he is not bound to go and look at the directors' minutes. He has no right to look at them, except as a matter of bargain. The directors' minutes, unless he knows what they are, do not affect him at all. There is nothing irregular on the face of the deed, even taken with the articles—there is nothing illegal in it. As to a plea of non est factum, that could not be sustained for a moment; and I have not the slightest doubt myself that that deed is as good as any deed that ever was sealed." County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629, 633, 636.

So, if there be a managing director, and authority in the regulations for the directors to delegate to him, a person dealing with him is entitled to assume that he has power to do what he purports to do, provided that it is within the company's objects and apparently regular. All he has to do is to see that the managing director might have power to do what he purports to do. That is enough for a person dealing with him bonâ fide. Biggerstaff v. Rowatt's Wharf, (1896) 2 Ch. 93; Hambro v. Burnand, (1904) 2 K. B. 10.

So, also, a person dealing with a company is entitled to assume that the directors who carry on its business are directors de jure. It matters not to him that they have not been duly appointed—that is part of the indoor management. Mahoney v. East Holyford Co., L. R. 7 H. L. 869; County Life Assurance Co., 5 Ch. 288; Duck v. Tower Galvanizing Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 314; Davies v. Bolton & Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 678; see supra, p. 78.

In Duck v. Tower Galvanizing Co., supra, Lord Alverstone, C. J., said that those cases afforded ample authority to show that no informality will alter the rights possessed by a bonâ fide holder for value upon a document that purports to be in order.

But a person dealing with a company if he has notice of the irregularity cannot claim the benefit of this rule. Thus where directors had only power to borrow in excess of 1,000*l.* with the assent of a general meeting, and without such assent had issued debentures for 2,500*l.* to themselves in respect of money lent, it was held, that as they must be taken to have known that the internal regulations had not been complied with, the debentures could only stand good for 1,000*l.* Howard v. Patent Ivory Co., 38 Ch. D. 156; Tyne Mutual v. Brown, 74 L. T. 283.

Notice of irregularity

Nor does the rule apply, it would seem, where the requisite signatures are forged. Ruben v. Fingall Consolidated, (1906) A. C. 130.

A person dealing with a company must take the articles to be such as appear at the office of the Registrar of Companies to be in force. If the directors propose to do something in excess of their powers thereunder, he is not entitled to assume that their powers have been extended by a special resolution, for such a resolution, if passed would be registered (Chap. XII.). Irvine v. Union Bank of Australia, 2 App. Cas. 366.

The Common Seal.

- The right to a common seal. To have a common seal is incidental to a corporation (Sutton's Hospital case, 10 Rep. 30 b); but sect. 16 (2) of the Act of 1908, reproducing sect. 18 of the Act of 1862, makes an express provision on the subject, and, by sect. 63 of the Act of 1908, the company is required to have its name "engraven in legible characters on its seal."
- Who can use. The right to use the seal of the company for the purposes of its business is usually vested in the directors. Occasionally the power is vested in them by express words, but, more usually, their power arises from the terms of a general clause enabling them to exercise all the powers of the company (see for example, Clause 71 of Table A); it has been laid down that the executive of the company is, prima facie, entitled to use the common seal. Barned's Banking Co., 3 Ch. 105.
- Contracts not under seal. As to contracts under seal, sect. 76 of the Act, reproducing sect. 37 of the Companies Act, 1867, enables a company, as a general rule, to contract without seal; it need only contract under seal where a private person would have to do so, e.g., in the case of a covenant or of a bond.
- Conveyances, &c. As to conveyances, demises, surrenders, certificates, &c., the section above referred to does not touch these instruments, and the ordinary rule prevails, namely, that where in the case of an individual a seal is requisite, it is requisite in the case of a company.
- Thus, to convey freehold property, and to assign or surrender leasehold property, or to give a power of attorney, a seal is requisite. And a seal is requisite for some instruments in order to obtain certain statutory advantages, e.g., in the case of a certificate of title to shares (sect. 23 of the Act, reproducing sect. 31 of the Act of 1862); in the case of a share warrant (sect. 37 of the Act, reproducing sect. 27 of the Act of 1867); and see the Conveyancing Acts, 1881 and 1882, for various cases in which statutory incidents are annexed to deeds.
- Where no particular formalities are required for affixing the seal of a trading company, entitled by its memorandum or articles or by the general law, it will be sufficient to bind the company if it is affixed by the company's executive for carrying on its business. Per Cairns, L. J., Re Barned's Banking Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 105.
- Regulations as to use of seal. Where the articles superadd special provisions as to the affixing of the seal, e.g., that the instrument must also be signed by two directors, those who deal with the company are bound to see that the deed on the face of it accords with the regulations. See supra, p. 79.
- Presumption of validity. But if the instrument is on the face of it regular, they have a right to presume that the seal so affixed has been duly affixed, that the directors were duly appointed and their signatures duly made (County Life Assurance Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 288; Mahoney v. East Holyford Mining Co., L. R. 7 H. L. 869; Davies v. Bolton, (1891) 3 Ch. 678); and the burden of proving the contrary rests with those who allege it. Clark v. Imperial Gas, &c. Co., 4 B. & Ad. 313; Hill v. Manchester, &c. Co., 5 B. & Ad. 866.

This is a corollary from the rule in Royal British Bank v. Turquand, supra, p. 79. See County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629. In this case the seal had been irregularly affixed to an instrument, but the company was held bound by it, for the instrument appeared to be in accord with the regulations, and the irregularity was only in regard to the "indoor" management, with which an outsider, acting in good faith, is not concerned. But this principle, it seems, does not apply if the seal is affixed fraudulently by the secretary for his own private ends, for such a fraud outside any authority raises no estoppel against the company. Ruben v. Great Fingall Co., (1906) A. C. 430. Where the presumption does not apply, as in the case of a non-trading corporation, an instrument to which the seal has been irregularly affixed is inoperative. Bank of Ireland v. Evans' Trustees, 5 B. & C. 389; Mayor of the Staple v. Bank of England, 21 Q. B. D. 160; and see Freehold Land Co. v. Suffield, (1897) 2 Ch. 608.

A deed, to be effectual, must be sealed and delivered; but, in the case of a corporation, the affixing of the seal imports delivery. "Le fait d'un corporation ne besoin aucun delivery mes l'apposition del common seale done perfection al ces sans aucun delivrie." Rol. Abr. 23 (1), 50; and see Comyns' Digest, Fact A (3), that "a common seal fixed to the deed of a corporation is tantamount to a delivery." Accordingly, whilst in the case of a private individual it is usual to add an attestation clause to the effect that the instrument was "signed, sealed and delivered" in the presence of the witness, in the case of a company the clause merely states that "the common seal was affixed hereto in the presence of — and —."

Delivery of deed: not required from a corporation

Primâ facie, therefore, if the common seal is duly affixed to a deed it becomes operative. London Freehold, &c. Co. v. Suffield, (1897) 2 Ch. 608.

Nevertheless a corporation can execute a deed in escrow, i.e., can seal it subject to a condition suspending its efficacy.

As Lord Cranworth said in Xenos v. Wickham, L. R. 2 H. L. 310.

The efficacy of a deed depends on its being sealed and delivered by the maker of it, not on his ceasing to retain possession. This, as a general proposition of law, cannot be controverted. It is not affected by the circumstance that the maker may so deliver it as to suspend or qualify its binding effect. He may declare that it shall have no effect until a certain time has arrived, or until some condition has been performed; but when the time has arrived, or the condition has been performed, the delivery becomes absolute, and the maker of the deed is absolutely bound by it, whether he has parted with the possession or not. Until the specified time has arrived, or the condition has been performed, the instrument is not a deed. It is a mere escrow. I know of nothing intermediate between a deed and an escrow.'

Whether a document sealed by a company was or was not intended to operate as a complete and operative instrument, or as an escrow, depends on the intention of the parties as expressed or implied. See Derby Canal Co. v. Wilmot, 9 East, 359, 360, where the company's seal was affixed to a conveyance; but the clerk was directed to retain it until certain accounts were adjusted. Lord Ellenborough, C. J. and the rest of the Court held that, "in order to give the instrument effect, the affixing of the seal must be done with intent to pass the estate. Otherwise it operates no more than a feoffment would do without livery of seisin; whereas here, though the seal was directed to be and was affixed to the instrument for form, yet it was with a reservation of any present effect to pass the title out of the company, as they did not choose to deliver over the possession of the conveyance till the accounts were settled between them and the purchaser." See, too, Mowatt v. Castle Steel, &c. Co., 34 C. D. 58, in which the Court found as a fact that debentures to bearer sealed by the company had not in fact been delivered. But it is quite consistent with this that where an instrument under the seal is taken in good faith the company would, as a general rule, be estopped from setting up non-delivery. County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry, (1895) 1 Ch. 629. And see Roberts v. Security Co., (1897) 1 Q. B. 111, and London Freehold, &c. Co. v. Suffield, supra, that the onus of proving that a deed duly sealed was only executed in escrow rests with those who so assert.

Whether sealed document a deed.

A document to which the seal is affixed is not necessarily a deed; thus a certificate of title to shares is not a deed (Reg. v. Morton L. R. 2 C. C. R. 22); nor is a company's memorandum of association a deed, though it operates as a deed (Whitley Partners, 32 C. D. 338); but it would seem that every contract under the seal of a company is a deed, save only that, by the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 s. 91, a corporation is empowered to seal, instead of signing, acceptances, indorsements, and the like.

Foreign Seals-Act, 1864.

Besides its common seal, a company may, under the Foreign Seals Act, 1864 (now reproduced in sect. 79 of the Act), obtain power to have an official seal for use abroad; and, under sect. 78 of the Act of 1908, it can authorize any person, as the attorney of the company, to execute, under his seal, deeds outside the United Kingdom.

Residence and Domicile.

Registered office in the United Kingdom.

Every company formed or registered under the Act of 1908 is obliged to have a registered office (sect. 62), which must be in England, or Scotland, or Ireland (sects. 3, 4, 5 of 1908). The situation of the registered office is one of the conditions required to be stated in the memorandum of association (sects. 3, 4, 5 of 1908). But it is a sufficient compliance with the Act to state in the memorandum that the registered office will be situate in England, or Scotland, or Ireland, as the case may be. Notice of the precise situation in the country named in the memorandum must be given to the Registrar of Companies. Having regard to sect. 7 of 1908, a company registered under the Act cannot now change the situation of its registered office from one country forming part of the United Kingdom to another, as to change is ultra vires, and by no professed change can the company escape from the jurisdiction of the Courts having jurisdiction in that country forming the part of the United Kingdom in which, by its constitution, it is required to have its registered office, or from the provisions of sect. 116 of the Companies Act, 1908, which provides for the service of writs and notices at the registered office. But within that country, the company may from time to time change the situation of its registered office, though it must give notice of each change to the Registrar (sects. 62, 131 (8)).

A company registered in Scotland or Ireland may nevertheless in certain cases be sued in England and served with a process of the English Courts, under the service-out-of-the-jurisdiction order R. S. C. Ord. XI. r. 1. This rule is as follows:

Scottish or Irish companies, when suable in England.

Service out of the jurisdiction of a writ of summons or notice of a writ of summons may be allowed by the Court or a judge whenever—

- a) The whole subject-matter of the action is land situate within the jurisdiction (with or without rents or profits); or
- b) Any act, deed, will, contract, obligation, or liability affecting land or hereditaments situate within the jurisdiction, is sought to be construed, rectified, set aside, or enforced in the action; or
- c) Any relief is sought against any person domiciled or ordinarily resident within the jurisdiction; or
- (d) The action is for . . . the execution (as to property situate within the jurisdiction) of the trusts of any written instrument, of which the person to be served is a trustee, which ought to be executed according to the law of England; or
- (e) The action is founded on any breach or alleged breach within the jurisdiction of any contract wherever made, which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction, unless the defendant is domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland or Ireland; or
- (f) Any injunction is sought as to anything to be done within the jurisdiction, or any nuisance within the jurisdiction is sought to be prevented or removed, whether damages are or are not also sought in respect thereof; or
- (g) Any person out of the jurisdiction is a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against some other person duly served within the jurisdiction.

In the above rule "person" includes "corporation." (R. S. C. Ord. LXVI. r. 1.)

The discretion to grant leave is regulated by rule 2 of the Order, which provides that "Where leave is asked from the Court or a judge to serve a writ, under the last preceding rule, in Scotland or in Ireland, if it shall appear to the Court or judge that there may be a concurrent remedy in Scotland or Ireland (as the case may be), the Court or judge shall have regard to the comparative cost and convenience of proceeding in England, or in the place of residence of the defendant, or person sought to be served, and particularly in cases of small demands to the powers and jurisdiction, under the statutes establishing or regulating them, of the Sheriff's Courts, or Small Debts Courts in Scotland, and of the Civil Bill Courts in Ireland, respectively." See Annual Practice, p. 85.

Scotch company with agencies and chief office in England.

On the construction of Ord. XI. r. 1, it has been held, that a company which had its registered office in Scotland, but had agencies and a chief office in England, was not "domiciled or ordinarily resident" within the jurisdiction, and that leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction could not be granted. Jones v. Scottish Accident Insurance Co. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 421. See also Watkins v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 285; Williams v. Cartwright, (1895) 1 Q. B. 142; Lopez v. Chavarri, W. N. (1901) 115; and the Ann. Pr. 1912.

As to domicile of foreign companies generally, see Chap. XVIII.

A foreign company may reside abroad and also here, and it will be taken to reside here if it has an agency here for transacting business, or if the company carries on business at a fixed abode in this country. Saccharin Corp. v. Chemische Fabrik von Heyden Actiengesellschaft, (1911) 2 K. B. 516; Actiesselskabet Dampskib Hercules v. Grand Trunk Pacific Rail. Co., 105 L. T. 695.

County Court jurisdiction

As to County Court process, as a general rule the district in which actions and matters must be commenced is to be ascertained from sect. 74 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 42), that is to say, except where otherwise in the Act provided (see sect. 59), in the Court "within the district of which the defendant or one of the defendants shall dwell or carry on his business at the time of commencing the action or matter." This is a re-enactment of old County Court legislation. The words "dwell or carry on business" occurred in 9 & 10 Vict. c. 93, s. 60, under which it was held, in the cases of railways and other carrying companies, that a corporation dwells where it carries on its principal—that is, its administrative—as distinct from the manufacturing or trading—business (Taylor v. Crowland Gas Co., 11 Ex. 6); and that ordinarily it carries on its business where its chief office is (Corbett v. General Steam Navigation Co., 4 H. & N. 482), or where its general as opposed to a part, or even a material part, of its business is carried on. Adams v. G. W. Rail. Co., 6 H. & N. 404; Brown v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., 4 B. & S. 326. This is generally, but not in all cases, its registered office in the case of a company registered under the Companies Acts.

Keynsham Blue Lias Co. v. Barker, 2 H. & C. 729, 733. And see Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 2nd ed. 160; and cases cited in the notes to sect. 74 of the Act of 1888 in the Yearly County Court Practice.

As regards the right of a company registered here to sue and be sued abroad, it is an established rule of private international law that a corporation duly created according to the laws of one State may sue and be sued in its corporate name in the Courts of other States, and accordingly, as a general but not universal rule, a company incorporated here can sue and be sued in foreign Courts. Moreover, in a considerable number of cases, conventions have been concluded between this country and other countries expressly recognizing the right of companies to sue and be sued.

English company suing or sued abroad.

Income Tax.

Without attempting to deal fully with the subject of income tax it may be useful to refer to some of the principal provisions of the Income Tax Acts and to some of the leading cases which have been decided thereunder.

The income tax is levied year by year under an Act annually passed which fixes the rate for the current year (commencing on the 6th April in that year and ending on the 5th of April following) and makes the provision of the principal Income Tax Acts applicable with more or less modification to the tax as regards the particular year, for, strange to say, there is no general Act which makes the requisite provisions operate automatically as and when each year's income tax is granted. Two Acts constantly referred to are

- (1) The Income Tax Act of 1842 (5 & 6 Vict. c. 35).
- (2) The Income Tax Act of 1853 (16 & 17 Vict. c. 34).

As a specimen of the Annual Act, attention is called to the Finance Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 48), enacting in sect. 14—

(1) Income tax for the year beginning on the 6th day of April, 1911, shall be charged at the rate of one shilling and twopence, and the same super-tax shall be charged, levied and paid for that year as was charged for the year beginning 6th April, 1910.

(2) All such enactments relating to income tax (including super-tax) as were in force with respect to duties of income tax granted for the year beginning the 6th day of April, 1910, shall have full force and effect with respect to any duties of income tax hereby granted.

In the result the Income Tax Act, 1842, and the Income Tax Act, 1853, as modified by subsequent legislation, are revived and brought into operation again.

By the former Act the year's tax was to be charged according to certain schedules, A, B, C, D and E, and by the latter Act fresh schedules were adopted.

Schedule A relates to duties charged for and in respect of income. The schedules.

from lands, tenements, hereditaments and heritages, commonly called the Landlord Property Tax.

Schedule B relates to duties in respect of the occupation of lands, tenements and hereditaments.

Schedule C relates to duties in respect of interest, annuities and dividends payable out of the public revenue.

Schedule D. As to this, see infra, where the schedule is in part set out.

Schedule E relates to duties in respect of public offices and annuities, pensions and stipends payable by the Crown out of the public revenue.

It may be convenient here to call attention to the fact that the income tax imposed by Schedule D is not an essentially different kind of tax to that imposed by the several other schedules. The matter was discussed in London County Council v. Att.-Gen., (1901) A. C. 26. In that case Lord Macnaghten in his speech dealt with the matter as follows:—

“Income-tax, if I may be pardoned for saying so, is a tax on income. It is not meant to be a tax on anything else. It is one tax, not a collection of taxes essentially distinct. There is no difference in kind between the duties of income tax assessed under Schedule D to those assessed under Schedule A, or any of the other schedules of charge. One man has fixed property, another lives by his wits; each contributes to the tax if his income is above the prescribed limit. The standard of assessment varies according to the nature of the source from which the taxable income is derived. That is all. Schedule A contains the duties chargeable for and in respect of property in all lands, tenements and hereditaments capable of actual occupation. There the standard is annual value. It is difficult to see what other standard could have been adopted as a general rule. But there again, if the subject of charge be lands let at rack-rent, the annual value is understood to be the rent by the year at which the same are let. In every case the tax is a tax on income whatever may be the standard by which the income is measured. It is a tax on profits or gains in the case of duties chargeable under Schedule A, and everything coming under that schedule—the annual value of lands capable of actual occupation as well as the earnings of railway companies and other concerns connected with lands—just as much as in the case of the other schedules of charge. . . . Unfortunately the learned judges of the Courts below took a very different view in regard to this point. That, I think, was the initial mistake. In the Divisional Court the argument on behalf of the Crown as reported was this: ‘The tax under Schedule A is a tax on property, and is totally distinct from the income tax under Schedule D.’ It appears from the shorthand notes that that argument was adopted by the Court without any qualification.”

SCHEDULE D.

Schedule D. By Schedule D (sect. 2) of the Income Tax Act, 1853, duties were granted to the Crown—

For and in respect of the annual profits or gains arising or accruing to any person resident in the United Kingdom from any kind of property whatever, whether situate in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, and for and in respect of the annual profits or gains arising or accruing to any person residing in the United Kingdom from any profession, trade, employment or vocation, whether the same shall be respectively carried on in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, and to be charged for every twenty shillings of the annual amount of such profits and gains.

And for and in respect of the annual profits or gains arising or accruing to any person whatever, whether a subject of Her Majesty or not, although not resident within the United Kingdom, from any property whatever in the United Kingdom or any profession, trade, employment or vocation exercised within the United Kingdom, and to be charged for every twenty shillings of the annual amount of such profits and gains.

And for and in respect of all interest on money annuities and other annual profits and gains not charged by virtue of any of the other schedules contained in this Act, and to be charged for every twenty shillings of the annual amount thereof.

And the following Rules are, by sect. 100 of the Income Tax Act 1842, applicable:

Rules of Assessment (Schedule D).

FIRST CASE.—Duties to be charged in respect of any trade, manufacture, adventure, or concern in the nature of trade, not contained in any other Schedule of this Act.

RULES.

First. The duty to be charged in respect thereof shall be computed on a sum not less than the full amount of the balance of the profits or gains of such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern upon a fair and just average of three years, ending on such day of the year immediately preceding the year of assessment on which the accounts of the said trade, manufacture, adventure or concern shall have been usually made up, or on the 5th day of April preceding the year of assessment, and shall be assessed, charged, and paid without other deduction than is hereinafter allowed: Provided always, that in cases where the trade, manufacture, adventure or concern shall have been set up and commenced within the said period of three years, the computation shall be made for one year on the average of the balance of the profits and gains from the period of first setting up the same: Provided also, that in cases where the trade, manufacture, adventure or concern shall have been set up and commenced within the year of assessment, the computation shall be made according to the rule in the Sixth Case of this Schedule.

Second. The said duty shall extend to every person, body politic or corporate, fraternity, fellowship, company, or society, and to every art, mystery, adventure or concern carried on by them respectively in Great Britain [the United Kingdom] or elsewhere as aforesaid, except always such adventures or concerns on or about lands, tenements, hereditaments, or heritages as are mentioned in Schedule A, and directed to be therein charged.

Third. In estimating the balance of profits and gains chargeable under Schedule D, or for the purpose of assessing the duty thereon, no sum shall be set against or deducted from, or allowed to be set against or deducted from, such profits or gains on account of any sum expended for repairs of premises occupied for the purpose of such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern, nor for any sum expended for the supply of repairs or alterations of any implements, utensils, or articles employed for the purpose of such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern beyond the sum usually expended for such purposes according to an average of three years preceding the year in which such assessment shall be made; nor on account of loss not connected with, or arising out of, such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern, nor on account of any capital withdrawn therefrom, nor for any sum employed, or intended to be employed, as capital in such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern, nor for any capital employed in improvement of premises occupied for the purposes of such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern, nor on account, nor under pretence of any interest which might have been made on such sums, if laid out at interest, nor for any debts except bad debts, proved to be such to the satisfaction of the commissioners respectively, nor for any average loss beyond the actual amount of loss after adjustment, nor for any sum recoverable under an insurance or contract of indemnity. (And see sect. 159.)

Fourth. In estimating the amount of the profits and gains arising as aforesaid, no deduction shall be made on account of any annual interest, or any annuity or other annual payment payable out of such profits or gains. Alexandria Water Co. v. Musgrove, 11 Q. B. D. 174.

SECOND CASE.—The duty to be charged in respect of professions, employments, or vocations not contained in any other Schedules of this Act [with special rules].

THIRD CASE.—The duty to be charged in respect of profits of an uncertain annual value not charged in Schedule A [with special rules].

FOURTH CASE.—The duty to be charged in respect of interest arising from securities in Ireland, or in the British plantations in America, or in any other of Her Majesty's dominions out of Great Britain and foreign securities—except such annuities, dividends, and shares as are directed to be charged under Schedule C of this Act.

The duty to be charged in respect thereof shall be computed on a sum not less than the full amount of the sums (so far as the same can be computed) which have been or will be received in Great Britain in the current year—without any deduction or abatement.

FIFTH CASE.—The duty to be charged in respect of possessions in Ireland or in the British plantations in America or in any other of Her Majesty's dominions out of Great Britain and foreign possessions.

The duty to be charged in respect thereof shall be computed on a sum not less than the full amount of the actual sums annually received in Great Britain, either for remittances from thence payable in Great Britain or from property imported from thence into Great Britain or from money or value received in Great Britain and arising from property which shall not have been imported into Great Britain or from money or value so received on credit or on account in respect of such remittances, property, money, or value brought or to be brought into Great Britain, computing the same on an average of the three preceding years as directed in the First Case, without other deduction or abatement than is hereinbefore allowed in such case.

SIXTH CASE.—The duty to be charged in respect of any annual profits or gains not falling under any of the foregoing rules and not charged by virtue of any of the other Schedules contained in this Act [with special rules].

Supplementary Provisions.

The following Rules which appear in the same section may also be mentioned:—

"First. In estimating the balance of the profits or gains to be charged according to either of the First or Second Cases, no sum shall be set against or deducted from or allowed to be set against or deducted from such profits or gains for any disbursements or expenses whatever, not being money wholly and exclusively laid out or expended for the purposes of such trade, manufacture, adventure or concern, or of such profession, employment, or vocation, nor for any disbursements or expenses of maintenance of the parties, their families, or establishments, nor for the rent or value of any dwelling-house or domestic offices, or any part of such dwelling-house or domestic offices, except such part thereof as may be used for the purposes of such trade or concern not exceeding the proportion of the said rent or value hereinafter mentioned, nor for any sum expended in any other domestic or private purposes distinct from the purposes of such trade, manufacture, adventure, or concern, or of such profession, employment, or vocation.

"Second. The computation of the duty to be charged in respect of any trade, manufacture, adventure, or concern, or any profession, whether carried on by any person singly, or by one or more persons jointly, or by any corporation, company, fraternity, or society, shall be made exclusive of the profits or gains arising from lands, tenements, or hereditaments occupied for the purpose of such profession, trade, manufacture, adventure or concern."

Fifth. Every statement of profits to be charged under this Schedule shall include every source so chargeable on the person delivering the same on his own account or on account of any other person, and every person shall be chargeable in respect of the whole of such duties in one and the same division and by the same commissioners (except in cases where the same persons shall be engaged in different partnerships or the same person shall be engaged in different concerns relating to trade or manufacture in divers places, in each of which cases a separate assessment shall be made in respect of each concern at the place where such concern if singly carried on ought to be charged as herein directed); and every such statement on the behalf of any other person for which such person shall be chargeable as acting in any of the characters before described or on the behalf of any corporation, fellowship, fraternity, company, or society shall include every source chargeable as last aforesaid, and shall be delivered in that division where such person, corporation, fellowship, fraternity, company, or society would be chargeable if acting on his or their own behalf.

By sect. 40 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, it is enacted that, "all . . . companies . . . whether corporate or not corporate, shall be chargeable with such and the like duties as any person," and certain officers thereof are required (sect. 54) to make the requisite return.

By sect. 41 of the same Act any person lent in [the United Kingdom], whether a subject of Her Majesty or not, shall be chargeable in the name of any trustee . . . , or of any factor, agent, or receiver having the receipt of any profits or gains arising as herein mentioned and belonging to such person . . .

Foreign Investments.

By the Income Tax (Foreign Dividends) Act, 1842 (5 & 6 Vict. c. 80), it is enacted that, "All persons intrusted with the payment of annuities or any dividends or shares of annuities payable out of the revenue of any foreign state to any persons, corporations, companies or societies in Great Britain, or acting therein as agents, or in any other character," are to make a return of the same as therein mentioned, and are to pay the duty on such annuities, &c. out of the moneys in their hands on behalf of the persons entitled to the same, and by 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, s. 10, these provisions are extended to "all interest, dividends, or other annual payments payable out of or in respect of the stocks, funds, or shares of any foreign company, society, adventure or concern," and intrusted to persons in the United Kingdom for payment.

By 24 & 25 Vict. c. 91, s. 36, these provisions are extended to interest, dividends, and annual payments payable out of or in respect of stocks, funds, shares, and securities of any colonial company, society, adventure, or concern, intrusted to any person in the United Kingdom for payment.

And by sect. 9 of 29 Vict. c. 36, the above provisions are extended to dividends and interest when the title of the person to whom the same may be payable is shown by registration or entry of the name of such person in any book or list ordinarily kept in the United Kingdom.

And by 31 Vict. c. 28, s. 5, the provisions as to interest payable in the United Kingdom arising out of a foreign company or concern are extended to annuities, pensions, and other annual sums payable out of the funds of any institution in India, and intrusted to any person in the United Kingdom for payment.

By 48 & 49 Vict. c. 51, s. 26, the persons "intrusted with payment" are to include (a) any banker; (b) any person who obtains payment of dividends for another elsewhere than in the United Kingdom; (c) any dealer in coupons payable out of the United Kingdom.

And by sect. 24 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888 (51 Vict. c. 8), it is, amongst other things, provided that upon payment of any interest of money or annuities charged with income tax under Schedule D, and not payable, or not wholly payable, out of profits or gains brought into charge to such tax, the person by or through whom such interest or annuities shall be paid shall deduct thereout the rate of income tax in force at the time of such payment, and shall forthwith render an account to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue of the amount so deducted, and of the amount deducted out of so much of the interest or annuities as is not paid out of profits or gains brought into charge as the case may be; and such amount shall be a debt from such person to Her Majesty and recoverable as such accordingly; and the provision contained in sect. 8 of 13 & 14 Vict. c. 97, now in force in relation to money in the hands of any person for legacy duty, shall apply to money deducted by any person in respect of income tax.

This section supplements in effect and modifies sect. 104 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, and sect. 40 of the Income Tax Act, 1853.

As to its operation, see London County Council v. Att.-Gen., (1901) A. C. 34.

"Residence" of a company.

Referring again to Schedule D, set out in part supra, p. 88 et seq., one would have thought that a company formed under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or under any of the preceding Acts for which that Act is substituted and having its registered office within the United Kingdom, and being a subject of His Majesty, and capable of obtaining from the proper Court in the United Kingdom an order confirming an alteration of objects or a reduction or reorganization of capital, or an arrangement with its creditors, and liable at the instance of the Attorney-General or of any member to an injunction to restrain the company from doing anything ultra vires, was emphatically a resident in the United Kingdom. But strange to say, at an early stage in the application of income tax law, it was held that situation of the registered office of the company was not at all conclusive as to its residence, and that in reality a company resides at its head office, that is where the control of its administrative business rests and is exercised—though its manufacturing or trading business is carried on elsewhere—and that the place of its registration and the situation of its registered office is only a circumstance in determining such residence. See Cesena Sulphur Co. v. Nicholson and Calcutta Jute Mills Co. v. Nicholson (1876), 1 Ex. Div. 428.

The question was first raised in the leading case of Cesena Sulphur Co. v. Nicholson and Calcutta Jute Mills Co. v. Nicholson (1876), 1 Ex. D. 428. Each of the companies in those two cases was formed under the Companies Act, 1862 (now replaced by the Act of 1908), with a registered office in England. The business was carried on abroad, where the profits were made, but was controlled and directed by meetings of members and directors held in England. Only part of the profits was remitted to the United Kingdom. On these facts, both companies contended that they were liable to income tax only on the proportion of the profits actually received in the United Kingdom, but this contention was overruled and it was held that both companies were "residing in the United Kingdom" within Schedule D, and were liable to pay income tax upon the whole of their profits wherever earned: that the test of residence was not the situation of the registered office nor where the company's trading or manufacturing was carried on: that a company resides where its real business is carried on—where the board of directors and shareholders meet and the real control is exercised. And in the cases in question this was England. This was the ratio decidendi, and it must now, therefore, be taken that a company resides where it has its head office, where the meetings of the whole company or those who represent it are held, and where its governing body meets in bodily presence for the purposes of the company and exercises the powers conferred upon it by statute or by its articles of association. The place of registration is not conclusive as to residence: it is a circumstance, but only a circumstance. See also Imperial Continental Gas Association v. Nicholson, 37 L. T. N. S. 717, in which case it was held that an English company governed and constituted here but owning gas works abroad is chargeable for the whole profits under the first clause of Schedule D, and not merely for the sum remitted to the United Kingdom under the Fifth Case (supra, p. 90) as in respect of foreign possessions, and San Paulo Brazilian Rail. Co. v. Carter, (1896) A. C. 31; and Alexandria Water Co. v. Musgrave (1881), 11 Q. B. D. 174; Bank of Mexico v. Aphorpe, 64 L. T. 416.

A finding by the Inland Revenue Commissioners that a company registered abroad is resident in the United Kingdom on the ground that the control of the company is in England is conclusive if there is evidence to support it. American Thread Co. v. Joyce, 28 T. L. R.

The onus of proving residence in the United Kingdom is on the Crown. Att.-Gen. v. Alexandria, L. R. 10 Eq. 20.

Having regard to the leading case above referred to, it would seem by parity of reasoning that a company, though registered in the United Kingdom, if it has no board of directors or executive here, and does not hold any general meetings of shareholders here, or carry on business here, does not "reside" in the United Kingdom for the purposes of Schedule D.

Exercises a Trade. See paragraph (2) of Schedule D. supra, p. 89.

The meaning of the expression "exercise its trade" in Schedule D is also material, for whether a company resides or does not reside within the United Kingdom, yet if it exercises its trade wholly or in part therein it is chargeable under Schedule D.

Wherever profitable contracts are habitually made in the United Kingdom, even by or on behalf of a foreign company, there is an exercising of trade there. See supra. Erichsen v. Last, 8 Q. B. D. 414.

Where, however, a foreign company through an agent canvasses in England for orders, but makes all contracts and takes delivery of all goods abroad, it does not carry on trade here. Grainger v. Gough, (1896) A. C. 325. And see Crookston v. Inland Revenue, (1911), S. C. 217, Ct. of Sess.

In connection with this there are a whole series of important decisions both as regards companies constituted in the United Kingdom and foreign companies. Of these, one of the most important is San Paulo Brazilian Rail. Co. v. Carter, (1896) A. C. 31. In that case the company was registered in England but its railway was in Brazil, and was worked there. The directors purchased and sent out to Brazil materials for the purposes of the railway, but the general control of the company was in England. "It seems to me," said Lord Halsbury, L. C. (at p. 38), "that, as was said by Cockburn, C. J., in the case of Sulley v. Attorney-General, 5 H. & N. 711, 'it is probably a question of fact where the trade is carried on.' . . . In Brazil the payments are received, and in Brazil the passengers and goods are carried, but the form of trading can make no difference. . . . The person who governs the whole commercial adventure. . . . The person who decides what shall be done in respect of the adventure; what capital shall be invested in the adventure; on what terms the adventure shall be carried on: in short, the person who, in the strictest sense, makes the profits by his skill or industry, however distant may be the field of his adventure, is the person who is trading. That person appears to me, in this case, to be the appellant company. . . . It appears to me that this appellant company is carrying on the trade in London, from which it issues its orders, and so governs and directs the whole commercial adventure that is under its superintendence." See also London Bank of Mexico v. Aphthorpe, (1891) 2 Q. B. 378; Watson v. Sandie and Hall, (1898) 1 Q. B. 326; Tischler & Co. v. Aphthorpe (1885), 52 L. T. 814; and Pommery and Greno v. Aphthorpe (1886), 56 L. T. 24.

A company registered abroad, but having its head office in London, where the meetings of the directors are held and where the directing and controlling power is exercised, is assessable to income tax on the whole of its profits as "a person residing in the United Kingdom" within the meaning of Schedule D. Goetz & Co. v. Bell, (1904) 2 K. B. 136; De Beers Consolidated Mines v. Howe, (1906) A. C. 155; New Zealand Shipping Co. v. Stephens (1906), 24 T. L. R. 172; Ogilvie v. Inland Revenue (1908), S. C. 1003, Ct. of Sess.; American Thread Co. v. Joyce, 28 T. L. R. 233, Feb. 1912.

It has, however, been held in the Queen's Bench Division, applying the principle of Colquhoun v. Brooks, 14 App. Cas. 493, that where a company, resident here, is a partner or a shareholder in a concern wholly carried on outside the United Kingdom, the profits of the company are chargeable under the Fifth Case, and accordingly that the company is only liable in respect of what it actually receives in the United Kingdom. And it is not at all uncommon, where the undertaking of a company registered here is situate abroad, to vest the same in a local company in exchange for shares therein, with a view to bringing the case within the Fifth Case. Where this is done, profits made and retained abroad for reserve, or for improvement and capital expenditure, or for distribution among shareholders or creditors abroad, escape the tax (unless it is shown that the control of the company is in the United Kingdom).

Case of local company formed abroad whose shares held by registered company in England.

The following decisions supported this view. Where an English company, which carried on no business of its own, owned all the shares but seven in a foreign company carrying on business in a foreign country, and the foreign company, on a dividend being declared by the English company, remitted to England the amount required for distribution among the shareholders, less the amount required for distribution among shareholders in the English company resident in the foreign country, it was held that the profits of the English company arose from foreign possessions, and came within Schedule D, Fifth Case; that the money retained for distribution among the shareholders resident abroad was not received by the English company in England within the meaning of the Fifth Case; and that that company was not liable to pay income tax on the amount retained abroad. Bartholomay Brewery Co. (of Rochester) v. Wyatt, (1893) 2 Q. B. 499.

And where an English company, which carried on no business of its own, owned shares in various English and foreign companies, and the dividends due to that company from the foreign companies were insufficient to pay the dividends due from it to such of its shareholders as were resident abroad, and the English company directed the dividends accruing to it from the foreign companies to be paid to bankers abroad for distribution among its foreign shareholders: it was held that the profits of the English company came within Schedule D, Fifth Case, that the moneys retained abroad for distribution among shareholders resident abroad were not received by the English company in England within the meaning of the Fifth Case, and that that company was not liable to pay income tax on the amount retained abroad. Nobel Dynamite Trust Co. v. Wyatt. (1893) 2 Q. B. 499, 508, 517.

But it was subsequently held that where an English company owns nearly all the shares in a foreign company, and has complete control and directing power over the affairs of such foreign company, it (the English company) is liable to pay income tax upon the whole profits, and not merely upon that part of the profits which is transmitted to England. Apthorpe v. Peter Schoenhofen Brewery Co. 80 L. T. 395; St. Louis Breweries v. Apthorpe, 79 L. T. 552. These two decisions appear to ignore the fundamental distinction between a company and its shareholders (supra, p. 27), and to treat the principal shareholders as carrying on the business of the company, repeating the fallacy into which the Court of Appeal fell in Broderip v. Salomon & Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 323. The authority of the cases is much shaken by the decision of the Court of Appeal in Kodak Ltd. v. Clark, (1903) 1 K. B. 505.

In that case Kodak, Ltd., carrying on business in the United Kingdom, owned 98 per cent. of the shares in a foreign company, which gave it a preponderating influence in the control of the foreign company, the remaining shares being held by independent persons, and there was no evidence that the English company had ever attempted or had power to control or interfere with the management of the foreign company otherwise than by voting as shareholder. The Court of Appeal held that the foreign company was not carried on by the English company, and was not the agent of the English company, and that the English company was not, therefore, assessable to income tax under the First Case of Schedule D upon the full amount of the profits of the foreign company.

This case was followed in Gramophone and Typewriter v. Stanley (1908) 2 K. B. 89. The company (registered and resident in England) owned all the shares in a German company. The German company out of its profits in one year set aside the sum of 15,000*l.* to meet deterioration in patents. The commissioners found that the English company controlled the German company, that the head and seat and directing power of the English company were at its registered office in London, and that the entire business of the German company was carried on by and was the business and property of the appellant company, and that the profits of the German company were the profits of the appellant company, and that this sum of 15,000*l.* was profits within the meaning of the Income Tax Acts, and that all the profits of the German company should be assessed without regard to the mode of application of such profits. Walton, J., considered that the commissioners were wrong, and on appeal the Court of Appeal took the same view, and considered that the English company was only liable to pay tax on such portions of the profits of the German company as had been received in this country, that is to say, the Court considered the assessment ought to be under the Fifth Case. The Court considered that the mere fact that the English company had acquired all the shares in the German company did not make it the owner of the property of the German company, and that the German company was not a mere sham, and that agency was not established, and that the profits of the German company were not profits of a business carried on by the English company in a foreign country, because the individual corporation does not carry on the business of the corporation. He is only entitled to the profits of that business to a certain extent, fixed and ascertained in a certain way, depending on the constitution of the corporation and his holding in it. Apthorpe v. Peter Schoenhofen Brewing Co., supra, was distinguished on the ground that there the company was a mere form kept up to satisfy the American law, and that in that case the relation of principal and agent was proved to exist. Kodak, Ltd. v. Clark, supra, was approved.

See also Nobel Dynamite Co. v. Wyatt, (1893) 2 Q. B. 499, in which it was held that the term "foreign possession" in the Fifth Case includes the income of an English company derived from investing abroad in shares of various companies, English and foreign. So, too, the term includes income derived by an English company from a partnership constituted and carried on abroad by persons residing abroad. Colquhoun v. Brooks (1889), 14 App. Cas. 493.

Schedule D.—Profits and Gains—how Estimated.

For the purposes of Schedule D, "profits and gains of a concern must be ascertained on ordinary principles of commercial trading." Per Lord Halsbury, L. C., Gresham Life Soc. v. Styles, (1892) A. C. at p. 316. Subject, however, to the special provisions of the Acts which expressly disallow certain deductions.

The Act plainly contemplates the preparation of a balance sheet in which proper trading disbursements and liabilities are to be set against trade assets, so that the surplus (if any) of the latter will represent the assessable profits or gains of the concern. . . . Rule 3 of the last case (above) specifies certain items which a trader might naturally enough for his own private purposes insert in the debit side of the sheet; and enacts that these shall not be allowed as deductions in estimating net profits for the purposes of income tax." Per Lord Watson, Ibid., p. 317.

"Whether there be such a thing as profit or gain can only be ascertained by setting against the receipts the expenditure or obli-

Estimation of profits and gains.

gations to which they have given rise." Per Lord Herschell, Ibid., p. 323.

"That which has to be assessed is the balance of the profits or gains of a trade, that is to say, the sum left after subtracting the proper deductions from the profits or gains. The Act does not affirmatively state what losses may be deducted. It furnishes merely negative information." Per Lord Loreburn, L. C., Strong & Co. v. Woodfield, (1906) A. C. 448.

Insurance
company.

Accordingly, it was held, in the Gresham case, above referred to, that an insurance company which carried on the business of selling annuities, although bound to credit the account with its receipts in respect of the purchase-money of annuities sold during the three years, was entitled to debit the account with its payments in respect of annuities during the same period. It was urged that the payments in respect of the annuities were within the words of the Fourth Rule to the First Case above, which provides that no deduction shall be made on account of any annual interest, or any annuity or other annual payment payable out of such profits or gains. But it was considered that the rule in question was designed to meet such a case as that in which a trader had contracted to make an annual payment out of his profits, as, for example, where he had agreed to make such a payment to a former partner, or to a person who had made a loan on the terms of receiving such payment, and other cases which it was not necessary to define (per Lord Watson), and was not introduced to disallow a deduction in respect of the cost of obtaining the income. "You can no more refuse to take that cost into your consideration, when ascertaining the balance of profits and gains, than you could the cost of the coals or the corn of the coal merchant and corn merchant in ascertaining what are the profits from his trade." Per Lord Halsbury, Ibid., p. 316.

The decision in this case was in accord with the principle established in Mersey Docks v. Lucas, 8 App. Cas. 891, that the taxpayer is entitled to deduct from the gross profits of his trade or business the expenses necessary to earn them, subject to the negative provisions of the Act.

So, too, interest on temporary and fluctuating loans may properly be deducted just as much as rent of offices or hire of machinery. Farmer v. Scottish American Co., (1912) A. C. p. 118. But interest on debentures for a term of years cannot be deducted. Alexandria Water Co. v. Muxgrove, 11 Q. B. D. 174. See the Fourth Rule of the First Case, p. 90, supra.

In the case of an insurance company the gain for any particular year must be ascertained by estimate in accordance with some reasonable system, and a proper allowance should be made in respect of unexpired risks. Sun Insurance Office v. Clark, House of Lords, 7 March, 1912, W. N. (1912) 79. In that case the company treated 40 per cent. of the premium received each year as a fair allowance in respect of the unexpired risks, and there was evidence that this was a fair allowance. Bray, J., held that the amount ought to be allowed in ascertaining the company's gains, and the House of Lords upheld this decision and reversed that of the Court of Appeal.

Again, a brewery company which carries on the business of lending money to publicans and others is entitled to debit the account with bad debts made during the three years. Reid's Brewery Co. v. Mule, (1891) 2 Q. B. 1. And with compensation levy imposed under sect. 3 of the Licensing Act, 1904. Smith v. Lion Brewery Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 912; (1911) A. C. 150.

An annuity which represents partly income and partly capital is not taxable as regards the latter portion. Secretary for India v. Scoble, (1903) A. C. 299.

By sect. 23 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1890 (53 Vict. c. 8), "Where any person shall sustain a loss in any trade, manufacture or concern or profession, employment or vocation . . . it shall be lawful for him . . . to apply to the commissioners . . . for an adjustment of his liability by reference to the loss and to the aggregate amount of his income." On these words it was held that the section does not apply to a particular loss in ascertaining the profits of the particular transaction which has occurred in the course of the business, but to a general loss resulting from the business, that is, a loss as to the total result of the business operations. Rer v. Commissioners, 91 L. T. 94.

Where the business of a company consists in part of buying and selling investments, it has been held that profit on sale of investments is to be brought into account. Northern Assurance Co. v. Inland Revenue, 26 Sc. L. R. 330; Scottish Investment Trust v. Surveyor, 21 Scot. Sess. Cases, 4th series, 262. Compare these cases with Sterens v. Hudson's Bay Co., 101 L. T. 96.

But a company formed for rubber production is not chargeable on a sum of money representing profit on a re-sale of its estates to a new company. Tebnan (Johore) Rubber Syndicate v. Farmer (1910), S. C. 906, Ct. of Sess.

So, too, where a person buys up the undertaking of a company and re-sells at a profit to another company, and the transaction is one of several like transactions in the ordinary course of his business, the profit is chargeable to income tax, but not where the buying-up and re-selling of the business is an isolated transaction, and not one of a series of like transactions. Where, too, a company reconstructs and so parts with its business for a consideration exceeding the amount of its paid-up capital, debts and liabilities, the excess is not chargeable as profit.

As to the tax being payable where there is income under one head but a loss on the business as a whole, see Armistage v. Moore, (1900) 2 Q. B. 363.

Deductions.

The Acts do not, except in a few cases, state affirmatively what deductions may be allowed. It furnishes for the most part merely negative information, supra, pp. 89, 90.

Under 41 & 42 Vict. c. 15, s. 12, deductions are to be allowed for wear and tear during the year of any machinery and plant. And see Canard Steamship Co. v. Coulson, (1899) 1 Q. B. 865.

The value of all doubtful debts may be estimated. Sect. 80 of the Income Tax Act, 1853.

And as to abatements for loss by flood or tempest, see sect. 83 of the Income Tax Act, 1842.

As to allowing for interest on the amount of the deductions allowed, and considering what is the life of the plant, see Leith, Hull, &c. Co. v. Musgrave, 1 Fraser (Court of Session, 5th series), 1117; W. N. (1900) 210; British India Steam Navigation Co. v. Leslie, 17 T. L. R. 104; and Peninsular and Oriental Co. v. Leslie, 82 L. T. 137; below, 79 L. T. 118. What the commissioners have to do is to estimate according to what is just and reasonable; they are not bound to take an average of the depreciations during the three preceding years. Canard Steamship Co. v. Coulson, (1899) 1 Q. B. 865.

Cases where deductions disallowed.

The negative information, as to deductions, above referred to, is for the most part contained in the Third and Fourth Rules to First Case, supra, pp. 89, 90. None can be allowed for money carried to reserve for contingencies (Forder v. Handyside, 1 Ex. D. 233); or for depreciation of leases (Watney v. Musgrave, 5 Ex. D. 241); or for interest on borrowed money, which in substance is part of the company's working capital, e.g., debentures or debenture stock (Alexandria Co. v. Musgrove, 11 Q. B. D. 174), and does not represent mere temporary loans; or for bonus on borrowed capital (Arizona Copper Co. v. Smiles, 29 L. R. Sc. 134); or for past losses or dead rent and royalties (Broughton, &c. Co. v. Kirkpatrick, 14 Q. B. D. 491; or, as a general rule, for sinking new pits (Coltness Iron Co. v. Black, 6 App. Cas. 315); or for recoupment of capital value of extracted mineral (Alianza Co. v. Bell, (1906) A. C. 18); or for balance of annuity paid to a sinking fund (Nizam Rail. Co. v. Wyatt, 24 Q. B. D. 548); or for costs of embankments to improve the condition of land, and not merely to protect it from sea or tidal river (Hesketh v. Bray, 21 Q. B. Div. 444); or in respect of unearned premium (Imperial Fire Insurance Co. (1876), 35 L. T. 271); or for premium paid for a lease (Gillats and Watts v. Colquhoun, 33 W. R. 258); or, as a rule, for loss on loans at interest (English Crown Speller Co. v. Baker, 99 L. T. 353; or for a sum payable to a manager in commutation (Royal Insurance Co. v. Watson, (1897) A. C. 1); or for repairs of tied houses (Brickwood v. Reynolds, (1898) 1 Q. B. 95 (C. A.)); otherwise as to compensation paid to tenants of tied houses under sect. 3 of the Licensing Act, 1904 (Smith v. Lion Brewery Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 912; (1911) A. C. 150); or for annual sums paid for the right to call for the surrender of public-house licences, or for expenses incidental to applications for new licences (Southwell v. Savill Bros., (1901) 2 K. B. 349); or for royalties (Lanston Monotype v. Anderson, (1911) 2 K. B. 15); or for damages paid for injury caused to a guest in an inn through non-repair of the building (Strong & Co. v. Woodifield, (1906) A. C. 418); or for exhaustion of raw material (Alianza Co. v. Bell, (1906) A. C. 18); or for expenses of removal to new premises. Granite Supply Assoc. v. Inland Revenue, 8 F. 55, Ct. of Sess. On the other hand, where an annuity consists in part of capital, income tax is not payable on that part. Secretary of State v. Scoble, (1903) A. C. 299.

In Vallombrosa Rubber Co. v. Inland Revenue (1910), S. C. 519, Ct. of Sess., expenses of weeding and watching part of the company's rubber estate, where the trees had not yet reached the rubber bearing stage, were allowed.

In Guest, Keen & Nettlefolds v. Fowler, (1910) 1 K. B. 713, contributions by manufacturers to an association for keeping up prices were allowed to be deducted.

Moneys repaid by a life assurance company under old contracts by way of bonus to participating policy-holders, are assessable to income tax as "annual profits or gains." H. L. (Lord Bramwell dissenting). Last v. London Assurance Corp. (1885), 10 App. Cas. 438; New York v. Styles, 14 App. Cas. 381; Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States v. Bishop, (1900) 1 Q. B. 177. As to mutual societies, see New York Life Insurance Co. v. Styles, 14 App. Cas. 381, and Nizam State Rail. Co. v. Wyatt, 24 Q. B. D. 548. No deduction is permissible in respect of unexpired risks when the facts do not justify the same. General Accident Assurance Corp. v. McGowan, (1908) A. C. 207, explained in Sun Insurance Office v. Clark, supra, p. 98.

Schedule D, Case 4, is dealt with in the recent cases, as to the income tax on dividends and interests derived from securities abroad. Universal Life Assurance Society v. Bishop, 68 L. J. Q. B. 962; 81 L. T. 122; and Gresham Life Assurance Co. v. Bishop, (1902) A. C. 287.

As to a company's right to deduct and retain income tax out of dividends paid out of income of the company which has already been charged with income tax (e.g., dividends from other companies), see sect. 24 of Act of 1888, supra, p. 92; and London County Council v. Attorney-General, (1901) A. C. 26; see also infra, note to cl. 117 of Form 251.

"All interest of money, annuities and other annual profits and gains not charged by virtue of any of the other schedules contained in this Act." These words will be found in the concluding paragraph of sect. 2 of Schedule D (supra, p. 89) and must be borne in mind. Thus, it has been held that a life assurance company must pay income tax on the interest derived from its business investments, for the language of the Act makes no distinction between the class of investments necessary to carry on the business and other investments. Clerical, Medical and General Life Assurance Society v. Carter, 22 Q. B. D. 444; Liverpool, London and Globe Insurance Co. v. Bennett, (1911) 2 K. B. 577; affirmed on appeal, C. A., 28 T. L. R. No. 17; W. N. (1912) 73.

Interest, &c.

The case last mentioned affirmed the view expressed in the Court of Session by Lord Dunedin in Revelt v. Edinburgh Life Insurance Co., 5 Tax Cases, 221, 226, and by the Lord President in Scottish Mortgage Co. of Mexico v. McKelvie, 26 Sc. L. R. 87; 2 Tax Cases, 165, and by Wright, J., in Norwich Union Fire v. Magjee (1896), 44 W. R. 384; 3 Tax Cas. 457.

In arriving at the profits and gains, the profits should be estimated as inclusive and not exclusive of the amount payable for the year's income tax. Ashton Gas Co. v. Att.-Gen., (1906) A. C. 10.

Deduction in paying dividends,
interest, &c.

Prior to sect. 24 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, a company had power (sect. 104 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, and sect. 40 of the Income Tax Act, 1853) but was not bound to deduct the income tax from dividends and interest payable by it. The Act of 1888 altered this. "Now what," said Lord Macnaghten in a recent case, "has the Act of 1888 really done? It is no longer optional for a person who has to make an annual payment to deduct income tax; he is bound to make the deduction and pay over to the Crown the amount deducted unless payment comes out of income which has already paid the duty." See London County Council v. Attorney-General, (1901) A. C. 26.

A person receiving interest from which income tax has not been deducted is liable to pay income tax thereon notwithstanding the duty being imposed by sect. 24 of the Inland Revenue Act, 1888, on the person paying the interest. Glamorgan v. Quarter Sessions v. Wilson, (1910) 1 K. B. 725.

Where a partnership business was converted into a company, the partners receiving shares in exchange for their interests, it was held that the company had "succeeded" to the business, and was chargeable on that footing. Ryhope Co. v. Foye, 7 Q. B. D. 185.

A company trading with one ship does not start a new business because it loses its single ship and buys another. Merchiston Steamship Co. v. Turner, (1910) 2 K. B. 923.

As to sect. 41 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, supra, p. 91, the agent within the United Kingdom of a foreign company carrying on business within the United Kingdom is properly chargeable in his own name in respect of the profits derived from trade in this country, see James Wingate & Co. v. Commissioners, W. N. (1898) 129; 24 Rettie, 939.

Where foreign principals consign goods from abroad for sale by agents in this country, the mere fact that the agents sell in their own names does not relieve the principals from liability to pay income tax under Schedule D. See Watson v. Sandie and Hull, (1898) 1 Q. B. 326; Lorell and Christmas v. Commissioners, (1908) A. C. 46; see also supra, p. 94, and infra, p. 103.

Where an allowance ought to be granted but is refused, a mandamus lies to the commissioners commanding them to grant and certify the allowance. Commissioners of Income Tax v. Pemsel (1891) A. C. 531.

As to sect. 55 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, it was held that a person who had delivered without fraud, an incorrect statement of his profits or gain chargeable with income tax under Schedule D, which, through negligence or carelessness but without fraud, was incorrect, was not liable for the penalty of 50*l.* imposed by that section, and that the section applied only to non-delivery or to the delivery of a merely illusory statement as distinct from the delivery of a statement which purports and is intended to be a true and correct statement as required by sect. 52, but which is erroneous in some particular. Attorney-General v. Till, (1909) 1 K. B. 694. This decision was reversed by the House of Lords, (1910) A. C. 50.

As to the duties on mines, quarries, docks, waterworks, canals, &c., see 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 60, and Mersey Docks v. Lucas, 8 App. Cas. 891; Ryhope Colliery Co. v. Foyer, 7 Q. B. D. 485; Coltress Iron Co. v. Black, 6 App. Cas. 315; Broughton Coal Co. v. Kirkpatrick, 14 Q. B. D. 491; Jones v. Cwmorthen Slate Co., 5 Ex. Div. 93; Harris v. Irvine Corp., W. N. (1901) 182.

As to additional assessments on a succession to business, see Bell v. National Provincial Bank of England, (1904) 1 K. B. 149.

Overpaid Income Tax.

Overpaid income tax is recoverable under sect. 133 of the Income Tax Act, 1842, when the profits and gains have been over-estimated, provided that application is made in as short a time after the end of the year as with diligence is practicable, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case; and if the commissioners will not grant the requisite certificate, a mandamus will be granted. Rey v. Commissioners, 21 Q. B. D. 313.

Overpaid
income tax

Taxes Management Act, 1880.

As to assessment, see sect. 4 of Taxes Management Act, 1880 (43 & 44 Vict. c. 19); as to assessor's certificates, sect. 49 of same Act; as to estimates in default of return, sect. 50; as to examination of assessments, sect. 51; as to amendment of assessments, sect. 52; as to place of assessment, sect. 53; as to errors, sect. 55; as to allowances of assessments, sect. 56; as to appeals by person aggrieved

Assessments, appeals.

(under sect. 80 of Income Tax Act, 1842), sect. 57; as to cases for opinion of High Court, sect. 59.

Production of Returns.

As to ordering production of income tax returns on a misfeasance summons, see Joseph Hargreaves, Ltd., (1900) 2 Ch. 347.

Super Tax.

A corporation is not liable to super tax.

Calling for Returns before Act passed.

Returns may be called for in any year before the Act in passing granting income tax for that year, see sect. 30 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1890, and Bowles v. Attorney-General, Times, Dec. 1911, Parker, J.

Non-exemption when Income below 160*l.* per annum.

A company under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, is not exempt from duty by reason of its yearly income being under 160*l.* Myllam v. Market Harborough Advertiser Co., (1905) 1 K. B. 708.

Corporation Duty.

Corporation duty under Customs, &c.
Act, 1885.

By the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1885 (48 & 49 Vict. c. 51), ss. 11 to 20, certain duties were imposed in respect of property vested in bodies corporate or unincorporate. But among the exceptions is property belonging to a body corporate established for any trade or business, and accordingly trading companies under the Act of 1908 are exempt, even when registered without the word "limited" and on the footing that no dividends are to be paid. Council of Law Reporting, 22 Q. B. D. 279.

There is also an exception in respect of property which, or the income of which, shall be legally appropriated and applied for any purpose connected with any religious persuasion, or for any charitable purpose, or for the promotion of education, literature, science or the fine arts. See Inland Revenue v. Forrest, 15 A. C. 334, in which the Institution of Civil Engineers was held exempt. The holding of examinations and granting diplomas in surgery are not a "promotion of science" within sect. 11 (3), of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1885. Royal College of Surgeons, (1899) 1 Q. B. 871; C. v. J. Q. B. 705; 79 L. T. 89. As to a club, see New University Club, 18 Q. B. D. 720.

As to property not entirely appropriated to be applied to the promotion of science, see Royal College of Surgeons, supra.

As to the proper mode of attesting "annual value, income, or profits," see Surrey County Cricket Club, (1901) 2 K. B. 400.

Inhabited House Duty.

Partly residential, London and Westminster Bank v. Smith, 87 L. T. 244; 67 J. P. 229; Union Bank of Scotland v. Foster, 65 J. P. 824; Maple & Co. v. Wilson, 49 W. R. 670; 85 L. T. 229; Walker v. Brisley, (1900) 2 Q. B. 735; Grant v. Langton, (1900) A. C. 383; Styles v. Middle Temple (Treasurer), 81 L. T. 426; Foster v. Liverpool Athenæum, 97 L. T. 692; Browne v. Furlado, (1903) 1 K. B. 723; Swain v. Fleming, 81 L. T. 202.

Poor Rates.

By the Act of 43 Eliz. c. 2, s. 1, competent sums are to be levied in each parish for the relief of the poor, by taxation of every inhabitant, parson, vicar, and "others," and of every occupier of lands, houses, tithes impropriate, propriations of tithes, coal mines or saleable underwoods in the parish, to be gathered out of the parish according to its ability.

The Parochial Assessments Act, 1836 (6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 96), s. 1, further provides "That no rate for the relief of the poor in England and Wales shall be allowed by any justices or be of any force which shall not be made upon an estimate of the net annual value of the several hereditaments related thereunto, that is to say, of the rent at which the same might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, free of all usual tenants' rates and taxes and tithe commutation rentcharge (if any), and deducting therefrom the probable annual average cost of the repairs, insurance, and other expenses (if any) necessary to maintain them in a state to command such rent; provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to alter or affect the principles or different relative liabilities (if any) according to which different kinds of hereditaments are now by law rateable."

As to evidence to alter gross estimated rental on appeal, see Horton & Son v. Walsall Assessment Committee, (1898) 2 Q. B. 239.

The Act of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 89, s. 1 (continued by divers Expiring Laws Continuance Acts), is as follows:

"That it shall not be lawful for the overseers of any parish, township, or village, to tax any inhabitant thereof as such inhabitant in respect of his ability derived from the profits of stock-in-trade, or any other property for or towards the relief of the poor; provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall in anywise affect the liability of any parson or vicar, or of any occupier of lands, houses, tithes impropriate, propriation of tithes, coal mines, or saleable underwoods to be taxed, under the provisions of the said Acts, for and towards the relief of the poor."

Poor rates
under 13 Eliz.
c. 2, s. 1.

3 & 4 Vict.
c. 89, s. 1.

Cases of Rating.

ADVERTISING STATIONS. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 27, and Burton v. St Giles, &c. Ass. Com. (1900) 1 Q. B. 389.

AGRICULTURAL LAND. Smith v. Richmond, (1899) A. C. 448; Alton Urban Council v. Spicer, (1904) 1 K. B. 678.

BREAKWATER AND LANDING STAGE. — Cattewater Harbour v. Plympton Union, 63 J. P. 297.

CANAL. — Glamorganshire Canal Co. v. Merthyr Tydfil Union, 89 L. T. 85.

CEMETERY. Queen v. Abney Park Cemetery Co., 8 Q. B. 515. The company purchased lands and laid them out for a cemetery, and received fees for interments, and conveyed plots for graves subject to regulations: Held, that the company was rateable in respect of the plots sold.

COAL MINES. Brown v. Rotherham Assessment Committee, 83 L. T. 193.

DOCK. Swansea Harbour Trustees v. Swansea Union, 97 L. T. 585.

WAREHOUSES. — See London and India Docks v. Poplar Union, 83 L. T. 371.

DRILL HALL. — Ragner v. Drewitt, 82 L. T. 718.

GRAVEL PITS. Farnham Flint, &c. Co. v. Farnham Union, (1901) 1 Q. B. 272; and see cases there cited as to other wasting properties.

HOARDING FOR ADVERTISEMENTS. Burton v. St. Giles' Committee, (1900) 1 Q. B. 389.

LAIRAGES. — See Mersey Docks Board v. Birkenhead Assessment Committee, (1901) A. C. 175.

MACHINERY. — Machinery or other fixtures which are part of the stock-in-trade, though they belong to the tenant, must be taken into account in assessing the rateable value of the premises. The principle established in Reg. v. Guest, 7 L. J. M. C. 38; 7 Ad. & E. 951, and followed ever since, cannot now be disturbed; Kirby v. Hunslet, (1906) A. C. 43; H. L. (E.); and see Crockett v. Northampton Assessment Committee, 72 L. J. K. B. 320; Laing v. Overseers of Bishop Wearmouth, 3 Q. B. D. 299; — In this case it was held, that in assessing shipbuilding premises to the poor rate the value of machinery attached to the premises was to be taken into consideration in ascertaining their rateable value where such machinery, though some of it might be capable of being removed without injury to itself or the freehold, was essentially necessary to the shipbuilding business to which the premises were devoted, and intended to remain permanently attached to them so long as they were applied to their present purpose. An elaborate descriptive list of various classes of the machinery is set out in the report.

In Tyne Boiler Co. v. Overseers of Longbenton, 18 Q. B. D. 81; Crockett v. Northampton Union, 18 T. L. R. 451, the decision there was, that in estimating the rateable value of premises used as a manufactory, machinery and plant placed thereon for the purpose of making them fit as premises for such a manufactory are to be taken into account as enhancing the value of the hereditament, although such machinery and plant remain personal property, and are not physically attached to the premises, and this notwithstanding the Act 3 & 4 Vict. c. 83, s. 1 (supra), which exempts personal chattels from rating, which up to that Act had been rateable. Esher, M. R., said: "Nobody says that these machines are to be rated as personal chattels. The question is, whether they are to be taken into account in estimating the rateable value of the premises:

... the statute (3 & 4 Vict. c. 89) makes no difference, and all the cases with regard to estimating the value of real property remain untouched by it." After citing with approval the cases cited in Laing v. Overseers of Bishop Wearmouth (supra), and others, including Reg. v. Haslam, 17 Q. B. 220 (per Patteson, J.), the Master of the Rolls continued: "Does the Court there mean by the word 'attached' that the thing must be bolted or screwed to the premises? ... I do not think so. I think that they could not have meant to differ from Patteson, J., when he said that it was necessary to inquire whether the machinery was or was not annexed to the freehold."

The above decision, as to plant and machinery not attached to the rated premises being taken into account in estimating the rating value of the premises, was followed in Boden & Co. v. Overseers of Chard, and Gifford, Fox & Co. v. Same, 7 T. L. R. 431 (July, 1890), where the Court of Appeal (Esher, M. R., and Lindley and Bowen, L. J.J.) affirmed (as to the second case) the decision of a Divisional Court (63 L. T. 249).

It is not easy to reconcile these two decisions with the Act 3 & 4 Vict. c. 89, and in 1895 a bill was introduced into Parliament to exempt machinery as in Scotland and Ireland.

PUBLIC-HOUSES. Gross rateable value in case of tied houses (Bradford Assessment Committee v. White, (1898) 2 Q. B. 630): evidence of trade and profits in ascertaining rateable value (Dodds v. South Shields Union, (1895) 2 Q. B. 133; Cartwright v. Scul- coates Union, (1900) A. C. 150; increase of value by premium paid for lease (Camberwell Assessment Committee v. Ellis, (1900) 1 Q. B. 68; affirmed in H. L., 16 T. L. R. 504).

TELEPHONE WIRES (overhead).—Lancashire Telephone Co. v. Overseers, 14 Q. B. D. 267; Company held rateable.

TRAMWAYS.—Pimlico, &c. Tramway Co. v. Assessment Committee of Greenwich Union, 9 Q. B. 9. The company was formed under the Tramways Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 78), and laid down a tramway in a highway, the soil of which was vested in the district board: Held, that the company was rateable in respect of its occupation of the road by its tramway. Other cases are Milbourne Tramway Co. v. Fitzroy Corp., (1901) A. C. 153; Metropolitan Electric Tramways v. Tottenham Urban District, 28 T. L. R. 292 (C. A.); overruling Swansea Improvements and Tramway Co. v. Swansea Urban Sanitary Authority, (1892) 1 Q. B. 357. Light railways exempt. Wakefield Corp. v. Wakefield Light Ry., (1908) A. C. 293.

UNDERGROUND SEWERS.—Ystradfydwg, &c. Board v. Newport Assessment Committee, (1901) 1 Q. B. 406.

WAREHOUSE.—See Rex v. Henderson, 92 L. T. 662; Booth Overseers v. Liverpool Warehousing Co., 85 L. T. 45; and London and India Docks v. Poplar Union, 83 L. T. 371.

WATERWORKS AND GASWORKS.—See Rex v. Brighton Gaslight Co., 5 B. & C. 466; Rex v. Rochdale Waterworks, 1 M. & S. 634; Rex v. Miller, Corp., 619; Reg. v. West Middlesex Waterworks, 1 E. & E. 716; Reg. v. Lee Overseers, L. R. 1 Q. B. 241; Liverpool Corporation v. Llanfyllin Assess. Com., (1899) 2 Q. B. 14; New River Co. v. Hertford Union, (1902) 2 K. B. 597; Hampton Urban Council v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., 16 T. L. R. 60; Liverpool Corporation v. Birkenhead Union, 94 L. T. 509.

The true test of beneficial occupation is not whether a profit can be made, but whether the occupation is of value. London County Council v. Churchwardens of Erith, (1893) A. C. 562. In that case the Council were held rateable in respect of sewage pumping station and works which they occupied and used to enable them to perform their statutory duties, and to be properly taken into account as the hypothetical tenant, although they had no power to take the premises. See also Imperial Institute v. St. Mary Abbott's, Times, 7 March, 1895.

But if a person is a mere caretaker of a house, put in to preserve the house from depredation, the master who put in such caretaker is not liable to be rated in respect of the house, because he has no beneficial occupation. The question in each case is whether there is a beneficial occupation. Bertie v. Walthamstow Overseers, 68 J. P. 545.

The stoppage of works during a particular strike should not be taken into consideration in the assessment of rates, especially where no evidence is produced that the Assessment Committee had disregarded the general contingency of strikes. This was so held in Hoyle and Jackson v. Oldham Union, (1894) 2 Q. B. 372, by the Court of Appeal.

Stoppage of work not to be taken in account in estimating rating value

As to closing of shops during winter months, see Southend-on-Sea Corporation v. While, 83 L. T. 408, distinguished in Booth Overseers v. Liverpool Warehousing Co., 85 L. T. 45; 65 J. P. 740.

As to deductions for repairs of mines, see John Brown & Co. v. Rotherham Union, 83 L. T. 193; Wear & Tees, Leith Hill, &c. Co v. I. R., 1 F. 1117; W. N. (1900) 210.

By 6 & 7 Vict. c. 36, s. 1, exemption from rates is allowed to premises occupied by "any society instituted for purposes of science, literature, or the fine arts exclusively; provided that such society shall be supported wholly or in part by annual voluntary contributions, and shall not, and by its bye-laws may not, make any dividend, gift, division, or bonus in money unto or between any of its members." See Savoy Overseers v. Art Union of London, (1896) A. C. 296; Royal College of Music v. St. Margaret's Overseers, (1898) 1 Q. B. 809; Jenner Institute of Preventive Medicine v. St. George's Assessment Committee, 16 T. L. R. 444; 69 L. J. Q. B. 814; 83 L. T. 344; Hornsey School of Art v. Edmonton Union, 94 L. T. 203; Jones v. St. Dunstan Overseers, 95 L. T. 787.

What scientific, literary, and fine arts societies are exempted.

As to the limitation of time for recovery of rates, see Keeton v. Sheffield Coal Co., (1901) 2 Q. B. 26.

As to the recovery of rates pending appeal, see Burton v. St Giles-in-the-Fields, (1901) 1 K. B. 650.

Illegal Associations.

The Act of 1908, like the Act of 1832, affords great facilities for forming companies, but before it introduces the machinery of formation, the Act, in sect. 1, first proceeds to clear the ground by declaring illegal all large unregistered companies or associations subsequently formed, and thus indirectly compelling associations to avail themselves of the provisions of the Act. Section 1, the section in question, provides, in effect, as follows:

Illegal associations.

- (1) That after the commencement of the Act no company, association, or partnership consisting of more than ten members is to be formed for carrying on the business of banking unless registered under the Act or formed in pursuance of some other Act of Parliament or of letters patent: and
- (2) That no company, association, or partnership consisting of more than twenty persons shall be formed after the commencement of the Act for the purpose of carrying on any other business (i.e., other than banking) that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company, association, or partnership, or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered under the Act, or is formed in pursuance of some other Act, or of letters patent, or is a company engaged in working mines within the Stannaries, Devon and Cornwall.

Decided meaning of above provisions.

The meaning of these provisions is, as interpreted by the Courts, is that any company or association formed in violation of the section is an illegal association, and the policy of the enactment is well expounded by James, L. J., in Smith v. Anderson (1889), 15 C. D. at p. 273. "The object of the Act," says the Lord Justice, "was to prevent the mischief arising from large trading undertakings being carried on by large fluctuating bodies, so that persons so dealing with them did not know with whom they were contracting, and so might be put to great expense, which was a public mischief to be repressed."

And this object the Act may be said effectually to have accomplished. It has destroyed the status of such associations. Thus an association which is illegal cannot be wound up, under the Act of 1862, at the instance either of the association, of a creditor, or of a shareholder. South Wales Atlantic, &c. Co. (1875), 2 C. D. 763; Padstow Association (1882), 20 C. D. 137; Ex parte Hargroves (1875), L. R. 6 Ch. 542; Ilfracombe Building Soc., (1901) 1 Ch. 102. So, too, an action by an illegal association, whether against a member or any other person, must fail if the illegality of the association is disclosed. Re Day (1876), 1 C. D. 690. If the association has lent money, for instance, and obtained as security a promissory note, it cannot sue thereon. Shaw v. Benson, 11 Q. B. D. 563. And, conversely, neither a member nor an outsider can sue such an association, for it can contract no debts (London Marine Association (1869), 8 Eq. 176; Hume v. Record Reign Jubilee Syndicate, 80 L. T. 104), and can enter into no contracts. Jennings v. Hammond (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 229. In a word, the association is a phantom. It has no legal existence.

Many attempts have been made to escape from the provisions of the section, but seldom successfully; the words are too wide. It was at one time thought, for example, that mutual assurance associations were not within the section—not "associations for gain"; but these doubts—or hopes—were dispelled by the decision in Padstow Association (1882), 20 C. D. 137.

In Re Thomas (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 379, again, it was contended that an unregistered loan society consisting of more than twenty members was not illegal, because in its inception it comprised less than twenty members, but this flimsy contention was promptly overruled. "I cannot," said Cave, J., "assent to the doctrine that, because a society is projected by less than twenty people originally, and subsequently grows to more than twenty, it is outside the Act and does not require registration. This would be making a laughing-stock of the Act."

These cases must, however, be read with Smith v. Anderson (1880), 15 C. D. 247, a decision of the Court of Appeal, in which it was held that an investment trust was not an illegal association although there were more than twenty beneficiaries entitled to the benefit of it, the ratio decidendi being that the business, if business it was, was carried on by the trustees, who were less in number than twenty.

So in One and All Sickness Assoc., 25 T. L. R. 674, a slate club was held not to be an illegal association within the section, the only association being to share in a relief fund formed by subscriptions.

Wigfield v. Potter (1881), 45 L. T. 612; Crowther v. Thorley, 50 L. T. 43; Re Siddall (1885), 29 C. D. 1, are other cases in which unregistered land companies of more than twenty members have been held to be legal on the ground that they were formed merely for acquiring and dividing land between the members, and not for carrying on any business of land jobbing or trafficking in land.

Marrs v. Thompson, 86 L. T. 759, in which the trustees of an unregistered society for mutual insurance consisting of more than twenty persons were held entitled to sue the society's treasurer for recovery of money of the society in his hands, seems to have been one of those hard cases which make bad law; at least, it is difficult to reconcile with Re Padstow Assoc. (supra).

Dissolution.

A common law corporation was dissolved by loss of all its members. Dissolution. Grant on Corporations, p. 303. But it is apprehended that a company, under the Act of 1862 (now 1908), being a statutory corporation, and an independent legal persona, is not so dissolved (Newhaven Local Board v. Newhaven School Board, 30 C. D. 373), and that it subsists as a corporation until it is dissolved in the manner expressly provided for by the Act, viz., (a) by a compulsory winding-up, followed by an order of the Court for dissolution under sect. 172 of the Act; (b) by a voluntary winding-up, followed by a general meeting and return to the Registrar (sect. 195); (c) by striking the name of a company off the register under sect. 242 of the Act.

The dissolution of a company under sects. 172, 195 of the Act precludes a subsequent winding-up order, or proceedings for recovery of any outstanding assets. Coxon v. Gorst, (1891) 2 Ch. 73; Pinto Silver Mining Co., 8 C. Div. 273; London and Caledonian Co., 11 C. Div. 140; Knowles v. Scott, (1891) 1 Ch. 717; Whiteley Exerciser

v. Gamage, (1898) 2 Ch. 405; Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co. (2), (1900) 1 Ch. 43; Westbourne Grove Drapery Co., 27 W. R. 37.

But where the dissolution has taken place under sect. 212, the company may be revived by order of the Court as therein mentioned (sub-sect. (6)). See Part II. Chap. LI.

Cases have sometimes occurred in which, after an effective and irrevocable dissolution, assets of the company have been discovered, or assets supposed to be valueless have been found to be of value.

Such assets, so far as they are real assets, revert to the donors or their heirs (Co. Litt. 13 b; Grant on Corporations, 303), and so far as they are personal property vest in the Crown as bona vacantia (1 Bla Com. 299; Grant, 304). Re Higginson and Dean, (1899) 1 Q. B. 325; but any trust affecting the property is not displaced should such a case occur.

And see as to bona vacantia, Cannock v. Edwards, (1896) 2 Ch. 679; Printers' Soc., (1899) 2 Ch. 184; Brown v. Dale, 9 Ch. 78; Re Bond, Panes v. Att.-Gen., (1901) 1 Ch. 15; Pryce Jones v. Williams, (1902) 2 Ch. 517.

Creditors and others might, it is apprehended, apply to the Crown by petition for a grant of assets so vested in the Crown, and probably with success, having regard to the fact that where the goods of a bastard vest in the Crown, it is usual to grant the same or part thereof to the natural next of kin of the deceased. See Evans v. Brown (1843), 5 Beav. 114.

Singular results sometimes ensue; thus, where Company A, holding freeholds in trust to secure debentures of Company B, was dissolved, it was found that the legal title had passed to Company B as donor. Where assets subject to a trust vest in the Crown, the Crown takes subject to the trust, but apparently it will not act as a trustee. See Re Taylor's Agreement Trusts, (1904) 2 Ch. 737. In that case Buckley, J., refused to act on the view that a dissolved vendor company which had neglected to assign patents to a purchaser was a trustee who "could not be found" within the meaning of sect. 35 of the Trustee Act, 1893; but Farwell, J., has in two cases come to the opposite conclusion. General Accident Assurance Corp., (1904) 1 Ch. 147; Richard Mills & Co. (Brierly Hill), W. N. (1905) 36; and his view has been followed by Warrington, J., in Re No. 9, Bomori Road, (1906) 1 Ch. 359. See, too, Ruddington Land, 100 L. T. 648.

As to destruction of books on a dissolution, see sect. 222 of the Act of 1908, and as to the Court's power to declare this resolution void, see sect. 223, and Spottisroode, Dixon & Hunting, W. N. (1912) 48.

Mortmain.

Mortmain

By the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 42), and the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891 (54 & 55

Act of 1733), land (including tenements and hereditaments corporeal or incorporeal, of any tenure, but not moneys secured on land or other personal estate arising from or connected with land) is not to be assured to or for the benefit of or acquired by or on behalf of any corporation in mortmain otherwise than under the authority of a licence of the Crown or of a statute for the time being in force; and if any land is so assured otherwise than as aforesaid, the land is to be forfeited to the Crown from the date of the assurance, and the King may enter upon and hold the land accordingly; but the Act of 1888 contains a proviso enabling the mesne lords to enter within a specified period.

A licence is not necessary in the case of a company registered for profit or to be taken to be registered under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, for by sect. 16 (2) of the Act it is expressly provided that the company shall be a body corporate, "with power to hold land." But an association not for profit cannot hold more than two acres without a licence. Companies Act, 1908, s. 19. Forty such licences were granted in 1910.

How far can a foreign corporation hold land here without licence? It is clear that under the Mortmain Act, 1888, it cannot hold land at all without Royal licence, but of course it can form a company here, and that company can hold land, and a foreign company can hold nearly all the shares in such company (supra, p. 45). This course has been adopted in some cases. As to foreign companies establishing a place of business in the United Kingdom, see, now, Companies Act, 1908, s. 274, and p. 118.

Trade Unions and Combines.

At common law trade unions were illegal, in the sense that the courts would not enforce the contracts of the members inter se, for such combinations were regarded as in restraint of trade, and contrary to public policy. The common law rule, as enunciated in Hilton v. Eckersley, 6 E. & B. 47, is that, prima facie, it is the privilege of a trader in a free country in all matters not contrary to law to regulate his own mode of carrying on it (his trade) in accordance with his own discretion and choice. And see Cullen v. Elvin, 90 L. T. 840; Russell v. Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, (1910) 1 K. B. 506; affirmed by House of Lords (1912), W. N. 79; Nidd v. General Union of Operative Carpenters, 103 L. T. 45; Osborne v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, (1911) 1 Ch. 540.

In Hilton v. Eckersley, supra, several manufacturers, with a view to protecting themselves against the combination of workmen, entered into an agreement as to regulating wages and hours of work, as to suspending work partially or altogether, and as to the management of their business by the decision of a majority of their number, and it

Trade unions at common law.

was held that the agreement was in restraint of trade, and was therefore not enforceable; and Crompton, J., was of opinion that it was a criminal conspiracy. That opinion was no doubt erroneous (Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, Gow & Co., (1892) A. C. 25, 39); but it required the Trade Union Acts, 1871 and 1876 (34 & 35 Vict. c. 31. and 39 & 40 Vict. c. 22), to remove the doubt. "Parliament," said Lord Macnaghten in Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, (1901) A. C. 426, "has legalised trade unions, whether registered or not. If registered, they enjoy certain advantages." And the case went on to decide that if a trade union committed a wrong by its agents, it could be sued for such wrong. This doctrine has recently been abolished by the Trade Disputes Act, 1906, c. 47—one of the most remarkable feats of modern democratic legislation—which provides that "an action against a trade union, whether of workmen or masters, or against any members or officials thereof on behalf of themselves and all other members of the trade union, in respect of any tortious act alleged to have been committed by or on behalf of the trade union, shall not be entertained by any Court."

For the purposes of these Acts the term "trade union" is defined by sect. 16 of the Act of 1876), as follows:—

"'Trade union' means any combination, whether temporary or permanent, for regulating the relations between workmen and masters, or between workmen and workmen, or between master and master, or for imposing restrictive conditions on the conduct of any trade or business, whether such combination would or would not, if the principal Act [i.e., the Act of 1871] had not been passed, have been deemed to have been an unlawful combination by reason of some or one or more of its purposes being in restraint of trade"; but the Acts are not to affect

- (1.) Any agreement between partners as to their own business;
- (2.) Any agreement between an employer and those employed by him as to such employment;
- (3.) Any agreement in consideration of the sale of the goodwill of a business or of instruction in any profession, trade, or handicraft.

By sect. 2 of the Act of 1871, it is provided that the purposes of any trade union shall not, by reason merely that they are in restraint of trade, be deemed to be unlawful so as to render any member of such trade union liable to criminal prosecution for conspiracy or otherwise; and, by sect. 3, that the purposes of any trade union shall not, by reason merely that they are in restraint of trade, be unlawful so as to render void or voidable any agreement or trust. Sect. 4 provides that nothing in this Act shall enable any Court to entertain any legal proceedings instituted with the object of directly enforcing or recovering damages for the breach of any of the following agreements, namely:-

1. Any agreement between members of a trade union as such concerning the conditions on which any members for the time being of such trade union shall or shall not sell their goods, transact business, employ or be employed.
2. Any agreement for the payment by any person of any subscription or penalty to a trade union.
3. Any agreement for the application of the funds of a trade union
 - (a) to provide benefits to members, or
 - (b) to furnish contributions to any employer or workman not a member of such trade union in consideration of such employer or workman acting in conformity with the rules or resolutions of such trade union, or
 - (c) to discharge any fines imposed upon any person by sentence of a Court of Justice.
4. Any agreement made between one trade union and another, or
5. Any bond to secure the performance of any of the above-mentioned agreements.

But nothing in this section shall be deemed to constitute any of the above-mentioned agreements unlawful.

With reference to the above section it has been held that a trade union registered under the Act may be sued in its registered name Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, (1901) A. C. 426; South Wales Miners' Federation v. Glamorgan Coal Co., (1905) A. C. 239. And that, notwithstanding the section, a member of a trade union may sue to restrain a misapplication of the funds of the union. Yorkshire Miners' Assoc. v. Howden, (1905) A. C. 256. A member cannot, however, sue to restrain the executive from imposing fines. Mullett v. United French Polishers Society, 91 L. T. 133; 20 T. L. R. 395. Nor can a widow of a deceased member enforce by action the benefits given her by the rules. Russell v. Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, House of Lords (1912), W. N. 79. 28 T. L. R. 276. As to alteration of rules, see Burke v. Amalgamated Society of Dyers, (1906) 2 K. B. 583.

The Acts provide for the registration of trade unions (see sects. 6 and 13 of the Act of 1871, and sects. 6 and 8 of the Act of 1876, and infra), and by sect. 5 of the Act of 1871, it is amongst other things provided that the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, now replaced by the Act of 1908 (see that Act, sect. 291), shall not apply to any trade union, and the registration of any trade union under any of the said Acts shall be void. See Edinburgh and District Gravel Water, &c. Assoc. v. Jenkinson, 5 F. 1159, Ct. of Sess., for use in point.

It follows, then, that it is not allowable to register, under the Act

Trade union cannot be registered as a company.

of 1908, which expressly preserves (see sect. 294) the provisions of the Trade Unions Act, 1871, a company which is formed for trade union purposes, whether exclusively or in conjunction with other objects.

Thus, if it be desired to register a company for the purpose of regulating the prices at which the members of the company are to sell the goods manufactured or supplied by them respectively, or to regulate the wages to be paid by them respectively, or the output of their respective works, or the cases in which they shall concur in a lock-out or suspension of operations, difficulties at once arise; for, if the association appears to be a trade union, the Registrar will refuse to register it, and if he should, by oversight or error of judgment, register the association, the registration will, by virtue of the Act of 1871, be void, and sect. 17 of the Companies Act, 1908, does not, in such a case, make the Registrar's certificate of incorporation conclusive that the company is validly registered. British Assoc. of Glass Bottle Manufacturers v. Nettlefold, 27 T. L. R. 527. See p. 24, supra.

Presence of some trade union rule.

Sometimes an association, with general objects quite free from objection, is registered, notwithstanding the presence in the articles of a clause savouring of trades unionism or restraint of trade. In such case it would seem that the registration should hold good, but that the clause, as being in restraint of trade, will be invalid and cannot be enforced. See Mineral Water Bottle Exchange and Trade Protection Society v. Booth, 36 C. D. 465, C. A., where an article prohibiting each member from employing any employee of any other member without his assent was held invalid; Urmston v. Whitelegg (1875), 63 L. T. 455; on appeal, 55 J. P. 453, in which an article fixing the minimum price to be charged for sale of goods was held invalid; and see Swaine v. Wilson, 24 Q. B. D. 252, as to rules in part illegal; and Cullen v. Elwyn, 90 L. T. 840; 20 T. L. R. 490, where main object illegal. In Cade v. Daly, (1910) Ir. R. 306, it was held that an agreement between the members of an association of traders fixing the minimum prices of goods was legal, and was enforceable by injunction. But the decision appears to be inconsistent with the principles laid down by the House of Lords in Russell v. Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, 28 T. L. R. 276.

How to arrange valid
co-operation.

Where, then, it is desired to limit the output or control the conduct of a number of undertakings, the best plan is to form a new company, which will acquire all the undertakings in question, and thus obtain the requisite control as owner. Sometimes, however, to vest all the undertakings in one company would be prejudicial, in the sense that it might destroy or detrimentally affect the goodwill of some or one of the businesses or invite competition, and, where this is so, it is very common to adopt the expedient of vesting each of the undertakings in a separate company, all the shares in which are taken by the new company or its nominees; and thus the new company obtains absolute control over the sub-companies, and is in substance the owner of their separate undertakings.

Sometimes what is desired can be secured by a "joint purse" arrangement, in which several concerns join, and it is provided that the profits of each of the concerns shall for a term be pooled, that the pool shall be divided in specified proportions amongst the various companies, and that in the meantime they shall co-operate. The objection to such arrangements very commonly is that any one of the parties can, at any rate by liquidation or reconstruction, escape the restraint of the contract. See as to income tax in such cases, Guest, Keen, &c. v. Nettlefold, (1910) 1 K. B. 713. Joint purse.

Lastly, it is very common for a number of companies and persons to concur in an agreement savouring of trades unionism (e.g., to limit output, or fix prices, or resist labour dictation), well knowing that its provisions cannot be enforced, but relying on the disinclination of members to break faith, especially in view of the fact that the other members may be in a position to punish the breach of faith by special competition or otherwise. Hilton v. Eckersley, 6 E. & B. 47, 68, supra, p. 113. See also Collins v. Locke, 4 App. Cas. 674, in which case an agreement by several persons that orders of a particular character should be divided among them in rotation, and that if the party giving the order would not assent thereto none of them would act for him, was held to be invalid. Again, in Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, (1892) A. C. 25, a number of shipowners banded together with a view to keeping up freights, and the combination was declared illegal by the House of Lords. "The agreement," said Lord Watson, "of which the appellants complain, left the contracting parties free to recede from it at their pleasure"; and in the same case Lord Bramwell said: "Let it be that each member had tied his hands; let it be that that was in restraint of trade. I think, upon the authority of Hilton v. Eckersley and other cases, we should hold that the agreement was illegal, that is, not enforceable by law." Unenforceable contracts.

And in Chamberlain Wharf v. Smith, (1900) 2 Ch. 605, a number of persons and companies, including the plaintiffs, having formed themselves into an association (unregistered) for keeping up the price of tea, the committee appointed under the rules expelled the plaintiffs for alleged breach of the rules, and the Court, holding the association to be a trade union and unlawful for want of registration, refused to grant the plaintiffs an injunction, as that would, it considered, be directly to enforce the rules.

On the other hand, an agreement between vendor and purchaser of goods providing that the purchaser shall not sell below a specified price is unobjectionable. Elliman & Co. v. Carrington & Son, (1901) 2 Ch. 275. See also pp. 381, 424, infra.

Although a company which is a trade union cannot be registered under the Act of 1908, cannot, that is to say, emancipate itself from the statutory restrictions of the Trade Union Acts, it by no means Contribution to trade union.

follows that the objects of a company to be registered under that Act may not include power for the company to join a trade union or to subscribe to a trade union, for, as we have seen, sect. 2 of the Act of 1908 authorizes the registration of a company for any lawful purpose, and the Trade Union Acts, 1871 and 1876, expressly provide that a trade union shall not be unlawful. No doubt, if the funds of a company are expended in subscriptions to a trade union, it may find that it can obtain no legal assistance in enforcing its rights, but it may well be worth the while of the company to run this risk.

Foreign Companies.

It has long been an anomaly that foreign companies should be at liberty to come here and do business without disclosing anything as to their constitution or financial resources. The Companies (Consolidation) Act of 1908 rectifies this.

Foreign companies

Section 274 of the Act imposes certain requirements on companies incorporated outside the United Kingdom, which, on 1st July, 1908, has a place of business in the United Kingdom or afterwards establishes such a place of business. Such companies are required to file with the Registrar of Companies:—

- (a) a certified copy of the charter, statutes, or memorandum and articles creating the corporation and defining its constitution;
- (b) a list of the directors of the company;
- (c) the names and addresses of some one or more persons resident in the United Kingdom authorized to accept service of process and notices on behalf of the company.

In case of any alterations in any of these, notice of the alteration must be filed with the registrar (1).

Service on the persons made agents for service under (c) is to be sufficient (2).

Every such company must also file with the registrar an annual statement, in the form of a balance sheet, containing the particulars required to be given in its annual summary by a company registered in the United Kingdom with a share capital.

If the foreign company uses the word "Limited" as part of its name the section makes further requirements.

- (a) The company must, in every prospectus it issues inviting subscriptions for its shares or debentures, state the country in which it was incorporated.
- (b) It must conspicuously exhibit in every place in the United Kingdom where it carries on business the name of the company and the country where it was incorporated.
- (c) It must have the name of the company and of the country of its incorporation mentioned in legible characters in all bill-heads and letter paper, and in all notices, advertisements, and other official publications of the company.

These are just and reasonable conditions, to which no honest foreign trading company can fairly take exception; while to investors, or persons having dealings with the foreign company in the United Kingdom, they afford much-desired information and protection.

The section applies to every assurance company constituted outside the United Kingdom which carries on an assurance business within the United Kingdom, whether incorporated or not. See the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 19. The words here are "carries on an assurance business." Having "a place of business," the words used in sect. 274, are not quite synonymous.

By sect. 275 of the Act, a company incorporated in a British possession which has filed with the registrar the documents and particulars specified in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of sub-sect. 1 of sect. 275 is to have the same power to hold lands in the United Kingdom as if it were a company incorporated under the Act.

Section 274, above referred to, is of particular importance in regard to income tax payable by foreign companies. In many cases such companies, acting here by agents, have escaped the tax, but now the obligation to register and have a definite place for service seriously affects the position. It has been held in several cases that a foreigner who carries on business in England through an agent is chargeable with income tax accordingly. Erichsen v. Last, 8 Q. B. D. 414; Grainger v. Gough, (1896) A. C. 325; Watson v. Sandie, (1898) 1 Q. B. 326; Lovell v. Christmas, re Commissioners, (1908) A. C. 46; Crockston v. Inland Revenue, (1911) S. C. 217, Ct. of Sess.; American Thread Co. v. Joyce, 28 T. L. R. 233, and supra, p. 95. It will be the company's duty, therefore, under the Act to make the requisite return, and it will be no defence to say "There is no one here having the requisite information." In order to escape, a foreign company will have to form a company here, and then deal with it as a principal, selling to it and buying from it. The tax will then be payable only on the profits made by the company so incorporated.

A foreign corporation can sue and be sued here. Henriques v. General Privileged Dutch Co., 2 Raym. 1532; Saccharin Corporation v. Reitmeyer & Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 659; Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Basle Chemical Works, (1898) A. C. 200. See further, Young on Foreign Companies and other Corporations.

71
-e se
(D) 19 se no co de o an Y in re
co
-e a S de o
V
C r s f l

PROMOTERS.

CHAPTER II.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

The term "promoter" is familiar to the Courts of Law and to the general public, and has occasionally been used by the Legislature (sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, now repealed, and sect. 3 of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, replaced by sect. 84 (5) of the Act of 1908, and sect. 10, sub-sect. 1 (j), of the Companies Act, 1900, now sect. 81 (1) (j) of the Act of 1908), but it is not a "term of art," nor has any precise or satisfactory definition of the term been forthcoming; and accordingly such practical questions as these:—A. has done so and so in relation to a company, is he a promoter? B. is about to do so and so, will he be a promoter?—are constantly being raised and discussed amidst more or less doubt and difference of opinion. Yet to obtain a correct answer to such questions may be of the utmost importance—(1) because a promoter stands in a fiduciary position towards the company he promotes; and by virtue of such relationship comes under certain obligations and disabilities; and (2) because sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908, requires certain contracts with and facts as to promoters to be specified in prospectuses.

What is a promoter?

In Erlanger v. New Sombrero, 3 App. Cas. 1268, Lord Blackburn said that the term "promoter" was "a short and convenient way of designating those who set in motion the machinery by which the Act of 1862 enables them to create an incorporated company"; and this, so far as it goes, is accurate; but it is not comprehensive enough. What was said by Bowen, L. J., in Whaley Bridge v. Green, 5 Q. B. D. 109, is a more adequate description: "The term 'promoter,' he said, "is a term not of law but of business, usefully summing up in a single word a number of business operations familiar to the commercial world by which a company is generally brought into existence."

*Erlanger v.
New Sombrero.*

But this statement again is open to the objection that it at once raises without answering the further question, what are those business operations? Moreover, it stops short at the incorporation of the company, whereas the floating of the company is clearly within the scope of the promoter's functions. It is not practicable, in fact, to give a concise definition of the term "promoter" owing to its inherent complexity. Whether a person is or is not a promoter is a question of fact not of law, and must be determined with due regard to all the circumstances. Whaley Bridge Printing Co. v. Green 5 Q. B. D. 111; Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 Ch. D. 381; Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Lewis, 4 C. P. D. 386; Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 936; Baker v. Plaskit, 5 C. B. 262; Olympia, Ltd. (1898) 2 Ch. 181; and Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties (1902) 2 Ch. 809. What these circumstances are or may be is illustrated in the following decisions.

Twycross v. Grant.

In Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. Div. 169, the defendants had framed a scheme for the formation of the company, found the directors, qualified them, paid the preliminary expenses, and arranged the contracts and were to receive large remuneration from the vendors; and it was held beyond doubt that they were promoters. In that case Cockburn C. J., considered that the term "promoter" meant "one who undertakes to form a company with reference to a given project, and to set it going, and who takes the necessary steps to accomplish the purpose."

Bagnall v. Carlton.

So, in Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 C. Div. 371, the proprietors of the concern entered into an agreement to sell for 290,370*l.* to Carlton's nominee, acting as trustee for the company, and entered into a separate agreement with Carlton to pay him a commission of 60,000*l.* for forming and floating the company, which he undertook to do. Carlton entered into an agreement with Grant that the latter should carry the matter through and take the commission, less 20,000*l.* The solicitors of the proprietors were to have a commission from them of 1,500*l.* if the sale was effected, and the proprietors' solicitors and the proposed directors, Carlton and his associate Richardson, all took part in the formation of the company and the settlement of the prospectus.

In this case Bacon, V.-C., said: "Without attempting to define the word 'promoter' in any more certain manner than the occasion requires, it will be sufficient to consider whether what was undertaken and done by the several defendants can be referred to in any other character than that of promoter. It is a fact undisputed that, from the very first suggestion of a sale of the business and property the subject of this action, it was the conviction and intention of all the persons engaged or interested in the matter that they should be sold to a company. It may be truly said that the sale and formation of the company formed one complete idea. With this intention all the negotiations between the proprietors' solicitors, Grant, Richardson, and Carlton, were carried on; the prospectus was prepared by the solicitors and submitted to Carlton, and by him to the proprietors, and known to and not disapproved by them, since one of them made pencil alterations in it. In the face of these plain facts I can find no room for doubting that the persons I have named, each and every one of them, must be taken to have been promoters of the company.'

In Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis, 40 L. T. 168; 4 C. P. D. 396, the defendants had assisted the owner of a mine in his endeavour to sell to a company to be formed to purchase it; there was an understanding or arrangement for their remuneration out of the shares to be received from the company; the defendants left the getting-up of the company to the owner; allowed themselves to be referred to in the prospectus for information concerning the mine, and, in pursuance of the understanding, received some paid-up shares. The jury found that they were promoters, and the Court refused to set aside the verdict.

In New Sombbrero Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. Div. 73; 3 App. Cas. 1218, the defendant and nine other persons formed a syndicate or partnership to buy the property with a view to the re-sale thereof at a profit. Erlanger, acting on behalf of the syndicate, formed the company, procured the directors, settled the contracts and prospectus, and advertised and circulated the same. It was held that all the members of the syndicate were promoters.

The Lagunas Nitrate Company was promoted and formed by the directors of another company called the Lagunas Nitrate Syndicate in order to buy property belonging to the syndicate. The directors of the syndicate in promoting and forming the company were acting within their powers as such directors. Lindley, M. R., said: "The syndicate therefore, as a company, may be properly described, and ought to be regarded, as the promoter, by their directors, of the nitrate company. The syndicate is therefore responsible for the acts and omissions of its directors in promoting and forming the nitrate company." Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 423.

Again, in Emma Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 C. D. 918, the defendant Grant obtained from the vendors an agreement that they should sell the mine to a company to be formed by him. He then formed a company, procured the directors, agreed to sell the mine to a nominee of his own, purporting to act as agent for the company, and procured the adoption by the directors of that contract. Upon the trial of an issue whether Grant was a promoter, it was held that he was. Jessel, M. R., before whom the issue was tried, after referring to what the defendant had done, said (p. 936): "Now it has been decided by a very great number of cases that a person in that position" "is a promoter. It is not necessary that he should have done all these things to make him a promoter—even some of them would be sufficient—but he is undoubtedly a promoter."

In Lydney and Wigpool, &c. Co. v. Bird, 33 C. Div. 85, the defendant Bird, pursuant to an agreement with the owners of the property, and for a commission of 10,800*l.*, procured the formation of the company, took an active part in the preparation of its prospectus and memorandum and articles of association, in the appointment of its first directors, and in the appointment of its secretary, fixed the purchase-money of the property at 100,000*l.*, and stipulated for the payment of the 10,800*l.* commission to his own firm. Pearson, J., held that he was not a promoter, and acted merely as agent of the vendors; but, on appeal, the Court held that he was a promoter.

*Nant-y-Glo and Blaina Co.
v. Grave.*

Again, in Nant-y-Glo and Blaina Co. v. Grave, 12 C. D. 738. Richardson, the principal promoter, had written to the defendant a letter, in which "he explained to him the operation which he then desired to effect for the promotion of the company, and suggested the desirability of having for directors persons of weight and consideration—persons whose names would be likely to inspire confidence in the public—and asked Mr. Grave to become a director." Mr. Grave agreed to become a director on the terms of receiving the remuneration which the articles provided, namely, 200*l.* a year, and a further proportionate division of profits, if there should be profits, and also that he should have fifty of the deferred shares which at that time had been parted with by the company, or agreed to be parted with by the company. "I do not think" (said Bacon, V.-C.) "that it would be forcing the law of this case in the slightest degree to say that, from the time the letter was received and adopted and acted on, Mr. Grave became as much a promoter of this company as any other person engaged in it."

Leeds and Hanley Theatres.

In Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809, an incorporated syndicate procured a person (acting, in fact, as its trustee or nominee) to enter into an agreement to purchase certain theatres with a view to the resale thereof to a company to be formed. The property was conveyed to the syndicate's trustee or nominee, as the ostensible purchaser, and was afterwards, by the direction of the syndicate, sold to the proposed company at an increased price. The promoters formed the company, nominated the first directors of the company, and provided the qualification of some of them. It was found as a fact that from first to last the syndicate had acted as promoters of the proposed company. "The conclusion" (said Vaughan Williams, L. J.) "at which I arrive, taking all the facts together, is that, from first to last, the syndicate were promoters; that from first to last their intention was to buy the music-halls for the purpose of selling them to a company which they should create. They intended from the first to do that which they ultimately did: to create a board of directors which should be under their control and carry out their desires, which it is abundantly clear, on the evidence, was to sell the music-hall which they had bought for 24,000*l.*—an inflated price."

Examples of promotion.

It is obvious, therefore, that a person who originates the scheme for the formation of the company, has the memorandum and articles prepared, executed and registered, and finds the first directors, settles the terms of the preliminary contracts and prospectus (if any), and makes arrangements for advertising and circulating the prospectus and placing the capital, is emphatically a promoter in the fullest sense. He controls the formation and future of the company, and it is this control which lies at the root of the fiduciary relation of the promoter to the company.

But a person who has done much less than this—taken a much less prominent part—may bring himself within the meaning of the term and may be held liable as a promoter.

For instance, the following persons, it is submitted, are also promoters:—

- (1) A person who on his own account, or on account of himself and others, prepares or causes to be prepared a memorandum and articles of association of the proposed company, gets them subscribed, and causes them to be registered, even though he acts no further in the matter (e.g., leaves it for the directors to float the company). He has created a company.
- (2) A person who originates the scheme for the formation of the company, and arranges the terms of the preliminary contract (e.g., for the sale to the company, or to a trustee for the company, of the business the company is to be formed to acquire), and is in a position to exercise dominion in the formation of the company.
- (3) One of several persons carrying on together the work of promotion, for in many cases the work of promotion is carried on by several persons in co-operation. Thus, one may provide the requisite funds, another may provide the directors, or himself act as a director, another may arrange a contract with the vendor; and there may be others taking more or less part in the formation and floating of the company. In such a case the term "promoter" extends to each of the several persons so co-operating.

Moreover, the following persons may be promoters:—

- (4) The vendor to a company is frequently a promoter or one of the promoters, and accordingly it is very common in a prospectus to find the words, "the vendor is the promoter of the company, and he has fixed the price at £ . . .", but, of course, there are many cases where the vendor is independent and has nothing to do with promotion.
- (5) A person who floats, or assists in floating, the company although he has taken no part in its formation, may be a promoter. Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis, 4 C. P. D. 390, 407; see supra, p. 123. As to the meaning of "floatation," see Gifford v. Willoughby's Mashonaland Expedition Co 16 T. L. R. 24; Torco Exploring Syndicate v. Kelly, (1900) A. C. 612.

- (6) In some cases a person who takes part in the formation of the company as agent or servant of another (as, for instance, when he is to have the promoter's remuneration) or have some voice or control in the forming of the company: for "very little will make persons promoters of a company if it can be seen that they were merely doing something in the way of speculation for their own interest, and not acting merely as agents or others." Per Pearson, J., Lydney and Wigpool Coal v. Bird, 31 C. L. 328, 339. So, too, a director of a promoting company may be a promoter himself if he acts otherwise than as such director. In re Darby, Ex parte Brougham, (1911) 1 K. B. 95.

In fact, the term "promoter" may include any person who, in the words of the Companies Winding-up Act, 1900, now repealed, and by sect. 215 of the Act of 1908, "has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company."

Not promoter who is merely agent or servant

But a person who takes merely a subordinate part in the formation of the company as agent or servant of another is not a promoter, e.g., the solicitor, the printer, the advertising agent. The reason is that he has not the moulding of the company in his hands. He cannot, like a person who frames the memorandum and articles or preliminary agreement, fashion it to serve his private end.

Thus, "promoter" as used in sect. 84 of the Companies Act, 1908 (re-enacting the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890), is not, by the express words of sub-sect. (5), to include "any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company."

No doubt, in a sense, such persons might be said to promote the company, just as a sandwich-man who carries about a board advertising a company in one sense promotes the company. Nevertheless they are not, in common parlance, termed, or in law regarded as, promoters. They are merely the agents or servants of the promoters. See Great Western Fertilisers, 49 L. T. 20. And the same may be said of brokers, bankers and solicitors, who, with their associates, are named as such in the prospectus.

In practice there is usually very little difficulty in the question, for those who are interested in the formation of the company rarely confine themselves to equivocal statements, and not always so, and where there are several persons engaged in the promotion of the company who are obviously promoters, and some persons are assisted in the work more or less, by others, the question whether these subordinate allies are or are not promoters may be of great difficulty; and not the less so where, as not uncommonly happens, they are extremely anxious to disclaim the name of promoter.

In determining whether certain acts have constituted or will Functions of a Promoter.

Functions

The functions of a promoter sufficiently appear from what has already been stated; and it is obvious that the efficient discharge of those functions may be of vital importance to the company and its shareholders; provided, of course, that the undertaking, to prosecute which the company is formed, be one of a bonâ fide character, and has in it the elements, at any rate, of success. For instance:—

- (1) The lines on which the company is to come out are of primary importance. Take the case of a going concern: Is the capital to be large or small? What is to be offered to the public for subscription—ordinary shares, preference shares, debentures, or debenture stock, or some or all of these? How is the vendor (if any) to be paid? Is there to be an independent report as to the past profits of the concern, or any valuation of the property sold? How are the directors to be remunerated? How are the preliminary expenses to be satisfied? The determination of these matters is material not only as bearing on the future of the company, but as affecting the terms of the prospectus, and in many cases of the articles of association.
- (2) The prospectus.—The successful preparation of this document is of the highest importance. A scheme may be good, but if launched with an unskillfully prepared prospectus, will often be neglected by investors; while, on the other hand, a scheme which offers no great attraction in itself may, with the assistance of a well-framed prospectus, obtain ample support from the public.
- (3) The directors.—The selection of the directors is another matter of great importance. Are they to be competent businessmen, though unknown to fame; or are they to be ornamental directors with a title or social reputation, and little else to recommend them; or are there to be some of both kinds; or are they to be directors who are both competent businessmen and also well known as persons of position and integrity? Who, again, are to be the solicitors and auditors? There can be no question that the names of the directors, solicitors, and auditors largely influence the public as to subscribing. It is assumed, and in most cases quite rightly, that a man of integrity and position will not lend his name to an undertaking which the public are invited to subscribe to unless he is satisfied as to its bonâ fides.
- (4) The terms of the memorandum and articles of association are very material, and must be framed to accord with the prospectus, must give practical effect and free play to the scheme on which the company is to be formed, and must contain all the requisite provisions for the protection of the parties interested, without anything open to hostile criticism.

- (5) The preliminary contracts—e.g., for the acquisition of the business or property to acquire which the company is started—are also of vital importance. On what basis is the business or property in question to be acquired? Is the price to be high or low? Is it to be paid in cash, shares, debentures, or otherwise? Is the company to take over liabilities? If so, have those liabilities been ascertained, or is the company to be asked to make a leap in the dark? Is the vendor to be at liberty to compete in the business with the company? Is there to be power to rescind the contract if the company does not float? Is the company or the vendor to pay the preliminary expenses?
- (6) Underwriting.—Is the capital, or at least the minimum subscription, to be underwritten before the company is brought out? If so it may materially assist the floating of the company.

Profit or Remuneration of Promoters.

The professional promoter and the occasional promoter always, and the promoter pro hac vice sometimes, expects to make or obtain some profit or advantage out of or in relation to the transaction, and no one can object to such profit or advantage where there is good faith and due disclosure, and where the company promoted derives benefit from the promotion; for "the services of a promoter," as Lord Hatherley, L. C., said in Touche v. Metropolitan, &c. Co., 6 Ch. 671, "are very peculiar. Great skill, energy, and ingenuity may be employed in constructing a plan and bringing it out to the best advantage."

Remuneration.

The nature and extent of the profit or remuneration, and the mode of securing it, are usually settled by the promoters themselves. The following are some of the modes commonly adopted:—

Different modes of remuneration.

- (1) The promoters agree with the proprietor of some going business concern or other property that they, the promoters, will form and float a company to acquire the same, and the vendor in consideration of such promotion services agrees to give the promoters a commission, or a portion of the consideration for the sale when received.
- (2) The promoter, having purchased property before he becomes a promoter, subsequently forms a company and re-sells the property to the company at a profit, or sells the benefit of his contract to purchase the property.
- (3) The promoters agree to pay the preliminary expenses or place a certain number of shares, in consideration whereof the company allows them a commission on the shares placed or on the nominal amount of the capital. See sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908, reproducing sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1900, infra, p. 279.

- (4) The capital consists in part of a small number of shares, e.g., 100 at £1. each. These shares are called (a) "deferred" or (b) "founder" shares, and a right to a certain share of the surplus profits is annexed thereto, e.g., one-third after paying a 6 per cent. dividend on the other shares. By agreement between the company and the promoters these shares are sometimes issued as fully paid up, in consideration or part consideration of the promoters paying the preliminary expenses, or making over either a contract or the benefit of pending negotiations. There is no objection to this now a company can accept in payment of shares anything which they honestly think the equivalent of cash. Sometimes the promoters subscribe the memorandum of association for the deferred or founders shares, and pay for them in cash, so as to avoid the necessity for any other contract.
- (5) Sometimes promoters are remunerated by an option to take as a "call" of a certain portion of the company's issued shares at par, or at a low premium within (say) a year or so. As to the effect of a voluntary winding-up on such an option, see Re South African Trust Co., Ex parte Hirsch (1896), 74 L. T. 769.
- (6) A contract is made under which the promoters receive from the company a commission, provided a certain number of shares are taken up within a certain period. See sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908, reproducing sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1900.
- (7) The articles of association authorize or direct the directors to pay a specified sum to the promoters in respect of their services in promoting the company.

In estimating whether directors have given a proper price for property acquired by the company it is very material whether the price is a price paid in cash or in shares, the value of the consideration in the latter case depending on an uncertain event, the success or failure of the company. Re Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 422.

Sometimes the promoter is a registered company or syndicate carrying on the business of promoting companies or formed with a view to the promotion of the particular company. As to this situation, see p. 139, infra.

As to the obligation on the part of promoters to disclose their profit, see infra, p. 133.

Fiduciary Position towards Company.

The promoters of a company, it is now well settled, occupy a fiduciary position towards the company they promote. "They stand," said Lord Cairns, in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1236, "undoubtedly in a fiduciary position towards the company. They have in their hands the creation and moulding of the company: they have the power of defining how and when, and in what shape and under what supervision, it shall start into existence and begin to act as a trading corporation." And in the same case, Lord Blackburn (at p. 1268) said that the Act of 1862 "gives them an almost unlimited power to make the corporation subject to such regulations as they please, and for such purposes as they please, and to create it with a managing body whom they select, having such powers as they choose to give to those managers. . . . I think," he goes on, that "those who accept and use such extensive powers are not entitled to disregard the interests of that corporation altogether. They must make a reasonable use of the powers which they accept from the Legislature . . . and consequently they do stand, with regard to that corporation, when formed, in what is commonly called a fiduciary relation to some extent."

Fiduciary position.

In other words, the power of a promoter and his controlling influence over the destinies of the company carries with it a correlative responsibility, and this responsibility equity gives effect to under the doctrine of the fiduciary relation of the promoter with its ancillary obligations.

In the case of guardian and ward, parent and child, priest and penitent, solicitor and client, and in divers other cases of confidential relationship in which one person was in a position to exercise influence over another equity had long ago intervened to restrain an abuse of the influence but it was not until Erlanger v. New Sombrero (ubi supra) that it was decided that an analogous relation existed between the company and the promoter, by reason of the latter's controlling influence.

Commencement of Fiduciary Relationship.

The fiduciary relationship of the promoter commences when he begins to promote or act on behalf of the proposed company. See Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240; Tyrell v. Bank of London, 10 H. L. C. 26; Hitcham v. Congreve, 1 Russ. & My. 150; Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 C. D. 918, 936; Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809. Thus, if he enters into negotiations for the acquisition of property or rights on behalf of an intended company which is subsequently formed, he is to be taken to have been a promoter ab initio. So, too, if he gets other persons to agree to subscribe to a proposed company, or to become directors thereof, he is thenceforth in a fiduciary position to the company.

When relationship commences.

If he arranges for underwriting the capital of the intended company, or for placing it, he is from the moment he does so a promoter.

If he procure the preparation of the memorandum and articles of the proposed company, and keeps them in his own desk without communication to outsiders, no doubt he does not thereby make himself a promoter, but it is apprehended that so soon as he submits them to proposed directors or subscribers he becomes a promoter from that time, supposing the company to be subsequently formed.

When several persons agree to form a company, they are thereafter in a fiduciary position to the subsequently formed company. Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240. But the mere fact that a person, or persons, buys property with the notion that it may be desirable to form a company, does not make him a promoter. A projector is not, as such, a promoter.

Thus, in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218, a syndicate of promoters entered into a contract to buy an island rich in phosphates, and within a month they agreed to sell it to a trustee for the intended company, which they subsequently formed. Nevertheless, Lord Cairns said that it was "clear that the syndicate, in entering into this contract, acted on behalf of themselves alone, and did not at that time act in, or occupy, any fiduciary position whatever. It may be that the prevailing idea was, not to retain or work the island, but to sell it again at an increase of price, and very possibly to promote or get up a company to purchase the island from them; but they were, as it seems to me, after their purchase was made, perfectly free to do with the island whatever they liked." Ibid. 1235

Again, in Ladywell Co. v. Brookes, 35 C. Div. 400, A., B. and C. entered into an agreement to purchase certain mines, and the correspondence prior to the agreement showed that they contemplated the formation of a company to acquire and work the mines; nothing, however, had been done in the matter of the formation of any particular company before the agreement was made. Shortly afterwards the company was formed by A., B. and C., and they re-sold the mines to the company. It was held that at the date of the first agreement, A., B. and C. were not in a fiduciary relation to the company. In Gover's case, 1 C. Div. 182, again, A. entered into an agreement with B. to sell to him patents for 65,000*l.*, payable partly in cash and partly in shares, in a company which B. agreed to form, and if he failed the agreement was to be void. Afterwards B. entered into an agreement with a trustee for an intended company for re-sale. It was considered by James, Mellish, Bramwell, and Brett, L. J.J., that at the time the first agreement was made B. was not a promoter.

The question when the status of a promoter was first acquired is occasionally one of great moment, especially where the promoter resells to the company at a profit property recently acquired by him; for if he bought before he became a promoter he may resell to the company at a profit, subject only to making due disclosure (see Erlanger v. New Sombbrero Co., supra). Whereas, if he bought after beginning to promote, the position is infinitely more onerous. The company in such case is entitled to treat the promoter as having acted on its behalf in acquiring the property, and to insist on taking it at the price the promoter gave for it. Hitcham v. Congreve, 1 Russ. & My. 150; Tyrell v. Bank of London, 10 H. L. C. 26; Ambrose Tea Co., 14 C. D. 39; Cape Breton Co., 29 C. D. 795; Ladywell Mining Co. v. Brookes, 35 C. D. 409. And no disclosure on the part of the promoter will enable him to retain the profit, for the property is in equity not his but the company's; that is to say, it is impressed in the promoter's hands with a trust for the company.

The status of a promoter is not necessarily terminated by the formation of the company. "Of course, if a governing body, in the shape of directors, has once been formed, and they take, as I need not say they may, what remains to be done in forming the company into their own hands, the functions of the promoter are at an end. But so long as the promoters are permitted by the directors to carry on the work of formation, the latter remaining passive, so long, I think, would a jury be warranted in finding that what was done by them was done as promoters." Per Cockburn, C. J., Twyeross v. Grant, 2 C. P. Div. 469, 541; and see Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis, 4 C. P. D. 396.

Termination of promoter-ship.

The existence of a fiduciary relationship has important consequences, of which the following are the most notable:—

Consequence of fiduciary relationship.

- (1) A promoter may not obtain any secret profit at the expense of the company he promotes (e.g., any share or part of the purchase-money payable by the company), and, if he does so, the company, on discovering the fact, can compel him to surrender any such profit so made in violation of his duty to the company.

The moment a man is in a fiduciary position, however that fiduciary position may arise, he must, before he can retain a profit for him-self, deal with his principal on the footing of making a full and fair disclosure of everything material to the dealing or transaction in which he acts in a fiduciary capacity." Per Jessel, M. R., Emma Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 C. D. 937; and see Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 C. Div. 371; Lydney and Wigpool Co. v. Bird, 33 C. D. 85; Whaley Bridge Co. v. Green, 5 Q. B. D. 109; Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis, 4 C. P. D. 396. In all these cases promoters, by secret arrangement with the vendors to the company, obtained a substantial share of the proceeds of sale or commission for their services in the promotion, and were held accountable to the company for the same. Other cases are Mann v. Edinburgh Northern Trams Co., (1893) A. C. 69, in which promoters were held accountable for promotion money secretly obtained through contractors for the company; Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, in which promoters, whilst pretending to disclose their profits, kept undisclosed some extra profits. See also Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 409; and Mayor of Salford v. Lever, (1891) 1 Q. B. 168; Grant v. Gold Exploration &c. Syndicate, (1900) 1 Q. B. 232; Re Lady Forrest (Murchison) Gold Mine, (1900) 1 Ch. 582; Re Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809.

- (2) Primâ facie a promoter who proposes to make a contract, whether by way of sale or otherwise, with the company he promotes, or to rely on disclosure to the directors as a justification for obtaining a profit for which he as a promoter would otherwise be accountable, must provide the company with an independent executive able to protect the company and exercise on its behalf an independent and intelligent judgment. See per Lord Cairns, Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1236, and Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240.

What constitutes an independent executive has not been decided, but it is obvious that a director who is himself one of the promoters, or is under obligations to the promoters, or is to be remunerated by them, cannot be regarded as independent. Gluckstein v. Barnes, supra.

Independence is a question of fact, and all the circumstances will be regarded. The mere fact that a person is requested by the promoters to become a director does not deprive him of the character of independence. He may still do his duty. The fact that a director puts his own money into the concern affords some indication of independence, but this may go for little if the remuneration attached to the office is relatively large. The conduct of the directors may throw light on the question. In acting on behalf of the company, have they taken any of the reasonable precautions which a prudent man takes with regard to his own affairs? If not, it may not require much to prove their want of independence.

A director is not relieved from the duty of exercising an independent judgment on a contract proposed for adoption by the company though the company was formed for the express purpose of carrying out the particular contract. Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

"Apparently," said Lord O'Hagan, in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1256, "there was no inquiry as to the enormous advance in the price . . . no consideration of the state of the property, and no intelligent estimate of its capabilities and prospects. If the directors had been nominated merely to ratify any terms the promoters might dictate, they discharged their function; if it was their duty, as it certainly was, to protect the shareholders, they never seem to have thought of doing it. Their conduct was precisely that which might have been anticipated from the character of their selection, and taking that conduct and character together, I concur in, I believe, the unanimous opinion of your lordships that such a transaction ought not to be allowed to stand." And see Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240.

But it appears to be now settled that the rule (2) does not apply in the case of a private company, where all the members are cognizant of the facts and where it is not intended to appeal to the public. Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22; British Seamless Paper Box Co., 17 C. D. 467; Postage Stamp & Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 566; Felix Hadley, Ltd. v. Hadley, 77 L. T. 131; Re Sale Botanical Gardens, 78 L. T. 368; Innes & Co., (1903) 2 Ch. 254. Nor, it would seem, is it applicable to the case of a public company, in which, by the articles and prospectus, full disclosure of the facts is made to all the members. Volenti non fit injuria. The shareholders in such a case must be taken tacitly to assent to the promoters making a profit at their expense. This is the theory of the law.

In private companies

"If every member of the company, every shareholder, knows exactly what is the true state of the facts, which, for this purpose, must be assumed to be the case here, Vaughan Williams, J., conclusion seems to me to be inevitable: that no case of fraud upon the company could be established." Per Lord Halsbury, Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 33; and see per Lord Watson to the same effect, p. 37.

The following extracts bear on this point:

"It was urged that the price of the property was not fixed or considered by an independent board of directors; and that, in this respect, the transaction was improper and fraudulent. This argument seems to be based on a misconception of the decision in Erlanger v. New Sombrero, &c. Co. (1878), 3 App. Cas. 1218: where the facts were very different. In the present case, it was not disputed that every single shareholder was perfectly aware of all the circumstances attending the formation of the company, and that nobody was or could have been deceived." Per Lord Macnaghten, Laroque v. Beauchemin, (1897) A. C. 364.

"Of course, one can easily conceive that the thing might have been a mere sham, or evasion, or trick, to get rid of the effect of the Act of Parliament; but any suggestion of sham, or fraud, or deceit, seems to be entirely out of the question in this case. Everybody in the company knew of the transaction; every shareholder of the company was present and was a party to the resolution. There was no deceit practised on any creditor, nor was there any registration of these shares, except as shares paid up. That seems to me to dispose of the case." Per James, L. J., Spargo's case, 8 Ch. 413.

"One of the learned judges asserts, and I see no reason to question the accuracy of his statement, that creditors never think of examining the register of debentures; but the apathy of a creditor cannot justify an imputation of fraud against a company, or its members, who have provided all the means of information which the Act of 1862 requires; and, in my opinion, a creditor who will not take the trouble to use the means which the statute provides for enabling him to protect himself, must bear the consequences of his own negligence." Per Lord Watson in Salomon v. Salomon, (1897) A. C. p. 40.

"Nor was the absence of any independent board material in a case like the present. I think it is an inevitable inference from the circumstances of the case that every member of the company assented to the purchase; and the company is bound, in a matter intra vires, by the unanimous agreement of its members. In fact, it is impossible to say who was defrauded." Per Lord Davey, Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 57.

It is a "well settled principle" that "a company when registered is a corporation capable, by its directors, of binding itself by a contract, with themselves as promoters, if all material facts are disclosed. Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22, is the leading authority for this principle." Per Lindley, M. R., in Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 422. And at pp. 425, 426, he says, "Notwithstanding all that has been said in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. about the duties of the promoters of a company to furnish it with an independent board of directors, that decision does not require, or indeed justify, the conclusion that if a company is avowedly formed with a board of directors who are not independent, but who are stated to be the intended vendors, or the agents of the intended vendors, of property to the company, the company can set aside an agreement entered into by them for the purchase of such property simply because they are not an independent board. . . . After Salomon's case, I think it impossible to hold that it is the duty of the promoters of a company to provide it with an independent board of directors, if the real truth is disclosed to those who are induced by the promoters to join the company. Treating promoters of companies as in a fiduciary relation to them, and as having a power of appointing trustees (namely, directors), I cannot treat companies or their shareholders as so many cestuis que trust under disability, nor even as cestuis que trust for whom trustees are appointed without their consent."

But the disclosure by the promoters must be a real disclosure to the persons interested—the shareholders—and not a mere sham. Where "gentlemen set about forming a company to pay them a handsome sum for taking off their hands a property which they had contracted to buy with that end in view . . . appoint themselves sole guardians and protectors of this creature of theirs, half-fledged and just struggling into life, bound hand and foot while yet unborn by contracts tending to their private advantage, and so fashioned by its makers that it could only act by their hands and only see through their eyes," and the company goes to the public for share subscriptions, "'disclosure' is not the most appropriate word to use when a person who plays many parts announces to himself in one character what he has done and is doing in another. To talk of disclosure to the thing called the company, when as yet there were no shareholders, is a mere farce. To the intended shareholders there was no disclosure at all." Per Lord Macnaghten, Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, 248, 249.

The Act of 1908 now makes provision, in sects. 81, 82, for the fullest disclosure as regards vendors to the company.

- (3) Once the promoter has commenced the promotion he must give to the company the benefit of any subsequent contract for the acquisition of property which the company, when formed, buys; e.g., if, after beginning to promote, he enters into a contract to purchase property, he cannot properly sell to the company at a higher price than he gave without due disclosure (not merely of the price he gave, but of the fact that the company is entitled to take the property at that price), and if he do, the company, on discovering its rights, may either, at its option, rescind the contract or compel the promoter to surrender his profit (see supra, p. 133), or may compel him to pay the company compensation for his breach of duty. Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809. And in such cases the fact that it has become impossible to rescind does not affect the company's alternative rights. See supra, p. 133, and infra.

There is nothing to prevent persons from buying property with a view to reselling it to a company; but if they once become promoters of a company which is to be formed to acquire a particular property, they cannot afterwards acquire that property for themselves and sell it to the company at a profit: the company is entitled to say, "You were acting for us; you were in a fiduciary position as regards this property, and now, therefore, as you have purported to sell this to us, we are entitled to take it at the price you originally gave for it." See Ladywell Mining Co. v. Brookes, 35 C. Div. 400; and Cape Breton Co., 29 C. Div. 795, approved by the Privy Council in Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83; Bank of London v. Tyrell, 10 H. L. C. 26; Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 5 C. D. 73.

- 1) Where a person acquires property or rights on his own account, and prior to the time when he becomes a promoter, he is at liberty to re-sell at a profit to the company he promotes provided he performs his duty to the company by making full disclosure to it of the material facts, and of the nature and extent of his interest. If he commits a breach of this duty, the company, on discovering the facts, may rescind the contract or may compel him to pay damages for his breach of duty. See cases, supra, p. 133.

According to the older cases, where rescission was impossible, e.g., by reason of the property having been sold, forfeited or lost, the company was not entitled, as an alternative, to compel the promoter to account for his profit on the sale. However, in Bentlinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 652, Lord Macnaghten considered that a person in a fiduciary position committing a breach of his duty to disclose, though he might not be accountable for profits, would be liable to pay damages for such breach of duty even where rescission was imprac-licable. And this view in relation to promoters was adopted by the Court of Appeal in Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809. In that case rescission was impracticable; yet it was held that the promoters were liable to pay damages to the company for the breach of their duty to disclose. This decision, in effect, overrules Lady Forrest (Murchison) Gold Mine, (1901) 1 Ch. 582, and practically disposes of the difficulty raised in the earlier cases above referred to.

(5) A promoter who is not a real owner or part owner may not concur as an ostensible owner in a sale to the company, and if he violates this rule he commits a breach of his duty and misrepresents his position. Westmoreland Green, &c. Slate Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 612.

(6) A promoter must use his position and powers fairly and reasonably, and in the interests of the company, and must abstain from exercising undue influence and, à fortiori, from fraud. Gibson v. Jeyes, 6 Ves. 278; Huguenin v. Baseley, 14 Ves. 273; Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218; Gluckstein v. Barnes, supra.

(7) A promoter who proposes to sell his property to the company he promotes, or otherwise to obtain some advantage from the company, cannot consistently with his duty put forward some nominee or tool as the owner or contractor, and thus conceal his interest. Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218, 1236; Preston's case, 16 W. R. 668; Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Hurd, L. R. 5 P. C. 221; Glasier v. Rolls (1889), 42 Ch. D. 442; Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 671. The disability to secure secret benefits at the expense of the company which attaches to a promoter is a personal disability arising from the fiduciary relationship which subsists between him and the company.

Where a person standing in a fiduciary relation obtains a secret benefit, the Court does not enter into the question whether the party at whose expense the benefit was obtained has or has not lost. All that the Court has to do is to examine whether a secret profit has, in fact, been made; and if it has, that profit must be accounted for. See Parker v. McKenna, 10 Ch. App. 118; Aberdeen Co. v. Blackie 1 Macq. 461; and Emma Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 C. D. 938.

In ascertaining the profit for which a promoter is to be made accountable, his disbursements in relation to the company may in some cases be allowed. Thus, in Emma Mining Co. v. Grant 11 C. D. 918. Jessel, M. R., said: "It seems to me that in estimating his [the defendant's] profit, I ought to find out his real profit, that is, the real result of the transaction which was left to him. . . . I think, therefore, we ought to ascertain the net profit, simply on the principle of deducting from all the receipts all the payments." But made to promoter.

Allowances

a promoter will not be allowed to bring into account payments which would have been ultra vires the company. Lydney and Wippool Co. v. Bird, 33 C. Div. 95. See also Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 C. D. 371. And in Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809, Vaughan Williams, L. J., says (at p. 826): "Of course, large deductions must be made for the money which had to be expended by the promoting company, partly in promotion expenses, and partly in redecorating the halls and the like."

But a promoter can only recover from the company what he has paid in preliminary expenses, where he proves a contract by the company to pay. English and Colonial Produce Co. (1906) 2 Ch. 435. And this applies even to registration fees. National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 515, overruling English and Colonial Produce Co. (supra) on this point.

Where the profit of a promoter consists of shares, he may, at the option of the company, be compelled to give up the shares or to account for the proceeds of sale, if sold, or for the value. New Sombrero Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. Div. 75; 3 App. Cas. 1218; Emma Mining Co. v. Lewis, 4 C. P. D. 396; McKay's case, 2 C. Div. 1; Pearson's case, 4 C. D. 222; 5 C. Div. 336; Nant-y-Gilo Co. v. Grave, 12 C. D. 738; Metcalf's case, 13 C. Div. 169, and Chap. XX., infra.

It is not uncommon for promotion to be done by a promoting company or syndicate registered under the Companies Act, 1908, or the Acts which it has replaced. Such a promoting company, or syndicate, is usually one formed with wide financial objects (including the promotion of companies), and it may be a concern carrying on business accordingly and engaged in the promotion from time to time of companies; but more commonly its real and substantial though unexpressed object is to promote one particular company. The parties who would otherwise have assumed the rôle of promoters become shareholders in the promoting company, and thus the body corporate does the promoting, and when the promotion is complete the company, as functus officio, is wound up and the net proceeds are distributed amongst the shareholders.

Promoting companies

This mode of promotion is sometimes adopted with a view to concealing the identity of the persons who are in reality interested in the promotion, for their personality is merged in the corporate existence. In such cases the persons interested and acting as directors of the promoting company generally assume that they are completely exempt from personal danger in relation to a promotion, and to a large extent no doubt this is so; for example, they are in no way liable on a contract made by the promoting company (see supra, p. 28); but there still remain cases in which the directors incur personal risk. If, for example, the promoting company commits a breach of duty or a fraud, it of course does so by its directors. In such cases the directors do not escape liability, for all persons who are parties to a fraud or other wrong are personally liable. No one can plead successfully that he committed a fraud or other wrong as agent for another person, because no authority can sanction such wrongdoing. Hence, if the promoting company fails to comply with, say, sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908 (as to the terms of paying underwriting commission), or commits a breach of sect. 82 of the same Act, its directors may be liable. So, too, there may be liability if the directors are parties to a breach of the duty to disclose committed by the promoting company, e.g., by taking secret profits at the expense of the company promoted, for such a transaction very commonly is a fraud - may be a fraudulent breach of trust (Emma Mining Co. v. Grant, 17 C. D. 122), or at any rate a breach of trust in which the directors knowingly concur. Barnes v. Addy, 9 Ch. D. 244.

Liability of
directors.

Moreover, if the syndicate or promoting company has made illicit profits out of the company promoted, the promoted company may, by virtue of the fiduciary relation of the promoting company, follow such profits into the hands of the members of the promoting company.

Bankruptcy
of promoter.

In most cases a promoter in receiving illegitimate gains commits a "fraud or fraudulent breach of trust" within sect. 30 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. See Emma Mining Co. v. Grant, 17 C. D. 122; Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 C. D. 100; Milan Tramways, 25 C. Div. 587. But it does not follow that non-payment of compensation for the fraud or breach of trust will amount to "default by a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity, and ordered to pay, by a Court of Equity, any sum in his possession or under his control, within sect. 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 62)." Metcalf's case, 13 C. D. 815.

A company which has recovered damages against a promoter in respect of a secret profit made by him on a sale to the company may prove for such damages in the bankruptcy of the promoter, such damages being ascertained and therefore a "demand in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract." Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 17 Ch. D. 122.

Limitation.

As to the period of limitation. A promoter is usually held liable as a constructive trustee, and upon the footing that he has been guilty of fraud. Accordingly, he cannot rely on the provisions of sect. 8 of the Trustee Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 59, not repealed by the Trustee Act, 1893); for the six years' limitation which in certain cases that statute establishes in favour of trustees (including constructive trustees) is not available, as its operation is excluded "where the claim is founded upon any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which the trustee was party or privy, or is to recover trust property, or the proceeds thereof still retained by the trustee, or previously received by the trustee and converted to his use." See Sale Hotel, &c. Co., 78 L. T. 368. That the Act of 1888 applies both to express trustees and to constructive trustees, see Lands Allotment Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 616.

Even where the statute does not apply, a claim against a promoter may still be barred by analogy to the statute by lapse of time, for it was well settled before the statute that a claim against a promoter, as a constructive trustee, in respect of a mere obligation to pay, as distinguished from an actual mis-application of trust money, was barred by six years' delay after discovery by the company of the facts. Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. Div. 319; and see Beckett v. Wade, 17 Ves. 97; Re Cross, 20 C. Div. 109; Banner v. Berridge, 18 C. D. 254; In re Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. 154, 167. As to the recovery of bribes paid to agents of companies, see Lister & Co. v. Stubbs, 45 C. Div. 1; Mayor of Salford v. Lerer, (1891) 1 Q. B. 168; Horenden & Sons v. Millhoff, 16 T. L. R. 506 (C. A.); 83 L. T. 41; Grant v. Gold Exploration, (1900) 1 Q. B. 23. And see notes to Form 251 (clause 93).

Prima facie, communication of the facts to the board of directors is notice to the company. Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, supra. Re General Exchange Bank, Preston's case, 16 W. R. 107. But where the directors are tools or nominees of the promoter, it does not follow that notice to the directors is to be deemed notice to the company. Fitzroy Bessemer Co., 32 W. R. 475; 33 W. R. 312; Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218; Leeds & Hanley Theatre of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809; Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 392. For the presumption is that they would not disclose their own wrongdoing to the shareholders. Cave v. Cave, 15 Ch. D. 639.

"In the normal case, where the directors are truly and not merely in name the executive of the company, it may be assumed that they will be vigilant and critical of the particulars of a bargain of such paramount importance as the purchase of the property to be traded with, and that, dealing at arm's length, they will examine into anything bearing on that matter that does not tell its own story on its face. But, in the present case, the company was paralyzed so far as vigilance and criticism were concerned: for the board room was occupied by the enemy," says Lord Robertson, in Gluckstein v. Barnes, at p. 259.

"Disclosure' is not the most appropriate word to use when a person who plays many parts announces to himself in one character what he has done and is doing in another." Per Lord Macnaghten, Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, 249. See supra, p. 134.

Thus, where the directors of the purchasing company were also the directors of the syndicate which promoted the company and sold the property to it, Lindley, M. R., said that "to impute to the [purchasing] company the knowledge which the directors had acquired in another capacity, and which knowledge they did not disclose to anyone, is neither law nor sense." Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 431.

Notice to one director is not notice to the company, unless he, in fact, brings the matter to the notice of the board. In re Marseilles, &c. Co., 7 Ch. 161; Gover's case, 1 C. Div. 182; General Exchange Bank, 16 W. R. 1097; Hampshire Land Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 743. And see David Payne & Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 608.

The secretary of a company is in a different position to a director, and not bound to pass on to the company knowledge which he has acquired as secretary of another company. Fenwick, Stobert & Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 507.

As to notice to all the shareholders being notice to the company, see supra, p. 135.

As to Interest.

Interest.

Where a person in a fiduciary position is ordered to account for moneys or money's worth improperly received by him, he may be ordered to pay interest as from the time he received the same. Nant-y-Glo Co. v. Grave, 12 C. D. 738; Liquidators of Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189; Drum Slate Co., 53 L. T. 250; Re Hulkes, 33 Ch. D. 552.

The interest is usually computed in these cases at the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum. In a Court of Equity interest at 5l. per cent. per annum is only exacted where a trustee has been chargeable with misuse or misappropriation of trust money, or where he has been guilty of wilful misfeasance or fraud (per Lord Cairns, in Liquidators of Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 189, at p. 209; Archer's case, (1892) 1 Ch. 322, 344); and, as a rule, promoters making an improper profit do not appear to have been treated as coming within this rule. But see remarks of Lord Macnaghten in Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. at p. 255.

Death of Promoter.

The estate of a deceased member of an unincorporated syndicate which has made illegitimate profits by promoting a company, remains liable in an action by the company for deceit, or breach of trust, if the estate has benefited by the fraud or breach of trust. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 Ch. D. 73, 117; Bagnall v. Carlton, 5 Ch. D. 389; Ramskill v. Edwards, 31 Ch. D. 100; Phillips v. Howfray, 24 Ch. D. 439; Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40. But if the deceased's estate has not benefited the cause of action will not survive. Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 393. Actio personalis moritur cum persona.

As to Disclosure.

How then, it may be asked, is a promoter, who desires to make a legitimate profit, effectively to bring the fact to the knowledge of the company, and obtain its consent? In order to answer this question we have to bear in mind:

How disclosure to be made.

- 1) That the company is, at any rate in some cases, to be deemed to have notice of the facts stated in its prospectus. Per Lord Cairns, L. C., Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1239; Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240; à fortiori now that a prospectus, or the statement in lieu of it, is required to be filed. Companies Act, 1908, s. 80.
- 2) That, in the absence of fraud, every member of the company, and accordingly the company itself, is deemed to have notice of what is set forth in the company's memorandum and articles of association. See Griffith v. Paget, 6 C. D. 517, and other cases cited supra, pp. 76 to 78; but query whether this sort of imputed notice would cover things required by sect. 81 of the Act to be specified in the prospectus, and in fact not specified therein.
- 3) That, in the absence of fraud or misrepresentation (Aaron's Reefs, Lim. v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273), every member who subscribes on the footing of a prospectus must be deemed to have notice of the contents of any contracts thereby offered for inspection (see cases cited infra, pp. 143, 144) if the provisions of sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908, have been complied with, in cases where that section applies.
- 4) That any condition in a prospectus under sect. 81 of the Act purporting to bind a subscriber with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in such prospectus, is void. Sect. 81, sub-sect. 4, of 1908.

Thus, in reference to (3) supra, where the prospectus offered a contract for inspection, Jessel, M. R., said: "If the shareholders had gone to see it (and I think in a court of justice they cannot complain that they did not see it, but must be treated as having notice of its contents), they would have found," &c. New Sombrero Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. D. 111. And in the House of Lords in the same case Lord Blackburn said: "I think that each allottee was fixed with the knowledge he would have had if he had read it." See, also, Anderson's case, 7 C. D. 75, 102, and Hallows v. Fernie, 3 Ch. 477. Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 C. D. 14. It should be mentioned that in Sale Hotel, &c. Co., 78 L. T. 368, Wright, J., appears to have departed from the rule thus laid down, and to have treated the offer of a contract for inspection as ineffective, on the ground that it was notorious that shareholders seldom took the trouble to look at the contracts so offered. The cases above referred to were not, however, cited, and it may be doubted whether the ground assigned affords a sufficient reason for rejecting the principle of constructive notice recognized by Jessel, M. R., and Lord Blackburn as above, and generally acted on during the last twenty years. Moreover, it is to be noted that the learned lords who took part in the decision in Aaron's Reefs v. Twins, (1896) A. C. 273, apparently recognized the rule as sound, for whilst holding disclosure in a prospectus of the date and parties to a contract insufficient notice of its contents, they did so upon the ground that the prospectus contained a misrepresentation, and therefore relieved an applicant from inspecting the contract; and the same view was taken, on the same grounds, in Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240. Jessel, M. R., gave the true principle in Smith v. Chadwick, 20 Ch. D. 57: "It has always been held, and I think rightly held, that if a man in a prospectus . . . falsely states the contents of a written document, he cannot escape from such false statement by saying, 'I offered to show you the document.' But if he make an incomplete statement, altogether true but imperfect, I take it he can."

- (5) That notice to the directors of the company, if they are an independent executive, but not otherwise, is equivalent to notice to the company. Metropolitan Bank v. Heiron, 5 Ex. Div. 319; Re Fitzroy Beaumer Co., 32 W. R. 475; 33 W. R. 312; Leeds and Hanley Theatres of Varieties, (1902) 2 Ch. 809; Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240.
- (6) That the memorandum and articles of association are, by sect. 14 of the Act of 1908, made binding on the company and the members thereof, and accordingly the company must be treated as consenting to what is done in pursuance of the legal provisions thereof. Overend, Gurney & Co v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480; In re Westmoreland, &c. Co, 1893, 2 Ch. 612; Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, 1899, 2 Ch. 392.

By bearing in mind these facts the promoter can fairly discharge his obligation. Suppose, for instance, that A., the owner of property, desires to have a company formed to purchase and work the property, and that B. agrees to promote the company in consideration of a share of the purchase money. In such case the contract for sale to the company will disclose B.'s interest; the memorandum and articles will refer to that contract and disclose what B. is to get, and authorize the directors to carry it out, and will perhaps state that B. is not, by reason of his fiduciary relationship, to be precluded from accepting the remuneration; the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus must refer to the contract and offer it for inspection, and will disclose the fact that B. is being remunerated, and the amount paid or intended to be paid to him, and the consideration for the payment (sect. 81 (1) j of the Act); and the company will be formed with an independent executive, who will in due course adopt the contract, which will be provisional, however, until the company is enabled to commence business. Companies Act, 1908, s. 87 (3).

Cases, however, sometimes arise in which there is an insuperable difficulty in complying with the rules above referred to; e.g., in the case of a private company formed to purchase and work the business of a firm the members of which are to be the only directors and to hold practically all the shares. In such a case there is no independent executive; and if the rule laid down by Lord Cairns in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co were applicable, the parties could not effectively carry out a transaction which is perfectly legitimate. But in such case an independent executive is not essential, for the simple reason that all the parties are fully cognisant of all the facts of the case and consenting to the arrangement. See supra, p. 135.

And even where the company is not a private one and there is not an independent executive, if the articles of association show this fact e.g., by stating that the directors of the company are all directors and the only directors of the vendor syndicate which is selling to the company—and the prospectus states that the promoters are selling at a profit, a sufficient disclosure is made. Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392.

Whether a promoter is, apart from sect. 81 of the Act, bound to disclose not only the fact that he is making a profit, but the amount thereof, is unsettled. According to Chesterfield and Boythorpe Co. v. Black, 26 W. R. 207, and Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, it is sufficient to disclose the fact. In the case last mentioned, Lindley, M. R., said: "Having regard to what was disclosed and to the avowed object of the company, I do not consider the mere non-disclosure of the price paid by the syndicate [the vendor and promoters] and of the profits made by the sale to the Nitrate Company as fatal to the validity of the sale."

Disclosure of amount.

On the other hand, in Olympia, Limited, (1898) 2 Ch. 153, 166, the same learned judge says: "A promoter of a company, whose duty it is to disclose what profits he has made, does not perform that duty by making a statement not disclosing the facts, but containing something which, if followed up by further investigation, will enable the inquirer to ascertain that profits have been made and what they amounted to." And see the observations of Collins, L. J., at the top of p. 174 of the report of the same case. The judgments, however, of Lord Halsbury, L. C., and Lord Macnaghten, when the case was in the House of Lords (sub nom. Gluckstein v. Barnes), seemed to be based on the assumption that the prospectus was deliberately misleading; but Lord Robertson, (1900) A. C. 258, says: "I consider that the transaction in mortgage, on which a secret profit had been made, was so relevant to the question what price should the company pay for the property, that it was necessary that it should be disclosed to the company completely and in detail."

In that case the company was formed by a syndicate constituted by agreement in writing for the acquisition of certain property and the resale thereof to a company to be formed, or some other purchaser. The syndicate, in fact, formed the company, and resold the property at a profit disclosed in the prospectus; but neither in the prospectus nor otherwise did the syndicate disclose to the company a further profit on the transaction made by buying up at a discount certain mortgages on the property. It was held that the appellant, a member of the syndicate, was liable to account for this further profit. This case at any rate shows that to make a misleading or incorrect or imperfect statement of profits is in the highest degree dangerous. And see Imperial Mercantile Credit Assoc. v. Coleman, L. R. 6 H. L. 198.

So in Lady Forrest (Murchison) Gold Mine, (1901) 1 Ch. 582, Wright, J., held that directors of a company who were interested in the promotion of such company were bound to disclose the amount of the profit which, as members of the vendor syndicate, they were making. "They disclosed," said the learned judge, "the fact that they were directors of the vendor syndicate, and thereby they necessarily disclosed that they were making some profit. It is quite true they did not disclose what profit they were making, and in that, as it seems to me, they were wrong, and guilty of a breach of duty."

This is good sense, for without such knowledge how can the company give an intelligent consent to the profit being made?

The Act of 1908.

The Companies Act, 1908, has now made positive provisions for disclosure in a prospectus inviting subscriptions for shares, debentures or debenture stock, and this statutory obligation involves the direct disclosure of promoters' profits (if any). See in particular, sect. 81 (1) of the Act, clauses (f.), (g.), (h.), (i.), (j.), (k) and (m), infra, "Prospectuses."

Liability in respect of Prospectus.

Liability on prospectus.

Not only are promoters liable under the obligations above referred to, but they may incur liability in respect of misstatements in the prospectus, where they take any part in its preparation, or authorize its issue. As to this, see sect. 84 of the Act of 1908 embodying the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, and infra, p. 165 et seq.

Underwriting.

Underwriting.

Of late it has become very common to get the capital of a company or a substantial part thereof, underwritten before the prospectus of the company is published. The underwriting is generally arranged by the promoters of the company. In making any such arrangement the conditions of sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908, must be borne in mind. See further, infra, p. 279.

Preliminary Contracts.

Promoters sometimes desire to bring the company into existence and bound by some particular contract, e.g., to purchase property at a specified price, or to pay a specified sum for preliminary expenses. To do this is, however, difficult, if not impossible. As appears below, p. 321, a contract made on behalf of a company before its incorporation is not binding on the company; and a provision in the articles of association that the company shall adopt and be bound by such a contract, or shall enter into a particular contract, still leaves the company free, unless and until after its incorporation it chooses to bind itself by the contract. Even then the contract may be provisional only until the company is entitled to commence business. See Companies Act, 1908, s. 87 (3); Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., 33 C. Div. 16; Eley v. Positive Government Co., 1 Ex. Div. 88; Browne v. La Trinidad Co., 37 C. Div. 1; Boston Deep Sea Co. v. Annall, 39 C. Div. 339; Dale v. Plant, 61 L. T. 206; Baring-Gould v. Sharpington Combined Pick and Shovel Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80; North Sydney Investment Co. v. Higgins, (1899) A. C. 268; Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 146.

Preliminary contracts.

And a company does not, by merely acting through its directors on a contract made before its formation, incur any contractual relation with or obligation to the vendor. Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., supra; North Sydney Investment and Tramway Co. v. Higgins, supra; Johannesburg Hotel Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 119; Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., supra. Or even by taking the benefit of a pre-incorporation contract. Rotherham Alum, &c. Co., 25 Ch. D. 103; Clinton's claim, (1908) 2 Ch. 515, overruling English and Colonial Produce Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 435.

Nor can a company ratify a contract made before it was incorporated. Kelner v. Baxter, L. R. 2 C. P. 174, approved by the Privy Council in Natal Land, &c. Co. v. Pauline, &c. Syndicate, (1904) A. C. 120. And see infra, Chap. IV.

Apart from sect. 87 (3) of the Act of 1908, it has been suggested that the contract might be embodied in the articles of association, and that the vendor or promoter might subscribe the same and then rely on sect. 14 of the Act, which provides that the memorandum and articles "shall, when registered, bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if they respectively had been signed and sealed by each member and contained covenants on the part of each member, his heirs, executors and administrators, to observe all the provisions of the memorandum and of the articles, subject to the provisions of the Act." But the decisions in Eley v.

Positive Government Co., 1 Ex. Div. 88; Browne v. La Trinidad Co., 37 C. Div. 1; and Baring-Gould v. Sharpington, &c. Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80, throw doubt on the efficacy of such a plan, and in the result it has not been usual to proceed in this way.

The usual and most effective mode of binding a company is to insert in the memorandum and articles proper clauses referring to the proposed agreements, and directing or empowering the directors to execute and carry the same into effect. The proposed directors usually examine and consider the agreements before the formation of the company, and the subsequent adoption thereof, in such a manner as to constitute a new contract, is, therefore, in most cases a foregone conclusion, though the fact that a company is formed for the express purpose of carrying out a particular contract will not relieve the directors from the obligation of exercising a proper judgment on the merits of such contract. Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

It is, however, far better, in the interest of all parties in these cases, not to seek to control the discretion of the directors, but to leave them free to adopt or not, as they think fit, the preliminary contracts. Occasionally, however, in reliance on Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. Div. 376, the memorandum of association refers to a particular contract, and provides that it shall be executed and carried into effect.

Whichever course is adopted, sub-sect. (3) of sect. 87 of the Act of 1908 (where that section applies) whereby a contract made before the company becomes entitled to commence business is merely provisional, must be borne in mind. Supra, pp. 20, 22.

Remuneration for services adopted by company.

There is some authority for saying that a promoter may, even in the absence of any express contract, be entitled, as against the company, to compensation for services rendered before the formation of the company, provided that the company can properly be considered to have adopted and derived benefit from those services. Hereford, &c. Wagon Co., 2 C. Div. 621; Terrell v. Hutton, 4 H. L. C. 1093; Rotherham Alum, &c. Co., 25 C. Div. 103.

But it is no easy matter to prove adoption and benefit. See Rotherham Alum, &c. Co., 25 C. D. 103, and National Motor Mail Coach Co., Clinton's case, (1908) 2 Ch. 515. The mere fact that the promoter pays the registration fees and ad valorem stamp on registering a company does not in itself entitle him to recover them from the company. Clinton's claim, supra, overruling on this point the decision of Buckley, J., in English and Colonial Produce Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 435.

An article of association providing that the directors shall pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, only operates as an authority to the directors to pay such costs, and does not constitute a contract to pay them as between the company and the promoters (Re Hereford and South Wales Wagon Co., supra).

Methado v. Porto Alegre Rail. Co., L. R. 9 C. P. 503; Re Rotherham Alum, &c. Co., supra); and it makes no difference that the company has agreed with the promoter to pay the solicitor for his services. Empress Engineering Co., 16 Ch. D. 125. So strict is the rule against allowing a company to be fixed directly or indirectly with a pre-incorporation contract, that a solicitor cannot even recover fees paid for registering the company. National Motor Mail Coach Co., Clinton's claim, (1908) 2 Ch. 515.

Whether a solicitor has or has not a right as against the company may depend on whether he has agreed to look to the company for payment or has been retained by and agreed to look to the promoter for payment. In re Tilleard, 3 D. J. & S. 519. And even when the company agrees with the promoter to pay the solicitor, the latter does not thereby acquire any right as against the company (Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. Div. 125; Rotherham Alum, &c. Co., 25 C. Div. 103), unless it can be made out that there is a trust for the solicitor. See the above cases, and Gandy v. Gandy, 30 C. Div. 57; Murray v. Flavell, 25 C. Div. 89; Touche v. Metropolitan, &c. Co., 6 Ch. 671.

As a general rule, "the promoters of companies are not partners (Lindley on Companies, 6th ed. p. 193), but they may agree to be so, and whether they have so agreed or not is a question of fact. There are many cases in which the arrangement between the promoters does beyond question constitute them partners, quâ the particular adventure, with the consequent right (inter alia) to each promoter to contract on behalf of the partnership; but where there is no partnership, one co-promoter has no implied authority as such to bind the promoters collectively. Each is only liable on contracts made by himself or with his authority, and, if he is sued on a contract made by another, that authority must be shown. Whether promoters are or are not in any particular case partners, there is not, in the absence of contract, any implied right in one of them, as against the others to remuneration for services rendered by him for the joint benefit of himself and them. Holmes v. Higgins, 1 B. & C. 74; Lucas v. Peach, 1 Man. & Gr. 417; Lindley on Companies, 6th ed. p. 811.

Promoters not necessarily partners.

But, of course, there is nothing to prevent promoters from jointly contracting with, and becoming liable to, a third party; e.g., if they jointly retain a solicitor, they are jointly liable to him (Mant v. Smith, 4 H. & N. 324), and either of them is entitled to have the bill taxed. Re Stephen, 2 Ph. 562.

And where promoters have thus become jointly liable to a third party, and by virtue of that liability some are compelled to pay, they may have a right as against the others to enforce contribution. Lindley on Companies, 6th ed. p. 815; Boulter v. Peplow, 9 C. B. 493; Batard v. Hawes, 2 E. & B. 287; Edgar v. Knapp, 7 Jur. 583 (C. P.).

Where the promoters are an incorporated body (e.g., a syndicate

--the syndicate is responsible for the acts and omissions of its directors in promoting and forming other companies. Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 423. In such a case the directors, as between themselves, are acting jointly.

As to the joint liability for misfeasance by promoters, and their rights as to contribution, see Flitcroft's case, 21 C. D. 519; Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, 247, 255, 259.

Occasionally, in the case of professional promoters, the solicitor employed agrees to look to the company for payment, or to make no claim except for "out of pocket" expenses, unless the company floats

Danger of making a market

Promoters should be careful lest in their desire to float the company they overstep the line of what is legitimate and permissible. For example, any attempt to "make a market" for the shares by buying, or pretending to buy, at a premium, or by "rigging the market," must be avoided as illegitimate and dangerous. This operation was referred to by Justice M. R. in Morzett's case, 28 W. R. 541, as follows: "I do not know the technical term for the thing, but it is to raise the value, or apparent value, of the shares on the Stock Exchange by buying up the few that are issued at a premium, so as to induce the public to come in and subscribe for the shares in the company under the notion that there is a bonâ fide premium to be obtained by subscribing. Whether one ought to call that a conspiracy or not does not much matter, but I suppose both in law and morality it is a conspiracy to defraud the public and nothing else."

And in Twydross v. Grant, 2 C. P. Div. 469, 495, Bramwell, L. J., said that the defendant "went into the market and bought a large number of shares, and various newspapers were induced, by payments to subordinate persons, to write favourably of the company. The shares rose to a premium; the public were attracted and subscribed for the capital, or a large part of it, both shares and debentures. The defendant attempted to justify giving this false appearance of value to the shares by saying that it continually happens that shares are made to appear worth less than their real value by people selling them when they have not got them. There are two answers to this. First, there is no reason to suppose that any such practice was apprehended by the company; next, that it cannot be right to counteract such a proceeding in the way here adopted; and indeed, further, if it is believed that a scheme is a good one, and people try to depreciate it by selling its shares, they should be countermined honestly, and not by a trick, by those who think well of it buying the shares so sold."

Again, in Scott v. Brown, (1892) 2 Q. B. 724, it was held that an agreement between two or more to purchase shares in a company in order to induce persons who might thereafter purchase shares in such company to believe, contrary to the fact, that there was a bonâ the market for its shares, and that the shares were at a real premium, was an illegal transaction and might be made the subject of an indictment for conspiracy. This decision was based on Rex v. De Berenger, 3 M. & S. 67, in which it was held that it was a criminal conspiracy to agree to endeavour to raise the price of the public funds on a particular day by false rumours; and "this was not because it is an injury to the public to raise the value of the public funds, but because it is fraudulent against those who purchase a vendible commodity to raise the price of it at the time they purchase it by fraudulent falsehoods on which they are intended to act. The conspiracy was held to be criminal, not because the article to be dealt in was the public funds, but because the public funds were a vendible commodity. And it was held that the offence was complete the moment the agreement was made." Per Brett, L. J., Reg. v. Aspinall, 2 Q. B. Div. 48, 59.

The crime lies in the act of conspiracy and combination to effect that purpose, and would have been complete although it had not been pursued to its consequences, or the parties had not been able to carry it into effect." Per Lord Ellenborough, Rex v. De Berenger, ubi supra. Equally, any attempt to obtain a quotation of the shares on the London or other Stock Exchange by illegitimate means, such as misrepresentation or concealment, should be avoided. For the result of a quotation is to induce the public to believe that the rules of the stock exchange have been complied with, and to deal in the shares on that footing. Any scheme, therefore, to deceive the committee may amount to a conspiracy to cheat and defraud those persons who might by reason of the quotation be induced to deal in the shares. See Reg. v. Aspinall, 2 Q. B. Div. 48. In that case the defendants, the promoters of a company, were convicted of a criminal conspiracy to defraud. They had obtained a quotation by falsely representing that more than two-thirds of the capital had been subscribed by the public, and that the application money of 10s. per share had been paid up thereon; whereas in fact the shares were applied for by dummies, the promoters paying the application moneys out of borrowed funds, which as soon as paid in were drawn out and applied to the payment of the application moneys on further shares, and so manipulated that the aggregate amount paid in appeared to be upwards of 17,000l. See also Gray v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1035, 1051; Stewart v. Weber (C. A.), Times, Dec. 8, 1903; and Salaman v. Warner, 61 L. T. 598.

An agreement for such a scheme, however clearly expressed, cannot be enforced or sued on.

Recommendations to Intending Promoters.

Recommendations to promoters.

In conclusion it may be useful to submit the following recommendations to promoters:—

- (1) Where it is intended to purchase property and resell at a profit, either to a company or otherwise, be careful not to take any steps towards the promotion of the company, or procure directors or subscribers, until you have a valid contract with the vendors; and, having regard to sect. 81 of the Act of 1908, sub-sects. 1 (f) and (g), and sub-sect. 2, where practicable, have the contract completed and the purchase-money paid before the date of the prospectus.
- (2) Remember that grasping at too much profit may easily defeat itself by bringing about the failure of the enterprise.
- (3) See that the company is provided with an independent board of directors, and that due disclosure is made to them and to the company. Independent here means directors who are not interested in the promotion, e.g., by receiving vendor's shares or being qualified by the promoters.
- (4) See that, where there is or may be any doubt as to the independence of the executive, full disclosure is made of all the variety of matters which prima facie ought to be disclosed to an independent executive. See p. 134, supra.
- (5) See that the memorandum and articles contain all requisite provisions for the protection of the promoters (see Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425), and, at the same time, do not contain anything open to hostile comment, or anything unfair to the company or the subscribers.
- (6) See that the prospectus or statement in lieu thereof, especially if the promoters have any part in its preparation or issue, is fairly and honestly framed. Infra, pp. 165 et seq.
- (7) Take care in particular that the provisions of sects. 81 and 82 of the Act are complied with.
- (8) Bear in mind sect. 89 of the Act, and do not be a party to the payment out of the purchase-money, whether directly or indirectly, of any commission for subscribing or procuring the subscription of shares.

PRECEDENTS.

AGREEMENT by PROMOTERS to PAY Preliminary EXPENSES in Form 1. consideration of VENDOR'S SHARES.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A., of —, Parties. of the one part, and B., of —, and C., of — (hither called "the group"), of the other part.

WHEREAS the sd A. has entered into a provisional agreement (hither Recitals.
called the scheduled contract) with the — Limtd (hither called the coy), for the sale of certain patents and other ppty to the coy in conson of 20,000l., whereof 15,000l. is to be satisfied by the allotment to the sd A. of 1,500 fully paid-up 10l. shares in the capital of the coy: AND WHEREAS by the scheduled contract it is among other things provided that the sd A. shall pay all the preliminary expenses, that is to say, [here set out particulars]: AND WHEREAS the prospectus, a copy of which is herunto annexed, has been approved by the board of directors of the coy, and has been duly filed with the Registrar of Cos, and the group is willing to advertise the same at their own expense

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. The group shall advertise and circulate the sd prospectus in a What B.
sufficient and effective manner [or in accordance with the scheme set to do.
forth in the schedule hereto].

2. The group shall pay all the preliminary expenses aforesaid, and Further. shall indemnify the sd A. against all proceedings, claims and demands in respect thereof.

3. If the group shall duly perform their obligations under clauses 1 Consideraand 2 hereof, they shall be enttd to — of the sd 1,500 fully paid-up tion.
shares, and the sd A. will procure the coy to allot the same to them accordingly.

4. Unless before the — day of — next the coy shall have become Conditions.
entitled to commence business, the group shall forfeit all claim to the sd fully paid-up shares, and, save as hitherto expressly provided, the group shall not be enttd to any remuneration for their services in respect of the premises.

IN WITNESS, &c.

[Schedule.]

As to the company being entitled to commence business, see sect. 87 of the Act, supra, p. 26.

Form 2. AGREEMENT to PAY Preliminary EXPENSES in consideration of COMMISSIONS.

Parties. AN AGREEMENT made, &c., between the — Coy, Limtd (hnter called "the coy"), of the one part, and A., of —, of the other part.

Recital. WHEREAS a prospectus of the coy (whereof a copy is hereunto annexed) has been filed with the Registrar of Companies and is about to be published and circulated.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

A. to pay the preliminary expenses.

1. The sd A. shall procure the sd prospectus to be extensively advertised and circulated, and shall pay all the preliminary expenses of the coy, that is to say, all the costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the preparation and filing of the sd prospectus and the publication and circulation thereof, and of and incident to the preparation, execution, and registration of the coy's memdm and arts of asson, and of these presents, and all other expenses of and incident to the establishment of the coy down to the time when the coy becomes entld to commence business, or if the directors of the coy shall, within the period of — weeks from the date hereof, resolve not to proceed to allotment, then down to the date of such resolution, and also the expenses of returning the amounts paid on application and of winding up the coy: And the sd A. shall indemnify the coy and the directors thereof from and against all proceedings, claims and demands in respect of the sd preliminary expenses. Such expenses shall not include his expenses of and incident to the procuring of persons to subscribe or underwrite shares in the capital of the coy.

Consideration.

2. In conson of the premises the coy shall, within 14 days after it becomes entld to commence business, pay to the sd A. a commission at the rate of [1] p.c. on the nominal capital of the coy, viz., £—, but in the event of such resolution as afd being passed, the sd A. shall not be entld to any remuneration in respect of the premises. [Such commission shall be payable exclusively out of the premiums received under the sd prospectus.]

IN WITNESS, &c.

Form 3. AGREEMENT for SALE of CONCESSION to PROMOTER, who is to form COMPANY.

Parties.
Sale.

Parties: A., 1; and B., 2.

1. The sd A. shall sell, and the sd B. shall purchase, the concession specified in the schedule hereto, and the full benefit thereof, at the price of 50,000l., whereof £— shall forthwith be pd to the sd A. by way of deposit.

2. If before the — day of — [the time for completion] the sd B. shall have resold the sd concession to a coy duly formed under the Cos Act, 1908, for the purpose, inter alia, of acquiring and carrying out the sd concession, and with a nominal capital of 200,000*l.*, divided into 20,000 shares of 10*l.* each, [and with a working capital of £— at the least,] and bound by agreement with the sd B. to purchase from him the sd concession, the sd B. shall have the option of satisfying any part of the balance of the purchase-money not exceeding 40,000*l.* by procuring the allotment or transfer to the sd A. of fully pd-up shares in such coy to be treated as of par value.

Form 3.

Option to pay in shares.

3. The sd A. shall show a good title to the sd concession in himself or some other person willing and bound to convey by his direction, and shall prove that the concession is valid and in full force, and shall duly transfer the same to the sd B. or his nominee at or before the time for completion hnter fixed.

Title

4. The purchase shall be completed on the — day of — next, at —, or at such other place in the City of London as the sd B. shall fix, and thereupon the purchase-money shall be pd or satisfied as hnter provided.

Completion.

5. The sd B. shall before the time hnter fixed for completion appoint some competent agent in — to examine and report on the title to the sd concession, and to certify the transfer thereof, and a telegram from such agent stating that the title is satisfactory and that the transfer is complete shall be sufficient evidence of the facts.

Report of agent.

6. The sd B. may at any time before the — day of — next, by notice in writing to the sd A., annul the sale, and if the said purchase-money shall not be pd or satisfied at the time and in manner asd, then and in such case the sd A. may at any time afterwards by notice in writing to the sd B. annul the sale.

Rescission.

7. If the sale is annulled under clause 6 hereof, the deposit shall be forfeited to the sd A., and neither party shall have any claim against the other for expenses, damages, or otherwise.

Forfeiture of deposit.

IN WITNESS. &c.

[The Schedule containing particulars of concession.]

Not uncommonly an agreement as above is made without any provision for a deposit, so that practically it imposes no liability on the purchaser, but in that case B. (see Clause 6 above) ought not to have power to annul the sale.

The promoter, having secured the agreement, forms his company, and enters into an agreement with the company for the sale of the concession at an advance in price. There is no objection to such an arrangement, provided that due disclosure is made to the company. But if the company is inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, great care must be taken in framing the prospectus. Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Ch. 682, 689; Capel v. Sims, 36 W. R. 689; Companies Act, 1908, s. 81.

Form 4. AGREEMENT to contribute to a PRELIMINARY EXPENSES FUND.

Parties. AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A., of — (hence called "the tree"), of the one part, and B., of —, and the several other persons who shall sign their names and affix their seals hereto (hence called "the subscribers"), of the other part: WHEREAS it is proposed very shortly to register under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a company to be called "the — Coy, Limited" (hence referred to as "the company"), with a memorandum and articles of association which have already been prepared and approved by the parties hereto: AND WHEREAS it is desired to provide a fund in the manner and for the purposes hereafter set forth.

NOW THEREFORE each of the subscribers hereby agrees with the said A., as trustee for the subscribers, as follows:

Fund. 1. A fund shall be established to consist of the contributions of the subscribers pursuant to this agreement.

Application. 2. The funds shall be placed in the hands of the trustee and he shall apply the same under the direction of the committee in paying the costs of obtaining the engineer's report, which is to be set out in the prospectus of the company, and in paying the expenses of the experiments referred to in the schedule hereto, and in paying the general expenses of forming and promoting the company, and any other expenses which the said trustee, with the sanction of the committee, shall think it expedient to pay.

Committee. 3. There shall be a committee of subscribers for the purpose of this agreement, and the first members of such committee shall be C., D., and E.

Proceedings. 4. The committee may fill up any vacancy in their body which shall arise from death, resignation, or otherwise, and the members for the time being of the committee may act notwithstanding any vacancies in their body. The decision of the majority of the members of the committee for the time being shall be regarded as the decision of the committee.

Calls. 5. The trustee may from time to time, with the sanction of the committee, make such calls on the subscribers as he shall think fit; but every such call shall be made on the subscribers pari passu, and three days' notice at least of every such call shall be given to the subscribers, and no subscriber shall be liable to pay in the aggregate more than 150*l.* under this agreement.

Defaults. 6. If any subscriber makes default in payment of a call made on him hereunder, he shall pay interest at the rate of 10 p.c. on the amount in arrear until actual payment; and if the default continues for more than 7 days, the trustee may draw a bill of exchange on the defaulting subscriber for the amount, and may authorize any persons to accept the sums on behalf of such defaulting subscriber, and such acceptance shall be effective, and such bill of exchange may be made payable on demand.

Form 4.

7. The tree and the committee are to subscribe the memdm of asson of the coy for the whole of the founders' shares in the coy's capital, and are in due course to distribute the same amongst the subscribers rateably in proportion to their contributions hereunder.

Founders' shares.

8. Any notice for the purposes hereof may be given to any subscriber by sending the same through the post, addressed to such subscriber at his address below mentd; and any notice so sent shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of two days after it is posted.

Notice of service.

9. If any subscriber makes default in payment of any call made pursuant hto, the tree may, with the sanction of the committee, declare the interest of such subscriber under this agreemt to be forfeited; and thereupon such subscriber shall cease to have any rights under this agreemt, and any contribution pd by him shall be considered forfeited for the benefit of the other subscribers hto.

Forfeiture.

10. The majority of the subscribers hto may, at any time, by writing under their hands, remove the tree for the time being hercof and appoint another tree or trees in his place; and they may also appoint a new tree or trees to fill up any vacancies in the trusteeship howsoever caused.

New trustees.

AS WITNESS the hands and seals of the parties hto.

Signed, sealed, and) delivered by, &c.)

Instead of forming an association as above, it is more usual to register a promoting syndicate. See infra, p. 158.

SYNDICATE AGREEMENT for PURCHASE and RE-SALE of MINES.

Form 5.

Heads of Agreement.

1. A syndicate is hby established for the purpose of acquiring the mines situate at —, and known as the — mines, and of disposing of the same at a profit. The capital of the syndicate shall be £—, and shall be considered to be divided into — shares of £— each. The holders for the time being of the shares shall be members of the syndicate. Each of the subscribers is to be entld to the number of shares set opposite his signature. The shares are to be transferable, but not divisible. A transfer must be registered.

Syndicate established.

Capital.

Members.

2. In entering into the contract dated — for the acquisition of the sd mines, A., one of the subscribers hto, shall be deemed to have been acting on behalf of the syndicate, and the syndicate shall forthwith repay him the deposit, and shall indemnify him against his liabilities under the contract.

Preliminary contract.

3. A. and B. shall be managers of the syndicate.

Managers.

Form 5.	4. £—— per share shall be pd to the managers forthwith, and they may from time to time make calls on the members in proportion to their shares, but no member is to be liable to pay more than the amount of his shares.
Calls.	5. All moneys pd to the managers in respect of calls or otherwise shall be applied for the purposes of the syndicate.
Application of funds.	6. The managers shall have the entire control of the affairs of the syndicate, and may conduct the same in such manner as they think best.
Conduct of business.	7. It is expressly declared that the managers, if they think fit, (a) may sell the mines to a person, or firm, or coy; (b) may form and float, or procure the formation and floating of a coy to purchase the mines; (c) may fix the price and agree to accept any pt of it in fully pd-up shares, debentures, or otherwise; (d) may keep the mines going until disposed of.
Express powers of managers.	8. The managers may convene meetings of the syndicate to deliberate and decide on any of the affairs of the syndicate: every share to confer one vote: majority to decide; votes may be given in person or by proxy. Three days' notice of each meeting to be given.
Meetings.	9. The consen for sale or disposition of the mines shall be applied, first, in paying all debts and liabilities of the syndicate: secondly, in repaying any capital contributed by the members in respect of their shares: thirdly, the surplus shall be divided amongst the members in proportion to their shares. And for the purposes of this clause the managers may convert into money any shares, debentures, or other specific assets, and may divide any such assets in specie, and make such other arrangements for adjusting the rights of the members as they think fit.
Division of proceeds.	10. Notices to each subscriber may be given by post, addressed to him at his address below mentd. Notice so given to be deemed served twelve hours after posting.
Notices.	Dated the —— day of ——.

Syndicates.

Syndicates are sometimes formed under an agreement as above, but the agreement constitutes a partnership, and the members are therefore individually responsible for what the managers do, without any real limit of liability; and if the number of members, by oversight or otherwise, exceeds twenty, the syndicate becomes an illegal association. These objections to a syndicate agreement now very commonly induce the formation of an incorporated syndicate.

The following are a few examples of the cases in which syndicates are commonly formed:—

1. A. has a patent for an invention, but no capital. The utility of the invention is fairly obvious; but it requires to be more thoroughly tested, and expense must be incurred in so testing it, and also in obtaining foreign patents, and perhaps in floating a company to purchase the patent rights. B., C. and D. agree to form a syndicate which shall find the requisite funds. The patent rights are made over to the syndicate, on the footing that A. shall have, say, one-third of the shares in the syndicate free, and that the other subscribers shall pay up their shares in cash. The capital of the syndicate is fixed accordingly, say at 3,000*l.* in 100*l.* shares. The invention is tested, and, if found satisfactory, foreign patents are obtained, and the public company is formed and floated. The patents are re-sold to the public company at a profit, and the net proceeds of sale are divided rateably amongst the members of the syndicate, which is then dissolved.

Form 5.

2. C. has obtained in America or in one of the Colonies an option or contract to purchase some mining property. Money is wanted to send out an independent expert, and perhaps to work the property to a limited extent, and thus prove its capabilities. C. places his option or contract and knowledge at the disposal of the syndicate in consideration of shares in the syndicate. The syndicate then obtains the necessary reports, works the property more or less, and re-sells it at a profit, either to some company formed for the purpose of acquiring it or to anyone who is willing to buy it on satisfactory terms.
3. A. has a going business which requires immediate financial assistance. For certain reasons it is not practicable to convert the business at once into a company, and go to the public, and accordingly a syndicate is formed to find the requisite funds in consideration of a share in the business and the power to dispose of it. The syndicate takes over the business, sets the concern on its legs, and then, on a favourable opportunity, disposes of it on the best terms obtainable.
4. The prospects of some company are likely to be damaged by hostile attacks and fictitious sales of its shares. A., B., and C., and others who are interested in the company and desire to resist these attacks, form a syndicate to buy up all shares offered for sale and to hold the same for a limited period, and then re-sell on the best terms obtainable.
5. Some mercantile commodity is likely to rise in value. A syndicate is formed to acquire and hold a large stock of it and to re-sell when the rise has taken place.
6. A company is about to be brought out, but considerable preliminary expenses will have to be incurred in advertising, legal charges, fees to brokers, solicitors, and otherwise. A syndicate is formed to find the requisite funds, the vendor agreeing to repay them with a bonus out of the purchase consideration which he is to obtain from the company. The company is then floated, and in due course the vendor pays off the syndicate's advance and bonus.
7. It is desired by certain parties to apply to some government authority for a concession, charter, or other special privilege. In order to obtain this expense must be incurred, and the requisite funds can only be found by co-operation. Accordingly A., B., and C. and others form a syndicate.

In order to form an incorporated syndicate it is necessary to prepare a suitable memorandum and short articles of association. The name of the company not uncommonly includes the word "syndicate," e.g., The ——— Syndicate, Limited. The objects must be made wide enough to cover what is wanted, and usually it is considered expedient to express them in terms so general as not to disclose the particular scheme the parties have in view; e.g., if the real object is to acquire a particular concession for which A. has been negotiating, the objects will be to acquire any concessions, and to work and dispose of them, and to form any company, and to raise money, &c. See Form 178. The capital will be fixed at such a figure as may suffice to cover the probable outlay. The articles of association will probably adopt Table A. with modifications. See Form 252. The syndicate is usually registered as a PRIVATE COMPANY under sect. 121 of the Act. See infra, p. 910. In due course the syndicate will enter into an agreement with A. to acquire the benefit of his negotiations and services in consideration of some paid-up shares, say one-third of the capital. The rest of the capital of the syndicate will then be subscribed, and steps will be taken to obtain the concern. When the concession has been acquired, it will be sold to a company promoted by the syndicate, and the proceeds will be distributed and the syndicate dissolved.

Form 5.

There is great advantage in an incorporated syndicate, for it is a separate entity recognized by the law and not a mere partnership, and accordingly in all contracts its corporate name is used, the members enjoy limited liability, and the directors or managers are not the agents of the members individually but of the body corporate, which is the promoter, and is responsible for the acts and omissions of the directors. Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 423.

Besides, it is often found that capitalists and others who would become members of an unincorporated syndicate are ready enough to become members of an incorporated syndicate in their own names or through nominees.

As to syndicates limited by guarantee, see infra, Chap. X.

The doubts as to the status and regularity of incorporated syndicates consisting of a very few substantial persons, which were caused by a decision of the Court of Appeal, were completely dispelled by the reversal of that decision in the House of Lords. Salomon v. Salomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22. See Chap. X. And now a private company may consist of any two or more persons. See p. 911, infra.

Form 6.

AGREEMENT by SHAREHOLDERS to POOL their SHARES and have them SOLD by TRUSTEES.

Pooling
agreement.

Recitals.

AN AGREEMENT made, &c., between A. B., of —, and the several other persons named in the first schedule hto, of the first or one part. and The — Trust Coy, Limtd (hnter called "the trustees"), of the second or other part: WHEREAS the several persons named in the first schedule hto are collectively entitled to 20,000 fully pd-up shares of 10*l*. each in the capital of The — Coy, Limtd (numbered — to — inclusive), and the number held by each of them is set opposite his name in the fourth column of the sd schedule: AND WHEREAS the sd several persons have lately transferred their respective shares asfd into the names of divers other persons as nominees of the trustees: NOW THESE PRESENTS WITNESS AND DECLARE that it is hby agreed as follows:—

Pool.

1. The sd shares (hnter called "the pooled shares") and the proceeds of sales thereof, and all income therefrom, shall constitute a joint stock fund (hnter called "the pool"), to be dealt with as hnter provided.

Shares in pool.

2. The pool shall be deemed to be divided into — shares, and each of the parties hto of the first part shall be entld to the number of shares in the pool set opposite his name in the fifth column of the schedule hto- that is to say, at the rate of one share in the pool for each ten of the pooled shares to which he is entld as afsd. Form 6.

3. The trustees shall hold the pooled shares upon trust to sell the same as and when they, in their absolute discretion, think fit, and upon such terms and in such manner as they in their absolute discretion may consider expedient, with full power to pay commissions to any persons for placing, or assisting to place, any of the sd shares, and to give to any person who shall buy or place any of the sd shares the call of further of the sd shares for a limited period and at a specified price, and the trustees shall receive any dividends payable in respect of such of the sd shares as shall for the time being remain unsold.

Sometimes a minimum price is specified, and very commonly a scale is given providing that the first 1,000 shall not be sold for less than — per share, the second 1,000 at not less than — per share, and so on.

It is not safe to empower the managers to buy shares in the company, lest it should be found as a fact that the object of the scheme was unduly to raise the price of the shares, see supra, p. 150.

4. The trustees shall apply all moneys received by them under these presents in or towards paying all costs, charges, and expenses incurred by them in relation to the trusts hereof, and shall from time to time, as and whenever the surplus in hand is sufficient to pay a dividend of at least £—, apply such surplus in paying to the holders of shares in the pool a rateable dividend. Distribution of cash.

5. The shares in the pool shall be numbered — to — inclusive, and each holder of any share in the pool shall be entld to a certificate of title to his share or shares therein, framed in accordance with the form set forth in the second schedule hto. Such certificate shall be under the seal of the trust. Certificates

6. The trustees shall keep at their registered office a register of the shares in the pool, and the registered holder of shares in the pool shall be at liberty at all reasonable times to inspect the sd register. Register

7. Every holder of a share in the pool may transfer the same by instrument in writing in the usual common form, which shall be signed both by the transferor and by the transferee. Until the registration of the transfer the transferor shall be deemed to remain the holder of the share. The instrument of transfer must be delivered to the trustees, accompanied by the certificate relating to the share comprised therein, and such other evidence as the trustees may require to prove the title of the transferor; and the trustees may charge a fee of 2s. 6d. for each transfer registered. Transfer.

It is not usual to make shares in a pool transferable.

8. The registered holder of any share in the pool shall be recognized and treated as the absolute owner thof, and in the case of the

Equities disregarded

- Form 6. death of any one or two or more joint registered holders, the coy will only recognize the survivor or survivors as the absolute owner or owners thof, and the receipt of any such person or persons so recognized as absolute owner or owners afsd in respect of any moneys payable by the trees in respect of such share shall be a good discharge to the trees, notwithstanding any notice, express or otherwise, they may have as to claims under any trust or otherwise.
- Dividends posted. 9. All dividends on shares in the pool may be paid by cheque sent through the post to the registered address of the holder, or in case of joint holders, to the registered address of that one of them who is first named on the register in respect of such shares.
- Closing pool. 10. The pool shall be closed at the expiration of one year from the date hereof, but the holders of two-thirds of the shares in the pool may at any time previously, by notice in writing to the trees, close the pool, and the same shall be closed accordingly.
- Distribution of pooled shares. 11. When the pool is closed as afsd, such of the pooled shares as have not been sold, and also any cash in the hands of the trees and available for distribution, shall be distributed among the holders of shares in the pool as nearly as may be rateably in proportion to the shares in the pool held by them resply.
- Surrender of certificates. 12. Before making any such final distribution as afsd the trees may require all or any of the certificates afsd relating to shares in the pool to be given up to be cancelled, and the same shall be given up accordingly.
- Guarantee. 13. The trees guarantee that their nominees afsd shall duly hold and dispose of the sd 20,000 shares in accordance with these presents.
- Remuneration. 14. The trees shall be entitled as remuneration for their trouble in executing the trusts hereof to be remunerated at the rate of the sum of £— per annum.
- Indemnity. 15. The trees shall be indemnified out of the trust premises against all expenses and liabilities incurred in relation hto, and they shall have a lien for such indemnity on the pooled shares and all moneys arising therefrom.
- Modification of rights hereunder. 16. The holders of three-fourths of the shares in the pool may, by writing under their hands, assent to any modifications of the rights hby conferred on the holders of shares in the pool, and such assent shall be binding on all the holders of shares in the pool, and they shall all be bound to give effect thereto.
- Notices. 17. A notice under these presents may be served by the trees upon any registered holder of any share in the pool, either personally or by sending it through the post in a registered prepaid envelope or wrapper to his or her registered place of address, and any notice so served by post shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of forty-eight hours after it is posted.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Form 6.

In five columns—(1) names, (2) addresses, (3) descriptions, (4) particulars of pooled shares, (5) particulars of shares in pool.]

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

[Form of Certificate.]

It is not at all uncommon to establish a pool so that a number of shareholders may benefit pari passu.

Sometimes a pool is established where a number of underwriters have been stuck with large blocks of shares, and wish to dispose of their shares gradually, so as not to run the prices down by overloading the market. In such cases, the members of the pool are generally prohibited from transferring. In other cases, the object of the pool is to create a voting trust which will be worked for the benefit and protection of the members of the pool.

At other times a pool is established for the purpose of splitting up a series of founders' shares into fractions, e.g., 100 founders' shares may be represented by, say, 10,000 shares in the pool. Sometimes the term "trust" or "syndicate" can be used instead of "pool."

It is not safe to provide for the purchase of shares for the benefit of the pool, for if the pool by purchasing runs up the price, there will be danger of the association being held to be a conspiracy. See supra, p. 134

POOLING AGREEMENT with PROVISION for TRANSFER OF SHARES.

Form 7.

AN AGREEMENT made, &c., between A. B., of — (hereafter called "the trustee"), of the one pt, and the several other persons who shall subscribe their names hto, of the other or second pt. [Recitals, see Form 6.]

Another pooling
agreement.

1. The sd shares (hereafter called "the pooled shares"), &c. [Form 6.]
2. The pool shall be deemed to be divided into as many shares as the pooled shares, and each of the parties hto shall be entitled to the same number of shares in the pool as the number of shares set opposite his signature hto.

Pool.
Shares in pool.

3. The tree shall hold, &c. [Form 6.]

4. It shall rest with the tree to determine which of the pooled shares shall on each occasion be sold or dealt with, and for the purpose of giving effect to any sale or disposition of any of the pooled shares, the registered holders of the pooled shares shall resp'y, upon the request of the tree, sign all transfers thereof which the tree shall require, and if any holder makes default in complying with any such request, the tree may sign any such transfer for the defaulting shareholder, and the tree's certificate in writing that the member has made such default shall, as regards any purchaser or transferee and the co'y, be conclusive.

Transfers.

5 et seq. on lines of Form 6.]

PROSPECTUSES.

CHAPTER III.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

WHERE it is intended to appeal to the public for the capital required to work a company, the usual course is to issue a prospectus inviting applications for shares or debentures or both. Prior to 1862 a prospectus was almost always issued before the formation of a company; but after the Act of 1862, which rendered the formation of a company a much simpler and inexpensive matter, it became the general practice to issue the prospectus after the formation (i.e., the registration) of the company. And this practice it is desirable to continue, since it prevents many disputes and difficulties which used to arise under the old practice, and are not less likely to occur under the Companies Act, 1908, although that Act distinctly contemplates (sect. 80) a prospectus in relation to any intended company.

When prospectus to be issued

In most cases the prospectus of a new company is prepared by or under the direction of the promoters before the company is formed, and after its formation the prospectus is submitted to the directors of the company, who pass a resolution approving of it, with or without modification, and directing it to be filed and issued. The mode in which the prospectus is brought to the notice of the public varies considerably. In some cases the parties rely almost entirely on the circulation, by post or otherwise, of printed copies of the prospectus; but generally the document, or an abridgment thereof (infra, p. 175), is advertised in the newspapers.

How prepared and published.

The preparation of a prospectus requires both skill and judgment, and involves great responsibility; for not only does the success of the company's appeal to the public depend to a considerable extent on the attractiveness of the document, but if it is improperly framed, either by putting in what is incorrect or misleading or omitting what ought to be disclosed, the company, its directors and promoters, may be exposed to actions by any number of persons who have subscribed for shares on the faith of the prospectus, and to other liabilities of the most harassing and serious character.

Skill required and responsibility involved.

As already mentioned, the prospectus is usually prepared by or under the direction of the promoters, and with the privity of the directors.

Practice.

Very commonly, legal advice as well is taken on the draft; for ignorance of law in general and of the requirements of the Act of 1908 in particular, or want of judgment on the part of those who issue a prospectus, may lead to the most disastrous consequences. Bona fides and honesty are indeed absolutely essential, but by themselves they are not a sufficient protection. A person, for instance, may be fully aware that he is bound to state all material facts; but from his position, or under the influence of sanguine expectations, he may be unable to form an impartial judgment as to what facts are material. He may know well enough that he must abstain from misrepresentation, and yet be totally unable to see that an ingeniously-framed statement, which he or some other person desires to insert, is misleading. He may believe a statement to be true, but be forgetful or ignorant of the danger he incurs in stating as a fact that which he only knows by hearsay. He may forget, or misconstrue, the provisions of the Act of 1908 with reference to prospectuses. He may think that as documents are offered for inspection, applicants will be fixed with knowledge of their contents, and may not notice in the prospectus a misrepresentation as to their terms which renders the offer nugatory. He may imagine that this or that is only a small matter, and may be surprised a few months or years later to find that his want of judgment has led to his being made a defendant in seventy or eighty actions. All these possibilities make the assistance of a trained legal mind very desirable.

The memorandum and articles of association and any preliminary contracts are generally settled at the same time as the prospectus, for these documents are commonly framed in contemplation of the prospectus, and with reference to what it is desired to say or not to say therein. The prospectus should not be finally settled until after the formation of the company.

Important points to be observed in settling a
prospectus

In settling a prospectus it is necessary to bear in mind-

- A. That it should be framed so as to comply with the numerous and in many cases onerous requirements of the Act of 1908, particularly sect. 81, so far as applicable.
- B. That the prospectus should be made as attractive as is consistent with truth, and should not be open to hostile criticism on the ground of significant omissions therefrom, or vague statements on vital points. See infra, pp. 182, 183.
- C. That it should be framed so as to comply with the general law, apart from the Act of 1908, and so as not to give rise to any charge of unfairness or deception. See infra, p. 183.

Provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Particulars to be disclosed.

Sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 runs thus:—

81.—(1) Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company, or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company, must state

Specific requirement is to particu-larise
prospectus

The object of this section is to compel the disclosure in a prospectus of a series of facts which the Legislature considers it material to have disclosed to persons invited to become subscribers—facts which are within the knowledge of those issuing the prospectus, and are not within the knowledge of those receiving it.

"Prospectus," as defined by the Act (sect. 285), means "any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other invitation, offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures [or debenture stock] of a company."

Issued by or on behalf of the company. The words "or in relation to any intended company," which occur in sect. 9 (see infra, p. 179), do not appear here; but the words "or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company" appear to be wide enough to cover a prospectus issued by the promoters before the registration of a company—especially having regard to the words of sub-sect. (4): "subject, &c., this section shall apply to any prospectus, whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently."

Sect. 245 makes the section apply to every existing company as if it had been registered under the Act of 1908.

Contents of Memorandum.

(a) the contents of the memorandum of association, with the names, descriptions, and addresses of the signatories, and the number of shares subscribed for by them respectively; and the number of founders or management or deferred shares, if any, and the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company; and

Setting out
memorandum
of association

Everything in the memorandum except the signatures of the witnesses is to be set out. As the practice is to sign the names in full the whole memorandum is practically required to be copied into the prospectus. There seems to be no objection to the method now adopted of printing the contents of the memorandum in the fold of the prospectus, and referring to it in the body of the document. See sub-sects. (7) and (8) as to not setting out the memorandum in certain cases.

"Subscribed for" means subscribed for in the memorandum.

Founders' and management
shares.

The memorandum itself usually states all that is required by the section as to the founders', management and deferred shares (if any), but sometimes those shares are merely mentioned there without the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company being specified, and in such case these particulars must be added in the prospectus.

Sub-sect. (5), whilst making it unnecessary to specify in a prospectus issued as a newspaper advertisement the contents of the memorandum, the signatories thereto and the number of shares subscribed for by them, does not extend the provision to the particulars as to the founders' or management shares.

Articles as to directors' qualification and remuneration.

(b) The number of shares, if any, fixed by the articles of association as the qualification of a director, and any provision in the articles as to the remuneration of the directors; and Articles of association. This expression must mean the articles in force when the prospectus is issued, including any alterations that may have been made by special resolution. The section does not say the original articles.

Qualification.

There is no obligation to insert in the articles any qualification clause, but if such a clause be inserted and provide for a share qualification, the number of shares must be stated in the prospectus.

A director may be qualified by holding the requisite number of shares jointly with another. Glory Paper Mills, Ex parte Dunster, (1894) 3 Ch. 473; Grundy v. Briggs, (1910) 1 Ch. 44. For directors to accept qualification shares from a promoter on the terms of holding them on trust for him is misfeasance. London and S. W. Canal Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 346.

A debenture or debenture stock qualification need not be mentioned in the prospectus.

Directors'
names, &c.
Minimum
subscription
Application and allotment
moneys.
Previous issue.

(c) the names, descriptions and addresses of the directors or proposed directors; and

(d) the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, and the amount payable on application and allotment on each share; and in the case of a second or subsequent offer of shares, the amount offered for subscription on each previous allotment made within the two preceding years, and the amount actually allotted; and the amount, if any, paid on the shares so allotted; and

As to "Directors or proposed Directors." It must not be forgotten that by sect. 72, where the prospectus is "issued by or on behalf of the company" (not being a company registered before January 1st, 1900, or a company registered after that date which has survived for a year after being entitled to commence business), and the company is one which invites public subscriptions for shares. The names of directors or proposed directors are not to be stated in the prospectus unless the requirements of sect. 72 have been satisfied. See the notes to that section, supra.

As regards shares, the minimum subscription is dealt with by sect. 85 of the Act (see supra, p. 9). The Act, however, does not contain any similar provision as regards debentures or debenture stock, and accordingly it is open to argument that this section (81) only requires the minimum subscription as regards shares to be stated. But the words are wide enough to cover both. The expression "the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment" is perfectly sensible, whether applied to shares or debentures or debenture stock, and may, consistently with reason, be read as referring, in regard to shares, to the minimum subscription mentioned in clause 85, and as regards debentures or debenture stock, to such minimum subscription as may be fixed in the prospectus. But when the whole of sub-sect. (d) is read, and note is taken of the fact that the clause is silent as to debentures and debenture stock, whereas shares are expressly mentioned, and when the clause is read with sect. 85 (1) (2), wherein the new expression "minimum subscription" is defined, there can be little doubt that sect. 81 (1) (d) is meant to apply to shares only.

And in the case of a second or subsequent offer." This requirement in its original form was a very onerous one, as the company might in the course of its career have made many issues of shares and debentures, but the disclosure required is now restricted to issues within the two preceding years."

- (c.) the number and amount of shares and debentures issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which those shares or debentures have been issued or are proposed or intended to be issued; and

Fully paid shares and debentures.

The consideration." It is apprehended that it will be sufficient to state the general nature of the consideration, and that it will not be necessary in each case to set out all the details of the consideration. N. Frost & Co. (1899) 2 Ch. 207. That may be ascertained later on from the return of allotments required by sect. 88 (1) (b).

Statement of consideration.

- (d.) the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the

Unpaid vendors'
names, &c.

Amount payable to unpaid
vendor

issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of the issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares, or debentures, to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor, or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor; provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm, the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors.

"Of the vendors," &c. This stringent provision must be read in conjunction with sub-sect. (2) of sect. 81, infra. The object is to strip off the mask which in the past was too often used to conceal the real vendor. But the wording of the sub-section is very general, and covers many cases which can scarcely have been contemplated. Take for example, the case of a manufacturing company carrying on a going business, in the course of which it always has in hand a considerable amount of materials supplied on credit, and paid for periodically or by instalments. Does the sub-section apply to every such case, and render it necessary to specify the name of each vendor and the amount payable to him? If the property "is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue," it is apprehended that the sub-section applies; but when goods have been sold on credit, so that the property has passed and the company has obtained possession, it may be that such goods do not fall within the words "the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of the publication of the prospectus." The acquisition in such case has, in a sense, been completed.

Doubts like these help to make the section very troublesome to business men with the best intentions. It contains no exception of purchases in the ordinary course of business similar to that in par. (k), infra, but looking at the sense of the thing and the policy of the prospectus section, it seems highly improbable that the clause was intended to apply to ordinary business contracts.

The whole of the consideration, cash, shares, or debentures, payable to anyone by the company in respect of the purchase or acquisition of the property must be stated. Brookes v. Hansen, (1906) 2 Ch. 129.

Where a company is the purchaser of property which at law as well as in equity belongs absolutely to the vendor, it is not necessary under this paragraph that the prospectus should disclose the amount of the purchase-money paid by the vendor upon his acquisition of the property. Ibid.

A company, generally speaking, is not a sub-purchaser for the purposes of this paragraph unless it has to pay purchase-money to someone other than its own vendor; nor need the prospectus contain a statement of the amount of any consideration paid or to be paid by anyone other than the company itself.

Purchase-money paid or payable

(g) the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares, or debentures, for any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount (if any) payable for goodwill; and

The concluding words will render it necessary or expedient to specify the amount payable for goodwill separately in the contract, for where it is not so stated difficulty will or may arise as to the apportionment.

- (A) the amount (if any) paid within the two preceding years, or payable as Under-writing commissions commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in or debentures of the company, or the rate of any such commission; Provided that it shall not be necessary to state the commission payable to sub-underwriters; and See sect. 89, which legalises such payment on terms, and infra, Chap. IV.

It would seem that underwriting and placing contracts are not in all cases material contracts, the dates and parties to which must, under paragraph (k), infra, be stated in the prospectus. If the amount to be paid—which is the material matter—is disclosed, it may be that the dates and parties need not be disclosed—are not material: but see infra, par. (k).

- (i) the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses; and

Preliminary expenses

If the amount is stated, as by this paragraph required, the dates and parties to the contracts can scarcely be material to subscribers; at all events, they are not required to be set forth here.

Perhaps such contracts, even if material, come within the exception in paragraph (k), as contracts in the ordinary course of business.

It is not to be necessary to disclose the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses in a prospectus published more than one year after the date at which the company became entitled to commence business. See sub-sect (8).

- (j) the amount paid within the two preceding years or intended to be paid to any promoter and the consideration for any such payment; Payments to promoters.
and

As to what persons are promoters, see supra, Chap. II.

- (k) the dates of and parties to every material contract, and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected; Provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on or intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract entered into more than two years before the date of issue of the prospectus; and Contracts

This provision is in substitution for sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, repealed by sect. 33 of the Act of 1900. There is no definition in the Act of the term "material contract." The expression, no doubt, means any contract material to the subscriber in deciding whether he will or will not subscribe in response to the prospectus. See the notes on sect. 38 of 1867, infra, p. 226.

It would seem, therefore, that, subject to the exemption contained in the proviso, every contract is material which would be likely to influence the judgment of an intending applicant as to whether he should or should not subscribe for or purchase any shares, debentures, or debenture stock offered him by the prospectus.

The following, for example, would seem prima facie to be material, namely:

- Any contract by a vendor to give the promoters a commission or other advantage in relation to the formation of the company;
- Any contract for the purchase of property or rights which are to be resold to the company at a profit;
- Any contract for purchase by the company, or by the promoters or others, even though the purchase has been completed;
- Any contract under which the promoters or directors are obtaining any advantage at the expense of or in relation to the company;

but each case must depend on its own circumstances. The decisions, however, on sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, infra, p. 226, as to what are material contracts under that section, throw considerable light on the question, What are material contracts under this section?

As the clause provides for inspection, it apparently only applies to contracts in writing, whereas sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, covered verbal contracts. Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. D. 301.

Where the prospectus is published more than one year after the company is entitled to commence business, the obligation to disclose material contracts is limited to a period of two years prior to the prospectus. Sub-sect. (4) (b), infra. But this is not much of a concession.

"Provided that," &c. This exemption from disclosure of ordinary business contracts meets the great difficulty which the Courts experienced in dealing with the unqualified language of sect. 38 of the Act of 1867, "any contract entered into by the company, or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof."

Whether a particular contract has been entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on, or intended to be carried on, by the company is a question of fact.

Contracts made before the incorporation of the company (e.g., by the vendors) may be regarded as contracts entered into in the ordinary course of the business "intended to be carried on by the company."

"More than two years before," &c. Two years is now substituted for three. Thus a company is relieved from the necessity of going back for an indefinite period. The material contracts which have to be specified are only those entered into within two years before the date of issue of the prospectus. And see the possibly shorter time in the case mentioned in sub-sect. (8).

- (7) the names and addresses of the auditors (if any) of the company; and Auditors
 (m) full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of Director, every director in the promotion of or in the property proposed to be interests acquired by the company, or where the interest of such a director consists in being a partner in a firm, the nature and extent of the interest of the firm, with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him or to the firm in cash or shares, or otherwise, by any person either to induce him to become or to qualify him as a director or otherwise for services rendered by him or by the firm in connection with the promotion or formation of the company.

Full particulars." The object of this is to enable subscribers to judge how far the directors who invite subscriptions are independent and trustworthy. A., B. and C. named in a prospectus may constitute an apparently independent and trustworthy board, but if the fact be disclosed that they are all in the pay or under the control of the vendors or promoters—have, in effect, accepted a retaining fee from someone with interests different to those of the company—they have disqualified themselves from acting as advisers of the company, and intending subscribers will be put on their guard.

It is not enough to indicate that the director has an interest. Full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest are to be given.

As an illustration of this, see Imperial &c. Assoc. v. Coleman. L. R. 6 H. L. 190.

- (n) Where the company is a company having shares of more than one class the right of voting at meetings of the company conferred by the several classes of shares respectively.

(2) For the purposes of this section every person shall be deemed to be a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase, or for any option of purchase, of any property to be acquired by the company, in any case where—

What
 "vendor"
 includes.

- (a) the purchase-money is not fully paid at the date of issue of the prospectus; or

"For the purpose," &c. This sub-section must be read in connection with sub-sect. (1) (f), supra: see note thereto.

"Deemed to be a Vendor," &c. See note to sub-sect. (1) (f), supra.

- (b) the purchase-money is to be paid or satisfied wholly or in part out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus; or

(c) the contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of that issue.

Lessor is a vendor.

(3) Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease, this section shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor, and the expression "purchase-money" included the consideration for the lease, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee.

Waiver conditions useless.

(4) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void.

"Any condition," &c. Sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, did not prohibit a condition for waiver, and it was for many years customary to insert waiver clauses in prospectuses so as to protect the directors and promoters from the dangers of that very vague and stringent enactment. The exact effect of a waiver clause was for a long time not clearly ascertained, but in Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24, it was decided by the House of Lords that a director or promoter might be protected by a waiver clause provided it was honest, but it must be honest, for the proper function of such a waiver clause is to avoid danger resulting from an unintentional slip. It will not avail where used for "the protection of trickery" (Lord Lindley), or "as part of the machinery of fraud" (Lord Halsbury). ibid. And see Cackett v. Keswick, (1902) 2 Ch. 456; Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421. A waiver clause should contain a frank and fair avowal of the nature of the contract in respect of which the subscriber is asked to waive his rights under sect. 38. Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 766.

For the future, however, this sub-section invalidates, as regards the section, any such condition. The section, indeed, goes further, for it invalidates any condition binding any applicant to waive or purporting to affect the subscribers with notice of any contract, document or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus. Thus it is useless to say in a prospectus to which the section applies that applicants will be deemed to have notice of contracts not specifically referred to, i.e., by dates and names. See as to constructive notice of documents, Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, and Aaron's Reefs, Limited v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273.

But as a set-off against this disallowance of the "waiver clause," the Act allows a director to set up (see sub-sect. (6) (a) (b)) grounds of defence—ignorance and honest mistake of fact—which were not available to him under sect. 38 of the Act of 1867. This redresses the balance.

Dispensation in case of newspaper advertisements.

(5) Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary in the advertisement to specify the contents of the memorandum of association or the signatories thereto, and the number of shares subscribed for by them.

This sub-section reduces the very heavy cost of advertising a prospectus, but it affords only a small measure of relief. It is therefore material to consider whether an advertisement cannot be so framed as to avoid the necessity of setting out the mass of detail which the section requires in a prospectus. As to this, it is apprehended that if the advertisement is not a prospectus "offering to the public for subscription or purchase, shares or debentures or debenture stock," it is not touched by the section. Thus an advertisement which does not actually offer shares, &c. for subscription, but states that the company is issuing a prospectus whereby it offers for subscription certain shares, debentures or debenture stock, and that the prospectus states (inter alia) so and so, and that copies may be obtained at specified places, appears not to be a prospectus within the section.

See further, infra, pp. 259, 260, where the subject of abridged prospectus is touched on.

6) In the event of non-compliance with any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance, if he proves that—

Modified liability of honest directors.

a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he was not cognisant thereof; or

b) the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part.

Provided that in the event of non-compliance with the requirements contained in paragraph (m) of sub-sect. (1) of this section no director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of such non-compliance unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed.

"In the event of non-compliance," &c. Nature of remedy. Remedy.

The section somewhat strangely leaves it in doubt what is the nature of the redress available to a person subscribing on the faith of a prospectus which does not comply with the statutory requirements. Is it a remedy by action for damages against the directors or other persons issuing the prospectus? Or is it rescission of the contract to take shares? Or is it both? Or may criminal proceedings be taken?

From some recent decisions (Wimbledon Olympia, Limited, (1910) 1 Ch. 630; and South of England Natural Gas Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 573) it appears that rescission is not the remedy given by the section, and that the remedy given is an action for damages against the directors or other persons responsible for the prospectus. In the former case the prospectus omitted to mention the fact that on two previous occasions the company had offered shares for public subscription and the number allotted in response to those offers, and it was contended that this omission entitled the applicant to rescission of contract. Neville, J., however, held that this was not so. "The section," said his Lordship, "does not in terms so provide, and I cannot attribute to the Legislature the intention that the mere fact of the omission of any of the facts required by this section to be stated should give the shareholders the right to get rid of their shares. Of course there may be omissions of such a character that they would on other grounds entitle the shareholders to this relief (see infra, pp. 183, 193, 195), but in this case we have only the bare fact of omission." This was followed by Swinfen Eady, J., in the second case. In that case the prospectus failed to mention a previous offer to the public of shares, but it was held that this did not give an allottee the right to rescind, and that his remedy was an action for damages against the persons responsible for the prospectus. The learned judge drew attention to the fact that sect. 86 gave to an allottee the right to a return of his money where an allotment was made in breach of sect. 85, but that there was no corresponding provision in regard to sect. 81. "There is no provision," said his Lordship, "of that kind in sect. 81 nor in any other section relating to the omission relied on in this case, but the section does contemplate the liability in damages on the part of the 'directors and other persons responsible for the prospectus,' for sub-sect. (6) exonerates such persons from liability if they can prove certain matters; that is equivalent to saying that they are liable if they cannot prove them. In my opinion the allottee is not entitled to rescind his contract because of any breach of the statutory requirements which extend to such comparatively unimportant matters as the names and addresses of the auditors. His remedy is against the 'directors and other persons responsible for the prospectus.'"

This remedy is founded on general principles. Thus in Crouch v. Steel, 3 E. & B. 402, the broad principle was laid down that whenever a statutory duty is created, any person who can show that he has sustained injury from the non-performance of that duty can bring an action for damages against the person on whom the duty is imposed; but in Atkinson v. Newcastle and Gateshead Waterworks Co. (1877), 2 Ex. Div. 441, it was decided that this proposition could not be supported—that it was too widely stated—and that in determining whether a person prejudiced by the non-performance of a statutory duty was entitled to bring an action for damages, regard must be had to the purview of the Legislature in the particular Act, and the language employed therein. See, for example, Cowley v. Newmarket Local Board, (1892) A. C. 345; Municipality of Picton v. Geldert, (1893) A. C. 524; Saunders v. Holborn District Board of Works, (1895) 1 Q. B. 64; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto, (1898) A. C. 447, 454; and Groves v. Wimborne, (1898) 2 Q. B. 402. There can be no doubt that sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 imposes on the directors and other persons responsible a statutory duty to comply with its requirements, and the purview of the Act and the language employed both indicate an intention to protect subscribers who act on the faith of a prospectus, and therefore entitle them to sue for damages sustained by breach of the statutory duty.

In such an action the plaintiff must prove

- (a) That the defendant issued, or authorized or sanctioned the issue, of the prospectus:

- (b) That the prospectus did not truly set forth the information required by sect. 81 of the Act;
- (c) That the matter untruly stated or suppressed was material;
- (d) That the plaintiff was induced to subscribe by the non-compliance with the section;
- (e) That the plaintiff has sustained consequential damages

There is no need to prove fraud, and, on the other hand, non-compliance may be excused where the defendant has no cognizance. See sub-sect. (6) (a) of sect. 81.

For instance, he is not misled or damaged where he is shown to have had knowledge of the omitted information, or where, by his own admission or otherwise, it is shown that, had he been cognisant of the omitted information, he would none the less have applied, or where it is not shown that knowledge of the omitted information at any rate might have induced him to abstain from applying. In this respect Nash v. Calthorpe, (1905) 2 Ch. 237, though decided on sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, appears to be in point; and see Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Macleay v. Tait, (1906) A. C. 24. With regard, however, to the influence of a prospectus, Lord Halsbury's observations in the case last mentioned may be cited, where he says that where misstatements have been made in a prospectus and people been led thereby "to take shares, the taking of which has led to loss, it is quite a fair inference to draw, that if the prospectus is calculated to induce people to take shares, and they do take shares, that the prospectus, tainted with falsehood as it is, has acted as a whole, and people cannot be expected to analyse their own mental sensations so minutely as to be able to explain what particular statement had induced them to become shareholders."

And see similar observations by the same learned judge in Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, 284, supra.

Directors' Defences.

He was not cognisant thereof" (see supra, p. 175). These words, it is apprehended, mean merely that he did not know of the matter disclosed. The section does not impose on a director the duty to search for and obtain information as to facts not within his own knowledge.

Thus, a director only has to consider what contracts he personally is cognisant of, and which of them he has to disclose. He is not bound to investigate the whole position and history of the company, so as to find out every material contract, nor is he expected to know everything that is in the books of the company.

But if he knows generally that there are contracts in existence which may or may not fall within the section, and does not choose to inquire into those contracts at all, the absence of inquiry and consequent ignorance would not excuse him from liability if it turned out that some of the contracts ought to have been set out, and he might have ascertained that by making proper inquiries. Per Romer, L. J., in Tait v. Macleay, (1904) 2 Ch. 631, 639, supra, a case on sect. 38 of the Act of 1867, reversed, but not on this point, in (1906) A. C. 24. And see Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 766; and Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

It is to be noted that sub-sect. (6) in no way applies to a statement in lieu of prospectus under sect. 82 of the Act.

"Honest mistake of fact." This relates to facts which by the section have to be stated; thus, if by an honest mistake the directors state that A. B. is the vendor, whereas C. D. is the vendor, the directors will be absolved.

Whether a particular contract is or is not material within paragraph (k) of sub-sect. (1) is a question of fact, and if by an honest mistake the directors hold that it is not material, they will be absolved. The fact that they have taken legal advice, and have acted thereon, is evidence of honesty.

In this respect the section ameliorates the law as it stood under sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, for under that section a mistake as to the materiality of a contract afforded no defence to an action. Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469; Macleay v. Tait, (1906) A. C. 24. And see infra, p. 205.

The onus probandi. If the plaintiff in an action proves a breach of the sub-section, he is not bound to go further and prove that the director or other person sued was cognisant of the matter not disclosed, or that he acted dishonestly. It is for the defendant to set up and establish, if he can, one of the defences allowed by this sub-section. In this respect—putting the onus on the director—the enactment follows the analogy of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, now embodied in sect. 84 of the Act of 1908.

Circular to existing members or debenture holders.

(7) This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or debentures of the company whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to any prospectus whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently.

"Shall not apply," &c. The words "shall not apply," &c., introduce an obviously reasonable qualification. Existing members do not need the same protection as persons newly subscribing. There was an ambiguity in the language of the sub-section as it stood in the Act of 1900, which left it doubtful whether the words were to be read distributively, namely, as referring to a circular offering members further shares, and (2) to a circular offering debenture holders further debentures; or whether they included a circular offering to members either shares or debentures, and to a circular offering debenture holders either shares or debentures, or both. This ambiguity has been cleared up in the Consolidation Act of 1908.

Subject as aforesaid," &c. These words make it clear that the section is not confined to the first issue, except in the cases expressly mentioned.

8) The requirements as to the memorandum, and the qualification, remuneration, and interest of directors, the names, descriptions, and addresses of directors or proposed directors, and the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued more than one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

Relaxation of requirements where prospectus published more than a year after company entitled to commence business.

"The requirements," &c. These requirements are those set forth in sub-sect. (1) in the earlier part of clause (a) and in clauses b), (c), (i) and (m).

Entitled to commence business." See sect. 87, supra, p. 20.

9) Nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law apart from this section.

Liability under general law preserved.

Hence any action which would lie, apart from this section, will still be available. Thus, even if the prospectus complies with the section, it may still by reason of false or fraudulent statements give a subscriber the right to take legal proceedings for rescission of his contract, or for compensation or damages, under sect. 84, incorporating the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, or in an action of deceit. See further, infra, p. 202.

Naming Directors in Prospectus.

As to naming unqualified directors in prospectus, see sect. 72 of the Act of 1908, supra, p. 6.

Sect. 72 of Act of 1908.

As to Filing Prospectus.

In addition to the above provision, sect. 80 of the Act must be borne in mind, which runs thus:—

80.—(1.) Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company or in relation to any intended company shall be dated, and that date shall, unless the contrary be proved, be taken as the date of publication of the prospectus.

Filing of

(2.) A copy of every such prospectus shall be signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director of the company, or by his agent authorised in writing, and shall be filed for registration with the registrar of companies on or before the date of its publication.

(3.) The registrar shall not register any prospectus unless it is dated and the copy signed in manner required by this section.

(4.) Every prospectus shall state on the face of it that a copy has been filed for registration as required by this section.

(5.) If a prospectus is issued without a copy thereof being so filed, the company and every person who is knowingly a party to the issue of the prospectus shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day from the date of the issue of the prospectus until a copy thereof is so filed.

The object generally of this section is twofold—(1) To preserve an authentic record of the terms on which the public have been invited to subscribe for shares, debentures, or debenture stock; and (2) to secure that the directors of the company accept responsibility for the statements in the prospectus.

It would seem to make a company's prospectus (or statement in lieu of prospectus, see sect. 82), like its memorandum and articles, a public document, of which all persons dealing with the company will have constructive notice, and it remains to be seen how this new departure may affect the purchaser of shares in the market. See Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 403; Andrews v. Mockford (1896) 1 Q. B. 172.

The words "every prospectus," &c., mean every "prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement, or other invitation offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures [or debenture stock] of a company." See sect. 285.

The words "by or on behalf of a company or in relation to any intended company" apply the section to every company registered under the Act. The section also extends to every prospectus issued before the company is registered.

Moreover, it is not confined to prospectuses of a company or notices inviting persons to subscribe for shares, as was the now repealed sect. 38 of the Act of 1867.

It applies also to a prospectus which offers shares, debentures, or debenture stock for sale, e.g., where they are taken by vendors or financiers and then offered for sale by the company.

It does not apply to a prospectus issued by the owners of shares in a company which has been actually registered who desire to dispose thereof, for the prospectus is not "issued by or on behalf" of "the company," but it would seem to apply to such a prospectus if issued by the company on behalf of the owners. And although sect. 80 does not apply in a given case, it may still be necessary to comply with sect. 81, e.g., where the prospectus is issued by or on behalf of some person "who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company." See first paragraph of sect. 81.

Letters of a private nature recommending shares to a few business friends are not a prospectus. Sleigh v. Glasgow and Transvaal Options, 6 F. 420, Ct. Sess.

Nor is a prospectus marked "Strictly private and confidential:

not for publication," issued by a director on his own account to private friends. Showell v. Combined Incandescent Mantles Syndicate, 23 T. L. R. 482.

Date of Prospectus. The prospectus must be dated, and the date is of importance, as, unless the contrary is proved, it is to be taken as the date of publication of the prospectus. See sect. 72 (1) and sect. 85 (4).

A copy of the prospectus must be filed on or before the date of its publication, and unless "dated and the copy signed in manner required" it is not to be registered, which probably means that a copy must not be accepted for filing unless it is so dated and signed. Apparently, therefore, it may bear a date posterior to that of the filing. On the other hand, it must, before it is issued, state on the face of it that it has been filed before being issued, but the date of filing need not be mentioned. Presumably, as a copy must be filed, that copy also must state that the prospectus has been filed, although when the prospectus is signed—and it must be signed before filing it has not been filed. To make sense, the words "proposed to be issued" should be read into sub-sect. (2) after the word "prospectus."

No prospectus shall be issued until," &c. This makes compliance with the section a condition precedent to the issue of a prospectus as defined by sect. 285. If a prospectus not duly dated and signed is submitted for filing the registrar will reject it.

The section extends not merely to the first prospectus, but to all subsequent prospectuses. If a prospectus is issued before it has been filed the issue is illegal, and those who make it may be criminally liable. Reg. v. Tyler, (1891) 2 Q. B. 594. Moreover, anyone who subscribes on the faith of a prospectus so issued may be held entitled to repudiate his contract, for no company can keep a contract obtained on the faith of an illegal prospectus.

A fortiori, if the prospectus thus wrongfully issued states, in apparent compliance with the section, that it has been filed, this false statement entitles any subscriber to repudiate his contract and to take proceedings under sect. 84, replacing sects. 3 and 4 of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890.

Sect. 83 of the Companies Act, 1908, is as follows:

83. A company shall not prior to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting.

Restriction on alteration of terms mentioned in prospectus.

See the notes to sect. 87 in Chap. V. p. 332. As to the statutory meeting, see sect. 65, and the notes thereto in Chap. IX. p. 689

As to Attractiveness of Prospectus.

Attractiveness of prospectus.

No receipt can be given for making a prospectus attractive. The attractiveness must depend essentially on the subject-matter and on the condition of the market. Where a company is formed to take over some well-known and profitable business concern, a very plain and unadorned statement of the facts may be enough to induce the public to rush in and subscribe for three times the number of shares offered. And where, as so often happens, the public is for the time being specially enamoured of some class of investment (e.g., gold, electric light, cycles, motor-cars, breweries, trusts, or industrial concerns), a very prosaic prospectus may suffice. But there are many schemes which, though perfectly sound and bonâ fide, may yet have little or no chance of floating without the assistance of a prospectus framed with great skill and judgment so as to put its merits in the right light: in fact, a scheme may be good in itself, but, unless the public can be made to see its excellence, the capital will not be forthcoming.

Effect on public of names of directors,
brokers, auditors, and solicitors and promoters

It need scarcely be said that the names of the directors, brokers, auditors, and solicitors given in a prospectus are regarded by the public and their advisers as affording a good criterion of the character of the scheme put forward; for it is—perhaps too readily—assumed that persons of credit and position who thus officially associate themselves with a new venture, have at any rate satisfied themselves as to the bona fides of the undertaking, and think sufficiently well of it to prospect to lend their names; whereas, if the directors and others are unknown persons, à fortiori, if any of them are in bad odour, the public and their advisers may naturally feel distrust, may hesitate and think it better to abstain from subscribing. So, too, the fact that a company is launched by professional promoters may affect the public subscription unfavourably.

The above are matters for the consideration of the promoter and financier more than of the lawyer: at the same time, when a prospectus is submitted to a lawyer for settlement, he would be wanting in his duty to his clients were he to confine himself to the mere legal aspects of the case, and not to point out practical defects which strike him as likely to prejudice an appeal to the public.

Significant Omissions and Vague Statements.

No significant omissions or vagueness.

Take, for instance, the case of a going concern: the following questions may arise on the prospectus:—

Where a going concern

- (1) If this is such a very profitable concern, why does the vendor part with it—or part with it on such moderate terms?
- (2) What have been the average profits during the last few years? Have they been rising or falling?

- (3) Has any independent person or firm examined the books and certified as to the profits?
- (4) Does the vendor take any substantial proportion of the purchase consideration in shares, or does he retire altogether?
- (5) Has any and what independent valuation been made of the assets to be taken over, and how much is to be given for goodwill?
- (6) Have the vendors agreed not to compete with the company?
- (7) Is the real proprietor selling to the company, or is there an intermediate vendor, and is he making a profit on the transaction?
- (8) Are the vendors paying any promotion money and, if so, how much?

The "General Law" as to Liability in respect of Prospectuses.

Sect. 81 (9) of the Act provides that "nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law or this Act apart from this section."

Hence, any cause of action, which would lie, apart from sect. 81, is still available. Thus, even if the prospectus complies with that section, it may by reason of untrue or misleading statements give a subscriber the right to take legal proceedings for rescission of his contract, or for compensation or damages under sect. 84 (incorporating the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890), or in an action of deceit. See infra.

It is necessary, therefore, to consider what are the requirements of the general law as to prospectuses irrespective of this section (sect. 81), and as to this the following rules should be borne in mind:—

- (1) The prospectus should not contain a misrepresentation of any material fact, or any deceptive or misleading statement, or any ambiguous statement, which is not true in every sense in which it might reasonably be understood.
- (2) It should disclose every material fact subject to the qualifications below mentioned. As to what are material facts, see p. 171, supra.
- (3) The provisions of sect. 84 (reproducing the Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (p. 208)), should be borne in mind, and the precautions below suggested (p. 222 et seq.) should be taken.

The disregard of these rules may give any allottee of shares—

- (a) The right to repudiate the allotment and rescind the contract;
- (b) The right to sue, for damages or compensation, those who issue the prospectus, and others who are by statute responsible—a most serious liability.

And, first, as to the cases in which the allottee, induced by the prospectus to subscribe, is entitled to rescind on the ground of misrepresentation or non-disclosure—suggestio falsi or suppressio veri.

Legal requirements before Act of 1900.

Effect of non-compliance.

Repudiation for misrepresentation or non-disclosure.

In order to establish this right, the allottee must prove—

- (1) That the prospectus was issued by the company or by some director, promoter, or other person whose acts the company has authorized or adopted.
- (2) That the prospectus mis-represented some material fact, or omitted to disclose some material fact or contract.
- (3) That he was induced to subscribe by such misrepresentation or non-disclosure.

Proof of issue by company or directors or promoters.

As to (1), there is rarely any difficulty in proving this. In most cases the prospectus is issued after the incorporation of the company, and with the sanction of its directors. Clearly, in such cases the representations of the prospectus are as between the company and the persons who apply for shares on the faith of the prospectus, the representations of the company. Lagunas Nitrate Company v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 428, 431. In other cases the prospectus is issued by the promoters on the formation of the company, and the directors allot with knowledge that the shares are subscribed on the basis of the prospectus. Here again the company, in effect, adopts the prospectus.

Occasionally a prospectus is issued by the promoters before the company's incorporation, and applications are made on the basis of that prospectus and handed in after incorporation. In such cases also the company, in accepting the applications and allotting the shares, in effect adopts the prospectus and, if it is misleading, cannot keep the contract so obtained. Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 13. "Speaking generally, there is," said Lindley, L. J., in that case, "no doubt that a misrepresentation, in order to vitiate a contract, must be made by a party to it, or by his agent. But this rule is not without exception. Stewart's case, 1 Ch. 574, and Dornes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 343, warrant the proposition that an application to a company, when formed, for shares based upon a prospectus issued by the promoters of the company before its formation, cannot be discovered by the company from such prospectus." In Karberg's case, supra, the application was made before incorporation. It was addressed to one of the promoters, and stated that the applicant desired to subscribe for 200 shares in the proposed company, and requested the promoter, "on the formation thereof, to obtain the allotment of such shares to me"; but it did not refer to the prospectus, although in fact the applicant underwrote on the basis of a prospectus. After its incorporation, the company allotted the shares so applied for, and it was held that the allottee was entitled, as against the company, to rescission of the contract on the ground of misrepresentation in the prospectus.

This case is the more important because the directors, in allotting, were not aware that the application was made on the basis of the prospectus. This was found as a fact by Kekewich, J. (p. 6): "The company received from Mr. Karberg an application for shares independently of any prospectus; it is not shown that they ever knew that he made the application on the faith of the prospectus, nor even that he had received any prospectus at all from anyone." This appears to have been overlooked in Lynde v. Anglo-Italian Hemp, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 178, for in that case Romer, J., treats Karberg's case as an instance of an allotment where "the directors of a company know, when allotting, that an application for shares is based on the statements contained in a prospectus."

For other cases in which a company has been held responsible for a prospectus, see Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249; Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Ch. 682; Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 491; Re Denham, 25 C. D. 752, 765; Tamplin's case, W. N. (1892) 94, 146.

Nor can the company, where the prospectus is improperly framed escape the consequence by throwing the blame on its directors, and saying that it did not authorize them to make any misrepresentation; for "the cases clearly show this—that any misrepresentations made by the agents of a company which form the foundation of a contract between that company and a third person—those misrepresentations lying at the root of the contract—will entitle the other party to avoid the contract, and the company must in that sense take upon themselves the consequences of the misrepresentations of their agents." Per Page-Wood, V.-C., Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249, 261.

On the same principle, where A. takes shares as agent for B., but without disclosing to the company the agency, B. cannot claim relief unless A. was deceived. Capel v. Sims, 58 L. T. 807; Huslop v. Morel, 7 T. L. R. 263.

As to (2), the obligation of those who issue prospectuses inviting application for shares was long since laid down by Vice-Chancellor Kindersley in Brunswick, &c. Co. v. Muggeridge (1861), 1 Dr. & Sm. 383, in words which Page-Wood, V.-C., described as a "golden rule." Henderson v. Lacon (1867), 5 Eq. 362. "Those," said Kindersley, V.-C., "who issue a prospectus, holding out to the public the gr. advantages which will accrue to persons who will take shares in a proposed undertaking, and inviting them to take shares on the faith of the representations therein contained, are bound to state everything with strict and scrupulous accuracy, and not only to abstain from stating as fact that which is not so, but to omit no one fact within their knowledge the existence of which might in any degree affect the nature, or extent, or quality, of the privileges and advantages which the prospectus holds out as inducements to take shares." And in Central Railway of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 113, Lord Chelmsford said that, though some high colouring and even exaggeration in the description of advantages to be enjoyed by subscribers might be expected, no misstatement or concealment of any material facts or circumstances ought to be permitted; that the public who were invited by a prospectus to join in any new venture ought to have the same opportunity of judging of everything which has a material bearing on the true character of the adventure, as the promoters themselves possessed, and that the utmost candour ought to characterise their public statements; and his Lordship referred with approval to the rule laid down by Kindersley, V.-C., as above mentioned.

The golden rule as to framing prospectuses.

Nevertheless, this "golden rule" partakes somewhat of the nature of a "counsel of perfection"; at all events, it has been qualified by subsequent decision. Thus, in Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 493, it was held that, to support an action of deceit, there must be some active misstatement of fact, or, at all events, such a partial or fragmentary statement of fact as that the withholding of that which is not stated makes that which is stated absolutely false; but this, it may be observed, was said in regard to an action of deceit, in which fraud is of the essence of the action, and which differs essentially from one brought to obtain rescission on the ground of misrepresentation of a material fact. Per Herschell, L. C., Derry v. Peek (1889), 14 App. Cas. 359.

In McKeown v. Boudard, &c. Co. (1896), 74 L. T. 712, however, it was held that even in an action for rescission mere non-disclosure of material facts is not sufficient to vitiate the contract. "I think," said Rigby, L. J., in that case, "the law is this, that if you rely as a ground for the rescission of a contract on the omission of a statement, you must show that the omission of that statement makes what is stated misleading. It is not that the omission of material facts is an independent ground for rescission, but the omission must be of such a nature as to make the statement actually made misleading. In other words . . . suppression of the truth may contain a suggestion of falsity." And see Components Tube Co. v. Naylor, (1900) 2 I. R. 1.

So, also, in Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, Lord Watson said: "The duty of disclosure is not the same in a prospectus inviting share subscriptions as in the case of a proposal for marine insurance. In an honest prospectus many facts and circumstances may be carefully omitted, although some subscribers might be of opinion that these would have been of materiality as influencing the exercise of their judgment. But the statement of a portion of the truth, accompanied by suggestions and inferences which would be possible and credible if it contained the whole truth, but becomes neither possible nor credible whenever the whole truth is divulged, is, to my mind, neither more nor less than a false statement." See also, Heymann v. European Central Rail. Co., 7 Eq. 154.

In Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss the prospectus standing alone did not contain any misrepresentation of facts, but read in conjunction with certain contracts offered thereby for inspection, it was false and misleading, and relief was granted accordingly; and the following words of Lord Halsbury are specially deserving of attention: "It is said that there is no specific allegation of fact which is proved to be false. Again, I protest, as I have said, against that being the true test. I should say, taking the whole thing together, was this a misrepresentation? I do not care by what means it is conveyed—by what trick, or device, or ambiguous language: all these are expedients by which fraudulent people seem to think they can escape from the real conditions of the transaction. If, by a number of statements, you intentionally give a false impression, and induce a person to act upon it, it is not the less false, although, if one takes each statement by itself, there may be a difficulty in showing that any specific statement is untrue." See, further, supra, p. 177.

But, of course, a person getting a false impression from a prospectus does not make the prospectus misleading, unless there is something in the prospectus calculated to cause such a false impression. Many people deceive themselves.

A misrepresentation of law is not a misrepresentation of fact. Law or fact.
Beattie v. Lord Ebury, 7 Ch. 777.

But a statement of something as a fact is not the less a representation of fact because it involves a representation of law. West London Commercial Bank v. Kitson, 13 Q. B. Div. 360; Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337; New Brunswick Co. v. Conybeare, 9 H. L. C. 711; Eaglesfield v. Londonderry, 4 C. Div. 693, 702. In the case last mentioned, Jessel, M. R., said, "A misrepresentation of law is this: When you state the facts, and state a conclusion of law, so as to distinguish between facts and law, the man who knows the facts is taken to know the law; but when you state that as a fact which no doubt involves, as most facts do, a conclusion of law, that is still a statement of fact and not a statement of law." Accordingly, in Derry v. Peek, ubi sup., it was not disputed that a statement that a company had by special Act of Parliament certain powers was a statement of fact.

A representation that something will or should be done or come to pass is not necessarily a representation of fact; e.g., the company "will construct," or "will acquire further concessions," or "on these figures the profits should be very large." The authorities establish that a mere representation that something "will" be done is not a representation of fact; for "there is a clear difference between a misrepresentation in point of fact, a representation that something exists at the moment which does not exist, and a representation that something will be done in the future. Of course, a representation that something will be done in the future cannot either be true or false at the moment it is made, and although you may call it a representation, if it is anything, it is a contract or promise." Per Mellish, L. J. Beattie v. Lord Ebury, 7 Ch. 804. And see Alderson v. Maddison, 5 Ex. D. 293, and (sub nom. Maddison v. Alderson) 8 App. Cas. 467; Hallows v. Fernie, 3 Ch. 467; Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 562;

Belief, opinion expectation, intention.

Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137. Thus a calculation as to future profits is not a statement of fact. Bentley v. Black, 9 T. L. R. 580.

But "a representation of belief, opinion, expectation, or intention is a representation of an existing fact, for the state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the state of his digestion. It is true that it is very difficult to prove what is the state of a man's mind at a particular time, but if it can be ascertained, it is as much a fact as anything else. A misrepresentation as to the state of a man's mind is, therefore, a misstatement of fact." Per Bowen, L. J., Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459, 483. See also Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377, 404, where Lord Cairns appears to have considered that a statement as to the opinion of the directors might, if false, have amounted to a misrepresentation of fact. And see Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1, 11.

"But . . . I do not think," said Lord Halsbury, L. C., in Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, 284, "any particular form of words is necessary to convey a false impression. Suppose a person goes to a bank where the people are foolish enough to believe his words, and says, 'I want a mortgage upon my house, and my house is not completed, but in the course of next week I expect to have it fully completed.' Suppose there was not a house upon his land at all, and no possibility, therefore, that it could be fully completed, can anybody say that that was not an affirmative representation that there was a house which was so near to completion that it only required another week's work upon it to complete it? . . . So here, when I look at the language in which this prospectus is couched, and see that it speaks of a property which requires only the erection of machinery to be either at once or shortly in a condition to do work, so as to obtain all this valuable metal from the mine, it seems to me that, although it is put in ambidextrous language, it means as plainly as can be that this is now the condition of the mine: that such and such additions to it will enable it shortly to produce all those great results, and that there is a representation of an actually existing fact. . . . If you are looking to the language, as only the language of hope, expectation, and belief, that is one thing; but . . . you may use language in such a way as, although in the form of hope and expectation, it may become a representation as to existing facts; and if so, and if it is brought to your knowledge that those facts are false, it is a fraud."

It is conceived that there is nothing inconsistent with these views in Jordan v. Money, 5 H. L. C. 185; Citizens' Bank v. First National Bank, L. R. 6 H. L. 352, 360; and Maddison v. Alderson, 8 App. Cas. 467. A man who truly states his intention is not estopped from changing that intention. The expression of intention may, in some circumstances, amount to a contract, or to evidence of a contract, but it does not give rise to an estoppel. See Re Moore Brothers & Co., Bartholomew's case, 79 L. T. 70.

In Todd v. Millen (1910), S. C. 868, Ct. of Sess., the prospectus of a company signed by the vendors, who were directors of the company, stated that the vendors "have agreed to subscribe for the balance of 500l. of the ordinary shares," and it was held on the liquidator's application to put the vendors on the list of contributories, that the language of the prospectus did not import a contract between the company and the vendors binding the vendors to take the shares (diss. Lord Galvesen). Re Moore Brothers, supra, followed.

As to liability in case of careless language and ambiguous statements:—The representation relied on as misleading need not be clear and unambiguous, if it is reasonably capable of bearing the meaning which the allottee attributed to it; for "if persons publishing a prospectus use such careless language that their statements, literally read, are untrue, although this literal sense is different from what they intended, this amounts to a misrepresentation." Per Lord Chelmsford, Hallows v. Fernie, 3 Ch. 476. This has been repeatedly laid down by judges of eminence. "A person who issues a statement is not only answerable for what he in his own mind intended to represent, but he is answerable for what anyone might reasonably suppose to be the meaning of the words he has used." Per Cotton, L. J., Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 C. Div. 322.

Careless language and ambiguous statements.

"If a man makes a statement, which according to its ordinary meaning bears a particular construction, he, in my opinion, is liable to those who reading it and construing it reasonably do put upon it the primary meaning and the fair construction of the words used." Per Cotton, L. J., Peck v. Derry, 37 C. D. 541.

In the case of an ambiguous statement, it is immaterial that the words are intended by those who issue the prospectus to be understood in a sense in which they are true, if they are reasonably capable of being understood in a sense in which they are false, and the allottee shows that he understood them in that sense. Smith v. Chadwick, 20 C. Div. 27, 45; 9 App. Cas. 187.

"If a man uses language which taken in its natural sense conveys a wrong impression, he cannot be heard to say that he did not intend to deceive." Per Lindley, L. J., Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. D. 372.

But the construction which the recipient of a prospectus is entitled to put upon it must be a reasonable construction, that is one which the words will fairly admit of. See Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459. There it was held that the plaintiff had no right to assume that the word "debentures" used in the prospectus imported any charge on the company's property.

Misrepresentation of a single material fact or (in the case of shares) suppression of a single material fact may be sufficient to entitle the allottee to rescission. Derry v. Peck, 14 App. Cas. 359; London and Staffordshire Co., 24 C. D. 149; Denton v. Macneil, 2 Eq. 352, 355. But see cases at p. 175, supra.

Single misrepresentation or suppression sufficient.

Belief of directors in truth of statement.

And where a representation as to a material fact in a prospectus is untrue, it is no defence, where rescission of contract is sought, that it was an innocent one, and the directors when they made it believed it to be true. The shareholder is equally prejudiced. See judgment of Lord Cairns in Smith's case, 2 Ch. 601, 615, and in Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 79; Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. D. 320; Mathias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 502 (Ct. of App.).

Evidence of misrepresentation and non-disclosure.

As to evidence of misrepresentation and non-disclosure:

The shareholder, whether he seeks to rescind his contract or sue for damages, must, of course, prove the facts he relies on. Evidence of information and belief is not admissible in such cases, for the proceeding is not interlocutory in character. Gilbert v. Endean, 9 C. Div. 266. The shareholder may, of course, rely on the admission of the defendants. But, if an admission of the company is relied on, it must be shown that it was made in such circumstances as to bind the company. For example, in British Burmah Co., 56 L. T. 815, the company had directed an expert to report on the value of the mine, and his report, to the effect that it was worthless, though read at a general meeting of the company and circulated among the shareholders, was not allowed to be taken as an admission by the company. See also Dorval Provident Co., 22 C. D. 593.

Examples of Misrepresentations.

Examples of material misrepresentations.

The following are examples of material misrepresentations and non-disclosure entitling to rescission:

- (1) Where the company was formed to construct and work a railway, and it was—(1) untruly stated that the contract for the execution of the works had been entered into with a responsible contractor; (2) untruly stated that the contract price was considerably within the available capital; (3) not mentioned that the concessions which the company was formed to carry out had been purchased from the original grantor at a cost of 50,000*l.* See Central Ry. Co. of Venezuela v. Kissel, L. R. 2 H. L. 99.
- (2) Where it was untruly stated that "more than half the first issue of shares has been already subscribed for," and that "upwards of 70,000*l.* has already been expended on the estate by the vendor in buildings and improvements, in addition to the purchase-money paid by him for the land." See Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Eq. 122; 3 Ch. 682.
- (3) Where it was stated that "one-half the required capital has been subscribed by the directors and their friends," whereas not one-fourth had been subscribed. Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588; 3 Ch. 493. And see Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249, and Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. Div. 348.
- (4) Where it was stated that a particular mine "containing very valuable claims, some of which are in full operation, and make large daily returns," had been contracted to be purchased, whereas the mine was, in fact, worthless, and there were no claims in operation. Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64.

- 5) Where, in the case of a banking company, it was untruly stated (a) that the bank had arranged to take over several successful banking institutions of old standing; and (b) that the directors had had an offer of support as to capital and business from a large and powerful bank in Paris. See Curling v. London and Leeds Bank, 56 L. T. 115.
- (6) Where it was stated that "the surplus assets, as appear by the last balance-sheet, amount to upwards of 10,000L." whereas, in fact, there was a deficit. See London and Staffordshire Co., 24 C. D. 149. In this case it was admitted that the misrepresentation was made bona fide in consequence of a mistake of fact, but relief by rescission was granted.
- (7) Where some of the directors named in the prospectus had not accepted office. Blake's case, 34 Beav. 639; compare Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 C. D. 3; and Hallows v. Fernie, 3 Ch. 467; and where some of the members of the council of administration had not consented to act. Hainwright's case, 62 L. T. 30; 63 L. T. 429; Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1.
- (8) Where the company was formed to acquire a business, and it was stated that the profits of the business had, during a specified period, amounted to or averaged so much, whereas in fact they were much less. Glazier v. Rolfe, 42 C. D. 436.
- (9) Where the company was formed to work a mine, and it was untruly stated that a particular reef or bed had been found on the property, and that the mine was similar in character to some other mine. See Mount Morgan Co., 56 L. T. 622.
- (10) Where it was stated untruly that the profits had amounted to 17 per cent. on the capital employed. Glazier v. Rolfe, 42 C. D. 436.
- (11) Where it was stated that the company had an agreement to acquire part of a well-known mine, whereas it was an entirely different property.
- (12) Where it was stated that the promoters had expended a large specified sum in opening up or testing the property, whereas the statement was wholly, or to a considerable extent, untrue.
- (13) Where the prospectus stated in effect that the company was formed to acquire an existing patent, whereas only provisional protection had been obtained. Scott v. Snyder, & Co., 66 L. T. 278.
- (14) Where the company was formed to work a patented invention, and it was stated that it had obtained an exclusive licence to work such invention in a particular district, whereas the licence was not exclusive.
- (15) Where it was stated that no promotion money was to be paid, whereas there was an agreement to pay large sums. Lodwick v. Earl of Perth, 1 T. L. R. 76.
- (16) Where it was stated that the company held the property under lease at a small ground rent, whereas there was a considerable royalty in addition.
- (17) Where it was stated that a specified sum was to be paid for the property, whereas the sum included a large sum for promotion money. Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588; Gibb v. Great Southern Mysore Co., Ct. of App. 10 Feb. 1882; Capel v. Sims, 58 L. T. 807.
- (18) Where the company was formed to buy a mine, and extracts from the report of an expert were set forth which gave a misleading impression of the report, and induced the belief that the mine was similar to a rich adjacent mine. Mount Morgan Co., 56 L. T. 622.
- (19) Where the company was formed to work an invention, and it was untruly stated that a contract had been made for the purchase from the company of 50,000 of the patented machines. Snook v. Self-Acting Co., 3 T. L. R. 612.

- (20) Where in the case of a tramway company it was stated that the company had by the special Act the right to use steam, whereas it only had that right with the sanction of the Board of Trade. Derry v. Peek, 11 App. Cas. 337.
- (21) Where it was untruly stated that the guaranteed dividend was secured by deposit with trustees of a sufficient amount of Government securities. Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137.
- (22) Where a promoter, who was to get part of the purchase-money, was untruly put forward as one of the vendors. Capel v. Sims, 58 L. T. 807.
- (23) Where it was untruly stated that the vendor was to pay all the preliminary expenses. Liberian Government Concessions, 9 T. L. R. 136.
- (24) Where it was untruly stated that the company were the sole manufacturers of asbestos in France, and had a practical monopoly. Hyde v. New Asbestos Co., 8 T. L. R. 121.
- (25) Where it was untruly stated that the company's process was a commercial success. Stirling v. Pancharg Gases, 8 T. L. R. 71.
- (26) Where it was stated that the vendors to the company had purchased for 140,000*l.* payable in cash, and had agreed to re-sell to the company for 180,000*l.*, whereas they had also purchased debentures incumbering the same property, on which they had made a further profit of 20,000*l.*, which was only referred to in the prospectus as follows: "Any other profits made by the syndicate"—the vendors—"from interim investments are excluded from the sale to the company." Gluckstein v. Burnes, (1900) A. C. 240.
- (27) Where it was stated that the vendors of nitrate grounds had obtained and brought, in pipes, to them a supply of water, and that the company would have the right of using a certain part of the water, whereas the water supply was insufficient. Lugunas Nitrate Co. v. Lugunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392, 397, 429.
- (28) Where it was falsely represented that patented articles were a commercial success and beyond the experimental stage. Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 921.
- (29) Where it was stated that share capital had been "subscribed," when in fact it had only been allotted in fully paid shares to the company's contractor. Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 567.

Other instances of misrepresentations may be found in Jackson v. Turquand, L. R. 4 H. L. 305; Moore v. Explosives Co., 56 L. J. Ch. 235; Wright's case, L. R. 7 Ch. 35; Lyon's case, 35 Beav. 646; Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 562; New Brunswick Co. v. Congreave, 9 H. L. C. 724; Nicol's case, 3 D. G. & J. 387; Re Devala Provident Gold Mining Co., 22 Ch. D. 593; Drincqbier v. Wood, (1899) 1 Ch. 393; Components Tube Co. v. Naylor, (1900) 2 Ir. R. 1 Q. B.

The following are instances in which the misrepresentation or non-disclosure relied on was held to be insufficient:

- (1) Where it was stated that an invention to be acquired by the company had been tested, and that according to the experiments the material could be produced at a specified cost, but that it was intended to test the invention further, and it in fact turned out worthless. Denton v. Macneil, 2 Eq. 352.

Examples of cases where the misrepresentation or non-disclosure was insufficient

- 2) Where the prospectus mentioned "a guaranteed dividend of not less than 15 per cent. for the first five years," whereas there was only some unrecorded understanding with the vendor that he was to give such guarantee. Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588. Here it was considered that there was enough to put the plaintiff on inquiry.
- 3) Where the prospectus did not disclose an arrangement between promoter and director for the qualification of the latter. Hegmann v. European Central Rail. Co., 7 Eq. 151; and see Glover's case, 1 C. Div. 182.
- 4) Where the prospectus omitted to state that the company would have to make a deposit of 20,000*l.* by way of guarantee, with liability to forfeiture. Central Rail. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; and see Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187.
- 5) Where it was stated that the company was to have "a free grant of 30,000 acres in the provinces through which the railway is to pass," whereas the 30,000 acres were to be granted only out of the provinces benefited by the railway, and private property in those provinces was excepted. Central Rail. Co. v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. at p. 115.
- 6) Where a government guarantee of 9 per cent. per annum on the capital was mentioned, without reference to the fact that it was to last so long only as the capital did not produce 9 per cent. for a reason not imputable to the company.
- 7) Where it was stated that certain reports on the property had been prepared "for the directors," though really made for the promoters. But in this case there was no finding of fraud. Angus v. Clifford, (1891) 2 Ch. 419.

As to (3), supra, p. 133.

The allottee is not entitled to rescission unless he was induced to enter into the contract by the representation or suppression which he establishes, that is unless it was dans locum contractui.

It is not an inference of law that a party who takes shares on a prospectus containing a misrepresentation was induced to subscribe by that misrepresentation. Per Lord Blackburn, in Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187. It is a question of fact to be determined with due regard to all the circumstances. But "if it is proved that the defendants, with a view to induce the plaintiff to enter into a contract, made a statement to the plaintiff of such a nature as would be likely to induce a person to enter into a contract, and it is proved that the plaintiff did enter into the contract, it is a fair inference of fact that he was induced to do so by the statement." Per Lord Blackburn. ibid. p. 196. And the following passage from the judgment of Lord Halsbury, L. C., in Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. D. 369, points in the same direction. "It is," said his Lordship, "an old expedient, and seldom successful, to cross-examine a person who has read a prospectus, and ask him as to each particular statement what influence it had on his mind, and how far it determined him to enter into the contract. This is quite fallacious; it assumes that a person who reads a prospectus and determines to take shares on the faith of it, can appropriate among the different parts of it, the effect produced by the whole. This can rarely be done even at the time, and for a shareholder thus to analyse his mental impressions after an interval of several years, so as to say which representation in particular induced him to take shares, is a thing all but impossible. A person reading the prospectus looks at it as a whole, he thinks the undertaking is a fine commercial speculation, he sees good names attached to it, he observes other points which he thinks favourable, and on the whole he forms his conclusion. You cannot weigh the elements by ounces. It was said, and I think justly, by Sir G. Jessel, in Smith v. Chadwick, that if the Court sees on the faith of the statement that it is of such a nature as would induce a person to enter into the contract, or would tend to induce him to do so, or that it would be a part of the inducement to enter into the contract, the inference is, if he entered into the contract, that he acted on the inducement so held out, unless it is shown that he knew the facts, or that he avowedly did not rely on the statement whether he knew the facts or not. I think, therefore, that the second proposition is proved—that the plaintiffs were induced to take stock by the misrepresentation.” Lord Halsbury has recently, in Macleay v. Tait, (1906) A. C. 24, given expression to similar views. But this inference does not arise when the statement, being ambiguous, is only false in one sense; in such a case it rests with the allottee to show that he understood the words in the sense in which it was false, and was thereby induced to subscribe. Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187.

No rescission if allottee was not induced by the representation, etc., to contract to take the shares.

Usual stated grounds for relief.

Onus of proof;

What happens in most cases is that the allottee swears that he was induced by the particular misrepresentation or suppression to take the shares, or that he subscribed on the faith of the prospectus, and that he would not have subscribed had he known the facts. And where on this or other evidence a primâ facie case for rescission has been thus established, the onus of proving that the allottee was not so induced, or is otherwise not entitled to rescind, is cast on the company.

Grounds of Defence.

how discharged.

This onus may be discharged in various ways, e.g., by showing—

- (1) That the allottee subscribed before he saw the prospectus. Smith v. Chadwick, 20 C. D. 68.
- (2) That he was really induced to subscribe by arrangement with promoters.
- (3) That he was really induced to subscribe by representations made by parties for whom the company was not responsible.
- (4) That he did not rely on the statements, but investigated the matter himself. Jennings v. Broughton, 5 D. M. & G. 126; 17 Beav. 238; and see Mathias v. Yette, 46 L. T. 497; Eaglesfield v. Marquis of Londonderry, 4 Ch. D. 693.
- (5) That the prospectus itself showed that the statements were based on hearsay, and were to be verified subsequently. British Burmah Co., 56 L. T. 815.

- (6) That the allottee is a person of such experience and character that it is not credible that he was misled by the statement relied on.*

An allottee will not lose the right to rescission because the particular misrepresentation complained of was not the sole inducement to him to subscribe. Nicol's case, 3 D. & J. 420; Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459; Carling v. London and Leeds Bank, 56 L. T. 115; Araison v. Smith, 41 C. Div. 348; Scott v. Snyder, & Co., 66 L. T. 283; S. C., 67 L. T. 104; Peck v. Derry, 37 Ch. D. 541; Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 139. It is sufficient that it was an inducement.

Where the prospectus merely states that A. B. reports so and so, the applicant is not, as between himself and the company, entitled to assume that those who issue the prospectus guarantee the truth or accuracy of A. B.'s report. Smith's case, 2 Ch. 604; Rawlins v. Wickham, 3 D. & J. 304; Bentley v. Black, 9 T. L. R. 580.

Thus where the promoters of a company to work a lead mine in Burmah issued a prospectus having appended to it a report by the vendor of the mine, and the prospectus, referring to the report, spoke in the highest terms of the quantity of ore, but proposed sending out someone to test it, which was never done, and the report turned out totally false, and an action for rescission was brought by an allottee who subscribed on the faith of the prospectus, it was held that the promoters had frankly told the allottee all they knew, and could not be taken to guarantee the truth of the report. Re British Burmah Lead Co., 56 L. T. 815.

But it is otherwise if the company represents the reports as facts. "If," said Turner, L. J., "a company will take upon itself to assume the authenticity of, and give credit to, the reports which are made to it, and represent as facts the matters stated in those reports, it must take the consequences. If the company had confined themselves to saying 'we have received reports, from which we believe, and have reason to believe, that these mines are in full operation and are making daily large returns,' it might, and no doubt would, have been difficult for Mr. Smith to be relieved from the contract; but the company, instead of thus referring to the information received, stated the circumstances as facts." Smith's case, 2 Ch. App. 611.

In Bentley v. Black, supra, the prospectus set out a report by an accountant, and the Court of Appeal held that there was no representation by the directors that the report was correct. "It was true that Mr. L. was a chartered accountant, and that he had made a particular report, and that was all that the directors said in the prospectus."

* "It is important to see whether the plaintiff was a person likely through inexperience to be misled by a prospectus, or to place implicit reliance on all that it contains." Per Lord Chelmsford, Hallows v. Fernie, 3 Ch. 467; and see Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 577; Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. p. 191.

Per Lord Esher, M. R. If the prospectus misrepresents the contents of a report or other document, or states its contents in a deceptive manner, the subscriber is not bound to look at the document to see whether it bears out what is stated. Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 C. D. 23.

"The applicant is entitled to say: You at least, who have stated what is untrue, cannot accuse me of want of caution, because I relied on your fairness and honesty." Per Lord Chelmsford, Central Rail Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99.

"The representation once made releases the party from an investigation, even if the opportunity is afforded." Per Cotton, L. J., Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 C. D. 23; and see Liberian Government Concessions, 9 T. L. R. 136; Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273; Ex parte Kintrea, 5 Ch. App. 100.

Issue of prospectus before incorporation.

Formerly it was customary to issue the prospectus before the incorporation of the company, and in such case it was held that any substantial variance between the objects of the company, as stated in the prospectus, and in the subsequently registered memorandum of association, entitled the allottee to repudiate his shares. Ship's case, 2 De G. J. & S. 544; Webster's case, 2 Eq. 741; Stewart's case, 1 Ch. 574.

Reference to memorandum and articles.

But this course is now rarely adopted. Moreover, in Peel's case, 2 Ch. 674, Lord Cairns laid down rules, in regard to relief in such cases, which have practically put an end to further claims on the ground of variance: "If," he said, "the memorandum and articles are in existence when he (the applicant) applies for shares, and if he agrees to take his shares on the footing of the memorandum and articles, then I think that he ought to be held bound to look at them before he applies for shares. But where the memorandum and articles are not in existence at the time of application, I think that, at the very latest, when he receives his allotment of shares, he ought to satisfy himself that there is nothing in the memorandum and articles to which he desires to make any objection." This was approved in Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 352; and see Downes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 359.

Where representation only true at time.

Sometimes a representation which was true when the prospectus was issued becomes false before the allotment is made. In such case the fact ought to be communicated to the applicant. Scottish Petroleum, 23 C. Div. 438; Traill v. Baring, 4 D. J. & S. 318; Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249; and per Lord Blackburn, Brownlie v. Campbell, 5 App. Cas. 950.

Contract Voidable, not Void.

In every case the contract is voidable, not void.

A contract to take shares, debentures, or debenture stock, which has been induced by misrepresentation or suppression of material facts, is voidable, not void; that is to say, the shareholder has the option to affirm or avoid the contract, but until the shareholder elects to avoid it, it remains good. Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325; Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L.

The right to avoid the contract is, however, qualified, that is to say. Prompt action and before winding-up.
(1) it must be exercised, if at all, promptly on discovering the facts, and (2) the right, in the case of shares, will be lost, if a winding-up commences before the contract is effectually avoided.

If a man claims to rescind his contract to take shares in a company, on the ground that he has been induced to enter into it by misrepresentation, he must rescind it as soon as he learns the facts, or else he forfeits all claims to relief." Per James, L. J., Sharpley v. Louth, &c. Rail. Co., 2 C. Div. 663, 685; and see Ashley's case, 9 Eq. 263; Ogilvie v. Currie, 37 L. J. Ch. 541; Reese River Silver Mining Co., 2 Ch. 612; Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 14. For his name being on the register, he is held out to the public as a member.

Persons may be induced to act on the faith of his membership. Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325. Hence, Lord Cairns, L. C., in Scholey v. Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela, 9 Eq. 267, n., said: "He certainly thought the Court would be most careful to see, in the case of a company going on and trading, in which the rights of the shareholders and others varied from day to day, that a person coming to complain of misrepresentations, and coming to avoid a voidable contract, came within the shortest limit of time which was fairly possible in such a case."

A short delay may be sufficient to deprive him of the right to rescind. Thus in Taite's case, 3 Eq. 795, a delay of a month after the shareholder had given notice of repudiation, which the directors declined to permit, was deemed fatal. And in Peel's case, 2 Ch. 674, Lord Cairns was of opinion that a delay of two months might be fatal. It may be that a delay of even fourteen days would bar the remedy. Ogilvie v. Currie, supra; see also Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 C. Div. 413, 434 (where, however, the point was not necessary to the decision of the case); Skelton's case, 68 L. T. 210; Jackson's case, 15 W. R. 894; Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 3 Ch. 493; Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64; Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99; and London, &c. Electric Lighting Co., 55 L. T. 670.

And although time does not run till discovery of the facts giving the right to rescind, a shareholder is not entitled to shut his eyes and ears.

Thus, if the directors send him a report showing that there have been misrepresentations, and he admits its receipt, he must be taken to have read it, and time will run accordingly. Scholey v. Central Rail. Co., 9 Eq. 266, n.; Dunkley's case, 7 T. L. R. 234. See, however, Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1; 66 L. T. 184.

And he is not at liberty to "stand by when a great number of people tell him that misrepresentations have been made by which shareholders have been induced to take shares, and wait until it is or suspicion.

Mere rumour

decided by a Court of justice that there has been a misrepresentation; on the contrary, it is his duty in such a case to go and ascertain for himself whether there is a misrepresentation or not." Per Romilly, M. R., Ashley's case, 9 Eq. 269. Nevertheless, mere rumour that the company is a swindle, or mere suspicion, is not enough. Thus, in Central Rail. of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99, the allotment was on July 15th, and the allottee admitted having heard adverse rumours soon after the allotment, but he did not actually discover the facts till 22nd November, and it was considered that he was not barred by this delay. Lord Chelmsford, L. C., said "that although the respondent might have heard unfavourable rumours, and conceived suspicions of the company at an early period after he obtained his shares, yet that he received no certain information upon which he could act until the month of November, and he did nothing between that day and the 28th of January, 1865 (when he filed his bill), which amounted to acquiescence." And see Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64, and Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, 293. It has been held that when a company relies for defence on non-repudiation within a reasonable time after receipt of a circular disclosing facts giving a right to repudiate, it is for the company to prove the receipt of the circular. London and Staff. Co., 24 C. D. 149.

Reasonable delay.

A limited delay may be excused where it has resulted from bona fide negotiations between the repudiating shareholder and the company. Neill's case, 15 W. R. 894; Paul's case, 4 Ch. 497; Tibbatts v. Boulton, 73 L. T. 534.

Effect of forfeiture on right to repudiate
shares.

If the company forfeits the shares and gives notice of the forfeiture to the shareholder, and the shareholder had not lost his right to repudiate at the date of the notice, the relation of company and shareholder is severed, and the latter becomes a mere debtor to the company for calls; and if he has not done any act to repudiate the contract, he is not then bound to take any step for the mere purpose of getting rid of his liability to pay the calls, but to an action to recover them may set up the misrepresentation as a defence. Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, 295.

When a shareholder is suing for rescission, the Court can restrain a forfeiture of the shares pending the hearing. Lamb v. Sambas Rubber Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 845; Jones v. Pacaya Rubber Co., (1911) 1 K. B. 455.

Effect of winding-up on the claim.

A shareholder must not only give prompt notice of repudiation after discovering the facts entitling him to rescind, but must follow up the notice by proceedings to have his name removed before a winding-up has commenced; that is to say, where the winding-up is by the Court, before the presentation of the petition on which the order is made, and where the winding-up is voluntary (with or without the supervision of the Court), before the resolution for winding-up is passed. Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325;

Kent v. Freehold Land and Brickmaking Co., 3 Ch. 493; Stone v. City and County Bank, 3 C. P. Div. 282; Central Klondyke Gold Co., Thomson's case, 5 Mans. 282; General Railway Syndicate, Whiteley's case, (1899) 1 Ch. 770. Whether the company is solvent or not makes no difference. Burgess's case, 15 C. D. 507.

But this rule (as to taking active steps) does not apply to the avoidance of an irregular allotment under sect. 86 of the Companies Act, 1908. In that case notice of repudiation is enough. Re National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228.

The ground of the decision in Oakes v. Turquand, ubi supra, was that the contract was voidable, not void; that a voidable contract could not be avoided after the rights of third parties had supervened, that by the winding-up the rights of the company's creditors had supervened, and that thereupon a new statutory liability arose to contribute to the assets.

What is an effectual repudiation:—

Effectual repudiation.

- 1) It is sufficient if the shareholder, without undue delay, gives notice to the company that he repudiates, and the directors thereupon bona fide assent to the rescission of the contract before a winding-up commences. An order of the Court is not necessary in such a case. Wright's case, 7 Ch. 55; Reese River Co. v. Smith, 4 H. L. 64, 74. And this may be sufficient even where the directors do not in fact remove the name of the repudiating shareholder from the register of members. Blake's case, 13 W. R. 486.

And it may be sufficient, although the ground put forward by the shareholder for rescission is not sufficient, provided the directors know that there are in fact valid grounds on which rescission might be claimed. Wright's case, 7 Ch. 55.

- (2) It is sufficient if the shareholder, without undue delay, and before a winding-up commences, takes legal proceedings to enforce rescission, even though the winding-up commences before the order for rescission is obtained. Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. 1.

But it may be too late if the proceedings are not taken until after the company has become publicly insolvent. Lennett v. City of Glasgow Bank, 4 App. Cas. 615; Carling v. London and Leeds Bank, 56 L. T. 115.

- (3) And where proceedings to enforce a call are taken, and the company asks for judgment under Ord. XIV., and the defendant in his affidavit sets up misrepresentation, and states that he intends to counterclaim for rescission, that, it has been held, is sufficient, although his counterclaim is not put in until after a winding-up is commenced. Whiteley's case, (1900) 1 Ch. 365.
- (4) It is sufficient if the shareholder gives notice of rescission, and, although the directors do not assent to rescission, it is agreed that the matter shall abide the result of some pending legal proceeding against the company, e.g., a test case at the suit of a shareholder claiming relief on similar grounds. Paule's case, 4 Ch. 497; Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 Ch. D. 433; Hare's case, 4 Ch. App. 503. But in the absence of such an agreement the mere fact that proceedings are pending is not enough to excuse delay. McNeill's case, 10 Eq. 503; Ashley's case, 9 Eq. 263.

Insufficiency.

But it is not sufficient—

- (1) If the shareholder gives notice of repudiation, but the directors decline to assent to rescission, and the shareholder, his name being on the register, does not promptly take legal proceedings. Hare's case, 1 Ch. 503; Re Scottish Petroleum Co., 23 C. Div. 413.
- (2) If the shareholder takes proceedings, but abandons them. Reid v. London and Staffordshire Co., 32 W. R. 94; 49 L. T. 468.
- (3) If the shareholder gives notice of repudiation, and before the directors assent to rescission, or legal proceedings are taken, a winding-up commences. Onken v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325; Reese River Co. v. Smith, L. R. 4 H. L. 64.
- (4) If the shareholder to an action for calls pleaded that he was induced to take the shares by fraud, and obtained a verdict, but took no further action to have the contract rescinded before a winding-up. Cleveland Iron Co., 16 W. R. 95; but see Whiteley's case, supra, in which this case was doubted.

If a person who has never agreed to become a shareholder is told by the company that he is a shareholder, it is sufficient for him to repudiate the shares. He need not take steps to get his name removed (Gorissen's case, 8 Ch. App. 519), and the same principle applies where there has been no real agreement to take shares owing to a mistake as to the company's identity. Baillie's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 110; Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 Ch. App. 459, 465.

Conduct of shareholder apparently affirming contract.

The right to rescind may be lost not only by delay or a winding-up but also by conduct which shows an election on the part of the shareholder to affirm the contract.

Thus, if the shareholder, after discovery of the facts giving him a right to rescind, treats the contract as subsisting, e.g., by endeavouring to sell the shares (Ex parte Briggs, 1 Eq. 483), by executing a transfer of the shares (Crawley's case, 4 Ch. 322), or otherwise dealing with the shares (Nicol's case, 3 D. & J. 431), by paying calls or instalments or receiving dividends (Scholey v. Central Rail. Co., 9 Eq. 266, n.; Kent v. Freehold Land Co., 4 Eq. 588; Shearman's case, 66 L. J. Ch. 25), or by attending and voting at a general meeting in person or by proxy (Sharpley v. Louth, &c. Co., 2 C. Div. 663), he cannot afterwards repudiate. So, too, he may be bound if he takes a transfer of other shares (Paige's case, 15 W. R. 892), but a transfer of part of the shares before discovery does not preclude relief as to the rest. Mount Morgan (West) Gold Mine, 56 L. T. 622. And the shareholder is allowed a reasonable time to obtain evidence. Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, 2 H. L. 99; and British Burmah Lead Co., 56 L. T. 856. Negotiations may excuse delay. Tibbatts v. Boulton (1895), 73 L. T. 534.

It is conceived that acting as a member will not operate to affirm the contract if, before so acting, the shareholder has definitely elected to avoid the contract, e.g., by issuing his writ. For "if a man once determines his election it shall be determined for ever." Com. Dig.

"Election" (C. 2). Quod semel placuit in electionibus amplius displicere non potest. Co. Litt. 146 a; Clough v. L. & N. W. Rail., L. R. 7 Ex. 26. See also Scarf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 345, 360, in which case Lord Blackburn, referring to the above maxim, said: "That is Coke upon Littleton, and I do not doubt that there are many older authorities to the same effect; but that rule has been uniformly acted upon from that time at least down to the present. When once there has been an election to do one of two things, you cannot retract it and do the other thing; the election once made is finally made."

This rule was recognized by the Court of Appeal in Foulkes v. Quartz Hill Co. (1884), 1 C. & E. 156; in that case it was held that the issue of a writ claiming rescission of a contract was a definitive election by the plaintiff to avoid the contract, and accordingly that in subsequently voting at a meeting of the company he did not prejudice his position. The case is not reported on appeal, but the following note appears in the report above referred to: "The Court of Appeal reversed the above decision, holding that the issue of the writ was a definitive election to rescind, and that this election was not affected by the subsequent voting at the meeting."

This seems clear enough, and the rule was recently acted on by Wright, J., in Tomlin's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 104; but the learned judge appears to have doubted "whether the Court meant to lay down the rule so absolutely as is stated in the note to the report." It is, however, difficult to see how so well-settled a rule could be laid down otherwise than absolutely.

A shareholder who, after discovering that he has a right to rescind, elects to affirm the contract, may afterwards be entitled to rescind in respect of some subsequently discovered misrepresentation. Per Chitty, J., Lond. and Prov. Co., 55 L. T. 670; British Burmah Co., Kay, J., 21 June, 1888. See, however, Campbell v. Fleming, 1 A. & E. 40; and as to variance in objects, see Whitehouse's case, 3 Eq. 790.

Subsequent grounds for rescission.

If the shareholder elects in due time and in proper form to avoid the contract, it is avoided altogether, and the case stands as if it had never been made; accordingly, he cannot be placed on the list of contributories, even as a past member, for the contract is avoided ab initio. Wright's case, 12 Eq. 331; 7 Ch. 55. In legal proceedings by a shareholder to have his contract rescinded and his money returned, he will be given interest thereon although no case of fraud be established. Karberg's case, (1893) 3 Ch. 17.

Effect of avoiding

Interest.

But, in all these cases, what Lord Justice Turner said in Jennings v. Broughton, 5 D. M. & G. 126, 140, should be borne in mind. Although it is the undoubted duty of this Court to relieve persons who have been deceived by false representations, it is equally the duty of the Court to be careful that, in its anxiety to correct frauds, it does not enable persons who have joined others in speculations to convert their speculations into certainties at the expense of those with whom they have joined."

Action of Deceit or other Remedy.

Action of deceit, or proceedings under Directors' Liability
Act, 1890.

A person who has been induced by fraudulent misrepresentation to subscribe for shares, debentures, or debenture stock, may, as an additional or alternative remedy, be entitled to bring an action of deceit against those who have deceived him, or to take proceedings against them under sect. 84 of the Act (incorporating the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890), or under sect. 86 (2) of the Act (reproducing sect. 5 of the Companies Act, 1900). Where these sections apply, they give to the subscriber a more effective remedy than an action of deceit, and have to that extent displaced the remedy obtainable in such an action; but there are still a considerable number of cases (see infra) in which the statutory remedy is not available, and in all such cases it may be necessary to have recourse to the old remedy by action of deceit. It will therefore be convenient to state here, concisely, some of the principal rules applicable in the case of an action of deceit.

"In an action of deceit . . . it is the duty of the plaintiff to establish two things: first, actual fraud, which is to be judged of by the nature and character of the representations made, considered with reference to the object for which they were made, the knowledge or means of knowledge of the person making them, and the intention which the law justly imputes to every man to produce those consequences which are the natural result of his acts; and, secondly, he must establish that this fraud was an inducing cause to the contract, for which purpose it must be material and it must have produced in his mind an erroneous belief influencing his conduct." Per Lord Selborne, L. C., Smith v. Chadwick (1884), 9 App. Cas. 187, 190.

This statement, as applied to a prospectus, may be formulated as follows:—

The plaintiff must prove—

What to prove.

- (a) That the defendant issued, or authorized the issue of, the prospectus or notice, or sanctioned its issue, or that the misrepresentation relied on was made by the defendant to those who issued the prospectus with the intention that it should be used for the purposes of the prospectus.
- (b) That the prospectus or notice contained a misrepresentation of a matter of fact.
- (c) That the fact misrepresented was a material fact.
- (d) That the plaintiff was induced by such misrepresentation to subscribe or buy.
- (e) That the plaintiff has sustained damage.
- (f) That the defendant made the misrepresentation fraudulently.

See in support of these propositions the following cases: —Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377; Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 562; Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459; Derry v. Peek, 11 App. Cas. 337; Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. D. 348; Glazier v. Rolls, 42 C. Div. 436; Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 C. D. 301; Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137; Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273.

As to (a) — The responsibility for the prospectus is a question of fact. Where, under the old system, a man applied for shares in response to a prospectus purporting to be issued by the company, and had shares allotted to him by the directors, there was often some little difficulty in proving that the directors issued, or authorized the issue of, the prospectus. They could be interrogated, it is true, and were rarely in a position to deny responsibility. Even if a director denied the fact, evidence might be forthcoming (e.g., that he distributed prospectuses or concurred in the allotment) which would countervail such denial. See Peek v. Derry, 37 C. Div. 541; Glazier v. Rolls, 42 C. D. 436; Bellairs v. Tucker, 13 Q. B. D. 562; Ship v. Crosskill, 10 Eq. 73; Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249. But in the absence of some such evidence he was not liable. Watts v. Atkinson, 8 T. L. R. 235.

Now that a copy of every prospectus is required to be filed, "signed by every person who is named therein as a director, or proposed director of the company, or by his agent, authorized in writing" (sect. 80 (2) of the Act), the matter is greatly simplified. As to the cases in which a director may be held responsible for a fraud committed by his co-directors, see Cargill v. Bower, 10 C. D. 502; Weir v. Bell, 3 Ex. D. 238, 249; Glazier v. Rolls, 42 Ch. D. 457; and Land Credit Co. of Ireland v. Lord Fermoy, 5 Ch. App. 772.

And so where, as occasionally happens, the prospectus purports to be issued not on behalf of the company, but by some firm or company as the owners, or on behalf of the owners, of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock offered for subscription or sale, there is rarely any difficulty in proving the issue by the firm or company.

Where a prospectus is issued on behalf of a company with the authority of the directors acting as its agents, the company is, in point of law, deemed to have authorized the issue, and may be held liable on that footing (see supra, pp. 36, 37 et seq.); unless the plaintiff has lost his right to repudiate his shares; for it is now settled that an allottee of shares cannot keep the shares and also claim damages as against the company. Houldsworth v. City of Glasgow Bank, 5 App. Cas. 317.

Even a third party may make himself liable. Thus, if A. (e.g., a promoter of a company) makes false representations to B. and C. (e.g., directors of a company), with the intention that such representations shall be embodied in a prospectus of the company inviting public subscription, A. may be held liable, in an action of deceit by

Issue on behalf of company

Issue on behalf of owners of the shares, debentures, &c.

Company
liable for issue by directors.

Promoter's
misrepresentation.

an allottee, as having authorized the making of such false representations to the allottee. Barry v. Croskey, 2 J. & H. 1; approved in Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 413; and see Andrews v. Mockford (1896) 1 Q. B. 372, 378.

Ratification of a tort

Responsibility for a misrepresentation may also be incurred by ratification, for a tort may be ratified. Cartier v. St. Mary Abbot's Vestry (1900), 61 J. P. 548; Clerk & Lindsell on Torts, 4th edit. 68, 110, 111; Broom's Legal Maxims, 49 S. J. 347.

Office of
prospectus

It must always, however, be borne in mind what the function of a prospectus is. The representations contained in it are made with a view of inducing persons to apply for and take from the company the shares or securities thereby offered for subscription, and accordingly it is those, and those only, who so apply and take up shares, who are entitled to rely on the statements and to complain if they are incorrect. Hence a person who, after reading the prospectus, has bought shares in the market is not prima facie entitled to complain. Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 413; Worth's case, 4 Drew, 529. So the statements in a report to the shareholders in general meeting cannot prima facie be relied on by a subscriber as inducing him to subscribe. Nicol's case, 3 D. G. & J. 387. They are not made to him.

Where, however, it is proved that the prospectus was in fact intended to induce people to buy in the market, then those who issued it may be held responsible to those who act on it. Andrews v. Mockford, (1896) 1 Q. B. 372.

Misrepresentation
as to existing fact.
Non-disclosure.

As to (b).—The misrepresentation relied on must be a misrepresentation of some existing fact. See as to this, supra, p. 190.

In the case of an action for rescission, the non-disclosure of a material fact is sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to relief; but in the case of an action of deceit, non-disclosure is not enough, unless it renders what is stated false, and so fraudulent.

"Mere non-disclosure of material fact, however morally censurable, however that non-disclosure might be a ground in a proper proceeding, at a proper time, for setting aside an allotment or purchase of shares, would, in my opinion, form no ground for an action in the nature of an action for misrepresentation. There must, in my opinion, be some active misstatement of fact, or, at all events, such a partial and fragmentary statement of fact as that the withholding of that which is not stated makes that which is stated absolutely false." Per Lord Cairns, Peek v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 403; Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273.

"Everybody knows that sometimes half a truth is no better than a downright falsehood." Per Lord Macnaghten in Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, 251. And see Akwright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. D. 320, and Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 359.

And estoppel aloud to say.

"Though a person may be deceived by another with the knowledge of a third person, if that third person is not party to the deceit and owes no legal duty or obligation to the person deceived, and does nothing but preserve silence . . . he cannot be held liable in an action for damages at the instance of the party deceived." Morham v. Weaver, 80 L. T. 412, per Rorer, J.

"As far as I know, silence has never yet been held to amount to misrepresentation." Per Joyce, J., in Seddon v. North Eastern Salt Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 326, 335.

As to (c).—It must be shown that the misrepresentation was material. It is not every misrepresentation that gives a right of action

A misstatement," as Jessel, M. R., said, in Smith v. Chadwick, (20 Ch. D. 46), "may be so trivial as that the Court will be of opinion that it could not have affected the plaintiff's mind at all, or induced him to enter into the contract." For misrepresentations which have been held material, see supra, pp. 190—192.

As to (d).—It must be shown that the plaintiff was induced by such misrepresentations to subscribe or buy. Generally, the plaintiff swears to the fact, and when the misrepresentation is material, and it is shown that the plaintiff took shares in response to the prospectus, it is a fair inference of fact that he was induced by the prospectus to subscribe. Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; Nash v. Calthorpe, (1905) 2 Ch. 237; and see the observations of Lord Halsbury in Macleay v. Tait, (1906) A. C. 21, supra, p. 158. As to what is sufficient to prove or negative reliance on the misrepresentation, see supra, pp. 194, 195. A plaintiff may succeed even where the misrepresentation relied on was not the sole inducement to subscription. Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, 29 C. Div. 459; Carling v. London and Leeds Bank, 56 L. T. 115; Peek v. Derry, 37 C. Div. 541; Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. D. 348.

As to (e).—Unless damage is shown, the plaintiff has no right to complain. Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Polhill v. Walter, 3 B. & Ald. 114. When a person is induced by fraud in a prospectus to apply for shares, the loss is sustained as soon as he parts with his money. Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 366.

As to (f).—Fraud by the defendant must be established. It is of the essence of the action. And it is established when it is shown (1) that the representation relied on was false to the knowledge of the defendant, or (2) that it was made by the defendant recklessly, without caring whether it was true or false, or (3) that the defendant did not in fact believe it to be true. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337. The last alternative, in fact, covers both the others; and accordingly, in an action of deceit, the knowledge that must be proved, in order to establish that a false statement was fraudulently made, is that the defendant did not in fact believe that the statement was true. Knox v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137. A false statement allowed to pass by culpable carelessness, but without fraud, is not enough. Angus v. Clifford, (1891) 2 Ch. 449; Watts v. Atkinson, 8 T. L. R. 235.

Material fact

Subscriber influenced by statement

Damage shown.

Fraud.

Note the difference in this respect between an action of deceit and an action for rescission, in which actual fraud need not be shown.

And note further the difference in the case of non-compliance with any of the requirements of sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908. In the case of sect. 81, (a) there is no liability under the section for non-disclosure if the defendant was not cognizant of the matter not disclosed; (b) if the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact; or (c) where the non-compliance consists in not giving full particulars of a director's interest in promotion or property acquired by the company, &c., unless it is proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed. Sect. 81 (6). See supra, p. 177.

Defendant himself deceived.

If, in an action of deceit, the defendant can prove that he did believe the statement to be true, the plaintiff must fail, even though he shows that the grounds on which the belief was founded were unreasonable. This was decided by the House of Lords in Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal. Nevertheless, "A consideration of the grounds of belief is, no doubt, an important aid in ascertaining whether the belief was really entertained. A man's mere assertion that he believed the statement he made is not to be accepted as conclusive proof that he did so. There may be such an absence of reasonable ground for his belief as, in spite of his assertion, to carry conviction to the mind that he had not really the belief he alleged." Per Lord Herschell, ib. pp. 339, 367.

Fraud may be established when the representation was "made in the bonâ fide belief that it was true, and before allotment the party who made it finds out that it was untrue and remains silent." Per Lord Blackburn, Brownlie v. Campbell, 5 App. Cas. 950. In such case the directors ought to say, "We cannot contract with the gentleman. The application was based on a misstatement authorized by us. The only thing we have now to do is to tell him that the prospectus is erroneous, and that we cannot accept his application. We must not deceive; we must return his money." Per Page-Wood, V.-C., Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 249; and see the remarks of Turner, L. J., in Traill v. Baring, 4 D. J. & S. 318.

Limitation of time for action.

As to the period of limitation in an action of deceit. Having regard to 21 Jac. 1, c. 16, an action of deceit is prima facie barred unless it is brought within six years from the time when the cause of action accrued. But when the plaintiff shows that he did not discover, and had not reasonable means of discovering, the fraud until within six years before the action, and that the existence of such fraud was fraudulently concealed by the defendant until within the six years, time will not run till such discovery. Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 59; and see Re McCullum, (1901) 1 Ch. 143.

No delay in bringing an action of deceit short of that fixed by the statute will bar the action. Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377.

As to death or bankruptcy.—On the death or bankruptcy of a person in whom there is vested a right of action for fraudulent misrepresentation whereby he has lost money, the right of action passes to his legal personal representatives or trustee in bankruptcy, as the case may be (Twycross v. Grant, 4 C. P. Div. 40), but subject to the general rule, "actio personalis moritur cum persona." Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 377.

Death or bankruptcy of person
defrauded

The test of the applicability of that rule is, has the wrongdoer's estate profited by the wrong? If it has, the executors or administrators of a delinquent director or other person who made the misrepresentation will be liable to that extent. Phillips v. Homfray, 24 C. D. 439; Dacoren v. Wootton, (1900) 1 I. R. 273; New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 Ch. D. 73, 117; otherwise, if the estate has not benefited, Peck v. Gurney, L. R. 6 H. L. 393.

But where A. purchased from B. worthless shares in a company for 250*l.* and claimed to prove for 250*l.* as damages for misrepresentation in an action for the administration of B.'s estate, Romer, J., disallowed the claim, holding that as there was nothing among the assets that at law or in equity belonged to A., and the damages unliquidated and uncertain, the executors could not be sued merely because B.'s estate might have benefited by the wrong, and that the damages were none the less unliquidated and uncertain from the fact that A. might be able to prove that the measure of his damages was the amount of the purchase-money. Re Duncan, Terry v. Sweeting, 1899 1 Ch. 387.

As to bankruptcy.—Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages, arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise, or breach of trust, are not provable in bankruptcy. Sect. 37 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. Hence, damages for fraudulent misrepresentation by a director are not provable in his bankruptcy, unless they have been ascertained by judgment obtained before the receiving order. Re Newman, 3 C. D. 494; Greenwood v. Humber & Co. (Portugal), W. N. (1898) 162.

Proof in bankruptcy.

But if judgment has been obtained they are provable. Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 17 Ch. D. 122. If not provable they are not extinguished by the bankrupt getting his discharge, for the discharge only releases him from provable debts (Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 30 (2)); nor does it release him from debts incurred by fraud or fraudulent breach of trust" (ibid.); and if the claimant pursues his rights the Court of Bankruptcy will not restrain the action. (Ex parte Coker, 10 Ch. D. 653.) Quere, if he did not, whether the Statute of Limitations would not run against him.

The measure of damages is the difference between the amount paid for the shares and their then value, i.e., immediately after allotment.

Measure of damages.

This value is not necessarily the market value, for the allottee is not bound to sell nor market value always the true value. The true value is ascertained by the light of subsequent events showing the inherent worthlessness of the company. Peck v. Derry, 37 Ch. D. 541; and see Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 364; Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. D. 312; Davidson v. Tulloch, 3 Macq. 783; Twyer v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 544.

Directors' Liability.

Sect. 84 of the Act takes the place of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890. It runs thus:

Liability for statements in
prospectus.

84.—(1.) Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus, and every person who has authorized the naming of him and is named in the prospectus as a director, or as having agreed to become a director either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

- (a) With respect to every untrue statement, not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures, as the case may be, believe, that the statement was true; and,
- (b) With respect to every untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, that it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation. Provided that the director, person named as director, promoter, or person who authorized the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it; and,
- (c) With respect to every untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of the statement, or copy of or extract from the document, or unless it is proved (i) that, having consented to become a director of the company, he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent, or (ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that, on becoming aware of its issue, he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent, or (iii) that after the issue of the prospectus, and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor.

(2.) Where a company existing on the eighteenth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, has issued shares or debentures, and for the purpose of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures, issues a prospectus, a director shall not be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he has authorized the issue of the prospectus, or has adopted or ratified it.

(3.) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorized the issue thereof shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

Indemnity where name of person has been improperly inserted as a director.

(4.) Every person who by reason of his being a director, or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section, may recover contribution from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not, guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation.

Contribution from co-directors, &c.

(5.) For the purposes of this section

The expression "promoter" means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or of the portion thereof containing the untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company.

The expression "expert" includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Looking at the interpretation section (sect. 285), it is clear that this section is only to apply to prospectuses inviting subscriptions for shares, debentures, or debenture stock of companies formed under the Act of 1908. The section has no application to railway, gas, water, tramway, or other parliamentary companies, or to foreign or colonial companies, or to companies incorporated by royal charter, or to companies constituted by deed of settlement and not brought within the operation of the Companies Act, 1908. Any right of action under the corresponding provisions of the repealed Acts is preserved by sect. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889.

Act only applies to companies under Companies Act, 1908.

It is confined to prospectuses issued by or on behalf of the company. For example, if the owners of, say, 100,000 shares in a company offered such shares for public subscription, it would seem that the section would not apply, and subscribers must still rely on the general law.

The section fundamentally alters the law as to the consequences of misrepresentation in prospectuses inviting subscriptions for shares, debentures, or debenture stock. It does not purport or attempt to alter or extend the remedy afforded by the action of deceit. It establishes a new and much more effectual remedy. "The Act" (on which the present section is based) "was passed," says Cozens-Hardy, L. J., in McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 546, Sub-sect. 1 gives new remedy.

558, "in 1890, the year after Peek v. Derry (14 App. Cas. 337) had been decided in the House of Lords, and, as it seems to me, for the express purpose of getting rid of the effect of that decision, so far and so far only as directors and promoters issuing a prospectus on the one hand, and persons taking shares and debentures on the other hand are concerned."

Questions
under sub-sect. 1.

As regards the right of action conferred by sub-sect. 1, it will be convenient to consider, seriatim, the following questions:—

Who may be sued.

A. Who may be sued as a defendant?

Subject to the Supreme Court Rules and the decisions thereunder, as to which see infra, Chap. XVIII.,

Director.

(1) Every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus; and

Person named as director.

(2) Every person who, having authorized such naming of him, is named in the prospectus as a director, or as having agreed to become a director of the company, either immediately or after an interval of time.

Promoter.

(3) Every promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or of the portion thereof containing an untrue statement.

(4) Every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus.

(1) "Director" here includes "any person occupying the position of director by whatever name called." Sect. 285.

Corporation
as promoter.
22.

As to (3)—

The question whether a body corporate is a person or promoter within this section and so capable of being sued, is one of some difficulty. By sect. 19 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63), the word "person," unless the contrary intention appears, is to include any body of persons, corporate or unincorporate. Now the section makes the person or promoter liable to pay compensation, unless, amongst other alternatives, it is proved that he believed the untrue statement and had reasonable grounds for such belief; and it may be said that a body corporate is incapable of belief, and accordingly would not be able to prove the facts requisite for its defence. See Pharmaceutical Society v. London and Provincial Supply Assoc., 5 App. Cas. p. 862, where Lord Selborne stated his opinion, "that if a statute provides that no person shall do a particular act except on a particular condition, it is, prima facie, natural and reasonable (unless there be something in the sub-context, or in the manifest object of the statute, or in the nature of the subject-matter, to exclude that construction) to understand the Legislature as intending such persons as, by the use of proper means, may be able to fulfil the condition; and not those who, though called 'persons' in law, have no capacity to do so at any time, by any means, or under any circumstances whatsoever." This view, it may be contended, is equally applicable to the case of a statute, like that now under consideration, which provides that a person shall do a particular act, namely, pay compensation unless he complies with a particular condition, namely, proves belief. On the other hand, it may justly be said that corporations are within the mischief intended to be remedied by the Act, and that the words are sufficiently wide, and should, if possible, be held to cover such bodies, for bodies corporate may and do act as promoters, and ought to be and are liable for the acts of their directors (Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 392), and there would be no real difficulty in their establishing a defence since, in the case of a corporation, the belief of its agents acting in the matter must be imputed to the corporation. In an action of deceit against a corporation proof of its agents' belief would relieve the corporation. See supra, pp. 33, 34 et seq.

See also as to a limited company being a "person," Willmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 525.

As to (4) —

The words "has authorized" are at first sight extravagantly wide. They might include a broker, banker, advertising agent, or shop-keeper who authorizes his clerks or servants to hand copies of the prospectus to customers or others, and even the manager of a newspaper who authorizes the publication of the prospectus therein. But it would be absurd to place such a construction on the words. They cannot reasonably be held to apply to such persons as bankers, brokers, accountants, solicitors, and engineers who merely consent to their names appearing as such in the prospectus. Lord Alverstone, when Attorney-General, and Lord Davey, when at the bar, both so advised; and the section itself distinguishes between authority to name and authority to issue. It is conceived that a person is not one who "has authorized the issue" within the meaning of the section, unless in common parlance he would be so described, and that the issue means the initial putting forth, or launching of the document, and not the subsequent distribution of it.

In the case of a director there is seldom any difficulty in showing that he has authorized the issue. Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586, affirmed as Shepherd v. Broome, infra.

Person authorizing issue of prospectus
or notice.

B What is "a statement" within the section?

An ordinary statement of fact, e.g., that "10,000 shares have been already subscribed," or that "the profits of the business during the last five years have averaged 20,000*l.* per annum," or that certain specified contracts are the only contracts to which the company is a party (Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342), or that the company has acquired a valuable property (McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1

What is a statement within sub-sect. 1?

Ch. 546), is obviously a statement within the section, in respect of which, if untrue, a defendant may be held liable. Nor is there any reason to doubt that statements to the effect that the directors or others "believe," "anticipate," "hope," or "intend" so and so, or are of this or that "opinion," are statements within the section. There is, however, an important distinction between such statements of belief or opinion and ordinary statements of fact, for, as regards the latter, the plaintiff has merely to prove that the fact was not as stated, and then it is for the defendant to show that he had reasonable grounds to believe and did believe, that what was stated was true, or, as Cozens-Hardy, L. J., puts it in McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 558, "the plaintiff has only to prove, in addition to damage, that a material statement is untrue, and he can maintain an action, unless the defendant can establish that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did believe, the statement to be true; in other words, the onus of proof is shifted." In the case of a statement as to belief, anticipation, hope, intention, or opinion, on the other hand, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that the defendant did not believe, anticipate, hope, or intend as the case may be—a matter of no small difficulty. Hence, as regards this latter class of statements, the plaintiff is in substantially the same position as he was before the Act.

It must not, however, be supposed from this that directors and others may safely indulge in reckless statements as to belief, anticipation, hope, intention, or opinion, for in the absence of reasonable grounds for such belief, &c. the Court may be asked to find, and may find as a fact, that he did not really entertain the alleged belief, anticipation, hope, intention, or opinion. Western Bank of Scotland v. Addie, L. R. 6 H. L. (Sc.) 168. See Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273, and supra, p. 187.

Liability may be incurred under the section not only in respect of statements in the prospectus itself, but also in respect of the following, namely:

Statement-
outside
prospectus
or notice.

Report or memorandum noticed in prospectus,
&c.

Reference to copies or extracts.

(1) Any untrue statement in any report or memorandum appearing on the face of the prospectus, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, but not made by or contained in what purports to be a copy of, or extract from, a report or valuation of an expert.

(2) Any untrue statement in any such report or memorandum purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, where it is proved that the director, person named, promoter, or other person who authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it.

"Expert" here includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

As to reports, see Re Reese Silver Mining Co., 2 Ch. App. 611; Rawlins v. Wickham, 3 D. G. & J. 304; Att.-Gen. v. Ray, 9 Ch. App. 402, n.; British Burmah Land Co., 56 L. T. 815; Angus v. Clifford, 39 W. R. 252; (1891) 2 Ch. 449.

As to the liability of experts for false or negligent reports, see Cann v. Willson, 39 Ch. D. 39; George v. Skivington, L. R. 5 Ex. 1; Fletcher v. Galland, 90 L. T. N. 278.

C. Who may bring an action under the section?

All persons who subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of the prospectus."

These words give a right of action for compensation to every such person. It is presumed that the word "subscribe" means "apply for and accept any allotment from the company." This is the usual sense in which the word "subscribe" is used. Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Ch. 682; Henderson v. Lacon, 5 Eq. 258; Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. Div. 348. And this construction is supported by the fact that the section assumes that there will be an "allotment" under the prospectus.

The words are susceptible of a wider construction. They might be held to extend to a subscription or taking up of shares, debentures, or debenture stock offered for subscription, not by or on behalf of the company, but by or on behalf of some person, firm, or company who or which had previously become owners thereof, whether by allotment or purchase; e.g., suppose that a company is formed to acquire a business, and that the consideration for the acquisition of such business includes 100,000*l.* of debentures, and that the vendor, after holding these debentures for a time, sells them to a trust company or bank, which in its turn offers them for public subscription or sale. Is the section to apply to such a case? For the reason already stated above it is submitted that it is not. If it did, this anomalous result would follow, that directors and others who have had nothing whatever to do with the issue of a prospectus would be liable under the section for certain statements therein, unless they were able to substantiate one of the three alternative defences contained in the latter part of sub-sect. 1, which it may be quite impossible for them to do.

D. What must the plaintiff prove in order to establish a prima facie case?

The plaintiff must prove:

1. That the defendant—

- (a) Was a director; or,
- (b) That with his authority he was named in the prospectus as a director, or as having agreed to become a director;

Who may sue under sect. 3?

Subscribers on faith of prospectus, &c.

Who are:

What to prove for prima facie case.

If a person so named subsequently acted as a director, that would be considered prima facie evidence of authority; and if he knew he was so named and did not disclaim, and perhaps took shares, these facts again would afford some evidence of authority.

- (c) Or that the defendant was a promoter of the company, and was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or of the portion thereof containing the untrue statement;

It is not every promoter who is to be liable, but only those who meddle with the prospectus. See sub-sect. (1).

- (d) Or that the defendant authorized the issue of the prospectus

2. That there was an untrue statement

(a) In the prospectus;

b) Or in some report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith.

A misleading statement is an untrue statement. Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421.

Where the statement is that the person making the statement believed, anticipated, hoped or intended so and so, or was of this or that opinion, it is not enough for the plaintiff to prove that the belief, &c. was not well founded; he must prove that the belief did not exist; but there being no reasonable ground for it is evidence that it did not exist.

3. That the plaintiff subscribed for shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of the prospectus. See as to this, supra, pp. 193 et seq.

4. That the plaintiff has sustained loss or damage by reason of the untrue statement. McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 546; Stevens v. Hoare, 20 T. L. R. 407.

This no doubt imports that the statement must be material, for otherwise the plaintiff cannot show loss or damage by reason of the untruth of that statement. As to what statements may be material, see supra, p. 190.

The expression "by reason of the untrue statement," appears to mean by reason of the plaintiff having been induced to part with his money on the faith of such untrue statement.

Damage is an essential factor in the right of action, and therefore misrepresentation without damage is not actionable." Per Collins, M. R., in McConnell v. Wright, supra. See also Nash v. Calthorpe, (1905) 2 Ch. 237, and Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 21

E. What is the liability imposed by the section?

What is the liability under the section?

The liability is to pay compensation to all persons who shall subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of such prospectus, for the loss or damage they may have sustained "by reason of the untrue statement." This means by reason of the plaintiff's having been induced by the untrue statement to subscribe. See the judgment of Collins, M. R., in McConnell v. Wright, supra. The amount of the compensation—the measure of damages—is presumably the same as that in an action of deceit, namely: the difference between the amount paid by the plaintiff and the real value of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock at the date of allotment. Peck v. Derry, 37 C. D. 591; Tugcross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469; Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586; Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 348, 363.

It is proper to direct an inquiry as to damages in the form in Akewright v. Newbold, 17 Ch. D. 301, 311; McConnell v. Wright, supra; per Lord Lindley in Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. at p. 348.

In McConnell v. Wright, supra, the misstatement complained of was that the company had acquired a valuable property, which it had not in fact acquired at the date when the prospectus was issued, and the principle on which the amount of compensation was to be ascertained was stated by Collins, M. R., as follows: "It is not an action for breach of contract, and, therefore, no damages, in respect of prospective gains which the person contracting was entitled by his contract to expect, come in, but it is an action of tort . . . and therefore, prima facie, the highest limit of his damages is the whole extent of his loss, and that loss is measured by the money which was in his pocket and is now in the pocket of the company. That is the ultimate, final, highest standard of his loss. But, in so far as he has got an equivalent for that money, that loss is diminished . . . So far as the assets are an equivalent, he is not damaged; so far as they fall short of being an equivalent, in that proportion he is damaged."

In such an action, if there be an untrue statement of a material character and damages sustained, it is no answer that the statement was made good soon after it was made and acted on. McConnell v. Wright, supra; and see Peck v. Derry, 37 Ch. D. 581; 14 App. Cas. 337.

F. What must the defendant prove in order to escape liability for an untrue statement?

What defendant should prove.

(1.) In the case of an untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert or of a public official document or statement, he must prove that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock (as the case may be) believe that the statement was true. Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421; Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342; and see Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337.

(2.) In the case of an untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of, or extract from, a report or valuation of an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, i.e., any person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him, he must prove that it fairly represented the statement made by the engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of, or extract from, the report or valuation.

But this defence in respect of a misleading report is not sufficient if the plaintiff can prove affirmatively that, notwithstanding such untrue statement fairly represented the statement made by the expert, or was a correct and fair copy of, or an extract from, the report or valuation, such director, person named, promoter, or other person who authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, as aforesaid, had no reasonable ground to believe that the expert was competent to make the statement, report, or valuation. See Angus v. Clifford, 39 W. R. 252; (1891) 2 Ch. 449, where the reports stated to be "prepared for the directors by eminent engineers" were in fact prepared for the agent of the vendor to the company.

(3.) In the case of every such untrue statement, purporting to be a statement made by an official person, or contained in what purports to be a copy of, or extract from, a public official document, he must prove that it was a correct and fair representation or copy of, or extract from, such document.

(4.) But in each of the above cases the following further defences will be open:—

- (a) In the case of a director, and of every person who has authorized the naming of him, and is named in the prospectus as a director, or as having agreed to become a director either immediately or after an interval of time, such person has a good defence if he can prove that, having consented to become a director of the company, he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that the prospectus was issued without his authority or consent.
- (b) Any defendant, whether a director or otherwise, has a good defence if he can prove that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue, he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent.

When a director, although aware that a prospectus was being issued inviting persons to take debentures, did not trouble to read it, abstained from inquiry as to its contents, and refrained from giving any notice under the Act, Byrne, J., held that after action brought under the Act it was too late for him to repudiate the prospectus and that repudiation in a statement of defence was not "reasonable public notice." Drineqbier v. Wood, (1899) 1 Ch. 393.

Probably notice advertised in some of the principal newspapers in which the prospectus was advertised would be "reasonable public notice."

- (c) Any defendant, whether a director or otherwise, has also a good defence if he can prove that, after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice [see above] of such withdrawal, and of the reason therefor.

Furthermore, the defendant might, no doubt, set up a release, or contract not to sue, or an estoppel, as against the plaintiff.

G. What are "reasonable grounds" for believing a statement to be true?

Reasonable grounds of defendant's belief.

A director or other person who may be held responsible under the section must bear in mind that, if at some future time a statement turns out to be untrue, he may be called on to prove that he had reasonable grounds for believing the statement to be true, and that it will then be for a jury or judge to decide, not whether the director considered the grounds reasonable, but whether such jury or judge consider that they were reasonable.

So, too, he must remember that a mistake by him as to the materiality of a contract required to be disclosed will not protect him from the consequences of non-disclosure if it should in fact be material; and it makes no difference that he has been advised that disclosure is not required. Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342.

Accordingly each statement should be considered in this view, and the following questions should be put, namely:—What are my grounds for believing the statement to be true? Do they seem to me, weighing them impartially, to be reasonable? What inquiries and advice should I make and take to ascertain whether others think them reasonable? Would they be likely to seem reasonable to a jury or judge? What evidence can I preserve to satisfy judge or jury of the reasonableness of my belief?

It may be well to give two or three examples:—

1. Suppose the prospectus to state that the company is formed to acquire a business, and that "the average annual profits of the business during the last five years have been 10,000*l*." The mere assertion of the vendor that this was the average could scarcely be considered reasonable grounds for believing the statement in the prospectus to be true. In order to justify the statement, special steps should be taken to test its truth by independent inquiry, e.g., by the employment of a firm of chartered accountants to investigate the books and report in writing thereon.

Examples.

2. Again: Suppose it to be stated that the business to be acquired is a paper mill, and that there is a plentiful supply of water. This is a statement obviously material which, in the absence of personal knowledge, should not be made without independent expert evidence.
3. Suppose a fact is stated which is true to the knowledge of only one or two of the directors, but those persons of probity, it would seem that this might be held to afford reasonable ground on which the others might concur with them in making the statement.

What are reasonable grounds for believing that an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert is competent (i.e., qualified or fit) to make a statement, report, or valuation? This must depend on the circumstances of the case. There are some men whose competency and credit is beyond dispute, men who are at the head or in the front rank of their profession; others may hold a recognized diploma or certificate; but where a man is not in this position, it may be necessary to obtain some collateral evidence of his competency. Thus it may be well to obtain references to some leading member or members of the profession to which the expert belongs, or to some persons of position who have employed him and can speak as to his competency.

Where the expert is a foreigner, and there is no time to communicate, otherwise than by telegraph, with persons in the locality to which he belongs, it will be proper to communicate, by telegraph, with some banker or other person who can be trusted in the locality, and such person should be requested to inquire as to the competency of the expert, and if he reports by telegram favourably in regard thereto, it is conceived that such inquiry and report would be held to afford reasonable grounds for believing that the expert was competent.

The necessity of obtaining and preserving written evidence that reasonable grounds existed cannot be too strongly impressed on those who may be called on to defend their statements in a prospectus.

As to the defendant giving particulars, see Alman v. Oppert, (1901) 2 K. B. 576.

Who is an expert?

H. Who is an expert?

Sub-sect. (1) of sect. 84 uses the expression "expert," and by sub-sect. (5) "the expression 'expert' includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other 'person' whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him."

It is to be observed that the word used is "profession," not "business" or "occupation," and although the meaning of the word is stated in Johnson and elsewhere to be "vocation, known employment," it may be doubted whether it will be given by the Court quite so wide a construction. It is not easy to draw the line accurately. It probably means anyone who holds himself out to the public as specially qualified in any line by knowledge or skill. However construed it must include surveyors, architects, lawyers, and doctors. Surely, too, in banking matters a banker is to be considered an expert within the definition, a brewer in brewing matters, a general manager of a railway in railway matters, and a lawyer when stating his opinion on a title.

I. What is the period of limitation for bringing an action under the Act?

Period of limitation.

In Thorn v. Lord Clunmorris, (1900) 1 Ch. 718, it was argued that the period of limitation was governed by sect. 3 of the Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42), which prescribes that in the case of "actions for penalties, damages, or sums of money given to the party grieved by any statute now in force or hereafter to be in force," the period shall be two years after the cause of action. But the Court of Appeal held that these words did not cover the case, and appeared inclined to hold that the period was six years. This decision, however, has not escaped criticism, and it must be admitted that it is not altogether satisfactory.

Prima facie, the words of the Act of 1833, above referred to, appear to point in the clearest way to such an action as may now be brought under sect. 84 of the Companies Act, 1908 (replacing the Directors' Liability Act, 1890).

It cannot be maintained that the Act of 1833 should not be held to apply because the section was not then in force, for sect. 3 of the Act of 1833 is not confined to statutes then in force; it expressly says "given by any statute now in force or hereafter to be in force."

Nor can it be denied that a plaintiff in such an action, if his claim be well founded, is a person or party "grieved." "The expression is not a technical expression: the words are ordinary English words, which are to have the ordinary meaning put upon them." Per Bramwell, L. J., Robinson v. Currey, 7 Q. B. D. 470. And beyond doubt the expression aptly describes a person who has been induced by untrue statements in a prospectus to subscribe for shares, debentures, or debenture stock, and has thereby sustained damage. Again, the compensation recoverable in the action falls clearly within the words "penalties, damages, or sums of money" given by the section to the party grieved. No doubt, the compensation given is not a penalty, but the words "damages or sums of money" must have their due effect.

Compensation for loss or damage is the precise equivalent of the legal term "damages." As Lord Coke says, "Damages is the recompense that is given by the jury to the plaintiff for the wrong the defendant hath done unto him." Co. Litt. 2, 257a. Here sect. 84, in giving compensation gives damages. Indeed, Lind M. R., in the case under discussion was constrained to admit this, and in McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 538, all the judgments refer to the "damages" which the plaintiff in an action under the Act of 1890 (now sect. 84 of 1908) had incurred.

Suppose, however, that by some extreme refinement compensation under the section is not to be considered damages—a view which cannot survive McConnell v. Wright—still it surely comes within the words "or sums of money." These words are as general as they can be. It may be that the ejusdem generis rule of construction should be applied; but assuming it should, and that the words "or other sums" are to be read as meaning "or other sums of a like kind," those words would none the less accurately describe and cover compensation payable under the section, for such compensation is indistinguishable from damages. Why, then, is not the Act of 1833 to have full effect in accordance with the plain and prima facie meaning of the words? "The rule of law I take it," said Alderson, in Attorney-General v. Lockwood, 9 M. & W. 378, "upon the construction of all statutes . . . is, whether they be penal or remedial, to construe them according to the plain, literal, and grammatical meaning of the words in which they are expressed, unless that construction leads to a plain and clear contradiction of the apparent purpose of the Act, or to some palpable and evident absurdity."

In Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris, supra, the judges of the Court of Appeal, in disregard of this rule, have refused to give full effect to the words of the Act of 1833, on the ground that the law intended by the Legislature to refer exclusively to actions for penalties. This, it is submitted, is a merely conjectural conclusion. The words of the statute are plain and the Court is not entitled to cut down or deny operation to those words merely because it surmises that the Legislature could not have intended them to be so set.

No incongruity or absurdity would result from doing so. On the contrary, six years being the period of limitation in regard to an action on the case for fraudulent misrepresentation, it seems reasonable enough, indeed, only just, that two years should be the period in an action in respect of what may be a perfectly innocent misrepresentation—although in such a case, in which the defendant has not only to prove that what he stated to be true, but that he had reasonable grounds for believing. Time soon obliterates the memory of what was once thought or believed, and the Legislature, in passing the Act of 1890, having in mind, as it must have had the Act of 1833, may well have thought that the onerous obligation imposed on directors and others by the Act of 1890 justified a short period of limitation; for how few people after a lapse of two years can recollect or reaffirm the grounds on which they signed any particular statement in a prospectus issued by them?

The Court of Appeal, in Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris, 1909 1 Ch. 8, appears to have followed the unfortunate precedent set in Wain v. Solomon, (1896) 2 Ch. 237, in which the Court of Appeal considered that it was entitled to deny efficacy to the words of a statute from a preconception as to the intention of the framers, but the House of Lords unanimously reversed the decision. Lord Chatterfield repudiated such a notion. Lord Chatterfield said: "I can only find the true intention of the framers of the Act from the Act itself."

As the law stands, however, it must be taken (a Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris, supra, is law) that the period of limitation is not two years as apparently suggested by sect. 3 of the Limitation Act, 1833, but—so that Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris seemed disposed to think by 21 James 1, c. 16, that is, six years. There is a difficulty for sect. 3 of the Limitation Act, 1833, provides that in the case of all "actions on any bond or other specialty" the period of limitation is to be twenty years. In the case of actions on a statute there is no doubt that sect. 84 placing the Act of 1890) is to the party grieved the right to bring an action of debt upon the statute. See Tilson v. Warwick, 825, 4 B. & C. 962, in which it was held that where an Act of Parliament provided that the costs of obtaining it should be paid out of the money subscribed, the attorneys who obtained the Act might maintain an action of debt founded upon the statute for the costs.

And further, the action under sect. 84 is on a specialty, for it is settled law that an action on a statute is an action on a specialty. Cork & Brandon Rail. Co. v. Gode, 13 C. B. 827. "A declaration on a statute is a declaration on a specialty." Per Maule, J., in the case just referred to, and see Williams' Saunders, 1871 edition, vol. 1, 191.

These considerations add to the inconvenience of the construction adopted in Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris.

As to the time when the cause of action arises, it would seem that the cause arises when the plaintiff sustains damage. Bonomi v. Backhouse, 9 H. M. C. 463; Darley Main Co. v. Mitchell, 11 A. C. 127; Read v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 128, that is, when he parts with his money. Trinity v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 366, for damage is one of the constituents of the cause of action, but according to Thomson v. Lord Clanmorris, supra, the Act is to be read as imposing on the directors by implication "a new statutory duty of accuracy," and time runs from the breach of that duty. The amount of damages is the as in the case of an action of deceit. McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 558. See supra.

Effect of death or bankruptcy.

J. What effect have death and bankruptcy?

a) In case of aggrieved party. If a person entitled under the section to compensation dies or becomes bankrupt, the right of action under it will pass to his legal personal representative or trustee in bankruptcy, as the case may be, as a chose in action forming part of his estate.

(b) In case of director.—In the seventh edition of this work the opinion was expressed that “if a person liable under the Act (Directors’ Liability Act) to pay compensation dies, his heirs, executors, or administrators will be liable to the extent of the estate of the deceased in the due course of administration. As the action is not one of tort, the maxim, Actio personalis moritur cum personâ, would not seem to apply.” Tygeros v. Grant, 4 C. P. Div. 40; Phillips v. Homfray, 24 C. D. 439. But the point is not yet settled. And in a case decided in 1900, Lindley, M. R., and Romer, L. J., agreed in thinking that the point was still open, and the former would not commit himself to saying whether executors of a deceased director were or were not liable under the Directors’ Liability Act (now sect. 84, Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908). The Master of the Rolls added: “It may be that there is a statutory liability to which the maxim ‘Actio personalis,’ &c., does not apply in which case they would be liable just as the other directors who are alive, but of course out of the assets of their testator.” Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 504, 510; and see Davoren v. Woolton, (1900) 1 I. R. 273.

Apparently a liability under the section may be proved in bankruptcy, unless it comes within the exception of a “demand in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise, or breach of trust,” under sect. 37 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (supra, p. 207), when it would be excluded from proof. Greenwood v. Humber & Co. (Portugal), W. N. (1898) 162. The discharge of the bankrupt, where the liability is proveable, releases him from any claim under the section, unless the liability was incurred by fraud or fraudulent breach of trust. See supra, p. 207, as to the Bankruptcy Act; and Re Newman, 3 C. D. 494; and Ex parte Coker, 10 Ch. 652.

What precautions
directors,
promoters,
&c., to take.

K What precautions directors, promoters, and others should take.

1. As regards any statement—

- (1) In the prospectus;
- (2) In any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof;
- (3) In any report or memorandum referred to therein;
- (4) In any report or memorandum issued therewith;

and (in cases (2), (3), (4)) not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or by a public official document or statement, take care that the statement is not made unless each director has reasonable ground to believe, and does believe, that the statement is true.

The following are examples of statements purporting to be made on the authority of an expert:—

- (a) Mr. A., or an engineer, has examined the reef, and states that it is rich in gold.
- (b) Mr. A. has made the following report. [Set it out.]
- (c) The following extracts from the report which has been made by Mr. A. show the value of the property. [Set them out.]
- (d) The statements in paragraphs of this prospectus are made on the authority of Messrs. , the well-known accountants, who have examined the books.
- (e) According to the report of his Majesty's Consul of , published in the Board of Trade Journal of the of , the exports from, &c.

2. As regards every statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, take care (a) that it fairly represents the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or is a correct and fair copy of, or extract from, the report or valuation; (b) that there is evidence that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it.

3. As regards every statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person, or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, take care that it is a correct and fair representation of such statement, copy of or extract from such document.

4. Carefully avoid stating as matters of fact what the directors do not know to be true. Where it is desirable to state facts which the directors do not know to be true, let such facts be embodied in a report by some competent expert, and then set out that report, or extracts from it, in the prospectus.

5. When a report of an expert cannot be obtained, let the statement be qualified, e.g., "From inquiries which the directors have made, they believe that so and so."

6. If it is desired to make use of a statement made by some person who is not an expert, e.g., by a vendor, let it be stated thus:—"The vendor states that the supply of water is ample." This avoids the risk involved in stating "the supply of water is ample."

7. Bear in mind that expressions such as that "the directors hope, anticipate, propose, or intend" are statements within the section, and that if they are made when the directors do not hope, anticipate, propose, or intend, the directors will be in danger of misstating a fact.

But a statement in this form is much less dangerous than an ordinary statement of fact because less easy of refutation. For example, if the statement is that the property is rich in gold, and it turns out not to be true, the directors, if sued, will have to prove that they believed, and had reasonable grounds to believe, the statement to be true; whereas, if the statement is that the directors believe that the property is rich in gold, the plaintiff will have the difficult task of proving that they did not believe. Of course, however, an honest man will not say that he believes unless he has good grounds for that belief. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 375; and see Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, (1896) A. C. 273; but sanguine temperaments too easily believe what they wish to believe. Hence the necessity for care.

As to recording grounds of belief.

8 Looking to the stringent provisions of the section, it would seem expedient that any director, or other person who may be held responsible under the section for untrue statements in a prospectus, should record in writing—

- (1) The fact that he believed the statements to be true when the prospectus was issued and up to allotment;
- (2) The grounds of his belief;
- (3) The grounds on which he believes in the competency of any expert who made any report or memorandum set out or referred to in, or issued with, the prospectus.

As to (8) the onus will be on the plaintiff in an action to prove that the defendant had not reasonable grounds to believe in the competency. Still it seems wiser to preserve the evidence, for the plaintiff will be entitled to ask the defendant, "What were your grounds of belief?" and if the defendant thus challenged could not remember what they were, this, taken with other circumstances, might enable the plaintiff to discharge the onus and recover compensation.

The object, of course, of the record is that the person who make it may, if the occasion arise, be able to refresh his memory in the witness box by referring to such record.

In the absence of such record, it may (after a lapse, perhaps, of years) be a matter of great difficulty for a director, or other person sued, to prove his belief, still more to prove the grounds of belief. The rules as to refreshing memory by referring to such a record are stated in Stephen's Law of Evidence, p. 79, as follows:—

"A witness may, while under examination, refresh his memory by referring to any writing made by himself at the time of the transaction concerning which he is questioned, or so soon afterwards that the judge considers it likely that the transaction was at that time fresh in his memory.

"The witness may also refer to any such writing made by any other person, and read by the witness within the time aforesaid, if when he read it he knew it to be correct."

A delay of some weeks in writing or reading the record might render it inadmissible. See Taylor on Evidence, sect. 1406.

One mode of making the record will be for the director to take a copy of the prospectus, and himself make the record thereon, or on a sheet of paper annexed thereto, and place such copy and record in safe custody.

Another mode will be to consider the prospectus and other documents at a board meeting, before they are issued, to take the statements seriatim, and as to each to state the ground of belief and the fact that all the directors believe it true. Let the minutes made by the secretary record all this in detail, and within the next few days let the formal minutes be read and initialled by all the directors: let a copy be furnished to each of the directors, and let each forthwith compare his copy with the original, and make and initial and date a memorandum thereunder to the effect that: "I compared this copy with the original minutes, and found it correct." In this way the formal minutes may be referred to, and if they should be lost, the director will probably be allowed to refer to the copy. Taylor, sect. 1408.

9. Lastly, it is lawful, subject to sect. 81 (4) of the Companies Act, 1908, for a subscriber to contract himself out of some of the rights secured to him by sect. 84; and there may be cases in which it will be desirable, under proper advice, to arrange for such a contract or waiver. See infra, pp. 231, 232 et seq.; and Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

As to sub-sect. (3) of sect. 84 of the Act (replacing sect. 4 of the Directors' Liability Act). This sub-section is supplementary. It gives to innocent parties sued a right to indemnity against damages, costs, charges and expenses in certain cases, but only where there is no cause of action under the section (84) against the party claiming the indemnity.

Indemnity of innocent defendants.

Persons entitled to such indemnity are the following:

- (1) A person who has been named as a director in a prospectus without his consent, and without his having authorized the issue of the prospectus.
- (2) A director of the company who withdraws his consent to be a director before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof.
- (3) A person who is named as having agreed to become a director, and has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus or notice, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof.

Each of these persons would have a good defence to an action under sub-sect. (i) of sect. 84; but even if he succeeded in defending himself, he might not recover all his costs from the defeated plaintiff, and accordingly sub-sect. (4) enables him to claim indemnity elsewhere.

Indemnity against
company.

It would seem that a director who without fraud or negligence incurs liability under the section is entitled to indemnity as against the company; for he is an agent, and an agent is entitled to indemnity from his principal—in this case the company—in the absence of fraud or misconduct. Story on Agency, sect. 339; Betts v. Gibbins, 2 A. & E. 57.

Sect. 5 of Act.
Right of contribution.

As to sub-sect. (4) (sect. 5 of the Directors' Liability Act).—Sub-sect. (4) of sect. 84 gives a right of contribution to a director or person named as a director, or to a person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus against his co-directors, where such director, &c. has become liable to make a payment under the section. So one of two promoters liable under the section is entitled to contribution from his co-promoter, even in a case of fraud where compensation is obtained under the section. Gerson v. Simpson, (1903) 2 K. B. (C. A.) 197. This is an important alteration of the law. It displaces the old rule which disallowed contribution between tortfeasors, and in substitution treats the relation of the delinquent co-directors or co-promoters as a contractual one.

Section 38 of the Companies Act, 1867.

Sect. 38 of the Act of 1867.

Sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, was repealed as from the 1st January, 1901, by the Companies Act, 1900. See sects. 33, 35.

It had, therefore, no application to any prospectus issued after December 31st, 1900. But the repeal is, by virtue of sect. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, without prejudice to any right of action or liability incurred under the repealed enactment, and accordingly questions as to its effect may still for some time arise with reference to prospectuses issued before January 1st, 1901, and, in fact, they have frequently done so. The decisions on these cases under sect. 38 often throw light on the probable attitude of the Courts towards sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908, more especially as regards material contracts, which by para. (k) of sub-sect. 1 of that section are required to be disclosed, and for that reason deserve attention.

The section is as follows:

Terms of
sect. 38.

38. Every prospectus of a company, and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in any joint stock company, shall specify the dates and the names of the parties to any contract entered into by the company, or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof, before the issue of such prospectus or notice whether subject to adoption by the directors or the company, or otherwise: and any prospectus or notice not specifying the same shall be deemed fraudulent on the part of the promoters, directors and officers of the company knowingly issuing the same, as regards any person taking shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus, unless he shall have had notice of such contract.

Meaning of the section.

Much difference of opinion at one time existed as to what contracts, having regard to this enactment, had to be specified in a prospectus.

See Gover's case, 1 C. D. 182; Twyeross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469. The section says "any," i.e., every "contract," but in 1880 the question was very fully considered in Sullivan v. Mitcalfe, 5 C. P. D. 455, and the judgments clearly pointed to the conclusion that it was only necessary to specify every material contract made by the company or the directors or promoters thereof, meaning by "material contract" every contract which might reasonably be expected to influence the judgment of a person reading the prospectus as to whether he should or should not apply for shares; and it is now well settled, as appears below, that this is the true construction of the section. Sect. 81 (1) (k) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, in terms limits the disclosure thus required to "material" contracts.

The following are examples of contracts which have been held to be material:—

Examples of "material contracts."

- (a) Contract by promoter to buy tramway concession, and subsequently re-sell to the company.
- (b) Contract by same promoter to give to another promoter remuneration for assisting in the promotion of the company. Twyeross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469.
- (c) Contract under which promoter was to receive from the ostensible vendors to the company a portion of the proceeds of sale. Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421.
- (d) Contract between promoters and K., the future chairman of the company, whereby the firm of which K. was a member was to receive a block of vendors' shares as commission for underwriting and for the use of the firm's name. Cackett v. Keswick, (1902) 2 Ch. 456.
- (e) Contracts by promoters to transfer to the company certain paid-up shares in another concern in consideration of a block of paid-up shares in the company. McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 547; Calthorpe v. Trechmann, and Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24 (H. L.).
- (f) Contract by company with its promoter for payment of a large sum to him for finding a deposit and other services.
- (g) Contract rescinding such contract with a promoter and providing that the promoter's claim to remuneration should be "honourably met." Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586; affirmed by H. L. sub nom. Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342.
- (h) Contract with promoters by which a certain firm were to be commercial agents of the company, to receive 10,000 fully-paid shares, and a partner in the firm to be a director. Cackett v. Keswick, (1902) 2 Ch. 457; Nash v. Calthorpe, (1905) 2 Ch. 237; Macleay v. Tail, supra.

Executory and executed
contracts.

This section was not limited to executory contracts; it extended to executed contracts also, that is to say, to contracts which have been carried into effect before the prospectus is issued. Broome v. Speak, supra.

Oral
contracts.

Nor was it possible to escape from the section by making the contract an oral one, for it was held that the section comprehended contracts oral as well as written. Capel v. Sims Ship Composition Co., 36 W. R. 689; 58 L. T. 807; Arkwright v. Newbold, 17 C. D. 301; 25 W. R. 829.

What is a promoter.

As to the meaning of the word "promoter," see supra, p. 125 et seq.; and Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469, 503; also, for the purposes of sect. 84 (directors' liability), sub-s. 5 of the section.

"Knowingly issuing."

The meaning of the words "knowingly issuing" in sect. 38 have been considered in several cases. In Twycross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 542, Cockburn, C. J., was of opinion they meant issuing the prospectus with knowledge of the existence of contracts within the section, and intentionally omitting them from the prospectus. See also Cockett v. Kenwick, (1902) 2 Ch. 459, and Hoole v. Speal, (1904) 2 Ch. 732.

In Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586, it was held that the defendants had "knowingly" issued the prospectus, they having been aware of the existence of the contracts and omitted them, though in doing so they had acted in good faith on legal advice.

Ignorance of the law.

Ignorance of the law does not shelter a director or any other person included in the category mentioned in that section (sect. 38). If a man chooses to become a director of a company, he incurs certain statutory obligations; he may be liable for a statutory fraud without any moral obliquity whatever. That is his misfortune. The legislature deemed it right that this should be so, and though that section is now repealed, it still governs the present case. It is, therefore, idle to say that the defendant was not dishonest. We are not imputing any dishonesty to him except the statutory fraud which is created by sect. 38. He cannot shelter himself from that section under ignorance of the law, or even by saying that he invited the opinion of someone else as to the law, and did not act for himself. Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 766, 773.

Ignorance of existence of contracts.

The matter was further considered in Tait v. Macleay, (1904) 2 Ch. 631. In that case a director issued a prospectus which omitted to disclose a material contract, but at the meeting of directors at which the prospectus was approved, he passed it forgetting the existence of the contract in question, notwithstanding that the minutes of the previous meeting, at which that very contract was considered, were read and confirmed in his presence, and though he had himself approved of the contract. It was shown, however, that he had a general knowledge of the existence of contracts which might fall within the section, and he made no inquiry as to those contracts, but relied upon the assurance of the company's solicitor that the pro-prospectus disclosed the contracts which sect. 38 required to be disclosed. It was held that he had knowingly issued the prospectus within the section. Romer, L. J., in giving judgment, said that the section imposed upon a director who is settling and issuing a prospectus the duty of inquiring what contracts there are in existence which ought to be set out in the prospectus, and if a director knows generally that there are contracts in existence which may or may not fall within the section, and he does not inquire into those contracts so that he can truthfully say that he had no knowledge of any contracts in particular which ought to be set forth in the prospectus, he cannot excuse himself from liability under the section on the plea of ignorance if it afterwards turns out that some of the contracts of which he had a general knowledge were contracts which ought to have been set out, and which he would have ascertained if he had made proper inquiries. This case was reversed by the House of Lords, 15 Dec. 1905 (Mackay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24), but the view above set forth was approved. The ground of reversal was that it was established partly from the plaintiff's admissions and partly on other grounds that even had he known the real facts he would still have subscribed.

As to the remedy, it was long since held that where a person who has taken shares on the faith of a prospectus which is within, and offends against the section, his right course is to sue, not the company, but the promoters, directors or officers issuing the same for the damage he has sustained. See Gorer's case, 1 C. Div. 182, and cases above mentioned.

The remedy under the section.

As to the measure of damages, this is in substance the same as the measure of damages in an action of deceit. Peck v. Derry, 37 C. Div. 541. See Twyeross v. Grant, 2 C. P. D. 469; Lockett v. Keswick, (1902) 2 Ch. 456; McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 516; and Broome v. Speak, (1903) 1 Ch. 586, affirmed by House of Lords sub nom. Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342. These cases, besides giving the measure of damages, show that in order to establish liability under the section it is unnecessary to prove fraudulent intention, for the law imputes it, and that a man may be liable although the omission to comply with the section arose merely from some forgetfulness or misunderstanding.

Measure of damages.

But the section is applicable only to a prospectus offering shares for subscription, and not to one offering bonds for subscription. Cornell v. Hay, L. R. 8 C. P. 328. Nor does it entitle the company to relief. New Sanbrero Co., 3 App. Cas. 1218, or confer on the shareholder a right to repudiate his shares. Gorer's case, 1 C. D. 182. Conf. Wimbledon Olympia, Limited, (1910) 1 Ch. 630; South of England Natural Gas Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 573.

Sect. 38 does not touch debenture holders.

An abridged prospectus is within the section even though such prospectus states where full prospectuses might be obtained. White v. Hayman, 1 Cab. & Ellis, 101; Army, &c. Society v. Craig, 8

Abridged prospectus.

T. L. R. 227. Conf. Russell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127, supra, p. 11. See also infra, pp. 259, 260.

What plaintiff must prove.

In order to obtain relief under sect. 38 the plaintiff must show that but for the omission to disclose the contract, he could not have subscribed. This essential condition was not fully appreciated until the House of Lords so decided in Calthorpe v. Treckmann and Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24. Accordingly if it is shown from the evidence of the plaintiff, or otherwise, that he would still have taken the shares if the omitted contract had been disclosed, or that he was induced to take the shares by matters altogether outside the receipt of the prospectus, he cannot show that he has been damaged, and cannot rely on the section.

Whether director liable by ratification.

A director of a company cannot be liable under sect. 38 for culpable omissions in a prospectus issued without his knowledge or authority. And in a recent case it was held that, even though he subsequently ratifies and derives advantage under the prospectus, he cannot by such ratification be made liable under the section. Hoole v. Speak, (1904) 2 Ch. 732. The learned judge said: "The statute speaks of directors 'knowingly issuing' the same, and therefore presupposes knowledge on the part of the directors, and it points to an offence being committed at the time of the issue. It appears to me that I should be contradicting the language of the statute entirely, and should be extending the operation of that rather harsh measure if I were to hold directors liable for a prospectus which they did not authorize, on the ground that they did afterwards adopt it, or had even derived some benefit from it."

"Notice" of contracts.

Notice of the contract not disclosed, "to disentitle the shareholder to claim relief." "Unless he shall have had notice of such contract," are the concluding words of the section. What does "notice" here mean? It means (i) notice not only of the existence of the contract, but also of its contents, as bearing upon the statements in the prospectus. Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 766. (ii) It does not mean constructive notice.

"Considering," said Lindley, M. R., in Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., supra, "the manifest object of this section, which is to compel the persons issuing the prospectus to afford to persons invited to take shares the information required by the section, it is obvious that the words 'unless he shall have had notice of such contract' mean a good deal more than 'unless he shall have some vague information which, if followed up, will lead to such notice.' Notice in the section means not what is called constructive notice, but actual notice; that is to say, which brings home to the mind of a reasonably intelligent and careful reader such knowledge as fairly and in a business sense amounts to notice of a contract. Any other construction would render the section perfectly useless." "There must," said Collins, L. J., in Watts v. Bucknall, (1903) 1 Ch. 776, "be a fair explanation by the persons who do know to the persons who do not know of the nature of the contracts which are not disclosed."

Waiver Clauses.

1. In relation to sect. 81 (4) of the Act of 1908 (Disclosure in Prospectus).

Sub-sect. (4) of sect. 81 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, provides that

"Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus shall be void." Accordingly it is useless to insert in any prospectus to which the section applies any waiver or provision for notice, and it would seem that the same rule applies to a condition in a form of application required by the prospectus to be used.

2. In relation to sect. 84 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (reproducing the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890) (supra, p. 208).

Here the case is different. The section merely imposes on the directors and others a statutory obligation to pay compensation to the injured subscribers. This obligation is inserted obviously for their benefit, and looking at the cases below referred to, it is apprehended that, beyond all doubt, the requirements of the section can be waived, and that a subscriber may legally contract himself out of certain liabilities under sub-sect. (1) of sect. 84 (sect. 3 of the said repealed Act). It would not, indeed, be proper, or indeed practicable, to make a contract to the effect that the subscriber shall not sue for compensation in respect of a fraudulent misrepresentation; but there would seem to be no impropriety in a contract to the effect that the subscriber will not sue in respect of a misstatement innocently made, and that such a misstatement shall not invalidate or render voidable the contract. Tullis v. Jackson, (1892) 3 Ch. 411. And see Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

Waiver of Directors'
Liability Act, 1890 (now
sect. 84 of
Act of 1908).

Such a contract, assuming the above view to be correct, might be made by deed or covenant with the directors, but that mode will rarely be practicable; and if there is to be such a contract it must, no doubt, be embodied in the prospectus or in the form of application for shares or debentures. But a contract so embodied will, as between the subscriber and the directors, be open to the objection that it is res inter alios acta (see 8th ed., p. 188), unless it is made with the company as trustee: e.g.,

By what instrument.

And I agree with the company (as trustee for the directors and other persons liable) that I will not make any claim, or take any proceedings, under sect. 84 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1900, for compensation in respect of any misstatement in the said prospectus, made by the directors in the belief that it was true, and that this my contract shall not be invalidated by reason of any such misstatement.

(Or the prospectus may state that:—

The statements herein set forth are based on information furnished by the vendor [or by A. B.], but applicants will be deemed to agree with the company (as trustee for the directors) that they will not make any claim under sect. 81 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1900, on account of any incorrect statement in the said prospectus made by any director in the belief that it was correct, or claim to repudiate their contracts on that account.

3. As to sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867

Although this section was repealed by the Companies Act, 1900, the repeal is without prejudice to existing rights and liabilities, and accordingly it is well to bear in mind the relevant decision, such as they were, as to waiver of the rights conferred by it.

These decisions were considered at length in the 7th edition of this volume, and the proposition there contended for, namely, that it was in point of law allowable to waive compliance with sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867, is now generally recognized as correct. See Bensusan v. Clarke, Times, 12th November and 13th December, 1897; Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 421; Cackett v. Kenrick, (1902) 2 Ch. 456; Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24.

But, as Farwell, J., said in Cackett v. Kenrick, "A man who desires to take advantage of a waiver clause must state the facts fairly." If he misdescribes the character of the contracts, or if he states that there "may" be contracts, when he knows that there are, he cannot rely on the clause to protect him. See the above decision. So also if the clause purports to affect the applicant with notice of contracts which are improperly concealed, it is ineffective.

The introduction of a stipulation that an applicant for shares is to be deemed to have notice of what is in fact concealed from him, is simply part of the trick had recourse to in order to evade the consequences of the improper concealment. Such a stipulation in a tricky waiver clause like the one before us affords no protection to the person who seeks protection from it. The principle of refusing to give effect to parts of documents so as to prevent successful deception by means of them is quite familiar in its application to general words in releases and to catching conditions of sale (e.g., Broad v. Manton, 12 Q. B. D. 181). The refusal is based on ordinary principles of honesty, and is as applicable to tricky waiver clauses as to other tricky documents." Per Lindley, M. R., Greenwood v. Leather Shod Wheel Co., supra.

But, subject to these reservations, a waiver clause properly framed and honestly used is, in the opinion of the House of Lords, legitimate and binding. Macleay v. Tail, (1906) A. C. 24.

Criminal Liability in respect of Prospectuses.

Sect. 84 of the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96), provides ^{Criminal liability.} that.

Whoever, being a director, manager, or public officer of any body corporate or public company, shall make, circulate, or publish, or concur in making, circulating or publishing, any written statement or account which he shall know to be false in any material particular, with intent to deceive or defraud any member, shareholder, or creditor of such body corporate or public company, or with intent to induce any person to become a shareholder or partner therein, or to intrust or advance any property to such body corporate or public company, or to enter into any security for the benefit thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and, being convicted thereof, shall be liable, at the discretion of the Court, to any of the punishments which the Court may award, as hereinbefore last mentioned.

The punishments referred to were: "To be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding seven years and not less than three years; or to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour, and with or without solitary confinement" Ibid. sect. 75; and see Chitty's Statutes, 5th ed. vol. 3, pp. 221, 248, under tit. "Criminal Law."

A prospectus is a "written statement" within the meaning of this enactment, and accordingly if a prospectus is issued containing fraudulent misrepresentations, the directors issuing it will be liable to prosecution under the Act; they may also be prosecuted for conspiracy to commit the statutory offence. Moreover any person, whether a director or not, who issues or takes part in the issue of a prospectus containing fraudulent misrepresentations, may be prosecuted for conspiracy to defraud. But of course such persons cannot be convicted, unless it can be proved that they knew the representations to be false, and, acting upon that knowledge and with the intention to deceive and defraud, issued the prospectus. Per Cockburn, C. J., in The Queen v. Gurney and others, Finlayson's Report, p. 254.

In the case last mentioned the prosecution was under sect. 84 of the Larceny Act, 1862, and for conspiracy to commit the statutory offence; and Cockburn, C. J., in his charge to the jury, said that "the sum and substance of the charge was that the business of Overend, Gurney & Co. being hopelessly insolvent and worthless, these defendants, knowing that fact, conspired to induce persons to take shares in the new company to which that business should be transferred with a view of defrauding and cheating the persons so taking and paying for their shares of the price which they would have to pay. That is the sum and substance of the charge. If you shall believe in the end that such a conspiracy did in fact exist . . . there can be no possible doubt that they have committed an offence against the law.

For not only does the Act of Parliament to which I have called your attention make, whether the result of a conspiracy or not, the publishing of statements known to be false, in order to induce persons to take shares, an offence, but there can be no doubt upon the general law of the land that a conspiracy to defraud and cheat by means of false pretences is an offence, and an offence of a very serious nature. It is not the less an offence because it is directed against society at large, and because the machinations of the conspirators may not have been directed against particular individuals. If a number of persons combine and confederate to cheat a particular individual there can be no doubt that it is a criminal conspiracy at law. It is not less so because the persons to be caught and to be deceived are not individually in the eye and contemplation of the conspirators. That was settled long ago in the case to which the learned counsel for the prosecution referred, the case of The King v. De Berenger and others; and whatever remarks Mr. Solicitor-General may have made—and I do not at all controvert what he says—to show that the verdict in that case was unsatisfactory, yet there can be no doubt that when the Court of King's Bench came to consider the law upon the subject their decision was founded on sound and wise principles, and that it has since been received and ought to be received as law, namely, that it is not because a conspiracy to defraud is directed against the general public, it is the less an offence by reason that you have not in your eye a particular individual who is to be defrauded. Independently of which it is quite plain that any conspiracy having for its purpose to defraud those individuals of the general public who may be caught by it, is a continuing conspiracy until it shall have arrived at the accomplishment of its purpose. As soon as the particular individual is brought into contact with the conspirators, the conspiracy, which before was general, becomes in his case, if I may use the expression, individualised and fixed, and that which was a conspiracy to deceive and defraud the general public becomes a conspiracy to deceive and defraud the particular individual. . . . The guilty mind what we lawyers call mens rea—is essential to constitute a crime in the eye of the law. Misrepresentations or concealment may, as I have told you, afford matter of civil action and remedy. But you must have more than that—you must have the guilty mind to constitute the offence with which the defendants are charged. No doubt every man must be taken, prima facie at least, to have intended what are the natural and necessary consequences of his acts; but if you find that there was misrepresentation, and that it has ended in defrauding the parties to whom it was addressed, the fair and legitimate inference is that the intention was that the act done should carry with it the consequences that have followed from it. But this presumption may be rebutted by the other circumstances of the case, and where intention enters so largely into the consideration of the question of guilt or innocence, as it does in a charge of conspiracy and fraud, it becomes most important to look to see what motive could have operated upon the mind of the party charged to induce him to commit the offence"; and see Archbold's Crim. Pr., 23rd ed., p. 1284.

As to Criminal Liability for Disobeying Section 81 of the Companies Act, 1908

Sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908, is positive in its terms. It says that "every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company, or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of a company, must state" certain things thereafter enumerated. Then sub-sect. 6 says that "in the event of non-compliance with any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance if he proves that—

- a) as regards the matter not disclosed he was not cognisant thereof;
- b) the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part";

or in the case of a non-disclosed interest in the directors it is proved against him that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed. This section does not in terms impose any penalty for breach of the duties imposed by it. An opinion has already been expressed that subscribers have an implied right of civil action for damages sustained by a breach of the statutory duty (see Wimbledon Olympia, Ltd., (1910) 1 Ch. 630; and South of England Natural Gas Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 573, and p. 175, supra), though that implied right, or the remedy in respect of it, is not expressly given by the statute. But over and above the civil remedy, it is a well-known principle that a man who disobeys an Act of Parliament which prescribes no other remedy, is liable to indictment for misdemeanour. Reg. v. Price, 11 A. & E. 17; Reg. v. Hall, (1891) 1 Q. B. 747, 767; Reg. v. Tylor, (1891) 1 Q. B. 591.

The question whether the omission to comply with the requirements of sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 entails any criminal liability on the directors or other persons responsible for the prospectus has not yet been settled.

The argument for criminal liability may be put thus. The section clearly imposes a duty on the directors and other persons responsible for the issue, and this duty concerns the public, the object of the section being to protect the public or those who subscribe from being deceived, and although the section contemplates a civil liability on the part of the directors and other persons responsible for the breach, there is nothing sufficient to show that an action for damages is the only remedy open. Therefore, a person who omits to perform his statutory duty may be committing a criminal offence.

The rule is thus tersely expressed in Article 124 of Stephen's Digest of Criminal Law. "Everyone commits a misdemeanour who wilfully disobeys any statute of the realm by doing any act which it forbids or omitting to do any act which it requires to be done, and which concerns the public or any part of the public, unless it appears from the statute that it was the intention of the Legislature to provide some other penalty for disobedience."

The rule is very clearly explained by Bowen, L. J., in The Queen v. Tyler, (1891) 2 Q. B. 588. In that case a duty to make annual returns was imposed by the Act of 1862 (sect. 26) on a company, and a penalty was (by sect. 27) provided for breach of the duty, not only against the company but against the directors and others knowingly and wilfully "authorizing or permitting default." It was held that a breach of the section was a criminal offence

"Now," said Lord Justice Bowen in that case, "if sect. 26 stood alone, it could not be doubted that it created a duty in the company, and that if the company did not comply with the directions of the section, the company would commit a breach of duty. There would be in such a case a disobedience of the law. It was first contended on behalf of the appellant that no criminal proceedings can be taken against a company, and it becomes necessary therefore in order to make the steps of our reasoning clear, that we should examine that proposition and see if there is anything in it. It would seem contrary to sound sense and reason if such a technical objection could succeed. When, for instance, a statute creates a duty upon individual persons, it would be a strange result if the duty could be evaded by those persons forming themselves into a joint stock company. The point becomes still more incapable of argument where the statute prescribes the duty in the company itself. How can disobedience to the enactment by the company be otherwise dealt with? The directors or officers of the company who are really responsible for the neglect of the company to comply with the statutory requirements might not be struck at by the statute, and there would be no way of enforcing the law against a disobedient company, unless there were in such cases a remedy by indictment."

It was then said that a section in an Act of Parliament which directs an act to be done does not necessarily make the disobedience an offence if the Act proceeds to impose a penalty as the only result of non-compliance with the directions of the section. Now, it is true that there are statutes which do not create an imperative and positive duty to the public, but which only impose as the result of non-compliance with the directions of the statute a pecuniary loss on the individual who does not comply. In such a case, it is not the intention of the Legislature to make the disobedience of the law a misdemeanour; it is only the intention to provide that if the person does not comply with the directions of the statute, he must submit to a penalty. In each case it is a question of the construction of the Act, to see if that is what is meant. We must, therefore, examine sect. 27 before we can decide whether the true view is that this Act merely states certain matters which are to be performed by a company with the result only that if the company does not perform them, it may escape by paying the penalty; or whether the true view is not this, that a positive duty is imposed on the company and an appropriate remedy given—a remedy, however, which is intended to be enforced in the interests of the public, and one which does not prevent the failure of the company to comply with the requirements of the section from being a disobedience to the law and a wrongful act. It seems to me that sect. 27 when it is looked at, so far from showing that the breach of the requirements by the company of sect. 26 is not a disobedience to the law, shows most clearly that it is; and that this does not belong to the class of cases in which the statute does not intend the breach of its provisions to be an offence, but merely intends such a breach to be a condition precedent to the recovery of a particular pecuniary compensation. Sect. 27, therefore, throws light on sect. 26, and shows that a breach of sect. 26 is an offence, and that a proceeding under sect. 27 is a criminal proceeding. It would indeed be a remarkable view for the Legislature to take, that the obligation imposed upon a company was of such nature that its breach by the company was not an offence, and yet that a director or manager of the company who stood by and acquiesced in the breach was guilty of an offence. . . . The directors are to be punished if they stand by and permit the company to be in default. . . . The Act says that a company shall do certain things, and a company which neglects to do those things is a criminal offender."

By a fair analogy it may be argued that directors who fail to perform the statutory duty imposed on them by sect. 81 are criminal offenders.

Sub-sect. (9) of the section favours this view. See supra, p. 179.

On the other hand it is difficult to believe, looking to the Act as a whole, that Parliament intended to attach criminal consequences to the neglect by persons to comply with the requirements of sect. 81, still less to leave such criminal liability to be a matter of inference from the indefinite language of the section.

(1) To begin with, the words of the section are that "the prospectus must state," not that "every prospectus issued shall state," and the word "must" may well, in the circumstances, be read as directory only. See Vickers v. Siddell, 15 App. Cas. 596.

(2) In the next place the comparison of sect. 81 with sect. 84 is against the idea of criminal liability. Sect. 84 gives a qualified right of action for compensation or damages against directors and others in respect of every untrue statement in a prospectus, but it imposes no criminal liability, and it would be a strange thing if, under that section, there should be no criminal liability for positive misstatements, whilst under sect. 81 there should be a criminal liability for the much more venial offence of omitting to disclose some fact amongst the multitude of particulars which may or may not be material.

(3) Finally, there is sect. 281 of the Act, by which any person making any return, report, certificate, balance-sheet, or other document required by or for the purposes of the provisions of the Act specified in the Fifth Schedule thereto, wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular knowing it to be false, is to be guilty of a misdemeanour and to be liable to conviction on indictment (to punishment accordingly).

It is significant that a prospectus is, it would seem, designedly omitted from the operation of the section.

Weighing these arguments against one another the balance seems in favour of the view that a breach of sect. 81 is not a criminal offence, but the question is still an open one, and this fact emphasizes the importance of duly complying with the provisions of the section.

As to proceedings for Obtaining Money by False Pretences.

A person commits a misdemeanour and is liable on conviction thereof to five years' penal servitude as a maximum punishment who by any false pretences obtains from any other person any chattel, moneys, or valuable security with intent to defraud. See sect. 88 of the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96). "To support a charge of obtaining money, &c. by false pretences, it is necessary to show and therefore allege that the prisoner with a wicked and criminal mind stated something which if true would be an existing fact, that he did so with intent to procure the possession of money, &c. that he knew his statement was—that is to say, that so far as his mind was concerned, he intended that his statement should be false; that by the statement he did so act on the mind of the prosecutor as that he did thereby obtain money, &c.; that the statement was in fact untrue in the sense of being incorrect." Per Brett, L. J., Queen v. Aspinall, 2 Q. B. D. 38, approved in Queen v. Silverlock, (1894) 2 Q. B. 766. In the last mentioned case it appeared that the defendant had published an advertisement making certain untrue statements, and that the prosecutor had acted thereon and had been induced to part with money thereby, and it was held that the defendant was rightly convicted. "There is no doubt," said Lord Russell, C. J., "as to what are the essentials of the offence of obtaining money by false pretences. There must be a false pretence made to a definite person, it must be proved that such person on the faith of the false pretence parted with his money or goods. These essentials must be stated in the count charging the offence, and the question here is whether the second count complies with these conditions. . . . The advertisement is addressed to all persons whose knowledge it may come, and who may desire to act on it, and if a particular person after seeing or hearing of it acts upon it and goes to the person from whom it proceeds, and upon the faith of it parts with his money or goods, it becomes a fraud on that particular person, who is one of the class of persons for whom it was intended." And see Archbold's Cr. Pr., 23rd ed., pp. 585–594.

As to criminal prosecutions directed by the Court in winding-up compulsory or voluntary, see Companies Act, 1908, s. 217, and Winding-up Pr., Pt. II.

How Disclosures should be made.

The mode in which disclosures should be made by promoters, directors, and others, to the company and to persons invited to become shareholders, must of course depend on the circumstances of the case, but there are some established principles which should be borne in mind, and in particular the following:

How disclosures should be made.

- 1 That any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 or purporting to affect an applicant for shares or debentures "with notice of any contract, document or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus shall be void." Sect. 81 (5) of the Companies Act, 1908.
- 2 That the prospectus, though purporting to be issued by the company, may, it appears, be regarded as a notice to the company of anything stated in it. "The prospectus conveyed to those who became shareholders in the company, and conveyed therefore to the company, notice of some facts with regard to this contract which appear to me to be of great importance. The company was informed . . ." Per Lord Cairns, L. C., Erlanger v. New Sombrero Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218, 1239.
- 3 That disclosure to the company is not necessarily the disclosure which is required to be made to the persons to whom the prospectus is issued: e.g., the intending shareholders. "The corporate entity towards which the duty" of disclosure "exists is a thing apart from the several individuals who for the time being are the only corporators, and the question whether disclosure to them will suffice or not will depend on whether the constitution of the company is really such that they can be in fact contemplated as exhausting all the persons whom the company is intended to embrace. Where . . . the very pith and marrow of the whole adventure is that cash . . . shall be subscribed by the public for the benefit of the promoters and directors, the duty extends to all the persons who are to be contemplated as about to become shareholders." Per Collins, L. J., in Olympia, Ltd. (1898) 2 Ch. 153, 157.
- 1 That apart from the Act of 1908, every member of a company is deemed to have notice of the contents of the memorandum and articles of association, and of any contracts therein set out. Central Rail Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, L. R. 2 H. L. 99, 123; Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. Cas. 401; Ex parte Williams, 2 Eq. 218; Bank of Turkey v. Ottoman Co., 2 Eq. 300; Peck's case, 2 Ch. 674; Growth v. Paget, 6 C. D. 511.

17, County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629; Owen and Ashworth's claim, (1901) 1 Ch. 115.

"All the shareholders of the company must have imputed to them knowledge of the Acts of Parliament, and also of their own memorandum and articles of association." Per Lord Selborne, L. C., Campbell's case, 9 Ch. 1.

But this rule clearly does not apply where there is fraud, for "the statute only meant to bind those who had actually become members. Any one who had without fraud taken shares could not allege ignorance of anything contained in the memorandum of association or in the articles of association, merely because he had not signed or sealed them; but if he never actually signed or sealed them, nor had notice of what they contained, the statute cannot be taken to impute to him knowledge of their contents, so as to protect those who, by a fraud had induced him to do so, that which, in the absence of fraud, would have prevented him from saying he was ignorant of their contents." Per Lord Cranworth, Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch, 1 R. 2 H. L. 123.

The authors of the prospectus cannot say to the defrauded person: "You might have known the truth by proper inquiry." The rule would be: "Your representation put me off my guard." Per Lord Chelmsford, New Brunswick Rail. Co. v. Campbell, 9 H. L. C. 742.

In Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela v. Kisch (who suppresses the prospectus contained misrepresentations; but it must not therefore be assumed that the rule will always apply in the absence of misrepresentation, for where there is a duty to disclose, it would seem that non-disclosure suppressio veri may be deemed fraud. See Lord Blackburn's judgment in Brownlie v. Campbell 5 App. Cas. 130 and Pick v. Hayry, 37 C. D. 541. And see Aaron's Reefs v. Trevelyan, 1896 A. C. 273. The rule would certainly not be applied where the Court or jury was satisfied that the intention was fraudulent, nor would it absolve those who issue a prospectus omitting to comply with the requirements of sect. 81 (1) (a) of the Act of 1908 with reference to the contents of the memorandum or articles of association.

5. That, subject to sect. 81 of the Act of 1908, every person who takes shares on the footing of a particular prospectus is deemed to have notice of the contents of any contract or other document offered for inspection by the prospectus, at any rate so far as the same are not inconsistent with the facts stated or implied by the prospectus. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. Div. 73, 111; S. C., 3 App. Cas. 1262; Anderson's case, 7 C. Div. 75, 102; and see Aaron's Reefs v. Trevelyan, 1896 A. C. 273.

Thus, where the prospectus offered a contract for inspection, Jessel M. R. said: "If the shareholders had gone to see it (and I think in a Court of Justice they cannot complain that they did not see it, but must be treated as having notice of its contents) they would have found a recital of the contract from C. to E. omitting the price. . . ."

New Sombrero Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. Div. 111.

And in the House of Lords, in the same case (3 App. Cas. 1280), Lord Blackburn said: "I think each allottee was fixed with the knowledge, which he would have had if he had read it, that E. had purchased from C. so recently as 30th August, not quite three weeks before he sold to the company."

But if there is misrepresentation, the case is altered and the rule does not apply; "for when men issue a prospectus in which they make false statements of the contracts made before the formation of a company, and then say that the contracts themselves may be inspected at the offices of the solicitors, it has always been held that those who accepted those false statements as true were not deprived of their remedy merely because they neglected to go and look at the contracts." Per Jessel, M. R., Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 C. Div. 14.

And the same learned judge added (Smith v. Chadwick, 20 Ch. D. 7). "It has always been held, and, I think, rightly held, that if a man in a prospectus falsely states the contents of a written document he cannot escape from such false statement by saying: 'I offered to show you the document.' But if he make an incomplete statement, altogether true but imperfect I take it he can."

Id fortiori, where fraudulent intent is established, coupled with actual misrepresentation, offering a contract for inspection does not amount to notice. Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss, supra. And a statement deliberately intended to mislead subscribers, and to conceal the truth from them, brings the case within the same rule, although there may be no downright falsehood. (Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, 241, 242.)

Disclosure, e.g. by a promoter of the profit he is making must be to the shareholders as a body. Disclosure to a select circle of the promoter's own nominees will not avail, ibid.

Offering inspection of a material contract will not afford protection to persons issuing prospectuses after 31st December, 1900, where the dates and parties are not stated in accordance with sect. 81, subsect. 1 (k) of the Act of 1908; and no waiver clause can cure this defect. Sect. 81 (4).

Accordingly, when promoters intend to obtain a profit, or there are other facts which ought to be disclosed, it is expedient to disclose them by the prospectus and also by the articles. See sect. 81 (1) (f) of the Companies Act, 1908. If it is impossible to state them fully in the prospectus, they should be disclosed in the articles, or at any rate in some contract therein referred to and offered by the prospectus for inspection. And it may also be expedient, both in the prospectus and articles, to state that applicants are to be deemed to have notice of the contents of the contract. But each case must be separately considered, subject to this general observation, that having regard to the manifold dangers of non-disclosure, it is well to be on the safe side, and to be over-candid rather than not to be candid enough.

Care requisite in framing
prospectus.

The foregoing observations are sufficient to show the extreme importance of framing the prospectus with the utmost care. Some little colouring may, perhaps, be used without danger; but if a scheme or undertaking is a promising one, with real merits, a moderate tone is generally found to be the most attractive. Exaggeration begets suspicion with the sober-minded and defeats itself.

Statement of objects.

Sect. 80 of the Act of 1908, and the preliminary words of sect. 81, seem to show that both these sections apply to prospectuses issued before the company is registered, and if this is the correct construction the objects of the company must be stated in the prospectus. See sect. 81, sub-sect. (1) (a). But, independently of the Act of 1908, where the prospectus is issued before the company has been registered, great care should be taken in stating the objects of the proposed company: for if the objects of the company when registered exceed or differ materially from those stated in the prospectus applicants may be able to refuse an allotment, or to repudiate their shares after allotment, provided they are not guilty of undue delay (Downes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 343; Stewart's case, 1 Ch. 574; Peel's case, 2 Ch. 674, 684; Lawrence's case, 2 Ch. 412; Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1); to avoid any risk of this, the objects should be finally settled before the prospectus is issued, and applicants should be given an opportunity of inspecting the draft memorandum and articles of association.

But, as already mentioned supra, p. 161], the almost invariable practice at the present day is to issue the prospectus after the formation of the company, and where the prospectus is not issued until after the formation of the company, sect. 81 (1) (a) of the Act of 1908 requires that "the contents of the memorandum of association, which states the objects of the company, shall be set forth in the prospectus."

Inspection of documents.

The prospectus should state where copies of the memorandum and articles of association and of any contracts (see sect. 81, sub-sect. (1) (k)) and other documents infra, p. 255, mentioned in the prospectus, can be inspected.

As to Stock Exchange
rules.

Whether it is or is not intended to apply to the Stock Exchange for a settlement or quotation of the shares offered for subscription in the prospectus, it is necessary to include in the prospectus a copy of the memorandum of association of the company. It has been usually, and may still be, printed within the fold of the prospectus (Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 81, sub-s. (1) (a)). When there are founders' or management shares, the requirements of the clause last referred to must be observed. For extract from the rules of the Stock Exchange, see infra, p. 265.

Review by a director of

In considering a prospectus which it is proposed to issue, the Director whose name is to appear therein should have before him the following ^{proposed} prospectus questions.

- (1) Have the requirements of sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908, been complied with, and have you been advised by competent persons that this is so?
- (2) Are all the statements in the prospectus true to your own knowledge? Have you seen the mine or property? Have you examined the books, &c.?
- (3) As regards those statements which are not true to your own knowledge, what evidence do you rely on as justifying the statements? Do you believe the statements to be true, and if so, what are the grounds of your belief? Are they reasonable? Would they seem so to impartial persons?
- (4) If you rely on some third party, are you satisfied to take the risk of adopting his statements and making them your own? Would it not be wiser to avoid this responsibility? See supra, p. 195.
- (5) If the prospectus contains extracts from any reports or other documents, are the extracts correct? and is there anything in the context which ought in fairness to be stated? Sometimes an extract without the context is misleading.
- (6) Does the prospectus state that so much is to be paid for the property when (to your knowledge) a large part of the price is going to the promoters? If so, the statement may amount to a misrepresentation, independently of sect. 10, sub-sect. (1) (j) of the Act of 1908.
- (7) Are any of the directors interested as vendors, or as having any agreement with the vendors or promoters or otherwise, and, if so, does the prospectus disclose the fact? And see sect. 81, sub-sect. (1) of the Act of 1908.
- (8) Are there any material contracts which are not specified? See sect. 81, sub-sect. (1) (k).
- (9) Have you any such contract in the case of your company? Do you draw a distinction between a binding contract and a mere understanding which you could not enforce, but have no doubt will be carried into effect? The Courts are not always prepared to draw such fine distinctions.
- (10) Is there any fact or circumstance within your knowledge which you think it essential to keep out of the prospectus as likely to deter or damp the ardour of investors? If so, you may incur risk in doing so.
- (11) Do you understand that if there is any untrue statement in the prospectus, or in any report or memorandum embodied therein or issued therewith, you may hereafter be sued in respect thereof by any number of persons who have taken shares on the faith of the prospectus, and may be held liable in each action to pay compensation unless you can establish one of the defences above referred to (pp. 194, 195), and that if sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 is not complied with, you may be liable in an action, and possibly liable to be indicted for a misdeemeanour?

- (12) Have you made a record of your grounds of belief of any statements, as suggested at p. 224, supra? If not, will you be able, (say) five years hence, to remember your grounds of belief?

Circular disclosing Misrepresentation.

Circular sent to amend
prospectus.

Lastly, where, as occasionally happens, a prospectus has been issued which is open to objection as containing material statements which are untrue or which may be misleading, or otherwise, and the facts are not discovered until after allotment, it may, in the interest of all parties, be desirable to bring the matter to the notice of the shareholders with all convenient speed.

As before the Act of 1909, so now, the principal object of such a disclosure is to do what is fair and honest. But having regard to the right of rescission, it is expedient to limit the time within which the allottees can repudiate their shares; and there is no unfairness in doing so, for, as we have seen, an allottee who has a right to rescind must, in justice to his co-adventurers and to those dealing with the company, rescind promptly on becoming cognisant of the facts, otherwise he loses the right to rescind. Supra, p. 197.

Apart, therefore, from sect. 81 of the Act of 1908, if, after receipt of such a circular, the recipient abstains, even for a limited time, from rescinding, he will be treated as having elected to affirm, and will be bound irrevocably.

It will, of course, be the more easy to do this without detriment where the prospects of the company are good and the misrepresentation or suppression not very serious. The requisite disclosure may be made by means of a circular stating the facts, and either pointing out the right to rescind or leaving it to shareholders to find that out for themselves.

In order that the circular may afford a defence to a common law action of deceit, or to an action for compensation under sect. 84 of the Act of 1908, reproducing the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, it seems necessary that it should not merely state the facts, and admit frankly that there has been a misrepresentation, but should also contain an offer to rescind the contract and refund the money paid. Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. Div. 348.

"It has been contended," said Lord Halsbury, L. C., in that case, "that the misrepresentation in the prospectus was undone by a clear and correct explanation in the circular. I do not wish to commit myself to a concluded opinion upon anything which does not arise in the present case. If the directors had sent to each of the plaintiffs a notice to this effect, 'We have deceived you, and if you like you can have your money back,' the case would have stood very differently, and I reserve my opinion as to what would then have been the right course for the Court to take. It may be that in such a case it would be held not reasonable for the plaintiffs to go on with their eyes open and incur further damage. It is needless to give any opinion on that case; in my opinion that state of things does not exist. I do not agree that the circular put any one in the position of knowing the true facts of the case. Before referring to the document, I will observe that, assuming a fraud to have been committed, it obviously rests on those who relied on a subsequent explanation to show that such explanation was quite clear. If the directors had repented of what they had done, and had been desirous of making reparation, they would have called the attention of the plaintiffs to the fact that there was a serious error in the prospectus. . . . But look at the circular as a whole. . . . No admission of mistake is made, but the information is given, so to say, incidentally in the midst of a number of other matters. . . . Is that the way in which the effect of a fraudulent misstatement is to be got rid of? The prospectus appears to me to have been drawn up with the aim of conveying a wrong impression under words sufficiently near the truth to escape being treated as a misrepresentation; and I think that the circular was framed with a similar view, to avoid bringing to the minds of the plaintiffs the real facts of the case, whilst stating enough to enable the defendants to say that the plaintiffs were informed of those facts. I think, therefore, that the circular does not alter the case, and that the appeal must be dismissed."

The Act of 1908, s. 81, presents some further difficulties in the way of curing defects in prospectuses through non-compliance with its provisions.

It is of great importance to obtain some acknowledgment on the part of the shareholder of the receipt of the circular, for, in order to bind him, knowledge of the facts must be brought home to him. If, however, it can be proved by his admission or otherwise that the circular reached him, he will be presumed to have read it. Scholey v. Central Rail. Co. of Venezuela, 9 Eq. 266, n.

But it is not enough, so Pearson, J., held in London and Staffordshire Co., 24 C. D. 149, to prove that the document disclosing the facts was posted, and then to rely on the provision in the articles that it is to be deemed to have been served in due course: actual receipt must be proved. Meantime the contract as obtained by misrepresentation is, according to the law settled in Oakes v. Turquand, voidable, and the shareholder cannot be deprived of his right to rescind it until after knowledge of the true facts has been brought home to him. Assuming London and Staffordshire Co. to have been well decided, it shows the great importance of procuring evidence of the receipt by the shareholder of the notice. This may often be effected by sending with the circular some form (referring to the circular) to be signed and returned. When an inaccuracy in the prospectus is discovered before allotment, the allotment letters may contain a statement correcting it. By this means notice is certainly established as against the allottee who pays his allotment money, but although, unless the error is very serious, the number of allottees who will repudiate may be small, it seems very doubtful whether the statement is not a condition requiring an applicant to waive compliance with sect. 81 within the prohibition of sub-sect. (4), and as such void

PRECEDENTS.

The subscription list will open on --- day the --- day of --- and Form 8.
close on or before --- day the --- day of Skeleton prospectus - a)

A, B, C. & Co., Limtd

Incorporated under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1900

Capital £---, divided into o p.c. Cumulative Preference Shares of £--- each - - Ordinary Shares of £--- each - - - - Management Shares of £--- each - - - -

£

The preference shares carry a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of --- p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being paid up thereon, and rank, both as regards dividend and capital, in

What is a Prospectus.—Unless the context of the Act of 1908 otherwise requires, "the expression 'prospectus' means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement, or other invitation, offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures of a company"; and "the expression 'debenture' includes debenture stock." (Sect. 28 of the Act, and p. 167, supra.)

The above form of prospectus is framed with a view to illustrating the practical operation of sect. 81 of the Act, which applies to "every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company, or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company." (Sect. 81, sub-sect. 1.)

See also sect. 81, sub-sect. (7), which provides "This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or debentures, whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid this section shall apply to any prospectus whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently."

Note, also, that by sub-sect. (8) certain requirements of this section are dispensed with or qualified in particular cases. (See pp. 171, 173.)

Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void. (Sect. 81 (4) of the Act.)

See as to this, supra, p. 174, and sub-sect. (6), supra, p. 175.

Form 8. priority to the ordinary shares, but without any further right to participate in the profits or assets.

(b) The founders' [or management] shares carry the right [state the rights either directly or by inserting extracts from the memorandum or articles of association. State also who is to get the shares. e.g., the founders' [or management] shares have been subscribed by the vendors and the principal employes in the business, and will be pd up in cash.]

Of the above shares, — ordinary shares and — preference shares equal to £— are to be issued and credited as pd up, and as below mentioned the remaining shares are now offered for public subscription, payable as follows:

- 10s. 0d. per share on application.
- 17. 10s. 0d. per share on allotment,
- 17. 10s. 0d. per share on the — of
- 17. 10s. 0d. per share on the — of

The shares may be pd up in full on allotment on or before the — day of —, interest at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a. being allowed in respect of the prepayment of instalments. Applications have already been received from the employes of the firm and relations of the late partners for — shares equal to £—.

The right of voting at general meetings is one vote for every two preference shares, and one vote for every ordinary share, and ten votes for every founders' share (c).

Directors (d).

Names, Addresses, and Descriptions.]

Bankers.

Names and Addresses.]

Auditors (d).

Names, Addresses, and Descriptions.]

(b) Founders' Shares.—The prospectus must state the number of founders' or management shares, if any, and the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company. (Sect. 81 (1) (a).) As to founders' shares, see pp. 587, 819.

(c) The Right of Voting.—Where there are several classes of shares the prospectus must state the right of voting conferred by the shares of such class. (Sect. 81 (1) (n) of the Act of 1908.)

(d) Directors and Auditors.—The prospectus must state the names, descriptions, and addresses of the directors or proposed directors, and the names and addresses of the auditors (if any). (Sect. 81 (1) (c) and (l) of the Act of 1908.)

But it must be borne in mind that, having regard to sect. 72 of the Act of 1908 (subject to the following proviso), a person is not to be named as a director

Solicitors.

Form 8.

[Names and Addresses.]

Brokers.

[Names and Addresses]

Secretary in office.

[Name, Address, and Description.]

PROSPECTUS.

The well-known business of A., B. and C., —, manufacturers of which this coy has been formed to acquire and carry on, was founded upwards of sixty years ago by the predecessors of the present vendors, and has continually grown until it has reached its present magnitude. The business, which comprises both wholesale and retail departments, is carried on upon extensive, well-built, and commodious leasehold premises situate at —, comprising, &c., the whole forming a compact block of warehouses, factories, shops and offices, held at very low rents amounting in the aggregate to £— per annum. Large sums have been spent on these premises to adapt them to the purposes of the business.

The leases, with trifling and unimportant exceptions, have still upwards of — years to run.

The remarkable developments of the last five years have so largely increased the magnitude of the undertaking that the vendors consider the time has arrived for converting the business into a joint stock coy.

The employés of the business number about —, and the customers many thousands, the wholesale accounts alone on the books of the firm amounting to upwards of £—. It is proposed to make a liberal allotment of shares to applicants connected with or contributing to the business.

The business will be taken over by the coy as a going concern as from the — day —, the date of the last annual stock-taking, and the coy will have the benefit of all profits realized from that date after allowing interest on purchase-money down to the time of the completion of the purchase at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a.

or proposed director in any prospectus unless he has signed by himself or by his agent authorized in writing—

- (i.) signed and filed with the registrar of companies a consent in writing to act as such director; and
- (ii.) either signed the memorandum of association for a number of shares not less than his qualification (if any), or signed and filed with the registrar a contract in writing to take from the company and pay for his qualification shares (if any).

Provided that these conditions are not applicable where the prospectus is issued one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business. (See pp. 8, 9.)

Form 8. The property to be transferred to the coy will comprise, in addition to the goodwill (e) of the business, the following items, constituting the whole capital of the business at the above-mentioned date:—

	£
Stock at cost or under - - - -
Book debts (wholesale) - - - £
Less trade discounts, —per cent. £
Books debts (retail) after allowing for bad and doubtful - - - -
Cash in hand and at bank, and bills not discounted - - - -
Advances on security, &c. - - - -
Goodwill - - - -
Leasehold premises - - - -
Buildings, fixtures, fittings, furniture, plant, horses, vans, carts, &c. - - - -
	£
Less trade liabilities - - - -
	£

The stock was taken strictly at cost price or under, and the vendors are satisfied that it has been realised at the usual trade profit. The greater proportion of the book debts has already been got in, and the vendors guarantee that those outstanding, plus what has been so got in, will produce the amount above stated.

As regards working capital, it is considered that the working capital in the business, together with a sum of £—— to be provided out of the proceeds of the shares now offered for subscription, will amply suffice for the company's wants.

The books of the firm have for the past — years been audited by Messrs. —, of —, Chartered Accountants, who have recently made a special investigation of them, and have given the following certificate:—

Messrs. A., B. & C.

Gentlemen,

We have acted as your accountants for many years, and have recently made a special examination of your books, and we hereby certify that the net profits of your business for

(e) Goodwill.—The amount payable for goodwill is to be specified. (Sect. 81 (1) (g) of the Act of 1908.)

the five years ending the — day of January, 1908, have been Form 8.
as follows:—

	£
Year ending January, 1904	- - -
Year ending January, 1905	- - -
Year ending January, 1906	- - -
Year ending January, 1907	- - -
Year ending January, 1908	- - -
Average for the five years	- - -

In arriving at these figures we have not debited profit and loss accounts with interest on borrowed capital, or loans, nor with income tax.

Sufficient provision has in our judgment been made for depreciation of the leasehold premises, fixtures, furniture, horses, vans, &c.

Yours faithfully,

(Chartered Accountants).

£

The average annual profits of the business on the basis of the last five years is -
The annual dividend on £— 5 p.c. preference shares is - - -
A dividend of say — p.c. on present ordinary shares would require £—
Leaving a surplus of - - -

It is proposed to continue the business without break or interruption upon the lines which have proved so successful in the past, retaining the services of the present managers and staff, who have so largely contributed to that success.

(f) The vendors, Mr. — and Mr. —, will act as managing directors for the period of five years, and during such period will retain an interest of at least £— in the capital of the company.

(g) The purchase price for the sale of the above property has been fixed by the vendors, who are the promoters of the company, at £—, of which £— is for the goodwill. Of this sum one-half will be pay-

(f) Vendors' Names, &c.—The names and addresses of the vendors must be stated. (Sect. 81 (1) (f) of the Act, 1908. See pp. 169, 170.)

(g) The prospectus must state the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares, or debentures of any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount payable for goodwill. (Sect. 81 (1) (g) of the Act; and pp. 170, 171, supra.)

See also sect. 81 (1) (f), supra, p. 169.

Form — able to Mr. —, and the other half to Mr. —. Each sum of £— will be paid and satisfied as follows:—that is to say, as to £— in cash, as to £— by debentures, and as to the balance of £— by the allotment of — ordinary shares credited as fully pd up.

The business will be taken over subject to all existing trade contracts. These are of the ordinary trade character.

The difference between the purchase price and the capital when paid up will also provide the company with nearly £— cash, the vendors discharging all liability and the whole of the expenses attending the formation of the company, the transfer of the properties, and issue of capital. A sum of £— ordinary shares is reserved for future issue if and when required.

(h) The minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment is — shares.

(h) Minimum Subscription and Allotment. The prospectus must state the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, and the amount payable on application and allotment on each share; and in the case of a second or subsequent offer of shares, the amount offered for subscription on each previous allotment, and the amount actually allotted, and the amount (if any) paid on such shares. (Sect. 81 (1) (d) of the Act; and p. 169, supra.)

In relation to the minimum subscription, sect. 85 of the Act must be borne in mind. That section provides as follows:

(1.) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company offered to the public for subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely—

- (a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or
- (b) if no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription, has been subscribed, and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named, or for the whole amount offered for subscription, has been paid to and received by the company.

(2.) The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

(3.) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share.

(4.) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of forty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the forty-eighth day: Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5.) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6.) This section, except sub-sect. (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allot-

Form 8.

In addition to the shares and debentures which are to be issued to the vendors as above mentioned, the company is to issue to —

(i) — fully paid-up ordinary shares in the company, and £—— debentures, in consideration of his selling to the company the reversionary fee simple of the leasehold factory, No. —, — Street, E.C., expectant on the lease thereof to be acquired by the company from the vendors.

(j) The shares now offered for subscription have been underwritten for a commission at the rate of — per cent. on the amount thereof, and such commission is payable by the company.

(k) The vendors are to pay the preliminary expenses of and incident to the formation and floating of the company down to the time when it becomes entitled to commence business, exclusive of the underwriting commission above mentioned, and the estimated amount thereof is £——.

(l) The sum of £—— in cash is to be paid by the vendors to ment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription. (See pp. 9, 10, supra.)

(7.) [This sub-section deals with the minimum subscription in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus, and is not a private company. (See supra, p. 10.)]

As to the effect of making an allotment in contravention of sect. 85, see sect. 86 of the Act; and p. 51, supra.

(i) Fully Paid Shares, &c.—The prospectus must state the number and amount of shares and debentures issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which such shares or debentures have been issued or are proposed or intended to be issued. (Sect. 81 (1) (e) of the Act; and p. 169, supra.)

(j) Underwriting.—The prospectus must state the amount (if any) paid or payable as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in the company, or the rate of any such commission. (See sect. 81 (1) (h) of the Act; see also sect. 89; and supra, p. 171.)

(k) Preliminary Expenses.—The prospectus must state the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses. (Sect. 81 (1) (i) of the Act; and p. 171, supra.)

(l) Promoters and Vendors.—The prospectus must state the amount paid or intended to be paid to any promoter, and the consideration for any such payment. (Sect. 81 (1) (j) of the Act; and p. 171, supra.)

It must also state full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of every director in the promotion of or in the property proposed to be acquired by the company, with a statement of all sums paid, or agreed to be paid, to him in cash or shares by any person, either to qualify him as a director or otherwise for services rendered by him in connection with the formation of the company. (Sect. 81 (1) (m) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908; and p. 173, supra.)

The prospectus must state the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the

Form 8.

Mr. — for his services to them in the promotion of the coy, and Mr. —, who has joined the directorate at the request of the vendors, is to receive from them a sum sufficient to enable him to pay for his qualification shares.

(m) The contract for the sale of the business is dated the — day of —, and made between A., B. and C. of the one part, and the coy of the other part. The contract includes certain ppty situate at —, which has recently been purchased by the sd A., B. and C. under contract dated the — day of —, and made between the — Syndicate and A., B. and C. The following contracts have also been made [specify them].

(n) The arts of asson provide that the qualification of a director is to be the holding of — shares in the coy, and that the remuneration of the directors is to be £— per annum, and such further sum as issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of the issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares, or debentures, to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor, or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor. Provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors. (Sect. 81 (1) (f) of the Act.) As to the meaning of "sub-purchaser" see Brooke v. Hansen, (1906) 2 Ch. 129, and pp. 169, 170, supra.

For the purposes of this section (81) every person shall be deemed to be a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase, or for any option of purchase, of any property to be acquired by the company, in any case where—

- (a) the purchase-money is not fully paid at the date of publication of the prospectus; or
- (b) the purchase-money is to be paid or satisfied wholly or in part out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus; or
- (c) the contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of such issue. (Sect. 81 (2) of the Act.)

Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease, this section shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor, and the expression "purchase-money" included the consideration for the lease, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee. (Sect. 81 (3) of the same Act.)

(m) Contracts.—The prospectus must also state the dates of and parties to every material contract, and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected: Provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on or intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract entered into more than two years before the date of issue of the prospectus. (Sect. 81 (1) (k) of the Act; and p. 171, supra.)

A company shall not previously to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus, or statement in lieu of prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting. (Sect. 83 of Act; and p. 332.)

(n) Qualification and Remuneration of Directors.—The prospectus must state the number of shares (if any) fixed by the articles of association as the qualification of a director, and any provision in the articles of association as to the remuneration of the directors. (Sect. 81 (1) (b). See p. 168, supra.)

Form 8.

the coy in general meeting may grant, and that such remuneration is to be divided among them in such proportions as the directors may determine. And further state as to remuneration of managing directors, infra, p. 739, and as to extra remuneration, infra, p. 744].

The directors are interested as follows [state full particulars as required by sect. 81 (1) (m)].

The certificate of Messrs. —, and copies of the memorandum and articles of association of the coy and of the above contracts can be inspected at the office of the solicitors to the coy at any time during business hours.

(o) A copy of the coy's memorandum of association is printed in the fold of the prospectus [or at the foot], and forms part of it.

Application will be made to the Committee of the London Stock Exchange in due course for a settlement and quotation for both classes of shares.

Application for shares should be made upon the form accompanying the prospectus, and sent to — Bank, Limited, E.C., or to one of the bankers — with a remittance of the amount of the deposit.

Where no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full, and where the number of shares allotted is less than the number applied for, the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the remaining payments.

Failure to pay any future instalment on shares allotted when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture.

Prospectuses and forms of application can be obtained at the office of the coy, or from the solicitors or brokers, London.

This prospectus has been duly filed with the Registrar of Cos.

Dated, —

Here add in the case of the copy to be filed the signatures of Directors [(p)].

(o) Memorandum of Association.—The prospectus must state the contents of the memorandum of association, with the names, descriptions, and addresses of the signatories, and the number of shares subscribed for by them respectively. (Sect. 81 (1) (a) of the Act. See supra, p. 167.)

(p) Signing and Filing.—Under sect. 80 of the Act

- (1) Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a coy or in relation to any intended coy shall be dated, and that date shall, unless the contrary be proved, be taken to be the date of the publication of the prospectus.
- (2) A copy of every such prospectus, signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director of the coy, or by his agent authorised in writing, shall be filed for registration with the registrar of companies, on or before the date of its publication, and no such prospectus shall be issued until a copy thereof has been so filed for registration.

How far Act applies.

The application of sect. 81 of the Act of 1908 is enforced and qualified by the following sub-sections dealing with (1) waiver, (2) advertisement, (3) existing members, (4) prospectus issued more than a year after starting.

(4) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus shall be void.

(5) Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary in the advertisement to specify the contents of the memorandum or the signatories thereto and the number of shares subscribed for by them.

(7) This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or debentures, whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to any prospectus whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently.

(8) The requirements of this section as to the memorandum, and the qualification, remuneration, and interest of directors, the names, descriptions, and addresses of directors or proposed directors, and the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus published more than one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business; in the case of a prospectus published more than one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business, the obligation to disclose all material contract shall be limited to a period of two years immediately preceding the publication of the prospectus.

The obligation of disclosure in a prospectus attaches none the less that the prospectus is published in an abridged translation for circulation in a foreign country. Roussell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127. See further as to an abridged prospectus, supra, pp. 175, 229.

Note the definition of prospectus in sect. 285 of the Act of 1908, by which the expression "prospectus" means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other invitation offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures or debenture stock of a company.

(3) The registrar shall not register any prospectus unless it is dated, and the copy thereof signed in manner required by this section.

(4) Every prospectus shall state on the face of it that a copy has been filed for registration as required by this section. (See p. 179, supra.)

The form of application for shares is usually annexed to the prospectus. It may be as follows:—

Form 9.

Application
for shares.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR SHARES

To the Directors of The — Coy, Limtd.

GENTLEMEN,

Having paid to the coy's bankers, Messrs. —, the sum of £—, being a deposit of £— per share on — shares in the above-named coy, I request you to allot me that number of shares upon the terms of the coy's prospectus, dated the — of —, and I hereby agree to accept the same or any smaller number that may be allotted to me, and to pay the balance of £— per share on allotment, as provided by the said prospectus; and I authorize you to register me as the holder of the said shares.

Name in full.

Address.

Description.

Date.

Signature.

As to conditional applications, see Elkington's case, 2 Ch. 511; Pellatt's case, 2 Ch. 527; Simpson's case, 4 Ch. 184; Wallace's case, (1900) 2 Ch. 671; Fisher's case and Sherington's case (1885), 31 Ch. D. 120.

As to waiver clauses, see p. 231, supra.

Annexed to the form of application will be a form of receipt, as follows:—

THE — COY, LIMTD.

Form 10.

Bankers' Receipt (to be retained by the applicant).

Bankers' receipt.

Received this — day of — of Mr. —, the sum of £—, being a deposit of £— per share upon — shares in the above-named coy.

For the — Bank.

To be signed by the bankers or secretary, and retained by the applicant.]

An applicant for shares is bound from the time when notice of allotment is given or posted. Houshold Fire, &c. Co. v. Grant, 4 Ex. Div. 216; Henthorn v. Fraser, (1892) 2 Ch. 27. Until notice of allotment is given or posted there is no contract, and the applicant may withdraw. Wallace's case, (1900) 2 Ch. 671. As to what is posting, see London and Northern Bank, Exp. Jones, (1900) 2 Ch. 289; Pellatt's case, 2 Ch. 527. The withdrawal may be oral. Truman's case, (1894) 3 Ch. 272. But if the withdrawal of his application does not reach the company until after the notice of allotment has been posted, it is ineffectual. Harris's case, 7 Ch. 587; Stevenson v. McLean, 5 Q. B. D. 346; Byrne v. Van Tienhoven, 5 C. B. 344. An unstamped allotment letter may be sufficient. Whitley Partners, Steel's case, 28 W. R. 241; 19 L. J. Ch. 176; 12 L. T. 11; Henthorn v. Fraser, supra.

P.

S

Where notice of allotment is duly posted, the applicant is bound, even though the notice never reaches him. Household Fire, &c. Co. v. Grant, ubi supra; Henthorn v. Fraser, supra.

If no allotment is made, the company is bound to repay the deposit, but the deposit is not a trust fund. Moseley v. Cressey's Co., 1 Eq. 406; 14 W. R. 246.

Where the company does not go to allotment owing to non-subscription of the minimum, the application money must be returned within forty-eight days. See sects. 85, 86, Companies Act, 1908; and Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240; and Re National Motor Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228; also pp. 16, 17.

Where A. applies on behalf of B., but without authority, and B. repudiates the allotment, A. is liable in damages to the company, and the measure may be the par value of the shares. National Coffee Palace Co., 24 C. D. 367.

For letters of allotment, see infra, Chap. XII.

An application addressed to a company not yet registered is effective, and if an allotment is made within a reasonable time, and before withdrawal, the allottee is bound. Downes v. Ship, L. R. 3 H. L. 343; Lawrence's case, 2 Ch. 412; Boyle's case, 33 W. R. 450; Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1.

See further as to membership, p. 45, supra.

Form 11.

Advertisement as to prospectus.

THE — COY, LIMTD.

Notice is hereby given that the above-named coy is issuing a prospectus dated the — day of —, a copy of which has been filed with the Registrar of Companies] inviting subscriptions at par for 5 per cent. cumulative preference shares of £— each, and ordinary shares of £5. The said prospectus states, among other things, that [here give extracts].

Copies of the full prospectus and form of application can be obtained at the office of the coy or from the coy's solrs or brokers.

This notice is not to be regarded as an invitation to the public to subscribe for shares, and application will only be received on the footing of the full prospectus and in the form issued therewith.

Dated —.

No. —, — Street, E.C.

See supra, p. 175, note to sub-sect. (5) of sect. 81.

Sect. 285 of the Act of 1908 defines a prospectus thus:—"Prospectus means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement, or other invitation offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures of the company." And sect. 81 of the Act provides that "a prospectus" [this is a prospectus defined as above] issued by or behalf of a company, &c. must contain certain items of information. See supra, p. 167 et seq.

Sub-sect. (5) of sect. 81 runs thus:—

(5) Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary in the advertisement to specify the contents of the memorandum or the signatories thereto or the number of shares subscribed for by them.

The question is whether an advertisement framed as above (Form II) is a "prospectus" within the above definition. It would seem that it is not, seeing that it does not invite the public to subscribe.

It merely states what is the fact, namely, that a prospectus is being issued, and it gives some supplemental information. In many cases the earlier words, "notice is hereby given that," are omitted, but it would seem that this does not alter the character of the form. Different considerations apply to what is called "an abridged prospectus." Such a document, if it expressly or impliedly invites the public to subscribe, must comply with the requirement of sect. 81 of the Act, save so far as sub-sect. (5) otherwise provides.

But very commonly an abridged prospectus does not comply fully with sect. 81, e.g., omits to disclose material contracts and particulars of directors' interests, though it may end with the words "full prospectuses (upon the terms of which application will alone be received) and forms of application may be obtained from the [cos bankers] and from [the cos brokers]." An abridged prospectus in this form, though sailing near to the wind, does not appear to be a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe. Not uncommonly, however, an advertised abridged prospectus, which does not comply with sect. 81, subjoins a form of application which states on its face that "this form may be torn out and used."

Such an abridged prospectus appears to be a perilous mode of inviting subscription. It clearly comes within the definition of a prospectus in sect. 285 of the Act, supra, p. 258, n., and also within the mischief sought to be remedied by sect. 81 of the Act. It is, however, a somewhat favourite expedient with unscrupulous promoters who find the requirements of sect. 81 inconvenient. Where directors authorize the publication of such an abridged prospectus, and allot shares in response thereto without taking care that the allottee has in fact seen the full prospectus complying with the Act, they must be prepared to find themselves in a position of great difficulty if the company should go wrong and they should be sued for damages by an allottee who has subscribed on the abridged prospectus. They could not in defence be heard to say that the allottee ought to have obtained and read the full prospectus, or ought to be bound with constructive notice of the contents thereof, for sub-sect. (4) of sect. 81 is against such a defence. Moreover, the allottee who subscribes on the faith of a prospectus is entitled to say, "This is the prospectus on the faith of which I applied: it is defective, and it is nothing to me that you issued another prospectus which complied with the statute." Drineghier v. Wood, (1899) 1 Ch. 393, 405; Rousell v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127. Sometimes the abridged prospectus does not include a form of application, but even in such cases, if allotment is made on an application which refers to the full prospectus by date being the same as the date of the abridged prospectus, the directors cannot with safety assume that the applicant was aware of the contents of the full prospectus (see the case last mentioned), though possibly if the form of application states that the application is made on the terms of the full prospectus, "which I have read, and not of the abridged prospectus," the applicant would be estopped from saying that he had not read the full prospectus, unless indeed it should be held that these words were put into his mouth by the directors, and constituted a trap or device. The mere fact that an advertisement is called "an abridged prospectus" does not protect those who issue it, for an applicant is entitled to assume that being a "prospectus" the directors have complied with the statutory requirements. If the advertisement sets out a form of application, whether it contains words to the effect that "this form may be used" or not, it appears to be hopeless to contend that the advertisement is not an invitation to the public to subscribe, yet promoters not uncommonly say that the addition of the form of application is the vital part of such an advertisement, for that they want to induce the reader to sign at once the form, and so commit himself—whereas, if he has to apply for a prospectus he may change his mind.

In regard to "abridged prospectuses" it is well to bear in mind the decision in White v. Haymen and others, 1 Cab. & Ell. 101, 1883, 25th June. In that case a so-called "abridged prospectus" not containing the date or names of the parties to a contract for the sale of a patent to be worked by the company was held to be fraudulent under sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867 (supra, p. 232), although it stated where full prospectuses could be obtained. The learned judge, Mathew, L. J. (then J.), considered the case to be within the mischief intended to be met by sect. 38. "The abridged prospectus," said the learned judge, "is clearly a prospectus within the meaning of the Act, which applies to every prospectus. The defendants further rely on the concluding words of the section, but I do not think they assist them. If the doctrine of constructive notice were applicable the object of the section would be defeated; for that object is to avoid the necessity of being put upon that inquiry which is involved in the doctrine of constructive notice. There must be judgment for the plaintiff." It cannot be maintained that this case was not properly argued, for Finlay, Q.C., and Moulton were for the plaintiffs, and Jelf, Q.C., and E. S. Ford for the defendants. See also the Army, Navy and Civil Service Co-operative Society of India, Limited v. Craig, 10 T. L. R. 227 (1892), before Charles, J. There the plaintiff company sued the defendant for calls, and the defendant pleaded that he was induced to apply for the shares on the faith of a prospectus knowingly issued by the directors and officers of the plaintiff company, which omitted to comply with the provisions of sect. 38 of the Act of 1867. During the hearing of the case a compromise was arrived at, the plaintiff being relieved of his shares. In the course of the case it was stated that it could not be too widely known that an abridged prospectus (as this was) inserted in the Financial News came within sect. 38 of the Act, as proved by White v. Haymen, supra, and his Lordship fully assented to this proposition, and to the proposed compromise.

Those who consider that an abridged prospectus may safely be used as an instrument for obtaining subscriptions must of course treat sub-sect. (4) of sect. 81 (1) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as a nullity, for otherwise that sub-section in providing that it should not be necessary in the advertisement [of a prospectus] to specify the contents of the memorandum or the signatories thereto, and the number of shares subscribed for by them, clearly implies that these are the only parts of the prospectus which it shall not be necessary to specify in an advertised prospectus.

Form 12.

Resolution to sign and file
prospectus.

That the form of prospectus submitted to this meeting, and dated the — day of —, by which — shares of £ — each in the capital of the coy are to be offered to the public for subscription, be and the same is hereby approved, and that the copy of such prospectus also submitted to this meeting be forthwith signed by all the directors and filed with the Registrar of Companies, as required by sect. 80 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908. Form 12.

See the stringent provisions of sect. 80, supra, pp. 179, 180.

To — Coy, Limtd, and the Directors thof.

Form 12a.

GENTLEMEN,

Notice avoiding allotment in contravention of sect. 86
of the Act of 1908.

Take notice that I, the undersigned, do hereby avoid, pursuant to sect. 86 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, the allotment of — shares of £—— each in your capital made to me in the month of — 1900, and request you to remove my name from the register of members in respect of such shares, and to repay to me the sums amounting to £——, paid by me in respect of such shares, with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum thence as from the time when I paid the same reply to you. And take notice, that unless within seven days from the date hereof you notify to me your assent to such avoidance and comply with my request aforesaid, I shall take such proceedings against you as I may be advised.

Dated the — day of —.

Signature of allottee —.

Name in full —.

Address —.

Description —.

Sect. 86 (1) of the Companies Act, 1908, provides that "an allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the foregoing provisions of the last foregoing section of this Act shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up." See Re National Motor Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 228; Burton v. Bevan, (1908) 2 Ch. 240, and pp. 16, 51, supra; Rousselle v. Burnham, (1909) 1 Ch. 127.

STATEMENT IN LIEU OF PROSPECTUS.

The obligations, at once onerous and indefinite, as to disclosure imposed on directors and promoters by sect. 10 of the Companies Act, 1900, and the serious consequences attaching to a neglect of them had the effect of checking to a large extent the use of the prospectus for purposes of company promotion, and augmenting the number of companies floated by other less perilous methods, e.g., by obtaining subscriptions on forms of application on the faith of oral statements, by selling the company's shares in the stock market through financial agents, brokers and others, or through the medium of a pooling syndicate. The law's over-strictness defeated itself, as so often happens. To remedy this undesirable result the Legislature, in

Statement in lieu of
prospectus.

sect. 1 of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 1 of the Act of 1907) has required, where a prospectus is not issued [and the company is not a private company, sect. 82 (2)], the filing of a "statement in lieu of prospectus." The section runs thus:—

82.—(1.) A company which does not issue a prospectus on or with reference to its formation, shall not allot any of its shares or debentures [or debenture stock] unless before the first allotment of either shares or debentures [or debenture stock] there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statement in lieu of prospectus, signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorized in writing, in the form and containing the particulars set out in the second schedule to this Act.

(2.) This section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures [or debenture stock] before the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight.

"Prospectus" in this section means, as provided by sect. 285, any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement, or other invitation offering to the public for subscription or purchase any share or debentures [or debenture stock] of a company.

The statement in lieu of prospectus is to be framed in accordance with the form set forth in the second schedule to the Act (see infra, p. 264), and on referring to that form it will be seen that the disclosure required is almost as extensive as that required in the case of a prospectus inviting subscriptions for shares in a new company.

Accordingly, in filling up the form of statement the observations made in the preceding part of the chapter as to the drafting of a prospectus may be referred to in illustration and explanation. The statement is to be signed by every person who is named in it as a director or a proposed director of the company, or by his agent authorized in writing.

The statement is, amongst other things, to state the "minimum subscription (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles of association on which the company may proceed to allotment." These words refer to sect. 85, which provides, in para. (7), that—

"(7.) In the case of the first allotment of share capital, payable in cash, of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription, that is to say,

"(a) The amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles, and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus, as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or has been subscribed, and an amount not less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company.

"(b) If no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash.

"This sub-section shall not apply to a private company, or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures [or debenture stock] before the 1st day of July, 1908."

In following the analogy of a prospectus, sect. 86 in effect provides that an allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the above sub-section, sect. 85 (7), shall be voidable, and the directors liable to compensate the company and the allottee, while sect. 87 prohibits the company from commencing business, or exercising its borrowing powers, until the conditions specified in the statement have been complied with. Sect. 83, which prohibits a company from varying, before the statutory meeting, any contract referred to in that company's prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting, applies equally to the contracts referred to in a statement in lieu of prospectus.

Again, the statement in lieu of prospectus is clearly a document required by or for the purposes of the Act, specified in the fifth schedule, i.e., a document required to comply with sect. 82, and accordingly if any person wilfully makes in it a statement false in any material particular, knowing it to be false, he is guilty of a misdemeanour, and liable on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years with or without hard labour, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding four months with or without hard labour, and in either case to a fine (not exceeding 100*l.*) in lieu of or in addition to such imprisonment. See sect. 281.)

Nor is the liability a criminal one only. It would seem that untrue statements or material omissions in a statement in lieu of prospectus may give to anyone who acts on the faith of such statements being true and complete a right of action against those who signed the statement in lieu of prospectus. Sect. 82, it will be observed, provides that the statement in lieu of prospectus is to be signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorized in writing, and the obvious design of this requirement is to impose on the signatories a statutory duty of disclosure for the benefit of the persons who may deal with the company, and this statutory duty includes the duty (see sect. 281) to see that the statements contained in the statement in lieu of prospectus are true and complete, in accordance with the statutory form. If this statutory duty is not performed, it follows, on the principles above referred to (pp. 175 et seq.), that those persons who show that they have been prejudiced by the breach of duty have a right of action against those who are responsible for the breach. See the cases cited above, pp. 175 et seq. The liability thus incurred is even more onerous than the liability of those who issue a prospectus; for in the case of a prospectus the persons making incorrect statements are, by paragraph (6) of sect. 81 of the Act, relieved from liability if they can prove that they have contravened the section in ignorance or mistake, but no such defence is available to an action under sect. 82 of the Act, for, primâ facie, ignorance or mistake is no answer to a claim for damages for breach of a statutory duty. Couch v. Steel, 3 E. & B. 402; Groves v. Wimborne, (1898) 2 Q. B. 402. Accordingly the signatories of a statement in lieu of prospectus seem to occupy a more perilous position than the authors of a prospectus, and it behoves them therefore to make sure that the statement is correct and complete.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

The —, Limited.

Statement in lieu of Prospectus, filed by —, pursuant to sect. 82 of the above Act. Presented for filing by —.

The nominal share capital of the company	£—.
Divided into - - - - -	Shares of £— each.
	" " "
	" " "
Names, descriptions, and addresses of directors or proposed directors.
Minimum subscription (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles of association on which the company may proceed to allotment.
Number and amount of shares and debentures agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid-up otherwise than in cash.	1. — shares of £—, fully paid.
The consideration for the intended issue of those shares and debentures.	2. — shares upon which £— per share credited as paid.
	3. — debenture — £—.
	4. Consideration.
Names and addresses of (a) vendors of property purchased or acquired, or proposed to be (b) purchased or acquired by the company.
Amount (in cash, shares, or debentures) payable to each separate vendor.
Amount (if any) paid or payable (in cash or shares or debentures) for any such property, specifying amount (if any) paid or payable for goodwill.	Total purchase price £—
	Cash . . . £—
	Shares . . . £—
	Debentures . . £—
	Goodwill . . . £—
Amount (if any) paid or payable as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares or debentures in the company, or	Amount paid.
	" payable.

(a) For definition of vendor, see sect. 81 (2) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908; and pp. 173, 174.

(b) See sect. 81 (3) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Rate of the commission - - - -	Rate per cent.
Estimated amount of preliminary expenses	£—.
Amount paid or intended to be paid to any promoter.	Name of promoter.
Consideration for the payment.	Amount £—.
	Consideration :—

Dates of, and parties to, every material contract (other than contracts entered into in the ordinary course of the business intended to be carried on by the company or entered into more than two years before the filing of this statement).

Time and place at which the contracts or copies thereof may be inspected.

Names and addresses of the auditors of the company (if any).

Full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest of every director in the promotion of or in the property proposed to be acquired by the company, or, where the interest of such a director consists in being a partner in a firm, the nature and extent of the interest of the firm, with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him or to the firm in cash or shares, or otherwise, by any person either to induce him to become, or to qualify him as, a director, or otherwise for services rendered by him or by the firm in connection with the promotion or formation of the company.

Whether the articles contain any provisions precluding holders of shares or debentures receiving and inspecting balance-sheets or reports of the auditors or other reports.

Nature of the provisions.

(Signatures of the persons above-named as directors or proposed directors, or of their agents authorised in writing.) —.

EXTRACTS FROM THE RULES OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE (LONDON).

January, 1912.

SPECIAL SETTLEMENTS AND OFFICIAL QUOTATIONS.

149. The secretary of the share and loan department shall give three days' public notice of any application for a special settling day in the scrip or bond of a new loan previously to its being submitted to the committee, who will appoint a special settling day provided that sufficient scrip or bonds are ready for delivery and are in reasonable amounts (vide Appendix 35). Special settling day. Loans.

150.—(1) The secretary of the share and loan department shall give three days' public notice of any application for a special settling day in the shares or other securities of a new company previously to such application being sub- Special settling day.

Companies.	mitted to the committee, who will appoint a special settling day provided that sufficient certificates or scrip are ready for delivery.
Vendor's shares.	(2) The committee will not fix a special settling day for bargains in shares or securities issued to the vendors, credited as fully or partly paid, until six months after the date fixed for the special settlement in the shares or securities of the same class subscribed for by the public, but this does not necessarily apply to reorganisations or amalgamations of existing companies, or to cases where no public shares are issued or to cases where the vendors take the whole of the shares issued for cash (vide Appendix 35).
Official quotations.	151.—(1) The committee may order the quotation in the official list of any security of sufficient magnitude and importance.
Applications.	(2) Applications for quotation must be made to the secretary of the share and loan department, and must comply with such conditions and requirements as may be ordered from time to time by the committee (vide Appendix 36).
Notice.	(3) Three days' public notice must be given of every application.
Broker.	(4) A broker, a member of the Stock Exchange, must be authorised to give the committee full information as to the security, and to furnish them with all the particulars they may require.
Quotation of vendor's securities.	152. Securities issued to vendors credited as fully or partly paid shall not be quoted until six months after the date fixed for the special settlement of the securities of the same class subscribed for by the public nor unless a quotation for the latter is also granted.

35. Special Settlements.

The following documents and particulars should be sent to the secretary of the Share and Loan Department when application is made for a special settlement:—

(Rules 149 and 150.)

A. Scrip or Bonds of New Loans.

A specimen of the scrip or bond.

A copy of the prospectus, circular or advertisement relating to the issue.

A statutory declaration, stating—

1. The amount allotted
 - (a) to the public.
 - (b) to others.
2. The distinctive numbers and denomination of each class of scrip or bond.
3. The amount paid up thereon.
4. That the scrip or bonds are ready to be delivered.

B. Shares of New Companies.

The certificate of incorporation.

A specimen of the share certificate.

A copy of the prospectus, the statement in lieu of prospectus as filed with the Registrar of Companies, circular or advertisement relating to the issue.

A specimen call letter.

Certified printed copies of contracts relating to the issue of shares credited as fully or partly paid.

A letter from the secretary of the company stating—

1. That the share certificates are ready to be issued.
2. The distinctive numbers of the shares allotted
 - (a) to the public.
 - (b) to the vendors.

3. The particulars of the company's capital.
4. The nominal amount of each share, and the amount paid in cash or credited as paid on each share.
5. In cases where the whole of the capital has not been issued at the time the application is made, whether the unissued shares are vendors' shares or are held in reserve for future issue.

C. Stock or Debenture Stock of New Companies.

A specimen of the scrip or stock certificate.

A copy of the prospectus, the statement in lieu of prospectus as filed with the Registrar of Companies, circular or advertisement relating to the issue.

A letter from the secretary of the company stating—

1. The amount allotted
 - (a) to the public.
 - (b) to others.
2. The amount paid in cash per 100*l.* stock.
3. That the scrip or stock is ready to be issued.

36. Official Quotations.

A. Conditions precedent to an Application for Official Quotation.

1. That the prospectus—

Shall have been publicly advertised;

Agrees substantially with the Act of Parliament or articles of association;

Provides for the issue of not less than one half of the authorised capital and for the payment of 10 per cent. upon the amount subscribed;

If offering debentures or debenture stock states fully the terms of redemption;

In cases where a company has sold an issue of debentures or debenture stock which is subsequently offered for public subscription either by the company or any subsequent purchaser, states the authority for the issue and all conditions of sale.

2. That two thirds of the amount proposed to be issued of any class of shares or securities, whether such issue be the whole or a part of the authorised amount, shall have been applied for by and unconditionally allotted to the public, shares or securities granted in lieu of money payments not being considered to form part of such public allotment.

3. That the articles of association and the trust deed where such is required contain the provisions specified hereafter.

4. That the certificate or bond is in the form approved.

B. Articles of Association.

Articles of association should contain the following provisions:—

1. That none of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of or in loans upon the security of its own shares;
2. That directors must hold a share qualification;
3. That the borrowing powers of the board are limited;
4. That the non-forfeiture of dividends is secured;
5. That the common form of transfer shall be used;
6. That all share and stock certificates shall be issued under the common seal of the company, and shall bear the signatures of one or more directors and the secretary.

7. That fully-paid shares shall be free from all lien;
8. That the interest of a director in any contract shall be disclosed before execution, and that such director shall not vote in respect thereof.
9. That the directors shall have power at any time and from time to time to appoint any other qualified person as a director either to fill a casual vacancy, or as an addition to the board, but so that the total number of directors shall not at any time exceed the maximum number fixed; but that any director so appointed shall hold office only until the next following ordinary general meeting of the company, and shall then be eligible for re-election;
10. That a printed copy of the report, accompanied by the balance-sheet and statement of accounts, shall, at least seven days previous to the general meeting, be delivered or sent by post to the registered address of every member, and that two copies of each of these documents shall at the same time be forwarded to the secretary of the Share and Loan Department, The Stock Exchange, London;
11. That the charge for a new share certificate, issued to replace one that has been worn out, lost, or destroyed, shall not exceed one shilling.

C. Trust Deeds.

Trust deeds should contain the following provisions:—

1. Where provision is made that the security shall be repayable at a premium, either at a fixed date or at any time upon notice having been given, the trust deed must further provide that should the company go into voluntary liquidation for the purpose of amalgamation or reconstruction the security shall not be repayable at a lower price.
2. The following clause should be inserted in all deeds:—
 “The statutory power of appointing new trustees hereof shall be vested in the company, but a trustee so appointed must, in the first place, be approved of by a resolution of the debenture (or debenture stock) holders passed in the manner specified in the schedule hereto. A corporation or company may be appointed a trustee of these presents.”
3. In the clause regulating the convening of meetings of the debenture (or debenture stock) holders the following words should be inserted:—
 “And the trustee or trustees shall do so upon a requisition in writing signed by holders of at least one-tenth of the nominal amount of debentures (or debenture stock) for the time being outstanding.”
4. The clause defining an “extraordinary resolution” must provide that “the expression ‘extraordinary resolution’ means a resolution passed at a meeting of the debenture (or debenture stock) holders duly convened and held at which a clear majority in value of the whole of the debenture (or debenture stock) holders is present in person or by proxy and carried by a majority consisting of not less than three-fourths of the persons voting thereat upon a show of hands, and if a poll is demanded, then by a majority consisting of not less than three-fourths in value of the votes given on such poll.”
5. Should debentures or debenture stock be entitled “first mortgage,” provision must be made for the creation of a specific first mortgage in favour of the debenture or debenture stock holders.

D. Share and Stock Certificates.

All certificates should state on their face the authority under which the company is constituted and the amount of the authorised capital of the company.

All certificates should bear a footnote to the effect that no transfer of any portion of the holding can be registered without the production of the certificate.

Where the capital of a company consists of more than one class of shares of the same denomination, the distinctive numbers of the shares of each class must be printed on the face of the share certificates.

All preference share certificates should bear on their face a statement of the company's capital and the conditions both as to capital and dividends under which the shares are issued.

Debentures and debenture stock certificates should, in addition to legal requirements, state on their face the authority under which the company is constituted, the nominal capital of the company, the dates when the interest on the debentures or debenture stock is payable, and the authority under which the issue is made (i.e., articles of association and resolutions); and on their back the conditions of issue, redemption and transfer.

E. Bonds.

Bonds must specify the amount and conditions of the loan, the powers under which it has been contracted, and the numbers and denominations of the bonds issued, and in the case of a loan issued either wholly or partly in London, those issued in London must bear the autographic signature of the London agents or contractors.

F. New Companies.

Before the application form can be issued for signature there must be supplied:

A copy of the prospectus.

Two copies of the articles of association.

In the case of debentures or debenture stock the trust deed [where possible before execution].

After the application form has been signed there must also be supplied in the case of:

Shares.

The certificate of incorporation, and the certificate that the company is entitled to commence business.

Two certified copies of the prospectus, endorsed with the date when first advertised.

Two certified copies of the memorandum and articles of association.

The original letters of application.

The allotment book containing a list of applicants, the number applied for by each, and the result of each application, with a summary signed by the chairman and secretary.

Should the allotment have taken place at an interval of six months or more before the date of the application, a certified list of present shareholders will also be required.

A copy of the letter of allotment, and the date when posted.

A specimen of the share certificate.

The bankers' pass book, accompanied by a certificate on a special form from the company's bankers, stating the amount of deposits received by them, and the number of shares on which such deposits (i.e., application money only, being £ per share) were paid.

Authenticated copies of all concessions and similar documents with notarially certified printed translations and certified printed copies of all contracts and agreements.

A statutory declaration by the chairman and secretary stating the following particulars:

1. That the prospectus complies with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.
2. That all documents required by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have been duly filed with the Registrar of Companies and the dates of filing.
3. The number of shares applied for by the public.
4. The number of shares allotted unconditionally to the public (Nos. to), and the amount per share paid thereon in cash.
5. The number of shares allotted for a consideration other than cash (being Nos. to).
6. The amount of deposits paid and that such deposits are absolutely free from any lien.
7. That the share certificates are ready for delivery, that the purchase of the properties has been completed and the purchase-money paid and that no impediment exists to the settlement of the account.
8. The total number of the allottees, and the largest number of shares (a) applied for by, and (b) allotted to, any one applicant.

H. After the application form has been signed there must be supplied in the case of:—

Debentures and Debenture Stock.

The certificate of incorporation or Act of Parliament and the certificate that the company is entitled to commence business.

A certified printed copy of the mortgage deed or other similar document, and the official certificate of the registration of the mortgage or charge.

Certified copies of the articles of association, resolutions or other authority for the present issue.

Two certified copies of the prospectus.

The original letters of application.

The allotment book containing a list of applicants, the amount applied for by each, and the result of each application, with a summary of the whole, signed by the chairman and secretary.

Should the allotment have taken place at an interval of six months or more before the date of the application, a certified list of the present stockholders will also be required.

A copy of the allotment letter and the date when posted.

A specimen of the debenture or debenture stock certificate and of the scrip, where scrip is issued; certificates of debenture stock allotted to vendors in lieu of money payments being enfaced "issued to vendors."

A copy of the last published report and accounts.

The bankers' pass book, accompanied by a certificate on a special form from the company's bankers stating the amount of deposits received by them and the amount of debentures or debenture stock on which such deposits (i.e., application money only, being £ per debenture) were paid.

A statutory declaration by the chairman and secretary stating:—

1. That the prospectus complies with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and that all documents required by that Act have been duly filed with the Registrar of Companies and the dates of filing.
2. The amount of stock applied for by the public.
3. The amount unconditionally allotted to the public (Nos. to).
4. The amount, viz.: £ per cent. paid thereon in cash.
5. The amount allotted for a consideration other than cash (Nos. to).
6. The total amount of deposits and that such deposits are absolutely free from any lien.
7. That the debentures or debenture stock certificates are ready for delivery, and that there is no impediment to the settlement of the account.
8. That a trust deed has been executed and completed if such be the case.
9. The effect of such trust deed and the nature of the charge created thereby in favour of the debenture holders.
10. The total number of allottees.
11. The largest number of debentures or debenture stock (a) applied for by and (b) allotted to any one applicant.

A statutory declaration by the chairman and secretary, stating:—

1. The total amount of the authorized capital of the company, and how constituted.
2. The number of shares allotted unconditionally to the public (Nos. to), and the amount paid on each share in cash.
3. The number of shares taken by concessionaires, owners of property, contractors, or other parties not included in the public allotment (being Nos. to).
4. That the share certificates have been delivered; that the purchase of the properties has been completed and the purchase-money paid.

I. Scrip.

In addition to the requirements made in the case of definitive stock or bonds, a specimen of the scrip certificate must be supplied.

K. After the application form has been signed, there must be supplied in the case of—

Further Issues.

A King's printers' copy of the Act of Parliament authorising, the resolutions, &c. creating, and the circular or prospectus offering, the new issue.

If shares have been issued credited as fully or partly paid, certified printed copies of the contracts relating thereto.

A copy of the allotment letter.

A copy of the last report and accounts.

A specimen of the share certificate.

The allotment book, unless the allotment is pro rata.

A statutory declaration by the secretary stating:—

1. That the prospectus or circular complies with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908;
2. That all documents required by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have been duly filed with the Registrar of Companies, and the dates of filing.

3. That the shares (Nos. to) have been applied for by and unconditionally allotted to the shareholders or the public, or sold upon the market as the case may be;
4. The amount per share paid in cash;
5. The total number of allottees and the largest number of shares applied for by and allotted to any one applicant.
6. That certificates are ready to be issued, and that there is no impediment to the settlement of the account. It must also be stated whether or not the shares are in all respects identical with those already quoted in the official list.

The statement that shares are in all respects identical means that—

They are of the same nominal value, and that the same amount per share has been called up.

They carry the same rights as to unrestricted transfer, attendance and voting at meetings and in all other respects.

They are entitled to dividend at the same rate and for the same period, so that at the next ensuing distribution the dividend payable on each share will amount to exactly the same sum.

The statement that stock is in all respects identical means that—

All the stock is entitled to the same rights as to unrestricted transfer and in all other respects.

All the stock is entitled to dividend at the same rate and for the same period, so that at the next ensuing distribution the dividend payable on each 100*l.* of the stock will amount to exactly the same sum.

L. After the application form has been signed there must be supplied in the case of:—

Vendor's Shares.

A certified list of the present holders of the vendor's shares.

A certified copy of the last published report and accounts of the company.

A specimen of the share certificate.

A statutory declaration by the secretary stating:—

1. That the vendor's shares (Nos. to) have all been issued and certificates delivered.
2. That the shares are in all respects identical with those already quoted in the official list.

M. After the application form has been signed there must be supplied in the case of:

Old Companies.

The certificate of incorporation or Act of Parliament and the certificate that the company is entitled to commence business.

Authenticated copies of all concessions and similar documents with notarially certified printed translations.

Certified copies of all prospectuses, original or otherwise, endorsed with the date when first advertised.

Two certified copies of the memorandum and articles of association.

A specimen of the share certificate and of the allotment letter.

A certified copy of present register of shareholders.

Certified printed copies of contracts, agreements, &c., together with copies of all contracts relating to the issue of shares credited as fully or partly paid.

A certified copy of the company's last published report and accounts.

A short history of the company, setting forth its origin, progress, dividends, &c., the number of transfers registered during the last twelve months and the number of shares represented by such transfers.

Statutory declaration by the chairman and secretary stating the following particulars:—

1. That the prospectus complied with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.
2. That all documents required by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have been duly filed with the Registrar of Companies and the dates of filing.
3. The number of shares applied for by the public.
4. The number of shares allotted unconditionally to the public (Nos. to) and the amount per share paid thereon in cash.
5. The number of shares allotted for a consideration other than cash (being Nos. to).
6. That the share certificates have been delivered; that the purchase of the properties has been completed and the purchase-money paid.

N. After the application form has been signed there must be supplied in the case of:

Colonial and Foreign Companies.

The certificate of incorporation or Act of Parliament or other similar document.

Two copies of the statutes or articles of association or notarial translations of the same.

A certified list of present shareholders.

A specimen of the share certificate.

Copies of all agreements, concessions, deeds, &c., or notarially certified printed translations of the same.

A certified copy of last published report and accounts or translation of the same.

Official evidence of quotation in the country to which they belong or where the issue has been made.

A short history of the establishment and progress of the company from its incorporation to the present time, including particulars as to the issue of the capital.

A declaration stating:—

1. The number of shares allotted;
2. The amount per share paid in cash;
3. That the shares are ready for delivery, and that no impediment exists to the settlement of the account.

O. After the application form has been signed there must be supplied in the case of:

Reconstructed Companies.

The certificate of incorporation and the certificate that the company is entitled to commence business.

A statement of the plan of reconstruction together with certified copies of all resolutions passed and circulars issued in connection with the reconstruction.

The allotment book with a summary signed by the chairman and secretary.

The allotment letter and the date when posted.

A specimen of the share certificate.

Two certified copies of the memorandum and articles of association.

P.

T

Certified printed copies of all contracts, agreements, &c.

Copies of all contracts relating to the issue of fully or partly paid shares.

A statutory declaration by the chairman and secretary stating:—

1. That all documents required by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have been duly filed with the Registrar of Companies, and dates of filing.
2. The authorized capital of the company.
3. The number of shares to which shareholders in the old company were entitled; the number and distinctive numbers of shares unconditionally allotted to such shareholders, and the amount per share (a) paid thereon in cash, and (b) credited as paid up.
4. The number and distinctive numbers of shares applied for by and allotted unconditionally to the public, and the amount per share (a) credited as paid up, and (b) paid thereon in cash.
5. That the share certificates have been, or are ready to be delivered, and that there is no impediment to the settlement of the account.

P. After the application form has been signed the following documents must be supplied in the case of:—

Loans.

Details of the creation of the loan and the authority under which it is issued, including authenticated copies of concessions, &c. with notarially certified translations.

The authority to the agents or contractors to receive subscriptions.

A certified copy of the prospectus.

Evidence that all bonds issued and payable abroad bear the signature of some properly authorised person.

A specimen bond, together with a bond duly executed or scrip certificate if issued.

Statutory declaration by the agents stating:—

1. The amount allotted unconditionally to the public.
2. That the required amount, viz., £ per cent., has been paid thereon in cash.
3. That the bonds are ready for delivery, and that there is no impediment to the settlement of the account.
4. The numbers and denominations of those bonds which bear the autographic signature of the London agents or contractors.

Q. After the application form has been signed, the following documents must be supplied in the case of:—

Bonds quoted abroad.

Official evidence of quotation in the country to which they belong, or where the issue has been made.

Notarially certified printed translations of all prospectuses and of the laws creating and authorising the loan.

A specimen bond, together with a bond duly executed.

An official certificate setting forth:—

1. The authorized and issued amounts of the loan and the terms of issue.
2. The distinctive numbers and denominations of the bonds.
3. Evidence that all bonds bear the signature of some properly authorized person.

UNDERWRITING.

CHAPTER IV.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

It has for many years past been a common practice to have shares or debentures or debenture stock underwritten before offering the same for public subscription.

What is underwriting?

To "underwrite," as the expression is used in company matters, is a well-known business term signifying the entering into a contract by which a person (known as "the underwriter") agrees (usually for a commission) that if the shares, debentures, or debenture stock about to be offered for subscription, or some specified proportion thereof, are not within a specified time taken up by the public, or by that section of the public to which they are to be offered, he will himself take them up and pay for what the public do not take up, or some specified proportion thereof. Licensed Victuallers' Assoc., 42 C. D. 1; London, Paris, &c. Assoc., 13 T. L. R. 569; Consort Deep, &c. Co. (1897) 1 Ch. (C. A.) 575. Sometimes the contract binds the underwriter either to take up the shares, &c. or to find responsible persons to do so; it is none the less, in either case, called an underwriting contract. Occasionally one person, or firm, or company, underwrites the whole issue, but it is more common for the underwriting to be done by a number of persons, each of whom underwrites a specific amount, and stipulates that the public subscriptions are to go in relief of all the underwriters' liability rateably in proportion to the amounts underwritten by them respectively. When the underwriting is done by one person, firm, or company, the underwriter usually re-insures by making sub-underwriting contracts so as to reduce the risk. Underwriting and sub-underwriting of this kind is not confined to professional underwriters. Great numbers of business men and investors are, or in the past have been, content to "take a line" in the underwriting of a promising issue. If the thing "goes," they take their commission and stand free. If it does not and they are "landed," the commission is so much in reduction of the net price, and, at the worst, they can "pool" what they are landed with, and gradually dispose of it to the general public. See Forms 6, 7.

Advantages
of.

By having a proposed issue underwritten in this way by responsible persons before the prospectus is published, the success of the issue is assured, and the company and others interested are relieved from the risk of loss and inconvenience likely to ensue if the public should not be disposed to subscribe. Thus—

- (a) Suppose that a company is registered to acquire a business, or to carry into effect a scheme which will require the provision of at least 50,000*l.* cash, and accordingly, that by the articles of association the minimum subscription on which (pursuant to sect. 85 of the Act of 1908) the directors may go to allotment is fixed at 50,000 shares of 1l. each. If the public do not come in and take up the amount, and the shares have not been underwritten, the company will be unable to proceed to allotment or to commence business unless it can find people ready and willing to take up the minimum subscription. This, after the failure of the invitation to the public is known, it may be impossible to arrange, and in the result the preliminary costs and expenses may be thrown away; whereas if beforehand the minimum subscription is underwritten, this danger is averted. Accordingly, it is now very common to have at least the minimum subscription underwritten and so secure the company going to allotment.
- (b) Suppose, however, the amount of the minimum subscription fixed in the articles—a matter left to the discretion of the promoters—to be so small that the directors will themselves be prepared to subscribe it if the public do not come in, still it may be necessary to resort to underwriting if the scheme on which the company is started requires any considerable cash subscription.
- (c) Suppose A., B., and C. are converting their business into a company which is to offer its preference shares and debentures for public subscription. The business is well known and successful, but a large portion of the capital employed represents loans, deposits, and other capital left in the concern by a deceased partner; and the proceeds of the proposed issue are intended to clear off all these liabilities. In the circumstances it is essential, in the interests of A., B., and C., that the issue should be placed without fail; if they go to the public without any underwriting, there will be risk of failure by reason of some unforeseen contingency, e.g., the contemporaneous announcement of some other or more attractive scheme, the appearance of a hostile letter in a newspaper, some great commercial failure, or some disturbance of the money market. Accordingly steps are taken to eliminate the risk by having the issue underwritten.

- d) A going company may desire to raise further funds by the issue of additional shares, or debentures, or debenture stock. To offer the new capital without success would involve risk to the company, indeed failure to obtain a subscription might prove disastrous. The company's advisers are of opinion that in the state of the market, or in the special circumstances of the case, the success of the issue is problematical. Accordingly, underwriting is almost a necessity.
- e) A financial or other company has become possessed of shares, stock, or securities issued by some other concern. It desires to dispose thereof to the public, and, in order to ensure the success of the issue and avoid the serious detriment which non-success would involve, underwriting is resorted to.

Sometimes, as above mentioned, it is considered sufficient to have only a portion of a proposed issue underwritten, e.g., in the case of a new company, sufficient to provide the necessary working capital, and so much cash as the vendor absolutely requires; and where a going company wants further funds it may often be thought sufficient to have only a part of the proposed issue underwritten.

Underwriting of part only of issue.

Old Law as to Underwriting in force before the Companies Act, 1900 (now replaced by sect. 89 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), came into operation.

Prior to the coming into operation of the Act of 1900, the underwriting of shares or debentures was attended with serious difficulties in consequence of the then existing law as to the payment of underwriting commissions. The law stood thus:—

- 1) It was extremely doubtful whether a company, even if authorized by its memorandum and articles of association, could legally pay out of its capital commission for underwriting shares in its own capital.

Company,
though authorized by memorandum,
could not safely pay commission
out of capital, except small brokerages to brokers.

These doubts arose, if not before, at any rate with the decision of Kay, J., in Faure Accumulator Co., 40 C. D. 141 (1888), and they were certainly not lessened by the decision of the Court of Appeal in Lydney & Wigpool Co. v. Bird, 33 C. D. 85, in which Lindley, L. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, said, at p. 95: "It appears to me wholly wrong to make a company pay for the issue of its own shares. No part of the capital could be so applied"; or by the decision of the House of Lords in Ooregum Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125, in which case it was held that to issue shares of a company at a discount was ultra vires, from which it seemed to follow that to pay a commission to a subscriber for shares for subscribing was ultra vires. These doubts were emphasized, too, by the fact that some of the most eminent lawyers at the Chancery Bar from time to time advised against the legality of payments out of capital for underwriting, although there were dicta in the Court of Appeal in Licensed Victuallers' Association, 42 C. D. 1, to the contrary, and although in Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Association v. Scrimgeour, (1895) 2 Q. B. 604, payment of a 2½ per cent. brokerage commission to the broker for his services as such was held legal. That decision was, however, strictly confined to the case of brokerage to a broker at a rate not exceeding 2½ per cent.

Otherwise as to profits of share premiums.

And could pay out of capital for placing debentures or other companies' shares.

A company could give underwriters right to call for shares.

Underwriting obligation could be attached to particular class of shares.

Illegal indirect payment of commission out of capital.

- (2) A company could out of profits, including premiums on shares carried to reserve and other assets not being capital, pay a commission for underwriting shares in its capital.
- (3) A company could pay out of capital, profits or other assets, for underwriting its debentures or debenture stock, or for underwriting shares in or securities of other companies, owned by it, and which it was entitled to dispose of.
- (4) A company could, as consideration for underwriting contracts with it, give to the underwriters the call at par or at a premium of shares in the company's capital, that is to say, the right to call for the allotment thereof on the footing that the allottee was to pay or be liable to pay the par value thereof to the company or some higher price.
- (5) The obligation to underwrite shares could validly be made a condition attaching to the ownership of shares of a particular class in the company; for example, the memorandum might provide that each allottee of founders' shares should be deemed to underwrite 100 ordinary shares.
- (6) It was not legal for a company indirectly to pay out of capital commission for underwriting shares in its capital, e.g., by agreeing to purchase property at a price which a company through its directors knew was fixed so as to cover underwriting.

"There is no doubt that, if it cannot be done directly, it cannot be done indirectly," said Lord Chelmsford in James v. Eve, L. R. 6 H. L. 385, in relation to an ultra vires application of capital; and the same principle was recognized in Mann v. Edinburgh Tramways, (1893) A. C. 69.

Law and Practice since the Companies Act, 1900 (now amended and replaced by sect. 89 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), which came into operation 1st January, 1901.

In certain cases underwriting may now be paid for out of capital.

The Act of 1900 materially altered the law as to the underwriting of shares, for it expressly allowed (sect. 8) a company, in certain cases and subject to certain conditions, to pay out of its capital for underwriting shares in its capital. "The Legislature," said Lord Davey in Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474, 479, "was desirous of enabling remuneration to be paid for services rendered in placing or procuring subscriptions of the company's capital, and it appears to have hit upon what may be termed a compromise."

Sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1900, was amended in some important particulars by sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1907, and both sections, again, are now replaced by sect. 89 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, which runs as follows:—

Commissions and Discounts.

89.—(1) It shall be lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, if the payment of the commission is authorised by the articles, and the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed the amount or rate so authorised, and if the amount or rate per cent. of the commission paid or agreed to be paid is—

Power to pay certain commissions, and prohibition of payment of all other commissions, discounts, &c.

(a) In the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the prospectus; or

(b) In the case of shares not offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in a statement in the prescribed form signed in like manner as a statement in lieu of prospectus and filed with the registrar of companies, and, where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus, inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice.

(2) Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount, or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the power of any company to pay such brokerage as it has heretofore been lawfully accustomed to pay for a company to pay, and a vendor to, promoter of, or other person gives payment in money or shares from, a company shall have and is deemed always to have had power to apply any part of the money or shares so received in payment of any commission, the payment of which, if made directly by the company, would have been legal under this section.

The section, it will be observed, goes far beyond authorizing payment of an underwriting commission, for it allows the payment of a commission to any person in consideration of his "subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company,"—words which enable a company in effect to issue its shares at a discount subject to the conditions imposed by sub-sect. 1. And sub-sect. 3 in effect allows a vendor or promoter to pay underwriting commission out of what he receives from the company, subject nevertheless to similar conditions.

Gives unlimited scope for issuing shares at discount if subsect. 1 observed

In the first place, it is to be noted that the words—the governing words—with which the section in the Companies Act, 1900, began, "Upon any offer of shares to the public for subscription," disappear from the new section. This enables a company to pay an underwriting commission though there is no offer of shares to the public—a very important concession. For it had been held (Burrows v. Malabale Gold Reefs, (1901) 2 Ch. 23), that an offer by a company of further shares to its members was not an "offer of shares to the public"; nor was an offer of shares on a reconstruction by the new company to the shareholders of the old company through the medium of the liquidator (Booth v. New Africander Gold Mining Co., 87 L. T. 509, C. A.); nor was an offer made by a promoter to a few of his friends (Sleigh v. Glasgow and Transvaal Options G. F., 420 Ct. of Sess.); and in all these cases therefore it was not competent to a company to pay a commission. Now it is so for a private company as well as a public company (Dominion of Canada General Trading Syndicate v. Brigstoke, (1911) 2 K. B. 648), and the question when shares are offered to the public for subscription is only material for the purpose of determining whether the commission is to be disclosed in the prospectus.

"Lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person."

It has not yet been settled whether the word "pay" here means pay in money only, or in money or money's worth.

Sub-sects. 2 and 3 tend to show that the word "pay" is used in the wider sense, for, save as aforesaid, that sub-section prohibits the application by the company of any of its shares or capital money in payment of any commission, and thus appears to recognize the word "payment" as an apt description of an application of shares in a company in payment of a commission.

Moreover, the word "pay" is used in some other places in the Act of 1908 in this, the wider sense. See sects. 65, 81, 85, and 87.

Shares are constantly spoken of as being "paid" for otherwise than in cash, e.g., in sect. 88.

The section impliedly allows of the payment of a lump sum or of a rate by way of commission, but it is of course, controlled by the company's articles, and if the articles only allow payment of a commission at a rate not exceeding so much as the directors determine, a lump sum cannot be paid. Booth v. New Africander Gold Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295. The section does not in terms limit the amount of the commission, and it is difficult to imply any limit, except such as the directors may deem expedient.

The Legislature no doubt thought that companies might safely be trusted not to damage their own credit by paying and disclosing an extravagant commission.

In effect, by allowing the payment of a commission, the section allows of the issue of the shares at a discount: for instance, a 10*l.* share may be allotted on the footing that the allottee is to be paid a commission of 5*l.* on the share; in which case the financial result is the same as if the 10*l.* had been issued at a discount of 50 per cent.; but as a matter of form the transaction is correct; the shares are fully paid up by the subscriber, and the commission is paid to him by the company out of its funds as part of its business expenditure.

"In consideration of his subscribing," &c. "Subscribing" here means, it is apprehended, taking from the company on the footing that the share is to be paid up in due course by the subscriber or his successors in title, either in cash or its equivalent. This is the popular meaning of the words. See Arnison v. Smith, 41 C. D. 318; Ross v. Estates Investment Co., 3 Ch. 682; Kent v. Freehold Lands Co., 3 Ch. 492. As to reconstruction, see Chap. XXI., infra.

Whether absolutely or conditionally. The word "conditionally" here used is no doubt introduced to cover the underwriter's contract, which has almost invariably conditions annexed to it. The words "whether absolutely or conditionally" appear amply sufficient to cover the case of a man who subscribes absolutely and the case of a man who only underwrites—that is, subscribes—conditionally.

If the payment of the commission is authorized by the articles. It follows that to comply with the section the amount or rate must be authorized by the articles of association, and the commission paid or agreed to be paid must not exceed the amount or rate so authorized. The "articles" here mean the articles as originally framed or as altered by special resolution (see sect. 285). Accordingly, any company which has not got in its articles a suitable provision can, by special resolution, alter its articles so as to introduce the provision, and this power can be used both where there is no provision at all and where the existing provision is found unworkable, e.g., when it provides for the payment of commission at too low a rate.

The articles may provide that a specified sum may be applied in paying commission, or that a sum not exceeding a specified amount may be so applied, or that a particular rate may be paid, or that a payment not exceeding a particular rate may be paid.

Does not exceed. The amount or rate of commission which the company may pay must not exceed the amount or rate per cent.

authorized by the articles of association and disclosed in the prospectus, but, subject to this condition, the amount or rate is left by the Legislature to the company to settle, it being considered, no doubt, that the matter might safely be left to the company's advisers, who would not be likely to sanction any extravagant sums being so expended, seeing that there would have to be public disclosure. In one case (Keatinge v. Paranga Consolidated Mines, (1902) W. N. 15) a learned judge seemed to think that a commission might be so large as to involve issuing the shares at a discount, but it is submitted that this can scarcely be treated as a reason for limiting the statutory discretion vested in a company by the section, for the section itself expressly authorizes the payment of a commission to a person in consideration of his subscribing for shares, and this is for financial purposes equivalent to issuing the shares at a discount.

And "disclosed in the prospectus."

The amount and rate per cent. of the commission must not only be authorized by the company's articles and keep within that limit, but it must be disclosed in the company's prospectus where old shares are offered to the public. If the company is one that does not issue a prospectus then the amount and rate must be disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in the filed statement in the prescribed form. See para. (h) of sect. 8.

If a director pays money out of the company's funds by way of commission when the payment of such commission is not disclosed in the company's prospectus, the company may recover the amount from him in an action. Dominion of Canada General Trading Syndicate v. Brigstoke. (1911) 2 K. B. 648.

As to sub-sect. 2 of sect. 89:—

"Save as aforesaid no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money." These, the preliminary words of sub-sect. (2), leave a company at liberty to apply any of its profits in paying commissions in accordance with the practice above referred to as existing before the Act of 1900 (Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474), but they prohibit a company from applying any of its shares or capital money to the payment of commissions except in a case coming within sub-sects. 1 or 3. "Those words naturally mean apply its capital, either in the form of shares before issue, when they may be described as potential capital, or in the form of money derived from the issue of its shares." Per Lord Davey in Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474. They do not affect the company's power to grant to underwriters as the commission or part of the commission for underwriting, the option to take up shares at par or above par. Hilder v. Dexter, supra.

"Either directly or indirectly." What may be the exact meaning of these words has yet to be determined. The word "directly" is clear enough. It is apprehended that the word "indirectly" is intended to point to a transaction by which the company, by some device, contrives to bring about the prohibited payment, or, as Lord Davey said, in Hilder v. Dexter, supra, by "allotting the shares in some way with the intention that they shall ultimately find their way to such person or be applied in payment of his commission."

One of the most common ways of doing so was by making it one of the terms of the contract with the vendor that he should pay the required commission, or by entering into a contract to purchase property on the unexpressed understanding that the vendor was to pay the underwriting commission—in other words, when the purchase price payable by the company was loaded by adding the amount of the commission. Short of this a company might adopt or enter into an agreement for the purchase knowing that the vendor was going to pay for underwriting, and might therefore be assumed to have fixed the price with reference thereto, so that the company would be indirectly paying for such underwriting. (See Mann v. Edinburgh Tramways, (1893) A. C. 77, in which case Lord Herschell, L. C., said, "It is obvious that in estimating 93,000*l.*, which was to be paid by the Tramways Company to the Cable Corporation, 17,000*l.* of it was estimated as paid for the amount of these expenses, because the whole agreement was under negotiation at the same time;" and see Great North-West Central Railway v. Charlebois, (1898) A. C. 114.)

See supra.]

"Added to the purchase-money," &c. If, as a matter of fact, it can be proved that there has been an addition to the purchase-money or the contract price of any work to be executed for the company in order to cover the commission, the section will have been contravened.

"Or the money be paid." The words "or the money be paid," &c., probably point to a case in which it cannot be said that the amount has been added to the purchase-money, but in which the purchase-money has been fixed with reference to the fact that the vendor or contractor will pay such commission, and, so inflated, does, in fact, pay the same. Mann v. Edinburgh Tramways Co., (1893) A. C. 69; Booth v. New Africander Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295; Lydney and Wiggpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 33 Ch. D. 85.

The words "or otherwise," will probably be construed as ejusdem generis with the previous words, and accordingly as including any other like device under which the company, in substance, gives shares or capital money in payment of the commission.

"Vendors or promoters." This portion of the section qualifies the rule laid down in sub-sect. (2), and thus affords much-needed relief.

The concluding words of the sub-section are material, "the payment of which if made directly by the company would have been legal under the section." They show that a vendor or promoter has no free hand to pay commission. He may agree to pay a commission, but if he does so it must be seen to that the company could legally pay such commission; that is to say, that the articles allow it, and that the commission is duly disclosed as in (b) of sub-sect. (1) provided.

As to sub-sect. (3):—

Such brokerage." Sub-sect. (3) gives a statutory sanction to the decision of the Court of Appeal above referred to in Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Association v. Scrimgeour, (1895) 2 Q. B. 604. The brokerage, therefore, must be payable to a broker for his services as a broker, and must not, it would seem, exceed $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., or other the amount which would have been held reasonable prior to the Act.

As to giving the Call of Shares for Underwriting. It was at one time held on the above section that it was no longer open to a company to contract to give underwriters or subscribers, as a consideration or part consideration for underwriting or subscribing, the call of further shares at par or a premium, for that to do so was to apply the company's shares in payment of a commission, and therefore in contravention of paragraph 2 of the section. Burrows v. Matabele Gold Reefs, (1901) 2 Ch. 23. In that case the company was a going concern. It proposed to issue some of its unissued shares; it did not offer them to the public, but it did offer them to existing shareholders, and it entered into a contract with certain persons to underwrite the issue in consideration of an option to subscribe for some other unissued shares of the company at the price of 2*l.* 10*s.* per share, that is to say, at a premium of 1*l.* 10*s.* per share; this was less than the market price. It was held by Farwell, J., that the offer to the shareholders was not an offer to the public, and therefore that the company was not entitled to pay any commission for underwriting under sub-sect. (1) of the section, and that the contract to give an option to take the unissued shares was, in effect, an application of shares to the payment of commission within the meaning of the section, and therefore prohibited by sub-sect. (2). "It was said," observed the learned judge, "that the section was intended to prevent the vendor from giving part of his shares to underwriters, but assuming this to be so, I can see no reason why the words of the Act should not be applied to other transactions which are fairly within the expressed intention of the Act and the mischief intended to be thereby prevented. It was urged that the premiums could not be capital, and that the consideration for the underwriting might be paid out of premiums, but this is not the case before me. The Act distinguishes between capital and shares, and forbids the application of either in payment of underwriting commission, and I have to consider only a dealing with shares, not with the money produced by those shares." The decision was affirmed on appeal. "How," said Rigby, L. J., "can you 'apply' shares more clearly than by allotting them? When you allot the shares you apply not their nominal value, but the shares, and that is what sub-sect. (2) prohibits." This decision was, however, overruled by the House of Lords in Hilder v. Dexter (1902) A. C. 474. In that case the company determined in 1901 to issue a portion of the shares in its capital, and it did so by offering the shares not to the public but to fourteen persons, of whom Hilder was one. He applied for and was allotted shares on the following terms, namely: "For each share allotted in accordance with this application a subscriber shall have the option, during the period of one year from the 3rd day of January, 1901, of taking up at par a further ordinary share of 1*l.* in the initial capital of the company, and in the event of such last-mentioned share being taken up under such option, a further option during the period of two years from and after the said 3rd day of January, 1901, of taking up at par a further ordinary share of 1*l.* in the initial capital of the company." Later on, the shares having gone to a premium, Hilder gave notice to the company that he elected to take up further shares under this agreement. It was held by Byrne, J., and by the Court of Appeal, that the bargain was invalid. The House of Lords reversed the decision. Lord Davey in his judgment, after pointing out the condition of the law at the time when the enactment was passed, proceeded thus:—

"The first words to be construed are 'apply any of its shares or capital money.' I think that those words naturally mean, apply its capital either in the form of shares before issue, when they may be described as potential capital or in the form of money derived from the issue of its shares. 'In payment of any commission, discount or allowance.' I think this means payment by the company. The words 'discount or allowance' seem to mean the same thing, namely, a rebate on what would justly be due from the subscriber on his shares. The advantage which the appellant will derive from the exercise of his option is certainly not a 'discount or allowance,' because he will have to pay 20*s.* in the pound for every share. Nor is it, in my opinion, a commission paid by the company, for the company will not part with any portion of its capital, which is received by it intact, or, indeed, with any moneys belonging to it. But the words relied on are 'either directly or indirectly,' and the argument seems to be that the company by engaging to allot shares at par to the shareholder at a future date is applying or using its shares in such a manner as to give him a possible benefit at the expense of the company in this sense, that it foregoes the chance of issuing them at a premium. With regard to the latter point it may or may not be at the expense of the company. I am not aware of any law which obliges a company to issue its shares above par because they are saleable at a premium in the market. It depends on the circumstances of each case whether it will be prudent or even possible to do so, and it is a question for the directors to decide. But the point which, in my opinion, is alone material for the present purpose is, that the benefit to the shareholder from being able to sell his shares at a premium is not obtained by him at the expense of the company's capital. The prohibited application of the shares may be direct by allotting them as fully or partly paid up to the person underwriting the shares, or by allotting them in some other way with the intention that they shall ultimately find their way to such person or be applied in payment of his commission.

"My Lords, it may be that in some particular case a contract such as that which your Lordships have before you would be open to impeachment as improvident, or an abuse, or in excess of the powers of management committed to the directors. In this case the question is as to the powers of the company itself, and not as to the due exercise of the directors' powers. I have come to the conclusion from a consideration of the language of sect. 8, sub-sect. 2, that the prohibition therein contained extends only to the application direct or indirect of the company's capital in payment of a commission by the company, and the transaction impeached in this case is not within it."

Commission
out of profits.

Payment of Commission out of Profits. It is corollary from this decision that the section does not prohibit the payment of commission out of undivided profits of the company, whether standing to reserve or not, but of course if payment is to be made out of reserve, it must be seen that the reserve fund clause infra, p. 754] contains words, specific and general, sufficient to cover such a payment

As to Premiums on the Issue of Shares. Before the Act of 1900, where shares were to be issued at a premium it was not uncommon to procure underwriting on the footing that the commission for the same should be paid out of the premiums, and eminent lawyers had advised that the payment thereof was legal. There seems to be nothing in sect. 89 of the Act of 1908 to invalidate this practice. Apart from the section and from any special provisions in the articles of a company, premiums are usually carried to reserve or brought into the profit and loss account as part of the company's revenue; they are not capital—and to apply the same or part in payment of the expenses of earning such premiums is reasonable enough. But whether premiums can now be applied in paying commission is another matter; it involves different considerations from the application thereof in payment of dividend. To justify dividend thereof it must be shown that they are net profits. Lubbock v. British Bank of (1892) 2 Ch. 198; Foster v. New Trinidad Co., (1901) 1 Ch.

Prohibited Transactions. What the Act then allows is a fully disclosed payment subject to the specified conditions; all other payments are prohibited by sub-sect. (2).

Hence it is not allowable to evade full disclosure by stating that the commission is to be "at varying rates not exceeding 5 per cent.," for this does not disclose the actual amount paid or agreed to be paid.

Nor is it sufficient to state that the rate is to be at the rate specified in a contract offered for inspection, for that affords only constructive disclosure.

The following is a summary of the law as it stands:

1. A company which has the requisite power in its articles, as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, may pay out of capital a commission for underwriting shares in its capital, provided that the conditions specified in sub-sect. (1) of sect. 89 of the Act of 1908 are complied with.
2. A company which validly agrees to pay a commission as aforesaid may, it is conceived, reserve power to satisfy the commission by the allotment of paid-up shares or debentures, and it may be that a company may agree that the payment of commission shall be satisfied in shares credited as paid up.
3. A vendor, promoter, or other person may, out of money coming from the company, pay a commission, provided the articles allow same and there is due disclosure.
4. A company may, out of undivided profits, pay a commission for underwriting shares in its capital, and that without complying with the conditions imposed by sect. 89 (1) of the Act of 1908.
5. A company may, out of capital or profits, pay for underwriting debentures or other securities of the company (as distinguished from its own shares) or shares in or securities of any other company owned by it.
6. A company may give an option to call for shares in its capital as the consideration for underwriting either shares or debentures, debenture stock, or other securities of the company.
7. Save as aforesaid, a company may not pay, directly or indirectly, any underwriting commissions in relation to the placing of its share capital.

As to the Practice since the Act of 1908 came into Operation.

The usual practice is for the company itself to enter into direct relations with the underwriters. Very commonly one or two persons make the underwriting contract with the company, and subsequently reduce their liability under the contract by procuring sub-underwriting contracts with other persons.

Sometimes the vendor in the contract of sale agrees to underwrite a portion of the company's shares, and then he sub-underwrites.

Sometimes the company reserves power in the purchase contract to rescind, unless a specified number of shares shall be subscribed within a specified period, and in that case the vendor commonly gets the number underwritten so as to ensure the carrying out of the contract.

As to Disclosure in a Prospectus as regards Underwriting. It is necessary to disclose the amount or rate of the commission paid, or agreed to be paid, where the same is to be paid out of capital. Sect. 81 (1) (h) of the Act of 1908, and p. 171.

Whether it is necessary to disclose the underwriting contracts is a moot point, but it is very common to disclose the dates of, and parties to, the contracts on the assumption that sub-sect. 1 (k) of sect. 81 requires such disclosure, and this is the safest course. It may well be considered that as para. (h) expressly requires disclosure of the commission, that is sufficient.

Where the underwriting commission is to be paid out of undivided profits, it may sometimes be necessary to disclose the contracts under sect. 81, sub-sect. 1 (k).

Reconstruction.

As to Underwriting upon a Reconstruction. Where it is proposed to reconstruct a company by transfer of the undertaking to a new company in consideration of shares credited as partly paid up—e.g., 1*l.* shares with 1*s.* per share credited—to be distributed among the members of the transferring company, it is very commonly desired to have such shares underwritten, so that the new company may start with sufficient capital resources.

The difficulty in the way of this arrangement was that under the original form of the power as contained in sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1900, the underwriting commission could only be paid "upon any offer of shares to the public for subscription," and it was held in Booth v. New Africander Gold Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295, that an offer of shares on a reconstruction by the new company to the shareholders of the old company through the medium of the liquidator was not an "offer of shares to the public." This difficulty is removed by the new form of the power in sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908, which does not contain the words "on any offer of shares to the public," and therefore permits payment of underwriting commission, whether the shares are offered to the public for subscription or not. A difficulty, however, still remains, having regard to the fact that payment is, by sub-sect. (1), only allowable for subscribing, or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring, or agreeing to procure subscriptions, and "subscription" is not, it has been suggested, a very appropriate term as applied to the taking up of a share, credited as partly paid up, which, under a contract of reconstruction, a shareholder is entitled to have allotted to him. In a sense, no doubt, the underwriter in such circumstances who agrees conditionally to take up the shares not taken up by the shareholders in the reconstructing company may be said to have subscribed, for he agrees to take the shares from the new company and to become liable for a portion of the amount, the balance having been paid up in kind by the liquidator, but whether he technically "subscribes" within the meaning of the section remains for decision. It may also be said that the reconstructing company is not in a position to give title to the shares, seeing that by the reconstruction agreement they are to be placed at the disposal of the shareholders or of the liquidators, but neither of these points have much substance, and would probably yield to a liberal construction of the section as an enabling one. But see Barrow v. Paringa, (1909) 2 Ch. 658.

As to Framing Underwriting Contracts. Great care and circumspection are requisite for this purpose, inasmuch as astute underwriters, when called on to perform their perhaps onerous obligations, raise every possible objection, and in an ill-drawn underwriting contract they may easily find loop-holes for escape.

Framing of underwriting contracts.

Thus the underwriter may say: "I agreed to underwrite on the footing of a prospectus, to be prepared in accordance with a particular draft submitted to me, and that draft was altered without my consent. Therefore, I refuse to apply."

Or an underwriter may take this objection: "I find that the prospectus on the faith of which I agreed to underwrite contains a misrepresentation; therefore I refuse to apply" (Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1); an underwriter, it may be observed, however, stands in a less favourable position, as regards obtaining relief on the ground of defects in a prospectus, than an ordinary applicant for shares. See Baly v. Kenwick, 85 L. T. 18. Or again he may neglect to apply, and, when sued for damages, may say: "I only undertook to apply if called on, and you never called on me to apply." Ormerod's case, (1894) 2 Ch. 475. Or, if the shares have been allotted to him, he may repudiate the allotment on the ground that A., who made the application on his behalf, had no authority, since he had not called on him to apply, and the authority was only to arise if he failed when called on to apply. See Consort Deep Level Gold Mines, (1897) 1 Ch. 575.

Even where the underwriter has actually applied pursuant to the contract, he sometimes, before allotment, serves the company with a notice that he withdraws his application, and, after allotment, he sometimes repudiates on the ground that he was misled by something said by those with whom he contracted, or by something stated in the prospectus; and in such a case it must be borne in mind that an underwriter who subscribes on the footing of a prospectus containing untrue statements may be entitled to repudiate an allotment, even though, at the time he subscribed, the company was not in existence. Karberg's case, (1892) 3 Ch. 1.

Occasionally an underwriter, without any show of legal justification, as in the above cases, seeing that an issue has not gone well, simply refuses to apply, and says: "Bring your action, I shall defend it, and you will suffer by the delay and publicity, so you had better compromise"; or, in the case of debentures, he used sometimes to say to the company: "I decline to take up the debentures underwritten by me. Bring your action if you like; but you cannot get specific performance of an agreement for a loan, or any substantial damages." Western Wagon Co. v. West, (1892) 1 Ch. 271; South African Territories v. Wallington, (1898) A. C. 309; Bahamas Plantations v. Griffin, 14 T. L. R. 139.

But this attitude of defiance will no longer avail him in the case of debentures or debenture stock now that the Court is empowered to specifically enforce a contract to take up and pay for debentures. See Companies Act, 1908, s. 105.

The above are only a few of the difficulties that may arise, but they serve as a sufficient warning to frame an underwriting contract so as specially to provide for the circumstances of the case, and, as far as practicable, to meet any dangers of repudiation or evasion.

For instance, such vague terms as "if shares" to a certain amount "are irrevocably applied for by persons resident in France" should not be used, being fruitful of controversy. Paul Boyer, Ltd. v. Edwards, 17 T. L. R. 16.

Underwriting letter prima facie an offer.

An underwriting letter generally operates as an offer, and the mere fact that the underwriter thereby purports to "agree" to do certain things makes no difference; but of course it may be framed as an acceptance, e.g., "I accept your offer to allow me to underwrite — shares on the terms following, viz., &c."

Withdrawal.

When the letter operates as an offer the usual rules apply. Accordingly the offer can be withdrawn at any time before acceptance (Hebb's case, 4 Eq. 9) and by word of mouth. Truman's case, (1894) 3 Ch. 272. The offer must be accepted, if at all, within the time specified in it, or, if no time is specified, then within a reasonable time (Crawley's case, 4 Ch. 323; Hindley's case, (1896) 2 Ch. 121, 134), and until accepted and notice of acceptance given there is no contract. Consort, &c. Mines, (1897) 1 Ch. 575. An oral acceptance is of course sufficient. North Charterland Co., 13 T. L. R. 80. In one case it was held that notice of the acceptance of the offer contained in an underwriting letter might be inferred from the mere fact of the retention of the letter by the person to whom it was addressed (Bultfontein Sun, &c. Mine, 12 T. L. R. 461); but, in the absence of express words in the letter waiving notice of acceptance (see Carlill v. Carbolic, &c. Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 256), it is difficult to see how this decision can be supported. An underwriting letter is nothing more than an offer, and an offer, e.g., to sell land or to marry, is not regarded as accepted merely because it is retained unanswered. See the observations of Lindley, M. R., in Consort, &c. Mines, (1897) 1 Ch. 593.

In Hindley's case, Hemp Cordage Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 121, Vaughan Williams, J., held that where the underwriting letter was not accepted until after the shares were offered to the public the acceptance was too late, and that the underwriter was entitled to repudiate his allotment, although when he repudiated he had been on the register for two years. But this decision was reversed on appeal, partly on the ground that on the true construction of the letter the offer thereby made was left open for acceptance for two months -- "this engagement is binding for two months"--and partly on the ground that the shares having been allotted to the underwriter, and he having acted as owner thereof, he was estopped from denying his membership. For the Court is not disposed to import into underwriting contracts implied conditions in derogation of the express terms of the contract. Crown Lease Proprietors, 14 T. L. R. 47.

An underwriting contract, like any other contract, is voidable at the option of the underwriters, where it is vitiated by material misrepresentation made by or on behalf of the person with whom it is made. Hence, it is important to see that the prospectus, or draft prospectus, or circular, on the basis of which the underwriting is done, is properly framed; and in some cases, before the Act of 1900, it was found desirable to provide expressly that the contract was not thus to be voidable, at any rate as regards innocent misrepresentation.

Voidability for misrepresentation.

In the case of a company registered after December 31st, 1900, an underwriting contract (like any other contract) "made by a company before it is entitled to commence business" is "provisional only" and is "not binding on the company until that date, and on that date" is to "become binding." See Companies Act, 1908, s. 87 (3), (6), replacing Companies Act, 1900, s. 6, sub-ss. (3), (6).

Where contract provisional only.

As to when a company (other than a private company) is entitled to commence business, see sect. 87, sub-sect. (1), supra, p. 20.

One of the conditions of commencing business is that "the minimum subscription" must have been obtained, and thus the underwriting which secures such minimum subscription becomes necessary or expedient.

It is generally desirable in an underwriting letter to refer to the prospectus only in very general terms, or, at any rate, to provide for modifications. See Form 13, and last two notes at p. 256.

Reference to prospectus.

Where A. agrees with B. to underwrite so many shares, or debentures, or other securities, and A. refuses to perform such agreement, B. has, prima facie, no power to apply in A.'s name for an allotment to him, and accordingly, if A. makes default, B.'s only remedy is to bring an action for damages against A., a matter involving risk and delay. It is, however, competent to the parties to make it one of the terms of the agreement that, if A. makes default, B. may make the requisite application on his behalf; and it is usual so to provide, and such a provision is effective, and A. cannot revoke the authority thus given to B., for it is one of the terms of the contract between them that B. shall have this authority; and where there is a contract for valuable consideration giving to one of the parties to such contract an authority, the other party cannot put an end to the authority by repudiating that term of the contract.

Power to apply for shares in underwriter's name.

This is the rule both at law and in equity. According to the common law view, the authority in such cases is not revocable, for it is "an authority coupled with an interest." Gausson v. Morton, 10 B. & C. 731. And, although a mere offer may be withdrawn before acceptance, if an authority to apply is contained in an actual agreement for valuable consideration, the authority may be irrevocable.

As to the equity view see Carter v. White, 25 C. D. 666. In that case, as part of a contract, authority was given by A. to fill up a blank in a bill of exchange, and it was held that this authority was not revoked by the death of A. "It is not," said Fry, L. J., "an authority, but a contract between the acceptor and the intended drawer that the drawer had a right to fill up the instrument and make it a complete bill. That is the nature of the transaction between them. You may call such a right an authority, but it is a right founded on a contract."

Irrevocability of power.

Carmichael's case.

That the authority to apply given by an underwriting contract is irrevocable, where the party to whom the authority is given has an interest, has been decided in several cases by the Court of Appeal. In Carmichael's case, (1896) 2 Ch. 643, Carmichael had signed an underwriting letter addressed to the promoter of a company, by which he agreed, in consideration of a commission, to subscribe for 1,000 shares in the company, the number to be reduced according to the number taken by the public. He further agreed that the agreement and application should be irrevocable, and, notwithstanding any repudiation by him, should be sufficient to authorize the promoter to apply on his behalf and the company to allot them. The promoter by letter accepted these terms. The company was then incorporated, and the subscription list was advertised to open on 27th March, and close on the 30th. On 27th March, Carmichael, who had applied for 1,000 shares, stopped the cheque for the deposit, and on the 30th wrote to the promoter and to the secretary of the company repudiating the agreement. The promoter on 2nd April applied, on behalf of Carmichael, for 980 shares, which, in the events which had happened, was the number he was bound to take, and the company allotted these shares to Carmichael, and put him on the register, and it was held that Carmichael was not entitled to have his name removed, for that the authority was an authority coupled with an interest, and therefore not revocable.

Optensible authority
given.

Henry Bentley & Co., 69 L. T. 204, C. A., June, 1893, is another illustration of the rule. There A., at the request of N., signed an underwriting letter addressed to L. containing the following provision: "This agreement to be irrevocable on my part, and to be sufficient in itself to authorize you, in the event of my not applying for shares as above mentioned, to apply for such shares in my name and on my behalf"—it was held that A. not having applied for any shares, an allotment to him in response to an application by L. was ineffective, although L. had never notified to A. his acceptance of the underwriting letter, and although A. had handed over the letter to N. on the distinct but private understanding that it was to be accepted "before 11.30 a.m. to-morrow morning, otherwise my underwriting is not to hold good."

The ground of this decision, as explained in Ex parte Stark, (1897) 1 Ch. 575, 591, was estoppel, namely, that the principal is bound by the acts of the agent which are within the apparent scope of his authority. See also Duke of Beaufort v. Neeld (1845), 12 Cl. & Fin. 218, and Hambro v. Burnand, (1904) 2 K. B. 10, which shows that where an agent, in contracting on behalf of his principal, has acted within the terms of a written authority given to him by the principal, but the existence of which was not known to the other party to the contract, the principal cannot, if the other party has acted bonâ fide, repudiate liability on the contract on the ground that the agent in making it acted in his own interests and not those of his principal.

In Henry Bentley & Co., supra, the underwriting letter was in terms an offer made by the underwriter, but that offer was not accepted by notice, so that there was not in reality any contract. The case, however, was not fought on that point, but on the private letter of instruction.

This is stated by Lindley, L. J., in the case next mentioned, Consort Deep Level Gold Mines, supra, pp. 289, 290. In that case there was an underwriting letter in the shape of an offer, and that offer was never accepted by the company to which it was addressed, and the Court held that the authority to apply given by the letter did not arise, and therefore that the allotment made to the underwriter was ineffective.

Sometimes the underwriter, on signing his underwriting letter, also signs and hands over at once an application for the full number of shares underwritten by him, together with a cheque for the application moneys. Carmichael's case, (1896) 2 Ch. 644. This plan is in some cases expedient, but the underwriting letter in such a case should bind the underwriter not to revoke the application, and as a general rule there is no special advantage to be obtained by adopting this mode of underwriting.

Where A. addressed an underwriting letter to B. agreeing "at any time within three months after the date hereof, if and as called upon by you, to subscribe or find responsible subscribers for any number of shares you may require, not exceeding 1,000," with an authority for B. to apply "in the event of my not subscribing or finding responsible subscribers," it was held that an allotment to A. in response to an application by B. was not effective, B. not having called on A.

Undertaking
only "if called upon."

to subscribe. Ormerod's case, (1894) 2 Ch. 474. This case turned on the presence of the words, "If and as called upon by you," which made the authority to apply conditional on the underwriter being first called on, and thus given the opportunity of finding subscribers if unwilling himself to apply. See also to the same effect, Brussels Palace, &c. v. Prockter, 10 T. L. R. 72; Sangster v. Netter, 9 T. L. R. 441; and Bultfontein San Diamond Mine, 12 T. L. R. 461, where the words were "whenever called upon."

Where company bound to call for authority of underwriter's agent.

In all such cases the company, in dealing with the underwriter's agent, is bound to call for his authority, and is thus fixed with notice of the qualifications and conditions attached to such authority. Where, however, the application appears to accord with the authority contained in the underwriting contract, the company is not to be treated as having notice of private instructions given to the agent Henry Bentley & Co., 69 L. T. 204, supra.

Derogatory conditions not usually to be implied in the contracts.

On the same principle the Court, as is evident from the decision of the Court of Appeal in Crown Lease Proprietary Co., 11 T. L. R. 47, is not disposed to import into underwriting contracts implied conditions in derogation of the terms expressed. In that case A underwrote some shares, and gave B. authority to apply. B. applied after it had become clear that the scheme contemplated by the prospectus could not be carried out. It was held, nevertheless, that A was bound Where commission payable, although underwriter defaulted, and no shares were applied for in his name.

Where A. signed an underwriting contract with B., but failed when called on by B. to apply for the shares, it was held that A. was entitled to his commission though he had made default and B. had not applied for him. This was decided on the ground that payment of the commission was not made conditional on A. duly applying, and that B. had no cause for complaint, as he might have applied on A.'s behalf. Sangster v. Netter, 9 T. L. R. 441.

Specific performance or damages. Debentures and shares distinguished.

The underwriting of debentures presented this difficulty, that the Court would not until the Companies Act, 1907, s. 16 (now replaced by sect. 105 of the Companies Act, 1908), specifically enforce an agreement to borrow or to lend money at the instance of either the intending lender or borrower. The remedy for breach of such a contract was by action for damages. Accordingly, an agreement with a company to take up debentures of the company, whether by underwriting or unconditionally subscribing for the same, differed essentially from an agreement to take shares. The Court would order specific performance of the latter agreement (p. 57), but not of the former. So, if a man subscribed for and became the allottee of shares, and made default in paying up the amount in due course, the company could and can recover the amount from him; but if he subscribed for debentures, and made default in paying the instalments, the company could not, prior to 1907, sue for the balance. It could only claim damages, and in most cases the damages given would be nominal. South African Territories v. Wallington, (1898)

A. C. 309; Bahamas Plantations v. Griffin, 14 T. L. R. 139. Hence, in the case of debentures, the real security for the payment of subsequent instalments was the amount, if any, actually paid on application and subsequently which was usually made liable to forfeiture for non-payment of the balance. In like manner, the Court would decline to compel specific performance of a contract to take up debenture stock payable at a fixed date, for the issue of such stock really amounts to a borrowing of money, though it may be that the rule did not apply to so-called perpetual debentures and debenture stock (the relationship there not being the ordinary one of borrower and lender, but in the nature of a contract to purchase a perpetual annuity, a contract of which the Court will grant specific performance). See further, Part III., 10th ed. 161.

Moreover, the rule did not apply when the underwriting contract was made, not with the company, but with a third party, e.g., the vendor. He at any rate would be entitled to substantial damages. Nor did the rule apply to a contract with a company which is disposing of debentures of some other company, for in such case the transaction is in effect a contract of sale, not of loan, and therefore specific performance will be decreed.

In most cases the right to keep the amount previously paid afforded a sufficient guaranty that a subscriber would pay the balance; but sometimes, and especially when the instalments were spread over a lengthened period, it was deemed advisable to supplement this guaranty by inserting a provision empowering the company to authorize some person on the subscriber's behalf to accept the company's bill of exchange, payable on demand, for any instalment in relation to which the subscriber makes default. Such an authority being part of the contract was irrevocable, and the acceptor would have to pay the amount of the bill, and not mere damages. See Form 21.

All these nice distinctions and devices are now, however, rendered obsolete by the section above alluded to (Companies Act, 1908, s. 105), providing that "A contract with a company to take up and pay for any debentures (or debenture stock) of the company may be enforced by an order for specific performance": a long-needed reform bringing the law into line with good sense.

An underwriting contract under hand requires a 6*d.* stamp only; if under seal a 10*s.* stamp. The fact that it contains an authority to apply on the underwriter's behalf does not render a power of attorney stamp requisite (Walker v. Remmett, 15 L. J. Ch. 8, 174), for the authority is incidental to the other provisions; but an authority to apply, which is not part of a contract, may require a power of attorney stamp. 10*s.* Ibid.

Terminable
debenture
stock.

"Perpetual" debentures or debenture
stock.

Specific performance, q.v.

Specific performance (semble) where contract is with third party or as to debentures of another
company.

Forfeiture
of paid instalments in default.

Bill of exchange sometimes given.

PRECEDENTS.

Form 13.

THE A COMPANY, LIMITED.

Underwriter's
application.

Proposed issue of 100,000 shares of 1/ each, payable as follows:

To the above-named Company.

Gentlemen.

I request you to admit me as an underwriter at a commission of p.c. of 100] of the above shares or any less number you think fit, and upon the terms set forth in the within conditions. Be so good as to notify me by post your acceptance hereof.

Yours, &c.

Date ---.

Name in full ---

Signature ---

Address ---

Occupation ---

An underwriting letter, if for a specified number of shares only, being an offer must, unless otherwise expressed therein, be accepted for the full number of shares. Hence the insertion of the words "or any less number you think fit." The conditions are sometimes referred to as set forth "below," or "within," or "indorsed hereon," or "at back," and sometimes they are embodied in the letter and referred to as "the conditions following."

I hereby acknowledge notice of your acceptance of the above for -
shares.

Signature of Underwriter

Cases frequently arise in which an underwriter alleges that he has not been given notice of acceptance, and it is therefore desirable to obtain an acknowledgment under his hand at the foot of the letter.

Conditions of Underwriting.

Underwriting contract (vendors or promoters pay commission).

1. Applicants are to be in the form accompanying or referred to in the prospectus relating to the above issue as finally settled and filed with Registrar of Companies.

Sometimes words are added thus—"And notwithstanding that the same departs from the draft prospectus previously submitted to the underwriters.

Sometimes this clause runs, "such prospectus to be framed substantially in accordance with the draft annexed hereto," or "framed on the general lines of the draft prospectus dated the --- day of ---, with such, if any, modifications therein as Messrs. A. and B. (below referred to as 'the vendors') may assent to, but so that no alteration be made as to the capital or as to the amounts made payable on application and allotment," or "framed in accordance with the draft as ultimately settled and approved by Messrs. —, the company's solicitors, but so that the amounts per share payable on application and allotment respectively shall not exceed £— and £—."

Form 13

It is generally desirable to leave scope for alterations in the draft prospectus, for it very commonly happens that some alteration becomes necessary at the last moment, and, in the absence of authority to alter, it would be necessary to ask all the underwriters to consent. Occasionally a provision is added as to advertising, e.g., "and such prospectus is to be advertised and circulated to such extent as the company's brokers shall advise;" but it would not be safe to say that it should be "duly" or "fairly" or "widely" advertised, for then it would be open to each underwriter to object that the advertisement was not sufficient. Sometimes it is provided that the prospectus must specify the day for opening and closing the list of subscriptions.

2. Before three o'clock on the day on which the prospectus relating to the above issue is first advertised in the newspapers or on which the list of subscriptions is opened, as specified in the prospectus when published] each underwriter is to apply for the number of the shares underwritten by him, and every such application must be accompanied by a cheque in favour of the bankers of the coy for the required deposit on such shares.

It is a common plan to require the application to be made on the day on which the list is opened.

Sometimes the form runs, "signed by the underwriter or his nominee or nominees (approved by the company)," or "signed by the underwriter or some other responsible person or persons approved by the company."

A cautious underwriter sometimes adds a note to his application as follows:

"N.B.—I make this application as an underwriter, and on the footing that the public subscriptions are to go in relief, pro rata, of the underwriters' subscriptions."

Sometimes an underwriter guards against the danger by writing to the company a separate letter, referring to his application and informing the company that it is an underwriting application, and that it is made on the footing, &c.

Sometimes the underwriters are not required to subscribe until the closing of the lists. In such case substitute condition 3 for 2, and let the following clause be condition 3:—

3. If upon the closing of the list of subscriptions the whole of the shares offered shall not have been subscribed for by the public, each underwriter, upon the request of the coy, is to apply, in accordance with the prospectus, for his proportion of the shares not subscribed by the public."]

When such a condition is used, it is necessary to give to the underwriter notice stating how many shares he must apply for, and until that notice is given and default made by him he does not "fail" to apply within condition 4. Consort, &c. Mines, (1897) 1 Ch. 575; Brussels Palace of Varieties v. Prockter, 10 T. L. R. 72.

Form 13.

3. The public subscriptions for the shares received before the closing of the subscription list are to go in relief of the underwriters, in proportion to the amounts underwritten by them respy. Subscriptions by the public withdrawn before allotment, and subscriptions rejected by the directors as unsatisfactory, are not to be counted as public subscriptions.

Sometimes provision is made that applications initialled and sent in by an underwriter before the closing of the subscription list, and accepted by the company, are to go in further relief of such underwriter's obligation.

Sometimes the issue of a portion of the shares has been otherwise insured, and in such case it may be necessary to add a clause to the effect that "the vendors shall be deemed to underwrite — of the said shares on the footing of these conditions," and if so arranged it can be provided that the public subscriptions "shall go first in relief of the vendors' undertaking aforesaid, and any surplus shall go in relief of the underwriters."

4. Where any underwriter fails to put in his applicon on the day aforesaid, the coy is to be at liberty to nominate some person on behalf of such underwriter, to sign and put in such applicon, and to conclude an agreeemt with the coy for the allotment to such underwriter of the shares which ought to be taken up by him as aforesaid or any less number [and the authority conferred by this clause is irrevocable].

The authority thus to apply and contract, being one of the terms of the contract, cannot be revoked. Carmichael's case, (1896) 2 Ch. 643; Carter v. White, 25 Ch. D. 666, supra, p. 292. Hence the words in brackets can, if desired, be omitted.

If preferred, it can be provided that "the company may treat the underwriting letter as a sufficient application, and may allot accordingly." This is just as effective. Licensed Victuallers' Association, 42 C. D. 1.

Another plan is to get each underwriter to sign at once, in blank, a proper form of application for the shares, the vendors being empowered to fill up the blank for the proper proportions when ascertained.

5. Each underwriter is to be paid by the coy a commission at the rate of £—— p.c. on the amount underwritten by him, such commission to be paid within —— days after the coy becomes entitled to commence business.

Sometimes it is provided that the commission was to be paid out of some particular fund, e.g., "out of the cash portion of the purchase-money payable by the company to the vendors, and the payment to be made within —— days after the first general allotment of the shares aforesaid, or within —— days after the completion of the purchase," or within —— days after the payment of the first instalment of the purchase-money payable by the company to the vendors. See now sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908, supra, p. 279.

When the commission is to be paid by the company out of premiums, provision should be made accordingly, e.g., "is to be paid by the company out of the premiums received in respect of the above issue a commission at the rate of £—— per cent.," &c.

FORMS.

299

As to payment out of premiums, see p. 286, supra.
Sometimes the company reserves power to satisfy the commission by the issue of paid-up shares.

Form 13.

6. The underwriters are to be relieved altogether, unless at least — of the sd shares are underwritten before the prospectus is published

Such a condition is sometimes inserted.

Sometimes a condition as follows is inserted:—

“Each underwriter is to be at liberty to determine his obligation to subscribe if before the — day of — the coy should, by reason of unforeseen circumstances, get into financial difficulties or discredit, or if before that date any war or political disturbances or panic should break out and seriously affect the English money market.”]

7. No underwriter is to effect any sale of shares in the coy, either directly or indirectly, until (at least fourteen days) after the first general allotment of shares has taken place

8. Any allotment to an underwriter as such must be made within weeks from the date of his applicon for admission as an underwriter.

9. Any notice to an underwriter may be given by sending the same through the post, addressed to him at the address stated in his form of applicon for admission as an underwriter, and shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of 24 hours after it is posted.

To —

Letter of acceptance.

Sir,

With reference to your request of the — inst. we admit you as an underwriter of — ordinary shares in the above coy, at a commission of — p.c., upon the footing and subject to the conditions therein referred to.

Yours, &c.

In many cases the liability of an underwriter turns on the question whether his offer to underwrite has been accepted by the persons to whom it is addressed. Accordingly, a record of the posting of the acceptance should be kept, or, better still, let the underwriter sign on the letter an acknowledgment as below, p. 301.

Form 14.

Underwriting letter with signed application and deposit.

THE B COMPANY, LIMITED.

Capital £—, divided into — shares of 11. each.

The proposed issue of — shares of 11. each.

To the above-named Company

Gentlemen,

1. With reference to the draft prospectus, dated the — day of — and marked "draft subject to revision," which when finally settled you propose to issue, and for the reasons below mentd, I the undersigned hereby underwrite — of the above shares so to be offered, and I now hand you an applicon for the same together with cheque for £— for payment of the deposit of — per share payable on the shares underwritten by me which is to be applied accordingly.

It is now very common to require an underwriter to sign at once a formal application and pay over the application money, as the payment for is a guarantee of bona fides.

2. My subscription is to be on the terms of your prospectus as finally settled and filed with the Registrar of Companies, and you are at liberty to insert the date of such prospectus in my applicon.

3. If — [or the whole] of the said — shares in your capital shall be applied for by and allotted to the public, I am not to be allotted any shares in respect of my applicon; but if [the whole of] such — shares be not so applied for and allotted, then all applicons made by the public on which allotments are made are to be applied in relief of the underwriters, including myself, rateably in proportion to the amount of the shares underwritten by them resply. Provided that if any of the underwriters shall, under clause 4 of the underwriting letters, subscribe or procure subscriptions for amounts in excess of the amounts which they would but for this proviso have to take up, then the excess shall be applied in relief of the underwriters who have not completely relieved themselves under clause 4, and in proportion to the amounts underwritten by them resply.

4. All applicons initialled by me and approved by you, sent in by me prior to the time fixed by the prospectus for closing the list of subscribers, are to be applied primarily in relief of my obligation to subscribe hereunder and shall not be considered subscriptions by the public.

5. If I withdraw, or do not hand you the above-mentd applicon you are to be at liberty to authorize any one of your officers in my name or on my behalf to sign and put in an applicon in the form referred to in the prospectus as published for the number of shares underwritten by me or any less number, and to take an allotment in respect thereof, and I will pay the (?) application and allotment money immediately after receiving notice of allotment

Form 14.

6. You are within — days after you shall have become entitled to commence business to pay me a commission of — p.c. in cash on the nominal amount of the shares underwritten by me, such commission to be paid whether I am required to accept an allotment of shares or not; but if an allotment be made to me no commission is to be payable until the (?) application and allotment moneys payable by me have been paid, and you may apply the commission in or towards payment of such moneys.

You are to have the option of satisfying the amount payable to me by allotting to me fully paid-up shares in your capital to be treated as of par value, and if you elect to exercise this option you are before allotment to enter into a contract with some person as trustee for me, providing for the making of such allotment in satisfaction.]

As further reason, I am to have the right, exercisable at any time before the — day of —, to call for the allotment at par of one 1/ share in your capital for every 1/ share underwritten by me. Every such call must be in writing under my hand served on you, and accompanied by the par value of the shares called for, and you are to allot the shares so called for to me or to my nominee as I may direct, and each call may comprise so many of the said shares as I choose.]

That a clause as above is valid, see supra, p. 284.

7. I am not to be bound to subscribe unless at least — of the said shares are underwritten prior to the publication of the prospectus, and any allotment to me must be made before the — day of —

8. My obligation hereunder is to hold good notwithstanding any variation between the draft prospectus submitted to me, as above referred to, and the prospectus as finally settled and published, provided that the amount of the capital of the co., namely, £— divided into — shares of 1/ each, is not altered.

9. Any notice to me may be served by sending the same by post addressed to me at the subjoined address, and shall be deemed to be served on the day following that on which it is posted

Be so good as to notify to me your acceptance of this proposal.

Dated this — day of —.

[Signature of Underwriter.]

Address.

I acknowledge notice of your acceptance of the above proposal for — shares.

Signature of Underwriter.]

Form 14a.

Acceptance of underwriting
proposal.

To —, —
of —.

Sir,

With reference to your underwriting proposal of the — of —, a copy of which is set forth above, the coy hby accepts the same for shares and acknowledges the receipt of the cheque for £ —, being the deposit thereon.

Date —.

A. B. { Directors.
C. D. }

Form 15.

Sub-underwriting letter.

THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.

Capital £—, divided into — shares of 1*l*. each.

Proposed issue of — shares.

To —, of —.

Sir,

Understanding as I do that you have, for a commission to be paid by the above-named coy, underwritten — of the above shares, I hereby propose to sub-underwrite — of the same shares, and now hand you an applicon for the same, together with cheque for £— for payment of the deposit of — per share payable on the shares sub-underwritten by me, which is to be applied accordingly.

My subscription is to be on the terms of the coy's prospectus as finally settled, and filed with the Registrar of Companies, and you are to be at liberty to insert the date of such prospectus in my applicon.

If the sd — shares in the coy's capital shall be applied for and allotted to the public within — days after the publication of the prospectus aforesd, I am not to be allotted any shares in respect of my applicon, but if the whole of the sd shares shall not be applied for and allotted within the period aforesd, then all applicons made by the public on which allotments are made are to be applied in relief of the sub-underwriters, including myself, rateably in proportion to the amount of the shares sub-underwritten by them respectively, and only my rateable proportion of the shares not so applied for by and allotted to the public shall be allotted to me.

All applicons initialled by me and approved by you sent in by me to the coy prior to the time fixed by the prospectus for closing the list of subscribers are to be applied in further relief of my obligation to subscribe hereunder, and shall not be considered subscriptions by the public.

If I withdraw or do not hand you the above-mentioned applicon, you are to be at liberty in my name and on my behalf to sign and put in an applicon in the form referred to in the prospectus as published for the number sub-underwritten by me or any less number and take an allotment in respect thereof, and I will pay the applicon and allotment money immediately after receiving notice of allotment. Form 15.

You are, within — days after you shall have been paid your underwriting commission by the company, to pay me a commission of — per cent. in cash on the nominal amount of the shares sub-underwritten by me, such commission to be paid whether I am required to accept an allotment of shares or not, but if an allotment be made to me no commission is to be payable until the applicon and allotment moneys payable by me have been paid, and you may apply the commission in or towards payment of such moneys.

I am not to be bound, &c. [See Form 14.]

My obligation hereunder, &c. [See Form 14.]

Any notice to me may be served, &c. [See Form 14.]

Be so good as to notify to me your acceptance of this proposal.

Dated this — day of —.

Signature of Underwriter.]

Address.

I acknowledge notice of your acceptance of the above proposal for — shares.

Signature of Underwriter.]

It is extremely important to secure from the underwriter an acknowledgment in writing of the receipt of notice of acceptance of his underwriting proposal, for otherwise where the party to whom the letter is addressed, in exercise of the authority apparently conferred by the letter, proposes to sign an application for shares, the company may not improbably raise the question whether the offer has been accepted. The company has no right to presume the acceptance of the offer; and if the offer has not, in fact, been duly accepted, the application, pursuant thereto, will be ineffective. See Connaught Deep Level Gold Mines, Ltd. (1897) 1 Ch. 575.

THE D COMPANY, LIMITED.

(About to be registered.)

Proposed issue of 100,000 shares of 1*l.* each.

To A. B., of —, as trustee for the above-named coy.

Sometimes it is found desirable to make the underwriting contracts with a trustee for the proposed company, so that the underwriter may be secured from the expense of registration is incurred.

Sir,

With reference as in Form 14].

My subscription is to be on the terms of the coy's prospectus as finally settled and issued, and you, &c. [as in Form 14].

Form 16.

Underwriting letter to trustee for company about to be formed.

Form 16.

If, &c. [as in Form 14].

All applicons, &c. [as in Form 14].

If I withdraw or do not hand you the above-mentioned applicon, you are to be at liberty in my name and on my behalf to sign, &c. [as in Form 14].

The coy is within — days after it has become entitled to commence business, &c. [as in Form 14].

I am not, &c. [as in Form 14].

My obligation hereunder, &c. [as in Form 14].

You are to be at liberty on my behalf to concur with the coy in making a contract under which the coy is to take your place for the purposes hereof, and if such contract is not duly made before the publication of the prospectus I am to stand free from all obligations hereunder.

[The rest as in Form 14.]

Except as allowed by sub-sect. 1 of sect. 89, commissions, discounts, &c., out of capital in relation to the taking of shares are prohibited; but the section is not to affect the power of the company to pay brokerage at the ordinary rate as heretofore.

Underwriting Letter.

TO THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.

Form 17.

Underwriting
letter where application not to be made till list closed.

Proposed issue of 100,000 Ordinary Shares of 1*l.* each;

Payable as to — on applicon, and as to — on allotment, &c.

Gentlemen,

I agree, for the reason below stated, to underwrite — shares of 1*l.* each in the above-named coy.

My subscription is to be on the terms of the coy's prospectus as finally settled and published, and upon the form accompanying or referred to in such prospectus.

If upon the publication of the prospectus, the whole of the said 100,000 shares shall be taken up by the public, then no allotment is to be made to me; but if the whole shall not be so taken up, then I am to be bound to subscribe for and take up the residue.

The consideration for my entering into this agreement shall be, &c., &c.

Applicons procured by me and properly identified and approved by you, upon which allotments shall be made, shall go in reduction of my underwriting obligation, and shall not be counted as applicons by the public.

As soon as conveniently may be after the time fixed by the prospectus for the closing of the subscription list you are to inform me the number of shares for which I am to subscribe as above, and unless within — hours from such notice being given I apply for the same you are to be at liberty to treat this letter as my application for the same, and I will pay the allotment money immediately after receiving notice of allotment. Your certificate in writing that I have so failed and as to the number of shares I am bound to take shall be conclusive.

Form 17.

I undertake not to effect any sale of shares in the coy, either directly or indirectly, until at least fourteen days after the first general allotment of shares has taken place.

Any allotment pursuant to this agreement must be made on or before the — day of — next.

Any notice to me may be sent through the post to the subjoined address, and shall be deemed to be served on the day following that on which it is posted.

Be so good as to notify to me your acceptance of this proposal.

Dated the — day of —.

[Signature and Address of Underwriter]

I acknowledge, &c., see supra, p. 301.

Sometimes the underwriting letters contain a provision that the shares, if any, taken up pursuant to the agreement are to be pooled, e.g.:

As regards any shares allotted to me pursuant hto, I am to pool the same by signing on my request the pooling agreement, a copy of which is indorsed hereon, and if I do not comply with such request within 24 hours after the making thereof you may sign the said pooling agreement on my behalf.

See Forms 6, 7, and 8.

THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.Form 18

Issue of 10,000 Preference Shares of 10*l.* each, at a premium of 2*l.* per share, payable as follows:—[state how].

Underwriting contract with the company

Conditions of Underwriting.

1. The above shares are to be offered in the first instance to the ordinary shareholders in the above coy in accordance with the articles of association, and those (if any) not taken up by them are to be offered for public subscription by a prospectus approved by the coy's brokers, Messrs. —, and on the footing that the issue price, 12*l.* per share, is to be paid up as above.

Where commission paid out of profit.

2. If any such prospectus is published, an underwriter, before 3 o'clock on the day on which the list of subscriptions is opened, as

Form 18. specified in such prospectus, is to apply, or procure responsible persons to apply, for, &c. [See Form 13, clause 2.]

3. The subscriptions by shareholders in response to the offer above referred to, and the public subscriptions received before the day of the subscription list, are to go in relief of the underwriters, pro rata, in proportion to the amounts underwritten by them resp'y, save that subscriptions by nominees of an underwriter, if initialled by him, are to go in his relief exclusively.

4. If any underwriter fails to put in his applicon on the day aforesaid the coy is to be at liberty to nominate any person to sign and put in such applicon on the underwriter's behalf, and an applicon signed by such nominee shall be effective, and is not to be revocable by the underwriter.

5. The coy is to pay to each underwriter a commission at the rate of — p.c. on the amount underwritten by him, and such commission is to be pd within — days after the notices of allotment are sent out [if so, add and is to be payable exclusively out of the undivided profits of the coy. See p. 286.]

6. No underwriter is to effect any sale. [See Form 13, clause 7.]

7. Any allotment. [Form 13, clause 8.]

8. Any notice. [Form 13, clause 9.]

To the above-named coy.

I hereby underwrite — shares of the above issue on the terms set forth in the above underwriting conditions, which are to be treated as embodied in this applicon.

Be so good as to notify to me your acceptance hereof.

Signature, date, &c., as above.]

Form 19.

Agreement to procure
underwriting for a lump sum.

AGREEMENT TO PROCURE UNDERWRITERS.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of — between The — Coy, Limtd, of — (hntfr called "the Coy"), of the one part, and A. B., of — (hntfr called "Mr. B."), of the other part: WHEREAS the capital of the coy is 120,000l., divided into 120,000 shares of 1l. each: AND WHEREAS the coy is about to offer 80,000 of the sd shares for public subscription, and such offer is to be made by a prospectus: AND WHEREAS a draft of such prospectus has been prepared, and is annexed hto, but it is contemplated that such draft may be altered in some respects before it is finally settled and filed with the Registrar of Companies: AND WHEREAS Mr. B. has offered to procure the placing of 40,000 of the shares so to be offered.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. Mr. B. shall procure 40,000 of the shares so to be offered as aforesaid to be underwritten by responsible underwriters within — days from the date hof.

2. The underwriting shall be effected by proper contracts in writing signed by the respective underwriters, and framed in the terms of the underwriting letter annexed hto, save that if Mr. B. shall himself underwrite pt [not exceeding — shares] of the sd shares the underwriting letter signed by him must be addressed to the coy, and the commission payable thereunder shall be treated as in pt payment of the sum of 15,000*l.* below mentd.

Form 19.

3. The underwriting letters, duly signed as aforesaid, must be delivered to the coy within — days from the date hof, and it shall rest with the coy on such delivery to declare whether it is or is not satisfied as to any of the underwriters, and if it so declares, Mr. B. shall forthwith substitute other responsible underwriters approved by the coy.

4. On delivery to the coy of the underwriting letters aforesaid, the coy is to be entitled to the full benefit thof, and to exercise all the rights thby conferred on Mr. B., and Mr. B. shall be bound to pay the commission payable under such underwriting letters, and the coy shall be at liberty, out of the sum of £—— below mentd, either to pay such commission on his behalf or to retain the requisite amount until he shall have satisfied the coy that he has pd the underwriting commission.

5. In conson of the premises the coy shall, within — days after it becomes entitled to commence business, pay to — the sum of £——, with full power for them to satisfy £—— part of the sd sum by the allotment of 3,000 fully pd-up shares in the coy.

AS WITNESS, &c.

SCHEDULE.THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.

Issue of 3,500,000*l.* 5 p.c. First Mortgage Debenture-

For the purpose of consolidating and converting the outstanding first and second 5½ p.c. mortgage debentures of the coy.

The new debentures will be redeemable at 103 p.c. in 20 years, by annual drawings, the first redemption to take place on 1st January, 1896.

The coy will reserve power to pay off any debentures at any time after the — of — at 105 p.c. on giving six calendar months' notice.

The new debentures will be secured by a trust deed in the terms of the draft already prepared by the coy's solors.

The holders of the present debentures will be given the option of converting their debentures into debentures of the new issue, the option to be exercised within 14 days from the first publication of the prospectus of the new issue.

Form 20.

Underwriting of a debenture
issue.

Form 20.Conditions of Underwriting the above Debentures.

1. An underwriter is on the day of the publication of the prospectus relating to the above issue to deliver to Messrs. N. M. R. & Sons, at — Court, — Lane, London, an applicon in writing framed in accordance with the form referred to in such prospectus, and duly signed by such underwriter, for the amount of the debentures underwritten by him: but, regard being had to condition 6 hereof, the applicon need not be accompanied by the deposit mentd in the prospectus.

2. The coy is to be deemed to underwrite £ — of the debentures.

3. The public subscriptions for the debentures are to go as to the first £ — in relief of the coy's underwriting application afsd, and as to the surplus in relief of the underwriters, other than the coy, in proportion to the amounts underwritten by them resply; and accordingly, if the public subscriptions amount to 3,500,000*l.*, the underwriters are to be wholly relieved from their underwriting obligations.

4. For the purposes of the preceding clause, all subscriptions on the footing of the sd prospectus made before the closing of the subscription lists (other than those made pursuant to conditions 1 and 5) are to be considered public subscriptions, whether for cash or for conversion.

5. Where any underwriter fails to put in his applicon on the day afsd, the coy is to be at liberty to authorize any person to sign and put in such applicon on his behalf, and such authority shall be effective. An applicon made under this clause, or under clause 1, shall not be revocable.

6. Before entertaining any applicon for acceptance as an underwriter the coy must be satisfied that the applicant has pd in to the account of the coy, at Messrs. N. M. R. & Sons, a sum equal to 5 p.c. on the amount proposed to be underwritten by him, and the sum so pd in is to be treated as the deposit payable on applicon for the debentures underwritten by him.

7. Any allotment on an applicon made pursuant to these conditions must be made before the — day of —, otherwise the underwriter shall be relieved altogether. If at any time between the signing of this applicon and the publication of the prospectus, owing to grave political or financial disturbances, the price of British 2½ p.c. Consols fall to or below —, the underwriters are also to be relieved of their obligation.

8. The coy within — days after the closing of the subscription lists is to pay to each underwriter a commission at the rate of — p.c. on the amount of the debentures underwritten by him pursuant to these conditions.

9 Any notice to an underwriter may be given by sending the same through the post in a letter addressed to him at the address stated in his form of applicon for admission as an underwriter, and shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of twenty-four hours after it is posted.

London, May, 18—

Form 20.

Application for Admission as an Underwriter.

To the — Coy. Limtd.

Gentlemen,

Having pd to your bankers, Messrs. N. M. R. & Sons, — Court, — Lane, London, £—, being a deposit of 5 p.c. on £— debentures of the above issue, I hby request you to admit me as an underwriter of that amount of debentures of the sd issue, or any less amount specified in your acceptance hereof, subject to the conditions of underwriting annexed.

Date —.

Name in full .

Address

Description —.

Signature —

As to the underwriting of debentures, see pp. 294, 295, supra.
Such underwriting is not touched by sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908.

THE — COMPANY, LIMITED

Issue of £ — Debentures, &c.

To the above-named coy.

Form 21.

Another.

Gentlemen,

For the conson hnftr menud, I, the undersigned, agree with you that on the publication of the prospectus offering the above-mentioned debentures for public subscription, I will apply in the form referred to in such prospectus for £— of the sd debentures, and will pay thereon the amount payable on applicon, and will accept the allotment of and pay the allotment moneys and subsequent sums which become payable in respect of any debentures allotted to me in response to such applicon.

It is understood that to the extent to which applicons are received from the public before the closing of the subscription list, I, and all other underwriters, are to be relieved from our underwriting obligations rateably in proportion to the amount of the debentures of above issue underwritten by us resply.

Form 21.

If the full amount of the said debentures is within fourteen days after the first publication of the prospectus aforesaid allotted in respect of such public subscription, I am not to be liable to take up any of the debentures hereby underwritten. Applicants rejected by the directors, and applicants withdrawn before allotment, are not to be considered applicants from the public within the foregoing words.

If I do not put in such applicant at the time aforesaid you are to be at liberty in my name and on my behalf to put in such applicant, and I will pay the applicant and allotment money immediately after receiving notice of allotment.

In consonance of the premises I am to have the right, exerciseable at any time before the — day of —, to call for the allotment at par of one £1. share in your capital for every 2£. of debentures underwritten by me. Every such call must be in writing under my hand served on you and accompanied by the par value of the shares called for, and you are to allot the shares so called for to me or to my nominees as I may direct, and each call may comprise so many of the said shares as I choose.

If I make default in paying any sum payable by me in respect of the debentures allotted to me pursuant to this underwriting letter, you are to be at liberty to draw a bill on me for the amount payable to you or order at the expiration of seven days from the date thereof, and to authorize any person to accept such bill in my name and on my behalf and such acceptance shall be valid, and payment of such bill shall operate in satisfaction of the amount in default.

As to this clause, see supra, p. 295.

If I effect any sales of debentures of the company within fourteen days after the first general allotment I am to forfeit my right to call aforesaid, and my right to call aforesaid shall also be forfeited if I fail to pay the applicant or allotment moneys in respect of the debentures, if any, allotted to me pursuant to this letter.

Any allotment pursuant to this letter must be made within — days from the date hereof.

I assent to any modifications in the draft of the prospectus which has been shown to me before the publication thereof.

Any notice to me may be sent through the post to the subjoined address, and shall be deemed to be served on the day following that on which it is posted.

This agreement is signed in duplicate.

Dated this — day of —.

[Signature of Underwriter.]

The above-named company accepts and adopts and agrees to the above.

For the company.

A. B. }
C. D. } Directors.

Form 21.Call of Shares.

The reason for underwriting is not uncommonly the giving to the underwriter the call of shares in the coy exerciseable at any time within a specified period, and either at par or at a premium, and often it is arranged that this right of call shall be embodied in a certificate as below.

THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.

Registered office —.

No. —, Call Certificate. Number of Shares —.

This is to certify that for value received, —, of —, or other the registered holder for the time being hrof, is entitled on or at any time before the 1st day of June, 1912, to call for an allotment of — shares of 1l. each in the — Company, Limited, on payment in cash of 1l. 10s. per share, being the full amount of the share plus a premium of 10s. per share, and the following conditions shall apply:—

- (1) Any call hereunder may be made for the whole or part of the sd shares. Every call must be in writing (in the indorsed form) under the hand of the registered holder for the time being hrof, and must specify the number of shares called for, and the name and address of the person to whom the same are to be allotted, and must be accompanied by this certificate and by a remittance of the sum of 1l. 10s. per share called. If part only of the shares shall be called for the holder will be entitled to a fresh option certificate in respect of the balance.
- (2) A register of the call certificates issued by the company will be kept at the company's registered office, wherein there will be entered the names, addresses and descriptions of the registered holders and particulars of the certificates held by them respectively, and the registered holder may inspect such register.
- (3) The registered holder shall be regarded as exclusively entitled to the benefit of this certificate, and all persons may act accordingly, and this certificate shall be transferable, free from any equities, cross or other claim.
- (4) Every transfer of this certificate must be in writing under the hand of the registered holder, and the transfer must be delivered at the registered office of the coy duly stamped with a fee of 2s. 6d., and such evidence of title or identity as the coy may reasonably require, and thereupon the

Form 21a.

Certificate of right to call for allotment of shares.

Form 21a.

transfer will be registered and the coy shall be entitled to retain the transfer.

(5) If and so far as the right of call hby given shall not be exercised before the commencement of a winding-up of the coy, it shall lapse.

(6) Any notice may be served by the coy on the holder for the time being of this certificate by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to such person at his registered address, and any notice so given shall be deemed to have been served at the expiration of 24 hours after it is posted.

Given under the common seal of the coy the — day of —

To be endorsed.]

To the — Company, Limited.

I, —, of —, the registered holder of the within certificate, hby call for an allotment of — 11. shares in the coy's capital, being the whole or part of the shares within referred to, and I hand you herewith cheque for £—, being 11. 10s. per share in respect of each share so called, and I direct the allotment of the sd shares to — of — [and I request you to issue to me a balance option certificate for — shares].

Dated this — day of —.

Signature of Registered Holder.

Form 22.

Underwriting clauses in memorandum
of association.

The subscribers of the founders' shares shall forthwith pay to the coy the full nominal amount of the founders' shares subscribed for by them resply. and shall, in proportion to the founders' shares subscribed for by them resply, pay all the preliminary expenses of forming and floating the coy down to the time when 100,000 ordinary shares in the capital thof shall have been taken up, and further, they guarantee that 100,000 of the ordinary shares in the capital of the coy shall be taken up within fourteen days after the publication of the coy's prospectus, and accordingly they shall be bound, in proportion to the founders' shares subscribed for by them resply, to accept an allotment of such of the sd 100,000 ordinary shares as shall not be taken up within the sd period, but so that no such subscriber shall be bound to accept an allotment of more than 500 of the sd 100,000 shares in respect of each founders' share subscribed for by him, and that any shares taken up by him before the expiration of such period shall be treated as in reduction pro tanto of his obligation to accept an allotment as aforesaid.

The underwriting used sometimes to be effected by making part of the initial capital a series of founders' shares, say 200 of 11. each, and conferring on the holders special rights and privileges, and imposing on the subscribers underwriting obligations as above. And this plan is still available without compliance with sect. 89 of the Act of 1908, for the subscribers take the founders' shares by the constitution of the company, and they are entitled to them as of right and without allotment, paying, of course, their par value. Hence the company in such circumstances cannot be said to "apply" the founders' shares in payment of a commission, even though they be worth more than par. Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474.

Sometimes the clause enables the subscriber to have the ordinary shares allotted to him or his nominees.

Where this mode of underwriting is adopted, and it offers many advantages, it must be borne in mind that the subscriber need not subscribe the memorandum of association with his own hand; he can subscribe by the hand of an agent duly authorized, and the authority can be conferred either orally or by instrument in writing; but the latter is to be preferred, as if the authority is oral there may be a dispute as to whether it was, in fact, given. The authority may run as follows:—

To Mr. —, of —

I, the undersigned, hereby authorize and request you in my name and on my behalf to subscribe the memorandum and articles of association of the — Coy, Limited, now about to be registered, for — of the founders' shares in the capital of such company, or such lesser number as you may arrange on the terms of such memorandum and articles.

Where a subscription is made pursuant to an authority as aforesaid, the subscriber should subscribe the name of his principal thus "A. B., of —, justice of the peace, or as the case may be, by C. D., of —, his duly authorized agent in this behalf."

AN AGREEMENT made, &c., between A. on behalf of the several persons named in the schedule hto (hereafter called "the underwriters") of the one pt, and B. as trustee for the — Coy, Limited (now about to be incorporated and hereafter referred to as "the new coy"), of the other pt, whereby it is agreed as follows:—

1. Each of the underwriters shall underwrite the number of shares in the new coy set opposite his name in the schedule hto, and shall accordingly hand to the sd B. as such trustee as aforesaid an underwriting letter framed in the terms of the underwriting letter annexed hto with the blanks therein filled up for such number of shares.

2. The sd B. shall immediately on the incorporation of the new coy hand such underwriting letter to the new coy and use his best endeavours to obtain the acceptance by the new coy of the offer therein contained, and shall notify such acceptance to the underwriter.

A company can on incorporation accept an offer addressed to it though signed before it was incorporated, and in the result a contract will arise, though provisional, until the company is entitled to commence business. Sect. 87 (3). Supra, p. 258.

Form 22.

Form 23.

Authority to subscribe.

Form 24.

Agreement for underwriting shares: A. for underwriters, and B. for proposed company.

Form 24.

3. The underwriting letters shall not be revoked by the underwriters, and in the event of any revocation the sd B. shall be at liberty in the name and on behalf of the revoking underwriter to sign and make use of a new letter similar to that revoked or expressed to be revoked.

4. The sd B. shall use his best endeavours to procure the formation of the new coy within — weeks from the date hof, and unless it is so formed within — days from the date hof and accepts the underwriting letters afd this agreemt shall become void.

5. Any notice may be served on any of the underwriters by sending the same through the post addressed to the underwriter at his place and address below mentd, and a notice so served shall be deemed to have reached him on the day following that on which it is posted.

IN WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED

Here set out the names and addresses of the underwriters and the number of shares underwritten by them respectively.]

Annex copy of underwriting letter and other documents.

Form 25.

Agreement to allot paid-up shares in satisfaction of commission.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of — between the — Coy. Ltd (hereafter called "the Coy") of the one pt. and A. B. of — as trustee for the several persons named in the schedule hto of the other part: WHEREAS the coy recently issued a prospectus offering 20,000 1/2 shares in its capital for public subscription at par, and such prospectus stated that the coy would pay to allottees in consonance of their subscribing a commission of 10s. in respect of each share allotted to them, and reserved the right to satisfy this commission wholly or in pt by the allotment of fully pd up shares in the coy, to be treated as of par value: AND WHEREAS the sd 20,000 shares were subscribed for and allotted to the several persons named in the schedule hto, the number allotted to each of them being set opposite to his or her name in the second column of the sd schedule: AND WHEREAS the coy — exercise of the right reserved as afd has determined to satisfy the commission afd by the allotment of fully pd up shares as aforesaid: AND WHEREAS the sd A. B. has agreed to act as trustee for the allottees for the purposes hof.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. The coy shall forthwith allot to each of the allottees named in the first column of the schedule hto the number of fully pd up shares in the capital of the coy set opposite his or her name in the third column of the sd schedule.

2. The sd shares shall be numbered — to — inclusive and shall be issued and accepted in satisfaction of the commission.
As witness, &c

Form 25

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED TO

Names and Addresses of Allottees

Number of the shares in
the 20,000 shares
allotted to each.Number of the shares in satisfaction of the commission to be allotted to each.

N A DEED made this — day of —, 19—, between A. and B., both of —, and C. the vendors, of the one part, and D. and E., both of —, hitherto called the contractors, of the other part.

Form

Underwritten

WHEREAS a limited liability company, hitherto called the coy, is intended to be immediately formed and organised with the object (inter alia) of acquiring the business now carried on by the vendors at — a/sd; AND WHEREAS it is intended to make a public issue of 100,000 £ of the debenture stock of the — in the terms of the prospectus, proof print of which is annexed hto; and that such stock is to be constituted and secured by a trust deed in the terms of the draft which has already been prepared by Mr. —, solicitor, and signed by him and by Messrs. — for identification; AND WHEREAS the vendors have agreed to the contractors to undertake the issue of and to — and secure the subscription of the stock a/sd upon the — conditions hitherto appearing: Now IT IS HEREBY AGREED that, that is to say:

— contractors will on or before the — day of —, 19—, on or day as shall be agreed between the parties hto, issue a — in the terms of the prospectus attached hto, with such — of and modifications in the details that as the coy and the contractors may approve, and will cause the same to be efficiently and thoroughly advertised in accordance as nearly as may be in the advertisement list annexed hto. The contractors will also — issue — circulate through the post at the least — copies of the sd prospectus addressed to the persons named in the lists already approved by the parties hto.

2. The vendors will enter into an agreement with the coy on the terms of the draft referred to in clause 3 of the coy's arts of assent

Form 28.

3. The vendors will procure N. of - and M. of - to accept office as trustees for and on behalf of the debenture stockholders. If either or both the said N. or M. shall refuse to accept office or die before the issue of the sd prospectus, the vendors will procure other responsible persons to agree to act as trustees for the debenture stockholders.

4. The vendors will, on or before the day prior to the day upon which the prospectus is under the agreement to be issued, cause the copy to be duly registered in accordance with the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and on or before the same date deliver to the contractors a printed duplicate of the copy prospectus required to be filed by the Act, duly signed and in all other respects complying with the sd section.

5. The contractors guarantee that within seven days after the publication of the prospectus the whole of the 100,000*l.* debenture stock aforesaid shall be subscribed for by responsible persons, and the application moneys paid thereon, and that all application and allotment moneys and instalments payable in respect of such applications for the sd debenture stock as shall be made by the contractors or their nominees shall be duly paid at the time at which they respectively become payable as mentioned in the prospectus.

6. If at the expiration of such seven days there shall be any part of the sd debenture stock which shall not have been so subscribed for, and the application moneys of 10 p.c. paid thereon, the contractors shall within three days thereafter subscribe and pay for the same in accordance with the sd prospectus, and if the contractors shall make default in so doing, the vendors may on behalf of the contractors apply for an allotment of such debenture stock to the contractors, and these presents shall be a sufficient authority for that purpose.

7. If within - days from the date hereof the whole of the sd debenture stock shall have been subscribed by responsible persons, and the amounts payable on application and allotment for such shall have been duly paid, the vendors shall pay to the contributors the sum of —; but this payment is conditional on the contractors performing all the obligations hereby imposed on them in conformity with the terms hereof.

8. The contractors will procure a broker or firm of brokers in London, being members of the London Stock Exchange, to act as brokers to the company, and will pay and discharge their fees and all other brokerage fees and commissions incurred by the contractors in connection with the subject-matter of this agreement. The vendors declare that they believe, and have reasonable grounds for believing, that all the statements contained in the sd prospectus are true in substance and in fact, and that the same contains no mis-statement, misrepresentation, or suppression of fact which may in law amount to a mis-statement or misrepresentation.

Form 26

AS WITNESS, &c.

AN AGREEMENT made the _____ day of _____, between the _____ Company, Limited (hereafter called "the company"), of the one part, and _____, hereafter called Mr. N., of the other part.

Form 27.

Agreement to underwrite debenture stock.

WHEREAS the company is about to offer for public subscription £ _____ p.c. mortgage debenture stock which is to be constituted and secured by an indenture framed in accordance with the terms of the draft which has already been prepared, and for the purposes of identification subscribed by D., a solor of the Supreme Court: AND WHEREAS the company is desirous of insuring the placing of the said debenture stock: NOW THEREFORE it is agreed as follows:

1. The company is to offer for public subscription the said £ _____ debenture stock.

2. Such offer is to be made by a prospectus framed in accordance with the terms of the draft prospectus annexed hto, but with full power for the company, prior to the publication of such prospectus, to modify the same in such manner as the company shall think fit, provided that such modifications shall be approved by the said D.

3. Mr. N. shall take up and pay for at par the whole of the debenture stock aforesaid which shall not have been taken up and allotted to other persons within ten days after the first publication of the said prospectus, and that in consideration of the obligation so imposed on him he shall be entitled to _____, or to _____ p.c. of the premiums on the said £ _____ stock which shall be received by the company upon the issue of that portion which shall be subscribed for and allotted to persons other than the said Mr. N.

4. Mr. N. shall pay up the full nominal value of the debenture stock taken up by him as aforesaid by the instalments and at the times specified in the prospectus aforesaid, less, however, the amount of the premium according to the terms of the prospectus as issued payable in respect thereof.

5. It shall rest with Mr. N. to fix the premium on which the said debenture stock shall be offered for subscription by the said prospectus, and if he shall not within twenty-four hours after notice in writing from the company requiring him to specify the same comply with such request, then it shall rest with the new company to fix the premium.

6. If at any time between the date hereof and the publication of the prospectus owing to grave political or financial disturbances the price of 2½ p.c. British Consols shall fall to or below 100l., Mr. N. is to be at liberty by notice in writing to the company to rescind this agreement.

Form 27.

7. Any notice to Mr. N. may be given by sending the same through the post addressed to him at his above-mentd address, and a notice so sent shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of twelve hours after it is posted.

As witness, &c.

Form 28.

THE — COMPANY, LIMITED.

Notice to underwriters.

To N., of —.

Sir,—With reference to your underwriting letter of the — of —, I am instructed by the directors of the above-named coy to inform you that £— of the debenture stock of the coy has been taken up and allotted, and to request that you will take up the balance, £—. I enclose form of application, and shall be obliged if you will return the same to me with a cheque for £—, the amount payable on application.

Yours, &c.

Heading for draft prospectus for underwriting
purposes.

In order to obtain underwriting subscriptions it is generally found necessary to submit to the underwriters a draft of the proposed prospectus. In some cases this draft contains a number of blanks, and some of the statements are only inserted provisionally, and the completion of the prospectus must more or less depend on the future. In such cases it is sometimes deemed desirable to place a heading to the draft prospectus on the lines of the subjoined:

Form 29.

Heading for draft
prospectus.

The subjoined draft prospectus indicates the general lines on which it is proposed to frame the prospectus of the under-mentd coy, and states what is anticipated will be the facts at the time of its issue, but the terms of the prospectus cannot, of course, be finally settled until after the registration of the coy, and until after the terms of the concession have been obtained from the — Government, and the terms thereof finally arranged, and until after the various contracts with or in relation to the coy have been made, and, generally, the prospectus will have to be framed so as to accord with the actual facts at the time it is filed, and to comply with the requirements as to disclosure of sect. 81 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

The following is another example:—

These debentures will be offered to the public for subscription by a prospectus hmftr called "the final prospectus," which it is anticipated will be issued in the course of a few months.

Form 30.

Another.

Such prospectus will be framed on the general lines of this prospectus, but with such modifications as may seem expedient. It is intended that the deposit pd on applicon by the underwriters shall be used for the purpose of providing the deposits which are to be provided and pd for the concession and subsidies to be granted, and the final prospectus will thus refer to the concession and subsidies as having been actually granted. Applicons for admission as underwriters of the issue must be made on the accompanying form, and must enclose the sum of £—— per debenture by way of deposit in respect of each debenture comprised in the applicon. The deposit thus pd by the underwriters will be pd into the —— Bank, and will be applied in or towards paying the deposits which have to be pd as the condition of the grant of the concession and of obtaining the subsidies, and when the concession and subsidies have been obtained the debentures will forthwith be offered to the public by the final prospectus as above indicated, and thereupon the coy will repay to the underwriters the deposits pd by them resply except where an allotment is made in respect thof.

In this case the preliminary prospectus was filed.

AGREEMENTS.

CHAPTER V.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

BEFORE COMMENCING BUSINESS a company in most cases enters into or ratifies or adopts a preliminary contract for the purchase of some specific property, e.g., a mine, patent, business, concession, or estate. Several of the following forms of agreements are precedents for such contracts.

In framing such preliminary contracts the following principles must be borne in mind:-

1. A company cannot before it is incorporated enter into a contract, for it is non-existent.
2. It is not possible by any means, except an Act of Parliament, to bring into existence under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a company tied and bound by a contract previously made, for a company cannot ratify or adopt a contract made before it was incorporated, even though expressly made on its behalf.
3. A company can ratify a contract made after its incorporation by some person professing to act on its behalf provided that the contract is one within the powers of the company, and in such case after ratification the company is bound as fully and completely as if it had originally authorized such person to enter into such contract on its behalf. For that is the general rule in regard to ratification.

"Whenever," said Lord Wensleydale, in Ridgway v. Wharton, 6 H. L. C. 296, "a man purports to make a contract with the agent of another, in order to bind that other the agent must have authority from him. It matters not whether it is authority previous or subsequent. If a man, professing to act for another, makes a contract for him, and authority is afterwards given by that other, the authority given subsequently is equal to the authority given before, according to the old maxim, omnis ratihabitio retrotrahitur et mandato priori equiparatur. If a contract is made by an agent, whether by authority before given or afterwards, by ratifying the contract it equally binds the principal."

But the doctrine of ratification is only applicable where at the time the contract is made there is in existence a principal capable of ratifying. Hence, where an agreement is made with a person who purports to contract as agent for an intended company, the company when subsequently registered cannot effectually ratify. Kelner v. Barber, L. R. 2 C. P. 174; Empress Engineering Co., 15 C. D. 125; Natal Land and Colonisation Co. v. Pauline, &c. Syndicate, (1901) A. C. 120; North Sydney Investment, &c. Co. v. Higgins, (1899) A. C. 263; Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 146; National Motor Mail Coach Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 215. In Empress Engineering Co., Jessel, M. R., said: "The contract between the promoters and the so-called agent for the company was not a contract binding upon the company, for the company had then no existence: nor could it become binding on the company by ratification, because it has been decided, and, as it appears to me, well decided, that there cannot in law be an effectual ratification of a contract which could not have been made binding on the ratifier at the time it was made, because the ratifier was not then in existence."

1. Where an agreement e.g., for sale is made with a person who purports to contract as trustee for an intended company, the mere fact that the company after its incorporation acts, by its directors, on such agreement as if it were bound thereby, or that its directors pass a resolution adopting such agreement, does not render the company liable on the agreement. It merely signifies that the company accepts the position of cestui que trust.

Thus, in Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., 33 C. D. 16, the preliminary agreement was made between Wallis and a trustee for the intended company, and was expressly adopted by the articles of association. Moreover, the company took possession of the land thereby agreed to be demised, and spent large sums thereon and paid rent to the lessor, and by resolution of the directors purported to assent to modifications of the agreement. All this notwithstanding, it was held that the company was not bound by the agreement.

The company," said Cotton, L. J., "seems to have considered, or rather its directors seem to have considered, that the contract was a contract binding on the company; but the erroneous opinion that a contract entered into before the company came into existence was binding on the company, and the acting on that erroneous opinion, does not make a good contract between the company and Mr. Wallis, and all the acts which occurred subsequently to the existence of the company were acts proceeding on the erroneous assumption that the contract of the 24th July was binding on the company. In my opinion that explains the whole of these transactions." A company merely taking the benefit of a pre-incorporation contract does not bind the company to fulfil the obligations of that contract (Rotherham Alum. & Co., 25 Ch. D. 103; National Motor Mail Coach Co., Clinton's Claim, (1908) 2 Ch. 515, overruling English and Colonial Produce Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 435), though it may give the trustee a right of indemnity; Hardoon v. Belilos, (1901) A. C. 118. See also North Sydney Investment and Tramway Co. v. Higgins, 1899

A. C. 263, where a contract had been made with certain persons as trustees for an intended company, and by resolution of the directors after the company's incorporation that contract was adopted and confirmed, and it was held not to be binding on the company. "Their Lordships do not think that the adoption and confirmation by directors of a contract made before the formation of the company by persons purporting to act on behalf of the company creates any contractual relation whatever between the company and the other party to the contract, or imposes any obligation whatever on the company towards that party."

5. Nevertheless where an agreement (e.g., for sale) is expressed to be made with a person professing to contract as agent or trustee for an intended company, the company when formed can enter into a new agreement with the parties to the preliminary agreement that the company shall adopt and carry out the agreement thus made on its behalf or for its benefit, and this will bind the company. See Forms 41 and 42. Re Dale & Plant, 61 L. T. 206; Natal Land Co. v. Pauline Colliery Syndicate, (1904) A. C. 120. Moreover, acts done by a company may justify the inference of a new contract in the absence of some authority from the vendor enabling the agent or trustee to concur in the adoption agreement on the vendor's behalf.

But an agreement merely between the agent or trustee and the company that the company shall adopt the preliminary agreement does not bring the vendor into contractual relations with the company. Bagot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Pneumatic Tyre Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 196. So far as the vendor is concerned, the adoption agreement is res inter alios acta. Nor in such circumstances can the company sue the vendor on the preliminary agreement, for the company is a stranger to that agreement, and it is well settled that a person cannot sue on a contract to which he is not a party unless it is made on his behalf by an agent or a trustee for him. "A mere agreement between A. and B. that B. shall pay C., an agreement to which C. is not a party either directly or indirectly, will not prevent A. and B. from coming to a new agreement the next day releasing the old one. If C. were a cestui que trust it would have that effect." Per Jessel, M. R., Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. D. 129, Gandy v. Gandy, 30 Ch. D. 57.

6. Even where no contract in writing for adoption as aforesaid (Proposition 5, supra) is entered into after the incorporation of the company, a contract may in some cases be inferred from the acts of a company after its incorporation, for, although the company cannot ratify or by mere resolution adopt, "it does not follow from that that acts may not be done by the company after its formation which make a new contract to the same effect as the old one." Per Jessel, M. R., Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. D. 128.

And accordingly, where a contract of sale made with a trustee for an intended company was carried into effect by conveyance of the property and by the issue of the debentures which were to be the consideration, Kay, J., found as a fact that there was a fresh contract between the company and the vendor, and refused to allow the company to repudiate the debentures as having been issued without consideration. Howard v. Patent Ivory Co., 38 C. D. 156. But it is not prudent to act on the assumption that a direct contract can safely be omitted.

An important alteration was made in the matter of companies' contracts by sect. 6 (3) of the Companies Act, 1900. This section is now replaced by sect. 87 (3) of the Companies Act, 1908, and provides as follows: "Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it [s] become binding."

[322. Share] "Provisional" here means that the contract is to be read as if it contained a provision that it shall not be binding on the company unless and until the company becomes entitled to commence business. Re Otto Electrical Manufacturing Co., Jenkins' case, (1906) 2 Ch. 390. "Shall be binding" must not be taken to give any statutory sanction to the contract.

Private companies are exempt from this provision.

Another statutory alteration in the matter of contracts by companies is contained in the Companies Act, 1908, sect. 83, replacing sect. 11 of the Companies Act, 1900. "A company shall not previously to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus, or statement in lieu of prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting." If a company were allowed to do so, it might evade criticism of the contract by the shareholders at the statutory meeting.

Where there is to be a preliminary contract, one or other of the following four plans is usually adopted:

PLAN 1. - Agreement, before incorporation, with trustee or agent for intended company, followed by adoptive agreement after incorporation.

Private Co's exempt

PLAN 2. -Agreement prepared before incorporation and expressed to be made between the vendor and some agent for the company: it is signed after incorporation and is subsequently adopted by the company.

PLAN 3. -Agreement prepared before incorporation and expressed to be made with the company: it is sealed by the company after incorporation.

PLAN 4. Articles of association are silent as to any agreement, but give directors power to purchase the property.

Best Course to be followed.

Whenever there is no particular reason for adopting Plan 1, it is expedient to adopt Plans 2, 3, or 4: for, by the adoption of any of those plans, the company becomes bound in due course without any appearance of the contract having been forced on it, and without the necessity for any supplemental contract. See the notes to Form 251, clause 3, infra.

7-642

Plan 1.

Before the incorporation of the company, the promoters procure the owner of the property to enter into an agreement with some person, as trustee or agent for the intended company, for the sale of the property to the company upon certain terms and conditions. The memorandum and articles of association of the company are settled, with the concurrence of the vendor and of the promoters, contemporaneously with this agreement. In the articles is inserted a clause referring to the agreement—see infra, p. 643, clause 3, note], and authorizing the company to adopt and carry it into effect. The memorandum and articles are then registered, and the registrar issues his certificate, whereupon the company becomes incorporated. Shortly after the incorporation the directors hold a meeting at which the preliminary agreement is taken into consideration, and a resolution is passed for its adoption. This of itself would not be sufficient to make the company liable, but notice of the adoption is subsequently given to the vendor, and in due course the adoption is effected by means of a brief supplemental agreement, to which the vendor, the agent or trustee, and the company are parties, whereby the company is bound to perform the preliminary agreement in the place of the agent or trustee. See forms of such agreement, infra, pp. 369, 370.] The supplemental agreement is necessary where the preliminary agreement is made with an "agent," because it has been held that there can be no effectual ratification in such a case, inasmuch as the company

Plan 1.

Agreement with trustee or agent for intended company followed by supplemental adoptive agreement.

was not in existence when the preliminary agreement was made. See supra, pp. 321, 322.

Reasons why
Plan 1
preferred.

Plan 1 is sometimes preferred, because: (a) Before going to the expense of forming the company, the promoters may desire to have the vendor bound to sell on specified terms. This reason does not apply where the vendor is the promoter, or where the promoters are in a position to dictate to him. (b) The promoters may desire to bind the company absolutely to acquire the property upon the terms arranged by them before its incorporation. With a view thereto, the terms are embodied in a contract as in Plan 1, and in the articles a clause is inserted instructing the directors to carry the contract into effect. Promoters sometimes think, and perhaps rightly, that if the contract has already been executed and only waits for adoption, the directors will be less likely to raise questions as to the terms fixed than would otherwise be the case. But it must not be supposed that any such clause can bind the directors, or that it relieves them from the obligation to consider whether or no the adoption of the contract is for the company's benefit. See Brazilian Rubber Plantations, No. 1, 1911, 1 Ch. 425.

Plan 2.

Plan 2.

Agreement with agent for company subsequently adopted under seal of company.

The agreement is prepared before the incorporation of the company, and is expressed to be made between the vendor and some person purporting to act as agent for the company. The memorandum and articles refer to the agreement as a contract already prepared and intended to be signed immediately after the incorporation of the company, and authorize the directors to ratify and adopt the same (see Form 93). The company is then registered, and immediately afterwards the parties to the agreement, viz., the vendor and the agent, sign the same. Subsequently, a meeting of the directors is held, and a resolution is passed to the effect that the agreement be ratified and adopted, and that the seal be affixed in token thereof. The seal is then affixed to a memorandum, on or below the agreement, in these terms: "The above or within-written] agreement is hereby ratified and adopted by the _____ Company, Limited. As witness the common seal of the said company this ____ day of _____."

Thenceforth, the company is effectually bound by the agreement, for the technical rule established in Kelner v. Baxter, L. R. 2 C. P. 174, does not apply, since the agreement was signed after incorporation, and is therefore capable of ratification.

Advantages of Plan 2.

Plan 2 is sometimes adopted because it avoids the necessity for the supplemental agreement required by Plan 1, and at the same time enables the prospectus to be issued immediately after the incorporation and before any resolution for the adoption of the agreement has been submitted to the board. Moreover, promoters sometimes prefer to submit an agreement for adoption rather than a new agreement for execution as in Plans 1, 3, 4. When Plan 2 is adopted, the directors should bear in mind that if they act on the contract, or otherwise show their adoption thereof, the company may be bound by implied ratification.

Plan 3.

Before the incorporation of the company an agreement expressed to be made between the vendor and the company itself, for the sale of the property to the company, is, with the privity of the vendor and the promoters, prepared. The memorandum and articles are at the same time prepared and settled with the like privity. In the articles is inserted a clause [see Form 251, clause 3, infra, p. 643] referring to the agreement and authorizing or requiring the directors forthwith to affix the seal of the company thereto, or declaring that the company shall forthwith execute the agreement. The memorandum and articles are then registered, and the registrar issues his certificate. At the first meeting of the directors the agreement is taken into consideration, and a resolution passed for its adoption. The vendor is informed of the resolution, and a day appointed for completion, when the agreement is executed, being afterwards in due course carried into effect.

Plan 3.
Agreement with company itself, with power in articles to execute.

Plan 4.

This plan ^{only} differs from Plan 3 in ^{one} respect, namely, that the articles do not expressly refer to the agreement, but authorize the directors to purchase the property on such terms and conditions as they think fit. These general powers are quite as effectual as an authority to adopt or enter into a specific agreement. Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480. But the other plans are generally adopted. And one of those plans is preferable when the directors or some of them are vendors.

Plan 4.
General power in articles to directors to purchase without reference to specific agreement.

Where, as in Plan 1, a person purports to contract as agent for a company not yet formed, he is personally liable on the contract. Kelner v. Baxter, L. R. 2 C. P. 174. So, also, a person contracting as "trustee" is personally liable. Northumberland Avenue Co., 33 C. Div. 16.

Personal liability of person contracting on behalf of a company not yet formed.

And where a person has so contracted as "agent," the fact that the company after its incorporation acts on, or purports to ratify or adopt the contract, will not relieve the agent from the personal liability he incurs from signing on behalf of a non-existent principal (Scott v. Lord Ebury, L. R. 2 C. P. 255), unless the transaction amounts to a new contract, e.g., as in Form 41, infra. So too, where the contract is made with a "trustee" for a company, the trustee will not be released from liability to the vendor by reason of the company purporting to adopt or acting on the footing that it is entitled to the benefit of the contract. Northumberland Avenue Co., 33 C. Div. 16; Walters v. Northern Coal Co., 5 De G. M. & G. 629; Cox v. Bishop, 8 De G. M. & G. 815. There must be an effective adoption contract. See Form 41.

P. 369

Agreement should be framed so that his liability should be merely nominal.

It is, however, seldom or never the intention of the parties that the agent or trustee should be so liable, and accordingly the agreement is so framed that his liability will be merely nominal. This is effected as follows: The agent agrees that the company shall purchase the property; a future day is fixed for the completion of the purchase; it is provided (infra, p. 368) that upon the adoption of the agreement by the company, in such manner as to become bound to carry it into effect, the liability of the agent or trustee shall cease, and that if the company does not adopt the agreement before a certain day (prior to the day fixed for completion), the agent or trustee may at any time afterwards rescind it. The effect of these provisions is, that if the company adopts the agreement, the agent or trustee is freed from liability; and if the company does not adopt it in due course, the agent or trustee, before the time fixed for completion, rescinds the agreement, and thereby terminates his liability before he has had to do anything under the agreement.

Proviso limiting liability of agent valid: scus, if purporting to relieve him from all liability.

A proviso thus limiting the liability of the so-called agent or trustee is valid; but, not uncommonly, it is provided that he shall incur no personal responsibility whatever. Such a proviso is, however, in law repugnant and void, the result being that the agent or trustee is personally bound to perform the contract. Furnivall v. Coombes, 5 M. & Gr. 736; Williams v. Hathaway, 6 C. D. 544.

Provisions of articles.

As to the operation of clauses in the articles of association providing for the adoption of an agreement, see infra, p. 643.

Even before the Act of 1908 was passed, when a company was started to acquire a specific property, and the capital was to be raised by public subscription, it was not unusual so to frame the agreement for the purchase of the property, that if within a fixed period a certain number of shares were not taken, the company could rescind, the object being that if the company should fail in raising the funds necessary to enable it to commence business it might be able to get rid of the agreement. Sometimes a similar power was given to the vendor, for he might not be willing to sell to a company which had not the means to develop a property for which he was probably to be paid partly in shares; or his own right to sell might be contingent on a certain number of shares being taken up.

But now, under the Act of 1908, s. 87 (3), "any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding."

As to the meaning of "provisional," see Otto Electrical Engineering Co., Jenkins' Claim, (1906) 2 Ch. 390, supra, p. 22.

As to when the company is entitled to commence business, see supra, p. 20; and as to the above sect. (87) the minimum subscription, see sect. 85 of the Act of 1908, and the notes thereto, supra, p. 9.

In preparing an agreement for sale, the following are some of the points which arise for consideration:

Points on agreements
for sale.

- (a) On the sale of a business—Are the book debts to be included? Are any of them bad? Is allowance to be made for bad debts? Will the vendor guarantee the book debts? If they are to be excluded from the sale, is the company to collect them? Is the stock in-trade to be included at a fixed figure or to be taken over at a valuation? Is the sale to take effect from the date of the agreement, or from the day fixed for completion, or from some past date? Is the vendor to be precluded from competing with the company? Is the business to be carried on till completion on behalf of the vendor, or on the company's behalf?
- (b) On the sale of a patent—Are improvements to be included in the sale? Are further inventions which would not properly be described as mere improvements to be included? Are foreign patent rights to be included? Is the vendor to be bound to give information as to improvements? Is the patent valid? Is the purchaser to be at liberty to take any opinion as to its validity before completion, and to rescind if the patent be pronounced invalid?
- (c) On the sale of a mine—Is it to be examined by an independent expert before completion? Is there a good title? If the property is abroad can the company hold it, and is the purchase to be completed abroad or in England? If abroad, is the purchase-money to be sent abroad, or is it to be paid here to trustees pending information as to the title and transfer having been completed?
- (d) On the sale of a concession—Is it valid? Is it liable to forfeiture? Can it be vested in the company with or without consent; and, in the former case, what is to be done if the consent cannot be obtained?
- (e) On any sale, is there to be power to rescind if the company does not float, and who, in that case, is to pay the preliminary expenses?

Preliminary agreements very commonly provide for the issue of fully or partly paid-up shares for a consideration other than cash, e.g., as the consideration for the sale of property or of services to be rendered to the company. Paid-up shares.

The law as to the issue of shares for a consideration other than cash has been materially altered by the Companies Act, 1900 (now replaced by the Companies Act, 1908).

For many years prior to the time when that Act came into operation (1st January, 1901), sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, had been in force, whereby it was provided that every share in any company should be deemed and taken to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, unless the same should have been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing and filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies at or before the issue of such shares, and it was well settled that the contract thus required to be filed must show the number of the shares to be allotted, the amount to be credited as paid, and the consideration for which the shares were to be so credited. See the leading decisions on the Act, infra, Chap. XX. But by sect. 33 of the Companies Act, 1900, sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 was repealed as from January 1st, 1901, with the result that the provisions of the Act of 1862 in regard to payments for shares were restored, and they are now embodied in the Companies Act, 1908.

Now under the Act of 1862 a shareholder was liable for the full amount of his shares, save so far as the amount may have been previously paid up, either by himself or otherwise. The obligation is not very clearly expressed in the Act, but that it exists is conclusively settled by many decisions of the highest authority. It is also settled that payment may be made in cash, or in its equivalent, e.g., by making over to the company property which it has power to acquire or rendering or agreeing to render it service, which it is willing to accept in satisfaction, of the amount of the share or any specified portion thereof.

The law, then, as it now stands is as follows:

1. A company with a share capital may issue shares credited as fully or partly paid up for a corresponding cash consideration.
2. A company may issue shares credited as fully or partly paid up for a consideration other than cash, provided that the consideration is something, e.g., property or services, the acquisition of which is within the powers of the company, and is, in the honest opinion of the directors, of adequate value.

Sub-sect. (1) of sect. 88 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908, is as follows:

Whenever a company limited by shares makes any allotment of its shares the company must within one month thereafter file with the Registrar of Companies

- (a) A return of the allotments stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses and de scriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share, and

- (b) in the case of shares allotted or fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment, together with any contract of sale or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

As to these requirements, see pp. 65 et seq. supra.

Sub-sect. (2) of the same Act provides in effect that if the above-mentioned contract has not at the time been reduced to writing, the company must within one month after the allotment file with the registrar the prescribed particulars of the contract, stamped with the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing.

3. An oral contract for the issue of paid up or partly paid up shares for a consideration other than cash is allowable, but particulars must be filed as above.
4. Where shares are issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash. Sect. 88 of the Act, and pp. 58 et seq.
5. If default be made in complying with the requirements of the above section, the directors and other officials will incur a penalty of 50*l.* a day. Relief may be granted by the Court where the omission to file was accidental or due to inadvertence.
6. Where shares are issued on a cash footing, it is open to the company subsequently to agree with the holder to accept property or services in satisfaction or part satisfaction thereof, and it is not necessary to file any contract in regard thereto; but the amounts or respective amount so paid or satisfied will have to appear in the annual list and summary under sect. 26.
7. If a valid contract be made for the acceptance by the company of specified property or services of substantial value in payment or part payment of shares, the Court will not whilst the contract stands, inquire into the adequacy of the consideration even at the instance of the liquidator. Pell's case, 5 Ch. 11; Baylan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 346; Wragg, Limited, (1897) 1 Ch. 796.
8. Non-compliance with sect. 88 of the Act will not affect the validity of the contract which should have been filed, or render the shares which have been allotted liable to payment in cash.

Contracts entered into before the Company is entitled to commence Business.

Sect. 87 of the Act of 1908 provides as follows:—

(3) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

• • • • • • • •

(6) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company or to a company registered before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one, or to a company registered before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and eight, which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares.

The words of the above sub-sect. (3) are wide enough to cover even contracts of membership, so that though the company has allotted the whole of the minimum subscription referred to in sects. 85 and 87 (1) of the Act, and has given notice thereof to the allottees, and so completed contracts with them, each such contract might still remain provisional, and not become absolutely binding until the conditions (b) and (c) (see p. 20) of sect. 87 (1), which are to be complied with before a company to which sect. 6 applies is entitled to commence business, have been satisfied. And there is after all nothing unreasonable in itself in such a construction, for no applicant for, or allottee of, shares in the very early stage ought in fairness to be held to his bargain if the company is never in a position to commence business. 'Provisional' means that the contract is to be treated as if it contained a stipulation that it is not to be binding on the company unless and until the company becomes entitled to commence business. Otto Electrical Manufacturing Co., Jenkins' Claim, (1906) 2 Ch. 330.

There is no need to insert an express condition to that effect in each contract, for the statute implies it. Nevertheless, it may be convenient for the benefit of the business man not learned in the law to set out the condition in the contract in some case.

The words 'and on that date shall become binding' merely remove the bar created by the section. They operate to terminate the provisional status of the contract and to make it absolute, but it is only binding for what it may be worth, and therefore any right to repudiate or rescind e.g. for misrepresentation will remain undisturbed.

As to varying such contracts, see supra, p. 22.

As to the Making of Contracts under Seal in Writing by Parol.

By sect. 76 of the Companies Act, 1908 (re-enacting sect. 37 of the Companies Act, 1867), it is provided as follows:

Sect. 37 of
Act of 1867
as to contracts.

(1) Contracts on behalf of a company under the principal Act may be made as follows; that is to say:-

- (i.) Any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing, and if made according to English law to be under seal, may be made on behalf of the company in writing under the common seal of the company, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged;
- (ii.) Any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing, signed by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged;
- (iii.) Any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only, and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company, by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged;

(2) All contracts made according to this section shall be effectual in law, and shall bind the company and its successors, and all other parties thereto, their heirs, executors, or administrators, as the case may be.

(3) Any deed to which a company is a party shall be held to be validly executed in Scotland on behalf of the company if it is executed in terms of the provisions of this Act or is sealed with the common seal of the company and subscribed on behalf of the company by two of the directors and the secretary of the company, and such subscription on behalf of the company shall be equally binding whether attested by witnesses or not.

The statutory power, it will be observed, applies to all companies registered under the Act, and by virtue of it all such companies may except as regards the contracts specified in sub-sect. (1), contract without seal. The power may, of course, be controlled or qualified by the articles of association.

As to who is a "person acting under the express or implied authority of the company," under sub-sects. (2) and (3) of section of sub. 37.

Effect

This will depend on the articles of the company. Generally speaking, the directors have express or implied authority to enter into contracts necessary for carrying the objects of the company into effect, and, of course, a board meeting can exercise the authority. If the board approves of a contract, the directors assembled thereat can sign the contract on behalf of the company, pursuant to sect. 141. In most companies the directors can, under the articles, delegate their powers, or any of them, to committees, consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; and if this is the case, the power to enter into a specific contract of agent

Authority

the power generally, may be vested in the committee, and a contract signed by the committee will be binding. So, too, where there is power to appoint agents, &c., or to delegate to a manager or other person. See further as to what is a duly authorized person, Re London and Paris Hotel Co., 20 Eq. 442; Browning v. Gr. Central Mining Co., 5 H. & N. 806; Royal Bank of India's v. v. v., 252; Land Credit Co., 4 Ch. 460; Chapman v. Smithurst (1909) 1 K. B. 727 (C. A.).

Contracts without seal.

The test of when a trading company can contract without use of seal apart from the above enactment is given in South of Ireland Colliery Co. v. Wadde, 1 R. 34 P. 469.

Contract on behalf of company.

As to the form which a contract to be signed on behalf of a company should take: Suppose it to be a contract between A. B. and the company. It may be expressed to be made ex. pte. between A. B. of the one part, and the company of the other part, or between A. B. of the one part and C. D. the person or persons authorized to enter into it on behalf of the company, of the other part. The former is generally considered the better plan, but they are equally effectual. Aggs v. Nicholson, 1 H. & N. 465.

Where Plan (a) is adopted, the testimonium clause, if any, in this form: As witness the hand of A. B. and C. D. E. F. and G. H. on behalf of the company. In witness whereof A. B. and two of the directors of the company, or its authorized agents, have hereunto set their hands.

Of course no testimonium clause is necessary, and if used to be sufficient if the contract is signed thus:

A. B.
D., for the Company.

Agent not liable.

If the agent is made party to the contract as in Plan (b) the testimonium clause, if used, will run: As witness the hands of the said parties hereto the day, &c.; and the agent can, if he think it expedient, ex abundanti cautela, qualify his signature by prefixing, or adding words showing his agency. It is now settled, however, that where an agent enters into a contract on behalf of another, it is not essential, in order that he may avoid personal responsibility, to add any qualifying words to his signature, ex. pte. as agent for A. B., or "on behalf of A. B.," or "on account of A. B.," or "for A. B." Prima facie if he signs without qualification, he is personally liable, but it is a question of intention, and if in the body of the agreement he purport to contract "as agent," or "on account of," or "on behalf of," or "for" another, he will escape liability on the contract. See Gadd v. Houghton, 1 Ex. Div. 357; Pike v. Ongley, 18 Q. B. D. 719; Chapman v. Smithurst, (1909) 1 K. B. 727 (C. A.). Although, if not authorized, he may be liable in damages for breach of warranty as to his authority. Collen v.

Wright 8 E. & B. 647; Hallbat v. Leuz, 1901 1 Ch. 311. Weeks v. Probert, L. R. 8 C. P. 427; Firbank's Errors v. Humphreys, 18 Q. B. D. 60; Oliver v. Bank of England, 1902 1 Ch. 610.

AS TO ORAL AGREEMENTS.

As appears from sect. 76 (1) (iii) of the Act of 1908, these can be oral contracts made by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and, of course, innumerable contracts are so made. In this connection, the Statute of Frauds and the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, should be borne in mind, but although sect. 4 of the former Act provides that, as regards certain agreements, and in particular

As to Statute of Frauds

- (i) any special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person;
- (ii) any contract or sale of lands, tenements, or hereditaments or any interest in or concerning the same;
- (iii) any agreement that is not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof;

"no action shall be brought thereon" unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person thereunto by him lawfully authorized. This section does not invalidate the agreement. The statute in this part of it, does not say that unless those requisites are complied with the contract shall be void, but merely that no action shall be brought upon it." Per Jervis, C. J., Leroux v. Brown, 1862, 12 C. B. 801, Hogle v. Hogle, 1893 1 Ch. 84. The object of the Act is only to prevent certain important classes of contracts resting on the "fragile testimony of memory." Accordingly, a company can make a parol agreement in relation to any such matters, and the agreement can be enforced if due is taken to obtain the evidence required by the statute, e.g., if an admission of the terms of the agreement signed by some duly authorized officer of the company can be produced.

Parol contract within statute, when enforceable

The words of the statute, "some memorandum or note thereof" have been construed with great liberality: they have been held to include any written memorandum or admission of the terms of the contract, whether made before or after the contract, provided that it is made before action brought. Thus a proposal in writing acceptably has been held a sufficient memorandum as against the proposer. Watts v. Anwoorth, 1 H. & C. 83, Reuss v. Pickslay, L. R. 1 Ex. 342. A letter from the party to be charged to an agent or friend, mentioning the terms of the agreement made with some third party, seems sufficient (Filby v. Hounsell, 1896 2 Ch. 737; Barley v. Sweetman, 9 C. B. N. S. 843), e.g., a letter from a company to its own solicitor mentioning the terms of the contract made etc.

v. Holland, L. R. 1 C. P. 1, and the question is not one of intention, but simply of evidence. "The Court," said Bowen, L. J., in Hoyle v. Hoyle, (1893) 1 Ch. 99, "is not in quest of the intention of the parties, but only of evidence under the hand of one of the parties to the contract, that he has entered into it. Any document signed by him [or his agent], and containing the terms of the contract is sufficient for the purpose. In Bailey v. Sweeting, 9 C. B. N. S. 843, a letter to an agent of the person sought to be charged was held sufficient, and whether it is a letter to an agent or to a friend is immaterial.

So also in Jones v. Victoria Graving Dock, 2 Q. B. D. 314, where an agreement was orally made between the plaintiff and the company in the terms of a certain draft, it was held that a minute of the board of directors signed by the chairman and referring to such draft, and resolving that it be engrossed and signed, was a sufficient memorandum within the statute. It was contended in this case that the signature of the chairman to the minutes was put in order to verify the proceedings of the board in obedience to the Companies Act 1862, and not in order to attest or verify the contract, and that as the signature was put alio intuitu it could not be available for the purpose of satisfying the Statute of Frauds. But the Court held that there was no foundation for this contention. "What," said Lush, L. J., who delivered judgment, "is this but an assertion under the hand of the company's agent that the company had entered into the agreement which was contained in the draft referred to? . . . the question is not what its object was, but whether it is a written and signed statement of the contract." See also Queensland, &c. Co., (1894) 3 Ch. 181; and Griffiths Cycle Corporation v. Humber (1899) 2 Q. B. 414.

How to comply with requirements of statute as regards parol
agreement.

Thus, suppose that a company desires to purchase a piece of land and that for some reason it is expedient to carry the transaction through by parol agreement, it can be done thus: Let the vendor make a proposal in writing, addressed to the company, and let the directors pass a resolution authorizing one of their body to accept such proposal on behalf of the company, and let him accept the same orally, and let him subsequently report in writing to the company the fact that he has orally accepted the proposal as authorized, and let such report be read at a board meeting and be entered in the minutes. In the result there is a valid contract, satisfying the requirements of the Statute of Frauds, whichever party has occasion to rely on it, for the proposal thus orally accepted is a sufficient memorandum as against the vendor (Reuss v. Pickelsly, supra), and as against the company the minutes show the authority of the agent. . . . his letter is a sufficient memorandum signed by the company's agent. Gibson v. Holland, L. R. 1 C. P. 1; Jones v. Victoria Graving Dock, 2 Q. B. D. 323; Hoyle v. Hoyle, (1893) 1 Ch. 81; Queensland Land, &c. Co., (1894) 3 Ch. 181. It may be added that a proposal thus orally accepted requires no stamp. See infra, p. 338. An oral acceptance of one of two alternatives contained in a written offer makes an enforceable contract as against the writer. Lever v. Koffler, (1901) 1 Ch. 513. Part performance of an oral contract to sell land may take the case out of the Statute of Frauds (Dickinson v. Barrow, (1904) 2 Ch. 339), provided such part performance shall be unequivocally referable to the contract. Alderson v. Maddison, 8 App. Cas. 467. As to filing particulars of an oral contract for the issue of paid-up or partly paid-up shares for a consideration other than cash, see sect. 88, and p. 331, supra.

As to Stamps.

Stamps

Not under Seal

Except where otherwise provided by the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Viet. c. 39), an agreement in writing not under seal entered into by or on behalf of a company generally comes under the following heading in the schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891: "Agreement, or any memorandum of an agreement, made in England or Ireland under hand only, or made in Scotland, without any clause of registration, and not otherwise specifically charged with any duty, whether the same be only evidence of a contract, or obligatory upon the parties from its being a written instrument," and accordingly requires a 6d agreement stamp.

By sect. 22 of the same Act, it is provided that the duty of 6d. upon an agreement may be denoted by an adhesive stamp, which is to be cancelled by the person by whom the agreement is first executed.

The mode of cancelling is prescribed by sect. 8 of the Act, namely:-

Adhesive stamps

How to be cancelled

- (1) An instrument the duty upon which is required or permitted by law to be denoted by an adhesive stamp is not to be deemed duly stamped with an adhesive stamp, unless the person required by law to cancel the adhesive stamp cancels the same by writing on or across the stamp his name or initials, or the name or initials of his firm, together with the true date of his so writing; or otherwise effectually cancels the stamp and renders the same incapable of being used for any other instrument, or for any postal purpose, or unless it is otherwise proved that the stamp appearing on the instrument was affixed thereto at the proper time
- (2) Where two or more adhesive stamps are used to denote the stamp duty upon an instrument, each or every stamp is to be cancelled in the manner aforesaid.
- (3) Every person who, being required by law to cancel an adhesive stamp, neglects or refuses duly and effectually to do so in the manner aforesaid, shall incur a fine of 10/.

Having regard to the words in italics, the signature and date need not now be written across the stamp if it is otherwise effectually cancelled. McMullen v. Sir Alfred Hickman Steamship Co., 71 L. J. Ch. 766; 18 T. L. R. 650.

Under Seal

Agreement
under seal.

A contract under seal, except where otherwise provided by the Stamp Act, 1891, is usually liable to duty under that Act, as a "deed of any kind whatsoever not described in the schedule," i.e., it requires a 10s. stamp.

Oral.

Oral
agreement.

An oral agreement, of course, requires no stamp; nor does a mere proposal in writing, orally accepted (see supra), for such a proposal is not "an agreement or memorandum of an agreement, whether the same be only evidence of a contract or obligatory upon the parties from its being a written instrument." Drant v. Brown, 3 B. & C. 666, in which Holroyd, J., said, "This was a mere proposal; if it had been accepted by writing, it must have been stamped; but being accepted by parol, the agreement was in law a parol agreement." And see per Hawkins, J., in Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co. 1892, 2 Q. B. 493.

So in Cloy v. Crofts, 20 L. J. Ex. 361, where a schoolmaster embodied his terms in a prospectus and a verbal contract was made thereon, it was held that the prospectus was a proposal and not an agreement, and that no stamp was necessary. "The defendant, by adopting the proposal and sending his sons to the school, makes it a contract. . . . A memorandum does not require a stamp where being a mere proposal in the first instance, it afterwards becomes binding by subsequent matter." Per Parke, B. See, however, Warner v. Millington, 3 Drew. 523; Smith v. Neale, 2 C. B. N. S. 67; and Reuss v. Picksgley, L. R. 4 Ex. 342.

Agreements for Sale of Property.

Sect. 18 of Customs, &c.
Act, 1889.

By sect. 18 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 7), ad valorem duty was imposed on all agreements for the sale "of any property, save such as passes by delivery, or must be conveyed by deed," but this enactment was found intolerable, and by sect. 59 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), the following was substituted:

Sect. 59 of Stamp Act,
1891.

- (1) Any contract or agreement made in England or Ireland under seal, or under hand only, or made in Scotland, with or without any clause of registration, for the sale of any equitable estate or interest in any property whatsoever, or for the sale of any estate or interest in any property except lands, tenements, hereditaments, or heritages, or any property locally situate out of the United Kingdom, or goods, wares, or merchandise, or stock, or marketable securities, or any ship or vessel or part interest, share, or property of or in any ship or vessel, shall be charged with the same ad valorem duty, to be paid by the purchaser, as if it were an actual conveyance on sale of the estate, interest, or property contracted or agreed to be sold.

- (2) Where the purchaser has paid the said ad valorem duty, and before having obtained a conveyance or transfer of the property, enters into a contract or agreement for the sale of the same, the contract or agreement shall be charged, if the consideration for that sale is in excess of the consideration for the original sale, with the ad valorem duty payable in respect of such excess consideration, and in any other case with the fixed duty of ten shillings, or of sixpence, as the case may require.
- (3) Where duty has been duly paid in conformity with the foregoing provisions, the conveyance or transfer made to the purchaser or sub-purchaser, or any other person on his behalf or by his direction, shall not be chargeable with any duty, and the Commissioners, upon application, either shall denote the payment of the ad valorem duty upon the conveyance or transfer, or shall transfer the ad valorem duty thereto upon production of the contract or agreement, or contracts or agreements, duly stamped.
- (4) Provided that where any such contract or agreement is stamped with the fixed duty of ten shillings or of sixpence, as the case may require, the contract or agreement shall be regarded as duly stamped for the mere purpose of proceeding to enforce specific performance, or to recover damages for the breach thereof.
- (5) Provided also that where any such contract or agreement is stamped with the said fixed duty, and a conveyance or transfer made in conformity with the contract or agreement is presented to the commissioners for stamping with the ad valorem duty chargeable thereon within the period of six months after the first execution of the contract or agreement, or within such longer period as the commissioners may think reasonable in the circumstances of the case, the conveyance or transfer shall be stamped accordingly, and the same and the said contract or agreement shall be deemed to be duly stamped. Nothing in this provision shall alter or affect the provisions as to the stamping of a conveyance or transfer after the execution thereof.
- (6) Provided also that the ad valorem duty paid upon any such contract or agreement shall be returned by the commissioners in case the contract or agreement be afterwards rescinded or annulled, or for any other reason be not substantially performed or carried into effect so as to operate as, or be followed by, a conveyance or transfer.

Having regard to the above section (59), a written agreement for the sale of property, with the exceptions specified in sub-sect. (1) of the above section, requires to be stamped as if it were an actual conveyance on sale of the estate, interest or property contracted or agreed to be sold. The duty on conveyances was fixed by the Stamp Act, 1891, at 2s. 6d. per cent., and so in proportion, but by the Finance (1909-10) Act, 1910, the duty was doubled. See sect. 73, which provides that "the said duties chargeable under the heading 'conveyance on sale or on transfer of any property' in the first schedule to the Stamp Act, 1891 (in this part of this Act referred to as the principal Act), shall be double those specified in that of sect. 59.

Construction

schedule, provided that this section shall not apply to the conveyance or transfer of any stock or marketable securities as defined by sect. 122 of that Act, or to any conveyance or transfer where the amount or value of the consideration for the sale does not exceed 500*l.*, and the instrument contains a statement certifying that the transaction thereby effected does not form part of the larger transaction or of the series of transactions in respect of which the amount or value or the aggregate amount or value of the consideration exceeds 500*l.*"

With reference to the above sections, it may be convenient to consider in detail some of the wording:—

"Made in England," &c. It is to be noted that the ad valorem duty imposed by the section (59, supra) was not to attach unless the agreement was "made in England [including Wales] or Ireland or Scotland."

Where a contract is constituted by offer and acceptance it is to be taken to be "made" when the acceptance took place. Müller & Co. v. Margarine v. Inland Revenue, (1900) 1 Q. B. 310. "In my opinion," said Collins, L. J., in that case, "a contract is made within the meaning of sect. 59 when the signature of the last necessary party is affixed."

And upon appeal this view was pronounced correct by the House of Lords, Inland Revenue v. Müller & Co., (1901) A. C. 217.

Accordingly a contract made abroad was not touched by the section and it was at one time a common practice, in order to avoid the duty, to enter into a contract for sale in some foreign place, even where the property to be sold was wholly or in part within the United Kingdom: but contracts made abroad are no longer exempted, for by sect. 7 of the Revenue Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, c. 43), it is provided that "The limitation of sect. 59 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (which makes certain contracts chargeable for the purposes of stamp duties as conveyances on sale) to contracts and agreements made in England, Ireland or Scotland shall cease to have effect." Hence the words "or made anywhere else" should be read into sub-sect. (1) of sect. 59 immediately before the words "for the sale."

"For the sale of any equitable estate or interest in any property whatsoever." It has been held that these words mean for the sale of an equitable estate or interest as distinguished from the legal estate or interest. West London Syndicate v. Inland Revenue (1898) 2 Q. B. 507; Danubian Sugar Factories v. Inland Revenue (1901) 1 Q. B. 257.

Thus, if the agreement is for the sale of an equity of redemption, the ad valorem duty is, it has been held, payable thereon even if the property be situate abroad. Farmer & Co. v. Inland Revenue (1898) 2 Q. B. 141.

So, also, if the terms of the agreement indicate the intention that the legal estate shall be left outstanding and the equitable estate only conveyed, the ad valorem duty will attach. Chesterfield Brewery Co. v. Inland Revenue, (1899) 2 Q. B. 7.

The mere fact, however, that the agreement for sale gives the purchaser the option in certain events of taking a declaration of trust instead of a conveyance of the legal estate does not make the agreement one for the sale of an equitable interest only. West London Syndicate v. Inland Revenue, (1898) 2 Q. B. 507.

Lands, tenements, hereditaments and other property locally situate out of the United Kingdom. In Smelting Co. of Australia v. Inland Revenue, (1897) 1 Q. B. 175, it was contended that the words "or property locally situate out of the United Kingdom," following as they do the words "lands, tenements, hereditaments or heritages," all of which denote real property, ought to be construed as meaning property of the same kind; and Lord Esher, M. R., and Lopes, L. J., considered that the words should be so read; but Rigby, L. J., considered that the words ought not to be so limited, and the decision of the House of Lords in Inland Revenue v. Müller & Co.'s Margarine, (1901) A. C. 217, is obviously inconsistent with such a restricted construction of the words.

In the case last mentioned, Lindley, L. J., said: "The words 'lands, tenements and hereditaments' themselves exhaust real property, and the introduction after them of the word 'property' shows that something more is to be excepted. Nothing more can be suggested which is eiusdem generis, and nothing but personal property remains."

Locally situate," &c. In Smelting Co. of Australia v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, (1897) 1 Q. B. 175, it was held that an agreement made in England for the sale of a share in a patent granted in New South Wales and a sole licence to use in a district of that colony the invention protected by the patent was liable to ad valorem duty under the section on the ground that the property was not property "locally situate out of the United Kingdom." Lord Esher, M. R., in that case was of opinion that the expression "locally situate" could not apply to something which in truth and in fact has no locality. "It may be," said his Lordship, "that there are chattels of which it may fairly and truly be predicated that they are locally situate out of the United Kingdom; it is not necessary to decide that it be so: I will assume it. If a chattel is a physical, tangible thing, which can be touched and seen, and which can be placed in a particular place, it may be locally situate within the meaning of those words, but the property here in question could not be touched or seen or placed anywhere; it is incapable of being brought within the fair and true meaning of the words 'locally situate,' or of being said to exist in any locality." And Lopes, L. J., said: "I do not see how a share in a patent or a licence to use a patent which is not a visible or a tangible thing can be said to be locally situate anywhere." This decision was referred to in the argument in Inland Revenue v. Müller & Co.'s Margarine, (1901) A. C. 220, as an authority for the proposition that an incorporeal right can have no local situation; but Lord Davey said that he did not "express any opinion on the abstract question whether an incorporeal right can have a local situation beyond saying that I am not impressed with the difficulty of holding that it may have one for revenue purposes in analogy to the decisions in the probate cases." See Attorney-General v. Bauwens, 4 M. & W. 171. and in the same case Lord Lindley said, referring to the Smelting Co. of Australia v. Inland Revenue, supra, "Lord Esher and Lopes, L. J., considered that incorporeal personal property could not be said to be situate anywhere. This is, of course, true physically speaking, but not, I think, in contemplation of law."

In Danubian Sugar Factories v. Inland Revenue, (1901) 1 Q. B. 249, it was held that the benefit of a contract to transfer land situate abroad was not within the words "property locally situate out of the United Kingdom," but the authority of this decision is impaired by the decision last referred to.

In Inland Revenue v. Müller & Co.'s Margarine, (1901) A. C. 217, it was contended that goodwill had no locality, and could not be said to be situate anywhere, but the House of Lords negatived this contention. "For my part," said Lord Macnaghten, "I think that if there is one attribute common to all cases of goodwill, it is the attribute of locality"; and in the same case Lord Lindley said: "Goodwill is only taxable as property, and the local conception of property appears to me to involve the local conception of existence somewhere. Incorporeal property has no existence in nature, and has, physically speaking, no locality at all. We, however, are dealing not with anything which in fact fills a portion of space, but with a local conception, or in other words with rights regarded as property; but to talk of property as existing nowhere is to use language which to me is unintelligible. The authorities which bear upon the locality of incorporeal personal property for purposes of probate appear to me to afford the best guides for the solution of the case before us. Those cases tend strongly to show that for purposes of probate, goodwill, except so far as it merely enhances the value of lands and hereditaments, must be regarded as personal property situate somewhere; and if this were a probate case, I do not suppose that anyone would say that the goodwill with which we have to deal would be regarded as in any sense situate in this country."

In West London Syndicate v. Inland Revenue, (1898) 2 Q. B.

507. there was an agreement for the sale of the goodwill of the business of an hotel proprietor, and the lease of the hotel, with furniture, book debts, &c. It was held that the goodwill was not to be regarded as attached to the premises, and that ad valorem duty in respect thereof was chargeable: but query whether this case would now be supported.

As to book debts, see Measures Bros. v. Inland Revenue, 82 L. T. 689.

"Goods, Wares, or Merchandise."

These words include electrical energy. County of Durham Electrical Power Distribution Co. v. Inland Revenue Commrs., (1909) 2 K. B. 604 (C. A.).

They do not include fixtures, unless actually severed. Lee v. Gaskell, 1 Q. B. D. 700; Hobson v. Gorringe, (1897) 1 Ch. 182.

What Law governs the Interpretation and Operation of Contracts.

In framing a contract it is in some cases material to consider whether it is or is not necessary or desirable to make special provisions as to the law which is to govern it.

Of course, if the contract is made in England between a company registered in England and some other person or persons also resident there, and it provides for performance in England, the law of England will apply; unless, indeed, there be some provision to the contrary in the contract.

But cases frequently arise in which the circumstances are very different. Thus, some party to the agreement, e.g., the vendor, may be a foreigner or an Englishman resident abroad; the subject-matter of the contract may be property situate abroad, or shares, concessions, patents, or other assets constituted under some foreign law; the performance of the contract may have to take place abroad, as where property is to be delivered or conveyed abroad, or where services are to be rendered abroad; or the contract may happen to be made abroad, as where the company by its agent enters into a contract in a foreign country.

In all such cases the question arises, What law is to govern the contract? The answer to this question is, that the law which the parties intend to apply is to apply. Jacobs v. Crédit Lyonnais, 12 Q. B. D. 600.

If the intention is expressly declared, e.g., where the contract provides (infra, p. 362) that it is to be construed and have effect as a contract made in England or in some other specified country, the contract must be construed and have effect accordingly.

But where there is no such express direction, it is necessary to ascertain the intention by inference. Hamlyn & Co. v. Talisker Distillery, (1894) A. C. 202; Austrian Lloyd Steamship Co. v. Gresham Life Assurance Society, (1903) 1 K. B. 249.

Primâ facie, the parties to the contract are presumed to intend that the law of the country where it is made shall govern as to its interpretation and operation. Robinson v. Bland, 1 W. Bl. 258; Jacobs v. Crédit Lyonnais, 12 Q. B. D. 589; South African Breweries v. King, (1900) 1 Ch. 273; De Beers v. British South Africa, (1911) A. C. 52.

But there is no hard and fast rule either that the law of the place where the contract is made or the law of the place where it is to be performed shall apply, and slight indications of intention may turn the scale and suffice to determine the question. Thus, when it is a question which of the laws of two countries apply, and the contract contains a provision which is valid under the law of one, but invalid under the laws of the other, that circumstance tends to show that it was intended that the laws of the former should apply. Missouri Steamship Co., 42 C. D. 321; and see the case last referred to. In Jacobs v. Crédit Lyonnais, 12 Q. B. D. 599, Bowen, L. J., said that "The only certain guide is to be found in applying sound ideas of business convenience and sense to the language of the contract itself with a view to discovering from it the true intention of the parties. Even in respect of any performance that is to take place abroad, the parties may still have desired that their liabilities and obligations shall be governed by English law, or it may be that they have intended to incorporate the foreign law to regulate the method and manner of performance abroad without altering any of the incidents which attached to the contract according to English law. Stereotyped rules laid down by juridical writers cannot, therefore, be accepted as infallible canons of interpretation in these days when commercial transactions have altered in character and increased in complexity, and there can be no hard and fast rule by which to construe the multiform commercial agreements with which in modern times we have to deal."

Looking to the foregoing remarks and the desirability of securing certainty of interpretation it seems best, where a foreigner is a party to a preliminary or other contract with a company, to provide expressly that the law of England shall apply, and further to provide for service in England on an agent of the foreigner.

It is also well, where the contract provides for payment to a person not resident in England, to state where the payment is to be made. for the general rule is, that where no place of payment is specified, either expressly or by implication, the debtor must seek his creditor Robey v. Snaefell Co., 20 Q. B. D. 132; Charles Duval, Ltd. v. Gans, (1904) 2 K. B. 685.

PRECEDENTS.

AGREEMENT to sell BUSINESS to NEW COMPANY.

Form 31.

General form.

This is an example of the form of agreement commonly adopted in Plan 3, supra, p. 327. It can readily be altered to suit the case of one vendor.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A., of —, B., of —, and C., of — (hmftr called "the vendors"), of the one Parties.
part, and the — Coy, Limtd (hmftr called "the coy"), of the other part: WHEREAS the vendors have for some time past carried on Recitals.
business as —, at — and elsewhere, under the style or firm of
"M. & Co."; AND WHEREAS the coy has been formed under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, with a nominal capital of £—, divided into — shares of £— each, with a view, amongst other things, to the acquisition of the sd business: AND WHEREAS by clause 3 of the arts of asson of the coy it is provided that the coy shall enter into the agreemt therein referred to, being this agreemt. Now it is hby agreed as follows:—

1. The vendor shall sell, and the coy shall purchase—

First, the goodwill of the sd business [with the exclusive right to use the name of M. & Co. as part of the name of the coy, and represent the coy as carrying on such business in continuation of the vendor's firm, and in succession thereto, and the right to use the words "late M. & Co.," or any other words indicating that the business is carried on in continuation of or succession to the sd firm], and all trade marks connected therewith.

Agreement for sale.

Paroels.

The words in brackets are probably implied in the word "goodwill." Walker v. Levy, 10 C. Div. 436. But an assignment of a goodwill does not authorize the use of the trade name in such a way as to expose the vendor to liability. Thynne v. Shore, 45 C. D. 577; Townsend v. Jarman, (1900) 2 Ch. 698. As to the right of a vendee to restrain a vendor from soliciting his old customers, and otherwise interfering with the goodwill, see note, infra, p. 357.

A conveyance of the goodwill may carry the benefit of covenants not to compete by employes or a late partner of the vendor. Jacoby v. Whitmore, 49 L. T. 335; Townsend v. Jarman, (1900) 2 Ch. 698.

The sale of a goodwill by a trustee in bankruptcy carries no implied restriction as against the bankrupt. Walker v. Mattram, 19 C. Div. 355; Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. 505.

Form 31.

As to the necessity of expressly mentioning goodwill. see Re Bennett, Clarke v. White, (1899) 1 Ch. 316.

The amount payable for goodwill is one of the particulars which must be stated in the company's prospectus. Companies Act, 1908, s. 81 (1) (g).

As to the imposition of conditions on the sale of a patented article, see National Phonograph Co. of Australia v. Menck, 27 T. L. R. 239.

Under sect. 70 of the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), a trade mark when registered was only assignable in connection with the goodwill of the business. See Magnolia Metal Company's Trade Marks, (1897) 2 Ch. 371. An assignment in gross was invalid. Thorneloe v. Hill, (1891) 1 Ch. 569. The above section is repealed by sect. 73 of the Trade Marks Act, 1905 (5 Ed. 7, c. 15), as from 1st April, 1906 (see sect. 2), where it is replaced by a similar enactment (in sect. 22), with the following addition: "But nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to affect the right of the proprietor of a registered trade mark to assign the right to use the same in any British possession or protectorate or foreign country in connection with any goods for which it is registered together with the goodwill of the business therein in such goods." See Kerly, Trade Marks, 3rd ed. 346.

Where a company purchases an old trade mark, which consists of or includes the name of the proprietor of the business, and the company has taken that name with the word "limited" added thereto, leave will be given, under sect. 92 of the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883, now replaced by Trade Marks Act, 1905, s. 32, to add the word "limited" to the trade mark. Guinness & Co.'s Trade Mark, 5 Rep. Pat. Cas. 316, since followed in several cases; and see Henry Clay, & Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 553; see Kerly, Trade Marks, 3rd ed. 316. But no abbreviation of the word "limited" is allowed. Hothbrook's Tms., 18 Rep. Pat. Cas. 447; Kerly, Trade Marks, 3rd ed. 319.

Secondly, all the freehold, copyhold and leasehold hereditaments resply specified in the first, second, and third schedules hto.

Sometimes it is considered undesirable to show in the filed agreement the full particulars of the property, and in such cases the description can run "All the freehold, copyhold and leasehold property belonging to the vendors in connection with the said business."

Thirdly, all the plant, machinery, office furniture, patents, licences, horses, waggons, carts, stock-in-trade, implements and utensils to which the vendors are enttd in connection with the sd business.

As to the meaning of "plant," see London and Eastern Counties, &c. Co. v. Creasey, (1897) 1 Q. B. 768. "Plant" and "machinery" are two quite different things: per Kekewich, J., Re Brooke, 64 L. J. Ch. 27; and see Re Nutley and Finn, W. N. (1894) 64; Thompson v. City Glass Bottle Co., (1902) 1 K. B. 233; and Stroud's Judicial Dictionary.

Fourthly, all the book and other debts due to the vendors in connection with the sd business, and the full benefit of all securities for such debts.

A cheque or bill of exchange given in respect of a pre-existing debt operates as conditional payment thereof, and on the condition being performed by actual payment, the payment relates back to the time when the cheque or bill was given, and therefore when defendant sold to a company his business as existing on December 31, 1887, with the goodwill, stock-in-trade, and "all book and other debts due to the vendor in connection with the said business, and the full benefit of all securities for such debts;" and on January 1, 1888, had in his possession cheques and bills of exchange, given for trade debts, which had been received by him before that date and were subsequently honoured, Byrne, J., held that the trade debts, having been paid, did not pass to the company, and that the cheques and bills were not securities within the meaning of the agreement. Felix Hadley & Co. v. Hadley, (1898) 2 Ch. 680.

As to the stamp duty on book debts, see supra, p. 340.

Form 31.

Fifthly, the full benefit of all pending contracts and engagements to which the vendors are or may be entitled in connection with the said business.

Sixthly, all cash in hand and at the bank, and all bills and notes of the vendors in connection with the said business.

Seventhly, all other property to which the vendors are entitled in connection with the said business.

The above specification of the premises sold is given in considerable detail. If desired, it can be expressed more concisely, thus, "The goodwill of the said business and all the assets of the vendors in connection with such business"; but it is generally considered preferable to give some details. In the above clause all the assets of the vendors in connection with the business are included, but sometimes a sale only comprises certain specified assets, e.g., goodwill, freehold and leasehold hereditaments, plant, stock-in-trade, contracts, and engagements, thus leaving the vendors the cash, bills, notes, book debts, &c. Sometimes everything is sold, "except the book debts, belonging to the vendor, in connection with the said business, on the — day of —," and in such case it is not uncommon to insert a clause providing that, as regards the excepted book debts, the company shall use its best endeavours to collect the same. See Clause 12, infra.

As to the contract and return now required to be filed, where shares are allotted wholly or in part for a consideration other than cash, see the Companies Act, 1908, s. 88, and the notes thereto, supra, pp. 64, 65 et seq. Probably much of the case law on the repealed "cash payment section," sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, as to the statement of the consideration in the contract will apply to sect. 88 of the Act of 1908. The consequences of not complying with that section will of course be different from those of neglecting to comply with sect. 25.

There is an implied indemnity by the purchaser, as to contracts. Howater & Sons v. Mirror of Life Co., 50 W. R. 381.

As to vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money, see Stuckley v. Kekewich, (1906) 1 Ch. 67.

2. [Part of] the consideration for the said sale shall be the sum of £—, which shall be paid and satisfied as follows, viz.: As to the sum of £— in cash, and as to the sum of £— by the allotment to the vendors or their nominees of — fully paid-up [ordinary or preference] shares in the capital of the company of £— each, to be numbered — to — inclusive (and as to the sum of £— by the allotment to the

Consideration in cash and shares [and debentures or debenture stock]

Form 31. vendors or their nominees of £—— debentures [or debenture stock] of the coy carrying interest at the rate of —— p.c.p.a. as from the — day of ——].

If the allotment is to be made to nominees a supplemental contract constituting their title to allotment should be made before allotment, for it is doubtful whether a subsequently made contract can "constitute" their title.

The principal contract and the supplemental contract will have to be filed with the Registrar within one month after allotment (sect. 88 of the Act of 1908); in default the directors and other officials will incur heavy penalties.

Looking to sect. 83 of the Act of 1908, which provides that a company shall not prior to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting, it will often be desirable to give by the contract alternative modes of satisfying the consideration, for the adoption of an alternative is not a variation.

The consideration is sometimes wholly cash, and sometimes wholly paid-up, or partly paid-up shares (e.g., —— shares in the company of 10/. each, numbered, &c., with the sum of 7/. per share credited as paid up thereon), and sometimes wholly debentures or debenture stock, and sometimes part of the consideration is of each kind.

When part of the consideration is to be satisfied by debentures or debenture stock, the agreement should contain elsewhere a clause, as follows:—"The debentures aforesaid are to be framed in accordance with the forms set forth in the —— schedule hereto"; or "The debentures aforesaid, and the trust deed securing the same, are to be framed in accordance with the forms which, for the purpose of identification, have been subscribed by N., a solicitor of the Supreme Court"; or "The debenture stock aforesaid is to be constituted and secured by a trust deed framed in accordance, &c." Not uncommonly the consideration is a specified sum, "whereof £—— is to be paid in cash and the balance, £——, may be satisfied, at the option of the company, either in cash or as to the whole or any part [or parts] thereof by the allotment to the vendors or their nominees of fully paid-up shares in [or debentures of] the company, to be treated [respectively] as of par value." If the option is exercised in favour of an allotment of shares, it is desirable to execute before allotment, and in due course to file a supplemental contract, showing how many shares are thus to be issued and constituting the title of the allottees, so that the filed contract may show the aggregate and denoting numbers of the paid-up shares. See supra, p. 67, and sect. 88 (1) (b), supra, p. 64.

As to stating the consideration for the goodwill, sect. 81 of the Act of 1908, sub-sect. 1 (g), requires the prospectus to specify the amount payable for goodwill. In view of this it may be desirable to add to the above clause the words, "Of the said sum of £—— the sum of £—— is payable for the goodwill."

Consideration for stock-in-trade to be ascertained by valuation.

(2b. The consen for the sd stock-in-trade shall be such a sum as shall be certified by Messrs. —— of —— to be the fair value thof, or if any difficulty shall arise in obtaining their certificate, then a sum equal to the fair value of such ppty; and so that any difference in regard thereto shall be referred to the decision of two competent valuers, one to be appointed by the vendors and the other by the coy or by Messrs. —— of ——], and the submission may be made an order of the High Court. The consen moneys mentd in this clause are hnfr referred to as the valuation moneys.]

Sometimes the consideration for the stock-in-trade is dealt with separately, Form 31.

as above.

Where a purchase at a valuation of any considerable subject-matter is intended, it is desirable so to frame the contract that the valuation shall be a submission to arbitration within the Arbitration Act, 1889, otherwise serious loss and inconvenience may ensue.

An agreement to sell at a price to be fixed by valuers is not a submission to arbitration within the meaning of the Act, for there is no "difference" between the parties, and the Act only applies where the parties have agreed to submit present or future differences to arbitration. Collins v. Collins, 26 Beav. 306. Accordingly in that case the Court refused to appoint an umpire on the valuer's default. And where the Act does not apply the Court has no power to appoint a valuer in the place of one who dies, or refuses to act, or to remit the valuation where a mistake has been made. Where, however, the agreement is framed as above, these difficulties are avoided, for if the certificate of the named referee is not obtainable, the alternative provision arises, and any difference goes to arbitration. It is the more important to see that the Act will apply, because until the valuation has been effected the Court cannot enforce specific performance. Gourlay v. Duke of Somerset, 20 Ves. Jr. 430; Milnes v. Gery, 13 Beav. 1; Jekers v. Vickers, 4 Eq. 529; Tillett v. Charing, & Co., 26 Beav. 1; et v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 685; see also Fry on Specific Performance. Sometimes the contract provides that the difference "shall be referred to arbitration as hereinafter provided," and contains the usual arbitration clause. Infra, p. 367. See also as to what is a reference to arbitration, Bos v. Helsham, L. R. 2 Ex. 79; Richardson v. Smith, 5 Ch. 741; Smith v. Peters, 20 Eq. 511; Carrus Wilson, 18 Q. B. Div. 7; Hammond and Waterton's Arbitration, 62 L. T. 808; and Russell on Arbitration, 9th ed., pp. 44, 45.

3. As the residue of the consors for the sd sale, the coy shall undertake to pay, satisfy, discharge, and fulfil all the debts, liabilities, contracts and engagements of the vendors in relation to the sd business, and shall indemnify them against all proceedings, claims and demands in respect thereof.

As residue of consideration company to undertake vendor's liabilities.

Very commonly a clause as above is inserted, and the price is fixed accordingly, e.g., assets worth 130,000*l.*, and debts 30,000*l.*, therefore price 100,000*l.* But sometimes the full consideration is given for the assets, and the vendors clear off the debts and liabilities.

Sometimes it is provided that the debts and liabilities aforesaid shall be deemed to include any moneys owing to the vendors in respect of their private accounts with the firm.

As to the importance of providing for indemnity against claims and demands, see Warwick v. Richardson, 10 M. & W. 284; Taylor v. Chichester Rail. Co., L. R. 2 Ex. 390.

Where the premises are in the metropolis and within the area of the Gas Light and Coke Company, the purchasers are liable to that company for arrears of gas. Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Cannon Brewery Co., (1903) 1 K. B. 593.

As to stamp duty where payment is to be made as part of the consideration, see Swayne v. Inland Revenue, (1900) 1 Q. B. 172.

As to Deposit.—It is not usual to require a deposit when a new company is purchasing, but when a deposit is paid the purchaser has a lien if the purchase is determined without any default on his part. Whitbread & Co. v. Watt, (1902) 1 Ch. 835; Ridout v. Fowler, (1904) 1 Ch. 658.

Form 31.Commencement of title.

4. The title to the sd hereditaments shall commence—

- (a) As to the sd freehold hereditaments, with an indenture dated, &c., being a conveyance on sale to M.;
- (b) As to the sd several leasehold hereditaments, with the indentures of lease under which the same are held by the vendors;
- (c) As to the sd copyhold hereditaments, with a covenant to surrender on sale, and a surrender and admittance accordingly in the year ———.

And the coy shall not investigate or make any requisition or objection in respect of the prior title.

In an agreement for sale to a company of a going business, the title is generally looked into beforehand, and in such a case a clause (7c, infra) is commonly inserted that the title shall be accepted, but occasionally special conditions as to the title are made; their nature must depend on the circumstances. The Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, and the Conveyancing and Law of Property Acts, 1881, 1882, 1892 and 1911, must be borne in mind. Sect. 3 of the Act of 1881 does not, it seems, prevent a purchaser from raising an objection to the earlier title if it can be shown aliunde to be defective. Waddell v. Wolfe, L. R. 9 Q. B. 515; Broad v. Manton, 12 C. D. 131; Cox and Nere's case, (1891) 2 Ch. 109; Re Nisbet and Pott's Contract, (1905) 1 Ch. 391; but a condition that the purchaser shall not investigate the prior title as above is effective, and precludes such an objection. Home v. Bently, 5 De G. & S. 520; Nat. Prop. Bank and Marsh, (1895) 1 Ch. 190; Williams v. & P. 161. It does not, however, preclude objection in respect of a defect disclosed by the vendor. Smith v. Robinson, 13 C. D. 148.

And if the purchaser proves that the title is bad, or too doubtful, specific performance will not be ordered. In re Scott and Alvarez's Contract, (1895) 1 Ch. 593; 2 Ch. 603; Re Wallis and Barnard's Contract, (1899) 2 Ch. 515; Re Hughes and Ashley's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 595, 602; Nichols and Van Joel's Contract, (1910) 1 Ch. 43.

As to the effect of losing title deeds, see Halifax Commercial Bank and Wood, 47 W. R. 194, and Dart v. & P., 7th ed. 156.

Special conditions of sale.

(4a. It shall be assumed [here state any required assumptions], e.g., that A. B., a former owner of the freehold, died intestate, and without issue.)

A vendor is not entitled to rely on such a condition when he knows that the assumption is contrary to the fact (Broad v. Manton, Re Banister, 12 C. D. 131; Re Marsland Granville, 24 Ch. D. 17); but if he believes the assumption to be correct, he is entitled to rely on the provision. Sandbach and Edmondson, (1891) 1 Ch. 99; Blairg v. Kewes, (1906) 2 Ch. 175.

What incumbrances.

5. The sd premises are sold free from all incumbrances [except the mortgages specified or referred to in the ——— schedule hto], but as regards the freeholds, subject to all quit, chief and other rents affecting the same, and as regards the leaseholds, the rents and covenants contained in the leases or agreements for leases under which the same are held, and as regards the copyholds subject to the customs of the several manors under which they are held, and as regards all such hereditaments to all rights of way, light, and other easements, if any, affecting the same resply, and to all existing leases and tenancies, and agreements therefor.

Form 31.

On the sale of a lease the vendor should disclose the existence of unusual and onerous covenants. Molyneux v. Hawtrey, (1903) 2 K. B. 487.

As to the inquiries to be made when the mortgage moneys are stated to belong to the mortgagors upon a joint account, see Re Blumberg and Abraham, (1899) 2 Ch. 340.

6. No further or other evidence shall be required of the identity of any of the sd hereditaments with the ppty to which title is shown by the abstract besides such evidence, if any, as may be gathered from the descriptions in the documents abstracted.

Identity of parcels.

This may require to be supplemented in some cases, e.g., by provision for a statutory declaration, and in others it may be omitted altogether.

7. The description of the sd several hereditaments is believed, and should be correct; but if any error should be found therein, the same, if capable of compensation, shall not annul the sale, but a fair compensation shall be allowed by the vendors in respect thereof.

Description of parcels.

Description here means description of the corporeal property, not of the title. Beyfus v. Masters, 39 C. D. 110; Debenham v. Searbridge, (1901) 2 Ch. 98. It can, of course, be extended to the title. Such a provision does not prevent the vendors from avoiding payment by nulling the contract under a clause like 7b. Ashburner v. Newell, (1891) 3 Ch. 405; Dart, V. & P. 7th ed. 177, 178.

Under such a clause compensation may be enforced after conveyance as well as before (Palmer v. Johnson, 13 Q. B. D. 351; Clayton v. Leech, 41 Ch. D. 103); but the words "provided the same is claimed before conveyance," can be added.

As to the effect of similar words, see Leyland and Taylor's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 625; Curlish v. Salt, (1906) 1 Ch. 335. The authorities as to conditions as to compensation were reviewed by Buckley, J., in Jacobs v. Revell, (1900) 2 Ch. 858; and see Re Nisbet and Pott's Contract, (1905) 1 Ch. 391; and Shepherd v. Croft, (1910) 1 Ch. 521. As to the jurisdiction to enforce specific performance with compensation in the absence of a condition on the subject, see Rudd v. Lascelles, (1900) 1 Ch. 814.

Such a condition does not, as a rule, apply to defects in title. Debenham v. Searbridge, (1901) 2 Ch. 98.

7a. The coy shall make its objections and requisitions, if any, in respect of the vendors' title to any of the sd hereditaments, and all matters appearing in any abstract or muniment of title, or this agreement, and send the same to Messrs. —, the vendors' solors, at No. —, — Street, &c., within — days from the delivery of the abstracts, and in default of such objections and requisitions, if none.

Requisition on title, &c.

Form 31. and subject to such, if any, shall be deemed to have accepted the title.]

Very commonly upon a sale to a company, the agreement does not contain any provision as to requisitions or objections; and where the title is accepted (as in clause 7c, infra), this clause will be omitted.

Power of annulment where company persists in objections.

7b. If the coy shall make [or shall insist] on any requisition or objection as to title, conveyance, or otherwise, which the vendors shall be unable, or on the ground of expense, delay, or otherwise, shall be unwilling to comply with, the vendors may, notwithstanding any previous negotiation or litigation, by notice in writing determine this agreement [except as to clause 13a *h*of], without giving rise to any claim for expense or otherwise.]

In the case of a sale to a company, the agreement very commonly contains no provision or clause as above mentioned, for the title in many cases is investigated beforehand, and even when this is not done this clause is commonly omitted, especially where the company is at once going to the public for subscriptions, for it would be highly inconvenient if, after floating the company, the vendor was in a position to rescind.

As to the operation of the clause, it is well settled that it is effective, and that a vendor is not bound to assign any reason for rescission. Re Glenton and Saunders to Haden, 53 L. T. 434 (C. A.). There is a difference between "making" and "insisting" in such a clause. In the one case, the vendor may rescind on delivery of the requisitions (Ntarr-Bowkett, 42 C. D. 375), but in the other case the power to rescind does not arise until the purchaser not only makes, but insists. See Re Glenton and Saunders, ubi supra.

A power to rescind must be exercised within a reasonable time and in good faith. Smith v. Wallace, (1895) 1 Ch. 385; Maryden v. Samson, 28 W. R. 954; Quinion v. Horne, (1906) 1 Ch. 596.

A condition of sale empowering the vendor to annul the sale, if the purchaser makes any objection or requisition "as to the title, particulars, conditions, or any other matter or thing relating or incidental to the sale," which the vendor is unable or unwilling to comply with, extends to a matter of conveyance as well as of title.

The ordinary condition of sale giving the vendor a power of rescission applies only where he has some title, not where he has none, or none to part of the property. In re Deighton and Harris's Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 459; Jackson and Haden's Contract, (1906) 1 Ch. 412.

Where property was sold under conditions empowering the vendor by notice to rescind the sale if any objection should be insisted on which he should be unable to remove, "notwithstanding any intermediate negotiation," and providing that on rescission the purchaser should be entitled to receive back his deposit without interest or costs, and the condition was silent as to intermediate litigation, and the purchaser insisted on an objection that the particulars misrepresented that the property was freehold, and that the title shown was only to a term under an underlease; and on this ground commenced an action on November 30, 1896, for rescission, return of his deposit, and payment of the expenses of investigation as to the title, and before further proceedings were taken the vendor, on December 4, 1896, gave the purchaser notice of the rescission of the contract, and offered to repay the deposit, and it was held that no misrepresentation was made out. Byrne, J., held that the notice was in time, and that the purchaser was only entitled to a return of his deposit without interest, and to the costs of the action up to the time of the receipt of the notice to rescind, and that he must pay the defendant's costs as from that date. Isaacs v. Tinsell, (1898) 2 Ch. 285.

Form 31.

Sub-sect. 6, sect. 3, of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 does not affect the ordinary right of a purchaser to have the title-deeds handed over to him on completion, and the mere fact that obtaining the deeds for this purpose may cause the vendor trouble and expense is no answer to the purchaser's demand.

On an open contract the vendor must bear the expense of obtaining title-deeds required by the purchaser to be handed over on completion, although such title-deeds are not in the vendor's possession, and are not referred to in the abstract. Dutby and Jenson's Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 41.

On the sale of the lease of a public-house the contract fixed a day for completion, and the plaintiff, the purchaser, paid a deposit to the defendants as stakeholders. It was a term of the contract that the deposit should be forfeited if the purchaser refused to perform his part of the agreement. Before the date fixed for completion the vendor committed an act of bankruptcy. This came to the notice of the purchaser, who thereupon refused to complete, and demanded the return of the deposit; and the Court of Appeal held that though the contract for sale was protected by sect. 49 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, the assignment and the payment of the purchase-money, in pursuance of the contract but after notice of the act of bankruptcy, would not have been protected, and that the purchaser was therefore not bound to complete, and was entitled to recover the deposit. Poole v. Marshall, Purkes & Co., (1899) 1 Q. B. 710; Hart, V. & P., 7th ed. 295.

7c. The coy shall, without [further] investigation, objection, or requisition, accept such title as the vendors have to the sd premises hereby agreed to be sold. Unreserved acceptance of title.

Where the title has been already investigated, or is well known, a clause as above is very common, and in the case of a private company it is generally used.

8. The purchase shall be completed on the — day of —, at the office, No. —, — Street, London, of Messrs. —, the vendors' solicitors, when possession of the premises shall, as far as practicable, be given to the coy, and the monies so far as the same consists of cash and shares [and debentures] shall be paid and satisfied subject to the provisions of this agreement, and thereupon the vendors and all other necessary parties, if any, shall at the expense of the coy execute and do all assurances and things for vesting the sd premises in the coy, and giving to it the full benefit of this agreement as shall be reasonably required. Completion of purchase.

As to the costs of obtaining a mortgagee's concurrence, see Willett and Argenti, W. N. (1889) 66; 60 L. T. 735; distinguished in Sander and Walford's Contract, W. N. (1900) 183.

9. If from any cause whatever other than the wilful default of the vendors the purchase shall not be completed on the sd — day of —, Interest on cash consideration if

Form 31.

purchase not completed on fixed day

—, the coy shall pay interest on the sd sum of £— cash at the rate of — p.c.p.a. until the purchase shall be completed.

Where completion was delayed by the vendor going abroad, it was held to be wilful default on his part. Young and Harston's Contract, 31 C. D. 168, discussed in Bennett v. Stone, (1902) 1 Ch. 226. Deliberate neglect by a vendor may amount to wilful default (Wilson and Stevens' Contract, (1894) 3 Ch. 546); the vendor's inability to procure concurrence of necessary parties may be wilful default (Hetting and Merton's Contract, (1893) 3 Ch. 269; distinguished in Re Wood and Lewis' Contract, (1898) 2 Ch. 211, and Earl of Strafford v. Maples, (1896) 1 Ch. 235); and so also may neglect to deliver abstract through misunderstanding the contract (Pelly and Jacobs' Contract, 80 L. T. 45), or an unreasonable refusal to approve the form of conveyance. Bennett v. Stone, (1903) 1 Ch. 509.

In Young and Harston's Contract, supra, Bowen, L. J., said: " 'Default' is a purely relative term, just like negligence; it means nothing more, nothing less, than not doing what is reasonable under the circumstances, not doing something which you ought to do, having regard to the relations which you occupy towards the other person interested in the transaction."

Delay in completion by the day fixed, occasioned by the time occupied in remedying a defect in the vendor's title which was not and could not be known to him at the time of entering into the contract, is not attributable to a "default" on his part so as to prevent interest running against the purchaser under a clause for payment of interest by the purchaser "if from any cause whatever other than the default of the vendor" the purchase should not be completed by the day fixed. In re Woods and Lewis' Contract, (1898) 1 Ch. 483; affirmed, (1898) 2 Ch. 211; and see Bennett v. Stone, supra. Interest will run if the real cause of delay is the purchaser's inability to pay. London (Mayor) and Tubbs, (1894) 2 Ch. 524. And the vendor's repudiation of the contract by resisting the purchaser's claim to specific performance does not necessarily constitute such "wilful default" as to disentitle him to interest. North v. Percival, (1898) 2 Ch. 128. See also Bayley-Worthington and Cohen's Contract, (1909) 1 Ch. 648, in which all the cases were considered.

Consents of landlords as to assignment of leaseholds, or in default declaration of trust for
company.

10. Divers of the leaseholds specified in the — schedule hto are only assignable with the consent of the landlords from whom the same resply are held. The vendors shall use their best endeavours to obtain the requisite consents for the assignment thereof to the coy, and in any case where such consents cannot conveniently be obtained the vendors shall at the option of the coy execute a declaration of trust of the premises in favour of the coy, or otherwise deal with the same as the coy shall direct.

Where the sale comprises leaseholds, the terms of the leases must be carefully considered, and the agreement must be framed accordingly. If the covenant is merely against assignment, a demise for the whole term (less one day) is allowable; and so is an equitable assignment (Gentle v. Faulkner, (1900) 2 Q. B. 267); and if there is a covenant against assignment and sub-letting, a declaration of trust may be available; and if there is a covenant only against sub-letting, that does not include assigning. Doyle and O'Hara's Contract (1899), 1 Ir. Rep. 113. But if there is a covenant also against parting with possession, very special expedients are required.

Form 31.

A limited company may be a "respectable and responsible person" within the meaning of a covenant not to assign without the consent of the lessor (such consent not to be withheld in the case of a "respectable and responsible person." Willmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 525, overruling on this point Harrison, Ainslie & Co. v. Barrow-in-Furness Corp., 63 L. T. 84.

A breach of the covenant not to assign, &c. may give the lessor the right to re-enter (Harman v. Ainslie, (1904) 1 K. B. 698; Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 14); even at the suit of an assignee of the equity of redemption. Matthews v. Usher, 81 L. T. 542; Molyneux v. Richard, (1906) 1 Ch. 34. Production of a receipt for the last rent due is not conclusive evidence that the covenants have been performed. Highett and Bird's Contract, (1903) 1 Ch. 287; explained Tillen and Driscoll's Contract, (1904) 2 Ch. 226.

No action lies for refusing to give the consent. Sear v. House Property and Investment Society, 10 C. D. 387; Goodwin v. Saturley, 16 T. L. R. 437.

Where there is a covenant against assignment without consent, and consent is refused on grounds which are not obviously unreasonable, the title will not be forced on an unwilling purchaser. Marshall and Salt's Contract, (1900) 2 Ch. 202. But the Court will not allow unreasonable conditions. Young v. Ashley Gardens Properties, (1903) 2 Ch. 112; Jenkins v. Price, (1907) 2 Ch. 229; S. C., (1908) 1 Ch. 10, C. A. The covenant not to assign runs with the land. McEacharn v. Colton, (1902) A. C. 104; Woodfall, L. & T. (18th ed.) 753.

Where the vendor induces the landlord to refuse consent, the purchaser may have the contract rescinded and damages against the vendor. Day v. Singleton, (1899) 2 Ch. 320, C. A.; dist. Pease v. Courtney, (1904) 2 Ch. 503.

The Court has no power, under sect. 14 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, to relieve against forfeiture for breach of covenant not to assign or underlet. Nor can the Court relieve on the ground of mistake, even when an assignment or sub-lease is made in forgetfulness of the covenant (Barrow v. Isaacs, (1891) 1 Q. B. 417); or because it is thought to be unimportant. Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, (1899) 1 Q. B. 835. See also Dymock v. Showell's Brewery Co., 15 T. L. R. 13.

The leases under which the leasehold portions of the premises are held have already been submitted for the inspection of the coy, and accordingly the coy is to be deemed to have notice of the contents thereof.]

Unless otherwise provided, a purchaser of leaseholds is not, prior to completion, fixed with constructive notice of unusual and onerous provisions in the lease. Reeve v. Berridge, 20 Q. B. D. 523; White and Smith's Contract, 1896) 1 Ch. 637.

And see sect. 3 (1) of the Conveyancing Act, 1882, and Molyneux v. Hawtrey, 1903) 2 K. B. 487.

As to registered leaseholds, see Voss and Saunders' Contract, 103 L. T. 493.

[10a. As regards any of the premises subject to mortgages which cannot be paid off until after the time for completion, the vendors shall if so required by the coy, convey the same to the coy subject to the mortgages affecting the same respdy, and the coy shall be at liberty to retain out of the cash portion of the sd consen a sum sufficient to pay off and satisfy in full all claims under such mortgages.]

As to mortgages.

Form 31.

This clause will, of course, only be required if the vendors purport to sell free from the mortgages, and arrangements in such a case are generally made for clearing off the mortgages without delay.

Vendor to discharge liabilities not undertaken by company.

10b. Save as hitherto provided, the vendors shall pay, satisfy, and discharge all their debts and liabilities in connection with the sd business as on the — day of —, and shall indemnify the coy against all proceedings, claims, and demands in respect thereof.]

The insertion of this clause depends, of course, on whether the company or is not to undertake all debts and liabilities.

Possession to be retained by vendors until completion, and they to carry on business, &c. for company.

11. The possession of the sd premises shall be retained by the vendors up to the sd — day of —, and in the meantime they shall carry on the sd business in the same manner as heretofore, so as to maintain the same as a going concern, and they shall from the date hof [or as from the — day of —] be deemed to [have been and to] be carrying on such business on behalf of the coy, and shall account and be entitl to be indemnified accordingly.

As to capitalising interim profits.

Where a business is purchased it is very common to make the purchase from a past date [e.g., the date of the last balance sheet, made, perhaps, some months previously]; the desire being that the company shall take the profits as from that date, and be able to declare dividends as if it had carried on business from that date. There is, however, serious difficulty in giving effect to such desire, for the interim profits, when acquired, represent so much capital expended by the company, and therefore constitute part of the capital assets of the company, and to apply the same in paying dividend would be to pay a dividend out of capital, for the amount of which the directors would be personally responsible.

Sometimes the interim profits are excepted, e.g., by inserting a clause expressly providing that "there shall be excepted from the sale the profits of the business made between the 30th August last and the date hereof, and the profits of the business for the year ending the 30th August next shall be ascertained in due course, and the vendors shall in satisfaction of the said excepted profits accept a sum bearing the same ratio to the year's profits as the period aforesaid bears to the year." Of course, there is nothing to prevent the vendor, when profits are so excepted, from (subsequently to the agreement) assigning the same to the company by way of donation, on the footing that they are to be placed to the credit of the first year's profit and loss account, or to reserve. And this has sometimes been done.

Vendor not to carry on similar business.

12. The vendor shall covenant with the coy that he will not at any time hereafter, either solely or jointly with, or as manager or agent for, any other person or persons, or coy, directly or indirectly, carry on, or be engaged, or concerned, or interested in the business of a — —, or permit or suffer his name to be used or employed in carrying on or in connection with any such business, within 100 miles of the sd leasehold premises, save so far as the vendor shall as a member of the coy be interested, or as an officer or servant or agent of the coy be employed, in the business of the coy: And in case the vendor shall commit any breach of the foregoing stipulation, he shall pay to the coy [immediately on every such breach] the sum of £—, as liquidated damages in respect thereof.] Form 31. Liquidated damages.

In the absence of a stipulation to the contrary such as the above, the vendor of the goodwill of a business may set up a similar business, either in the same neighbourhood or elsewhere; but he may not solicit the customers of the old business. See Trego v. Hunt, (1896) A. C. 7, which in part overruled Pearson v. Pearson, 27 C. D. 145, and restored Labouchere v. Dawson, 13 Eq. 322; Gillingham v. Beddow, (1900) 2 Ch. 242. The rule in Trego v. Hunt applies to all persons who were customers prior to the sale, and is not limited so as to exclude persons who, before solicitation, became of their own accord the vendor's customers. Curl Bros., Ltd. v. Webster, (1904) 1 Ch. 685. And where the business is sold or disposed of, this rule will operate for the benefit of the purchaser, although goodwill is not specifically mentioned, for a vendor cannot on principle derogate from his grant. Jennings v. Jennings, (1898) 1 Ch. 378; David and Matthews, (1899) 1 Ch. 378. And see Macfarlane v. Dumbarton Steamboats Co., 36 Sc. L. R. 771.

This state of things, however, is not in general sufficient protection; hence the need for a clause as above. The benefit of such a provision is assignable with the business (Baines v. Geary, 35 C. D. 154; Wright v. Chappell, 17 W. R. 655), and may pass with the goodwill (Jacoby v. Whitmore, 32 W. R. 18), unless the covenant appears to be merely personal. Davies v. Davies, 36 C. D. 559.

Although a general covenant not to carry on business in competition with the purchaser would not be valid (see Trego v. Hunt, (1896) A. C. 7, 27), yet an agreement by the vendor of a business not to carry on a similar business is valid, provided that it does not go beyond what is reasonably necessary for the protection of the purchaser (Mitchell v. Reynolds, 1 Sm. L. C. 391; Badinche Anilin v. Schott, (1892) 3 Ch. 447; Nordenfelt v. Maxim Nordenfelt Co., (1894) A. C. 535; Underwood v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300; Tivoli, Manchester, Ltd. v. Colley, 52 W. R. 632; Lamson Pneumatic Tube Co. v. Phillips, W. N. (1904) 134; 91 L. T. 363 (eastern hemisphere); Stuart v. Halstead, 55 S. J. 598), and is to be construed according to the intention. Moerich v. Fenestre, 67 L. T. 708.

The old rule that a restraint unlimited in space was void has been relaxed, and the restraint may be world-wide if the circumstances justify so wide a restraint. See Nordenfelt v. Maxim Nordenfelt Co., supra; Underwood and Sons v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300. The test is what is reasonably necessary for the protection of the covenantee. Reasonableness is a question for the Court.

A covenant by a newspaper reporter not to be connected with any other newspaper within twenty miles, not too wide. Sir W. G. Leng & Co. v. Andrews, (1909) 1 Ch. 768 (C. A.).

A covenant in restraint of trade, which is not wider than is reasonably required for the protection of the covenantee, will not be held void on any ground of public policy, unless some specific ground so holding it void can be clearly established. But such cases are exceptional. Underwood and Sons v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300. And the covenant is not necessarily bad because it purports to restrain the covenantor during the whole of his life. Haynes v. Doman, (1899) 2 Ch. 13; Hood & Moore's Stores v. Jones, 81 L. T. 169; Lamson Pneumatic Tube v. Phillips, 91 L. T. 363. Especially when the covenantor is a servant. Marshall, Ltd. v. Leek, 17 T. L. R. 26. As to an infant covenantor, see Hooper v. Willis, 94 L. T. 624; and Leng v. Andrews, (1909) 1 Ch. 703.

Form 31.

A covenant not to carry on within (say) the United Kingdom is not divisible, that is to say: if it is too wide a restraint it is void altogether, although if confined to London or some other specified district it would have been valid. But a covenant may be framed so as to be divisible, e.g., "Not to carry on in London or within 100 miles or within 300 or within 500, or within the United Kingdom." If the reasonableness of such restraint is called in question the Court may hold it valid in part and void as to the rest, e.g., valid as to London and 100, and void as to the rest, for it is divisible. See Price v. Green, 16 M. & W. 346; Davies, Turner & Co. v. Lowen, 64 L. T. 655; Badische Anilin, & Co. v. Schott, (1892) 3 C. D. 447. But unless the provision is thus alternatively expressed it may be impossible to divide the good from the bad. Baker v. Hedgecock, 39 C. D. 520; Ehrman v. Bartholomew, (1898) 1 Ch. 671. For an example of a severable agreement, see William Robinson & Co. v. Heuer, (1898) 2 Ch. 451.

Each case is to be separately considered with due regard to its circumstances, and accordingly the greatest care must be taken not to make the restraint too wide, as otherwise it may be totally ineffective. Thus a restraint is unreasonable and void if it goes beyond what is required, e.g., if the business is that of a brewer and the vendor is restrained not only from carrying on such business, but any other business. Perle v. Saalfeld, (1892) 2 Ch. 149, C. A.; but see Woodbridge v. Bellamy, (1911) 1 Ch. 326.

A contract, though too wide as regards space, may be held valid if it only prohibits the use of the old name. Vernon v. Hallam, 34 Ch. D. 748; White, Tomkins and Courage v. Wilson, 23 T. L. R. 449.

A contract "not to carry on" does not, in all cases, prevent the vendor from acting merely as manager or agent for another. Allen v. Taylor, 19 W. R. 35; 24 L. T. 249. But see Palmer v. Mallett, 36 C. Div. 411, and Robertson v. Willmott, 25 T. L. R. 683.

The words "permit or suffer" import knowledge. Somerset v. Wade (1894), 42 W. R. 399.

"Not to be interested" imports a pecuniary interest, and does not touch the case of a vendor's wife or relations setting up and carrying on business. Handbury v. Cundy, 58 L. T. 155. And see Cade v. Calfe, 22 T. L. R. 243, and Gophir Diamond Co. v. Wood, (1902) 1 Ch. 950.

"Not to be interested or concerned" prohibits acting as manager or servant (Jones v. Heavens, 4 C. D. 636; Newling v. Dobell, 19 L. T. 408; Hill & Co. v. Hill, 55 L. T. 769), and being interested as a shareholder in a rival company's business. Wright v. Chappell, 17 W. R. 655; Castelli v. Middleton, 17 T. L. R. 373 (1901). But see Cory & Son v. Harrison, (1906) A. C. 274.

"Not to solicit within" or "do any work or act for, &c. within" the specified district, prohibits soliciting by letter posted beyond the district. Callard v. Taylor, 3 T. L. R. 698; Edmundson v. Render, W. N. (1905) 121. And soliciting within the district may, at any rate if it is at all systematic, amount to a breach of contract not to carry on business within that district. Turner v. Evans, 2 Ell. & B. 512. But "not to act as agent within" the district may allow acting beyond the district for a firm acting within. Fairbrother v. England, 40 W. R. 220.

"Not to sell below certain prices." Elliman v. Carrington, (1901) 2 Ch. 275; National Phonograph Co. v. Edison Bell Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 335; McGrutter v. Pilcher, (1904) 2 Ch. 306.

Distances in such contracts are measured as the crow flies. Moufflet v. Cole, L. R. 8 Ex. 32.

If the restraint is from trading at a particular place, which is, say, a borough or any place within so many miles of it, the distance is measured from the borough boundary, and not from the centre of the town. Cattle v. Thorpe, W. N. (1900) 83.

"Not to compete directly or indirectly within the district," prohibits dealing with persons within the district. Rogers v. Drury, 36 W. R. 496. Form 31.

The "neighbourhood" has been held to mean the immediate neighbourhood. Stride v. Martin, 77 L. T. 600.

Wrongful discharge releases a servant from his covenant. General Bill Posting Co. v. Atkinson, (1908) 1 Ch. 537.

Occasionally the vendor contracts to deal exclusively with the company. Thus, in the case of the vendor of a brewery being the proprietor of a hotel which he retains, a covenant is inserted that the vendor, his heirs and assignees, will purchase their beer from the company alone or its successors in business. Such a covenant is not void as being in restraint of trade (see Cutt v. Tourle, 4 Ch. App. 654; Clegg v. Hands, 44 C. Div. 503; Birmingham Breweries v. Jameson, W. N. (1898) 15, 145; 67 L. J. Ch. 403; 78 L. T. 512), and runs with the land, and the successors in business need not be brewing at the same brewery as the original covenantee. Manchester Brewery Co. v. Coombs, 82 L. T. 347; (1901) 2 Ch. 608.

As to liquidated damages: the object and intention of such a provision is to assess the damages prospectively, so that if the covenant is broken the covenantee shall be entitled on proof of the breach to the amount thus assessed, without being called on by witnesses or otherwise to prove the actual damage sustained: but it has been held that, even when the contract expressly declares the amount fixed to be payable as liquidated damages, the context may impliedly negative this intention, and where the amount fixed is made payable in several events of varying importance, the Court regards that circumstance as cogent evidence that the words are not to be read in their prima facie sense. Kemble v. Farren, 6 Bing. 1; Dodd v. Churton, (1897) 1 Q. B. 562; Strickland v. Williams, (1899) 1 Q. B. 382, 384; secus where payable in one event; Law v. Local Board of Redditch, (1892) 1 Q. B. 127.

Accordingly, it is in some cases expedient to add further words emphasizing the intention, e.g., "it being the intention that the said sum shall in every such case be paid as agreed compensation for such breach of covenant, and without any need to prove, and irrespective of, the actual damages sustained."

The Court could not well override this, for "to construe is nothing more than to arrive at the meaning of the parties as expressed in the language they have used." Scott v. Corporation of Liverpool, 3 De G. & J. 360.

A provision for payment of liquidated damages does not preclude the other party from obtaining an injunction. National Provincial Bank v. Marshall, 40 C. D. 112.

But according to Wright, J., the covenantee cannot have both the damages and the injunction, but must elect between the two remedies. General Accident Assurance Corp. v. Webster, (1902) 1 K. B. 377.

As to release of the covenantor's obligations where the company goes into liquidation. Measures Bros. v. Measures, (1910) 1 Ch. 336; and see General Bill Posting Co. v. Atkins, (1909) A. C. 118.

[12a. Of the conson asfd, £— is the conson for the sale of the goods, chattels, moneys, and other effects capable of manual delivery and forming part of the purchased ppty.] Apportionment of stamp duty.

The Revenue authorities will not always accept a provision as above, and vendors very commonly prefer not to disclose the apportionment in a filed contract. And see in Wragg, (1897) 1 Ch. 796, where an apportionment clause led to onerous litigation.

12b. All books of account of the firm, and all books of reference to customers, and all other books and documents of the said firm (except Books of account)

Form 31.

such as relate exclusively to the private affairs of the said firm or the individual members thereof, shall be delivered by the vendors to the coy on possession being given of the premises, pursuant to the provision in that behalf hnbefore contained, and the coy shall thenceforth, subject to the following proviso, be entld to the custody thereof, and to the use thereof for the purpose of carrying on its business; but the vendors shall have free access, at all reasonable times, to such of the sd books and documents as show or relate to the outstanding book debts and credits of the vendors, or may otherwise be requisite for enabling the vendors to collect and get in the assets of the sd firm not hby agreed to be sold, and to liquidate the affairs thereof; nevertheless, when and so soon as any of the sd books of reference and other books shall cease to be necessary for the carrying on of the sd business, the same shall be delivered over to the vendors, who shall thereupon become absolutely entld thereto.]

This and the next following clause are occasionally inserted.

Accommodation in office to be given to vendors.

12c. The vendors shall be entld to such accommodation as they may reasonably require in the counting-house of the coy, in the sd leasehold premises, for the purpose of collecting the book and other debts due to the vendors in respect of the sd business and liquidating the affairs thereof; and the vendors shall make all such book and other debts payable at the sd premises, and at no other place, the object being to secure the continued resort of the customers of the sd firm to the sd premises, and so to give to the coy the full benefit of the goodwill of the sd business.]

Vendor guarantees book debts.

12d. The vendor guarantees that the book debts included in the sale a/sd shall in the aggregate produce the sum of £—, being the amount at which they are included in the sale, and unless they shall within the period of twelve calendar months from the date hereof produce that sum, the vendor shall, if so required by the coy, pay to the coy a sum sufficient to make good the deficiency, and he shall thereupon be entld to the uncollected book debts a/sd.]

The above is sometimes inserted.

Company to collect book debts.

[12e. The coy shall collect, on behalf of the vendor, all the book debts of the vendor excepted from the sale hby agreed to be made, and in doing so the coy shall act under the direction of the vendor, and shall, once a month, account to the vendor for all moneys so collected, less all expenses of collection; and for the purposes of facilitating such collection, the vendor shall do whatever the coy may reasonably require, and the coy shall not be responsible for any losses in the course of the collection a/sd.]

As to this clause, see supra, p. 347.

12f. Each of the vendors shall, if he shall so long live, retain and hold in his own name the whole of the shares to be allotted to him pursuant to clause 5 hof for a period of six calendar month. from the allotment thof, and shall retain and hold in his own name at least 75 p.c. of the sd shares for a period of five years from the time of such allotment.]

Form 31.

Vendors to hold shares for certain period.

Such a clause as the above is occasionally inserted.

13. The coy shall, subject to the consent of the office and to the completion of the purchase, be entld to the benefit of the current insurance of the premises.

Benefit of insurance.

Prima facie, a purchaser is not, in the event of fire, entitled to repudiate the contract or to any reduction in the purchase-money (Paine v. Meller, 6 Ves. 349), nor is he entitled to the benefit of any insurance effected by the vendor (Rayner v. Preston, 18 C. D. 1); and if a fire occurs, and the vendor obtains the insurance money, and is subsequently paid the purchase-money, he must recoup the office, for his only right is to indemnity (Castellain v. Preston, 11 Q. B. D. 380); even if the vendor, on recovering the insurance money, reduced the purchase-money pro tanto, he would be accountable for the amount to the office. West of England Fire Co. v. Isaacs, (1897) 1 Q. B. 226. No doubt, indirectly, the purchaser may, in some cases, be enabled to get the benefit of the insurance by calling on the office to reinstate under 14 Geo. 3. c. 78, s. 83; but, notwithstanding Ex parte Gorely, 4 De G. J. & S. 477, it is doubtful whether that Act applies beyond the bills of mortality. See dicta in Westminster Fire Office v. Glas., &c. Soc., 13 App. Cas. 714, 716. In the result the proper course is for the purchaser, immediately on the execution of the contract, to make arrangements with the insurance office, and the above clause leaves him free to do this.

13a. The vendors shall pay all the costs of, and incidental to, the preparation and execution of this agreemt, and of the memdum and arts of asson of the coy, and of the registration thof, and of all stamps, fees, and legal expenses, incident to the formation of the coy, and generally all preliminary expenses whatever incurred in relation to the coy down to the first general allotment of shares, or to the time when the directors determine not to proceed to allotment.]

Preliminary and other expenses to be borne by vendors.

Sometimes this clause is varied so as only to cover costs up to incorporation, and very commonly no such provision is made.

The clause means all the reasonable costs, &c. which a prudent man would incur in the matter. Malvern Urban District Council v. Malvern Link Gas Co., 83 L. T. 326, 328.

A promoter can only recover from the company what he has paid in preliminary expenses where he proves a contract by the company to pay. English and Colonial Producers Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 435; National Motor Mail Coach, (1908) 2 Ch. 515.

Form 31.

Validity not to be impeached

13b. The validity of this agreemt shall not be impeached on the ground that the vendors, as promoters or otherwise, stand in a fiduciary relation to the coy, and that the directors, having accepted office at their request, do not constitute an independent board.]

A clause as above is sometimes inserted, and may have some operation (Postage Stamp Automatic Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 566); but it should be made to fit the circumstances, e.g., if one of the directors is to receive a payment from the vendor or is interested as a partner or shareholder in the vendor company, let the facts be disclosed here and the clause provide that he is not to be accountable. The clause is no use unless it covers the particular case. See Olympia, Ltd., (1898) 2 Ch. 153, 157, 168; and p. 132, supra; and cf. Brazilian Rubber Plantations (No. 1), (1911) 1 Ch. 425.

Determination if shares not sufficiently
subscribed

14. Unless before the — day of — the coy shall have become entld to commence business, either of the parties hto may by notice in writing to the other determine this agreemt except as to clause 13a hof, but such determination shall not give rise to any claim for compensation, expenses or otherwise.

This clause is inserted to meet the contingency of the company not becoming entitled to commence business under sect. 87 of the Companies Act, 1908; it will, therefore, of course be omitted in the case of private companies.

Service of notices.

15. Any notice hereunder may be served on the vendors by sending the same through the post, addressed to them at No. —, — Street, —, and shall be deemed to have been served within twenty-four hours after the same is posted.

It would seem that notice might in the absence of such a clause be given by post. James v. Institute of Chartered Accountants, 98 L. T. 225.

This agreement to take effect as an English contract.

Appointment
of agent in England to represent vendors for legal processes, &c

[15a. This agreemt is to be construed and take effect as a contract made in England, and in accordance with the law of England, and the vendors hby submit to the jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice in England, and hby appoint the — Bank, Limtd, and every clerk for the time being of that coy, to be the agent in London of the vendors for the purpose of accepting service on behalf of the vendors resply of any writ, notice, order, judgment, or other legal process or document in respect of any matter arising out of this agreemt, and such appointment shall not be revocable, and service of any such document on such appointee shall be deemed to be good service on the vendors for all purposes, and the vendors elect domicile at the registered office of the sd bank.]

Where the vendor is a foreigner, a clause as above may be desirable, see p. 343, supra. Such a clause is effective, and cannot be revoked. Tharsis, &c. Co. v. Société, &c. des Métaux, 58 L. J. Q. B. 435; approved by the Court of Appeal in Montgomery v. Liebenthal, (1898) 1 Q. B. 487; Copin v. Adamson, 1 Ex. D. 17.

It does not offend against the rule that the parties cannot contract that the Court shall have a jurisdiction not given by Order XI. r. 1. British Wagon v. Gray, (1896) 1 Q. B. 35. Form 31.

16. The coy shall cause this agreemt to be duly filed with the Registrar of Companies pursuant to sect. 88 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and also, in the case of shares allotted to the vendors' nominees, shall cause a sufficient contract to be so filed constituting the title of such nominees. Agreement to be filed

Where the agreement provides for the issue of paid-up or partly paid-up shares, a clause as above is useful as a reminder.

If there is to be an invitation to the public to subscribe for shares, a contract like the above should contain a new clause to the effect that—

[17. This agreemt is provisional only, and is not to become absolute unless and until the coy has become entld to commence business.]

See sect. 87 of the Act of 1908, supra, p. 20.

AS WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULES ABOVE REFERRED TO.

Special Clauses in Vendors' Agreements.

Upon payment of the cash portion of the purchase-money the vendor shall enter into a covenant with the coy for the benefit of the members thof, guaranteeing that the net profits of the coy in respect of the sd business during each of the three years next following the — day of — next shall amount to not less than [10] p.c.p.a. on the pd-up capital of the coy not exceeding 100,000L., and that if there shall be no profits, or a deficiency of profits, in any of the sd three years the vendor, his heirs, executors, or administrators shall, immediately after the same shall have been ascertained, and notice thof given to him or them, pay to the coy, in trust for the members thof, a sum sufficient to make up the amount guaranteed. The certificate in writing of the auditor or auditors for the time being of the coy as to the amount at any time payable under this clause shall, as against the vendor, be conclusive evidence thof for the purposes of this clause.

Form 32.

Guarantee of profits by vendor

to the intent that the members may respectively sue the company for any breach of such covenant

Guarantee of Profits.

It occasionally happens, where a going business is sold to a company, that the vendor guarantees that the profits shall, during a limited period, amount to a particular sum. The guarantee is usually given for the benefit of the shareholders, and is stated in the prospectus as an attraction. Where the transaction is bona fide, it has been held that the members thereby acquire an independent right, which they will be able to rely on if the profits are insufficient. See South Llanharran Co., 12 C. Div. 503; and Gelly Deg Colliery Co., 33 L. T. 440. But it would seem that such a guarantee cannot be considered bona fide given where part of the capital is paid to the vendor as the consideration for the guarantee, e.g., where an addition to the price is made in order to cover the guarantee so given. And query whether these cases are quite consistent with the principles laid down in Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409. In any case, such guarantees require to be very carefully framed. See Stuart's Trusts, 4 C. D. 213, where it was held that the guarantee amounted to a provision for payment of dividends out of capital, and accordingly that the members could not claim the benefit thereof as against the company's creditors. Sometimes the performance of the guarantee is secured by the investment of a fund in the names of trustees. A company can in some cases release a guarantee by a vendor. Sheffield Nickel Co. v. Unwin, 2 Q. B. D. 214.

Form 32.

Where a vendor guarantees the company a certain dividend for a fixed number of years there is no implied contract by the company to carry on the business disentitling it, if it discontinues the business during the currency of the guarantee, to sue the vendor on it (Brown & Co. v. Brown, 36 T. L. R. 272), a fortiori where the company discontinues only one out of several of the businesses bought. Ibid.; cf. Rhodes v. Forwood, 1 A. C. 256; and Ex parte Maclure, L. R. 5 Ch. 737; contra, Telegraph Despatch Co. v. McLean, L. R. 8 Ch. 658. Where there is a guarantee fund, it is sometimes provided that if the profits in any year amount to the guaranteed sum, a part of the fund shall be released. In South Llanharran Co., ubi supra, it was provided that any moneys paid under the guarantee should be repaid out of the surplus profits which in any subsequent year remained after payment of a 10 per cent. dividend for that year. As to construction of a guarantee, see Addison v. Vera, 9 T. L. R. 607.

The clause provides usually for a guarantee for a term of years, but occasionally it provides for a perpetual guarantee, and in that case the question has been raised whether such a guarantee contravenes the rule against perpetuities.

It is well settled that the rule does not apply to a personal covenant or contract (Walsh v. Secretary of State for India, 10 H. L. C. 367), but it has been suggested that if the guarantee is for the benefit of the holders for the time being of the shares, it ought to be analyzed into its component elements, and when so analyzed it resolves itself into first a covenant to pay an annuity, and secondly, a settlement of that annuity on the holders for the time being and from time to time of the shares, that it is thus a settlement of property—the supposed annuity—and open to objection as constituting a perpetuity.

But this reasoning is as fallacious as it is far-fetched. The guarantee cannot be treated as including the grant of an annuity. A grant of an annuity of inheritance must be on the ordinary lines of inheritance, and an annuity to A., the holder of a share, which is to go over when he parts with the share to the transferee, and so on toties quoties, is a thing unknown to the law. We are asked, therefore, to metamorphose the guarantee for the purpose of bringing into existence an annuity which is impossible in law in flagrant violation of the principle embodied in the maxim, Ut res magis valeat quam pereat. The guarantee, it is to be noted, is for the benefit of the holders for the time being and from time to time of the shares, and under such a guarantee each holder for the time being has only to show that he is a holder of the shares, and as such he is brought within the class of beneficiaries indicated, and becomes entitled to claim the benefit of the guarantee. It matters not how he obtained the transfer of the shares. His title to participate in the benefit of the guarantee is not derivative, but independent. It attaches under the contract of guarantee the moment he can show that he occupies the position of a shareholder, and is therefore a cestui que trust. But the mere fact that a contract of guarantee is with trustees for the beneficiaries does not affect the position so far as the question of a perpetuity is concerned; whether the trustees or the beneficiaries in their right sue, they must sue on the contract—a mere personal contract—as in the case above referred to. They cannot sue by virtue of the devolution of title to any annuity or other property, and this being so, there is no foundation for the suggestion of invalidity above referred to.

Form 32.

As between the holders of the 12,000 shares to be allotted to the vendors pursuant to clause — hof (which shares are huftr referred to as the vendors' shares), and the holders of the other shares in the capital of the coy which have been already or shall hereafter be issued, not exceeding 20,000 in number (huftr referred to as the ordinary shares), the profits of the coy, from the 1st day of January, 1912, to the 31st day of December, 1917, shall be applied first in paying to the holders of the ordinary shares a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 6 p.c.p.a. upon the amount for the time being pd up, or credited as pd up, on the ordinary shares held by them resply.

Form 33

Vendors' shares deferred.

Sometimes upon the sale of a going concern the vendor agrees to give a limited preference of this kind to the shares taken up by the public.

The memorandum will refer to the agreement, and set out the clause, and state that the shares included in the certificate form part of the vendor's shares.

So long as the capital pd up on the 5,000 10l. shares to be issued to the vendor as afsd shall exceed what on the average is pd up on the other issued shares, the excess shall not be deemed to carry dividends, and upon each certificate, &c.

Form 34.

Another.

The vendors shall have the option, during the term of three years from the date hof, of taking up at par shares in the capital of the coy forming part of its initial capital, to an extent not exceeding in the whole 100,000 shares of 1l. each, and the coy shall accordingly set aside 100,000 of the shares in its initial capital to answer such option, and the following provisions in regard to such option shall have effect, that is to say:—

Form 35.

Option to vendor to subscribe for shares at par.

- (a) The option shall in each case be exerciseable by notice in writing to the coy.
- (b) The vendors may, under the option afsd, take up all or any of the sd 100,000 shares, and may exercise the option from time to time, taking on each occasion a part of the shares afsd not being less than 25,000 shares.
- (c) As and whenever the vendors exercise the sd option, they must, along with the notice afsd, pay to the coy the sum of ten shillings per share in part payment of the shares to be taken, and the balance of the amount of such shares, namely, ten shillings per share, shall be pd to the coy within thirty days after the allotment of the shares so taken.

Form 35.

A clause such as the above is not uncommon, and sometimes such an option may be of great value. In giving such an option the company does not impliedly contract not to wind up until the option is exercisable, and if it winds up the option still remains exercisable. If the liquidators refuse to give effect to the option, the party entitled thereto can prove for damages and the reversion on his share in the existing assets of the company after deducting the price he had agreed to pay for the shares. Hirsch & Co. v. Burns, 77 L. T. 377.

Form 36.

Exclusion of objectionable assets.

[The coy is to be at liberty, at any time within — days from the date hof, to notify in writing to the vendors that the coy objects to any particular asset, whether bill, note, book debt, or chose in action, comprised in the sale, and within — days after receiving notice of any such objection the vendors shall pay over to the coy in cash a sum equal to the value at which such asset was brought into the balance sheet, upon the basis of which the sale has been arranged, and thereupon such asset shall be deemed to be excluded from the sale, and the vendors shall be entld thereto.]

Vendor may pay Promoter Syndicate.

Form 37.

The vendor shall be at liberty to make over to the B. Syndicate, Limtd (hmftr called "the B. Syndicate") a portion, viz., £—, of the cash and — of the pd-up shares mentd in clause 2 hof in respect of the services of that coy to him in relation to the formation and promotion of the coy, and the syndicate, notwithstanding the fiduciary position it stands in as a promoter of the coy, shall be in no wise accountable to the coy for what it so obtains, and the intention is that this provision shall enure for the benefit of the syndicate, and the vendor shall be regarded as a free thof accordingly.

The object of the concluding words is to give the syndicate a right to the benefit of the stipulations by creating a trust in its favour. See Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. D. 125; Rotherham Alum Co., 25 C. D. 103; Kelly v. Larking, (1910) 2 Ir. R. 550, and supra, pp. 148, 149.

A vendor may now, out of his consideration, cash or shares, pay commission if the payment would have been legal if made directly by the coy. See sect. 89 (3) of the Act, and p. 278 et seq., supra.

If any difference shall arise between the parties touching these presents, or the construction of, or any clause or thing herein contained, or any matter in any way connected with these presents, or the operation of, or the rights, duties, or liabilities of either party in connection with the premises, then and in every or any such case the matter in difference shall be referred to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each of the parties in difference.

Form 38.

Arbitration

Occasionally a clause as above is inserted in agreements, but its insertion is not to be recommended, for a dispute can generally be settled more speedily and with less expense without a reference to arbitration, besides which such a clause gives too much power to a hostile or cantankerous vendor, who can get up a dispute and so obtain discovery of the books of the company.

The vendors guarantee the due payment of the overdrawn accounts specified in the list, which, for the purpose of identification, has been subscribed by — and — to the extent in each case set opposite the said account in the — column of the said list, but the coy shall be entitled to work all such overdrawn accounts either within the limit of or in excess of the overdraft existing as on the date hereof. Nevertheless, the working of any such account so as to allow of overdraft in excess of the existing overdraft shall, as regards the excess, be at the sole risk of the coy. The guarantee of the vendors as regards each such account shall be deemed to be a continuing guarantee, and shall extend to the payment of the balance for the time being and from time to time of such account not exceeding the amount of the overdraft at the date of, and the vendors shall not be entitled to insist that payments into the account after the date of are to be treated as in satisfaction pro tanto of items to the debit of such account on the date of, and the coy, without prejudice to such guarantee, is to be at liberty to give time to the customer, and to release or modify any security, and generally to make any concessions to the customer which the coy may think expedient.

Form 39.

Guarantee of certain accounts

The above clause is occasionally used, but it is somewhat stringent, and is only to be adopted in special circumstances.

AGREEMENT for SALE made with AGENT or TRUSTEE for intended COMPANY prior to its formation.

Form 40.

This is an example of a form of an agreement commonly adopted in Plan 1. See p. 325.

Agreement with agent or trustee for intended company

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A., of, &c. Parties. (hereafter called the vendor), of the one part, and B., of, &c., on behalf Form 40. of the coy below mentd (which coy is hnfr referred to as the coy), of the other part.

Sometimes it is preferred to make the agreement with B. "as trustee for the company below," &c., but the adoption of that course has occasionally led to difficulty where modifications were subsequently desired, for though an intended company when registered cannot claim any right under an agreement made with a person purporting to act before its incorporation as its agent, it may be that the company can claim the benefit of an agreement made with a trustee on its behalf before its incorporation, and therefore that the trustee is not entitled to modify without the company's consent.

Recitals.

WHEREAS the vendor has for some time past carried on business as, &c., upon the hereditaments hnfr described. AND WHEREAS the coy, to be called The — Coy, Limtd, is about to be formed under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, having for its objects, among other things, the acquisition and working of the sd business. AND WHEREAS the memdm and arts of assn of the coy have with the privity of the vendor been already prepared. AND WHEREAS the nominal capital of the coy is to be 80,000l., divided into 10,000 shares of 8l. each. AND WHEREAS by the sd arts of assn it is provided that the coy shall immediately after the incorporation thof adopt the agreemt therein referred to, being these presents: Now IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:—

Sometimes the memorandum and articles have not been prepared when the agreement is executed, and in such case the third and fifth recitals should be omitted.

Agreement to sell.

The vendor shall sell and the coy when incorporated shall purchase. Here should follow such of the clauses in Form 31, supra, as may be required, e.g., 1 to 13 and 15.]

Discharge of B.

15. Upon the adoption of this agreement by the coy in such manner as to render the same binding on the coy, the said B. shall be discharged from all liability in respect thof.

As to this clause, see supra, p. 327 et seq.

Power to rescind shares not subscribed.

16. Unless before the — day of — the coy shall have become entld to commence business, either of the parties hto may, by notice in writing to the other, determine this agreement, and after adopting this agreement the coy shall stand in the place of the sd B., for the purpose of this clause.

Power to rescind if not adopted.

17. If this agreement shall not be adopted by the coy in manner afsd before the — day of — next, either of the parties hto may, by notice in writing to the other, determine the same; and in the case of an invitation to the public for the first time to subscribe for shares add the words of clause 17 of Form 31]. Form 40.

See supra, p. 328.

18. The determination of this agreemt under clause 16 or 17 hereof shall not give rise to any claim for compensation, expenses, or otherwise. No claim for damages.

See supra, p. 328.

As WITNESS the hands of the parties hto the day and year first above written.

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED TO.

As to adoption of contracts, see supra, p. 327. See also sect. 87, sub-sect. 3 of the Act of 1908. Having regard to this section, if the adoption takes place before the company has become entitled to commence business, and there has been, or is to be, an appeal to the public to subscribe for shares, a clause should be inserted as in clause 17, p. 363, supra.

AGREEMENT by COMPANY ADOPTING CONTRACT MADE ON ITS BEHALF BEFORE ITS INCORPORATION. For indorsement on Original Contract. Form 41.

AN AGREEMT made this — day of —, between A., of, &c., of the first part, B., of, &c., of the second part, and The — Coy, Limtd (huftr called the coy), of the third part. WHEREAS, since the execution of the within-written agreemt, the coy has been incorporated in accordance with the intention in that behalf referred to in such agreemt: Parties. Recitals.

NOW IT IS HEREBY MUTUALLY AGREED as follows:—

1. The within-written agreemt is hby adopted by the coy, and shall be binding on the sd A. and on the coy in the same manner, and take effect in all respects as if the coy had been in existence at the date thof, and had by these presents ratified the same. Adoption.

2. The sd B. shall from henceforth be discharged from all liability under or in respect of the sd agreemt. B. discharged.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Where a contract is made on behalf of an intended company [as above, pp. 327 et seq.], it is requisite to take steps to bind the company when it comes into existence. An idea prevailed at one time that a company could Form 41. ratify such a contract, but it is now well settled that it cannot. Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. Div. 125; Northumberland Avenue Co., 33 C. Div. 16. See supra, p. 322. Accordingly the usual plan is to execute an agreement as above, so as to effect a novation of contract. See supra, p. 323. Where the preliminary contract is made with B. as "trustee" for the intended company, clause 1 must run as in the form following. That such an adoption is effective, see Boston Deep Sea Co., 39 C. Div. 359; Natal Land Co. v. Pauline Colliery Syndicate, (1904) A. C. 120.

Form 42. AGREEMENT by COMPANY ADOPTING, WITH MODIFICATIONS, CONTRACT MADE BEFORE ITS INCORPORATION.

Recitals.

Parties: the coy, 1; the vendor, 2; A., 3. WHEREAS by an agreeemt (huftr called the preliminary contract) dated, &c., and made between the vendor, of the one part, and the sd A., as trustee for the coy (which was then intended, and has since been formed under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908), of the other part, it was agreed that the vendor should sell, and the coy should purchase, certain ppty upon the terms, and subject to the stipulations therein expressed: AND WHEREAS a copy of the preliminary contract is set forth in the schedule hto.

NOW THESE PRESENTS WITNESS AND DECLARE as follows:—

Adopting preliminary contract.

1. The preliminary contract is hby adopted by the coy, and shall (subject as hnfr provided) be binding on the vendor and the coy in the same manner, and take effect as if the coy had been in existence at the date thof, and had been a party thereto instead of the said B.

Completion.

2. The time for the completion of the sale shall be postponed to the — day of —.

Modification of terms of sale.

3. If at the time for completion less than 10,000 shares in the coy's capital have been taken up, the cash portion of the purchase-money, viz., 50,000*l.*, shall be satisfied as to 20,000*l.* by the issue to the vendor or his nominees, of 2,000 fully paid-up 10*l.* shares in the coy's capital, and as to 30,000*l.* as follows:— that is to say, at the time for completion, one moiety of the then capital moneys of the coy shall be pd to the vendor, and the other moiety shall be retained by the coy for its general purposes; and out of the capital moneys subsequently paid up the coy may retain for its general purposes any sum not exceeding 5,000*l.*, and, subject as aforesaid, shall pay such capital moneys, as and when received, to the vendor, until the residue of the sd sum of 30,000*l.* has been paid, with interest, at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a., as from the time for completion to the time of actual payment. And, unless within six calendar months from the first allotment of the coy's shares, the whole of such residue has been pd, the coy may at any time thereafter satisfy the balance thof, then remaining unpd, by issuing to the vendor or his nominee fully pd-up shares to be regarded as of par value (or the balance shall thereupon immediately become payable in cash).

Form 42.

4. If at the time for completion less than — shares shall have been taken up, then upon payment of the amount hnbefore made payable at the time for completion, and upon the allotment of the sd 2,000 shares, the vendor will transfer the ppty to the coy in accordance with clause — of the preliminary contract.

When transfer to be effected.

5. As in Form 41, cl. 2.]

B. discharged.

6. Unless before the — day of — at least — shares in the coy shall have been applied for by responsible persons, either of the parties hto of the first and second pts may, by notice in writing to the other, annul the sale, and thereupon the preliminary contract and these presents shall become void, save as regards this and the last preceding clause hof.

Power to rescind.

7. As in Form 31, cl. 16.]

Filing contracts.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Add schedule containing copy of preliminary contract.]

As to adoption of contracts, see note supra, p. 323.

AGREEMENT by COMPANY for SALE of its ENTIRE BUSINESS as a Form 43. GOING CONCERN.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A. B., of —, Parties on behalf of The — Coy, Limtd (hnftr called "the Coy"), of the one pt, and The — Corporation, Limtd (hnftr called "the Corporation"), of the other pt.

WHEREAS the coy was incorporated in the year — under the Cos Recitals. Acts, 1862 to 1900, with a nominal capital of £—, divided into — shares of £— each: AND WHEREAS the whole of the sd shares have been issued and are fully pd up: AND WHEREAS by the memdum of asson of the coy it is declared that one of the objects of the coy is to sell the undertaking of the coy, or any pt thof, for such conson as the coy may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures, or securities of any kind having objects, altogether or in pt, similar to those of this coy: AND WHEREAS the objects of the corporation are in pt similar to those of the coy: AND WHEREAS the corporation is desirous of acquiring the undertaking and ppty of the coy.

Now, THEREFORE, IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. The coy shall sell, and the corporation shall purchase, the Sale. undertaking of the coy, which expression shall be deemed to include all the lands, buildings, hereditaments, goods, chattels, moneys, credits, debts, bills, notes, goodwill, things in action, contracts,

Form 43. agreements, securities, and other assets whatsoever and wheresoever of the coy, except its uncalled capital.

Consideration.

2. As a pt of the consen for the sd sale, the corporation shall undertake, pay, satisfy, discharge, perform, and fulfil all the debts, liabilities, contracts, engagements, and obligations of the coy whatsoever, and shall indemnify the coy against all actions, proceedings, claims, and demands in respect thof.

Further consideration.

3. As a further pt of the consen for the sd sale, the corporation shall, if the coy within — weeks from the date hof, passes an effective resolution for the voluntary winding-up thof, pay all the costs, charges, and expenses of and incident to the winding-up and dissolution of the coy, and shall indemnify the coy against all actions, proceedings, claims, and demands in respect thof.

Further consideration.

4. As further consen for the sd sale, the corporation shall pay to the coy the sum of £—— in ca

Title.

5. Title accepted.

Completion.

6. The sale and purchase hby agreed to be made shall be completed on the — day of — next, when the sd consen in cash and shares shall be pd and satisfied, and the coy shall execute and do all such assurances and things as shall reasonably be required by the coy for vesting in it the sd premises.

Conditions.

7. This agreemt is conditional on the same being ratified by a resolution of a general meeting of the coy, and if the same is not so ratified within — weeks from the date hereof, either of the parties hto may, by notice in writing to the other, rescind this agreemt.

Filing.

8. [Agreemt to be filed. See Form 31, cl. 16.]

As WITNESS, &c.

Sale of undertaking before going into liquidation.

It is a very common thing for a company to agree to sell its undertaking as a going concern without going into liquidation, but in order to justify such an agreement power to dispose of the undertaking must be found in the memorandum of association of the company. No doubt, by proceeding under sect. 192 of the Companies Act, 1908 (replacing sect. 161 of the Act of 1862), almost any company under the Act can sell its undertaking, but there are cases in which it is not convenient to proceed under that section, for an effective agreement cannot be made under the section unless and until the company goes into liquidation, and appoints liquidators, and invests them with authority to exercise the powers of the section. Where the purchasing company is already a going concern with large resources, there may be no objection to the vendor company, after settling the terms of the agreement, or entering into a provisional agreement, going into liquidation; but even in such cases the vendor company sometimes prefers to postpone liquidation till after completion. And where the purchasing company is to be formed and floated the vendor company may find itself placed in a very awkward predicament if it goes into liquidation with a view to making the agreement, and then subsequently the new company is not formed, or does not float. In the result the agreement may fall to the ground, and the vendor company may find that it has lost its status as a going concern without obtaining any corresponding benefit, and that it cannot start again without either reconstructing or applying to the Court to stay the winding-up. If, on the other hand, the vendor company being in a position so to do, makes an agreement for sale without going into liquidation, that agreement can, of course, provide that, unless the sale is duly carried into effect, the agreement may be rescinded, and then, if things go wrong, that power can be exercised, and the vendor company can resume and continue its business. Sometimes such an agreement is made direct with the new company, or with a trustee for it, and sometimes it is made with some person as an intermediary, who re-sells to the new company at a profit.

A company cannot sell its whole undertaking unless there is power to do so in its memorandum of association. Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. Cas. 712. But where the memorandum makes the sale of its undertaking one of the company's objects, such a sale is intra vires and allowable. Cotton v. Imperial and Foreign Co., (1892) 3 Ch. D. 454; New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Pencock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622.

Nevertheless, according to a remarkable decision of the Court of Appeal (Bingood v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 743), or to the reasons assigned for the decision, a sale of the undertaking for shares made with a view to distribution of the proceeds amongst the members of the selling company cannot be made under a power in the memorandum even though immediately followed by a voluntary winding-up. For observations on this decision, see infra, Chap. XXI.

After the agreement has been ratified, the seal of the company should be affixed to a memorandum at the foot of the agreement as follows:—

PURSUANT to a resolution passed at a general meeting of The ——— Form 43.
Coy, Limtd, held the ——— day of ———, the above agreement is hereby Memorandum ratified. As witness the common seal of the coy. this ——— day of ———. of ratification.

Sometimes the agreement is made conditional on its being adopted, under sect. 192 of the Act of 1908, replacing sect. 161 of the Act of 1862, v.g., "This agreement is conditional on the same being adopted by the liquidator of the company, pursuant to a special resolution of the company conferring on him the requisite authority, under sect. 192 of the Companies Act, 1908," but in such cases the provisions of the agreement will require considerable modifications. See Chap. XX., infra.

Sometimes the purchasing company has not, when the agreement is made, power to purchase the business, and in such case it is necessary either to wait until the objects of the purchasing company have been extended (see Petitions, infra, Chap. XVII.), or if a conditional agreement is required at once, it can be made with C. D., on behalf of the purchasing company, and a clause can be inserted making the agreement conditional, inter alia, "on its being effectually adopted by the company after its objects shall have been extended so as to allow of such adoption."

Insurance Business.

As to transfer of life insurance businesses, see Form 45 and Petitions, infra, Chap. XVII.

Banking Business.

As to transfer of banking businesses where the vendors are a firm, Form 43 can be readily adapted; and where the vendors are a company, the above form can sometimes be adapted, or one of the forms in Chap. XXI., infra. Occasionally, however, special provisions are required.

Form 45.AGREEMENT for TRANSFER of LIFE ASSURANCE BUSINESS.

(As to life assurance companies generally, see Chap. XVII.)

Agreement
for transfer of life assurance business.

AN AGREEMENT made, &c., between A. on behalf of the B. Coy (hmftr called "the B.") of the one pt. and the C. Assurance Coy (hmftr called "the C.") of the other pt.

WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:

Contracts and liabilities to be taken over.

1. The C. shall take over all the life assurance contracts and all the annuity contracts of the B. current or capable of revival or of other cos for which the B. is liable as from the 31st day of December, 19—, and shall assume the liabilities of the B. in respect of such contracts, and the B. and its assets shall stand discharged from all liability in respect thof.

Assets to be made over to meet liabilities.

2. The B. shall make over to the C. assets sufficient as on the sd 31st day of December, 19—, to provide for the liabilities to be assumed by the C. as afsd.

How such assets to be ascertained.

3. For the purpose of ascertaining the amount of the assets to be made over to the C. as afsd the value of the liabilities to be undertaken by the C. as afsd shall be ascertained and certified by L. and M. upon the bases and principle following, that is to say:—

(1.) Valuation to be made as on the 31st day of December, 19—.

(2.) The Mortality Tables to be employed shall be (a) for the assurance contracts, the Institute of Actuaries' H. M. (5) Table, and (b) for the annuities, the Government Experience Table, 1884.

(3.) The rate of interest assumed in the calculations shall be 3 p.c.p.a. throughout.

(4.) The premiums to be valued shall be the ordinary premiums only throwing off all extra premiums for health and instalments and commission (if any).

(5.) The proportion of the annual premium income reserved as a provision for future expenses and profits shall be 10 p.c. and such further percentage as the valuers shall agree upon, not exceeding 2½ p.c., as may in their opinion be necessary for the purpose of carrying out this agreement.

Certificate of valuers and selection of assets.

4. The sd L. & M. shall also value the assets of the B., and their certificate as to the value thof shall be conclusive as between the parties hto, and when such value has been certified it shall rest with the B. and its liqrs to select the particular assets which are to be made over to the C. pursuant to clause 2 hof.

Differences of valuers to be referred to arbitrator.

5. If the sd L. & M. shall differ in regard to any such valuation as in clauses 3 and 4 hof, then and in such case the difference shall be referred to A., of, &c., actuary, or to some other person selected by the B. and the C., and the award of such person shall be conclusive.

Premiums,
&c. to be accounted for.

6. The B. shall account to the C. for all premiums and other moneys falling or accruing due after the 31st December, 19—, and received by the B. in respect of such assurance contracts as from the 31st December, 19—, and the C. shall be deemed to be liable to bear and shall recoup all payments made by the B. in respect of the sd assurance contracts and annuities accrued or emerged as from the sd 31st of December, 19—, and a proper account shall be made out accordingly, and if the balance is against the C. the assets to be made over to it under clause 2 *h*of shall be reduced pro tanto.

7. The residue of the assets of the B. shall be converted into money and the proceeds of such conversion shall be retained by the liqrs thof and shall be applied in paying off the debts and liabilities, if any, of the B. which are not to be assumed by the C. as afsd, and of all the costs, charges and expenses of the parties hto and of the liqrs of the B. of and incident to the winding-up and final dissolution of the B., and the surplus shall be distributed among the shareholders of the B. in accordance with their rights and interests in the assets of the B.

8. The C. shall accept, without objection or requisition, such title as the B. has to the assets to be made over as aforesaid.

9. The C. shall enlarge all the assurance contracts to be made over as afsd, and which shall not have become claims before the agreement is sanctioned by the Court in manner following, that is to say:—

- (a) By making all death or maturity claims payable within fourteen days after the delivery and approval of the proofs of death or maturity and of title.
- (b) By freeing all such contracts from all conditions in restriction of travel, residence, or occupation.

10. Moreover, the C. shall open an account, and on the 31st December, 19—, and on the 31st December in each succeeding year, shall carry to the credit of such account a sum equal to 5 p.c. of the premium revenue on such of the sd assurance contracts as confer the right to participate in profits during the year ending such 31st December, and the sums from time to time standing to the credit of such account shall be deemed to carry interest at the rate of 3 p.c. p.a., with yearly rests, and on the 31st December, 19—, and at the expiration of each succeeding quinquennial period, the amount standing to the credit of such account shall be appropriated by way of equivalent reversionary bonus for the benefit of the holders of the sd assurance contracts whose assurances shall on such 31st December, 19—, or at the expiration of each such quinquennial period, be in force or capable of revival and in proportion to the premiums of the period.

11. The B. and the liquidators thereof shall procure the directors of the B. to give to the C. an undertaking that such directors shall, for a period of at least three years from the date of the resolution confirming the winding-up, for the same remuneration resply as they now receive and from such last-mentioned date to be pd by the C., assist in consolidating the transfer, collecting the assets, and

Form 45.

Application of residue of assets.

Acceptance of title.

Enlargement of assurance contracts.

Quinquennial account to be opened for benefit of participating holders.

Directors of transferor company to assist in consolidating the transfer, &c.

Form 45.

Staff to be taken over.

Indemnity of directors,
trustees, and other officers.

Liability of transferor
company limited to its property,
and of its members to their liability on their
shares.

Completion
after sanction of Court.

Charges on assets of transferor
company not to be prejudiced.

Winding-up.
Modification of the arrangement.

Deed poll
covenanting with policy holders, &c.
to observe this
agreement.

Agreement to be conditional on resolutions passed and adoption by liquidators and sanction
of Court.

maintaining and developing the business connections of the B. in relation to the policies and annuities to be transferred pursuant hto.

12. The C. shall take over the staff of the B., and indemnify the B. against all claims for salary or otherwise by the members of that staff as from the 31st December, 19—, and shall recoup to the B. all payments made by the B. in respect thof, and of all proper office and other expenses incident to the carrying on of the business as from the sd 31st December, 19—.

13. The C. shall indemnify the directors, trustees, auditors and other officers of the B., and each and every of them, and their and each and every of their executors and administrators, against all such liabilities as the B. is now liable to indemnify them against under clause — of the deed of settlement of the — of —, 18—, of the B.

14. The liability of the C. under this agreemt is limtd to its ppty and funds for the time being, and accordingly the individual liability of each proprietor is limtd to the amount unpaid on his shares.

15. The arrangement embodied herein is to be carried into effect forthwith after the same shall have been sanctioned by the Court as huftr provided.

16. Nothing in this scheme contained shall prejudice any existing security, lien or charge upon the assets of the B. or any pt thof.

17. The winding-up of the B. shall be completed, and the dissolution thof shall be effected with all convenient speed.

18. The liqrs of the B. may assent to any modifications in the arrangement embodied herein on conditions which the Court may think fit to approve or impose, and which the C. shall consent to.

19. When and so soon as this agreemt has been sanctioned by the Court as huftr provided, the C. shall execute a deed poll covenanting with the holders of the assurance contract and annuity contracts to be taken over as afsd to observe the provisions in their favour resply herein contained.

20. This agreemt is conditional on all such resolutions of the B. as may be necessary being passed and on its being adopted by the liqrs of the B. with due authority, and on its being sanctioned by the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice.

IN WITNESS, &c.

In the above case the sale is out-and-out, but more commonly nowadays an assurance business is transferred on the footing that the company which takes it over shall place the assets of the business in a separate fund to be worked for the benefit of the policyholders in the transferring company, and to be the primary fund for answering policies and claims, the transferring company guaranteeing its sufficiency and taking any surplus. Very commonly the company which takes over the concern is given the right to a percentage of the income of the fund as compensation for working it. The following is an outline of the clauses which have in several cases been adopted, the transferring company being referred to as the A. Company, and the other company as the B. Company. Form 45.

CLAUSES upon TRANSFER of ASSURANCE BUSINESS for SPECIAL FUND in HANDS of the TRANSFEREE COMPANY. Form 46.

1. A fund for the protection and sole benefit of the A. Coy's policy-holders and annuitants and others is to be established by the B. Coy, and is to be called "The A. Coy Fund," and such fund is to be vested in the B. Coy as trustee for the purposes here mentioned, and is to consist of— Separate fund for policy holders, &c. of transferring company.

- (a) The assets to be transferred as aforesaid.
- (b) All proceeds arising from sales, exchanges, and other dealings with the A. fund.
- (c) All assets acquired with assets of the B. fund.
- (d) All income arising from assets for the time being of the A. fund.
- (e) All premiums and other payments received in respect of the A. policies and annuity contracts for the time being subsisting; and
- (f) All sums received in respect of any compromise, arrangement, modification, substitution, or other dealing in relation to the A. policy and annuity contracts.

2. The A. fund is to be kept separate from the general assets of the B. Coy, and is to be regarded as a trust fund applicable for the benefit of those entitled to A. policy and annuity contracts and other persons towards whom the A. Coy is under liability, and accordingly out of the A. fund the B. Coy is from time to time and in due course to pay, satisfy, and discharge all claims and moneys from time to time payable in respect of the A. policies and annuity contracts, and all sums payable in respect of compromises, surrenders, or otherwise in relation to A. policies and annuities, and all sums payable to the B. Coy by way of recoupment as here provided, and all premiums on re-insurance policies effected in relation to any A. policies or annuity contracts, and all claims, liabilities, pensions, and all sums from time to time payable to the B. Coy or otherwise by way of contribution to management expenses or otherwise under clause 5 hereof, and all other debts and liabilities of the A. Coy existing at the time of the commencement of this Act, and all other sums under these presents payable out of the said fund, and, subject to all such payments as aforesaid, the A. fund is to be held for the benefit of the participating policy-holders of the A. Coy. Trusts of fund.

Form 46.

Transferee company to undertake liabilities of transferor
company.

Management
expenses.

Temporary advances.

Management and control of fund.

Quinquennial
valuations.

No new policies or annuities to be granted with reference to the fund.

Participating holders only entitled to profits of fund.

Transfer of staff.

Fund and transferee's property
alone liable.

Act of Parliament or sanction of Court.

3. The B. Coy is to be liable in the place of the A. Coy upon and in respect of all the debts, liabilities, contracts and engagements of the A. Coy, including its policies and annuity contracts, but upon the footing that its liability is primarily to be out of the A. fund, and if this shall be insufficient or exhausted, then out of its own fund and property.

4. [Out of the premiums a contribution towards management expenses to be taken by the B. Coy.]

5. [B. Coy to be recouped with interest temporary advances.]

6. [Provisions for the management and control of the A. fund by the directors of the B. Coy.]

7. [Quinquennial valuations and distribution of surplus moneys to participating policyholders.]

8. [No new policy or annuity contract to be granted with reference to the A. fund except upon a surrender and in substitution, &c.]

9. [Participating policyholders of the A. Coy only entitled to participate in profits of the fund.]

10. [Provision for the transfer of staff.]

11. [Provision that fund and property of B. Coy are alone to be liable if needs be.]

12. [Provision for obtaining Act of Parliament to effectuate the transfer or otherwise for obtaining the sanction of the Court.]

Form 47. AGREEMENT for SALE of PATENTS. CONSIDERATION : CASH and FOUNDERS' SHARES.

Parties.

AN AGREEMENT, &c.: parties, vendor, 1; coy, 2.

Agreement
to sell.

1. The vendor shall sell, and the coy shall purchase, first, the patents specified in the schedule hto. and the full and exclusive benefit thof; and secondly, the benefit of all improvements on the inventions referred to in the sd patents resply, and of all further inventions in connection with the manufacture of —, which have been already or may hereafter be made by the vendor, and all British patents which may be obtained by or on behalf of the vendor for any such improvements or further inventions, and the full and exclusive benefit thof.

Having regard to the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), as amended by the Patents and Designs Act, 1907 (7 Ed. 7, c. 28), there is no need to provide that the purchaser shall be entitled to apply for extensions, or to sue for infringement, or to disclaim, inasmuch as the Act and the patent together confer the requisite powers on the owner of the patent for the time being.

Sometimes the sale includes foreign as well as British patents, thus—

Form 47.

"The vendor shall sell and the company shall purchase:—

- "(1) The benefit of the patent of his Majesty, dated &c., numbered . . . and granted to the vendor in respect of an invention in relation to electric cables (hereinafter called the present invention);
- "(2) The benefit of any foreign patents which have already been obtained by or on behalf of the vendor in respect of the present invention, and the benefit of all pending negotiations for the acquisition of foreign patents;
- "(3) The benefit of all future inventions which shall be made by the vendor in connection with the manufacture or working of electric cables;
- "(4) The exclusive right, so far as the vendor can confer the same, to apply for and obtain foreign patents for the present invention, and any such future inventions as aforesaid, and the benefit of all patents so obtained;
- "(5) The benefit of all extensions and prolongations of the terms and privileges granted by any such patents as aforesaid."

The following is more limited:—

- (a) The patents for the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, and Spain specified in the schedule hereto, which patents have been granted in respect of the inventions referred to in the same schedule;
- (b) The exclusive right, so far as regards the countries aforesaid, and so far as the vendor can confer the same, to all improvements on the said inventions made or to be made by the vendor, and to apply in those countries respectively, either in the name of the vendor or otherwise, for patents for such improvements, and the full and exclusive benefit of all patents so obtained.

An agreement to sell future inventions is not open to objection. Printing, &c. Co. v. Sampson, 19 Eq. 462; Maxim Nordenfett v. Nordenfett, (1894) A. C. 535; Wallace and Williamson, Pat. p. 330.

As to what are "improvements" under a covenant to communicate improvements, see Hopkins v. Linotype, Ltd., 101 L. T. 838.

As to joint and several covenants on an assignment by two or more patentees, see National Society for Distribution, &c. v. Gibbs, (1900) 2 Ch. 280; Wallace and Williamson, Pat. p. 452.

A licensee of a patent cannot rid himself of liability to royalties by transfer to a limited company. Cummings v. Stewart, (1900) 1 Ir. R. 236.

2. As the reason for the sale, the coy shall pay to the vendor the sum of 3,000*l.* cash, and shall issue to him or his nominees the whole of the 100 founders' shares of 1*l.* each in the capital of the coy, and such shares shall be deemed for all purposes fully pd up.

Consideration.

3. The vendor shall from time to time, with all convenient speed, communicate to the coy or its assigns all such improvements and further inventions, and shall give them full information as to the exact mode of working and using the same, and shall from time to Incidental provisions.

Form 47. time at the request and expense of the coy execute and do all such documents and things as may be requisite for the purpose of enabling the coy to obtain British patents for such improvements and further inventions, and shall from time to time and at all times during the term of years to be computed from, &c., and without making any charge therefor, give all such advice, explanation, and instruction to the directors and other officers and workmen of the coy as may be necessary to enable them effectually to exercise and work such improvements and further inventions resply, and shall for such purposes at the expense of the coy prepare and furnish to the coy all necessary plans, drawings, and models.

This clause requires some slight modification when foreign patents are sold.

Completion.

4. The purchase shall be completed on the day of , at, &c., when the sd sum of 3,000*l.* cash shall be pd to the vendor, and the sd founders' shares shall be allotted as aforesaid. And thereupon, and from time to time, and at any time afterwards, the vendor shall at the expense of the coy execute and do all such assurances and things as may reasonably be required by the coy for carrying the sale into effect and giving to the coy the full benefit of the agreement.

5. Unless before the day of next at least shares in the coy's capital shall have been taken up by responsible persons, either of the parties hto may by notice in writing to the other rescind this agreement, and such rescission shall not give rise to any claim for expenses or otherwise.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Add schedule containing particulars of patents.]

On a sale by the patentee of a patented article a condition can be imposed, e.g., that the article shall not be sold under a specified price, and a purchaser will not be able to use the article in contravention of this condition. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Ilex, (1906) 1 Ch. 605; National Phonograph v. Menck, (1911) A. C. 336 (P. C.). And see infra, p. 424.

Sometimes the company is only given an option, to be exercised within a limited time after communication, to acquire patents in respect of improvements and further inventions, so that if the company does not elect to proceed the vendor may himself proceed; and the same plan is sometimes adopted as regards foreign patents. Occasionally special provision is made for obtaining foreign patents and realizing the same by sale, or otherwise, and dividing the proceeds, whether consisting of cash, shares, or otherwise, between the vendor and the company, or for issuing to the vendor paid-up shares in the company in proportion to a certain proportion of such proceeds.

Sometimes companies are brought out with an exclusive licence or concession (acquired for a lump sum in cash, shares, or otherwise) to use patented inventions for all or specified purposes within a limited district. But there was great difficulty in framing these concessions satisfactorily; for a patented article duly made and sold carried with it prima facie a licence to use the same within the limits of the patent (Betts v. Wadant, L. R. 6 Ch. 239); and accordingly any person who could duly acquire the patented article outside the district could sell and use it within the district. The difficulty was met, but by no means effectually, by the insertion of covenants by the grantor and grantee not to sell for use outside their respective districts.

Form 47.

However, it seems probable that for the future, instead of such a concession, it will be found advisable to purchase and obtain an assignment of the patent for the particular district, under sect. 36 of the Act of 1883, above referred to. That section provides that "A patentee (i.e., the owner for the time being) may assign his patent for any place in or part of the United Kingdom or Isle of Man, as effectually as if the patent were originally granted to extend to that place or part only." This provision appears admirably calculated to facilitate the concession system, and it would seem that where a patent for a district has been sold it will not be lawful to sell or use in that district a patented article made elsewhere. Van Heyden v. Neustadt, 14 C. Div. 230; Neilson v. Betts, L. R. 5 H. L. 1; Admir v. Young, 12 C. Div. 13; Société des Manufactures de Glace v. Tilghman's Co., 5 C. Div. 1; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 8 App. Cas. 5; United Telephone Co. v. Sharplea, 29 C. D. 164; Wallace and Williamson, Pat. pp. 328, 329.

Where a licence only is to be granted, the licensee should be empowered to sue for infringements, if so intended. Heap v. Hartley, 42 C. Div. 461; Guyot v. Thomson, (1894) 3 Ch. 388; London Printing Alliance v. Cox, (1891) 3 Ch. 291. Having regard to these cases and to Limmer Asphaltic Co. v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, L. R. 7 Ex. 211 (but see National Telephone Co. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, (1899) 1 Q. B. 250), it would seem that a premium payable for the grant of a licence is not liable to ad valorem duty as consideration for a sale. A licence granted for value cannot prima facie be revoked by the grantor for breach by the grantee of the contract. Guyot v. Thomson, supra.

Where a royalty is made payable, the question sometimes arises whether a company is impliedly bound not to wind up during the currency of the patent. It is very difficult to imply such a covenant. Ellis v. Dodson, 60 L. J. Ch. 353; 7 T. L. R. 318; Hirsch v. Burne & Co., 77 L. T. 377 (H. L.); Brown & Co. v. Brown, 36 L. T. 272; Railway and Electric Co., 30 C. D. 597; Hamlyn v. Wood, (1891) 2 Q. B. 488; Turner v. Goldsmith, (1891) 1 Q. B. 544. See, however, Ogden v. Nelson, (1905) A. C. 109.

By proper provisions, specified obligations can be attached to run with the patent so as to bind the owners for the time being. Weydermann v. Société Générale, 19 C. Div. 246; explained Guyot Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Clipper Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 146.

Sect. 87 of the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883, provides that where a person becomes entitled by assignment and transmission or other operation of law to a patent, the controller shall, on request and on proof of title to his satisfaction, cause the name of such person to be entered as the proprietor of the patent . . . in the register of patents . . . the person for the time being in the register of patents . . . as proprietor of a patent . . . shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, and subject to any rights appearing from such register to be vested in any other person, have power absolutely to assign, grant licences as to or otherwise deal with the same, and to give effectual receipts for any consideration for such assignment, licence or dealing, provided that any equities in respect of such patent, design, or trade mark may be enforced in like manner as if in respect of any other person or property.

But if the registered proprietor creates an equitable interest in favour of A., and subsequently in favour of B. with notice of A.'s equity, B. will not be allowed priority over A. Ixion Tyre Co. v. Spillshury, (1898) 2 Ch. 484.

Form 48.

Agreement to grant licence to company to manufacture goods for licensor.

Exclusive licence to company.

Only transfer-able with consent

Company to supply syndicate with machines.

Regulation
as to orders.

Supply.

Price.

New kinds of machines.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between The — Syndicate, Limtd (hntfr called "the Syndicate"), of the one pt, and
The — Coy, Limtd (hntfr called "the Coy"), of the other part:
WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. The Syndicate shall grant to the coy an exclusive licence—

- (1) To manufacture in the United Kingdom for use in the United Kingdom electrical machines, and to sell and let on hire such machines for use in the United Kingdom, and the machines manufactured under such licence are hntfr referred to as "the licensed machines."
- (2) For the purposes afd but no further to exercise the rights vested in the syndicate or its trees under the patents specified in the schedule hto.

2. The sd exclusive licence is not to be transferred without the consent of the syndicate under its common seal, and if at any time the coy shall cease to carry on its business the sd licence shall determine.

3. The deed granting the sd licence is to confer on the syndicate the right from time to time during the continuance of such licence to order and obtain from the coy electrical machines of any kind from time to time manufactured by the coy, whether under the sd licence or under any other licence or otherwise, but upon the footing that the goods so ordered shall only be for use by the syndicate for the purposes of its own manufacturing business.

4. Every order under the last preceding clause shall be in writing and shall state specifically—

- (a) The number and character of the machines and apparatus ordered.
- (b) The time when they are required to be delivered.
- (c) Whether the syndicate desires to purchase or hire the same.
- (d) Whether the same are to be used in the business of the syndicate in the United Kingdom or abroad, and in the latter case in what country.

5. With all reasonable despatch after any such order the coy shall comply with the same, and shall deliver the goods ordered to the syndicate at the works of the coy in London when such goods are ready for delivery.

6. Where goods are ordered as afd the price is to be a sum equal to the shop-cost thof, with an addition thereto of not more than one-half the difference between such shop-cost and the price charged by the coy for similar goods to its most favoured customer (other than the syndicate) in the United Kingdom.

7. Whenever the coy acquires a new kind of machine or a material part thereof, or any invention in relation to cigarette-making machinery, the coy shall forthwith give to the syndicate full information as to the same. Form 48.

8. Should any of the patents specified in the schedule hto be infringed, the coy shall be at liberty to take proceedings in the name of the syndicate for restraining the continuance of such infringements and for obtaining damages in respect of the infringements committed, and the coy shall have full conduct of such proceedings, and may at its discretion prosecute, compound, discontinue, abandon, or deal with the same, and shall be entld to all damages obtained in respect thof, and shall also be entld in the name of the syndicate to take all such proceedings as may seem expedient to the coy, with a view to enforcing any undertaking or injunction that may be obtained in the course of such proceedings, and for obtaining the committal of any persons for contempt in respect of any breach of any such undertaking or injunction. Nevertheless the coy shall at all times keep the syndicate indemnified against all expenses and outgoings occasioned by any such proceedings, and on the other hand the syndicate shall execute and do all such things as the coy may reasonably require for facilitating such proceedings. Infringement of patents.

9. Proper accounts for the purposes hof shall be kept by the coy, showing the lowest prices from time to time charged by it, and the syndicate shall have the option from time to time of testing the accuracy of such accounts by employing an independent auditor or auditors to examine the books of the coy, or by calling for a statutory declaration by the secretary of the coy verifying the prices set forth in such account, and in the former case the coy shall give such auditor or auditors all reasonable facilities for making such examination, and in the latter case shall procure its secretary to make such declaration. Accounts.

10. The consen for the sd licence to be granted pursuant to cl. 1 hof is to be a sum of £—, which sum is to be satisfied by the allotment to the syndicate of — fully paid up shares of 1/ each in the capital of the coy, which shares are to be numbered — to — inclusive. Consideration.

11. The syndicate is, during the continuance of the licence afsd, to keep the patents specified in the schedule hto on foot, and is to pay all fees and sums requisite for such purposes, and is at its own expense to apply for and obtain all possible prolongations and extensions thof. Syndicate to keep patents on foot.

12. The licence afsd is to continue during all the residue unexpired of the terms of years granted or conferred by the patents specified in the schedule hto, and during all prolongations and extensions of the same terms. Duration.

13. The sd licence shall be by deed, and it shall be completed on the — day of —, at the offices of Messrs. —, of —, when the same shall be executed and delivered to the coy, and at the same time Completion.

Form 48. the coy shall execute a counterpart thof and deliver the same to the syndicate and allot the sd shares.

IN WITNESS, &c.

SCHEDULE

Particulars of Patents.]

Form 49. AGREEMENT for SALE to COMPANY of FOREIGN MINES.

- Parties. AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A., of —, in the State of — (huftr called the vendor), by B., his attorney, of the one pt, and the — Coy, Limtd (huftr called the coy), of the other pt: WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:
- Agreement for sale. 1. The vendor shall sell, and the coy shall purchase, the mines, mining rights, mills, stamps, orehouses, plant, machinery plant, stock, ore, and other ppty and rights specified in the first schedule hto, and huftr called the scheduled premises.
- Inspection. [2 The coy shall, with all reasonable despatch, direct W., or some other competent person, to inspect and report upon the value of the scheduled premises, and unless the report of such person shall be deemed satisfactory by the coy, the coy shall be at liberty, by notice in writing to the sd B., to rescind this agreement, provided such notice be given before the — day of —.
- Title. 3. The vendor shall make out to the satisfaction of the coy a good title to the scheduled premises, according to the laws in force in the sd State, free from all incumbrances, except any royalties imposed by the Mining Code of the sd State.
- Consideration. 4. The consen for the sd sale shall be 100,000*l.*, whereof 20,000*l.* shall be pd in cash, and the balance shall be satisfied by the issue to the vendor or his nominees of debentures for securing 30,000*l.*, and 5,000 10*l.* shares of the coy, to be numbered — to — inclusive, and to be considered for all purposes as fully pd up.
- Completion. 5. The sale shall be completed at L., in the sd State, on the — day of —, when the vendor shall duly transfer the scheduled premises to the coy or its nominees, and the certificates of title to the sd 5,000 shares, and the sd debentures, shall be handed over to the vendor.
- Transmission of certificates and debentures. 6. The coy shall, before the time for completion, execute the sd certificates and debentures, and transmit the same to L., there to be ready for issue at the time for completion. Each of the sd certificates shall comprise — shares, and the sd debentures shall be in the form set forth in the second schedule hto.

7. The coy shall also appoint some person in L. to be its attorney or agent, with full powers in relation to the completion of the sale, and shall notify such appointment to the vendor not less than — days before the time for completion. The coy shall cause such attorney or agent to transmit to it telegraphic information of the completion of the sd transfer. Form 49.
Agent.

8. Not less than — days before the time for completion the coy shall pay the sd sum of 20,000*l.* cash to J. & D. upon trust to place the same on deposit in their joint names at the — Bank, in the City of London, and to keep the same there deposited until they shall be satisfied that the scheduled premises have been duly transferred in accordance with 'ause 5 hof, and thereupon to withdraw the sd deposit and any interest, and pay the same to —, the vendor's agent in London, or as he shall direct. If — agreement shall be rescinded under clauses 2 or 11 hof, the sd deposit and interest shall be forthwith withdrawn and pd over to the coy. Deposit.

9. Possession of the scheduled premises shall be given to the coy at the time for completion, and the vendor shall in the meantime keep the same in good repair and condition, and shall work the mines and mills in as full and effectual manner as the same have hitherto been worked. As from the — day of — the vendor shall be deemed to have been carrying on the said mines and mills for the benefit of the coy; and he shall account to the coy for all moneys and other benefits received, and shall be indemnified by the coy against all expenses whilst so carrying on the same. Possession.

10. The vendor shall pay all the costs of and incidental to the preparation and execution of this agreement, and of the memorandum and articles of association of the coy, and of the registration thereof, and of all stamps, fees, and legal expenses incident to the formation of the coy, and generally of all preliminary expenses whatever incurred in relation to the coy up to the incorporation thereof; and if the result of the inspection to be made pursuant to clause 2 hof shall be unsatisfactory to the coy, or if the vendor shall fail to show a good title to the sd premises, the vendor shall also pay the costs, charges, and expenses incurred by the coy in relation to such inspection, but so that such last-mentioned costs, charges, and expenses shall not exceed £—. Vendor to pay preliminary expenses.

11. [Form 31, clause 14.]

12. For the purposes of this agreement any notice may be given to the vendor by leaving the same for him at the — Bank in L., or (at the option of the coy) by leaving the same at No. —, — Street, in the City of London; and any notice so left shall be deemed to have reached the vendor at the expiration of forty-eight hours after it is so left. Rescission.
Notices.

IN WITNESS, &c.

[Add schedules—(1) containing particulars of mines, &c., and (2) form of debenture.]

P.

C C

Form 50. AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, 1895, between the — Syndicate, Limtd (hmftr called "the Syndicate"), of the one pt. and A., of —, and B., of — (hmftr called "the purchasers"), of the other pt: WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:—

Option. 1. The purchasers or their assigns shall have the option of purchasing the concession, a translation whereof is set forth in the schedule hto, and all the interests of the syndicate therein.

When to be exercised. 2. The sd option shall be exercisable either by the purchasers or their assigns, by notice in writing to the syndicate at any time within three calendar months from the date hof, and if the purchasers or their assigns shall exercise the sd option the syndicate shall sell, and the purchasers or their assigns shall purchase, the sd premises on the terms hmftr expressed; and if the sd option is exercised by the assigns of the purchasers, then and in such case the purchasers shall not be in any way liable hereunder.

Consideration. 3. The consen for the sd sale shall be the sum of 50,000*l*.

Company. 4. Should the purchasers or their assigns exercise the sd option, the syndicate will, if required by the purchasers or their assigns, accept pd-up shares in a coy (hmftr called "the new coy"), forming 20 p.c. of its capital, and not by less than 50,000*l*., in satisfaction of the sd sum of 50,000*l*., provided—

(a) That the new coy is registered under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1890, as a coy limtd by shares.

(b) That the registered capital of the coy does not exceed 250,000*l*.

(c) That the new coy has a working capital of 50,000*l*.

(d) That the purchasers shall have exercised the option given them by clause 1 of this agreemt, and shall have resold the concession to the new coy, or in the alternative that the new coy, as the assigns of the purchasers, shall have exercised the sd option.

Conditions. 5. Until the time for completion hmftr mentd, or up to the expiration of the sd period of three calendar months, in case the sd option shall have been previously exercised, the syndicate shall comply with all the terms of the sd concession, and keep the same from becoming forfeited or void.

Completion. 6. If the purchasers or their assigns should exercise the sd option, the purchase shall be completed with all convenient speed thereafter, and before the — day of —, 1896, when possession of the land comprised in the sd concession shall be given to the purchasers or their assigns, as the case may be, and the syndicate shall execute and do all assurances and things for vesting the sd concession and all its interests therein in the purchasers or their assigns, and thereupon the sd consen shall be pd or satisfied, and possession shall, as soon as conveniently may be, be given to the purchasers or their assigns.

7. Should the sd option be exercised, the purchasers or their assigns shall, before the time hbefore fixed for completion, appoint some competent agent in East Africa, or send out such person there, to examine and report on the title of the sd concession, and to certify the transfer thereof; and a telegram from such agent, stating that the title is satisfactory and that the transfer is complete, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts. Form 50.
Agent.

8. The consen for the sd option shall be the sum of 500*l.* cash, to be pd by the purchasers immediately on the execution hof, and the sd sum shall be retained by the syndicate whether the sd option shall or shall not be exercised, and shall not in any case be treated as pd on account of the sd purchase consen. Payment.

9. Should the sd agent not report as to the title to the sd concession to the satisfaction of the purchasers or their assigns before the — day of —, 190 —, the purchasers or their assigns may, at any time thereafter before the completion of the sd purchase, by notice in writing to the syndicate, annul the sale; and if the sd purchase consen shall not be pd or satisfied at the time and in the manner afsd, then and in any such case the syndicate may at any time afterwards, by notice in writing to the purchasers or the new coy, as the case may require, annul the sale. Title.

10. If the sale is annulled under clause 9 hof by the purchasers or their assigns, the syndicate shall repay to the purchasers the sd sum of 500*l.*; but if such annulment is made by the syndicate, neither party shall have any claim against the other for expenses, damages, or otherwise. Repayment.

11. A notice hereunder may be served on each of the purchasers by sending the same through the post, addressed to him at his address above mentd, and shall be deemed to be served at the expiration of twenty-four hours after the same is posted in London. Notice.

IN WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED TO [copy translation of concession].

AGREEMENT for SALE of SHIP to SINGLE SHIP COMPANY.

Form 51.

Parties: A., B., and C., "the vendors" (1), and "the company" (2). Parties.

1. The vendors shall sell, and the coy shall purchase, the steamship specified in the schedule hto, together with all the gear, stores, and other effects, and the benefit of all contracts and engagements therein mentd. Sale.

Form 51.

Consideration.

2. The consen for the sd sale shall be 32,000*l.*, which shall be satisfied as to 3,000*l.* by crediting as paid up the eight shares which by the coy's memdm of assen, the subscribers thereto (including the vendors) have agreed to take up; and as to the balance (29,000*l.*) by the allotment to the vendors, in the proportion specified in the second schedule hto, of the remaining fifty-six shares in the coy's capital: such shares to be deemed for all purposes fully pd.

Sometimes the vendors and their friends subscribe the memorandum for all the shares.

Completion.

3. The purchase shall be completed on the — day of —, and thereupon the vendors shall transfer the sd steamship and premises to the coy, free from incumbrances.

No duty is payable on the sale, transfer, or other disposition of any ship or vessel, or interest or property therein. See Schedule to Stamp Act, 1891.

4. [See Form 31, clause 16.]

IN WITNESS, &c.

[Schedules—(1) giving particulars of ship, &c.; (2) showing how shares to be apportioned.]

Sometimes the agreement for sale provides for the appointment of some of the vendors as managers at specified remuneration; but it seems better not to disclose this in an agreement which must be filed. As to sale of ship at instance of share-owner where majority sell to a company, see Re Hereford, (1895) P. 284.

Form 52.

Satisfaction of part of price in paid-up shares.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, 1901, between A. B. of —, the vendor, of the one pt, and the — Coy, Limtd (hntfr called "the coy"), of the other pt, supplemental to a contract (hntfr called "the ppal contract"), dated the — day of —, and made between the same parties: WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. The sum of £—, pt of the cash portion of the price payable by the coy under clause 2 of the ppal contract, shall be satisfied by the allotment to the vendor of — fully pd-up shares in the coy of £— each, numbered — to — inclusive.

2. The ppal contract shall be varied accordingly.

3. This agreeent is conditional on the same being approved by the statutory meeting of the coy now about to be held.

As WITNESS, &c.

When it becomes necessary to vary a contract referred to in the prospectus such variation requires the approval of the statutory meeting. See sect. 83 of the Act of 1908, supra, p. 324.

AGREEMENT as to ISSUE of PAID-UP SHARES to VENDOR'S NOMINEES.

Form 53.

AN AGREEMENT made the --- day of ---, 1901, between A. B., of --- (hmftr called "the vendor"), of the first pt, and the --- Coy, Limtd (hmftr called "the coy"), of the second part, and C. D., of ---, of the third pt. WHEREAS by an agreement (hmftr called "the preliminary contract"), dated the --- day of ---, 19---, and made between the vendor, of the one pt, and the coy, of the other pt, provision was made for the sale to the coy of certain ppty, and pt of the consen for the sd sale was to be the allotment to the vendor or his nominees of --- fully pd-up shares in the coy of 1l. each, numbered --- to --- inclusive. AND WHEREAS the vendor desires to have divers of the sd shares allotted to the sd C. D. as his nominee, and to place the coy in a position to file a contract constituting the title of such allottees to such shares. NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:--

Issue of paid up shares to vendor's nominees.
Parties.

1. The coy shall as and when the time for the allotment of the sd shares shall arrive [or shall forthwith] allot the sd --- as such nominee --- fully pd-up shares, pt of the sd --- shares. Allotment.

2. The sd shares shall be numbered --- to --- inclusive. Numbers.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Where shares are to be allotted to the vendor's nominee, it appears to be desirable to make and file a supplemental contract as above constituting the title to allotment of the nominees; for sect. 88 of the Act of 1908 requires that in the case of shares allotted in whole or in part for a consideration other than cash a contract in writing "constituting the title of the allottee to such allotment" shall be filed, and imposes heavy pecuniary penalties on the directors and officials for non-compliance. See supra, pp. 64-66.

It is open to argument that the principal contract does not "constitute the title of the nominee to such allotment"; his title appears to be constituted by the contract plus the nomination; yet the section says, "constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment," not constituting wholly or in part the title of the allottee to the allotment. No doubt, where the section says "a contract," that would cover several successive contracts, as, for example, where the sale is for so many paid-up shares to be allotted to the vendor or his nominees, and afterwards, for valuable consideration, the vendor contracts to sell some of these shares, and to nominate the purchasers. The second contract would be a contract under which the title of the allottee to the allotment was constituted. So, too, where in the original contract the nominee is a cestui que trust of the vendor, and has therefore an equitable right to the allotment under the contract, that would be sufficient to constitute his title. The expression "a contract in writing" does not import that the writing must be signed by the vendor and the company and the allottee, but it must be a contract constituting the title of the allottee to such allotment. Accordingly, where there are several nominees, it is a common practice to make a supplemental contract between the parties to the original contract and some person purporting to act as trustee for and on behalf of the proposed allottees, and then to provide therein for allotment to them accordingly. In any case, it seems far better to preclude any question on the section than to leave the directors open to the risk of penalties accruing.

Form 53.

Sometimes an allotment is made to a nominee without filing any contract constituting his title to such allotment, and the question arises whether, after allotment, it is possible to make a contract "constituting" the title of the allottee to such allotment. It is difficult to see how this can be done. No doubt a contract purporting to confirm or ratify the agreement might be made and filed, but unless the allotment was in some sense irregular or voidable, it seems difficult to hold that such a contract "constitutes" the title. The allottee as nominee of the vendor may have a perfectly good title to the shares as paid-up shares, but penalties may nevertheless be running. It might, however, be possible to obtain an order from the Court extending the time for filing the requisite contract (see the proviso to sub-sect. (3) of sect. 88). For this purpose it would only be necessary to show that through inadvertence no contract constituting the title of the allottee had been made or filed, and the order having been obtained, the question would arise what about the previous allotment; that would not be invalidated, and the order merely extends the time for filing, and does not extend the time for making the contract, so that the ground is not completely cleared.

Another plan is to proceed under sub-sect. (2) of sect. 88 of the Act to file particulars of a contract which was not reduced to writing, but this has to be done within the month. Thus the making of a contract with the nominees of a trustee for them at the proper time, that is before allotment, is the only satisfactory course.

Form 54. AGREEMENT to ISSUE PAID-UP SHARES in SATISFACTION of DEBT DUE by COMPANY.

Recitals.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between the A. M. B. Coy, Limtd (hmftr called the A. Coy), of the one pt, and the C. D. and E. Coy, Limtd (hmftr called the C. Coy), of the other pt. WHEREAS by an agreement, dated the — day of —, and made between the C. Coy, of the one pt. and the A. Coy, of the other pt (being the agreemt No. 1 referred to in the introduction to the arts of asson of the A. Coy), the A. Coy agreed to pay the C. Coy for the works and matters undertaken by the C. Coy in connection with making and constructing a dock at — the sum of 225,000*l.*, whereof the sum of 75,000*l.* is payable by instalments in manner therein mentd: AND WHEREAS an instalment of 10,000*l.*, part of the sd last-mentd sum, will become payable to the C. Coy on the — day of — next:

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:

The A. Company to allot
1,000 shares;

1. The A. Coy shall, on or before the — day of — next, allot to the C. Coy 1,000 shares of 10*l.* each in the A. Coy, which shares shall be deemed, for all purposes, to be fully paid up, and shall be numbered in the books of the A. Coy with the numbers --- to --- inclusive.

Form 54.

to be deemed fully paid up:

2 The C. Coy shall accept the said shares in full satisfaction and discharge of the sd instalment of 10,000/., and of all claims and demands in respect thof.

and to be accepted by the C. Company instead of cash.

IN WITNESS, &c.

As the instalment is not presently payable, this agreement requires to be filed under sect. 88 of the Act of 1908. If the instalment were presently payable, the transaction would amount to a payment for the shares in cash, and it would not be necessary to file the agreement. Spargo's case, L. R. 8 Ch. 407; Laroche v. Beauchemin, (1897) A. C. 358. See supra, p. 68. But even then it would be expedient to file it for the benefit of transferees, who would thereby secure the preservation of evidence that the shares were in fact paid up in cash. See supra, p. 71. Where paid-up shares are to be issued in satisfaction of a debenture not yet due, a contract should be filed. Appleyard's case, 18 C. D. 587; Kent's case, 39 C. Div. 259. And see the notes on sect. 88 of the Act of 1908, supra, p. 65.

AGREEMENT by SUBSCRIBER to MEMORANDUM of ASSOCIATION to SELL his SHARE and HOLD IN TRUST.

Form 55.

AN AGREEMENT made the --- day of ---, between A. B. of ---, of the one pt, and the C. D. Coy, of --- (huftr called "the American coy"), of the other pt. WHEREAS the N. Coy. Limtd (huftr called "the English coy"), was registered under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1900, in the month of April, 1905. AND WHEREAS the said A. B. subscribed the memdum of asson of the English coy for one 10/ share. AND WHEREAS the sd A. B. is willing to sell the sd share to the American coy.

Agreement for sale of share and to hold in trust.
Recitals.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:

1. The sd A. B. shall sell, and the American coy shall purchase, the sd share in the English coy subscribed for by the sd A. B. as afd. Sale of share.

2. The consen for the sd sale shall be the sum of 10s. paid on the share. Price.
exon hof, the receipt of which sum the sd A. B. hby acknowledges.

3. Until the sd share shall have been transferred to the American coy or its nominee as huftr provided, the sd A. B. shall stand Vendor to hold in trust.
possessed thof in trust for the American coy, and shall from time to time exercise all rights incident to the ownership of the sd share in such manner as the American coy shall from time to time direct, and shall account to the coy for all dividends and other sums payable in respect of the sd share.

Form 55.Purchaser to indemnify.Signature of transfer.

Notice.

4. The American coy shall indemnify the sd A. B., his executors, administrators and assigns from and against all liabilities incident to the holding of the sd share.

5. The American coy shall be at liberty at any time to authorize any person to sign in the name and on behalf of the sd A. B. a transfer of the sd share to the American coy, or to a nominee or nominees of the American coy, and the American coy may delegate the authority hby conferred to any person or persons as it may from time to time think fit.

6. Any notice to the said A. . . may be given by sending the same through the post addressed to him at —, and any notice so given shall be deemed to be served on the day following that on which it is posted.

IN WITNESS, &c.

It is a misfeasance for a director to hold his qualification shares in trust for the promoter of the company. London and S. W. Coal Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 346.

Form 56.

AGREEMENT to take QUALIFICATION SHARES in PROPOSED COMPANY.

No. of Certificate—.

Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Contract to take qualification shares in a proposed
company.

Contract by directors to take and pay for qualification shares in —, Limtd, to be signed and filed pursuant to sect. 72 (1) (2) of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Presented for filing by —.

To the Registrar of Cos.

We, the undersigned, having consented to act as directors of the —, Limtd, do hby agree to take from the sd coy and pay for the — shares of — each, being the number of shares prescribed as the qualification for the office of director of the sd coy:—

Signatures.	Address.	Description.

Dated —.

Witness to the above signatures —.

Where upon the formation of a company (other than a private company) the articles appoint the first directors and require them to hold a share qualification, it is necessary before registration to comply with the requirements of sect. 72 of the Act of 1908. Accordingly, the directors must either subscribe the memorandum of association for the requisite qualification, or "sign and file with the Registrar a contract in writing to take from the company and pay for his qualification shares (if any)." The section does not say with whom the contract is to be made, but the Registrar is satisfied with a contract or document framed as above.

The instrument cannot well be treated as a contract with the Registrar, but it would seem to be a contract by the signatories with one another, each signing in consideration of the others signing. Whether the company is entitled to enforce the contract is open to question, for the contract is not made with the company or with a trustee for the company. See supra, pp. 7, 8. To justify the position and effectually bind the directors, it is sometimes deemed expedient to make a contract with a trustee for the proposed company as below.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A. of —, B. of —, C. of —, and D. of — (hereinafter called "the proposed directors"), of the one part, and M. as trustee for the company proposed to be formed as hereinafter mentioned, of the other part. WHEREAS it is proposed forthwith to register under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a company limited by shares, to be called the — Coy. Limited, with a capital of £ — divided into — shares of £ — each. AND WHEREAS the articles of association of the said company have been prepared and have been approved by the parties hereto, and by the said articles the said A., B., C. and D. are named as the first directors, and by such articles it is declared that the qualification of a director is to be the holding of shares in the company of the nominal value of £ —.

Form 56a.

Contract with trustee to take qualification in proposed company.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. Each of the proposed directors shall take from the company and pay for his qualification shares as aforesaid, and the company shall be at liberty to allot the same to him.

2. If the company shall not within — weeks from the date hereof become entitled to commence business, either of the proposed directors or the said M. may by notice in writing to the other parties hereto rescind this agreement.

3. The said M. shall use his best endeavours to procure the adoption hereof by the company.

AS WITNESS, &c.

Form 56b.

Agreement to take qualification shares by director not appointed by articles but named in prospectus.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A. of —, B. of —, C. of —, and D. of —, of the one pt, and the — Coy. Limtd (huftr called "the coy"), of the other pt. WHEREAS the sd A., B., C. and D. have been duly appointed by the subscribers to the memorandum of asson of the coy to be directors thof. AND WHEREAS by the arts of asson of the coy the qualification of a director is declared to be the holding of — shares; AND WHEREAS the coy is about to issue a prospectus inviting subscriptions for pt of its shares shares:

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. Each of them the sd A., B., C. and D. shall take from the coy and pay for his qualification shares asfd.
2. The coy shall allot the sd shares when and so soon as the shares taken up on the footing of cash payment plus the shares hby subscribed shall together amount to the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, and not before that time.
3. The proposed directors shall pay for their sd shares as to £ per share on allotment, and as to the balance by the instalments following, that is to say:
4. This agreement is provisional, and shall not be binding on the coy unless and until the coy shall be entld to commence business.

AS WITNESS, &c.

This agreement must be filed before the publication of the prospectus. (Companies Act, 1908, s. 72.) Such a contract should certainly be made with the company, and not merely between the directors. As to the appointment of directors by the subscribers of the memorandum, see p. 717, infra.

Form 57.

AGREEMENT on behalf of ORDINARY SHAREHOLDERS in a COMPANY for SALE to ANOTHER COMPANY of all the ORDINARY SHARES in an EXISTING COMPANY.

Parties.

Agreement on behalf of holders for the sale of ordinary shares and control of company
Definition of owner.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A. B. & Co. of — (huftr called "the firm"), on behalf of themselves and all the other owners of ordinary shares in the N — Co., Limtd. (huftr called "the Coy"), of the one pt, and the J. K. Coal Co., Limtd., of the other pt: WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. Throughout this agreement "owner of shares in the coy" includes not only any owner who at the time he ratifies is the registered holder of any ordinary shares in the coy, but any equitable owner who at the time he ratifies is entitled to any ordinary shares in the coy, and words importing the singular number shall be taken to include the plural, and vice versa, and words importing the masculine gender include the feminine, and words importing persons include corporations.

Form 57.

2. The firm and each of the other owners of ordinary shares in the coy shall sell, and the purchasers shall purchase the whole of the ordinary shares in the coy of such vendor on the terms following

3. The price to be paid for the ad ordinary shares shall be 50%. Price.
per share

4. Any owner of shares who desires to ratify this agreement must ratify the same in writing, and deliver such ratification to the firm on or before the day of but any owner of shares who prefers may abstain from ratification, but in such case shall be excluded from the operation of this agreement accordingly. How ratification to be made.

5. Unless by the day of the owners of ordinary shares in the coy shall have ratified and delivered such ratifications as aforesaid, then this agreement and any ratifications herof shall be void, unless the purchasers shall give notice in writing to the firm not later than the of that they desire the agreement and any ratifications aforesaid to remain in force. In absence of ratification agreement to be void.

6. As regards each of the owners of shares in the coy who shall have ratified this agreement as aforesaid, the purchase and sale as regards his shares shall be completed at the office of the firm, No Street, in the City of London, on the day of , when and where the purchasers are to pay the cash price aforesaid to the firm on behalf of the vendor, and the vendor or his agent is to hand over to the purchasers the certificate or certificates of title to the shares so sold, and to execute and procure all necessary parties to execute in favour of the purchasers, or in favour of their nominees, a proper and sufficient transfer of such shares. If for any reason other than default on the part of the vendor the purchase is not completed on that day, the purchase-money shall bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from that date until completion, and the purchasers shall pay such interest accordingly to the vendor or to the firm on his behalf. Completion.

7. The ratifying owners of ordinary shares in the coy and the firm are respy to use their best endeavours to procure each of the members of the present advisory committee to resign his office as such member, and the purchasers shall pay or procure to be paid to each resigning member of the advisory committee of the company, the sum of £— as compensation for loss of office, and he shall accept the same in full satisfaction of all claims on the coy in respect of such loss of office. The resignation of the advisory committee shall not take effect until new provisions have been made for the appointment of directors or other officers to carry on the business, and the firm and the other ratifying members shall use their best endeavours to procure such alterations in the articles of asson of the coy as the purchasers shall reasonably require. Resignation of directors.

Form 57.

Employés to continue.

Agent to continue.

Condition of
agreement.

Firm to communicate with shareholders.

8. The purchasers shall procure that all employés of the coy and of the firm shall be employed by the coy, and no employé who shall have been more than 10 years in the service before the — day of — and shall be under the age of — years shall be dismissed by the coy except for misconduct or incompetence for five years from that date unless reasonable compensation to be fixed in case of difference by arbitration shall be paid to him for his loss of office.

9. As far as practicable the present agents of the coy shall be retained.

10. This agreement is conditional:—

- (1) On the firm on completion resigning their office as managers of the coy; and
- (2) On the firm having entered into an agreement in writing with the purchasers in the terms of the agreement already approved by the parties hto to the effect that the firm shall not nor shall any member of the firm for a period of 10 years complete [&c.].

11. The firm shall communicate the terms of this agreement to the shareholders of the coy in so far as practicable, and shall recommend its ratification.

The firm shall forthwith after receipt thof communicate to the purchasers the several ratifications thof from time to time received by the firm and shall furnish the purchasers with such information as the firm may possess as to the respective ownership of the shares of such ratifying owners.

AS WITNESS, &c.

Circular Letter to the Members of the Company in relation to the above Agreement.

SIR OR MADAM,—We have the pleasure to inform you that we have received from — an offer to purchase the whole of the ordinary shares in the — Company, Limited, at the price of 50/. per share. As these terms are satisfactory, we have thought it desirable to embody them in a provisional agreement expressed to be made between ourselves on behalf of the shareholders of the one part, and — of the other part, so that all the shareholders who are satisfied with the terms may be in a position to ratify the agreement so far as their respective holdings are concerned, and thus become entitled to take the benefit of it.

A printed copy of the agreement is enclosed, and you will see that in order to ratify the agreement you must do so in writing and deliver such ratification to us before the — day of —, but that you are under no obligation to ratify, and, accordingly, that you may abstain from ratification as you think fit, in which case you will be excluded from the operation of the agreement. You will also observe that the agreement is conditional on our entering into an agreement with — binding ourselves not to be interested as managers or directors in any competing business. . . .

You will observe, &c. [disclosure of the advantages the firm obtains].

We consider that it would be desirable for all the shareholders to ratify the agreement inasmuch as the terms are liberal, and we intend ourselves individually to do so. If you desire to ratify the agreement you will be so good as to sign the form of ratification enclosed with print of the agreement in the place indicated, and return the same to us by post forthwith.

Form 57.

Form of Ratification.

I (or we) hereby ratify the agreement dated the — day of —, and made between — & Co. on behalf of themselves and all other holders of ordinary shares in the — Co., Ltd., of the one part, and — of the other part, for the sale of my (or our) ordinary shares in the — Co., Ltd.

Signature —.

Address —.

Description —.

Signature —.

Address —.

Description —.

In case of joint holdings all should subscribe.

Agreements for the Acquisition of Control over a Company.

Cases not infrequently occur in which it is desired by some person, firm or company to acquire control over another company, e.g. :—

- (1) In the case indicated in Form 57. Here it is supposed that Company A. desires to acquire the control over Company B., which is carrying on a rival business, or one which can best be worked in conjunction with the other. Company A. has debentures and preference shares of large amount, and it is not desired to interfere with them. The ordinary shares are also of large amount, and are worth in the market a considerable premium. The agreement therefore provides for the acquisition of the ordinary shares or the great bulk of them at a premium sufficient to attract ratifications, and it is subject to the ratification of the holders of ordinary shares or holders of, say, three-fourths of them, and there is to be power to rescind if less than, say, three-fourths ratify within a specified time. Assuming that three-fourths ratify, Company A., as owner of three-fourths of the shares, will have an effective control over Company B., assuming that the preference shareholders have no votes or a restricted vote which is not likely to cause inconvenience, and thus the two concerns will work in friendly alliance.
- (2) Another common case is that Company A. wants to acquire the shares in Company B., which is entitled to a concession of great value, and which is not transferable without the approval of a foreign government, and there is grave reason to apprehend difficulties in obtaining that concession unless upon onerous terms. It has preference shares, ordinary shares, and debentures outstanding. Company B. desires to acquire all the shares or the great majority thereof, and an agreement is accordingly prepared for the sale of all the shares at the market price and something beyond. The consideration to be satisfied by the issue of paid-up preference shares and paid-up ordinary shares in Company B., or it may be by the issue of debentures of Company B., or partly cash. The requisite majority ratify and the agreement is carried through, and thus the alliance is completed.

Form 57.

- (3) Sometimes Company A. desires to acquire several other concerns which it is considered could be worked with additional success if united, but it is desired to keep each concern as a separate concern, and not to disclose to the public the fact that they are united in interest. Accordingly, a provisional agreement is made for the acquisition of the ordinary shares in each for a cash price, and when the ordinary shares in each of those companies have been so acquired and have been transferred to nominees of the acquiring company that company will have effective control.

In most cases the terms of acquisition are provisionally arranged between the directors of the one concern and the directors of the other concern. It may be that what is desired will be ensured if the acquiring company acquires the whole of the ordinary shares in the other concern or the great bulk of them. Sometimes it is considered essential to acquire all the ordinary shares, and sometimes to acquire all the shares outstanding of whatever class, and the agreement has to be framed accordingly.

Several notable transactions of the kind have been carried through during the last few years. The plan has been in use for many years, and has the advantage of keeping alive the company over which it is desired to obtain control. Moreover, where the alternative is a sale under sect. 192, a plan for the acquisition of the shares, or the great bulk of them, is more elastic than a proceeding under sect. 192, seeing that under that section any shareholder who does not come in must, if he requires, be bought out by paying him arbitration value.

Again, where the company over which it is desired to obtain control has a large amount of loan capital at moderate rates of interest, it may be extremely desirable to avoid a reconstruction or amalgamation by sale and winding-up, seeing that in the result the debenture debt would mature whereas, if the control is obtained merely by the acquisition of the shares or the ordinary shares or the bulk of them the debenture debt is left undisturbed.

Again, it is convenient that if in the result the acquiring company gets nearly all the ordinary shares it will be in a position, where it is considered necessary to obtain the rest, to offer the holders more favourable terms and so complete the transaction.

Form 57a. AGREEMENT for TRANSFER of LIGHTING ORDER to NEW COMPANY.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between the Urban District Council of D., in the County of E. (hereinafter called the council), of the one part, and the — Company, Limited (hereinafter called the company) of the other part. WHEREAS the council being the local authority for the purposes of the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 and 1888, are applying to the Bd of Trade for a provisional order, to be called the D. & C. order, 1912 ("the order") to authorize the supply of energy as therein defined within the area of the urban district of D. & C. (hereinafter called "the area of supply") and contain, inter alia, the following provisos: power to transfer at any time within one year after commencement of this order or such extended period not exceeding in the whole 15 months as the B. of T. may allow, the undertakers may, with the consent of, and subjt to such terms and condons, and for such periods as may be approved by the B. of T. by deed, to be approved by the Board, transfer the undertakg authorized by this order to a coy to be regd under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to be called the D. Electric Co., Ltd., and on such transfer the rights, powers, authorities, obligons, and liabilities of the undertakers in respect of the undertakg shall, subjt to the provons contd in the deed of transfer, be transferred and may be exercised by and shall attach to that coy who shall, subjt to the provons of this order, become the undertakers for the pposes of this order as if the coy had been named thrin as the undertakers. AND WHEREAS the coy is about to promote and register a limited coy to be called, &c. ("the Electric Co.") for the ppose, amongst other things, of supplying electric energy for public and private pposes within the area of supply. Now IT IS AGREED by and betwn the parties hto as follows, that it is to say:—

Form 57a.

1. The council shall do everything necessary in their pver to obtain the issue by the B. of T. and the subsequent confirmon by Parliament of the order, and the before recited provons thrin with respect to transfer, and shall employ as their Parliamentary agents in the matter persons of, &c.

2. The council shall within six calendar months after date of confirmon by Parliament of the order, or if the B. of T. so requires prior to the grant of the order, promote and form the Electric Co. with such a subscribed capital as may satisfy the council and the B. of T. that the Electric Co. will be able to carry this agmt into effect; and the council, at the request of the coy, shall render to the coy any reasonable assistance and facility, other than pecuniary, in their power towards the formation of the coy and the establishmt of the undertakg.

3. The coy shall in any event, and whether the necessary consents and sanctions of the B. of T. and Parliamt resply shall be obtained, or whether the transfer (unless the same shall be prevented by the unreasonable action of the council) hnfr provided shall be made or orwise, pay all the costs, chges, and expes incurred or to be incurred in connection with the applicon to the B. of T. for the provisional order and its confirmon by Parliamt togr with any costs incurred by the council in connection with this agmt, such paymts to form and be the consn for the transfer of the order as hnfr provided.

4. Upon the negotiation and formation of the Electric Co. with such subscribed capital asfd and upon payment of all the sums of money referred to in cl. 3 of this agreemt, and subject to the issue and confirmon of the order as asfd (including the sd provon as to transfer of the order), and to the approval of the B. of T., the council

Form 57a. shall execute, and the Electric Co. shall take a transfer of all that the undertakg of the council under the order and the deed of transfer shall be in the form approved by the B. of T., and shall contain all the provons usual in such deeds, and in addition (subjt as next hnfr provided) the provons set forth in the schedule hto.

5. Provided, however, that if the B. of T. shall refuse to approve the deed of transfer containing all or any of the provons in the sd schedule the council and the coy shall be bound by such refusal, and the terms of this agreemt and of the sd deed shall be varied acedgly: Provided further, that, in any such case, the council and the Electric Co. shall, as a condon precedent to, and as a consen for the transfer of the order, enter into a supplementary agreemt under their respive common seals to carry out the several matters and things on their respive parts as in the sd schedule provided, and not contained in the sd deed: Provided also that, if for any reason (other than the unreasonable conduct of the council) the sd transfer shall not be made within the period allowed therefor by the order, neither the coy nor the Electric Co. shall have any claim whatever agst the council either for the transfer of the undertakg or costs or expenses or otherwise, nor shall the council have any claim agst the coy or the Electric Co., but the order and the undertakg shall be and remain the ppty of the council as fully and effectually as if the order had contd no provon as a transfer and this agreemt had not been entered into.

THE SCHEDULE above referred to.

Here set out the provisions mentd at end of clause 4.]

Sometimes the consideration or part of the consideration for a sale is the issue of debentures to registered holders as below.

Form 58.

Registered
debentures,
one of a series.

THE ——— LIMITED.

Issue of £—— debentures (— debentures of £—— each) carrying interest at the rate of ——— per cent per annum.

No. ———.

£——.

Debenture.

1. For valuable consideration already received the ——— Coy, Limited (hereinafter called the company) will on the ——— day of ——— or on such earlier day as the principal moneys hereby secured become payable in accordance with the condons indorsed hereon pay to — of — or other the registered holder for the time being Form 58.

the sum of £—.

2. The company will during the continuance of this security pay to such registered holder interest on the said sum of £— at the rate of — per cent. per annum by half-yearly payments on the day of — and — day of — in each year, and the first of such half-yearly payments will be made on the — day of — next.

3. The company hereby charges with such payments its undertaking and all its property, present and future, including its uncalled capital.

The above words create what is called a floating charge, which, as it were, hangs over the whole of the property charged but leaves the company at liberty to deal with it in the ordinary course of business until the charge crystallizes by the appointment of a receiver or the commencement of a winding up. See Re Panama, &c. Co. (1870), L. R. 5 Ch. 318; Government Stock Co. v. Manila Railway Co., (1897) A. C. at p. 97; Wheatley v. Silkstone Co., 29 C. D. 715.

1. This debenture is issued subject to and with the full benefit of the conditions indorsed hereon, which are to be deemed part of it.

GIVEN, &c.

The Conditions within referred to:

1. This debenture is one of a series of debentures of the company Conditions. for securing principal sums not exceeding in the aggregate at any one time £—. The debentures of the said series, whether original or not, are all to rank pari passu as a first charge on the undertaking of the company without any preference or priority one over another, and such charge [save as regards the specifically mortgaged premises comprised in the indro below mentioned] is to be a floating security. If so desired, say: but the company shall not be at liberty to create any mortgage or charge ranking in priority to or pari passu with the charge hereby created.]

A floating charge operates as an immediate and continuing charge on the property charged, subject only to the company's power to deal with the property in the ordinary course of its business. Florence Land Co., 10 C. D. 541; Standard Manufacturing Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 627. Unless otherwise agreed, the floating charge leaves the company at liberty to create specific mortgages or charges ranking in priority to the floating charge (Wheatley v. Silkstone Co., (1885), 29 C. D. 715; Castell v. Brown, (1898) 1 Ch. 315), but a floating charge does not take priority over an execution creditor where the execution is levied before the charge crystallizes. Evans v. Rival Granite Quarries, (1910) 2 K. B. 979. Nevertheless, it takes priority over the general creditors whether in a winding-up or otherwise. General South American Co., 2 C. D. 337. Where there is a prohibition against mortgaging or charging in priority, a mortgagee who takes without notice of the prohibition may, nevertheless, obtain priority. English and Scottish, &c. Trust v. Brunton, (1892) 2 Q. B. (C. A.) 799; Castell v. Brown, (1898) 1 Ch. 315.

Form 58.

Sect. 112 of the Act of 1908 qualifies the operation of a floating charge where a winding-up commences within three months after its creation. See that section and Columbian Fire-Proofing Co., (1910) 1 Ch. 758, and Orleans Motor Co., (1911) 2 Ch. 41.

2. A register of the debentures will be kept at the company's registered office wherein there will be entered the names, addresses and descriptions of the registered holders and particulars of the debentures held by them respectively, and such register will at all reasonable times during business hours be open to the inspection of the registered holder hereof and his legal personal representatives and any persons authorized in writing by him or them.

3. Save as in these conditions provided, the registered holder hereof or his legal personal representatives will be regarded as exclusively entitled to the benefit of this debenture, and all persons may act accordingly, and the company shall not be bound to enter in the register notice of any trust, or, save as herein otherwise provided and except as ordered by some Court of competent jurisdiction or as by statute required, to recognize any trust or equity affecting the title to this debenture or the moneys hereby secured.

4. Every transfer of this debenture must be in writing under the hand of the registered holder hereof, or his legal personal representatives. The transfer must be delivered at the registered office of the company, with a fee of 2s. 6d., and such evidence of identity or title as the company may reasonably require, and thereupon, if this debenture remains registered in the name of the transferor, the transferee will be recognized as having become entitled to the benefit of this debenture free from any equities, set-off, or cross-claims which, but for this provision, the company would be entitled to set up against the transferor, and the transfer will be registered, and a note of such registration will be indorsed hereon. The coy shall be entitled to retain the transfer.

5. In the case of joint registered holders, the principal moneys and interest hereby secured shall be deemed to be owing to them on a joint account.

6. No transfer will be registered during the seven days immediately preceding either of the half-yearly days by this debenture fixed for payment of interest.

7. In respect of each half-year's interest on this debenture, a warrant on the company's bankers, payable to the order of the registered holder hereof, or in case of joint holders to the order of that one whose name stands first on the register, as one of such joint holders, will be sent by post to the registered address of such registered holder, and the coy shall not be responsible for any loss in transmission, and the payment of the warrant, if purporting to be duly indorsed, shall be a good discharge to the company.

8. The principal moneys and interest hereby secured will be paid, and such moneys are to be transferable as aforesaid free from and without regard to any equities between the company and the original or any intermediate holder hereof, or any set-off or cross-claims, and the receipt of the registered holder hereof, or his legal personal representatives, for such principal moneys and interest shall be a good discharge to the company for the same.

Form 58.

Prima facie a debenture being a chose in action is only assignable subject to all equities between the company and the original subscriber (Mangles v. Dixon, 3 H. L. C. 702; Lyell v. Rowles (1748), 1 Ves. 348; Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25 (6)), but this rule yields where the intention that the chose in action should be assignable free from and unaffected by such equities is made clear. Agra, &c. Bank (1865), 2 Ch. 397. Accordingly, a clause as above is effective.

9. The company may at any time give notice in writing to the registered holder hereof, or his legal personal representatives, of its intention to pay off this debenture, and upon the expiration of six calendar months from such notice being given the principal moneys hereby secured shall become payable.

10. The principal moneys hereby secured shall immediately become payable:—

- a) If the company makes default for a period of six calendar months in the payment of any interest hereby secured, and the registered holder hereof, or his legal personal representatives, before such interest is paid, by notice in writing to the company calls or call in such principal moneys; or
- (b) If an order is made or an effective resolution is passed for the winding-up of the company.

11. At any time after the principal moneys hereby secured become payable, [or after the security constituted by the indenture below mentioned becomes enforceable] the registered holder of this debenture may from time to time, [with the consent in writing of the holders of the majority in value of the outstanding debentures of the said series, appoint by writing any person or persons] [approved by the trustees or trustee of the said indenture] to be a receiver or receivers of the property charged by the debentures of this series and not comprised in such indenture, and may [with the like consent] remove any such receiver, and such appointment or removal shall be as effective as if all the holders of debentures of the same series had concurred therein. And a receiver or receivers so appointed shall have power—

- (1) To take possession of, collect, and get in the property charged by the debentures, and for that purpose to take any proceedings in the name of the company or otherwise as may seem expedient.

Form 58.

- (2) To carry on or concur in carrying on the business of the company, and for that purpose to raise money on the premises charged in priority to the debentures or otherwise.
- (3) To sell or concur in selling any of the property charged by the debentures after giving to the company at least seven days' notice of his intention to sell, and to carry any such sale into effect by conveying in the name and on behalf of the company.
- (4) To make any arrangement or compromise which he or they shall think expedient in the interests of the debenture holders.

And all moneys received by such receiver or receivers shall, after providing for the matters specified in the first three paragraphs of clause 8 of sect. 24 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, and for the purposes aforesaid, be applied in or towards satisfaction pari passu of the debentures [or paid over to the trustees or trustee of the said indenture to be held on the trusts by that indenture declared of and concerning the moneys to arise from the execution of the primary trust for conversion as therein defined.] [And the foregoing provisions in this condition shall take effect as and by way of variation and extension of the provisions of sects. 19 to 24 of the said Act, which provens so varied and extended shall be regarded as incorporated herein.]

Such a provision as above is effective. Henry Pound, Son & Hutchins (1882), 42 C. D. 402 (C. A.).

12. [The holders of the debentures of the above issue are, and will be, entitled pari passu to the benefit of and subject to the provisions contained in an indenture dated the — day of —, and made between the company of the one part and — and — of the other part.]

This clause should be omitted if there is no trust deed.

13. [Where there is no trust deed it is usual to insert here a clause enabling a majority of three-fourths to bind the whole class of debenture holders.]

14. The principal moneys and interest hereby secured will be paid at the — Bank, Limited, No. —, — Street, London, or] at the registered office of the company.

This clause gives the holders an option. Thom v. City Rice Mills (1889), 40 C. D. 357.

15. A notice may be served by the coy upon the registered holder of this debenture by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to such person at his registered address, and shall be deemed to have reached such holder on the day following that on Form 58. which it is posted, and in proving such service it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed and put into the post-office.

See Part III. of this work as to the law and practice relating to debentures and debenture stock, with forms.

AGREEMENT for FUNDING ARREARS of DIVIDEND on PREFERENCE SHARES. (No clause in Articles of Association for modifying rights of any class of shareholders.) To be sanctioned by the Court under sect. 120 of the Act. Form 58a.

AN AGREEMENT made on the --- day of ---, 19---, between Parties. A. B., on behalf of all the holders of preference shares in the B. Coy. Limtd (hntfr referred to as "the coy"), of the first pt, C. D., on behalf of all the holders of ordinary shares in the coy of the second pt. and the B. Coy. Limtd, afsd, of the third pt. AND WHEREAS Recitals. there are large arrears of preference dividend on the company's preference shares, and it is desired to fund the sd arrears as hntfr provided.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. The coy shall, when this agreemt has been sanctioned as hntfr provided, issue to each holder of preference shares a funding certificate for so much of the arrear of dividend afsd as shall be owing in respect of the preference shares held by him, or at his option several funding certificates each for a portion of such amount afsd, and every such funding certificate shall be framed in the terms set forth in the schedule hto, and the principal sums specified in every such certificate shall be a sum equal to the amount of the arrear afsd in respect of which such certificate is issued, and such certificate or certificates shall be in satisfaction of the sd arrears, and the sd arrears up to the --- day of --- shall be cancelled. Issue of funding certificates.

2. The principal sum specified in each such certificate shall carry Interest. interest at the rate of 3 p.c.p.a., but such interest, as regards each year, shall be payable exclusively out of the surplus profits of the coy of that year which shall remain after paying the dividend on the preference shares in the coy to the close of such year, and shall not be cumulative.

Form 58a.Rights in winding-up.

3. In the event of a winding-up of the coy, the principal sum mentd in the sd certificates shall be pd off out of the surplus assets of the English coy which shall remain after paying off the capital pd up on the preference shares in the original capital, and shall rank for payment in priority to any return of capital on the ordinary shares.

4. This agreemt is conditional on the same being sanctioned by the Court as an arrangement under sect. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and if it is not so sanctioned before the — day of — it shall on that day become void.

See further, supra, p. 380.

AS WITNESS, &c

SCHEDULE

See next Form.

Sometimes instead of issuing funding certificates the arrears are extinguished. It is now allowable to issue paid-up shares in satisfaction of the arrears. Fanning Co. v. Bury, (1910) A. C. 439.

Form 59.Funding
certificate.

THE — COY, LIMTD.

Funding Certificate.

Issue of funding certificates not exceeding 22,500*l.*, carrying interest at 3 p.c.p.a. subject as below mentd.

Funding certificate for the principal sum of £—

1. This certificate is issued in respect of the preference shares in the coy, numbered — to — inclusive, and in satisfaction of an arrear of dividend thereon up to the — of —, 19—.

2. The sd principal sum above mentd carries interest at the rate of 3 p.c.p.a., payable half-yearly on the — day of —, and the — day of —, out of the surplus profits of the coy of each year which shall remain after paying or providing for the payment of the dividend on the preference shares in the coy at the close of each year, and such interest is not to be cumulative.

3. In the event of the winding-up of the coy, the principal sum mentd in this certificate will be pd off. &c. as in clause 3 of the agreemt.

1. This certificate is issued to —, of —, and he, or other the registered holder for the time being hof., will be entld to the benefit thof.

Form 59.

5. This certificate is issued subject to the conditions indorsed hereon, which shall be deemed part of it
Given, &c.

The conditions within referred to:

Here provide for a register of the certificate holders, and as to forms of transfer, majority, &c., somewhat on the lines of a registered debenture. See Form 58, supra.

See further as to arrangements with classes of shareholders, "Arrangements," Chapter XXIII., infra.

AGREEMENT for satisfying PREFERENCE DIVIDENDS for a TERM by the issue of DEBENTURE STOCK where a MAJORITY CLAUSE is in ARTICLES.

Form 60.

AN AGREEMENT, made the — day of —, between A. B., of, &c., Parties.
on behalf of the holders of the preference shares in the coy below mentd of the first pt, the sd A. B. on behalf of the holders of the ordinary shares in the sd coy of the second pt, and the — Coy, Limtd (huftr called "the coy") of the third pt. WHEREAS the Recital capital of the coy is 500,000L., divided into 25,000 preference shares of 10L. each and 25,000 ordinary shares of 10L. each: AND WHEREAS all the sd shares have been issued and are fully pd up: AND WHEREAS by paragraph (c) of Article 110 of the arts of asson of the coy, the directors thof have power, before recommending any dividends, to set aside, out of the profits of the coy, such sum as they think proper as a reserve fund for the purposes therein mentd. and such reserve fund may, with the sanction of the coy in general meeting, be in whole or in part distributed by way of bonus among the members in such manner as such general meeting shall determine: AND WHEREAS by Article 113 of the sd arts of asson, the net profits of the coy in each year shall be applicable, first, in payment of a cumulative preferential dividend of 6 p.c.p.a. upon the amount credited or pd up on the preference shares of the coy, and subject thereto, shall be applicable in payment of dividends upon the amount credited as pd up on the ordinary shares of the coy: AND WHEREAS by Article 72 of the sd arts of asson, it is provided that if at any time, by the issue of preference

Form 80.

shares or otherwise, the capital is divided into shares of different classes, all or any of the rights and privileges belonging to any class may be affected, altered, modified, or dealt with in any manner with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution as defined by sect. 69 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, passed at a separate general meeting of the members of that class, and that to any such general meeting all the provisions of the sd articles shall mutatis mutandis apply, but so that the necessary quorum shall be one-tenth in number of the members of the class holding or representing by proxy one-tenth of the capital pd or credited as pd on the issued shares of the class: AND WHEREAS the sd cumulative preferential dividend in respect of the sd preference shares has been pd up to the 10th day of January, 19—: AND WHEREAS the sd cumulative preferential dividend is payable in equal half-yearly instalments on the 10th day of January and 10th day of July in each year: AND WHEREAS the coy has been so far successful in its business as to have pd out of its profits, in addition to the above dividend, in respect of the sd preference shares, an average dividend per year since its incorporation in 18—, of more than 8 p.c. on the capital pd up on its ordinary shares: AND WHEREAS it has become the practice in the district in which the coy carries on business for brewery cos to make advances to saloon keepers and others with a view to obtaining or keeping their custom, and the coy has been compelled to adopt this custom, and has found the adoption thereof advantageous to its business: AND WHEREAS it is necessary to continue this practice, and for the purpose the coy requires further working capital: AND WHEREAS in present circumstances it is not practicable to raise such further working capital from outside sources except on onerous terms: AND WHEREAS it is considered that the most economical mode of providing the amount required is to retain in hand a sufficient part of the coy's accruing income, which would otherwise be available for dividend: AND WHEREAS in the circumstances it is considered that it is desirable to make provision for funding for a limited period the accruing dividend on the preference shares afsd

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

Next dividend may be satisfied
as debenture stock

1. The coy shall satisfy the dividend on the preference shares which will become payable on the 10th July, 19—, as and declared, by issuing to each of the holders of preference shares debenture stock of the coy to the amount of such dividend and so any fraction of a shilling shall be pd in cash

So as to subsequent dividends.

2. The coy shall as regards each of the five next full yearly dividends on the sd preference shares, if the directors coy or the majority of them shall in the interests of the coy consider expedient, be at liberty to satisfy such dividend, as and when decided in like manner.

3. The debenture stock aforesaid shall be part of the £100,000/- p.c. debenture stock of the Coy which is forthwith to be constituted and secured by deed poll framed in accordance with the above which has already been approved by the parties hereto.

Form 60.

Sum of debenture
stock.

4. Whenever the Coy shall have to the extent satisfies any half-year's dividend on any preference shares by the issue of debenture stock as aforesaid it shall be precluded from paying any dividend for such half year on its ordinary shares.

Dividend ordinary
shares.

5. This agreement is intended to bind the shareholders in the Coy and their shares in the capital of the Coy and also their respective successors in title, owners for the time being of their shares.

Whom to bind.

6. The Coy shall have the custody of this agreement, and shall, as soon as the same becomes absolute, cause a note to be indorsed thereon of the fact of the same having become absolute.

Custody

7. This agreement will become absolute

When absolute.

1. If before the 31st day of October 19... separate general meetings of the holders of the said preference shares and the ordinary shares shall sanction the same by extraordinary resolution in accordance with clause 69 of the said Memorandum of Association.

2. If before the 31st day of October, 19... aforesaid, a special resolution of the Coy shall have been passed sanctioning this agreement.

IN WITNESS whereof the said A. has hereunto set his hand, and the Coy has caused its common seal to be affixed the day and year first above written.

AGREEMENT by DEBENTURE HOLDERS to extend TIME for PAYMENT where no MAJORITY CLAUSE.

Form 61.

AGREEMENT made the... day of..., between the... Coy, Parties.
1 (herein called "the Coy"), of the one pt, A. B., on behalf of holders of the debentures of the Coy for 20,000/- now outstanding, in other pt. WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:

The time for payment of the ppal monies secured by the said outstanding debentures of the Coy shall be extended to the... of 1935, and all the said debentures shall from henceforth be...
and construed and take effect as if that date were substituted thereon for the 20th December, 1912, being the date originally fixed therein for payment.

Time extended

2. The Coy shall use its best endeavours to procure all the holders of the said debentures to ratify this agreement, and it shall be binding on those who ratify so far as concerns their debentures aforesaid respy.

Ratification

Form 61.

Avoidance.

3. Unless within -- days from the date of the holders of nine-tenths in value of the sd debentures shall ratify this agreement, it shall thereupon become void.

Debentures to be indorsed.

4. Each debenture holder and who ratifies this agreement must forthwith give up his debenture to the coy in order that a memorandum referring thereto may be indorsed thereon.

AS WITNESS the common seal of the coy and the hand of the sd A. B. the day and year, &c.

An agreement as above having been sealed by the company and signed by A. B. (not sealed by him), printed copies can be sent out to the debenture holders, and they can be asked to sign at the foot a note as follows:

Ratification.

"I, — of —, being a holder of debentures of the coy for £—, numbered —, do hereby ratify the agreement of which the above is a copy."

Each debenture holder should then send in his debenture to be endorsed, and a memorandum should be put thereon as follows:—

"Memorandum.—That by an agreement dated the — day of —, and made between the above company of the one part, and A. B., on behalf of all the then holders of debentures of the company for 20,000/. (including the then holder of this debenture), of the other part, it was agreed that the time for payment of the said debentures of the company, including the within debenture, should be extended to the — day of —, 1935, and that the said debenture should be read and construed and take effect as if that date had been substituted for the 20th December, 1912, originally therein fixed as the time for payment, and such agreement was duly ratified by —, the then holder of the within debenture."

Form 62.

AGREEMENT by DEBENTURE HOLDERS allowing creation of PRIOR LIEN DEBENTURES and making INTEREST on existing DEBENTURES payable for FIVE YEARS out of PROFITS only (majority clause).

Debentures now constantly contain a clause enabling a certain majority by resolution to bind the rest to a compromise or modification of their rights in this way: but an agreement is useful to recite and explain the circumstances giving occasion to the resolution. See infra, p. 413; Precedents, vol. III., p. 373.

Parties.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, 19 —, between A. B. on behalf of the holders of the original debentures hereinafter mentioned, of the one pt. and the — Coy. Limtd (hereinafter called "the coy"), of the other pt. WHEREAS the coy was incorporated in the year 19 —, and has a nominal capital of 500,000/., divided into 50,000 shares of 10/ each, all of which shares have been allotted and are fully paid up

Recitals.

Form 62.

AND WHEREAS the coy has issued 270,000*l.* of debentures, hntfr referred to as the original debentures, and such debentures are secured by an indenture, hntfr referred to as the existing trust deed, dated the --- day of ---, 19---, and made between the coy of the one pt and C. and D. of the other pt: AND WHEREAS the said debentures carry interest at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a. payable half-yearly on the --- day of ---, and --- day of ---: AND WHEREAS the business of the coy has not been successful, and the net revenue from such business is wholly inadequate to pay the interest on the sd existing debentures, moreover the coy has lost a considerable portion of its pd-up capital and it is taking steps to cancel the same: AND WHEREAS the coy is in urgent need of further funds, to the extent of 50,000*l.* or thereabouts, for carrying on its business, and unless such further funds can be raised the coy will have to stop, and stoppage would, it is apprehended, disastrously affect the security of the holders of the existing debentures: AND WHEREAS it is considered impossible to raise such further funds except upon the security of debentures ranking in point of security in priority to the existing debentures, and upon the footing that the rights of the holders of the existing debentures shall be modified as hntfr provided, so that the coy may have an opportunity of working and developing its business and bringing it into a paying condition without depleting its resources by paying the interest on the existing debentures out of capital.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

1. The coy shall, as soon as this agreemnt shall become absolute, as hntfr provided, be at liberty to issue further debentures to the aggregate amount of 50,000*l.*, carrying interest at such rate, not exceeding 5 p.c.p.a., as the coy may fix, and having priority in point of charge on the undertaking and assets of the coy over the sd existing debentures of the aggregate amount of 270,000*l.* and the securities for the same. Each of the sd further debentures shall be framed in accordance with the form set forth in the schedule hto. Prior lien debentures may be created.
2. The sd further debentures shall be secured by a trust deed (hntfr called "the new deed"), framed in accordance with the draft which is already prepared and approved of by the parties hto, and expressed to be made between the coy of the first pt, the said C. and D. of the second pt, and E. and F. of the third pt, and the trustees of the existing deed shall concur in and execute such new deed. How secured.
3. The interest on the existing debentures due the 1st of July, 1908, shall be released, and the holders of the existing debentures shall resply surrender to the coy to be cancelled the coupons referring to such interest. Interest when payable.
4. For the term of five years, as from the 1st July, 19---, the interest payable on the sd existing debentures shall be payable exclusively out of the profits of the coy as follows, that is to say, the net profits Out of profits.

Form 62. of the coy for the half-year ending the 31st of December next, and for each succeeding half-year, shall be ascertained by a profit and loss account which shall be made out as soon as practicable after the close of each half-year, and in ascertaining such net profits the account shall be credited with the gross profit, and shall be debited with all outgoings for rates, taxes, wages, and other outgoings necessary or properly incurred in carrying on the business, and with a reasonable deduction for depreciation of plant, machinery, and patents, and with the interest on the new debentures, and with any other current interest except the interest on the existing debentures, and the credit balance, if any, shall be regarded as the net profit of the half-year for purposes hof. And such credit balance shall be applied in or towards the payment of the interest on the existing debentures for the half-year comprised in such account, and if such credit balance shall be insufficient to pay such interest in full, the interest for the half-year shall be reduced accordingly; and if there shall be no credit balance for such half-year there shall be no interest on the debentures for that half-year.

Accounts. 5. The coy shall, with all convenient speed after the close of such half-year afsd, furnish the treas or trce of the existing trust deed with a full and correct profit and loss account, showing the amount of net profit for such half-year ascertained as afsd, and shall procure such account to be certified as correct by the auditors of the coy, and such certificate shall be conclusive.

Indorsement. 6. If this agreemt becomes absolute, notice thereof shall, as soon as such extraordinary resolution as is hntf mentd shall have been passed, and the new deed shall have been executed, be indorsed on each of the said existing debentures, and the holders thof shall deliver the same to the coy for the purpose of such indorsement being made accordingly.

Operation. 7. If this agreemt becomes absolute, it shall take effect and operate by way of modification of the rights of the holders of the existing debentures, and of the provisions contained in the existing trust deed. And the treas shall concur with the coy in executing a supplemental trust deed in the terms of the draft which has already been prepared by Messrs. —.

Extra-ordinary resolution. 8. This agreemt shall become absolute as soon as it shall be sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, as defined in the third schedule to the ppal indenture, passed at a meeting of the holders of the existing debentures, as therein provided, and if it does not become absolute within — days from the date thof, this agreemt shall thereupon become void.

Consideration. 9. In conson of the premises the coy shall use its best endeavours to procure the passing of the sd extraordinary resolution, and the placing of the sd 50,000*l*. new debentures.

As witness the common seal of the coy, and the hand of the sd Form 62.
A. B., the --- day, &c.

THE SCHEDULES above referred to.

The above is a specimen of an agreement made with a view to binding debenture holders by majority provisions in the trust deed securing the same. See Part III. As a general rule it is convenient and desirable to deal with such matters by provisional agreement, and then to pass an extraordinary resolution (see Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 69 (1)) ratifying the agreement. See Form in Part III. The reason is that the agreement affords an opportunity of placing on record the circumstances on which the resolution is passed.

Sometimes the quorum under the deed is too large, or for other reasons it is thought better to proceed under sect. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. In any such case a clause will be substituted for clause 8 making the agreement conditional on the same being sanctioned as an arrangement under sect. 120 of the Act, and then application will be made to the Court to direct the calling of meeting. See infra, "Arrangements," Chapter XXIII.

AGREEMENT to SATISFY BONUS by ISSUE of PAID-UP SHARES. Form 63.

AN AGREEMENT made, &c. between the ---, Limtd (herein called "the coy"), of the one part, and A., of ---, on behalf of himself and all the other holders of ordinary shares in the capital of the coy and as trustee for them, of the other part. WHEREAS, at an extraordinary general meeting of the coy, held on the 24th day of January, 1908, it was resolved as follows, that is to say:—

Agreement to satisfy declared bonus in paid-up shares.

That it is desirable to capitalize the sum of 100,000*l.*, being part of the undivided profits of the coy standing to the credit of the coy's reserve fund, and accordingly that a bonus of 10*s.* per share free of income tax on each of the issued ordinary shares be and the same is hereby declared, and that the directors be and they are hereby authorized to satisfy such bonus by the distribution amongst the members holding ordinary shares rateably of 100,000 of the unissued 1*l.* ordinary shares in the coy, credited as fully paid in satisfaction of such bonus.

AND WHEREAS, pursuant to clause --- of the coy's arts of association, the said A. has been duly authorized by the directors of the coy, on behalf of the holders of the ordinary shares aforesaid, to enter into this agreement: AND WHEREAS the names of the holders of ordinary shares in the coy are specified in the schedule hto:

Form 63.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

Allotment.

1. The coy shall allot and issue to each of the persons named in the schedule hto the number of new ordinary shares of 1*l*. each (part of the sd 100,000 ordinary shares) set opposite his or her name in the second column of the same schedule, and where in such schedule several persons are bracketed as joint holders they shall be considered one person for the purposes of this clause.

Numbering.

2. The said shares shall be numbered — to — inclusive, and shall be credited as fully paid up.

Fractional certificate.

3. The coy shall also allot to each of the said holders the fractional certificate (if any) set opposite his or her name in the third column of the same schedule, and each of the said fractional certificates shall be framed so that the bearer of every two of them shall be entld on presentation thof to the coy within — weeks from the date hof to call for an allotment of one fully pd-up ordinary share in the capital of the coy.

Satisfaction.

4. The sd shares so credited and fractional certificates shall be accepted in satisfaction of the sd bonus.

AS WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULE ABOVE REFERRED TO.

Names of shareholders, joint holders being bracketed.	Number of shares to be allotted to each.	Number of fractional certificates (if any to be allotted.

Form 64.

Agreement as to requisition and general meeting.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between A. B., on behalf of all the shareholders in the above-named coy (huftr called "the coy"), except the present directors thof, and C. D., E. F. and G. H., huftr mentd, of the one pt, and C. D. of —, E. F. of —, and G. H., of —, of the other or second pt.

WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:-

1. The sd C. D., E. F., and G. H. are to use their best endeavours to procure the signature by the requisite number and proportion of shareholders in the coy of the requisition for a general meeting, framed in accordance with the form set forth in the schedule hto which is now in course of signature, and shall, when such requisition has been so signed, deposit the same at the registered office of the coy.

Form 64.

2. If the directors of the coy do not proceed to cause a meeting to be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited, the requisitionists or the majority of them in value are to convene the same, and the sd C. D., or failing him the sd E. F., or failing him the sd G. H. is to be considered to be appointed by the requisitionists for the purpose of signing the requisite notice convening such meeting to be held within three months from the date of such deposit.

3. Each member who ratifies this agreement shall, if so required by the sd C. D., E. F., and G. H., sign the requisition and also two proxy forms (one for each of the two meetings), and shall be deemed to authorize the secretary to fill up the blanks therein.

4. Should any resolution be passed at the meeting aforesaid, whether convened by the board of directors or by the requisitionists, which in order to have effect requires to be confirmed as a special resolution, and the directors do not convene the meeting within seven days from the date of the passing of the first resolution, then and in such case the sd C. D., E. F., and G. H. shall convene the same, and for that purpose the sd C. D., or failing him the sd E. F., or failing him the sd G. H., is to be considered to be appointed by the requisitionists for the purpose of signing the requisite notice convening such meeting.

As witness the hands of the parties hto this day of —.

THE SCHEDULE above referred to [see next Form].

See sect. 66 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, giving a statutory right to holders of the issued share capital to have a general meeting called.

As to blank proxies, see Form 251, note to clause 81.

THE ——— COMPANY, LIMITED.

Form 65.

To the Directors of the above-named coy.

Take notice that we, the undersigned shareholders in the above-named coy, holding in the aggregate not less than one-tenth of the issued capital of the sd coy upon which all calls or other sums due have been pd, do hereby require you to convene an extraordinary general meeting of the above-named coy for the objects following, that is to say:

- (1.) To pass a resolution to the effect that the meeting is dissatisfied with the conduct of the directors and calls on them to retire, and determines that it is inexpedient that they should be allowed to act any further as directors of the coy.
- (2.) To pass a resolution to the effect that no sale of the coy's patents is to be made without the sanction of a general

Requisition for extraordinary general
meeting.
Sect. 66 of
Act of 1908.

Form 65.

meeting, and in particular that the proposed sale to Mr. L— F—, a shareholder in the coy, is not to be made without such sanction.

- (3.) To select — shareholders in the coy to act as a protective committee and to pass a resolution appointing such persons to be a committee and vesting in them such powers as may seem to the meeting expedient in the interests of the coy.
- (4.) To pass a resolution or resolutions pursuant to clause — of the arts of asson removing all or such one or more of the directors now in office as to the meeting may seem expedient.
- (5.) To appoint such person or persons as the meeting may think fit to be directors of the coy.
- (6.) To pass a resolution altering clause 90 of the arts of asson by substituting the word "seven" for the word "five" therein

See Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 66.

It should be seen that the articles allow such matters to be dealt with. See infra, p. 747.

Form 66. AGREEMENT by BONDHOLDERS in AMERICAN RAILWAY CO. to DEPOSIT their BONDS with a view to UNITED ACTION.

Bond deposit
agreement.

AN AGREEMENT made this — day of —, between A. B., of —, on behalf of himself and all the other holders of bonds of the — Coy (a coy constituted in &c., and huftr called the American coy), of the one pt, and the — Corporation (huftr called the corporation), of the other pt: WHEREAS the American coy issued a series of first mortgage bonds for $1,000,000, and such bonds are still outstanding unredeemed: AND WHEREAS the American coy has become involved in financial difficulties, and has made default in payment of the interest on the sd bonds; and its undertaking is now in the hands of a recr, appointed in an action of, &c.: AND WHEREAS the bulk of the sd bonds are, it is believed, held by persons residing in the United Kingdom: AND WHEREAS it is necessary to take steps to protect the interests of the holders of the sd bonds, and with a view thereto it is desirable to procure the co-operation of the bondholders or the bulk of them: AND WHEREAS the corporation is willing to act as trees for the purposes thof.

Recitals.

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:—

Interpretation.

1. In these presents—

"The bonds" means the bonds afd:

"Bondholder" means a holder of any of the bonds:

"The certificates" means the certificates issued under clause 4 hof and for the time being outstanding:

Form 88.

"The certificate holders" means the holders for the time being of the certificates.

2. Each bondholder who ratifies this agreement is forthwith to deposit his bonds with the corporation upon the footing of this agreement, and is to receive in return a certificate as hnftr provided.

3. The object of the deposit and registration of the bonds of the within-mentd series is to invest, and a party depositing and registering the same is to be regarded as thereby investing, the corporation with the following powers, that is to say:—

Effect of deposit.

- (a) To act as if it were the absolute owners thof, and to exercise all rights and powers extending to the ownership of such bonds
- (b) In particular, without derogating from the generality of the foregoing power, to advance and support claims and enforce the rights of the bondholders; to negotiate, conclude, and carry out any compromise with the American coy; to prosecute, defend, intervene in, and compromise legal or other proceedings in relation to the bonds; to concur in referring any question to arbitration, and to carry out any awards; to bid at any sale or sales of the mortgaged ppty, and in the event of the corporation becoming a purchaser, to manage, work, and re-organize the same; to lodge the bonds deposited with any banker, broker, lawyer, or safe deposit coy or agent in the United Kingdom or America; to sell or exchange the bonds deposited for cash or for shares, bonds, debentures, or other securities; to sell, lease, or concur in any sale or lease of the ppty mortgaged; to release, postpone, or modify the mortgage or charge securing the bonds; to concur in any re-organization, re-construction, or arrangement; to appoint and employ agents, legal and other advisers, and assistance, and, if thought fit, to adopt and act on their advice; to apply to any municipalities, authorities, or governments for any rights, powers, interests, or privileges, and for any legislative or governmental decrees; and to receive and give discharges for any money or securities receivable in respect of the sd bonds, whether according to the tenor thof or according to any such arrangement or compromise as afd or otherwise, and to apply and distribute any such moneys or securities according to the rights of the bondholders; and generally to act in all things as the corporation may think expedient in the interests of the holders of certificates (hnftr called "the certificate holders").
- (c) To delegate any of the sd powers and authorities and discretions to any person or persons, or coy or cos, and on such terms and in such manner as to the corporation may from time to time seem expedient.

Form 66.
Certificate.

4. The corporation is to issue to each depositor a certificate representing each bond deposited by him, and entitling the bearer to the rights arising from the deposit, subject to these conditions; and each certificate holder shall be bound at any time, and from time to time, on notice from the corporation, to execute such power of attorney and other authorities in favour of the corporation, or any nominee or nominees of the corporation, as the corporation may require.

Contribution.

5. In order to provide the necessary funds for the purposes of the corporation, a cash contribution, equal to 1 p.c. of the nominal amount of the bonds deposited, must be paid by each depositor upon making the deposit; and if the corporation shall at any time, by writing under its seal, certify that more funds are required for the purposes of the corporation, then the corporation may raise such further funds on the security of the bonds, at such rate of interest, not exceeding 5 p.c. as the corporation may arrange; and the corporation may pay off such advances out of any moneys arising out of the bonds; and before any bond can be withdrawn by the holder of the certificate representing the same, he must, if so required, pay to the corporation a proportionate part of such further assessment.

Application of contribution.

6. The contributions and advances aforesaid shall be applied by the corporation in manner following, that is to say:—

- (1) To the payment of the past and future expenditure of the corporation, of and incidental to, or connected with, the deposit of the bonds, and of the doing of all such things as the corporation may think it expedient to do in the interests of the certificate holders.
- (2) To the payment of the remuneration of the corporation.
- (3) Any surplus shall, when the labours of the corporation in relation to the bonds shall have been completed, be divided amongst the certificate holders in proportion to the amount of the bonds represented by certificates held by the subscribers.

Remuneration.

7. The corporation shall be entitled to such remuneration for its services in relation to these presents as it shall determine, not exceeding one-half p.c. of the nominal value of the bonds deposited.

Meeting.

8. The corporation may at any time convene a meeting of the certificate holders. At least seven days' notice by advertisement in three London daily newspapers shall be given of such meeting. A quorum of any such meeting shall be at least ten persons holding certificates for at least £— of the bonds deposited.

9. At every such meeting the bearers of the certificates aforesaid shall be regarded as exclusively entitled to vote in respect of the bond or bonds represented thereby, and upon the voting for every £100 of principal owing in respect of any such bond or bonds shall confer one vote on the corresponding certificate holder.

Power of majority.

10. A general meeting of certificate holders convened as aforesaid shall have full power by resolution passed by a majority of the votes given upon the question to sanction and approve any course of action which the committee may recommend. Form 66.

11. If a poll is demanded, it shall be taken in such manner and at such time and place as the chairman of the meeting directs, and either at once or after an interval or adjournment or otherwise, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which such poll was demanded.

12. The chairman of any such meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the same from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at an adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

13. Any poll duly demanded on the election of a chairman of a meeting or on any question of adjournment shall be taken at the meeting without adjournment. When no poll.

14. Notice to the certificate holders or any of them may be given by advertising the same in three London daily newspapers, and shall be deemed to be served on the day following that on which the last of such advertisements shall be published. Notice.

15. Minutes of all resolutions and proceedings of any meeting of the corporation or of the bondholders shall be made and duly entered in books to be provided by the corporation, and any such minutes, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which such resolutions were passed or proceedings had, shall be conclusive evidence of the matters therein stated; and until the contrary is proved, every such meeting in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been made, shall be deemed to have been duly held and convened, and all resolutions passed thereat, or proceedings had, to have been duly passed and had. Minutes.

16. The corporation does not guarantee the genuineness of the bonds in respect of which the certificates are issued, and it reserves to itself the right to call in any certificate upon returning to the holder of such certificate the bond or bonds deposited with it, and the corporation shall not be bound to assign any reason for exercising the power so reserved. No guarantee.

17. The certificate in each case is to be regarded for all purposes as a negotiable instrument and as conclusively evidencing the title of the bearer for the time being and from time to time to the bond or bonds therein mentioned and all persons are invited by the corporation and the owners thereof to act on that footing, and neither the corporation nor any holder or depositor shall be affected by any notice to the contrary, and no depositor or holder shall be required or liable to deliver up or otherwise deal with such bond or bonds except upon the terms of the corporation, and the certificate holder is not to be at liberty to withdraw his bond or bonds until the corporation shall have certified in writing under its seal that its relations to the bonds are complete. Negotiability of certificates.

Form 66.
Condition.

18. This agreemt is conditional on its being ratified in writing by the holders of all the bonds or by the holders of such proportion, being not less than one-fourth in value thereof, as the corporation may consider sufficient, and if this agreemt does not become absolute before the — of —, it shall on that day become void, and the deposited bonds shall be returned to the certificate holders on demand.

19. [Indemnity to coy. &c.]

Form 67. AGREEMENT that DIRECTORS shall take up LEASES and shall grant
SUB-LEASES to COMPANY.

Agreement for directors to take leases and grant sub-leases to company.

Agreemt: coy (1) and A., B., and C. (directors) (2).

Recitals to the effect that the coy carries on business on certain leasehold premises, and has negotiated with the landlords for new leases, but that they will only grant the same to substantial individuals and not to the coy, and that the coy has requested the directors to take up the leases and grant sub-leases to the coy on similar terms, and that the directors are willing to do so, and that the forms of the leases are annexed.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:

1. The directors shall use their best endeavours to obtain the sd leases, and after execution thof the coy shall grant the sub-leases and the coy shall execute counter-parts of the sub-leases.

2. At the same time the coy shall concur with the directors in executing a trust deed by way of security to the directors in the terms of the draft annexed hto.

3. In taking up the sd leases the sd directors are not to be considered as trustees for the coy, and the coy's only rights in the demised premises are those which shall be conferred by the sub-leases afsd and accordingly the lessees or other the persons or person for the time being entitled to the premises in reversion expectant on the sd sub-leases are to have full powers, rights and remedies as the absolute owners or owner of the sd reversions resply.

4. This agreemt is conditional on the same being sanctioned and approved by a resolution of the coy in general meeting.

IN WITNESS, &c.

THE SCHEDULES

A limited company, it has been decided is a "respectable and responsible person" within the meaning of a covenant by a lessee not to assign without the consent of the lessor (such consent not to be withheld in the case of a "respectable and responsible person"). Willmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 525. Form 67.

AGREEMENT as to SALE of GOODS by a MANUFACTURING COMPANY to a FIRM as INTERMEDIARY for supplying RETAIL TRADERS and the PUBLIC: MINIMUM PRICES. Form 68.

AN AGREEMENT, made, &c., between the — Manufacturing Coy, Ltd (hereafter called "the coy"), of the one pt. and A., of —, B., of —, and C., of —, carrying on business as, &c., at, &c., in partnership under the style of, &c. (hereafter called "the firm"), of the other pt.

WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. The coy shall supply to the firm, and the firm shall purchase and act as intermediaries for the sale, distribution and supply to the trade and to the public of —, &c., and similar goods manufactured by the coy, and the firm shall use their best endeavours to promote such sale and distribution. The prices at which goods shall be supplied by the coy to the firm shall be those specified for such goods in the current price list for the time being of the coy for the United Kingdom (hereafter called "the coy's current price list") less the discount mentioned in clause 18 hereof. Company to supply goods.

2. Save as provided by clause 3 hereof, the firm shall not without the express consent in writing of the coy supply for any purpose whatever goods of the kinds specified or referred to in clause 1 hereof manufactured and supplied by the coy at less prices than those specified in the coy's current price list, nor shall the firm without such consent allow any rebate, bonus, allowance, or reduction of any kind on such price either directly or indirectly. Minimum prices.

3. The firm shall at the commencement of each season prepare a retail pattern book of — and other goods, and shall therein price their goods in conformity with the next following clause hereof. Discount limited.

4. The minimum and maximum scale for pricing in the said retail pattern book shall be fixed at the beginning of each season by the vote of a majority of a committee consisting of two of the directors for the time being of the coy and the acting members of the committee established under clause 20 hereof. The firm shall not ticket or sell any goods at a less price than the committee shall in writing approve. Scales for pricing.

5. Subject to clause 2 hereof the firm shall be at liberty to quote their own net prices for stock orders. Firm's liberty to quote.

6. The firm shall not pay the carriage, except in the following cases, namely, &c. Carriage.

Form 68.

Issue of new season
price book.
Terms of settlement to be allowed by firm.
Terms of settlement to be allowed by company.
Dates of delivery of new season's goods for purpose of accounts.
Extra discount to firm for cash prepayments.

Goods to be supplied for firm's business.
Company not to be liable
for strikes,
fire, &c.
Discount
where payment on delivery.

When company to pay carriage.

7. No new season retail priced pattern books shall be issued within the United Kingdom by the firm or the coy prior to the — day of — in each year.

8. Terms of settlement to be allowed by the firm shall not exceed the following rates, namely, &c.

9. Terms of settlement to be allowed by the coy to the firm shall be as follows, &c.

10. New season's goods delivered between September 1st in any year and the next succeeding 28th February to be dated for the purposes of the accounts mentioned in the last preceding clause as of the 1st day of the month of March following such delivery.

11. In the case of new season's goods supplied by the coy to the firm and paid for in cash before the payment of the monthly account for such goods becomes due the coy shall allow the firm an extra cash discount at the rate of 5l. p.e.p.a. from the date of payment until the date when the payment of such monthly account becomes due, such discount to be deducted after deduction of the discount allowed under clause 9 hof.

12. All goods to be supplied by the coy to the firm shall be supplied by the coy solely for the firm's business at —, or at such other address as the coy shall in writing approve, and with all reasonable expedition, regard being had to other pending orders for goods to be supplied by the coy to other customers, but the coy shall not be liable for any damage which may be caused by any strike of workmen or any lock-out of workmen, or any fire or other accident, or generally for anything beyond the control of the coy in the ordinary course of its business, and the coy may at any time require payment in cash against delivery of goods, but in that case shall allow discount at the rate of 5 p.e.p.a. from the date of payment until the date when the payment of the monthly account for such goods becomes due in the same manner as is provided under clause 11 hof in the case of new season's goods; and the coy shall not be bound to supply to the firm any [specify kind of goods], the supply of which may be confined by the coy to any dealer or firm of dealers, or any place or district, but the firm shall have the right to be supplied by the coy with any goods represented in the coy's pattern sets of any manufactory acquired or taken over by the coy, and now supplying the firm directly with stock represented in the firm's pattern books.

13. The coy shall, on stock orders from the firm to the coy of the value of £—— net or upwards, pay the carriage to the firm's asfd place of business, or subject to the provisions of clause 12 hof to any railway station in the United Kingdom, provided that the coy shall have the right to refuse to pay the carriage in any circumstances which the coy may consider exceptional.

14. The firm shall not without the consent in writing of the coy stock or cut up patterns, or issue in their pattern books or sell for stock any specify kinds of goods, other than those manufactured by the coy.

Form 66.

Restriction on firm's dealings outside the company.

15. The firm shall, on the written request of the coy, desist from supplying goods for such period as the coy shall require to any dealer or purchaser to whom the coy may decline or be unwilling to supply goods.

When firm not to supply to particular persons.

16. The firm shall not in each year start travelling or soliciting, or take stock orders on new patterns until the date which shall be fixed by the coy in each such year for the coy to take orders on new patterns. So far as practicable patterns shall be sent to the firm a week earlier than such last-mentd date.

As to travelling for orders.

17. The firm shall not supply the coy's goods for the purpose of being sold by auction.

Auctions.

18. In conson of the premises the coy shall allow the firm a discount of 10 per cent. on the amount pd by the firm to the coy class of goods purchased by the firm direct from the coy at the price of the coy's current price list, but this discount shall not apply to goods of earlier seasons than the season of 1909—1910.

Special discount to firm for particular goods.

19. In the event of any infringement by the firm of the provisions of, except as to clause 14 hof, the committee hnftr mentd shall have power to suspend the discount payable or allowed under clause 18 hof for such period and in such manner as the committee shall think fit, and the decision of the committee, or of the majority of its members, shall be accepted by the firm as final, and the coy shall further have the right, immediately on such infringement, to cease to supply any more goods to the firm. Provided that, without limiting the rights and powers mentd in this clause, the firm shall before such discount is suspended, and before the coy cease such supply, be allowed to state to the committee or some of its members within fourteen days after notice from the committee or some of its members so to do the firm's reasons for such infringement.

Suspension of discount to firm where infringement.

20. The committee shall consist of —, —, —, and — and of the directors for the time being of the coy. The acting members of the committee other than the directors shall, in the event of any of the first five named or of any one nominated in succession to them dying or declining to act, have power to appoint a successor or successors in office, but so that the number of the committee other than the directors of the coy shall not at any time exceed five.

Committee.

21. In the event of any infringement of any of the provisions of clause 14 hof, the provisions of clause 19 hof shall not apply to such infringement, but the coy shall in addition to its other remedies have the right immediately on such infringement to cease to supply any more goods to the firm.

Infringement of Clause 14.

Form 66.

No issue of pattern book to small buyers.

22. The coy shall not issue a retail priced pattern book to small buyers hntfr defined. Provided that the coy shall be in no way restricted from carrying on or extending the businesses (whether of dealers or otherwise) as now existing and carried on by any firms or cos which may be acquired or taken over by the coy, and in particular it is declared that this clause shall not prevent the coy from sending retail priced pattern books to any customer or customers to whom any of the firms or cos whose business shall be acquired or taken over by the coy have sent such pattern books since the month of —, 19—.

This agreement to bind successors of the parties.

23. This agreeent shall be binding on and enure for the benefit of the persons for the time being carrying on business in succession to the parties hto of the second part, notwithstanding any changes which during the continuance of this agreeent may occur in the constitution of the firm by the death or retirement of any partner or partners or the addition of any partner or partners.

Duration of
agreement.

24. This agreeent shall remain in force for seven years from the — of —, 19—. Provided that the coy shall have power to determine the agreeent on the 31st of December, 19—, by three calendar months' notice in writing addressed to the firm. Provided further that the coy shall until the 31st of December in the year in which this agreeent is determined or expires continue to supply to the firm for pattern book orders only goods, the supply of which by the coy to the firm for such orders is herein provided for.

Services of notices on firm.

25. Any notice under this agreeent may be given to the firm by sending the same through registered post to the firm at their last known or usual place of business, and any notice so sent shall be deemed to have been served on the firm on the day following that on which it is posted.

IN WITNESS, &c.

A manufacturer who sells goods can make it one of the conditions of sale that they shall not be resold at less than a specified price. Elliman & Son v. Carlington & Sons, (1901) 2 Ch. 275; McFrucker v. Pilcher, (1904) 2 Ch. 306; United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada v. Brant, (1908) A. C. 330. Such a condition will not run with the goods so as to bind a purchaser with or without notice (Tadley & Co. v. Sterious & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 351), unless indeed the goods are patented and the sale is made by the owner of the patent rights. Prima facie a sale by him implies a licence to sell the patented goods, but if, on the sale, this implied licence is qualified, a sub-purchaser, with or without notice of the qualification, is bound to keep within the licence. Badiach Anton and Soda Fabrik v. Isler, (1906) 1 Ch. 605.

Where a manufacturer sells to A. subject to the condition that he shall not sell to B., and B. induces A. to commit a breach of the contract, B. is liable in damages to the manufacturer for the tort. National Phonograph Co. v. Edison Bell, &c. Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 335.

See supra, p. 330.

AGREEMENT by COLD STORAGE KEEPERS to pool GROSS EARNINGS Form 69. and fix MINIMUM RATES for STORAGE of PRODUCE during a term of years.

AN AGREEMENT made the -- day of -- between the several Parties, coys, firms, and persons named in the first schedule hto, whereby it is agreed as follows:—

1. In these presents, unless there be something in the subject or Interpretation context inconsistent therewith:

“The signatories” means the parties hto.

“The committee” means the committee for the time being constituted as hereafter provided.

“The authorized premises” means the premises specified in the second column of the first schedule hto.

“The gross earnings” means the whole income arising from the storage of frozen goods and for services incidental thereto.

“Year” means some calendar year commencing with the 1st January.

“Month” means calendar month.

2. For the period of -- years from the -- day of -- the signatories shall pool their gross earnings on the storage of frozen produce at Banchester and services incidental thereto, and the total amount thereof shall as hereafter provided be divided between the signatories in accordance with the percentages set opposite their respective names in the first schedule hto, and during the said period each of the signatories shall, for cold storage and incidental services, charge not less than the minimum rates in that behalf specified in the second schedule hto or other the minimum rates from time to time fixed in accordance with clause 9 hereof.

Gross earnings to be pooled

3. Within twenty-eight days of the expiration of each year commencing with the year -- each of the signatories shall furnish to the committee a proper detailed account of the gross earnings of such signatory during the preceding year, and the committee shall be at liberty to employ an accountant or other expert to examine such account and certify as to the correctness thereof, and such signatory shall afford to the committee or any such accountant or expert all reasonable facilities for verifying the accuracy of the account.

Accounts.

4. Within seven days of the commencement of each calendar month each of the signatories shall pay into a banking account to be opened by the committee, or to be under their control, 60 p.c. of the gross earnings of such signatory during the preceding month.

Monthly payments
in bank.

5. The committee may from time to time, out of the moneys paid to the said account, advance to the signatories, or any of them, on account of the proportion of total proceeds to which such signatories or

Advance

Form 60. signatory are or is as hntfr mentioned resply entitled, such amounts as the committee may think fit.

Payment of balance.

6. As soon after the expiration of each year as the gross earnings of each signatory shall have been ascertained by the committee under the provisions of clause 3 hof, the committee shall call upon each of the signatories to pay the balance (if any) of the gross earnings of such signatory into the sd banking account, and upon such payments being made the committee shall divide the total amount so pd into the sd banking account amongst the signatories in due proportions, regard being had to any sums in regard to which the signatories resply shall be in default, and any sums advanced to them resply as afsd so that the gross earnings may be divided in conformity with clause 1 hof.

Division of available balance amongst signatories.

Information.

7. Full information to be given to committee. &c.

reach of agreement.

8. As to each of the signatories, if such contributory fails to make any monthly or other payment herein provided to be made within seven days after being duly required by the committee so to do, or to comply with any other requirement from the committee properly made by them, or shall commit any other breach of the obligations of such signatory hereunder whereby any damage shall in the opinion of the committee accrue to any other of the signatories, such signatory shall forthwith become liable to pay such amount as the committee in their uncontrolled discretion shall certify to be the sum which in their opinion represents the fair measure of the damage so caused to such other signatories, and the amount so certified shall be recoverable from such signatory by the other signatories as liquidated damages, irrespective of and without inquiry as to the actual damages sustained, and any amount so recovered shall be divisible among the said other signatories according to their respective proportions of proceeds, unless the committee shall by any certificate under their hands or the hands of any three of them prescribe any other proportions.

Special obligations of signatories.

9. The following provisions shall have effect, namely:

- (a) [Not to part with authorized premises.]
- (b) [Not to be concerned in any other cold storage concern]
- (c) [Not to extend authorized premises without consent of committee.]
- (d) [To maintain authorized premises in good order and condition.]
- (e) [Provision for case of destruction or damage to authorized premises.]

Committee.

10. There shall be a committee for the purposes hof. Each of the signatories shall be entld to appoint two persons as members of the committee. [Power to fill up Vacancies—Procedure—Quorum Powers—Minutes, &c.]

11. The signatories shall be bound by the decisions of the committee upon all matters which under the provisions hereof are placed under the control of the committee or declared to be subject to its decision.

Form 69.

Decisions of committee.

12. The committee shall, if and whenever required so to do by any one or more of the signatories, consider and decide on the question whether the rates or conditions specified or set forth in the second schedule hereof shall be increased or reduced or modified either generally or in particular cases, and if so, subject to what (if any) special conditions, and their decision shall be binding on the signatories.

Revision of rates and conditions.

13. Subject to the last preceding clause hereof, no commissions, advantages, allowances, concessions, bonuses or reductions, direct or indirect, shall be paid, given or allowed by any of the signatories or any agent or employee thereof to any merchants, brokers or other persons whomsoever, but the rates for the time being in force hereunder shall be equally charged to all persons by all the signatories, it being of the essence of this agreement that all the signatories shall charge the same rates in the fullest and widest sense of that expression, subject to the provisions of clause 12 hereof.

No rebates except as per schedule, &c.

14. All the costs and expenses of and incidental to the preparation and execution of this agreement, or in any way incurred by the committee in connection with the meetings or other proceedings thereof, or in obtaining expert assistance, or for secretarial or other purposes, or otherwise for carrying out the provisions hereof, shall be paid out of the said banking account, and so borne by the signatories, in accordance with the proportions in which they are to share the total amount of the gross earnings.

Expenses.

15. [Provisions for arbitration.]

Arbitration.

IN WITNESS, &c

THE SCHEDULES above referred to

First Schedule.

Names and Addresses of Signatories.

Premises authorized.

Proportion of proceeds to be reserved by each Signatory

Form 69.

Second Schedule.

Description of Frozen Produce.

Dates and Conditions.

Sharing gross returns, as above, does not, it is apprehended, constitute a partnership (Pollack on Partnership, p. 5; and Partnership Act, 1890, s. 2 (2)), but it is sufficient to justify a restraint as regards selling prices, and is not unreasonable.

Form 70. AGREEMENT for SALE of DEBENTURE STOCK to CAPITALISTS who intend later on to OFFER SAME for PUBLIC SUBSCRIPTION.

Agreement for sale of debenture stock to capitalists, who may offer same for public subscription

AN AGREEMENT made, A.D. between the Coy. Limited (here called "the coy."), of the one pt. and A. and B. (here called "the contractors") of the other pt. WHEREAS the coy. is about to create and issue 200,000/ 5 p.c. debenture stock. AND WHEREAS such debenture stock is to be constituted and secured by a trust deed framed in the terms of the draft which has already been prepared and a copy of which has, for the purpose of identification, been subscribed by X., a solicitor of the Supreme Court. AND WHEREAS the contractors are willing to purchase the said stock subject to and on the terms here set forth

NOW THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:

Sale of stock and payment by instalments.

1. If the said trust deed shall be executed within seven days from the date hereof, the coy. shall sell, and the contractors shall purchase the said 200,000/ debenture stock, to be secured by such deed at the price of £— for every 100/ of such stock, that is to say, the sum of £— in all. The sd price shall be paid by the instalments following, that is to say

p.c. on the day of p.c. on the day of p.c. on the day of ; and
p.c. on the day of Interest on instalments.

2. The contractors shall be entitled to interest at the rate of — p.c.p.a. on the amount of the sd instalments for the time being pd as from the payment thereof resp'y, and the coy. shall pay such interest accordingly

3. The contractors shall be entitd to pay each of the instalments afcd or any pt thof before the day fixed for the payment thof at a discount, that is to say, interest at the rate of — p.c. from the period between the date when such instalment shall actually be paid and the date when the same becomes due may be deducted.

Form 70.

Discount if payment in advance.

4. If the directors shall determine to offer all or any part of the ad 200,000/ debenture stock by a prospectus for public subscription, or to sell or dispose of the same in any other manner, the coy shall, at the expense of the contractors, supply the contractors with all such information as the contractors shall reasonably require for the purpose of any such prospectus, and shall furnish such information in such manner to the contractors as the contractors may reasonably require.

Company to supply information if contractors make public offer of stock.

5. The coy shall pay all stamp duties payable in respect of the creation of the ad debenture stock, and the costs of stamping the trust deed and securing the same, and the costs of the contractors and the trees of and in relation to the ad trust deed.

Company to pay stamp duties as to creation of stock and trust deed.

6. On payment by the contractors of the first instalment of — p.c. afcd, the coy shall issue to the contractors or their nominees scrip certificates representing in the aggregate the right to the issue of the full amount of the stock hby agreed to be sold, and such certificates shall be for such amounts as the contractors may direct, and the amount of the contractors to the issue of the stock hby agreed to be sold shall be considered to be attached to the scrip certificates afcd, or to any certificates issued in substitution for the same.

Scrip certificates on payment of first instalment.

7. If any scrip certificate holder afcd makes default for more than — days in the payment of any sum payable in accordance with the terms of the scrip certificate, the coy shall, in exercise of the power so far as may be reserved by the scrip certificates, forfeit the stock comprised in such scrip certificate, and all moneys pd in respect thereof and shall, by notice in writing to the contractors, call on them to make good such default within — days, and the contractors shall make good such default accordingly, and shall thereupon receive a fresh scrip certificate from the coy relating to the forfeited stock credited with the sum pd prior to the forfeiture, and with any sums pd by the contractors in accordance with such notice.

Forfeiture
when default of certificate-holder, and contractors to make good the same and get fresh certificate.

8. Payment to any scrip certificate holder of any interest in accordance with the terms of such certificate shall be credited as in satisfaction, pro tanto, of the interest payable to the contractors under clause 2 h of Interest to a certificate

holder equivalent to interest under clause 2.

9. Whenever the holder of any scrip certificate afcd shall, in respect of the stock comprised therein, elect to pay any instalment payable thereon in advance at a discount, the contractors shall be deemed to elect to make the like payment in advance at a discount in respect of the same stock, and shall forthwith pay the amount to the coy accordingly.

Discount to certificate-
holder
equivalent to discount
under clause 3.

Form 70.
Definitive certificates when scrip paid up.

10. When and so soon as any of the scrip certificates shall have been pd up in full, the coy shall register as stockholders the registered holders of such scrip certificates, and shall issue definitive certificates to them accordingly, and such registration and issue shall be regarded as a completion, pro tanto, of the sale of the stock to the contractors.

Contractors to receive the moneys from the certificate
holders.

11. Although the stock certificates are to be issued in the name of the coy, the sums payable by the holders in accordance with the terms hof are to be pd over to the contractors, but without prejudice to their obligations to pay the coy the full instalments payable in respect of the sale hby agreed to be made in accordance with clause 1 hof.

IN WITNESS, &c.

In the case of a going company which desires to dispose of a block of debentures or debenture stock or preference shares it is sometimes thought expedient to sell the issue to some capitalist and to leave him to offer it to the public at his own risk and discretion. One advantage of this plan is, that if the purchaser is not a person who has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company, a prospectus issued by him, on his own account, is exempt from the onerous requirements of sect. 81 of the Companies Act, 1908. See supra, p. 167. Accordingly, as long as the prospectus is an honest one, the purchaser is not bound to make any special disclosures as to contracts, &c.

Form 71. AGREEMENT for the APPOINTMENT of a MANAGER by a COMPANY.
Remuneration, Salary, and Share of Profits. Compensation in Case of Dismissal.

Parties. AN AGREEMENT, &c. Parties: (1) the coy; (2) B.

WHEREBY IT IS AGREED as follows:—

Appointment to office

1. The sd A. shall be and he is hby appointed the first general manager of the coy, and as such general manager shall perform the duties and exercise the powers which from time to time may be assigned to or vested in him by the directors of the coy.

Term.

2. The sd A. shall hold the sd office, subject as hnftr provided, for the term of — years from the date hof.

A. to perform duties.

3. The sd A., unless prevented by ill-health, shall, during the sd term, devote the whole of his time, attention, and abilities to the business of the coy, and shall obey the orders from time to time of the board of directors of the coy, and in all respects conform to and comply with the directions and regulations given and made by them, and shall well and faithfully serve the coy and use his utmost endeavours to promote the interests thof.

4 There shall be pd to the sd A., as such general manager, a Form 71.
salary which shall be as follows, namely: The sum of 300*l.* for the Salary.
first year, the sum of 400*l.* for the second year, and the sum of 500*l.*
for each succeeding year, and so in proportion for any less period.

5 The sd salary shall commence from the date hof, and shall be pd When to be quarterly on the — day of —, &c., the first quarterly payment to paid.
be made on the — day of — next.

6 In addition to his afo*sd* salary, the sd A. shall, during his tenure Besides share of office afo*sd*, be entld to the share in the profits of the coy which, of profits as under the arts of asson thof, is payable to the general manager for per articles.
the time being of the coy.

7 The sd A. shall be at liberty to resign the sd office at any time A. may upon giving to the coy three calendar months' notice of his desire resign.
so to do.

8 If, before the expiration of — years from the date hof, the Compensa- coy is wound up, or if by any other means, except the death or tion to A. in resignation of the sd A., his tenure of the sd office shall be deter- case of wind- mined, the coy shall pay to the sd A. the sum of 2,000*l.* as liquidated ing up, &c.
damages for his loss of office.]

IN WITNESS, &c. (a).

Sometimes a clause is inserted in an agreement with an employé to the effect that all inventions in relation to the manufacture of — made by such employé whilst in the employment of the company, and the benefit of all patents, whether at home or abroad, obtainable in respect thereof, shall belong to the company: and such employé shall, upon the request and at the expense of the company, do whatever the company may reasonably require for giving to the company the full benefit of the provision.

Form 72.
AGREEMENT for the APPOINTMENT of a SECRETARY by a COMPANY. Leave of Absence. Power to Rescind.

THIS AGREEMENT, &c. Parties: (1) the coy; and (2) B. WHEREAS Parties the capital of the coy is £—, divided into — shares of £— each. Recital.
AND WHEREAS the directors of the coy are, by the arts of asson thof, empowered to appoint a secretary of the coy, either for a fixed term or otherwise as therein mentd, and to fix and determine his remuneration, which may be by way of salary or otherwise as in the sd articles mentd

NOW IT IS HEREY AGREED as fo*l*lows:-

1 The sd B. shall be secretary of the coy for a term of — years, Appointment to be computed from the date hof.

(a) See infra, p. 441, as to appointment of officers.

Form 73.Salary.

2. There shall be pd by the coy to the sd B., as such secretary as afd, a salary at the rate of £ — per annum. Such salary shall commence from the date hof. and shall be payable quarterly on every — day of —, — day of —, — day of —, and — day of —; the first of such quarterly payments to be made on the — day of — next.

3. The sd B. shall, unless prevented [supra, p. 430, cl. 3].

B. entitled to leave of absence.

4. The sd B. shall, during his tenure of the sd office, be entld to leave of absence for a period in each year not exceeding — weeks, and, unless otherwise arranged between the board of directors of the coy and the sd B., such leave of absence shall be granted in each year as follows, namely, from the — day of — to the — day of —, &c., &c. The afd salary of the sd B. shall continue notwithstanding such leave of absence.

Shares to be allotted to B.

5. In — of the premises, the coy shall forthwith allot and issue to the sd B. ten of its shares of £ — each, which shall be numbered in the books of the coy — to — both inclusive, and shall be deemed for all purposes fully pd up.

Power to rescind.

6. Either of the parties hto may at any time after the — day of — determine this agreemt by giving to the other not less than — calendar months' notice in writing, and upon the expiration of the period specified in such notice the sd B. shall cease to be secretary of the coy.

IN WITNESS, &c.

The following clauses are occasionally used:

Form 73.Commission on surplus profits.

"Whenever the profits of the company made during the financial year or other period comprised in the accounts submitted to the ordinary general meeting in each year are more than sufficient to pay a dividend on the paid-up capital of the company for such period at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, the said —, in addition to his salary aforesaid, shall be paid a sum equal to 25 per cent. of the excess. The certificate in writing of the company's auditor as to the amount of such excess or as to there being none shall be conclusive."

Commission on profits.

Sometimes an employé is given as part of his remuneration a commission on or share of profits. Such arrangements should be carefully expressed, and it is generally desirable to make the auditor's certificate conclusive. Righton v. Grissell, 5 Eq. 326; and Franks v. Balfour & Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 140. The clauses may run thus:

"In addition to his salary aforesaid, the said — shall be entitled to a commission of 10 per cent. on the profits made during the financial year or other period comprised in the accounts submitted to each ordinary general meeting of the company."

As to profit-sharing schemes, see pp. 1017, 1031.

Form 74.Commission on dividends.

"Whenever a dividend is declared by the company in general meeting, and such dividend, together with the dividend or dividends, if any, previously paid, amounts to more than 5 per cent. per annum on the capital of the company for the time being paid up, as from the incorporation of the company to the time of the declaration of such dividend, then and in such case the said — shall, in addition to his aforesaid salary, be entitled to a commission equal to 10 per cent. of the excess, such commission to be paid when the dividend becomes payable " As to the appointment of officers, see p. 441.

Form 74.

AN AGREEMENT made the — day of —, between the — Coy, Limited (hereafter called "the coy"), of the one pt, and L., of — merchant, of the other pt. WHEREBY it is agreed as follows:—

Form 75.

1. The coy hereby appoints the sd L. to be the sole agent of the coy in the Republic of — for the sale of all the coal and other products of the coy, and for the purchase of such materials and goods required by the coy as the coy may instruct him to purchase, and for the chartering of all ships on behalf of the coy.

Agency
agreement for foreign country.
Appointment of agents

2. The sd L. shall manage the sale of all the coy's coal and other products, and the purchase of all goods and materials which he may purchase for the coy, and arrange the chartering of all ships which the coy may require, and shall use his best endeavours to promote the interests of the coy, and on all sales of the coy's coal or other products through the sd L. he shall be taken to guarantee to the coy the payment in due course of the purchase money for the same.

What they are to do

3. As remuneration for these services, and as conson for the guarantee aforesaid, the coy shall pay or allow to the sd L. a commission of — p.c. on the selling price of all the coy's coal and other products sold, but so that from the amount of money received in respect of sales there shall be deducted only the usual and proper disbursements, the sd — p.c. being a sale and guarantee commission, and no allowance shall be made to the sd L. for rent or office expenses or salaries of clerks or assistants, or, where a sub-agent is employed, such sub-agent's commission, which is to be paid by the sd L.

Remuneration.

4. On all purchases made on behalf of the coy the sd L. shall be allowed the customary and usual commissions in similar cases. On charters effected by the sd L. for the coy he shall be entitled to recover from the shipowners a commission not exceeding $2\frac{1}{2}$ p.c. on the amount of freight, and he shall make no charge against the coy in respect of such charters, but shall account to the coy for any commission and allowance beyond $2\frac{1}{2}$ p.c. which he may recover.

Allowances

5. The sd L. shall keep the coy duly advised of all sales and purchases and charters effected by him, and will in due course render proper accounts of the same, and from time to time remit or pay to the coy the amounts which shall be due to the coy on the accounts current.

Advice to
company

6. The sd L. shall keep in proper books full and proper records of all the coy's business passing through his hands, and the sd records and all documents relating to the premises in the possession or under

Accounts

Form 75. the control of the sd L. shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the coy or their agents, who shall have full liberty to make copies or extracts of or from the same or any of them.

Instructions. 7. The sd L. shall at all times during the continuance of this agreement observe all the directions and instructions which may be given by the coy relating to the premises, and in the absence of special instructions shall act in such manner as he shall deem most beneficial to the coy.

Interpretations. 8. The expression "L." hnbfore used means and includes the sd L. personally and all persons who may be in partnership with him in the sd Republic whom he may from time to time nominate in writing in his behalf and their successors in business, and this agreement shall be binding on and operate for the benefit of the sd L. and his partners as above mentd and their successors in business, whatsoever changes may occur in the constitution of the firms by the addition of any new partner or partners, or death or retirement of any partner, or otherwise howsoever.

Duration. 9. This agreement shall remain in force for a fixed period of years from the incorporation of the coy, but in the event of the bankruptcy of the sd L. or his firm as above mentd, or any liquidation of their affairs for the benefit of their creditors, it shall as from the commencement of the sd bankruptcy or liquidation cease and determine.

10. Arbitration clause, supra, p. 367; and add service clause 15, at p. 362, supra.]

IN WITNESS, &c.

Form 76. AGREEMENT to employ AGENT to go ABROAD and EXAMINE TITLE to and CHARACTER of MINING PROPERTY

Parties. AN AGREEMENT, &c., between A. B., of the one pt, and Limtd (hnbtr called "the syndicate"), of the other pt. WHEREAS " has been represented that there exists in the empire of C., about 200 miles N.N.W. of D. and about 3,000 feet above sea level, an area of over nine square miles, containing a virgin matrix of diamonds of the finest quality, yielding an average of one carat to the cubic metre of the ground, and lying at about fifty to seventy feet below the surface, and that the present owner or owners of this ppty is or are willing to treat for the sale thof, and it has been arranged that the sd A. B. shall proceed to D., with a view to inquiring into the matter, and if possible obtaining on behalf of the syndicate an option for the purchase of the sd ppty or some interest therein: AND WHEREAS it has been further arranged that the parties hto shall enter into the agreement hnbtr contained in relation to the premises

NOW THESE PRESENTS WITNESS AND IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:

Form 76.

1. The sd A. B. shall proceed to D. by the outgoing mail steamer starting on the _____ day of _____, 19____, and shall on his arrival in D. in the first place, after ascertaining that the owner or owners of the ppty is or are willing to treat for the sale thof or for some interest therein, procure an investigation into the title of the present owner or owners of the ppty above referred to by one or more competent D. lawyers, who are to report in writing thereon. If he shall consider such reports unsatisfactory or that the business does not warrant him in incurring further expense, he shall forthwith communicate such news to the syndicate, and shall, unless he shall receive other instructions by letter or cable from the syndicate, forthwith return to London.

A. B. to go abroad

2. If the sd A. B. shall consider such reports as satisfactory, or if he shall not so consider, but the syndicate shall by letter or cable require him so to do, he shall immediately proceed to make personal inspection and examination of the ppty, and shall cause the same to be fully prospected, and shall make inquiries and obtain reports as to the truth of the above-recited representations as to the ppty, and shall, if he consider that the results of such inquiries justify him in so doing, or if he shall not so consider, but the syndicate shall by letter or cable require him so to do, use his best endeavours to obtain from the owner or owners of the sd ppty a contract giving the syndicate the option of acquiring the same or some interest therein on the most favourable terms that he can arrange, and shall thereupon return forthwith to London.

To prospect.

3. The sd A. B. shall, whilst in D., acquire all such information as he can with regard to the ppty in question, its surroundings, and geographical and other characteristics, and the means of access thereto, and as to the mining and other laws of D. so far as they shall affect the working and development of the ppty in question, and the winning and exporting of diamonds therefrom, and generally all such information in relation to the premises as he may think advantageous or useful to the syndicate.

Gather information.

4. All reports and information, and all contracts, agreements, and arrangements which the sd A. B. may make or obtain in relation to the premises shall be on behalf of and for the benefit of the syndicate alone, and shall at all times be their absolute ppty, and shall be communicated by the sd A. B. to the syndicate at the earliest opportunities, and the sd A. B. shall not disclose such information, reports, contracts, agreements, or arrangements to any person other than the members, officers and servants for the time being of the syndicate.

Rights of syndicate

5. The syndicate shall, prior to the departure of the sd A. B. place to his credit with a bank or mercantile house in London the sum of 6000/., which is to be drawn on by him as he shall require for the purposes of defraying his necessary and proper disbursements contemplated in clause 1 hof

Advances to A. B.

Form 76.Further
advances.

6. If the sd A. B. and the syndicate shall consider that the inquiries, investigations, and reports under clause 2 are satisfactory, the syndicate shall place at his request to his credit with a bank or mercantile house in England a further sum of 1,400*l.*, to be drawn on as the sd A. B. shall require for the purpose of defraying his necessary and proper disbursements in connection with the further investigations and business contemplated under clauses 2 and 3 hcf.

A. B. to account.

7. The sd A. B. shall account to the syndicate for all moneys drawn by him on the sd credits, and shall keep full and true accounts of all his drawings on the sd credits, and of his expenditure thof, under clauses 5 and 6 hcf, and shall, if and when required by the syndicate, duly vouch such accounts, and the syndicate shall not be under any obligation to advance to him for the purposes of such clauses or otherwise any moneys in excess of the sums of 600*l.* and 1,400*l.* therein resp'y named.

Remuneration of A. B.

8. If the sd A. B. shall obtain from the owner or owners of the sd ppty a contract which shall be accepted by the syndicate, giving the syndicate the option of acquiring the sd ppty or some interest therein, then the sd A. B. shall be pd for his services in connection with this business a sum of 1,000*l.*, but if no such option shall be obtained and accepted by the syndicate, the sd A. B. shall not be entld to claim from the syndicate any remuneration whatever.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Form 77. AGREEMENT continuing the APPOINTMENT of a PERSON who has been EDITOR of a COMPANY'S NEWSPAPER, and has become a DIRECTOR.

AN AGREEMENT, made the — of —, between the — Coy, Limtd, of the one part, and A. B., of — (hnfr referred to as Mr. B.), of the other part.

WHEREAS Mr. B. is the editor of "The — Newspaper," which is owned by the coy. AND WHEREAS it is proposed that Mr. B. shall continue to act as such editor upon the terms hnfr mentd.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:—

A. B. to be editor.

1. For a period of five years from the — of —, Mr. B. shall act as the editor of "The — Newspaper" owned by the coy.

Policy and conduct of this newspaper.

2. Subject to the general control of the board of directors of the coy the policy of the sd newspaper, and the manner in which the same shall be conducted, shall be determined by Mr. B. and the managing director for the time being of the coy jointly, and any point in difference between the sd A. B. and the managing director shall be referred to the board of directors of the coy, and Mr. B. and the managing director shall act in accordance with the decision of the board. Form 77.

3. Mr. B. shall be just and faithful to the coy in all things. He shall preserve the coy's secrets, and in particular shall use his best endeavours to prevent any libellous matter from appearing in the said newspaper. He shall also carefully refrain from commenting upon any legal proceedings while in progress in such manner as to commit a contempt of Court. Fidelity and secrecy, and caution as to libel, &c.

4. Mr. B. may pledge the coy's credit in any one transaction to the extent of 100%, but subject as in this clause mentd Mr. B. shall not pledge the credit of the coy in any manner. Limited liberty to pledge company's credit.

5. The coy shall pay to Mr. B., by way of remuneration for his services, the sum of £— per annum, which shall be deemed to accrue from day to day, and shall be pd as nearly as may be by twelve equal monthly instalments of £— each, commencing as from the — day of —. Provided always, that if in any year the profits of the coy available for dividend shall be less than the sum of £—, Mr. B. shall receive in respect of that year the sum of £— only, and shall repay any such amount beyond that sum which he may have received in respect of the year in question. The certificate of the auditor of the coy shall be conclusive as to the amount of the profits of the coy available for dividend in each year, or as to there being none. Remuneration by fixed salary with abatement where profits low.

6. If Mr. B. shall be guilty of any wilful act of misconduct in the course of his employment, or if he shall become bankrupt or compound with his creditors, the coy may by notice in writing to Mr. B. terminate his engagement. Notice by company to determine for wilful misconduct, bankruptcy, &c.

7. If Mr. B. shall be unable for a consecutive period of six calendar months to perform his duties owing to illness, lunacy or unsoundness of mind, the coy may, by notice in writing to Mr. B., terminate this agreement. Notice by company to determine for incapacity.

8. If this agreement shall be terminated under clauses 6 or 7, or if the said A. B. shall leave the coy's service during the said period of five years in breach of the agreement on his pt herein contained, Mr. B. shall — for a period of — years from the date of such event, engage or be concerned, either directly or indirectly, in the production or publication of any daily newspaper in England other than "The — Newspaper" aforesaid or any other newspaper owned by the coy. A. B. not to be interested in other newspapers in certain events.

As witness, &c.

Form 78. AGREEMENT to APPOINT TWO DIRECTORS as GENERAL MANAGERS of a COMPANY'S BUSINESS, with DELEGATION of DIRECTORS' POWERS—COMPANY to SHARE any NEW BUSINESS OF MANAGERS' FIRM—REMUNERATION of MANAGERS out of SURPLUS PROFITS, RESERVE FUND, TRANSFER FEES, &c. SPECIAL PROVISION as to SETTLEMENT of ACCOUNTS in WINDING-UP or TERMINATION of this AGREEMENT.

AGREEMENT, dated —, between The — Coy, Limtd (hnfr called "the Coy"), of the one pt, and A., of —, and B., of — (hnfr called "Messrs. —") of the other part.

Recital of registration of coy. Capital, £— and shares, and that Messrs. — carry on business as, &c. under the style of "— Brothers." AND WHEREAS by the arts of asson of the coy Messrs. — were appointed two of the directors of the coy. AND WHEREAS it is deemed expedient that Messrs. — should be managers of the business of the coy upon the terms hnfr appearing.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:—

Firm to be managers.

1. Messrs. — shall be the managers of the business of the coy for the term hnfr specified, and if either of them during such term ceases to be one of the managers, the other shall become the sole manager of the business of the coy, and they or he, as such manager or managers, are hnfr referred to as "the managers or manager."

Term of office and extension and power to terminate.

2. The managers or manager shall hold office for a term of ten years from the registration of the coy, but with power for them or him at any time during the sd term, by notice in writing to the coy, to extend such term for a further period of three years, and if, during the continuance of this agreemt, the managers or manager shall be incapacitated by ill-health, or shall discontinue in office, or shall find that they or he cannot satisfactorily continue with the coy or other directors of the coy, or if the arts of asson shall be altered by the coy without their or his consent, such managers or manager shall have power, by notice in writing to the coy, to terminate this agreemt.

Managers to supply office and staff, &c.

3. The managers or manager shall during their or his tenure of office provide and maintain for the coy suitable office accommodation in London and a secretary, and grant to the coy the assistance of their or his staff in London and South America resply for the purpose of carrying on the coy's business, as may reasonably be required, and in conson of the services of the managers or manager, including the services to be rendered to the coy under this clause, the coy shall pay to the managers or manager reasonable working expenses, and such payments shall be in addition to the remuneration of the managers or manager prescribed by clause 7 hof.

4. The managers or manager shall manage and conduct the business of the coy according to the best of their or his judgment, and subject to such regulations, general or special, as the directors of the coy may from time to time make, and shall for that purpose, subject as aforesaid, have full control over the assets of the coy, and the power to use its seal, and to make contracts of all kinds within the objects of the coy, and generally to exercise for the purposes aforesaid all the powers, authorities, and discretions of the directors under the arts of assent of the coy capable of being delegated to managers.

Form 78.

Delegation of directors' powers to managers.

5. Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions, the managers or manager shall on behalf of the coy have power to—

Special powers.

- (a) Make and effect all such purchases and sales of ppty and claims as they or he may think proper.
- (b) Make all such loans and advances as they or he may think proper.
- (c) Transact all general contango business for the benefit of the coy.
- (d) Invest moneys of the coy in stocks, funds, shares, bonds, debentures, debenture stock and other securities, and deal in options.
- (e) Sell, exchange, and deal with any such stocks, funds, shares, bonds, debentures, debenture stock, and other securities, and to give options for the purchase thereof.
- (f) Generally to carry out such transactions as they or he consider expedient in the interest of the coy.

6. Subject as aforesaid the managers or manager shall, whilst they or he hold office, procure the firm of L— & Co. as the same shall from time to time be constituted to offer from time to time to the coy 33 p.c. at least of such firm's interest in all new business from time to time undertaken or proposed to be undertaken by the said firm including the interest in any new business which may arise out of any business in which the said firm are at present interested, but excluding for the benefit of the said firm their ordinary market transactions.

Managers to offer company a percentage of their firm's new business.

7. As regards their or his services as managers or manager of the business the coy shall during their or his term of office aforesaid pay to the managers or manager as regards each financial year of the coy:

Remuneration of managers by share of profits, transfer fees, &c.

- (1) A sum equal to one quarter of the profits of the coy of such year after provision is made thereout (a) for any depreciation, (b) for reserve fund or any addition thereto as may be determined by the directors, (c) for the payment of dividends accrued up to the close of such year on any shares ranking in priority to the ordinary shares of the coy, and (d) for a minimum dividend for that year at the rate of 5 p.c. on the ordinary shares, and

Form 78.

- (2) A sum equal to one quarter of such pt (if any) of the reserve fund as shall, in respect of such year, be distributed by way of bonus or dividend amongst the shareholders; and
- (3) The amount of all fees during such year received on the transfer of any of the shares in the coy's capital and on the transfer of any debentures or debenture stock which may be created by the coy, and on the conversion of share warrants and share certificates and vice versa, and on the conversion of debentures or debenture stock into shares.

A balance-sheet in winding-up or on other determination of this agreement.

8. Upon the winding-up of the coy whilst the managers or manager are or is in office, or upon the managers or manager vacating office whether by reason of death or ill-health or effluxion of time or otherwise as hnbefore provided, a balance-sheet of the coy shall be made out as on the day of the commencement of the winding-up of the coy, or on the day of such vacating of office, and if it shall appear that the value of the coy's assets exceeds the amount of the coy's debts and liabilities including pd-up capital, then the managers or manager or their or his legal personal representatives shall be entitled to one quarter of the value of such excess. In making out such a balance-sheet assets shall be taken at their market value, and all assets not having a market value shall be taken at the fair value. All disputes with reference to the sd balance-sheet shall be determined by arbitration, and the Arbitration Act, 1889, shall apply.

Final settlement between the parties in the winding-up or other determination.

9. In the event of the winding-up of the coy the managers or manager shall be pd their or his share of the value of the surplus to be ascertained as asfd pari passu with the other persons entld to share therein, and at the same time. But if the managers or manager shall vacate office for any of the above-mentd reasons before the winding-up of the coy they or he shall receive their or his share of the value of the surplus so ascertained as asfd at the option of the coy either (a) by a cash payment for the whole amount due to them or him, or (b) by transfer to them or him of such aliquot part of each kind of asset of the coy as shall together represent the amount due to them by him, except where any assets of the coy shall not consist of cash, stocks, funds, shares, bonds, debentures, or debenture stock, then the value of the aliquot part of such assets shall be pd to them or him in cash. The coy shall within one month from the date of the balance-sheet referred to in clause 8 give notice in writing to the managers or manager in which of the sd ways the coy intends to account to them or him for their or his share of the value of the surplus, and immediately upon receipt of such notice the managers or manager shall be entld to a statement of account. If the coy shall fail to give such notice the manager or managers shall be entld to an immediate settlement in cash.

IN WITNESS, &c.

Appointment of Officers and Agents.

The articles of a company often purport to make appointments of managers, secretaries, agents, solicitors, and others; but it is generally expedient, after the incorporation, for persons so appointed to enter into an agreement in writing with the company defining the terms and conditions of the appointment; for though the articles in such a case operate as an authority by the shareholders to the directors to appoint the person named in the articles, they do not constitute a contract between the company and the appointee on which the appointee can rely. Eley v. Positive Government, &c. Co., 1 Ex. Div. 88; Rotherham Co., 25 C. Div. 103; Empress Engineering Co., 16 C. Div. 125; Browne v. La Trinidad, 37 C. D. 1; Ex parte Beckwith, (1898) 1 Ch. 324, 326; Re International Cable Co., 66 L. T. 254; Swabey v. Port Darwin Gold Co. (1889), 1 Meg. C. C. 385; and infra, p. 635. As to what is evidence of an appointment of an officer by the company, see Browning v. Great Central Mining Co., 5 H. & N. 856; 29 L. J. Ex. 399.

Appointment of officers by articles of association. An agreement should be executed.

Moreover, if the agreement is not to be performed within a year, it is necessary to have an agreement in writing, by reason of sect. 4 of the Statute of Frauds. Eley v. Positive Government, &c. Co., 1 Ex. Div. 20; S. C. 88. However, the signature of the secretary of a company to a minute recording a resolution for his appointment may be sufficient. Jones v. Victoria Graving Dock Co., 2 Q. B. Div. 314; and see Gibson v. Barton, L. R. 10 Q. B. 332; Reeve v. Jennings, (1910) 2 K. B. 522; Hanau v. Ehrlich, (1911) 2 K. B. 1056, in which case it has been held that a contract for service for a period exceeding one year with power to determine on either side by six months' notice was a contract not to be performed within the year.

Specific performance of a contract for personal services will not be ordered. Stocker v. Brocklebank, 3 M. & G. 250; Brett v. East India, &c. Co., 2 H. & M. 404; Mair v. Himalaya Tea Co., 1 Eq. 411; Fry, Specific Performance, 6th ed. Nor of a contract to procure the performance of services. Ryan v. Mutual Tontine Assoc., (1893) 1 Ch. 116. But where there is a negative stipulation that the employé will not engage elsewhere, the Court will grant an injunction to restrain a breach thereof. Lumley v. Wagner, 1 D. M. & G. 604. In that case A. had agreed to sing at B.'s theatre for a certain period, and not to sing elsewhere without his consent in writing. At the instance of B. an injunction was granted restraining A. from singing elsewhere; and see Star Newspaper Co. v. O'Connor, (1898) W. N. 114, 122; and Metropolitan Electric Supply v. Ginder, (1901) 2 Ch. 799. But it seems that, in order to obtain such an injunction, it is necessary to put in the contract a clear negative covenant, or words amounting thereto (Whitwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, (1891) 2 Ch. 416), and that even the words "act exclusively for" are not sufficient (Mutual Reserve Fire v. New York Life, &c. Co., 75 L. T. 528, C. A.); at the same time, words though positive in terms may in substance be negative. Catt v. Tourle, 4 Ch. 654. But doubt has been expressed whether an injunction will be granted where there is only an implied negative. Davis v. Foreman, 43 W. R. 168. See, however, what was said in Wolverhampton, &c. Ry. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 16 Eq. 433; followed in Re Cary Elwes' Contract, (1906) 2 Ch. 143.

Specific performance.

Injunction.

In the absence of express provision an employé is entitled to reasonable notice of dismissal or compensation. Green v. Wright, 1 C. P. D. 592; Illustrated Newspaper Corporation, 16 T. L. R. 157; African Association v. Allen, (1910) 1 K. B. 396. In the case last mentioned power was reserved for the employer to determine at any time, but it was held that this did not dispense with reasonable notice. But he may be dismissed without notice for wilful disobedience of any lawful order of the employer. Shaw v. Arnott, 2 Stark. 250; Callo v. Brouneclear, 4 C. & P. 518; Amor v. Tesson, 9 A. & E. 548; Turner v. Mason, 11 M. & W. 112. Moral misconduct, whether in relation to money affairs or otherwise, is enough. Callo v. Brouneclear, supra; Brown v. Croft, 6 C. & P. 16; Pearce v. Foster, 17 Q. B. D. 536. So is taking a bribe. Boston Deep Sea Co. v. Russell, 39 C. D. 339; Baillie v. Kell, 4 Bing. N. C. 638.

Notice before dismissal.

It is sufficient, it was said in the former of these cases, if a valid reason for dismissal existed at the time though the master was not aware of it. Disclosure of a company's accounts to a person connected with another company will justify dismissal. East Anglian Rail. Co. v. Lythgoe, 2 L. M. & P. 221; Merces v. Whall (1845), 5 Q. B. 447. So will habitual negligence or conduct calculated to prejudice the employer's business (Rokner v. Anderson, 3 Esp. 235; Ridgway v. Hungerford Market Co., 3 A. & E. 171; Smith v. Thompson, 8 C. B. 44); or incompetence or permanent disability (Harmer v. Cornelius, 5 C. B. N. S. 236); or stock exchange speculations (Powers v. Fooks, 17 Q. B. D. 537); or getting a list of customers for his private purposes from a receiver and manager who is carrying on the business of the company (Measures Brothers, Ltd. v. Measures, (1910) 2 Ch. 248); even a single act of forgetfulness having, or calculated to have, serious results, may justify dismissal without notice (Baxter v. London and County Printing Works, (1899) 1 Q. B. 901).

A fortiori where an employé undertakes as one of the terms of his employment to use his best endeavours to promote the interests of the company and commits a breach thereof the company may dismiss him. Arding v. Lomas (1854), 24 L. J. Ex. 80.

As to absence through illness, see Davies v. Ebbw Vale Urban Council, 27 T. L. R. 543.

If an employer makes out a prima facie case of misconduct, the onus is on the employer to prove the innocence of the transaction. Federal Supply and Cold Storage v. Angerren, 103 L. T. 150.

Incompatible offices. An officer who accepts an incompatible office vacates prima facie his original office. Eales v. Cumberland Lead Co., 6 H. & N. 481; Iron Ship Co. v. Blunt, L. R. 3 C. P. 484; Melwood v. Thatcher (1892), 2 T. R. 81; Reg. v. Tidy, 2 Q. B. 179.

Trade secrets. An employé or ex-employé may generally be restrained by injunction from revealing trade secrets. Merryweather v. Moore, (1892) 2 Ch. 518; Robb v. Green, (1895) 2 Q. B. 1; affirmed on appeal, (1895) 2 Q. B. 315. See also Louis v. Smellie, W. N. (1895) 115; Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218; Helmores v. Smith (No. 2), 35 Ch. D. 449; Summers v. Boyce, 23 T. L. R. 724.

Agreement to pay specific sum for loss of office.
Logan's case. It is very common expressly to fix by agreement the compensation to be payable to the agent in case his agency shall be terminated by the company. Thus, in Logan's case, 9 Eq. 149, L. was by the articles appointed managing director of a company, at 800*l.* per annum and a commission on profits. It was also provided that: "In the event of the said L. being at any time deprived of or removed from his office for any other cause than gross misconduct, the directors shall pay to him as compensation for loss of office a sum equal to three years' salary. . . ." The company was ordered to be wound up, and L. was held entitled to prove for three years' salary. See also Shirreff's case, 14 Eq. 417.

But where an order had been made to wind up a company of which T. was an officer, one of the terms of his engagement being, that "5,000*l.* be paid to him if the company discontinue to employ him," it was held by Lord Cairns that "T. was not entitled to prove for the 5,000*l.*, as there was no voluntary, active, and intelligent discontinuance by the company of the employment of T. Albert Life Assurance Co., Tait's claim, 16 Sol. J. 46.

As a rule, an agent or servant, appointed for a term at a salary, will, subject to deductions, be entitled to prove in the winding-up for the value of his salary for the unexpired residue of the term, for the winding-up is a breach of the contract of employment. Measures Brothers, Ltd. v. Measures, (1910) 2 Ch. 248; Yelland's case, 4 Eq. 350; Ex parte Clark, 7 Eq. 550; and see Macdonell, Master and Servant, 2nd ed., 129. But when, in addition to his salary, an agent is to have a commission on business done, he is not, upon a winding-up, entitled to prove for what he might have otherwise earned. Ex parte Maclure, 5 Ch. 737. This was a case of a voluntary winding-up, and the same rule must a fortiori apply in a compulsory winding-up. See Sovereign Life, Salter's claim, 7 T. L. R. 602; and see cases below.

As to proof in winding-up.

Yelland's case
Agent cannot prove for future commission

Important questions sometimes arise as to how far a discontinuance of a business, whether by winding-up, sale or otherwise, is a breach of an agreement for employment or for the payment of remuneration out of profits.

Sale or discontinuance of business when a breach of agreement

Where an agreement had been made between A. and B. that B. should be sole agent at Liverpool for the sale of A.'s coal during a term of years at certain commission, A. to have control of the prices with power for him to rescind if B. did not sell a certain minimum, and A. sold his colliery before the expiration of the term, it was held by the House of Lords, that an action by B. against A. for damages for breach of the agreement occasioned thereby would not lie, for that the agreement did not bind A. to keep his colliery or send any coal to Liverpool. Rhodes v. Forwood, 1 App. Cas. 256.

But where tobacco merchants contracted with a retail dealer that, in consideration of his purchasing direct from them and agreeing to continue to buy, display and sell their goods and not to sign any agreement with any other firm which would prevent him from carrying out this contract—they would for the next four years distribute to such of their customers as purchased direct from them their entire net profits on goods sold in the United Kingdom, and also the sum of 200,000*l.* a year, to be distributed every three months in proportion to the purchases, and soon afterwards the manufacturers sold their business, and went into voluntary liquidation: the House of Lords held that there was an express contract to pay to the retail dealer his due proportion of 200,000*l.* a year for four years, and that he was entitled to damages for breach of that contract, the merchants having put it out of their own power to carry on the business. Ogdens, Ltd. v. Nelson; Ogdens, Ltd. v. Telford, (1905) A. C. 109, 11*l.* (E.).

Again, where a business was sold to a company on the terms that the purchase-money should be paid to A. out of the profits of the business, and before payment the company resold the business to the exclusion of A., it was held that he was entitled to damages. Telegraph Despatch Co. v. McLean, 8 Ch. 658; discussed Re Railway and Electric Co., 38 Ch. D. 504. Compare Spanish Prospecting Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 92; Inchbald v. The Western Neilygherry Co., 17 C. B. N. S. 733; and Railway and Electric Co., 38 C. D. 597; Hamlyn v. Wood, (1891) 2 Q. B. 488; Hotel and General Advertising Co. v. Wickenden, 14 T. L. R. 480; and Hirsch & Co. v. Burns, supra, which all illustrate the difficulty of reading in implied restrictions; and see Turner v. Goldsmith, (1891) 1 Q. B. 544; and Churchward v. The Queen, L. R. 1 Q. B. 173 (commission).

Where a company has not sold its business and is not in liquidation, it is liable for damages for prospective commission if it repudiates. Lockett v. Lagunas Nitrate Co., Times, 22 March, 1900.

But an agreement to employ a man does not oblige the employers to provide him with work. Turner v. Sawdon & Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 653; and see Midland Counties District Banking Co. v. Attwood, (1905) 1 Ch. 357.

When
winding-up a dismissal.

A compulsory winding-up order is equivalent to a dismissal of a company's servants. Chapman's case (1866), 1 Eq. 346. This case was decided on the ground that the winding-up order which is advertised in the newspapers is notice to all the world of the winding-up, and accordingly the applicant was held entitled to prove for his salary on the footing of having had notice of discharge on the day the order was made. And this decision has never been overruled. Per Chitty, J., Macdowall's case (1886), 32 C. D. 366, 368; and see Reid v. Explosives Co. (1886), 10 Q. B. D. 264, in which it was held that the appointment by the Court of a receiver and manager in a debenture holder's action also operates as a dismissal of the company's servants. It was also held in Shirreff's case, 14 Eq. 417, that the same rule applied in a voluntary winding-up. "I am of opinion," said Lord Romilly in that case (1872), "that the resolution to wind up the company ipso facto put an end to Mr. Shirreff's employment as manager, and was equivalent to his dismissal." No doubt this also was decided on the ground that there would be notice of the passing of the resolution advertised in the "Gazette" in accordance with sect. 132 of the Companies Act, 1862 (now sect. 185 of the Companies Act, 1908), and the decision has ever since been acted on without question until the decision of Warrington, J., in Midland Counties District Bank v. Attwood, (1905) 1 Ch. 357. In that case the question was whether a former employé of the company could be restrained from committing a breach of the covenant that he would not within a year of the termination of agreement, whether by notice or under the terms of a special clause, enter into the service of another bank carrying on business within certain districts. The company had passed a resolution to wind up, and the defendant contended that as this was a wrongful dismissal he was not bound by the restrictive covenant. The learned judge held that the resolution for winding-up did not operate as a discharge of the servants, thus overruling Shirreff's case, supra. The ground of the decision was, that regard being had to sect. 131 of the Act of 1862 (sect. 184 of the Companies Act, 1908), the corporate existence and corporate powers of the company subsisted, notwithstanding the winding-up, and that as the liquidator was appointed by and is an officer of the company, there is no such change in the personality of the employer as to dismiss the servants. On the other hand, the learned judge considered that in the case of a compulsory winding-up there was a change of personality, seeing that the business, as from the date of the winding-up order, was carried on by the Court for the purpose of liquidation with the assistance of the official liquidator, an officer of the Court. It seems, however, doubtful whether this distinction can be maintained, seeing that the corporate existence subsists in a compulsory winding-up as much as in a voluntary winding-up. Chapman's case was decided on the ground of notice, not of change of personality, and there is notice given in the case of a voluntary winding-up. No doubt, in a sense, the liquidator in a compulsory winding-up is an officer of the Court; but, as pointed out by James, L. J., in Ex parte Watkin, 1 C. D. 130, he is appointed by the Court to act for the company, and acts as agent for and on behalf of the company, subject to the control of the Court.

Damages against third party procuring breach of contract.

In the case of service contracts, if a third party, without justification, induces either of the contracting parties to commit a breach of the contract and damage ensues, such third party is liable to an action for damages (Lumley v. Gye, 2 E. & B. 216; Bowen v. Hall, 6 Q. B. D. 339; South Wales Miners' Federation v. Morgan Coal Co., (1905) A. C. 239); and, as the case last mentioned shows, the principle is not confined to service contracts. See also National Phonograph Co. v. Edison Bell, & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 335. Very commonly, interference with service contracts arises by the action of trade unions, and it was held in Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, (1901) A. C.

426, that a registered trade union might be sued in its registered name in respect of wrongs done on its behalf. But this principle was virtually abrogated by the Trade Disputes Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 47), by which "No Court" is now "to entertain any action . . . against a trade union in respect of any tortious act alleged to have been committed by or on behalf of the trade union."

The following are some of the leading cases in relation to breach of contract procured by trade unions:—Allen v. Flood, (1898) A. C. 1, in which the defendant neither uttered nor carried into effect any threat, but simply warned the employers what the men without his persuasion were determined to do; Read v. Friendly Society of Operative Stonemasons, (1902) 2 K. B. 732; Giblan v. National Amalgamated Labourers' Union, (1903) 2 K. B. 600; Huttly v. Simmons, (1898) 1 Q. B. 181; Leatham v. Craig, 2 Ir. R. 667; Ajello v. Worsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274. But by far the most important is the decision of the House of Lords in South Wales Miners' Federation v. Morgan Coal Co., above referred to. In that case all the previous cases were considered, and the principle was clearly laid down that procuring a breach of contract is an actionable wrong unless there be justification for interfering with the legal right. There miners, employed in collieries without giving notice to their employers and in breach of their contracts, abstained from working on certain days under the direction or order of the Federation of Miners by their Executive Council. The federation and council acted honestly and without malice or ill-will against the employers. Indeed, they considered what they were doing would be for the benefit of the employers, and their only object was to keep up the price of coal by which the wages were regulated. But it was held that an action for damages lay by the employers against the federation and its officers, no justification for their action being shown.

MEMORANDA OF ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER VI.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

SECTIONS 2 and 3 of the Companies Act, 1908, are as follows:

Memorandum of Association

2. Any seven or more persons (or, where the company to be formed will be a private company within the meaning of this Act, at least two or more persons) associated for any lawful purpose may by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and otherwise complying with the requirements of this Act in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability (that is to say), either—

- (i) A company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares respectively held by them (in this Act termed a company limited by shares); or
- (ii) A company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to such amount as the members may respectively thereby undertake to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up (in this Act termed a company limited by guarantee); or
- (iii) A company not having any limit on the liability of its members (in this Act termed an unlimited company).

3. In the case of a company limited by shares—

(1) The memorandum must state—

- (i) The name of the company, with "Limited" as the last word in its name;
- (ii) The part of the United Kingdom, whether England, Scotland, or Ireland, in which the registered office of the company is to be situate;
- (iii) The objects of the company;
- (iv) That the liability of the members is limited;
- (v) The amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered, and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount;

(2) No subscriber of the memorandum may take less than one share;

(3) Each subscriber must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

For form of such a memorandum, see infra, p. 490.

As to when the word "limited" may be omitted, see Form 81.

Memorandum
of association of company limited by guarantee.

As to the memorandum of a company limited by guarantee, sect. 4 of the Act of 1908 is as follows:—

4. In the case of a company limited by guarantee—

(1) The memorandum must state—

- (i) The name of the company, with "Limited" as the last word in its name;
- (ii) The part of the United Kingdom, whether England, Scotland, or Ireland, in which the registered office of the company is to be situate;
- (iii) The objects of the company;
- (iv) That the liability of the members is limited;
- (v) That each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up while he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for the payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up, and for adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount.

(2) If the company has a share capital—

- (i) The memorandum must also state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount;
- (ii) No subscriber of the memorandum may take less than one share;
- (iii) Each subscriber must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

As to the memorandum of an unlimited company, sect. 5 of the Act provides as follows:—

Memorandum of association of an unlimited
company.

5. In the case of an unlimited company—

(1) The memorandum must state—

- (i) The name of the company;
- (ii) The part of the United Kingdom, whether England, Scotland, or Ireland, in which the registered office of the company is to be situate;
- (iii) The objects of the company.

(2) If the company has a share capital—

- (i) No subscriber of the memorandum may take less than one share;
- (ii) Each subscriber must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

For form of such a memorandum, see infra, p. 503.

As to the signature and stamping of the memorandum of a company limited or unlimited, sect. 6 runs thus:—

Stamp and signature of
memorandum.

6. The memorandum must bear the same stamp as if it were a deed, and must be signed by each subscriber in the presence of at least one witness who must attest the signature, and that attestation shall be sufficient in Scotland as well as in England and Ireland.

With regard to the registration of the memorandum of association, it is provided by sect. 15 of the Act of 1908 that:

15. The memorandum and the articles (if any) shall be delivered to the registrar of companies for that part of the United Kingdom in which the registered office of the company is stated by the memorandum to be situate, and he shall retain and register them.

244.—(1) There shall be paid to the registrar in respect of the several matters mentioned in Table B. in the first schedule to this Act the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Board of Trade may from time to time direct.

(2) All fees paid to the registrar in pursuance of this Act shall be paid into the exchequer.

Copies of Tables B. and C. will be found infra, in the Appendix.

As to the effect of registration, sect. 16 of this Act provides that:

16. (1) On the registration of the memorandum of a company the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company that the company is limited.

(2) From the date of incorporation mentioned in the certificate of incorporation, the subscribers of the memorandum together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company, shall be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up as is mentioned in this Act.

As to the stamp, signature, and effect of memorandum, sect. 14 of the Act of 1908 provides as follows:

14.—(1) The memorandum and articles shall, when registered, bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if they respectively had been signed and sealed by each member, and contained covenants on the part of each member, his heirs, executors, and administrators, to observe all the provisions of the memorandum and of the articles, subject to the provisions of this Act.

(2) All money payable by any member to the company under the memorandum or articles shall be a debt due from him to the company, and in England and Ireland be of the nature of a specialty debt.

With regard to the several clauses contained in the memorandum of association:

As to the NAME:—

This clause is required in every memorandum. The choice of the name rests with the subscribers of the memorandum. They are free to select, subject to sect. 20 of the Act, any name they like, so, nevertheless, that the word "limited" shall, in case of a company limited by shares or by guarantee, form the last word of the name. See, however, infra, p. 498, n.

Sect. 8.

Sect. 8 provides as follows:—

8.—(1) A company may not be registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is already registered, or so nearly resembling that name as to be calculated to deceive, except where the company in existence is in the course of being dissolved and signifies its consent in such manner as the registrar requires.

(2) If a company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is previously registered, or so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of the registrar, change its name.

(3) Any company may, by special resolution and with the approval of the Board of Trade signified in writing, change its name.

(4) Where a company changes its name, the registrar shall enter the new name on the register in place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case.

(5) The change of name shall not affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings by or against the company, and any legal proceedings that might have been continued or commenced against it by its former name may be continued or commenced against it by its new name.

Improper use of name.

Sect. 8 is designed to prevent similar names getting on the register, but the registration of a company by a name which is calculated to deceive by reason of its identity with or resemblance to the name used by some unregistered company, partnership, or person, will not prevent the Courts from intervening, in a proper case, by injunction, to protect the rights of such last-mentioned company, partnership, or person.

Principle for intervention
of Court.

The principle on which the Court interferes in such cases is, that one person is not to be permitted to represent the business which is carried on by another as carried on by him (Levy v. Walker, 10 C. Div. 436), or to represent his goods as being the goods of another man, or to enable his customers to make a false representation to some one who is the alternative purchaser. Reddaway v. Banham, (1896) A. C. 199 (explained in Lever Bros. v. Beddingfield, 80 L. T. 100); and see Reddaway v. Ahlers, 19 R. P. C. 12; Croft v. Day, 7 Beav. 84. And see J. & J. Cash, Limited v. Cash, 82 L. T. 655; 86 L. T. 211; Jamieson v. Jamieson, 15 Rep. Pat. Cas. 193; Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 83 L. T. 259; 16 T. L. R. 522, where the defendants were using their own names; also S. Chivers & Sons v. S. Chivers & Co., Limited, 17 R. P. C. 420. And this principle applies equally to companies.

Fraudulent intention or not.

It is not necessary to prove any fraudulent intention on the part of the defendants: it is sufficient if in the circumstances of the particular case the name adopted by them will be likely to mislead. Singer Machine v. Wilson, 3 App. Cas. 376; Merchant Banking Co. of London, Limited v. Merchants' Joint Stock Bank, Limited, 9 C. D. 560; Guardian Fire and Life Assurance Co. v. Guardian and General

Insurance Co., 43 L. T. 791; Hendriks v. Montagu, 17 C. Div. 638; Tussaud v. Tussaud, 44 Ch. D. 678; F. Pinet et Cie. v. Maison Louis Pinet, Limited. (1898) 1 Ch. 179; Montreal Lithographing Co. v. Sabiston, (1899) A. C. 610; Société Panhard v. Panhard Levassor Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 513; Aerators, Limited v. Tollit, (1902) 2 Ch. 319; British Vacuum Cleanser Co. v. New Vacuum Cleanser Co., (1907) 2 Ch. 312; Electromobile Co. v. British Electromobile Co., 97 L. T. 196; Cash (J. & J.), Limited v. Cash, 82 L. T. 655; Valentine Meat Juice Co. v. Valentine Extract Co., 83 L. T. 259; Manchester Brewery Co. v. North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co., (1899) A. C. 83. In that case in 1897 two companies existed, called the Manchester Brewery Company and the North Cheshire Brewery Company. The former had its brewery and a large business in Manchester. The latter had its brewery in Macclesfield and its business chiefly there, but to some small extent also in Manchester. In that year (1897) the business of the latter company was sold to persons who started a new company named "The North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Company." The House of Lords, affirming the Court of Appeal, held that though it did not appear that there was any fraudulent intention, they must be restrained from trading under that name, as it was calculated to deceive the public into thinking that the new company was carrying on the business of the Manchester Brewery Company. The Court of Appeal had laid down that there is no rule that a name is not so like another as to be calculated to deceive when the words common to the two names come first in the one and last in the other. (1898) 1 Ch. 539.

See also Premier Cycle Co. v. Premier Tube Co., 12 T. L. R. 481; and John Brinsmead and Sons v. T. E. Brinsmead and Sons, Limited. (1897) 1 Ch. 49, 413, where an injunction was granted restraining the use of the name of Thomas Edward Brinsmead and Sons, Limited, or the word "Brinsmead" by the defendants in connection with the manufacture, sale, or hire of pianos without adding thereto an express statement that the company was distinct from, and had no connection with, the old firm of John Brinsmead & Sons; and Sarlechner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893; F. Pinet & Co. v. Maison Louis Pinet, Ltd., (1898) 1 Ch. 179; and Chap. XIX., infra; Army and Navy Co-operative Society v. Army, Navy and Civil Service Co-operative Society of South Africa, 19 R. P. C. 575. As Lord Bowen once said, "The world is wide, and there are many names."

The fact, however, that the defendants have not only adopted a name resembling that of the plaintiff, but have set up, or propose to set up, business in the same street, or have issued deceptive circulars, goes far to show a fraudulent intention. See Lee v. Haley, 5 Ch. 161; Merchant Banking Co. v. Merchants', &c. Bank, ub supra.

The Court has great difficulty in interfering where the name adopted is merely descriptive of the character of the defendant's business, and accordingly, in each of the three following cases an injunction was refused:—London and Provincial Law Assurance Society v. London and Provincial Joint Stock Life Assurance Co., 17 L. J. Ch. 37; Colonial Life Assurance Co. v. Home and Colonial Assurance Co., Ltd., 33 Beav. 548; The London Assurance Corporation v. The London and Westminster Assurance Corporation, Limited, 9 Jur. N. S. 843. But see now Reddaway v. Banham, (1896) A. C. 199; and British Vacuum Cleanser Co. v. New Vacuum Cleanser Co., (1907) 2 Ch. 312; Electromobile v. British Electromobile Co., 98 L. T. 258; and North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co. v. Manchester Brewery Co., (1899) A. C. 83.

Name descriptive of business.

And a company cannot, merely by registering as its name, or part of its name, a common word from the English language, whatever its nature and however attractive—e.g., "Aerators"—monopolise that word as its name so as to prevent its use in the name of a subsequently registered company. Aerators, Limited v. Tollit, (1902) 2 Ch. 319; Duvall Ceylon Estates v. Ura Ceylon Rubber Estates, 103 L. T. 416.

More similarity
of name.

Mere similarity of name is not in itself enough to give a right to an injunction; for there is no right of property in the name. "In this country we do not recognize the absolute right of a person to a particular name to the extent of entitling him to prevent the assumption of the name by a stranger." Du Boulay v. Du Boulay, L. R. 2 C. P. 441. Hence, if persons chose to carry on business, say as ironmongers, under the name of Day and Martin, the well-known blacking makers could not restrain them.

Where businesses are different.

The plaintiffs must go further and show that they have carried on some trade or business under the particular name, and that the defendants' conduct may lead to their securing by deception part of the plaintiffs' business. If, then, the defendants are carrying on, or propose to carry on, a different kind of business, there can be no danger of deception, and therefore no legal injury. See Day v. Brownrigg, 10 C. Div. 304.

There is, for example, in law no absolute monopoly in the name of a newspaper. To entitle the proprietors of a newspaper to an injunction to restrain the publication of another newspaper with a similar name, they must show that the use of that name is calculated to lead to the belief that the defendants' newspaper is the plaintiffs', and that the use of such name is injurious to them. Outram v. London Evening Newspaper Co., 27 T. L. R. 231 (1911).

Where no danger of deception.

And even where the business is of the same character, and the name adopted very similar to that of the plaintiffs', the circumstances may be such as to show that there will not in fact be any danger of deception: e.g., when the defendants propose to carry on business in a different district or place. Merchant Banking Co. v. Merchants Joint Stock Bank, 9 C. D. 560; Lee v. Haley, 5 Ch. 155; Turton v.

Turton, 42 C. Div. 128. But see North Cheshire, &c. Co. v. Manchester Brewery Co., supra.

As to evidence as to how the existing company had used its name, see Daimler Motor Co. v. British Motor Traction Co., 18 R. P. C. 465.

As to evidence other than the judge's own ocular view, see London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, (1901) 1 Ch. 135, with which compare Parton & Co. v. Snelling, Lampard & Co., (1901) A. C. 308, 311.

Not only may a registered company be restrained from carrying on business as above, but promoters may be restrained from registering a company with a name calculated to deceive. Thus, in Hendriks v. Montagu, 17 C. D. 638, the registration of a company as "The Universe Life Assurance Association, Limited," was restrained at the instance of an unregistered company known as the "Universal Life Assurance Society."

The prohibition against similarity of name does not apply where an existing company is in course of being dissolved and testifies its consent to the satisfaction of the registrar. See Companies Act, 1908, s. 8 (1). The power thus given is frequently exercised, especially in cases of reconstruction or amalgamation. See Chap. XXI., infra.

An inadvertent omission on the part of a limited company to publish its corporate name will not disentitle it to have the use of its trade name protected by injunction. Randall, Ltd. v. British and American Shoe Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 354; and see Pearks, Gunston & Co., Ltd. v. Thompson, Talmey & Co. (1901), 18 R. P. C. 185.

Where a company purchases the goodwill of an existing business, it has, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, a right to carry on business under the trade name previously used in connection with such business; for the goodwill includes the right to use the name. Lepp v. Walker, 10 C. D. 436; see p. 150, supra; and the fact that no one bearing the name is connected with the company does not affect its right to protection. Croft v. Day, 7 Beav. 84.

As to carrying on business in the name of a dissolved company the business of which has been purchased by another company, or the name of a dissolved partnership, see Montreal Lithographing Co. v. Sabiston, (1899) A. C. 610; Burchell v. Wilde, (1900) 1 Ch. 551.

A foreign trader who has no English agency, but whose goods are in fact frequently imported into England, has a sufficient English market to enable him to restrain piracy of his trade name. Collins Co. v. Brown (1857), 3 K. & J. 423, followed; La Société Anonyme des Anciens Etablissements Panhard et Levassor v. Panhard Levassor Motor Co., Ltd., (1901) 2 Ch. 513.

In the last case Farwell, J., held that where a company is formed for a fraudulent purpose, the signatories to the memorandum are guilty of a fraudulent conspiracy to effect that purpose. In that case the name itself was enough to show fraud. A motor-car manufacturing company had been registered in a name colourably resembling purchasing goodwill.

Company

that of existing motor-car manufacturers with the fraudulent intention of obtaining the benefit of their reputation in that business, and the company and the signatories to the memorandum, who were the only directors and shareholders, were restrained from using the name in connection with that business, and the signatories were further restrained from allowing the company to remain registered under that name.

Purchasing businesses carried on by persons of the name of X. and Y. as a colourable device for enabling a man to have some appearance of right to use the name of X. and Y., a firm known as manufacturers of an article, will not protect the purchaser from an injunction. Abel Morrall, Ltd. v. T. Hessin & Co., 19 R. P. C. 557.

As to the word
"Royal."

It may be well here to draw attention to a rule made some years ago by the Board of Trade, viz., that the registrar shall not register any memorandum of association for the incorporation of a company by a name of which the word "Royal" or "Imperial" forms part, unless there be special circumstances for relaxing the rule, e.g., where the word "Royal" has been used in connection with property which the company is to acquire, or where permission to use the word has been granted by the Home Office.

Where the royalty referred to is not British, the Board of Trade is not so punctilious.

In some cases it may, in order to avoid delay, be desirable to apply to the Home Office for liberty to use the word "Royal."

As to the penalties for unauthorized use of the Royal Arms, or of any "device, emblem, or title" suggesting employment by the Royal Family, see sect. 68 of the Trade Marks Act, 1905.

Before finally settling on a name and getting documents printed, it is generally desirable to ascertain from the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies that no objection exists to the proposed name.

As to change of name, see Chap. X., infra.

Change of name.
Omission of word
"limited."

As to omitting the word "limited." In some cases a company may by licence of the Board of Trade be registered as a limited company without using the word "limited" as part of its name. These cases are specified in sect. 20 of the Companies Act, 1908. See infra, p. 498.

It has been held (F. Stacey & Co. v. Wallis (1912), 28 T. L. R. 209) that the abbreviation "Ltd." may in the case of a bill of exchange be used. But the Legislature has persistently enacted that the word "limited" shall be used, and it is not easy to justify the decision, seeing that the enactment is for the benefit of the public. See sects. 63, 67 of the Act.

As to the registered office of the company:—

Registered
office of
company.

Clause 2 of every memorandum must state in which part of the kingdom the registered office is proposed to be situate. This determines where the company is to be registered, and also the jurisdiction to which it will be subject. See sects. 15 and 134 of the Companies

Act, 1908; and sect. 131 (2) (—). And the company must, under penalties, have a registered office (sect. 62). It must also give notice of the situation of the office for the time being to the registrar (sect. 62), the object being to have an address at which the company can always be found. And where the company is limited by shares or by guarantee it must paint up its name outside the office, and engrave its name on its seal and its documents (sect. 63).

As to the objects of the company:—

Clause 3 of the memorandum is to state the objects of the company, and that clause must be framed with great care.

The statement of the objects is not a mere record of what is contemplated by the subscribers, without operative effect. On the contrary, the statement has a twofold operation—

- (1) It affirmatively determines what shall be the powers of the company; for the objects by being stated confer on the company all powers reasonably requisite to the attainment thereof;
- (2) It limits and restricts the powers of the company to those thus conferred, save so far as other powers are given by statute.

Objects
clause :
its operation.

Hence as it rests with the subscribers to declare the objects, it follows that the subscribers are by the Act furnished with the means, not merely to bring into existence a statutory corporation, but to endow that body with such powers (not illegal) as they, in their absolute discretion, think fit. This is their statutory right, and its importance cannot be exaggerated.

To apply and illustrate these principles:—

If a company is formed, for example, "to buy, sell and deal in coal," it may, for the purpose of carrying out its objects, not only buy, sell and deal in coal, but may—(1) purchase or take on lease stores; (2) open shops and agencies; (3) buy and hire trucks, carts, horses; (4) employ labour; (5) draw and accept bills of exchange; (6) borrow and give security; (7) incur debts; (8) make contracts for purchase or supply; (9) have banking account; (10) bring actions and take proceedings; (11) compromise actions and disputes (Bath's case, 8 Ch. D. 334); (12) employ agents; (13) pay bonuses and pensions to employes, for these things are fairly incidental to and consequential on the object to "buy, sell, and deal in coal."

What powers
implied.

Such a company may also pay all "expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company," and it may pay dividends out of profits, and may provide for payment, even out of capital, of interest on capital paid up in advance of calls, for clauses 71 and 17 of Table A (substituted for clauses 55 and 7 of the original Table A.) treat such outgoings and expenses as properly dealt with by the articles, and what Table A. authorizes is not to be treated as ultra vires. Lock v. Queensland Mortgage Co., (1896) A. C. 461.

Necessity of amplifying objects
clause.

Wide as the powers thus vested are, experience has shown that they are not wide enough to cover many of the transactions which are found necessary or convenient in the course of a company's business, irrespective of the fact already alluded to, that an over-concise statement of objects leaves, in the opinion of business men, too much to implication of law, thereby necessitating constant resort to legal advice, and also hampering business by the doubts it induces amongst outsiders, as to the company's capacity to engage in a given transaction. See further, supra, p. 458 et seq.

Hence the objects clause of by far the greater number of existing companies is expressed in considerable detail (see p. 458 et seq.), and specifies, in most cases at any rate, some objects which might be—to a lawyer—implied.

Specimen clauses; why inserted.

The following are the clauses most commonly found in memoranda of association:—

1. A clause authorizing the company to carry on the particular business which it is proposed to carry on, and also to carry on various other businesses which it may probably or possibly be desirable to carry on in conjunction therewith or in lieu thereof.

The object of this is to avoid the necessity for going to the Court (under sect. 9 of the Act of 1908) to extend the objects, and also to give the company full freedom for developing its business.

2. A clause empowering the company to acquire any other business similar to its own, for it is extremely difficult to imply such a power from the memorandum. Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. C. 401.

3. A clause empowering the company to enter into any agreement for sharing profits, joint adventure, reciprocal concession, or other arrangement of a like nature with other persons or companies carrying on any similar business; for very clear powers are necessary to justify such transactions. Ex parte British Nation, &c. Association, 11 Ch. D. 704.

4. A clause empowering the company to take shares in other companies having similar objects, &c. Such a power is commonly wanted, and not easily implied. Barned's Banking Co., 3 Ch. 105; Lands Allotment Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 630.

5. A clause empowering the company to promote other companies for any purpose calculated to benefit the company. This power, though often required, cannot be implied. Joint Stock Discount Co. v. Brown, 8 Eq. 381.

6. A power generally to acquire property and rights which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purpose of its business. In dealing with outsiders, it is found useful to have an express power like this, and so preclude any question of capacity.

7. A power to lend money and guarantee the performance of contracts by customers and others. These loan and guarantee transactions are constantly called for in business, and yet the power is one not easily implied.

8. A power to borrow or raise money by the issue of debentures, debenture stock or otherwise; for, although a trading company has an implied power to borrow and to give security to a reasonable amount, it is found in practice highly desirable to have an explicit power in the memorandum. Some doubt, too, exists whether debenture stock of a permanent character can be raised without express power. See now, however, sect. 103 of the Act of 1908.

9. A power to draw, make, accept, indorse, discount, and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, debentures, and other negotiable or transferable instruments. This is very desirable; for, although a trading company has implied power to make and accept promissory notes and bills of exchange for the purpose of its business (see In re Peruvian Rails. Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 623), the fact that various kinds of companies have been held not to possess any such implied power clouds the implication with a most inconvenient uncertainty. See infra, p. 509.

10. A power to sell and dispose of the undertaking of the company for shares, debentures, or securities of any other company having objects altogether, or in part, similar to those of this company. This is effective. See Colton v. Imperial, &c. Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 454; Grant v. United Switchback Co., 40 C. D. 135. Sale of the undertaking or any part was one of the objects. New Zealand &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622, in which it was distinctly held by the Court of Appeal that a sale under the power in the memorandum was valid. So too in Foster v. Borar Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326; and Virian & Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 624. Lindley on Companies, 6th ed., 256. In the absence of an express power like this, a company cannot sell or dispose of its whole business (Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. C. 712). According, however, to Bisgood v. Henderson's Transeal Estates, (1908) 1 Ch. 743, the power to sell for shares cannot be exercised if winding-up and distribution among the shareholders of the proceeds of sale is in contemplation. But this view is commonly considered erroneous. See further, infra, p. 511.

11. A power to apply for an Act of Parliament for any purpose which may seem expedient. Without such an express power a company cannot apply its funds in promoting a Bill to effect any modification in its constitution. Munt v. Shrewsbury, &c. Rail. Co., 13 Beav. 1; Simpson v. Dennison, 10 Hare, 51; Vance v. East Lancashire Rail. Co., 3 K. & J. 50.

12. A power to sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, mortgage, dispose of, turn to account, or otherwise deal with, all or any part of the property and rights of the company. Although a trading company has an implied power to deal with its property for the purpose of its business (see In re Patent File Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 13), it is in practice found highly desirable to have express and explicit powers on such matters, and so preclude all question and doubt. See Kingsbury Collieries, (1907) 2 Ch. 259.

As regards legality, the following rules are applicable:—

- (a) The objects must not include anything in contravention of the Act. For example, a limited company cannot legally issue shares at a discount, and accordingly, to make the issuing of its shares at a discount one of the objects of such a company is not allowable. Ooregum Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125. Again, it is not a lawful object to provide for a limited company dealing in its own shares, for that is in contravention of the Act.
- (b) The objects stated must not include anything in contravention of the general law. For example, it is not a lawful object "to keep a gambling house in the United Kingdom," or "to establish and work lotteries in England," or "to work and develop inventions for importing tobacco into the United Kingdom free of duty," or "to work a scheme for debasing the coinage," or to facilitate the commission of burglaries—for all these objects are contrary to the general law.
- (c) The objects must not include any which would render the company a trade union, for to register a trade union under the Companies Act, 1908, is illegal. See Trade Union Acts, 1871 and 1876, and sect. 294 of the Companies Act, 1908.

The
subscribers'
discretion.

Subject to these restrictions the subscribers of a company's memorandum of association have complete freedom to frame the objects as they choose. It is for them to say whether the objects shall be wide or narrow, cautious or speculative, wise or ridiculous, reasonable or unreasonable, congruous or incongruous, diffuse and rambling, or concise and definite, whether they shall be concurrent, or independent, or substitutional, or contingent, or in the alternative.*

* No doubt some persons have argued that what the Legislature really intended was that the principal objects should be specified—not the powers by which those objects are proposed to be attained—and proceeding from this premise maintain that once a main or primary "object" is specified it is improper to set out in the memorandum further objects which merely confer "powers." But there is nothing in the Act to give colour to this contention, or to show an intention to discriminate between main objects and objects merely conferring powers. Every object stated, whether main or auxiliary, in effect endows the company with a power or powers. To exclude objects conferring powers is to nullify the Act.

Besides these critics there is another class who complain of what may be called the multifariousness of the contents of a memorandum of association. The objects clause, according to their view, ought to specify the leading objects, be they one or many; and that is enough! To go on and specify as an object anything which is implied or may possibly be implied as incidental, on a reasonable construction of the leading object or objects, is irregular and improper. There ought to be no overloading, overlapping, repetition or surplusage. But here

The limitation of a company's powers is a characteristic which distinguishes all statutory companies incorporated for specified purposes, and there is no need to seek for and find in the Act or the constitution of the company any words prohibiting the company from transgressing its specified objects, for it is now settled that the limitation is inherent in the constitution of the company. There is a difference of opinion as to whether this limitation of the powers of such companies exists (1) because they are to be regarded as being incorporated only for the specified objects, or (2) because they are to be regarded as being expressly or impliedly prohibited from transgressing those objects. But in Ashbury Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 693, Lord Selborne said: "I only repeat what Lord Cranworth, in Haekes v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co., 5 H. L. C. 331, when moving the judgment of this House, stated to be settled law, when I say that a statutory corporation, created by Act of Parliament for a particular purpose, is limited, as to all its powers, by the purposes of its incorporation as defined in that Act. The present and all other companies incorporated by virtue of the Companies Act of 1862 appear to me to be statutory corporations within this principle. The memorandum of association is, under the Act, their fundamental and (except in certain specified particulars) their unalterable law: and they are incorporated only for the objects and purpose expressed in that memorandum. . . . And it seems to me far more accurate to say that the inability of such companies to make such contracts (i.e., beyond their objects) rests on an original limitation and circumscription of their powers by the law and for the purposes of their incorporation, than that it depends upon some express or implied prohibition, making acts unlawful which otherwise they would have had a legal capacity to do."

Limitation of powers a common feature of statutory companies.

Ashbury Co. v. Riche in support of view

This view is in accordance with the opinions expressed by Lord Langdale, M. R., in Colman v. E. C. Rail. Co., 10 Beav. 41; and in again the answer is that it is a matter for the subscribers' discretion. If they deem it desirable to set out the objects in greater detail than some experts would consider necessary, there is nothing in the Act to prevent them, and there is much to be said from the common-sense point of view in favour of the practice. Take, for instance, borrowing powers of a company. It is unnecessary, any critic might say, to include a borrowing power in the objects of a trading company, for such a power is, according to the decisions, implied; and so it is to the trained lawyer familiar with the authorities; but the person to whom a memorandum of association is addressed are in the main men of business, not lawyers, and for these it is expedient that the powers of the company should be made manifest by adequate objects, and should not be left as far as possible to inference or implication. This principle has been extensively and almost universally acted on during the last thirty years, and has been sanctioned by the authority and example of the greatest masters of company law, including Lord Macnaghten, Lord Davey, and the Lords Justices Chitty, Rigby, and Farwell, when at the Bar. In the result cases of ultra vires with reference to a company's objects have been almost banished from the Courts.

Other cases to like effect.

Salomons v. Laing, 12 Beav. 339; and with the law laid down in East Anglian Rail. Co. v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co., 11 C. B. 775, 21 L. J. C. P. 23, where Jervis, C. J., said: "It is clear that the defendants have a limited authority only, and are a corporation only for the purpose of making and maintaining the railway sanctioned by the Act, and that their funds can only be applied for the purposes directed and provided by that statute"—a case to which Lord Selborne referred as an authority in Ashbury Co. v. Riche, ubi supra. So, also, when Baroness Wenlock v. The River Dee Co. 36 C. Div. 674, was before the Court of Appeal, the Court (Lord Esher, M. R., and Cotton and Bowen, L. JJs.) were all of opinion that, in the case of a statutory corporation, it is not necessary to seek for a prohibition, for such a corporation only has such powers as are conferred on it expressly or by implication.

Contrary opinions.

Nevertheless, the advocates of the other view, viz., that statutory corporations are to be regarded as endowed with full powers, but as prohibited from using those powers otherwise than for their specified objects, can cite various dicta in favour of that view, e.g. per Patke, B., afterwards Lord Wensleydale, in South Yorkshire Rail. v. G. N. Rail. Co., 9 Ex. 55; per Lord Cranworth, Shrewsbury Rail. Co. v. N. W. Rail. Co., 6 H. L. C. 113; and per Lord Blackburn, in Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co., 5 App. Cas. 473. In the last case his Lordship, referring to Ashbury v. Riche, ubi supra said, "That case appears to me to decide, at all events, this, that when there is an Act of Parliament creating a corporation for a particular purpose, and giving it powers for that particular purpose what it does not expressly or impliedly authorize is prohibited."

Sect. 7 of Act.

In the case, however, of companies subject to the Consolidation Act, 1908, replacing sect. 12 of the Act of 1862, it is not necessary to resort to either of the above reasons; for, as we have seen, sect. 7 of the Act expressly provides that, save as therein mentioned, "A company may not alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in this Act"; and it is well settled that these words, inter alia, prohibit the company from doing anything in contravention of the conditions thereof. Ashbury v. Riche, 7 H. L. 653; Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409.

Powers.

A company under the Act has the following powers:

- (1) Power to do whatever it is necessary to do with a view to the attainment of the objects (see supra, p. 458) stated in its memorandum, and also whatever may fairly be regarded as incidental to and consequential on the stated objects.
- (2) Power to do whatever else is authorized by the other clauses of its memorandum.
- (3) Power to do such other things as it is allowed to do by the Act of 1908 or by any other statute.

That the powers of a registered company were dependent on and governed by its stated objects was recognized in an early case decided on the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, the immediate forerunner of the Companies Act, 1862. The Act of 1856 contained provisions as to formation almost identical with those subsequently adopted in the Act of 1862. In particular the Act required that the memorandum should state the objects of the proposed company, and it prohibited any alteration of the conditions contained in the memorandum of association. It was in relation to a company formed under this Act that Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel, 8 H. L. C. 712, was decided in 1860. In that case the memorandum stated that "the objects for which the company is established are the purchase of leasehold lands in the City of Westminster, the erection, furnishing and maintenance of an hotel thereon, and the carrying on the usual business of an hotel and tavern therein, and the doing all such things as are incidental or otherwise conducive to the attainment of these objects." The directors, whilst the hotel was in course of being built, agreed to let off for a stipulated period— a few years— a large portion of the building to the head of a Government Department for the business of his office, and evidence was given that such a letting was calculated to be productive of advantage to the company in its intended business. The case went to the House of Lords, and it was decided that the letting was not ultra vires, on the ground that it was temporary and preliminary, and conducive to the ultimate object of the whole being devoted to the proper purpose of the hotel. The Lord Chancellor (Lord Campbell), in his opinion, said: "The funds of a joint stock company established for one undertaking cannot be applied to another. If an attempt to do so is made the act is ultra vires, and although sanctioned by all the directors and by a large majority of the shareholders, any single shareholder has a right to resist it, and a Court of Equity will interpose on his behalf by injunction. A railway company cannot apply its funds to make a line of railway different from that described in the Act by which the company was constituted. A company established for granting fire and life insurances cannot engage in marine insurance. A company established to make a railway and exercise the trade of carriers upon the line from one town in England to another cannot add to it the trade of a steam-packet company; and no company can ever abandon the business for which it was established and undertake another. . . . I agree that the case depends upon the fair construction of the third clause of the Memorandum of Association. There is a difficulty in saying that the letting of so large a portion of the hotel to the India Board for so long a time is carrying on the usual business of an hotel or tavern therein; but I conceive that it is in the words of the third clause, 'doing a thing otherwise conducive to the attainment of' the described objects of the undertaking. An hotel to be used as such still remains in the hands of the company. This hotel is larger than any other hotel in England, and in this portion of the building the usual business of an hotel and tavern is to be carried on. . . . I rely much upon the consideration that the arrangement is temporary and preliminary, and conducive to the ultimate object of the whole building being devoted to the proper business of the hotel." and the other learned lords concurred.

*Ashbury v.
Riche, 1875.*

After the Act of 1862 came into operation this decision was treated as applicable to companies registered under that Act, and as importing that a company so registered was, as regards its powers, substantially in the same position as a railway, water, gas or other company incorporated for specified purposes or objects, and was not endowed with the general powers of a common law corporation (supra, p. 30). Whether this was the true position of such a company was not, however, finally settled until 1875, when the celebrated case of Ashbury Railway Carriage and Iron Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653, was decided by the House of Lords. In that case the objects of the company were "to make and sell, or lend on hire, railway carriages and waggons and all kinds of railway plant, and to carry on the business of mechanical engineers and general contractors; to purchase, lease, work and sell mines, minerals, land and buildings; to purchase and sell, as merchants, timber, coal, metals and other materials; to buy and sell any such materials on commission or as agents; to acquire, purchase, hire, construct or erect works or buildings for the purposes of the company; and to do all such other things as are necessary, contingent, incidental or conducive to all or any of such objects."

The company with this memorandum defining its objects had entered into a contract with the plaintiff in relation to the construction of a railway in Belgium, and the question raised in the action was, whether that contract was valid. The Exchequer Chamber, affirming the decision of the Court of Exchequer, held that the contract was ultra vires, but in the Exchequer Chamber, L. R. 9 Ex. 249, the judges were evenly divided in opinion.

Blackburn, J., in his judgment, in which Brett and Grove, J.J., also concurred, was of opinion that the company, being incorporated, was like a chartered or common law corporation endowed with full powers, that, although the Act might have expressly or impliedly cut down these powers it had not in fact done so, and that in the circumstances the contract was only ultra vires the directors, not ultra vires the company, and capable, therefore, of being ratified by the shareholders.

On appeal, the House of Lords held that the contract was ultra vires the company and therefore altogether void, and that the views put forward by Blackburn, J., and those who concurred with him, were erroneous.

House of Lords'
decision.

The view of their Lordships was that a company under the Act of 1862 was not to be regarded as a common law corporation endowed with full powers, but as a statutory corporation endowed with limited powers only. Lord Chancellor Cairns, after premising (p. 669) that the subscribers "are to state the objects for which the proposed company is to be established, and that the existence, the coming into existence of the company, is to be an existence and to be a coming into existence for those objects, and for those objects only," and after referring to the words at the end of sect. 12, to the effect that "no alteration shall be made by any company in the conditions contained in its memorandum of association," proceeded as follows:

"Now, my Lords, if that is so—if that is the condition upon which the corporation is established—if that is the purpose for which the corporation is established—it is a mode of incorporation which contains in it both that which is affirmative and that which is negative. It states affirmatively the ambit and extent of vitality and power which by law are given to the corporation, and it states, if it is necessary so to state, negatively that nothing shall be done beyond that ambit, and that no attempt shall be made to use the corporate life for any other purpose than that which is so specified."

Grounds for decision.

"A statutory corporation," said Lord Selborne in the same case, "created by Act of Parliament for a particular purpose, is limited as to all its powers by the purposes of its incorporation, as defined in that Act. The present and all other companies, incorporated by virtue of the Companies Act, 1862, appear to me to be statutory corporations within this principle. The memorandum of association is, under the Act, their fundamental and, except in certain specified particulars, their unalterable law; and they are incorporated only for the objects and purposes expressed in that memorandum. . . . I am unable to see any distinction for this purpose between statutory corporations under the Railway Acts and statutory corporations under the Companies Act, 1862. . . . I think that contracts for objects and purposes foreign to, or inconsistent with, the memorandum of association are ultra vires of the corporation itself. And it seems to me far more accurate to say that the inability of such companies to make such contracts rests on an original limitation and circumscription of their powers by the law and for the purposes of their incorporation, than that it depends upon some express or implied prohibition making acts unlawful which otherwise they would have had a legal capacity to do." And all the learned lords were of opinion that, if it were necessary to find words of prohibition, the words at the conclusion of sect. 12, to the effect that, "save as aforesaid, no alteration shall be made in the conditions contained in the memorandum of association," were sufficient, and that in thus prohibiting any alteration of the conditions in the memorandum the Act, in effect, prohibited the doing of anything beyond the objects expressed. They further held, as a corollary from the above, that the contract, being ultra vires, and therefore void in its inception, was incapable of ratification even by the unanimous consent of all the shareholders.

Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co.

In a subsequent case (Att.-Gen. v. Great Eastern Rail. Co., 5 App. Cas. 473), the principle laid down in Ashbury v. Riche was again recognized in the House of Lords, but it was given a greater elasticity by the rule laid down by Lord Selborne, L. C., and the other Law Lords, to the effect that the principle was one to be reasonably, and not unreasonably, understood and applied, and that whatever may fairly be regarded as incidental or consequential upon those things which the Legislature had authorized (that is, those things specified in the memorandum as objects) ought not, unless expressly prohibited, to be held by judicial construction to be ultra vires.

Lastly, in London County Council v. Att.-Gen., Lord Halsbury, L. C., referring to Ashbury Railway Carriage Co. v. Riche and Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co., said, "I think now it cannot be doubted that those two cases do constitute the law upon the subject. It is impossible to go behind those two cases. They are now part of the law of this country, and we must acquiesce in them whether we like them or not."

Question of ultra vires same for railway, &c. companies as for companies under Act of 1862.

It will be convenient here to refer to some cases in which transactions have been held ultra vires on the ground that they were not expressly or impliedly comprised in the specified objects. Some of these cases relate to railway companies; but "there is no distinction between statutory corporations under railway and similar Acts, and statutory corporations under the Companies Acts, as regards the extent of their powers to enter into contracts or to deal with their corporate funds: both are limited in the exercise of their powers to purposes within the scope of their constitution." Per Baggallay, L. J., Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co., 11 C. Div. 449.

Any shareholder is entitled to have a contemplated act, which is ultra vires the company, restrained, and it makes no difference that the shareholder has himself been a party to similar ultra vires acts in the past, as, for instance, an ultra vires issue of shares. Moseley v. Koffyfontein, Ltd., (1911) 1 Ch. 73; (1911) A. C. 409.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF ULTRA VIRES TRANSACTIONS.*

Cases of ultra vires.

Where the prosperity of a railway company depended materially on the navigation of a river being improved, and accordingly they proposed to Parliament

* "An ultra vires contract or transaction is not illegal in the sense that no right of action can arise in connection therewith. It is not, merely because it is ultra vires, to be regarded as malum prohibitum or malum in se." Per Lord Cairns, Ashbury v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 672. The contract is void, and no action can be brought on it, but the company, or an innocent shareholder on behalf of the shareholders, can sue for the recovery of its assets wrongfully for the requisite powers. Held, that an application of the funds of the company towards the promotion of the Bill was ultra vires. Munt v. Shrewsbury Co., 13 Beav. 1; and see East Anglian Rail. Co. v. E. C. Rail. Co., 11 C. B. 775. See further, infra, Chap. XXIII., and Form 116.

Where a railway company proposed to secure the capital, and guarantee the profits of another company about to run steamboats in connection with the line. Colman v. E. C. Rail. Co., 10 Beav. 1. In that case Lord Langdale, M. R., said: "It has been very properly admitted that railway companies have no right to enter into new trades or businesses not pointed out by the Act; but it has been contended that they have a right to pledge, without limit, the funds of the company in the encouragement of other transactions, however various and extensive, provided the object of that liability is to increase the traffic upon the railway, and thereby to increase the profits of the shareholders. There is, however, no authority for anything of the kind."

Where a railway company proposed to subscribe to the Imperial Institute. Tomkinson v. S. E. Rail. Co., 56 L. T. 813.

Where a railway company was working coal mines and dealing in coal for profit. Att.-Gen. v. G. N. Rail. Co., 1 Dr. & Sm. 283.

County council running omnibuses in connection with tramways, lawfully worked by the council, but without any statutory authority, the council being only a statutory corporation. London County Council v. Att.-Gen., (1902) A. C. 165. Local authority using land, acquired for a sewage farm, as a hospital site. Att.-Gen. v. Howell U. D. C., (1900) 2 Ch. 377.

Where the capital of a company was about to be applied, or had been applied, to the payment of dividends. Guinness v. Land Corporation of Ireland, 22 C. Div. 342; Flitcroft's case, 21 C. Div. 533.

Where the capital of a company has been applied to the purchase of its own shares, or a contract has been made so to do: Land Credit Co. v. Lord Fermoy, 5 Ch. 763; Treco v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409; even though expressly authorized by its memorandum. Raine's case, 4 T. L. R. 303; Mersina and Adana Co., 5 T. L. R. 680; General Property Co. v. Matheson's Trustees, 16 C. of S. Cas. 282 (Sc.); British, &c. Co. v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 339.

Provision that dismissed employé shall surrender his shares. Walker v. Hackney, 57 L. T. 763.

Where a railway company subscribes to the Imperial Institute. Tomkinson v. S. E. Rail. Co., 35 Ch. D. 675.

Where the company had issued shares at a discount: Almada and Tinto Co., 38 C. Div. 415; Railway Time Tables Co., 42 C. Div. 98; Ooregum, &c. Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125; even though expressly authorized by its memorandum or articles. Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299.

Where a company issued bonus shares pursuant to a filed agreement, but without consideration. Eddystone, &c. Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 9.

Where a company offers debentures at a discount with an option, at once exercisable, to exchange them for shares, fully paid, equal in nominal value to the face value of the debentures. Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines, (1904) 2 Ch. 108.

Where an arrangement for partnership or amalgamation had been made. Ex parte British Nation Life Association, 8 C. Div. 679, 704.

expended in relation to that contract as constituting a misapplication of the company's funds. G. E. Rail. Co. v. Turner, 8 Ch. 149; Coltman v. Coltman, 19 C. Div. 64; Towers v. African Tug Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 558. And the directors and other parties implicated in the transaction may be sued in relation thereto, and may have rights of contribution inter se.

Where the undertaking of another company was taken over. Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. C. 401.

Where the company was formed to carry on the business of a bill broker and scrivener, the making advances and procuring loans, and investing in securities, and other specified objects, it was held that the subscribing for shares in a new company in order to assist in floating it was not a bonâ fide investment, and was therefore ultra vires. Joint Stock Discount Co. v. Brown, 8 Eq. 381.

Where the company was formed to make and sell railway carriages and waggons, and railway plant, and to carry on the business of mechanical engineers and general contractors, and to purchase mines and lands, and to buy and sell timber and coals, and other specified objects. Held, that the words "general contractors" must be read as referring to such contracts, and to such contracts only, as were incidental to the business of a mechanical engineer. Ashbury Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 665.

Where the funds of the company had been applied in paying the costs of a prosecution against a person who had libelled the company's directors, the libel not applying to the company itself. Studdert v. Grosvenor, 33 C. D. 528.

Where commission had been paid for placing shares. Fauré Electric Accumulator Co., 40 C. Div. 141. But see Metropolitan, &c. Assoc. v. Scrimgeour, (1895) 2 Q. B. 604; and sect. 89 of the Act of 1908, supra, p. 279.

Where directors were issuing new shares without the sanction of a resolution of the company in general meeting. Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines, Ltd., (1911) A. C. 409.

For action against tramway for manufacturing rolling stock, see Att.-Gen. v. North Metropol. Tram. Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 70.

Applying the company's net profits in buying off opposition to a parliamentary bill, or getting a public body to exercise powers in its favour which were for the public benefit. Greenwich Pier Co. v. Thames Conservators, 21 T. L. R. 669.

Where a corporation acts as carriers in relation to tramways. Att.-Gen. v. Manchester Corporation, (1906) 1 Ch. 643; and see Att.-Gen. v. North Eastern Rail. Co., (1906) 2 Ch. 675.

The jurisdiction of the Attorney-General to decide in what cases it is proper for him to sue on behalf of relators is absolute. London County Council v. Att.-Gen., (1902) A. C. 165.

Where, in the winding-up of a company, a resolution was passed for the distribution of a large sum among its officers. Stroud v. Royal Aquarium, 19 T. L. R. 656; and see Hutton v. West Cork Rail. Co., 23 C. D. 654.

Where a company issues debentures with bonus certificates for payment of an additional sum out of profits, it cannot afterwards, by arrangement, issue fully paid shares in satisfaction of the certificates. Bury v. Fatatina Development Co., (1909) 1 Ch. 754; Railway Time Tables, 68 L. T. 649; Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines, Ltd., (1904) 2 Ch. 108.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF INTRA VIRES TRANSACTIONS.

Cases of intra vires.

On the other hand, the following are cases in which transactions have been held within the powers of a company:—

Where an insurance company had paid losses not strictly covered by its policies. Taunton v. Royal Insurance Co., 2 H. & M. 135.

Where a company had given to its employes a bonus beyond their wages. Hampson v. Prier's Patent Candle Co., 45 L. J. Ch. 437; 24 W. R. 754. But see Hutton v. West Cork Rail. Co., 23 C. D. 654. Compare Stroud v.

Royal Aquarium. 19 T. L. R. 656; W. N. (1903) 146. as to gratuities to directors and other officers.

Where a company granted a pension to the widow of an ex-officer of the company. Henderson v. Bank of Australasia, 40 Ch. D. 170.

Where a company compromised a bond fide dispute. Bath v. Case. 8 Ch. D. 85.

Where a company, with wide powers of lending, lent money to a servant of the company. Raintorth v. James Keith, (1905) 2 Ch. 147.

Where a company formed to work a patent purchases the patent. Leifchild's case. 1 Eq. 231; and see Baglan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 356.

Where a company was formed to work mines, and having acquired a lease, it afterwards bought the freehold, including the surface. Jones v. Balfour, 5 T. L. R. 389.

Where a hotel company, not requiring the whole of its premises, let part off. Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. C. 712.

Where a colliery company sold land from time to time when the sale was reasonably necessary. Kingsbury Collieries, (1907) 2 Ch. 259.

Where a railway company contracted to supply rolling stock to another company in special circumstances. Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co., 5 App. Cas. 473.

Where a railway company leased the arches under its lines, Foster v. L. C. & D. Rail., (1895) 1 Q. B. 711; or a right of way over its line. Gonty v. Manchester & C. Rail. Co., (1896) 2 Q. B. 439.

Where an unlimited company, pursuant to provisions in its regulations, paid out withdrawing members. Borough Commercial & C. Soc., (1893) 2 Ch. 242.

Where a trading company created a mortgage to secure a debt due to its bankers. Patent Fide Co., 6 Ch. 83; General Auction Co. v. Smith, (1891) 3 Ch. 436; see further, infra, p. 472.

A company incurring debts for the purpose of its business. Russell v. East Anglian Rail. Co., 3 M. & G. 125.

Where several companies having power to borrow money on debentures, granted joint debentures charging all their properties, the charge was held good on the separate property of each company to the extent of the money actually received by that company. Johnston Foreign Patents Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 234.

Where a company was formed to create a société anonyme in Peru, and to transfer the assets to that company when formed, and the memorandum also provided that "in order to the attainment of the main object of the company,

"they may do, either in the United Kingdom or Peru, or elsewhere, whatsoever they may from time to time think incidental or conducive thereto." Held, that the company could validly accept bills of exchange. But for the words inserted commas it was considered that there would have been no such power. Pecuvian Ry. Co., 2 Ch. 623.

Where one company took shares in another. Barnes's Banking Co., Ex parte Contract Corporation, 3 Ch. 105. In that case the objects included power "to purchase or accept shares in any foreign or English company."

See, also, Financial Corporation, Goodson's claim, 28 W. R. 760. There the objects of the company included "the undertaking, assisting, and participating in financial, commercial, and industrial operations and undertakings, both in England and abroad, and both singly and in connection with other persons, firms, companies, and corporations." Held, that the taking of shares in another company was intra vires. Jessel, M. R., there said: "Reading this memorandum in the largest sense, as I think it ought to be and was intended to be read, it seems to me that these words are meant to include almost everything in the way of financial operations. The words are [as above]. Now, I can imagine no wider terms than these; it appears to me that the last words I read are quite wide enough to comprise the buying and selling of shares, and the succeeding words only add to the extent of their application."

See, also, International Contract Co.'s case, 17 W. R. 454, where a banking company holding some debentures by way of security sold them and guaranteed the interest. West of England Bank, Ex parte Booker, 14 C. D. 317. Held valid.

Where a company having power to enter into any arrangement for amalgamation with respect to the union of interests on amalgamation, either in whole or in part, with any other companies or persons carrying on any trade or business of a similar nature to that of the company, entered into an agreement to acquire, in consideration of paid-up shares, the undertaking of a society carrying on a similar business. Pulbrook v. New Civil Service Co., 26 W. R. 11.

Where a company whose objects included the selling of its undertaking for shares sold the same. Cotton v. Imperial, &c. Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 454, and other cases, infra, p. 510.

Where a company formed to carry on a specified business, and also to amalgamate with any other company carrying on a similar business, and to sell all or any part of its business or property, and to hold debentures and shares in any other company, sold all its assets (including goodwill), except certain securities, to a new company, formed to take over its undertaking and property, in consideration of shares and debentures in the new company, although the selling company contracted not to carry on the specified business otherwise than in conjunction with and for the benefit and on behalf of the new company. Borax Co., Foster v. Borax Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326. And see Chap. XXII. (Amalgamation).

Where a company which was bound to supply boats for a ferry employed the boats, when not wanted for the ferry, in excursions. Forrest v. Manchester Rail. Co., 30 Beav. 40.

Where a railway company, having provided a weighing machine for the purpose of its business, let the public have the use and made charges for the use. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Price, 11 Q. B. D. 485.

Where an insurance company, having power to give and take policies by way of guarantee, entered into an agreement with other offices for joint liability. Norwich Equitable, 57 L. T. 241.

Where a company was empowered to insure against sickness, ill-health, and other specified contingencies, and life insurance, and to grant annuities, and "generally to make insurances against all and every kind of risk, special or general, which may be effected according to law." Held, that there was power to carry on fire insurance business. Bath's case, 8 C. Div. 334. "I cannot," said Jessel, M. R., in that case, "see that there is any ground for restricting the meaning of the terms of the latter part of that clause, or for applying that which is so often called the doctrine of noscitur a sociis, when you cannot suggest a single instance of a risk having any connection with life assurance which is not included in the express terms of the prior part of the clause." And see Phoenix Bessemer Co., 44 L. J. Ch. 683.

Where the company was formed for carrying on the business of discounters, lenders of and dealers in money, and a number of other specified objects, and "the entering into and carrying on any monetary and financial arrangements or operations, and the doing of all matters and things which may appear to the company to be incident or conducive to the objects aforesaid, or any of them." Held, that a purchase by the company, jointly with other parties, of an estate on which one of such other parties undertook to finish the Alexandra Palace for 200,000*l.*, the company undertaking to float another company to acquire the premises, was not ultra vires. London Financial Association v. Kelk, 26 C. Div. 107. In that case it was argued, inter alia, that the general words at the conclusion of the objects clause ought to be treated as merely ancillary to the businesses mentioned at the commencement of the objects; but Bacon, V.-C., declined to adopt that argument, saying, "It is enough to say in answer to it, that if it were to prevail all the succeeding words would be useless. I am not at liberty to say that the parties to the contract meant nothing by the words they have thought fit to employ for defining and regulating the conduct of their lawful business."

Where a company was formed to acquire and work an iron-ore mine, it was considered that the company might properly pay fees for a report on its mine, and fees to solicitors, brokers, and for advertisements, printing, &c., but could not properly pay a commission for placing its shares. Lydney and Wiggpool Co. v. Bird, 33 C. Div. 85.

Where a company is second mortgagee it may be entitled, if called on, to pay off the first mortgage, and where it is mortgagee of leaseholds it may be entitled to pay rent and otherwise prevent forfeiture. Sheffield, &c. Society v. Aitchwood, 44 C. D. 412.

Where the funds of the company were applied in paying the costs of prosecuting a person who had libelled the company and its directors. Studdert v. Grosvenor, 33 C. Div. 528; Breay v. Royal British Nurses' Ass., (1897) 2 Ch. 272.

Where a reasonable commission or brokerage is paid to brokers for placing shares. Metropolitan Coal Consumers' Ass. v. Scrimgeour, (1895) 2 Q. B. 604; and see Companies Act, 1908, sect. 89, supra, p. 279.

Where a company, with a view to advertising its patent medicine, offered a prize to be shot for at Wimbledon. Lackwood v. Hop Bitters Co., 3 T. L. R. p. 698. But query as to this.

Where a company incurred expense in printing, stamping and sending out proxy papers and circulars to secure the defeat of a resolution which the directors considered adverse to the company's interests. Peel v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., (1907) 1 Ch. 5, overruling Studdert v. Grosvenor, 33 C. D. 528, on this point.

Whether any given transaction is or is not within the powers of a company is a question of law depending on the construction to be placed on its memorandum of association; and that [construction] must be [construed] in accordance with the rules generally applicable to the construction of written documents. Hence, the whole document must be read; the words must have their ordinary significance, unless, when so applied, they produce an inconsistency, or an absurdity or inconvenience sufficient to show that the intention could not have been to use them in their ordinary signification; technical words are to be treated prima facie as being used in their technical sense; and the words used must be understood with due reference to the subject-matter. In all cases the object is to arrive at the intention as expressed by the words used.*

But in framing the objects clause of a memorandum of association, it behoves the draftsman to bear in mind a novel rule of construction first suggested in Haven Gold Mining Co., 20 C. D. 151, and in Construction of objects clause.

"Main object" rule

* See further as to the interpretation of the memorandum, infra, Chap. VII. p. 591 et seq.

German Date Co., 20 U. D. 169, and subsequently recognized in Crown Bank, 44 C. D. 634; Amalgamated Syndicate, (1897) 2 Ch. 600; Coolgardie Gold Mines, 76 L. T. 269; Stephens v. Mysore Reefs Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 745.

According to these authorities, where the objects of a company are expressed in a series of paragraphs, the true rule of construction is to seek for the paragraph or paragraphs (commonly the first) which appears to embody the main or dominant object of the company, and to treat all the other paragraphs, however generally expressed, as merely ancillary to this main object, and as limited and controlled thereby.

Assuming that this rule of construction is to be treated as established, it is, of course, to be borne in mind that like every other rule of construction it may be excluded or modified by the contents of the documents to be construed, for every rule of construction contains by implication the saving clause "unless a contrary intention appear by the document."* Accordingly the rule must be applied with caution; it has only a prima facie application, and it must be seen that there is nothing in the document to exclude or modify it. For cases in which the rule was held inapplicable see Pedlar v. Road Block Co., (1905) 2 Ch. 427; and Butler v. Northern Territories Mines of Australia, 96 L. T. 41. Sometimes the memorandum declares the intention to be that the objects specified in each paragraph of the clause, or in each of three or four specified paragraphs, shall, except where otherwise expressed in such paragraph, be in no wise limited or restricted by reference to or inference from the terms of any other paragraph or the name of the company. These words are obviously intended to exclude or modify the rule, and the Court is bound to give effect to the intention thus indicated.†

There are other modes occasionally adopted of excluding the artificial rule in question. For example, several of the leading objects are sometimes made to commence with the words "as an independent object." In other cases, the first few paragraphs are expressed in very wide general terms, and any special object is made subordinate thereto, and is sometimes expressed to be "without prejudice to the generality of the preceding objects." See further, as to interpretation, Chap. VII., infra, p. 591 et seq.

* See per Bowen, L. J., in Earl of Jersey v. Guardians of Poor of Neath, 22 Q. B. D. 548.

† Yet, strange to say, in Stephens v. Mysore Reefs Kangandy Mining Co., supra, a learned judge disregarded the presence of such words on the ground that inasmuch as when applied to one particular paragraph they would be nonsense, they could not be held to apply to the other twenty-three paragraphs. Such a doctrine is at variance with the settled principles of construction, and cannot, it is apprehended, be maintained.

The objects clause generally closes with the following words: "And to do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects, or any of them." It might have been supposed that these words were implied—for Quando aliquid mandatur, mandatur et omne per quod pervenitur ad illud—and were accordingly superfluous; since Expressio eorum quæ tacite insunt nihil operatur. The Court has, however, on several occasions treated such words as material. Baglan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 356; Simpson v. Westminster Palace Co., 8 H. L. C. 712; Taunton v. Royal Insurance Co., 2 H. & M. 135.

Sometimes the words "as the company may think conducive" are substituted for the words "as are conducive." These were the words used in Peruvian Rail. Co. v. Thames, &c. Co., 2 Ch. 617, and were treated as very material. In that case, Lord Cairns, L. J., said that but for the general words the words used "would not, in my opinion, confer on the company, as incident to the carrying on its business, the power of issuing negotiable instruments"; but, having read the general words, his Lordship proceeded: "Anything, therefore, which, in the opinion of the company (how to be expressed we shall see afterwards) is incidental or conducive to the main object of the company—which was the acquisition of concessions for railways—they may do. If, therefore, there comes to be a concession for a railway which is to be paid for by instalments, it is, I think, beyond all possibility of dispute, that if they think it incidental or conducive to the attainment of the concession, when the instalments become or are about to fall due, in place of making calls on their shareholders, they should give a bill of exchange, payable at a future day, for the amount of the instalments, they may do so. The words seem to me so wide that they necessarily include a power of that kind. This is a power which, of course, may require to be exercised by a general meeting of the shareholders, or it may be capable of being exercised by the directors"; and it appearing that by the articles the general conduct of the business was vested in the directors, his Lordship held that they could exercise the power.

This case goes further to show that the substitution of the words "as the company may think conducive," for the words "are conducive," is not without effect. But no doubt the operation of the words must be limited to such things as may reasonably and in good faith be deemed conducive. See Joint Stock Discount Co. v. Brown, 3 Eq. 150; 8 Eq. 381; and Att.-Gen. v. Gt. Eastern Rail., 5 App. Cas. 473.

Formerly it was the practice of the office of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies to require general words to strictly follow the statutory forms. Peel's case, 2 Ch. 675. But this practice has been abandoned, and general words may be made as extensive as desired. It is, however, generally considered better not to rely too much on the effect of general words, having regard to the artificial doctrine

Effect of general words in objects
clause.

Practice of office.

Power to extend objects cannot be given.

Implied
powers:
To act by agents.

To compromise.

To mortgage,
&c. or deal with its property.

of construction above alluded to, pp. 469, 470, but to state the objects in sufficient detail, and conclude as in the statutory forms.

It was at one time by no means uncommon to insert in the objects clause of the memorandum words to the following effect: "And also such additional or extended objects as the company may from time to time determine." Examples may be found in the following cases: Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 5 Eq. 452; 4 Ch. 117; Syers v. Brighton Brewery Co., 13 W. R. 221; compare with Ashbury Railway, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653. But such words ought never to be inserted, as being nugatory and misleading.

As to implied powers.—There are some implied powers which the company possesses in virtue of its being a body corporate. Thus a company may appoint and act by agents, and as principal may incur the ordinary consequences (see supra, p. 36); and in Bath's case, 8 C. Div. 334, it was held that a power to compromise a bonâ fide dispute is incident to every body corporate. "I think," said James, L. J., in that case, "we are warranted in holding that a power bonâ fide to compromise any dispute whatever is incident to the legal existence of the persona of a body corporate." Again, according to Patent File Co., 6 Ch. 83, a body corporate as such has an implied power to deal with its property. In that case, James, L. J., said: "The company is a body corporate, and by the laws of England a body corporate can hold property and dispose of it as freely as an individual, unless it is specially prohibited from so doing. In the memorandum of this company I can find nothing to prevent the company quâ company from pledging part of its property for payment of a debt incurred in the course of its business." And Mellish, L. J., said: "It was urged that no company can mortgage unless expressly authorized to do so. Now, the company has property which it is authorized to deal with, and I should say that the true rule is just the contrary, namely, that the company can mortgage unless expressly prohibited from doing so." But too much reliance must not be placed on these dicta, for the company in this case was a trading company, formed to acquire and work certain patented inventions, and "for the doing of all such other things (including the purchasing, leasing or otherwise acquiring, holding and disposing of lands and buildings) as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects, or any of them." The question for decision was whether the company had power to mortgage its property to secure a debt owing to its bankers, and the mortgage might very well have been treated as covered by the general words, or as justified by reason of the company being a trading company. Moreover, the dicta seem scarcely consistent with the principle established in Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653, which was decided five years later.

It is submitted that the powers of a company to deal with its property and to borrow depend (in the absence of express power in the memorandum of association), not on its being a body corporate, but on its having implied power to do whatever is fairly and reasonably necessary to effectuate its specified objects. In each case the question depends on the specified objects of the company. Thus, a company formed "to carry on the business of a colliery proprietor" might no doubt acquire and work collieries; might have a banking account; might for the purposes of its business borrow money on mortgage or otherwise, and draw, accept, and endorse bills of exchange; might compromise claims made against it; might remunerate its employees; might pay dividends to its shareholders; might advertise its products; might establish branch offices; might acquire rolling stock, and machinery, and vessels for conveying its coal; for all these things, and many others, are reasonably implied by the words used; and a fortiori it might do these things if the objects concluded with general words as above, p. 471.

Question depends on what specified objects.

Examples.

Again, if a company is formed simply "to provide a Town Hall at —, and to let the same for any purpose, public or private," the company might no doubt purchase a site and erect a building, and might let it, and might remunerate its employees, and do various other things; but it seems doubtful whether it could without express authority in its memorandum accept a bill of exchange, or borrow, or sell, or mortgage the property. Perhaps it might borrow money to pay for the erection or repair of the building (see Re Badger, (1905) 1 Ch. 568), but that must be because the power is reasonably implied from the objects specified. It will not have the power merely because it is a corporation. In this respect what was said by Cotton, L. J., in The Queen v. Sir Charles Reed, 5 Q. B. Div. 483, may be cited: "But it was said that every corporation, unless restricted by this Act of incorporation, has the same power as an individual to enter into contracts, including that of borrowing money. In our opinion, this contention of the School Board cannot be maintained. In our opinion, the power of a corporation established for certain specified purposes must depend on what those purposes are, and, except so far as it has express powers given it, it will have such powers only as are necessary for the purposes of enabling it in a reasonable and proper way to discharge the duties or fulfil the purposes for which it was constituted. . . . A trading corporation stands, as regards an implied power of borrowing, in a very different position from a school board." In this case the dicta in Patent File Co. were relied on; but Cotton, L. J., said that "was a case of a trading corporation, which may have the power to borrow or to mortgage its property for the purpose of enabling it to carry on its trade."

A trading company has for the purpose of effectuating its objects an implied power to borrow to a reasonable amount (see General Auction, &c. Co. v. Smith, (1891) 3 Ch. 432; Bryon v. Metropolitan Omnibus Co., 3 De G. & J. 123; Australian Co. v. Mounsey, 4 K. & J. 723; and Company Prec., Part III., pp. 47, 48); it has also an implied power to incur debts (see Russell v. East Anglian Rail. Co.,

3 Mac. & G. 125; and Cork Rail. Co., 4 Ch. 748; and it may have an implied power to sell and mortgage (see Gardner v. L. C. & D. Co., 2 Ch. 201; Yorkshire Rail. Co. v. Maclure, 21 C. Div. 307; Kingsbury Collieries, (1907) 2 Ch. 259).

Having regard to these doubts and difficulties as to corporate capacity, it is exceedingly desirable not merely to state the main objects of the company, but also to state any ancillary objects which the company is intended to have, or may possibly require, and which are not necessarily implied from the statement of the main objects, or cannot with confidence be left to the opinion of the general words with which every memorandum concludes. Practice varies as to where to draw the line, but it has now become customary to set out the objects in considerable detail.

Old practice as to stating objects.

It was formerly not unusual to state the objects in the memorandum with the utmost conciseness, and then to elaborate them in the articles; for instance, the objects as stated in the memorandum might be: "The working of coal mines, and the doing of all such things as are conducive or incidental thereto." The articles would then contain, inter alia, power for the directors to sell the undertaking of the company, in consideration of cash or shares, to promote other companies, to purchase and hold shares in other companies, to purchase the business of any other company, and undertake the liabilities thereof, to enter into partnership arrangements, to lend money, to guarantee contracts, and so forth. The danger where this plan was adopted was that some of the powers expressly conferred on the directors by the articles might be held ultra vires of the company.

Present
practice

According to present practice, the reverse of this plan is adopted. Thus, in the above case the powers conferred by the articles on the directors would be inserted as objects of the company in the memorandum, while the articles would empower the directors to exercise all the powers of the company not by statute required to be exercised in general meeting, subject, perhaps, to certain restrictions.

Advantages of such practice.

No doubt in the result the objects clause of the memorandum, as now framed, is in many cases unnecessarily long, and states not only what may be called the leading or primary objects, but expressly empowers the company to do a great many things which, if not expressed, would or might be implied as reasonably incidental to the leading objects, or which may never be required. But, after all, it must be borne in mind that the objects clause of a memorandum is intended to be read and understood, and acted on not merely by lawyers, but by ordinary business men; and such men like to see the powers of the company expressed with fulness and in considerable detail, instead of resting in implication.

Take, for example, the case of a company whose objects are "to buy, sell, and deal in coal, and to do all things incidental thereto."

What an imperfect guide such a specification of objects affords to business men! They may be taken to know in a general way that the company can only do those things which are comprised in its objects or are fairly incidental thereto. But the practical question arises: "What is fairly incidental thereto? Where is the line to be drawn?" The directors will say: "May we buy and work a colliery? May we buy offices and stores? May we buy ships? May we make patent fuel? May we accept bills of exchange? May we borrow money? May we issue debenture stock? May we lend money? May we enter into partnership with others? May we take shares in other concerns? May we sell the whole undertaking if a chance arises? May we give a guarantee? May we promote another company to make an alliance with our company? May we buy up the business of another company? May we buy a patent?"

No doubt a lawyer could answer these questions and say, "Some of these things you may do; others you cannot." But surely the business man has reasonable ground to ask, "Why is so much left to implication? Would it not have been more convenient to state the objects in greater detail, and thus let the document itself answer questions that are sure to arise?"

Nor is it easy to answer this question otherwise than in the affirmative.

And even the lawyer cannot but sympathize in the matter with the business man, for the decisions as to what is and what is not ultra vires are not altogether in accord, and although a concise objects clause may suffice when read in the light of the decisions, it appears very shortsighted and impolitic to leave to implication powers with which it is clearly desirable to invest the company, and thus in effect to pave the way for differences of opinion, to prepare pitfalls for the unwary, and to compel the prudent director to seek legal advice at every step. See further, on this point, Company Law (9th ed.), pp. 30 et seq.

As to altering and extending the objects of a company, see sect. 9 of the Companies Act, 1908, incorporating the provisions of the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890, infra, Chap. XVII.

The foregoing matters (p. 449) must be inserted in every memorandum of association, whether the company is to be limited or unlimited. In the case of a company limited by guarantee, there is only one more clause—viz., the guarantee clause, unless it is to have a capital divided into shares, in which case there must also be a capital clause (see sect. 4 (2) of the Act, replacing sect. 27 of the Companies Act, 1900); whilst in the case of a company limited by shares there are two more clauses—viz., the declaration of limited liability and the capital clauses. The above mentioned are conditions of the memorandum which sect. 41 of the Act of 1908 would seem to render unalterable. The word "seem" is used because, singularly enough, it has been held that those conditions do not prevent the company from imposing, by its regulations, on its members a greater or further liability.

Alteration of objects.

As to additional clauses.

Thus, in Hill's case, 20 Eq. 585, and Maria Anna Co., 6 C. D. 447, it was held by Malins, V.-C., that the articles could effectually impose a liability in excess of the amount of the shares held by the members, and the last-mentioned decision was affirmed by the Court of Appeal. See also Peninsula Co. v. Fleming, 27 L. T. N. S. 93.

In like manner, it has been held that, in the case of a company limited by guarantee, the articles may impose further liabilities. Lion Insurance Co. v. Tucker, 12 Q. B. Div. 176.

But the liabilities imposed by the memorandum on the members cannot be diminished or restricted by the articles of association. Baglan Hall Co., 5 Ch. 346; Sewell's case, 3 Ch. 131; Wellon v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299; Guinness v. Land Corporation of Ireland, 22 Ch. D. 372.

As Lord Selborne said in Forbes' case, 8 Ch. 776, sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 41 of the Companies Act, 1908) prohibits any alteration of the conditions in the memorandum, and "it is quite certain that under that section, if there be found anything in the articles limiting the liability of the shareholders in a way inconsistent with the memorandum—anything tending to reduce the liability of the shareholders thereby prescribed—it is simply void."

Capital.

As to the CAPITAL of the Company:—

The fifth clause of the memorandum of a company limited by shares must state the nominal capital and the number of shares into which it is divided, with the amount of each share.

As the capital can be readily increased, there is no object in starting with a very large nominal capital, much reason in fact against it. It involves a needless expenditure in stamp duty; no saving, however, is effected in stamp duty or otherwise by starting with less than 2,000*l.* capital.

Amount of shares.

The amount of the shares depends on a number of considerations. If the public are to be invited to apply for shares, the amount should be moderate, for it is generally found that there is a better market for 10*l.* or 5*l.* shares than for larger ones. Indeed, 1*l.* shares are now the most popular. Moreover, it is generally expedient not to leave much, if any, liability on the shares issued. So long as shares are not fully paid up, their value, unless in exceptional cases, is impaired by the existence of the liability; and if the company should meet with reverses, its shares may become almost unmarketable.

Objection to shares only in part paid up.

There may, however, be cases in which these disadvantages may be counterbalanced by the security afforded by the existence of a large amount of uncalled capital. e.g., in a banking, investment, or insurance company.

Alteration of capital.

In the case of a company limited by shares, the capital, being one of the fundamental conditions contained in the memorandum, can only be altered as provided by the Act. That is to say, where the articles permit—

- (a) The capital may be increased by the creation of new shares.
- (b) The shares may be consolidated, e.g., ten 1*l.* into one 10*l.*
- (c) Paid-up shares may be converted into stock.
- (d) Stock may be reconverted into fully-paid shares.
- (e) The shares may be sub-divided by special resolution, e.g., one 10*l.* into ten 1*l.*
- (f) Shares which have not been issued may be cancelled.
- (g) The capital may be reduced by special resolution sanctioned by the Court.

(a), (b) and (c) were authorized by sect. 12 of the Act of 1826; (d) by sect. 29 of the Act of 1900; (e) by sect. 21 of the Act of 1867; (f) by sect. 5 of the Act of 1877, all now consolidated in sect. 41 of the Companies Act, 1908; (g) by sect. 9 of the Act of 1867, explained by the Act of 1877, now sect. 46 of the Companies Act, 1908.

Save as aforesaid, and subject to the power now given to a company to reorganize its capital (Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 45), no alteration of the capital of such a company can be legally made. Fielding and Rimington's case, 2 Ch. 714 (unauthorized sub-division of shares); Sewell's case, 3 Ch. 131 (unauthorized increase of capital); Treor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409; Welton v. Sattery, (1897) A. C. 299 (unauthorized reduction of capital).

As regards reduction of capital, the Act of 1862 gave no power to reduce the capital. The power was first conferred by the Act of 1867. It was, however, held that the power so conferred only authorized the reduction of liability in respect of uncalled capital (Ebbw Vale Co., 4 C. D. 837), and not reduction of paid-up capital which had been lost; but by the Act of 1877 it was declared that the word "capital," as used in the Act of 1867, should include paid-up capital, and that the power to reduce capital conferred by that Act should include a power to cancel any lost capital, or any capital unrepresented by available assets, or to pay off any capital which might be in excess of the wants of the company. These powers are now contained in sect. 46 of the Companies Act, 1908. By the provisions of that section the interests of creditors are carefully safeguarded; for the reduction to be effective requires (1) the sanction of a special resolution; (2) the consent of every creditor, or provision for his payment, except as provided by sect. 49; (3) the confirmation of the Court, except as provided by sects. 48-56. See, further, Chap. XVII., infra.

Nor can any words inserted in the memorandum or articles of association abrogate the disability imposed by the Act, or enable the parties to escape from the conditions which the Legislature, on the grounds of public policy, has thought fit to impose. Thus, if a company, by its memorandum of association, takes power to buy its own shares, or to pay dividends out of capital, inasmuch as the exercise of the power would involve a reduction of the capital, the power cannot be validly exercised, except in accordance with the statutory provisions. Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409. What cannot be done directly cannot be done indirectly.

Reduction of capital.

Words in memorandum or articles cannot alter the restrictions.

Liability to pay for all shares in full.

No power to issue at discount;

nor bonus
shares.

Issue of paid-up shares.

It may be convenient here to note that the liability incident to a share can only be satisfied by payment in full. Payment may now be made in cash or in property, or services, or anything of value; but there is no power to issue at a discount, either for cash or otherwise. It was held, in Ince Hall Co., 23 C. D. 545, n., that shares might be issued at a discount, provided an agreement was filed under the now repealed sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867; but it was held by the House of Lords that this was not so, and that sect. 25 did not alter the amount payable, but merely required that if the amount was to be paid up otherwise than in cash a contract must be filed before the issue of the shares. Addlestone Linoleum Co., 37 C. D. 191; Almada and Tirito Co., 38 C. Div. 415; Railway Time Tables Co., 42 C. Div. 98, and that this was the law was settled by the House of Lords. Ooregum Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125. Even where all liabilities to outside creditors have been satisfied, the discount shareholder must pay up in full to adjust the rights of shareholders inter se. Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299. And a fortiori bonus shares cannot be validly issued. Eddystone Marine, &c. Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 9; Moseley v. Koffyfontein Mines, (1904) 2 Ch. 108.

A company cannot issue paid-up shares except on the footing that they are to be paid for in cash or its equivalent in value. True, it may pay a commission to a subscriber, and thus, so far as the financial result is concerned, issue the shares at a discount, but in theory the shares are still paid up in full by the underwriter, though part is returned in the form of commission. See sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908. supra, p. 279.

An agreement to issue paid-up shares in consideration of property, services, or other consideration of value is only effective because it is in substance an agreement by the directors to accept the property, services, or other consideration in payment of the amount of the shares. While the agreement stands unimpeached, the Court will not inquire into the value of the property or services, but will assume the directors to have exercised an honest judgment and the consideration in property or services, &c. to have been the equivalent of the capital liability on the shares. Pell's case, 5 Ch. 11; Re Wragg, (1897) 1 Ch. 796, supra, p. 62 et seq.

But this does not import that shares can be issued as fully paid-up in consideration of property which the contract itself shows that the parties valued at less than the amount of the shares. Almada and Tirito Co., ubi supra.

Minimum Subscription.

Where share capital of the company is to be offered to the public for subscription, the amount of "the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment" may be "fixed by the memorandum" of association. See sect. 85 of Companies Act, 1908, and p. 10, supra. It need not be stated in the memorandum, but it must be fixed either by the memorandum or by the articles of association. Ibid. And it is better to fix it by the articles, for if inserted in the memorandum it is unalterable, and may, if not obtained, wreck the company, whereas if inserted in the articles it can, if the public subscription proves insufficient, be altered.

Additional Provisions.

Besides those conditions which the Act of 1908, s. 3, requires to be specified in the memorandum, any material provision which is in fact set out in the memorandum of association—e.g., as to the amount of the minimum subscription—is (subject to what is said above) unalterable. Thus, if the memorandum of association of a company states the capital and divides the shares therein into several classes, and declares the rights as regards dividends or otherwise assigned to each class, such declaration is a condition of the memorandum, and is unalterable by special resolution or otherwise. Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. Div. 376. In that case certain special resolutions had been passed by the Smyrna and Cassaba Railway Company, and acted on for more than ten years without objection, which purported to alter the rights inter se of the different classes of shares as defined by the memorandum of association, and it was held that these resolutions were ultra vires and inoperative. In support of the validity of the resolutions it was there contended, in reliance on Duke's case, 1 C. D. 620, and Winstone's case, 12 C. D. 239, that the definition of rights was not a condition within the meaning of sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 41, Companies Act, 1908), and that the conditions which, by that section, are made unalterable, were only those conditions which the Act required to be specified. But it was held otherwise. Brett, M. R., after referring to the words of sect. 12 of the Act of 1862, said: "Anything more plain I cannot conceive. It does not say, 'the conditions hereinbefore mentioned,' nor 'in any condition necessary to the constitution of the company.' It contains no limitation of any kind. To my mind it is a plain enactment that the company shall not alter anything in the memorandum of association, which is a condition, save what is expressly authorized." See infra, note to Form 260: also Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 361; and Allen v. Gold Reefs of West Africa, (1900) 1 Ch. 656.

Conditions in memorandum in addition to the statutory ones.

Examples.
As to different classes of shares.

Preference and other Special Classes of Shares.

Definition of rights in
memorandum.

Not infrequently the capital is, by the memorandum and articles of association, divided not only into shares of different amounts, but into different classes of shares with different rights attached to them; for instance, into preference and ordinary shares, or preference, ordinary, and founders' shares. When this is the case, it is not uncommon to define in the memorandum some of the rights attached to the different classes of shares respectively, or to some one class of them.

The object of so defining the rights of shareholders in the memorandum is to fortify the position of the class, for rights once unconditionally attached by the memorandum to a particular class of shares cannot be altered or infringed. Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376. See supra.

But if the rights are not unconditionally attached, that is, if though specified in the memorandum they are coupled with a clause in the memorandum providing for alteration, such a specification in the memorandum does not take effect as an unalterable condition. Welsbach, &c. Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 87.

General clause in memorandum as to division in classes.

More often, however, the memorandum merely contains a clause in general terms to the effect that "the shares in the capital for the time being, whether original or increased, may be divided into several classes with any preferential, special, qualified, or deferred rights, privileges, or conditions attached thereto," and, in such case, it is clear that the articles for the time being may authorize the division of the shares into classes and attach thereto preferential and other special rights.

Memorandum silent, but power in original articles.

In other cases, now less common than formerly, the memorandum is totally silent as to the issue of special classes of shares; but even in such cases it was long since held that the articles, as originally framed and registered, could effectually divide, or give power to divide, the capital into different classes of shares with preferential and other rights attached. Harrison v. Mexican Rail. Co., 19 Eq. 358; Re South Durham Brewery Co., 31 C. D. 261. This conclusion was not arrived at without difficulty, for the decisions in Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff, &c. Co. (No. 1) (1865), 4 De G. J. & S. 672; and (No. 2) 2 Dr. & Sm. 521, both appeared to point to the conclusion that where the memorandum of association was silent as to classes, there was an implied condition of equality, and, if so, it was not easy to see how (looking to sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 41 of the Companies Act, 1908)) the articles of association could effectually modify this condition. However, Jessel, M. R., in Harrison v. Mexican Rail. Co., 19 Eq. 358, held that the articles could, in effect, negative or qualify this implied condition, and, although Kay, J., subsequently decided the contrary in South Durham Brewery Co. (supra), that decision was reversed on appeal.

It is, however, not uncommon to find that neither the memorandum nor the articles, as originally framed, give power to issue preference and other special classes of shares, and, where both are silent, the following questions sometimes arise:—(1) Can the company issue part of the shares in its original capital with preferential or special rights attached? (2) Can the company issue new shares created upon an increase of capital with preferential or special rights attached?

Until recently, it was generally considered that both these questions must be answered in the negative.

As to the first question, it was decided by Lord Westbury, L. C., that when both the memorandum and articles were silent as to preference shares, a company could not issue shares in its original capital as preference shares, at any rate, without altering its articles; and further, his Lordship expressed doubt whether even by altering its articles the power could be obtained (Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff, &c. Co., 4 De G. J. & S. 672); and the decision of Kindersley, V.-C., in Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff, &c. Co. (No. 2), 2 Dr. & Sm. 521, went far to confirm this doubt. And as to the second question, it was answered in the negative by the decision of Kindersley, V.-C., in the case last mentioned.

But this decision has now been overruled by the Court of Appeal in Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 361. In that case there was no power in the original memorandum or articles to issue preference shares, but power was taken by special resolution and acted on. The Court of Appeal held that the preference shares were validly created, on the ground that, although by sect. 8 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 3 of the Act of 1908) the memorandum of association is to state the amount of the original capital, yet in other respects the rights of the shareholders in respect of their shares and the terms on which any additional capital may be raised, are matters to be regulated by the articles of association rather than by the memorandum, and are therefore matters which (unless provided for by the memorandum, as in Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376) may be determined by the company from time to time by special resolution, pursuant to sect. 50 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 3 of the Act of 1908). This view clearly negatives the doctrine that there is a condition in the memorandum of association that all shareholders are to be on an equality unless the memorandum itself shows the contrary. See Lindley, L. J. Accordingly, the correct answer to the second question is: "Yes, by altering its articles so as to take the requisite power."

Moreover, the grounds of this decision go far to show that the same answer should be given to the first question; for it is now abundantly clear that a memorandum being silent as to any distinction between shareholders does not amount to an implied condition of equality as between the shares in the capital.

Where memorandum and articles are both silent as to classes of shares.

Views till recently prevailing:

The law as now settled.

Adverting to this point, Cotton, L. J., in Guinness v. Land Corporation of Ireland, 22 C. D. 349, 377, said: "In reality it is not by implication from the construction of the memorandum that the equality of the shareholders as regards dividend arises, but by the implication which the law raises as between partners, unless their contract has provided to the contrary." And in a later case (British Co. v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 399), Lord Macnaghten said: "I agree that the equality of shareholders as regards dividend is not an implied condition of the memorandum; but I doubt whether it is necessary to have recourse to the doctrine of partnership. It seems to me that if the sum of the interests of persons concerned in a joint venture is divided into shares of equal amount distinguished by numbers for the purpose of identification, but with no other distinction between them, expressed or implied, it follows as a self-evident proposition that the interests of the shareholders in respect of these shares, as regards dividends and everything else, must be equal."

There being, then, no implied condition of equality, it appears to follow that silence in the memorandum does not preclude the issue of preference shares, but that the articles as originally framed or as altered by special resolution can give the requisite power to issue part of the original shares as preference shares. This conclusion is not at variance with the decision in Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff Co., 4 De G. J. & S. (No. 1), supra, for in that case the company was seeking to issue preference shares, although neither its memorandum nor articles gave power to issue the same, and although its articles expressly, in effect, provided that all dividends were to be paid pari passu. It is only contrary to the doubt expressed by Lord Westbury—a doubt which gave rise to a dictum merely. As to altering the rights attached to classes of shares, see infra, p. 63; and Welsbach, &c. Co., supra.

Subscribers' declaration.

On referring to the forms of memoranda of association given below (pp. 490–503), it will be seen that each of them concludes with a declaration that the subscribers desire to be formed into a company.

It will also be observed that sects. 4, 5 of the Act require that, "in a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, and having a capital divided into shares, each subscriber shall take one share at the least, and shall write opposite his name in the memorandum of association the number of shares he takes." It has been considered that the word "memorandum" in this paragraph is an error for "articles," but the practice of the registrar is to require the number of shares taken to be stated in the memorandum. If the shares are of different classes it should be stated which class of shares the signatories subscribe for.

Memorandum may be in writing or printed.

The memorandum may be in writing, but where articles are registered it is usually printed with them. If in writing, it is sometimes filled in upon a skeleton printed form. It must be signed by at least seven persons (or in the case of a private company two persons, see p. 911), in the presence of, and be attested by, one witness at least. The same witness usually attests the signatures of all the subscribers.

Certificate of Incorporation.

Sect. 17 of the Act of 1908 (representing sect. 1 of the Companies Act, 1900) provides that:

Certificate evidence that requisitions of Act complied with.

"(1.) A certificate of incorporation given by the registrar in respect of any association shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of the Act in respect of registration and of matters precedent and incidental thereto have been complied with, and that the association is a company authorized to be registered and duly registered under this Act.

"(2.) A statutory declaration by a solicitor of the High Court, and in Scotland by an enrolled law agent, engaged in the formation of the company, or by a person named in the articles as a director or secretary of the company, of compliance with all or any of the said requirements, shall be produced to the registrar, and the registrar may accept such a declaration as sufficient evidence of compliance."

See supra, p. 25, as to the operation of this provision.

The registrar makes no objection to registering a memorandum subscribed by a married woman. No doubt he would refuse if he knew that one of the subscribers was an infant, but if the memorandum so subscribed is registered, it is conceived that the infant was bound even before the Act of 1900. See Nassau Phosphate Co., 2 Ch. D. 610; Laron & Co. (2), (1892) 3 Ch. 555. Sect. 1 of that Act (now sect. 17 of the Act of 1908) dispels any doubt as to the future.

As to the effect of subscribing the memorandum of association: By sect. 24 of the Act (sect. 23 of the Companies Act, 1862) it is provided that:—

Effect of subscribing memorandum.

"(1.) The subscribers of the memorandum of a company shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company, and on its registration shall be entered as members in its register of members; (2.) Every other person who agrees to become a member of a company, and whose name is entered in its register of members, shall be a member of the company."

Hence a subscriber to the memorandum is indisputably a member of the company, and cannot repudiate the shares he has subscribed for, even though he has been induced to take them by misrepresentation. Lord Lurgan's case, (1902) 1 Ch. 707; and see Lever's case, W. N. (1878) 205.

In a company limited by shares, "no subscriber of the memorandum may take less than one share," and each subscriber "must write

Subscription and agreement to take and pay for shares.

opposite to his name the number of shares he takes." Sect. 3 of the Act of 1908 (sect. 8 of the Act of 1862). It is conceived that where a subscriber, in the case of a company limited by shares, does not set any number of shares opposite his signature, he impliedly agrees to take and is liable for at least one. See Porter v. Emmens, 1 C. P. D. 201 and 664.

Where a company limited by shares, registered on or after Jan. 1, 1901, invites the public to subscribe for its shares within a year after the date at which it is entitled to commence business, a director may have to sign the memorandum of association "for a number of shares not less than his qualification (if any)." See Companies Act, 1908, s. 72 (Companies Act, 1900, s. 2). The memorandum may, as the section points out, be signed either by the director "or by his agent authorized in writing."

Independently of the power given by sect. 72 of the Act of 1908, a subscriber may sign the memorandum by an agent. Whitley Partners, 32 C. Div. 337. In that case the agent had signed in the name of the principal, and the principal was held bound. Probably, even before the Act of 1900, the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies could have required evidence of the agency if a signature purported to be that of an agent. But in practice he never required such evidence where there were seven persons who subscribed personally.

But see as to an application for registration, sect. 17 of the Companies Act, 1908, supra, and the statutory declaration now required.

The subscriber of the memorandum agrees to take the shares set opposite to his name from the company, and to pay for them. Migotti's case, 4 Eq. 258; Fothergill's case, 8 Ch. 279; Nicol's case, 29 C. Div. 421; Lord Lurgan's case, (1902) 1 Ch. 707. The fact that no shares have ever in fact been allotted to him (unless all the shares have been allotted to other persons (Mackley's case, 1 C. Div. 247)), or that his name has never been put on the register, will not relieve him (Erans' case, 2 Ch. 427; Argyle Co., 54 L. T. 233), for he has by subscribing, notwithstanding he is not entered on the register, acquired the full status of membership. Tuffnell & Ponsonby's case, 29 Ch. D. 441.

A clause in the articles that shares subscribed for in the memorandum shall be deemed to be fully paid up is ineffectual. Dent's case, 8 Ch. 768; Crickmer's case, 10 Ch. 614; Firmstone's case, 20 Eq. 524.

As to what was payment in cash under sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 (now repealed), see supra, p. 68.

When shares subscribed in memorandum
must be paid for in cash.

Sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 having been repealed, shares, whether subscribed for in the memorandum or otherwise taken up, have to be paid up in full, but they may be paid for in cash or otherwise. "If a man contracts to take shares he must pay either in money or money's worth, and payment in either will be a satisfaction." Per Giffard, L. J., in Baglan Hall Colliery Co., 5 Ch. 346, 355. And in the same case he says (p. 59, supra) that he does not see that "payment in kind according to a subsequent contract with the company is inconsistent with such a memorandum. If there be a contract of such a nature that on a bill filed by the company it could not be set aside, a payment for shares in kind according to that contract is legal," and see Pell's case, L. R. 5 Ch. 11; and Re Wragg, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 796.

Hence, if shares (after 1st January, 1901, the date of the repeal of the cash payment section) are issued to A. on a cash basis there is nothing to prevent a subsequent contract under sect. 88 of the Companies Act, 1908 (Companies Act, 1900, s. 7), that the amount or part thereof shall be satisfied by making over to the company property or rendering it services which the company is willing to accept in satisfaction.

Moreover, the section in no way interferes with Spargo's case, 8 Ch. 407 (approved Larocque v. Brauchemin, (1897) A. C. 358), and accordingly any bonâ fide transaction between a company and a shareholder which in an action for calls would support a plea of payment is, à fortiori, sufficient. See further, supra, p. 69.

The memorandum irrevocably binds a subscriber thereof, as above mentioned, to take the number of shares set opposite his name from the company; but if he subscribes for preference shares, he may subsequently agree with the company to take ordinary shares instead; for as regards matters not required by the Act to be stated in the memorandum, the contract contained in it is revocable (Duke's case, 1 C. D. 623), and this is one. Where a person subscribes the memorandum for shares, no allotment being required to render him liable (London and Provincial, &c. Co., 5 C. D. 525), he should not sign any further application for such shares, though if he do sign such application, merely intending to apply for the shares he has already subscribed for, he will not incur any further liability. (Gilman's case, 31 C. D. 420; Dunster's case, C. A., (1894) 3 Ch. 734. By virtue of the subscription he is entitled to the shares, but he takes them upon the ordinary conditions, and one is that he is not bound to pay up the amount of the shares except in answer to calls duly made upon him in accordance with the articles before the company is wound up (Alexander v. Automatic Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56), or in a winding-up.

As to stamping the memorandum of association:

By sect. 6 of the Act of 1908 the memorandum is required to bear the same stamp as if it were a deed, i.e., a 10s. stamp. Stamps and fees.

In addition to this, it must before registration be stamped with companies' fee stamps in respect of the fees payable under sect. 244 of the Act.

The tables of fees referred to in sect. 244 are as follows:—

TABLE B.

TABLE OF FEES TO BE PAID TO THE REGISTRAR OF COMPANIES.

I. By a Company having a Share Capital.

	£	s.	d.
For registration of a company whose nominal capital does not exceed 2,000/., a fee of	2	0	0
For registration of a company whose nominal capital exceeds 2,000/., the above fee of 2/., with the following additional fees, regulated according to the amount of nominal capital (that is to say):—
For every 1,000/., of nominal capital, or part of
1,000/., after the first 2,000/., up to 5,000/.	1	0	0
For every 1,000/., of nominal capital, or part of
1,000/., after the first 5,000/., up to 100,000/.	0	5	0
For every 1,000/., of nominal capital, or part of
1,000/., after the first 100,000/.	0	1	0
For registration of any increase of capital made after the first registration of the company, the same fees per 1,000/., or part of 1,000/., as would have been payable if such increased capital had formed part of the original capital at the time of registration.
Provided that no company shall be liable to pay in respect of nominal capital on registration, or afterwards, any greater amount of fees than 50/., taking into account in the case of fees payable on an increase of capital after registration the fees paid on registration.
For registration of any existing company, except such companies as are by this Act exempted from payment of fees in respect of registration under this Act, the same fee as is charged for registering a new company.
For registering any document hereby required or authorized to be registered, other than the memorandum of association	0	5	0
For making a record of any fact hereby authorized or required to be recorded by the Registrar of Companies, a fee of	0	5	0

II. By a Company not having a Share Capital.

For registration of a company whose number of members, as stated in the articles of association, does not exceed 20	2	0	0
For registration of a company whose number of members, as stated in the articles of association, exceeds 20, but does not exceed 100	5	0	0
For registration of a company whose number of members, as stated in the articles of association, exceeds 100, but is not stated to be unlimited, the above fee of 5/., with an additional fee of 5s. for every 50 members or less number than 50 members after the first 100.
For registration of a company in which the number of members is stated in the articles of association to be unlimited, a fee of	20	0	0
For registration of any increase on the number of members made after the registration of the company in respect of every 50 members, or less than 50 members, of such increase	0	5	0
Provided that no one company shall be liable to pay on the whole a greater fee than 20/., in respect of its number of members, taking into account the fee paid on the first registration of the company.

k. s. d.

For registration of any existing company, except such companies as are by this Act exempted from payment of fees in respect of registration under this Act, the same fee as is charged for registering a new company.

For registering any document hereby required or authorized to be registered, other than the memorandum of association	0 5 0
---	-------

For making a record of any fact hereby authorized or required to be recorded by the Registrar of Companies, a fee of	0 5 0
--	-------

By sect. 112 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (54 & 55 Vict. c. 39), additional duty is imposed thus:

"A statement of the amount which is to form the nominal share capital of any company to be registered with limited liability shall be delivered to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies in England, Scotland, or Ireland, and a statement of the amount of any increase of registered capital of any company now registered or to be registered with limited liability shall be delivered to the said registrar, and every such statement shall be charged with an ad valorem stamp duty of 2s. for every 100*l.*, and any fraction of 100*l.* over any multiple of 100*l.* of the amount of such capital, or increase of capital, as the case may be."

It is apprehended that duty must be paid on an increase notwithstanding that the new shares are created in substitution for other shares. Midland Rail. Co. v. Att.-Gen., (1902) A. C. 171; Att.-Gen. v. Gas Light and Coke Co., 18 T. L. R. 517; Att.-Gen. v. Regent's Canal and Dock Co., (1904) 1 K. B. 263.

By sect. 7 of the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9)

"Five shillings shall be substituted for two shillings as the ad valorem duty imposed by sects. 112 and 113 of the Stamp Act, 1891, as extended by sect. 12 of the Finance Act, 1896, on the statements with regard to the capital of companies referred to in those sections."

Sect. 12 of the Act of 1896 does not relate to companies under the Act of 1908.

By the joint operation therefore of sect. 112 of the Stamp Act, 1891, and sect. 7 of the Finance Act, 1899, a statement of the amount which is to form the nominal share capital of any company to be registered with limited liability is to be delivered to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies in England, Scotland, or Ireland, and a statement of any amount of increase of capital of any company, now registered or to be registered with limited liability, shall be delivered to the said registrar, and every such statement shall be charged with an ad valorem duty of 5s. for every 100*l.* and any fraction of 100*l.* over any multiple of 100*l.* of the amount of such capital, or increase of capital, as the case may be.

By sect. 5 of the Revenue Act, 1903 (3 Edw. 7, c. 46)—

"The statement of the amount of any increase of registered capital of any company registered under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1900, which is required by sect. 112 of the Stamp Act, 1891, to be delivered to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, shall be delivered duly stamped, with the duty charged thereon, within fifteen days after the passing of the resolution by which the registered capital is increased; and, in default of that delivery, the duty, with interest thereon at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the passing of the resolution, shall be a debt to His Majesty recoverable from the company."

In Att.-Gen. v. Anglo-Argentine Tramways Co., Ltd., (1909) 1 K. B. 677, the company had passed a special resolution authorizing the directors to increase the capital by a sum not exceeding 5,000,000*l.* by the creation and issue from time to time of new shares of 5*l.* each, and it was held that the whole of such 5,000,000*l.* was chargeable at once with ad valorem duty as an increase of registered capital, though in fact the directors had, pursuant to the resolution, only created capital to the extent of 2,000,000*l.* The grounds on which the learned judge (Channell, J.) arrived at this remarkable conclusion, appear to be based on a complete misapprehension of the scheme of operation of the Companies Act, 1862, and of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, in regard to a company's capital. The learned judge seems to have thought that the capital of a company was not a mass of shares created and existing, but merely a figure denoting the maximum beyond which the company might not go. It is submitted that this is not the correct view, and that a company's capital for the time being consists of existing shares, and is not increased until the new shares constituting such increase are brought into actual existence, and that a mere authority to the directors to increase does not increase the capital (or the registered capital) unless and until the authority is exercised.

Following are a few examples of the amount payable on the registration of the memorandum and articles of association of a company limited by shares:—

Nominal Capital.	Amount Payable.
£	£ s. d.
1,000	5 15 0
5,000	18 15 0
10,000	32 10 0
20,000	60 0 0
30,000	87 10 0
50,000	142 10 0
80,000	225 0 0
100,000	280 0 0
200,000	535 0 0
500,000	1,300 0 0
1,000,000	2,551 5 0

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

189

As to the procedure to be adopted on registration of a company,
see supra, p. 3.

By sect. 18 (1) of the Companies Act, 1908, every company shall send to every member at his request and on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, a copy of the memorandum and the articles, if any; (2) if a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding one pound.

Member entitled to copy of memorandum
and articles.

PRECEDENTS.

Form 79.

Memorandum
of a company
limited by
shares.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

Coy Limtd by Shares.

Memdm of Asson of the — Coy, Limtd.

1. The name of the coy is the " — Coy, Limtd."

See supra, p. 449. Scrutton, J., has recently decided that the abbreviation of "Limited" to "Ltd." is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the Act, supra, p. 454.

2. The registered office of the coy will be situate in England [or Scotland, or Ireland, as the case may be].

See supra, p. 454.

3. The objects for which the coy is established are:—

See supra, p. 455.

(1.) To acquire, &c., e.g., Form 85.

(2.) To carry on, &c., e.g., Form 130 et seq.

(3.) Add general clauses from Form 97 et seq.

4. The liability of the members is limtd.

See supra, pp. 475, 476.

5. The capital of the coy is £——, divided into —— shares of £ each, with power to divide the shares in the capital for the time being into several classes, and to attach thto resply any preferential, deferred, qualified, or special rights, privileges, or conditions [but so that where shares are issued with any preferential or special rights attached thto, such rights shall not (except where the terms of issue otherwise provide) be alterable otherwise than pursuant to the provisions contained in clauses 50 or 153 of the accompanying arts of asson].

As to the capital, see supra, p. 476 et seq.

As to reserve capital, which is only to be called for in a winding-up, see Form 225, infra.

As to taking express power in the memorandum to issue preference shares, see supra, p. 479.

As to defining in the memorandum the rights of the several classes of shares, see infra, p. 475 et seq.

As to reserving power in the memorandum to modify the rights there defined by resolutions under clauses in the articles, see supra, p. 476.

We, the several persons whose names and addresses are subscribed, are desirous of being formed into a co., in pursuance of this memdm of assen, and we resply agree to take the number of shares in the capital of the co. set opposite our respive names.

Form 79.

Names, Addresses, and Descriptions of Subscribers.	Number of Shares taken by each Subscriber.
--	---

1. JOHN JONES, of, &c., Merchant	One
2. JOHN SMITH, of, &c., Landed Proprietor	One
3. THOMAS GREEN, of, &c., Grocer	One
4. HENRY THOMPSON, of, &c., Commission Agent	One
5. CHARLES EVANS, of, &c., no occupation	One
6. WILLIAM DAY, of, &c., Surgeon	One
7. ALFRED JONES, of, &c., Wine Merchant	One

Total Shares taken	Seven
--------------------	-------

Dated the — day of — 19— .

Particular care should be taken to give the names, addresses and descriptions of the subscribers fully and correctly and clearly; otherwise delay is almost certain to occur.

WITNESS to the above signatures.

SAMUEL WELLER,
10, North Street,
Westminster.

Or,

WITNESS to the above signatures of John Jones, John Smith, William Day, and Alfred Jones,
SAMUEL WELLER, &c.

WITNESS to the above signatures of Thomas Green, Henry Thompson, and Charles Evans,
MARTIN CLARKE, &c.

Or,

WITNESS to the above signatures other than that of Thomas Green,
SAMUEL WELLER, &c.

WITNESS to the above signature of Thomas Green,
MARTIN CLARKE, &c.

Where an agent signs, the proper course is to sign thus:—"A. B., of —, his duly authorized agent." And, to satisfy sect. 72 (1) of the Act, it should be stated that the agent is "authorized in writing." That the signature may be by an agent, see Whitley Partners, 32 C. D. 337.

In subscribing the memorandum, particular care should be taken that the signatures are legible. Not uncommonly one or more signatures are quite undecipherable. Where there can be any doubt, it is desirable to bring with the memorandum a clearly written list showing the names, addresses and descriptions of the subscribers. As to descriptions, care should be taken to Form 79. make these also clear, especially where a subscriber has no profession. If needs be, insert the words "no occupation." In the case of a clerk, state what sort of a position he holds, as, for instance, clerk to a merchant, or secretary to a public company.

There must be at least seven subscribers (or two in the case of a "private company," see p. 911), but there may be as many more as the promoters choose. Each subscriber must take at least one share, and must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes. Where the shares are of different classes, the class of shares should be stated, thus, e.g., "one preference," or "one ordinary."

Minimum Subscription.

Sect. 85 of the Companies Act, 1908, allows the specification of the minimum subscription in the memorandum or articles of association. But it is rarely expedient to specify it in the memorandum unless it is very small, for if there specified it can in no circumstances be altered, and this difficulty may wreck the company if the minimum is not obtained.

Form 80.

Memorandum
of a company limited by guarantee.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1908.

Coy Limtd by Guarantee.

Memdum of Asson of the — Coy. Limtd.

1. The name of the coy is the "— Coy, Limtd."

See supra, p. 449.

2. The registered office of the coy will be situate in England [or Scotland, or Ireland].

See supra, p. 454.

3. The objects for which the coy is established are:—

(1.) To, &c.; see Forms 200 to 204, infra.

4. The liability of the members is limtd.

This clause, though in the new Act, was not in the Act of 1862.

5. Every member of the coy undertakes to contribute to the assets of the coy in the event of the same being wound up during the time that he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the coy contracted before the time at which he ceases to be a member, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the same, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding 10l. [See supra, p. 448.]

The amount of the guarantee varies according to the circumstances of the company. Sometimes it is fixed at 100l., but more often it is fixed at 10l., or 5*l.*, or 1*l.*, and occasionally at 3*s.* The guarantee is usually of the same amount for each member, but occasionally the amount is made to vary with the extent of a member's interest, as in the case of The Shipping Federation, Ltd. (1890), where the amount was "not exceeding 3*s.* per gross registered ton in respect of steam tonnage, or 1*s.* per gross registered ton in respect of sailing tonnage, respectively entered by such member with the company at the date of the order or resolution to wind up the company, or at the date of his ceasing to be a member, whichever date shall be the earlier."

Form 80.

[Where there is to be a capital divided into shares, add:

6. The capital of the coy is £- - divided into - - shares of £- - each.

WE, the several persons whose names and addresses are subscribed, are desirous of being formed into a coy, in pursuance of this memdm of assn.

See supra, p. 491.

Names, addresses, and descriptions of subscribers

See supra, p. 491. And if there is a share capital, state the number of shares taken by each subscriber. See as to this, supra, p. 491.

Dated the --- day of ---, 19---

WITNESS, &c.: see supra.

Sect. 4, sub-sect. 2, of the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 27 of the Companies Act, 1900), contains the following provision as to companies limited by guarantee:—

"(2) If the company has a share capital

(i) The memorandum must also state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount."

Under sect. 9 of the Companies Act, 1862, it was not necessary, in the case of a company limited by guarantee, to specify the capital in the memorandum of association; it was sufficient, as appears by sect. 14 of the Act and Form C in the second schedule, to specify the capital in the articles of association, and that capital (being a regulation, not a condition) could be altered from time to time by special resolution. Hence the power to increase and reduce capital, conferred by sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 and sect. 9 of the Act of 1867, and by the Act of 1877, was only given to a "company limited by shares," and not to a company limited by guarantee with a capital divided into shares. The above sub-section renders it necessary henceforth to specify the capital in the memorandum. In the result, the capital becomes a "condition" of the memorandum, which can only be altered (see sect. 41 of the Act of 1908) in the manner permitted by the Act. None of the other powers by the Act expressed to be given exclusively to companies limited by shares are, by this section, made applicable to companies limited by guarantee, e.g., power to consolidate shares, and to convert shares into stock, sect. 41 of the Act of 1908; power to sub-divide shares, ibid.; power to issue share warrants, sect. 37 of the Act of 1908.

Form 80.

The special feature of companies limited by guarantee, with a share capital, was that the hard and fast rules as to capital applicable in the case of a company limited by shares were relaxed, and the shareholders could, by special resolution, deal with the capital as they chose. The destruction of this feature of flexibility takes away the principal inducement to register this form of company instead of a company limited by shares. Nevertheless, it may still be desirable, in some cases, to form companies limited by guarantee with a nominal capital divided into shares, for it will be possible in such a company to have two classes of members—namely, those who hold shares and those who are members without holding shares, e.g., a class of persons who may be called the founders, and to whom a share of the profits may be given. This would not be in contravention of sub-sect. (1) of sect. 21 of the Companies Act, 1908, infra. Moreover, companies of this kind are exempt from sects. 88 and 65 of the Act of 1908 as to returns of allotments and the statutory meeting.

Participation in Divisible Profits.

Sect. 21 of the Act provides as follows:

21.—(1) In the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital, and registered on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one, every provision in the memorandum or articles or in any resolution of the company purporting to give any person a right to participate in the divisible profits of the company otherwise than as a member shall be void.

(2) For the purpose of the provisions of this Act relating to the memorandum of a company limited by guarantee and of this section, every provision in the memorandum or articles, or in any resolution, of any company limited by guarantee and registered on or after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one, purporting to divide the undertaking of the company into shares or interests shall be treated as a provision for a share capital, notwithstanding that the nominal amount or number of the shares or interests is not specified thereby.

This sub-sect. (2) is curiously expressed. It does not apparently make void any such provision, for the language is very different to that used in sub-sect. (1). It appears to recognize that a memorandum may contain a provision dividing the undertaking into shares and yet not specifying the nominal amount or number of the shares, and it declares that such a provision shall, for the purposes of this section, be treated as a provision for a capital divided into shares. Perhaps the true construction is that the Legislature is here dealing, not with registered documents, but with documents proposed to be registered: so that if a memorandum proposed to be registered states that the undertaking is divided into (say) 10,000 shares, it cannot, looking to sub-sect. (2) of sect. 27 (supra), be registered unless it goes on to state the amount and number of the shares. This sect. 21 goes far to abolish a very convenient mode of constitution which has been occasionally adopted, e.g., in the case of the Beira Railway Company, Limited. According to that mode of constitution the company was registered as a company limited by guarantee, and the articles stated that the undertaking was to be deemed to be divided into so many (say 100,000) shares [of no nominal value or amount], and the members became holders of those shares. There was no liability beyond the guarantee in respect of the shares unless the regulations imposed a liability, but of course every member in the winding-up was liable for the amount guaranteed, say 10*s.* per member. Thus it was rendered possible to avoid the grave difficulty that sometimes arises in fixing the capital value of a speculative undertaking, and there were various other advantages incident to the mode of incorporation—a mode which borrowed its special features from the cost-book mining company for centuries prevalent in Cornwall and Devon. Unfortunately, however, this mode incidentally enabled the parties to escape from the capital duty payable on a nominal capital, and obstacles were placed in the way of those who desired to register companies in accordance with this mode. Subsequently it was held by the High Court in Molleson v. General Mineral Patent Syndicate, Limited, (1894) 3 Ch. 538 that a company limited by guarantee could, by special resolution, adopt regulations dividing its undertaking into a number of shares as above; and this of course made it clear that these obstacles were unjustifiable, for it is well settled that a company cannot legally adopt by special resolution regulations which could not legally have been embodied in its original articles of association. Hence this sub-section.

There is, however, nothing in the section to prevent the adoption of the common expedient of vesting shares in trustees and declaring that the beneficial interest in such shares shall be regarded as a joint stock, and be deemed to be divided into a number of shares of no nominal amount, e.g., 100,000, transferable either by the delivery of the certificates or by transfer registered in books kept by either trustees or other nominees. Moreover, the section does not appear to cover every mode of providing for a division of the undertaking into shares.

In the winding-up of a company limited by guarantee a member is liable to be placed on the A list of contributories, and to pay in respect of his guarantee, and also under sect. 101 of the Act of 1862 (Companies Act, 1908, s. 165) to pay up any other sums due from him; but if he has ceased to be a member for more than a year before the winding-up, and therefore cannot be placed on the list, he can only be sued in an action for any other sums due from him. Baird's case, (1899) 2 Ch. 593.

Form 80.THE — ASSOCIATION OR SOCIETY.

The following is the official form issued by the Board of Trade:

Memorandum of Asson.

1. The name of the association is the "— Association." See supra, pp. 449 et seq.
2. The registered office of the society supra, p. 454].
3. The objects for which the society or, chamber, or, institute, &c. is established are:—[See pp. 455 et seq.] And see proviso as to charities and trusts, infra.

(1) The

(2) The

(3) The doing all such other lawful things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects.

Provided that the association shall not support with its funds or endeavour to impose on or procure the observance by its members or others of any regulation or restriction which if an object of the association would make it a trade union.

Provided also that in case the association shall take or hold any property subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, the association shall not sell, mortgage, charge, or lease the same without such consent as may be required by law,

Form 81.

Memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee and registered pursuant to sect. 20 of the Companies Act, 1908 sect. 23 of the Act of 1867.

Form 81. and as regards any such ppty the managers or trees of the association shall be chargeable for such property as may come into their hands, and shall be answerable and accountable for their own acts, receipts, neglects, and defaults, and for the due administration of such ppty in the same manner and to the same extent as they would as such managers or trees have been if no incorporation had been effected, and the incorporation of the association shall not diminish or impair any control or authority exerciseable by the Chancery Division or the Charity Commissioners over such managers or trees, but they shall, as regards any such ppty, be subject jointly and separately to such control or authority as if the association were not incorporated. In case the association shall take or hold any ppty which may be subject to any trusts, the association shall only deal with the same in such manner as allowed by law having regard to such trusts.

As to the earlier part of the clause prohibiting sales, &c., it is to be observed that it only applies to property "subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners," and accordingly property exempted by sect. 62 of the Charitable Trustees Act, 1853, and by sects. 47, 48, and 49 of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1855, does not come within the words. See Royal Society of London v. Thompson, 17 C. D. 407; Clergy Orphan Corporation, (1894) 3 Ch. 145; Gilchrist, (1895) 1 Ch. 367; Mason Orphanage, &c., (1896) 1 Ch. 596; Stockport School, (1898) 1 Ch. 611.

But as regards property subject to the jurisdiction of the Charity Commissioners, the proviso no doubt points to sect. 29 of the Charitable Trusts Act, 1855.

As regards the central portion of the proviso, it is in substance a repetition of the words of sect. 5 of the Charitable Trustees Incorporation Act, 1872. That Act enables trustees of charities to apply for a certificate of incorporation, and then, by sect. 5, preserves their individual liability; but that seems a very different thing to imposing by the proviso the liabilities of trustees on the managers, who are not owners of the trust property but agents and servants of the owners, and are under no antecedent liability as trustees.

It is submitted that the words are objectionable, and that it would be far better to leave the general law to operate.

As to the last paragraph of the proviso, it is presumably inserted by way of reminder.

A company formed for charitable and other purposes, e.g., trading or philanthropic purposes, is not a charity. See Macduff v. Macduff, (1896) 2 Ch. 451.

4. The income and ppty of the asson, whencesoever derived, shall be applied solely towards the promotion of the objects of the asson as set forth in this memdum of asson; and no portion thof shall be paid or transferred, directly or indirectly, by way of dividend, bonus, or otherwise howsoever by way of profit, to the members of the asson.

Provided that nothing herein shall prevent the payment, in good faith, of remuneration to any officers or servants of the asson, or to any member of the asson, or other person, in return for any services actually rendered to the asson. [See cases, infra, p. 501.]

Provided further that no member of the council of management or governing body of the asson shall be appointed to any salaried office of the assen, or any office of the assen pd by fees, and that no remuneration shall be given by the assen to any member of such council or governing body except repayment of out-of-pocket expenses and interest on money lent or rent for premises demised to the assen. Provided further that this provision shall not apply to any payment to any railway, gas, electric lighting, water, cable, or telephone co of which a member of the council of management or governing body may be a member or any other co in which such member shall not hold more than one-hundredth part of the capital, and such member shall not be bound to account for any share of profits he may receive in respect of such payment.

Form 81.

The first paragraph of this clause (4) might reasonably be held to prohibit only a payment to a member qui member, but this construction would render the first proviso superfluous. In order to obviate doubt the proviso has, in several cases, with the sanction of the Board of Trade, been modified: e.g., by the addition of the words "nor prevent the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding 5 p.c.p.a. on money borrowed from any member of the society," or words to that effect (Banff Town and County Club, and Worcester Law Society, 1882; Hackney Stool Book Society, 1884); or, "but it shall nevertheless be competent to the corporation to repay the contributions of the permanent members with interest at 5 p.c.p.a., and also to remunerate" (Corporation of Foreign Bondholders); "nor be deemed to exclude any member of the association from the benefit of any grant made in furtherance of any of the objects of the association" (Incorporated Free and Open Church Association, 1882); "nor the gratuitous distribution among, or sale at a discount to, subscribers to the funds of the society of any books or other publications, whether published by the society or otherwise, relating to all or any of its objects as above set forth" (Palestine Exploration Fund, 1879); "nor shall prevent the bona fide relieving or assisting pursuant to clause (h) of the preceding paragraph of persons, or the wives, widows, families or relations of persons who, having been members of the association, have ceased to be so, and have become poor and necessitous, or are deceased, or prevent the payment in good faith of remuneration to any officers or servants, &c., or prevent the payment of interest at a rate not exceeding 5 p.c.p.a. on any money borrowed from any member for any of the purposes of the association" (Petroleum Association, 1885); "nor prevent payment of interest, &c., nor be deemed to exclude any member of the society from the benefit of any grant made in furtherance of any of the objects of the society" (Church Army, 1892); or, "prevent any member who may be a successful exhibitor at any exhibition or show held or promoted by the club or to the cost of establishing or holding of which the club may have subscribed out of its income or property, from receiving as such exhibitor any prize, medal, or other recognitions which may, under the regulations affecting the said exhibition or show, be awarded to him" (Smithfield Club, 1900).

5. The fourth paragraph of this memdum is a condition on which a licence is granted by the Board of Trade to the society in pursuance of sect. 20 of the Cos Act, 1908.

See infra, p. 498.

6. The liability of the members is limited.

Form 81.

7. Every member of the society undertakes to contribute to the assets of the society, in the event of the same being wound up during the time that he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the society contracted before the time at which he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the same, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding £—— [or whatever the amount fixed on may be].

8. If upon the winding-up or dissolution of the society there remains, after satisfaction of all its debts and liabilities, any property whatsoever, the same shall not be paid to or distributed among the members of the association, but, if and so far as effect can be given to the next provision, shall be given or transferred to some other institution or institutions having objects similar to the objects of the association, to be determined by the members of the association at or before the time of dissolution, and in default thereof by such Judge of the High Court of Justice as may have or acquire jurisdiction in the matter.

As to meaning, see infra, p. 500, Form 82.

9. True accounts shall be kept of the sums of money received and expended by the assn. and the matter in respect of which such receipt and expenditure takes place, and of the ppty, credits, and liabilities of the assn; and, subject to any reasonable restrictions as to the time and manner of inspecting the same that may be imposed in accordance with the regulations for the time being of the assn. shall be open to the inspection of the members. Once at least in every year, the accounts of the assn shall be examined and the correctness of the balance-sheet ascertained by one or more properly qualified auditor or auditors.

We, the several persons whose names and addresses are subscribed, are desirous of being formed into a society in pursuance of this memorandum of assn.

Names, addresses, and descriptions of subscribers. Date, &c., as in Form 79 (omitting shares).

Sect. 20 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, replacing sect. 23 of the Act of 1867, provides as follows:—

Power to dispense with "limited" in name of charitable and other companies.

20.—(1) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade that an association about to be formed as a limited company is to be formed for promoting commerce, art, science, religion, charity, or any other useful object, and intends to apply its profits (if any), or other income in promoting its objects, and to prohibit the payment of any dividend to its members, the Board may by licence direct that the association be registered as a company with limited liability, without the addition of the word "Limited" to its name, and the association may be registered accordingly.

Form 81.

(2) A licence by the Board of Trade under this section may be granted on such conditions and subject to such regulations as the Board think fit, and those conditions and regulations shall be binding on the association, and shall, if the Board so direct, be inserted in the memorandum and articles, or in one of those documents. [1867, s. 23.
1907, s. 42.]

(3) The association shall on registration enjoy all the privileges of limited companies, and be subject to all their obligations, except those of using the word "Limited" as any part of its name, and of publishing its name, and of sending lists of members and directors and managers to the registrar of companies.

(4) A licence under this section may at any time be revoked by the Board of Trade, and upon revocation the registrar shall enter the word "Limited" at the end of the name of the association upon the register, and the association shall cease to enjoy the exemptions and privileges granted by this section:

Provided that before a licence is so revoked the Board shall give to the association notice in writing of their intention, and shall afford the association an opportunity of being heard in opposition to the revocation.

The above sect. 20 has proved very useful, and a large number of associations have been registered under it, generally as companies limited by guarantee, e.g., law societies, chambers of commerce, trade protection societies, medical societies, agricultural associations, &c., charitable associations. The section frequently resorted to.

For a list of some of the associations so registered, see infra.

An association desiring to be incorporated with limited liability, but without the word "limited" as part of the name, and for that purpose to obtain a licence from the Board of Trade pursuant to sect. 20 of the Act, should, according to the rules now in force, make a written application to the Board for a licence, and together with such application should transmit for their consideration a draft, in duplicate, of the proposed memorandum and articles of association. The drafts and any subsequent revisions that may be required should, whether in print or manuscript, be on foolscap-sized paper. If the Board of Trade are satisfied that the application should be entertained they will furnish a notice of such application, to be inserted in a local newspaper for the information of the public, and if after the expiration of a limited time there appears to be no sufficient reason why the licence should not be granted, the Board of Trade will approve the memorandum and articles of association, with or without amendment, and grant a licence.

The Board of Trade will require to have the memorandum and articles of association settled on their behalf by their counsel, at the expense of the applicants, for which purpose a fee of five guineas must accompany the application. A cheque for the amount should be made payable to an assistant secretary of the Board of Trade. The Board of Trade will not be responsible for the memorandum and articles being properly framed as regards the interests of the association.

The Board is always willing to sanction the omission of the word "company" in the memorandum and articles, and the substitution of the word "chamber," "society," "corporation," or the like.

The names of the subscribers to the memorandum should be in full, and the addresses should be definite, giving, where practicable, the name of the street and the number of the house.

The following is a specimen of the licence issued by the Board:—

Form 82.

WHEREAS it has been proved to the Board of Trade that the — CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, which is about to be registered under the Companies (Con-

Licence of Board of Trade.

Form 82.

olidation) Act, 1908, as an association limited by guarantee, is formed for the purpose of promoting objects of the nature contemplated by the 20th section of the Act, and that it is the intention of the said chamber that the income and property of the association, whencesoever derived, shall be applied solely towards the promotion of the objects of the association, as set forth in the memorandum of association of the said chamber, and that no portion thereof shall be paid or transferred, directly or indirectly, by way of dividend or bonus, or otherwise howsoever by way of profit to the persons who at any time are, or have been, members of the said association, or to any of them, or to any person claiming through any of them.

Now, therefore, the Board of Trade, in pursuance of the powers in them vested, and in consideration of the provisions and subject to the conditions contained in the memorandum of association of the said chamber, as subscribed by [eleven] members thereof on the — day of —, do by this their licence direct the — CHAMBER OF COMMERCE to be registered with limited liability, without the addition of the word "limited" to its name.

Signed by order of the Board of Trade, this — day of —

The following are some of the resulting advantages:—The association avoids what may be called the taint of commercialism. It becomes a permanent legal entity, and thereby gains stability, credit, and dignity; the property can be vested in and held by the association in its own name and corporate capacity, and thereby dealings with such property are much facilitated, and expense as to trustees avoided; the association can contract, sue, and be sued in its own name; while the officers can act without incurring any personal liability.

Incorporation under this section has almost entirely displaced incorporation by Royal Charter or Letters Patent, when the intended operations are to be within the United Kingdom.

For specimens of objects, see Forms 200 et seq., infra.

The notice which the Board of Trade requires to be advertised is generally in the following form:—

Form 83.

APPLICATION for a LICENCE of the BOARD OF TRADE.

Notice of Board of Trade.

NOTICE is hereby given that in pursuance of the 20th section of the Companies Act, 1908, application has been made to the Board of Trade for a licence directing an association, about to be formed under the name of the —, to be registered with limited liability without the addition of the word "limited" to its name.

The objects for which the association is proposed to be established are [Here the principal objects are stated].

The other objects of the association are set out in extenso in the memorandum of association, a copy of which may be inspected at the office of Messrs. — and —, Solicitors, — Street, London, E.C.

Notice is hereby given that any person, company, or corporation objecting to this application may bring such objection before the Board of Trade, on or before the — day of — next [about a month], by a letter addressed to the Comptroller of the Companies Department, Board of Trade, 8, Delahay Street, London, S.W.

Dated this — day of —.

—, Secretary.

Form 63.

The official form set out supra, p. 405, &c., was adopted in 1909, and is a considerable improvement on the official form previously in use. That form was commented on in the ninth edition of this work, p. 403. It was open to many objections: in particular it contained provisions to the effect that in the event of any contravention of the conditions contained in the memorandum the person contravening should be under unlimited liability. Such provisions were of doubtful validity, for sect. 23 of the Act of 1867, which allowed the Board of Trade to impose conditions, also provided that the association when registered should enjoy all the privileges by the Act . . . imposed on limited companies. The new official form contains nothing about unlimited liability, and has been framed so as to meet several of the objections referred to in the last edition. But the form still remains open to some objections. The second proviso to clause 3 is objectionable. The second proviso to clause 4 is also objectionable, for why should remuneration of a member of the council or body of management for services rendered be forbidden, even where there is a competent quorum of independent members of the council or board who, in the interest of the society, desire to deal with the member of the council or body of management, or secure his services at a fair remuneration, even where the articles allow the transaction? There should be some latitude. In Bray v. Ford, (1896) A. C. 50, it was held that a proviso somewhat to the effect of the above did not relax the rule that a director or officer is not to make any profit out of his position except as authorised by the regulations. In that case a member of the governing body acted as solicitor to the society, and was remunerated, but it was held that, as the regulations did not allow for this, he was accountable to the society.

The Board of Trade has a discretion as to granting a licence under sect. 20, and in the result those who seek to obtain a licence have learned that it is not wise to criticise the official forms too freely. But, although these forms have generally to be accepted very much as they stand, the Board of Trade do allow modifications to suit the circumstances of particular cases.

Where a company incorporated under sect. 20 of the Act desires to alter its objects, the approval of the Board of Trade is required. St. Hilda Incorporated College, Cheltenham, (1901) 1 Ch. 556.

As to granting a pension to an officer of such a company. Cyclists' Touring Co. v. Hopkinson, (1910) 1 Ch. 179.

As to holding land, sect. 19 of the Act runs thus:—

"A company formed for the purpose of promoting art, science, religion, charity, or any other like object, not involving the acquisition of gain by the company or by its individual members, shall not, without the licence of the Board of Trade, hold more than two acres of land; but the Board may by licence empower any such company to hold lands in such quantity, and subject to such conditions, as the Board think fit."

Restriction on charitable and other companies holding land.

The notion appears to prevail that all companies registered under sect. 20 of the Act are within this enactment, and therefore unable to hold more than two acres without a licence. But looking to the decisions (supra, p. 110) as to the meaning of the words "involving the acquisition of gain," in sect. 4 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 1 (2) of the Act of 1908), this notion does not appear to be well founded. In many cases the objects of the association do involve the acquisition of gain by the association if not by the members. See Incorp'd. Council of Law Reporting, 22 Q. B. D. 279. In order to preclude doubt the Board of Trade sometimes has required the insertion of qualifying words in the objects. See infra, Form 200, clause 9.

Certain companies not to hold more than two acres without licence.

Form 83

The following are a few of the associations which have been registered without word "limited" —

BENEVOLENT.

Birmingham Hospital Saturday Fund	1892
Clergy Pensions Institution ..	1893
Irish Industries Association ..	1893
Provident Clerks' Benevolent Fund	1886
Working Ladies' Guild	1893

CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

London Chamber of Commerce [And many others.] ..	1881
Associated Chambers of Commerce ..	1875
British Chamber of Commerce in Belgium ..	1910

CLUBS.

Huddersfield Carlton Club ..	1875
Manningham Football Club ..	1886
Newcastle Junior Liberal Club ..	1880
St. Pancras Reform Club	1887
Incorporated West Herts Golf Club	1894
Smithfield Club	1900

COLLEGES.

Cheltenham Ladies' College ..	1880
Midland Clergy College Corporation ..	1899
Newnham College	1880
University College, Bristol	1876
Yorkshire College	1878
City and Guilds of London Institute for the advancement of Technical Education ..	1887
St. Hilda's Incorporated College, Cheltenham	1895
Bishop's College, Cheshunt ..	1870
Princess Christian College ..	1870

EXCHANGES.

Birmingham Exchange	1880
Manchester Coal Exchange ..	1882

HOSPITALS.

Cecilia Home for Blind Women ..	1882
Dalrymple Home for Inebriates ..	1882
Hampstead Home Hospital and Nursing Institute	1882
Home Hospitals Association for Paying Patients	1878

LAW SOCIETIES.

[A great many.]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Incorporated Council of Law Reporting	1870
Incorporated Free and Open Church Association ..	1882
Manchester Incorporated Law Library Society	1884
Meteorological Council ..	1892
National Smoke Abatement Institution	1882
Palestine Exploration Fund ..	1879
Royal School of Art Needlework	1878
Salisbury Diocesan Board of Finance ..	1882
Society for Promoting the Employment of Women ..	1882
Society of Comparative Legislation	1882
Surrey Public House Trades ..	1882
Royal Albert Institution, Lancaster ..	1882

MUSIC.

Sacred Harmonic Society.

PROFESSION.

Auctioneers' Institute	1882
Birmingham Medical Institute ..	1882
British Dental Association ..	1882
British Medical Association ..	1882
College of Organists	1882
College of State Medicine ..	1882
Incorporated Society of Officers of Health ..	1893
Incorporated Society of Clergymen	1893
Institute of British Manufacturers	1883
Institute of Chemistry ..	1877
Institute of Engineers ..	1890
Institute of Marine Engineers ..	1890
Institute of Mechanical Engineers ..	1887
Institute of Mining Engineers ..	1878
Institute of Colliery ..	1890

Form 83

The Unlimited Cos.

Form 84.

THE COMPANIES (CONSOLIDATION) ACT 1908.

Memorandum of unlimited
company

Mendum of Asson of the 24

1. The name of the coy is the " — Coy."
2. The registered office [supra, p. 454].
3. The objects for which the coy is established are:

WE, the several persons whose names and addresses are subscribed, are desirous of being formed into a cove in pursuance of this memorandum of assen.

Names, addresses, and descriptions of subscribers.

Dated the — day of

WITNESS supra, p. 491].

OBJECT CLAUSES.

ACQUISITION OF EXISTING CONCERN.

Very many, perhaps the majority, of companies are formed nowadays to acquire and work existing businesses. In such cases some or other of the following twelve forms (85 to 96) will probably be found applicable. Such clauses have generally been set out first as describing the principal or more important of the company's objects, but having regard to the decisions referred to at pp. 600—603, it may often be expedient not to give them such prominence as to found the inference that they are the main objects of the company, to which everything else is to be subordinate.

Form 85.

To acquire a business.

To acquire and take over as a going concern the business now carried on at —, in the county of —, under the style or firm of —, and all or any of the assets and liabilities of the proprietor s] of that business in connection therewith, and with a view thto to enter into the agreemt referred to in clause 3 of the coy's arts of asson. and to carry the same into effect with or without modification.

Where the agreement is with a trustee or agent for an intended company, the expression used in the clause should be "adopt" instead of "enter into," unless clause 3 of the articles refers to the adoptive contract.

Where the company is formed to acquire a business belonging to another company, or to amalgamate several businesses, the clause will be varied, c.

Form 86.

To acquire undertaking of another
company.

To acquire and take over as a going concern the undertaking, and all or any of the assets and liabilities of the — Coy, Limtd, incorporated in 18_90], and with a view thto, &c.

Form 87.

To acquire and amalgamate other concerns.

To acquire, take over, and amalgamate the undertakings of the — Coy, Limtd, and of the — Coy, Limtd, and with a view thto to enter into the agreemts, &c.

Form 88.

Another.

To acquire, take over, and amalgamate the business carried on by the — Coy, Limtd, and the business carried on at — under the firm name of J. & Sons, and all or any of the assets, &c. 'as in Form 85.]

Form 89.

To acquire mines.

To acquire certain mines and mining claims in — known as, &c. and with a view thereto, &c.

Form 90.

To acquire patents.

To acquire certain patents for inventions in relation to, &c., and with a view thto, &c.

To acquire a concession granted by, &c., and with a view, &c.

Form 91.

To acquire concession.

To acquire, &c., and with a view thto to adopt an agreemt dated the — of —, and made between A. of the one pt, and B., as tree for the coy, of the other pt, being an agreemt for the acquisition of, &c., and to carry such agreemt into effect with or without modification

Form 92.

To adopt
agreement with trustee for company.

In the absence of articles of association this form will be used instead of Form 85, where the preliminary agreement is made with a trustee for the intended company. See supra, p. 326.

To adopt and carry into effect, with or without modification, an agreemt which has already been prepared and is expressed to be made between A. of the one pt, and B., on behalf of the coy, of the other pt, and is to be signed immediately after the incorporation of the coy, and a copy whereof has for the purpose of identification been subscribed by —, a solor of the Supreme Court.

Form 93.

To acquire and amalgamate other concerns.

See Plan II., supra, p. 326.

To enter into and carry into effect (either with or without modification) an agreemt which has already been prepared, and is expressed to be made between [the sd] A. of the one pt, and the coy of the other pt, a copy whereof has for the purpose of identification been endorsed with the signatures of B., C., and D., three] of the subscribers hto or a copy whereof is set forth in the schedule to the arts of asson of the coy].

Form 94.

To enter into a contract.

Where it is desired to mention any preliminary agreement in the memorandum, this or some other of the above forms will be used, according as Plan I., or II., or III., supra, pp. 325—327, is adopted.

To acquire, &c., and with a view thto to enter into and carry into effect the three contracts referred to in clause 3 of the coy's arts of asson, and to carry the same resply into effect with or without modification.

Form 95.

To acquire,
&c. and to enter into three contracts.

To acquire and take over the undertaking of the — Coy, Limtd, and with a view thto to acquire all or any of the shares, debts and liabilities of that coy, and for that purpose to adopt an agreemt dated and made between A. B., on behalf of himself and all the other members of the sd coy, of the one pt, and C. D., on behalf of the coy, of the other pt, and to carry the same into effect, &c.

Form 96.

To acquire undertaking and shares therein.

COMMON FORMS OF CLAUSES.

These common form clauses are intended for use in connection with the various object clauses set forth or mentioned above, and in Forms 130 to 205, infra. As a general rule, Forms 97 to 121 may be used, but regard must, of course, be had to the special clauses and to the circumstances of the case. In some cases some of the other common forms, or some of the Forms 122-129, may have to be added.

Form 97.

To carry on other businesses.

To carry on any other business [whether manufacturing or otherwise] which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with the above or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the coy's ppty or rights.

The above is frequently adopted, and has been found very useful.

Such words are not surplusage, and must have effect given them. See Peruvian Rail. Co., 2 Ch. 617; supra, p. 471.

Form 98.

To purchase
other businesses.

To acquire and undertake the whole or any part of the business, ppty, and liabilities of any person or coy carrying on any business which the coy is authorized to carry on, or possessed of ppty suitable for the purposes of this coy.

The above power ought to be specified among the objects, if the company is intended to have the power. Ernest v. Nicholls, 6 H. L. 401. Express mention should be made of liabilities. But see Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Gibbs, L. R. 5 H. L. 480, as to what is sufficient.

Many companies formed without this object have found it necessary to resort to an Act of Parliament, or proceedings under the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890, now replaced by sect. 9 of the Companies Act, 1908, to obtain the requisite power for the extension of their objects.

Form 99.

To purchase
patents.

To apply for, purchase, or otherwise acquire, any patents, brevets d'invention, licences, concessions, and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the coy, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the coy, and to use, exercise, develop, or grant licences in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the ppty, rights or information so acquired.

A good many companies, especially manufacturing companies, insert the above.

Form 100.

To enter into partnership,
take shares,
&c.

To enter into [partnership or into] any arrangement for sharing profits, union of interests, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession, or otherwise, with any person or coy carrying on or engaged in, or about to carry on or engage in, any business or transaction which this coy is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit this coy. And [to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist, any such person or coy, and] to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such coy, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same. Form 100.

It was at one time supposed to be illegal for one company to take shares in another, but the contrary is now well settled, provided the memorandum gives the requisite power. Barnes's Banking Co., 3 Ch. 105; International Contract Co.'s case, 17 W. R. 459; Financial Corporation, 28 W. R. 760; W. N. (1880) 88; but very clear words are necessary to enable a company to enter into partnership with another company or person, or to take shares in another company. British Nation Life Assurance Assoc., 8 Ch. Div. 704.

Thus, a power in a scrivener and bill broking company's memorandum for "making advances and procuring loans, &c., and investing in securities," was held not to authorize the directors to take shares in a banking company with a view to promoting a banking company. Joint Stock Discount Co. v. Brown, 3 Eq. 139; 8 Eq. 381. But a power to assist in the formation of other companies and generally to transact the business of a capitalist will authorize taking shares in another company. Re Peruvian Ry. Co., W. N. (1869) 24; and see Re Financial Corporation, 28 W. R. 760.

The powers should be expressly conferred by the memorandum of association, though the power to acquire and hold shares may be implied from the nature of the company's business. See Royal Bank of India's case, 4 Ch. 252; and London Financial Assoc. v. Kelk, 26 C. D. 107.

If Form 100, infra, is used, the words in brackets will be omitted; and if Form 101 is also used, the latter part of the above clause can be omitted.

To take, or otherwise acquire, and hold shares in any other coy Form 101.
having objects altogether or in part similar to those of this coy, or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit this coy. To take shares in other companies.

See note to Form 100. This form is sometimes used in conjunction with that form.

To enter into any arrangements with any [governments or] authorities supreme], municipal, local, or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the coy's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such government or authority, any rights, privileges, and concessions which the coy may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise, and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges, and concessions. Form 102.

To make arrangements with authorities.

This clause is frequently used, with more or less modification.

To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of Form 103.
associations, institutions, funds, trusts, and conveniences calculated to benefit employes or ex-employes of the coy [or its predecessors in To benefit employes, &c.

- Form 103. business; or the dependants or connections of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects, or for any exhibition, or for any public, general or useful object.

A gratuity to employes may be supported without express power. Hampson v. Price's Patent Candle Co., 45 L. J. Ch. 437; Hutton v. West Cork Rail. Co., 23 C. D. 654. And so may a pension. Henderson v. Bank of Australasia, 40 C. D. 170. But to justify a subscription for outside purposes express authority is necessary. Tomkinson v. S. E. Rail. Co., 56 L. T. 813, supra, p. 465; and see Chap. XI. It is very common now to admit employes to participate in profits without giving them shares, and to establish provident and pension funds. See Forms 382 et seq.

- Form 104. To promote any coy or cos for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the ppty. rights and liabilities of this coy, or for any other purpose which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit this coy.

To promote companies.

Not to be able to promote another company may be very inconvenient, and if the power is desired it should be taken expressly. Joint Stock Dis. Co. v. Brown, 8 Eq. 381.

- Form 105. Generally to purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire, or otherwise acquire, any real and personal ppty, and any rights or privileges which the coy may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business [and in particular any land, buildings, easements, machinery, plant, and stock-in-trade].

To purchase property, &c.

A form to this effect is generally inserted. Sometimes the words in brackets are omitted; but it is usual to enumerate a number of items which the company will be likely to require.

- Form 106. To construct, maintain, and alter any buildings, or works, necessary or convenient for the purposes of the coy.

To build, &c.

This is very commonly inserted. It is modified, more or less, to suit different companies.

- Form 107. To construct, improve, maintain, develop, work, manage, carry out, or control any roads, ways, tramways, railways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores, and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to advance the coy's interests, and to contribute to, subsidise, or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out, or control thof.

To construct work.

Such a clause is commonly inserted with variations to suit the particular case.

To invest and deal with the moneys of the coy not immediately required in such manner as may from time to time be determined. Form 108.
To invest

To lend money to such persons and on such terms as may seem expedient, and in particular to customers and others having dealings with the coy, and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons. Form 109.
To receive money on deposit, lend, and guarantee.

See, as to the Money Lenders Act, 1900, infra, p. 526.

To borrow or raise or secure the payment of money in such manner as the coy shall think fit, and in particular by the issue of debentures, or debenture stock, perpetual or otherwise, charged upon all or any of the coy's ppty (both present and future), including its uncalled capital, and to purchase, redeem, or pay off any such securities. Form 110.
To borrow and mortgage, &c

The above is now usually inserted. It is not always strictly necessary, for a power to borrow is readily implied (Bryon v. Metropolitan, &c. Omnibus Co., 3 D. G. & J. 123; In re Marine Mansions Co., 4 Eq. 601; Ex parte City Bank, 3 Ch. 758; Gibbs and West's case, 10 Eq. 312; especially in the case of a trading company (General Auction, &c. Co. v. Smith, (1891) 3 Ch. 432; see further, supra, p. 472). Where a company has power to borrow, it has an implied power to secure the repayment of borrowed money by mortgage. Australian, &c. Co. v. Mounsey, 4 K. & J. 733; Bryon v. Metropolitan, &c. Co., ubi supra; Patent File Co., L. R. 6 Ch. 83. And where a company has power to raise money on mortgage, it has power to covenant to pay. Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee, 36 C. D. 675.

As to mortgaging uncalled capital, see Part III. The existence of a borrowing power, however ample, should not make a lender less careful to see that his security is framed in adequate terms. Streatham and General Estates Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 15.

To remunerate any person or coy for services rendered, or to be rendered, in placing or assisting to place or guaranteeing the placing of any of the shares in the coy's capital, or any debentures, debenture stock or other securities of the coy, or in or about the formation or promotion of the coy or the conduct of its business. Form 111.
To remunerate.

This clause is now commonly inserted, and clearly justifies payment out of premiums or profits. See Companies Act, 1908, s. 89, supra, p. 279, and supra, p. 275 et seq.

To draw, make, accept, indorse, discount, execute, and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants, debentures, and other negotiable or transferable instruments. Form 112.
To accept bills, &c

A company cannot issue negotiable instruments unless it has an express or implied power for that purpose given to it by its memorandum. An implied

Form 112. power arises where the business of the company is one which cannot, in its ordinary course, be carried on without the issue of such instruments, or where, upon a fair construction of the memorandum, the power appears to be incidental or conducive to the objects. Peruvian Ry. Co. v. Thames and Mersey Mar. Ins. Co., 2 Ch. 623.

The power to accept and issue bills and other negotiable instruments is one with which it is generally desired to endow a company, and where desirable, it is expedient to provide accordingly in express terms in the memorandum, at any rate where the company is not formed for purposes which necessarily imply the power. In the absence of an express power the test is what is necessary to carry on the partnership business under ordinary circumstances and in the usual course of business. Re Cunningham & Co., 36 Ch. D. 538; Re General Estates Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 762.

The following are cases in which it has been held that companies had no such power:—Bramah v. Roberts, 3 Bing. N. C. 263, which was a case of a gas company; Dickenson v. Valpy, 10 B. & C. 128, the case of a mining company; Steele v. Harmer, 14 M. & W. 831, the case of a cemetery company; Bull v. Morrell, 12 Ad. & E. 745, the case of a salt and alkali company; Thompson v. Universal Salvage Co., 1 Ex. 694, the case of a salvage company; Bateman v. Mid-Wales Rail. Co., L. R. 1 C. P. 499, the case of a railway; Atkin v. Wardle, 61 L. T. 23, the case of a swimming bath company.

If the name of the company is not correctly given, the directors signing on its behalf may be personally liable. Atkin v. Wardle, supra; Nassau v. Tyler, 70 L. T. 376; and see Penrose v. Martyn, E. B. & E. 490; Dutton v. Marsh, L. R. 6 Q. B. 361; and Dermatine v. Ashworth, 21 T. L. R. 510; sect. 63 of the Companies Act, 1908. But see supra, p. 454.

Where an acceptance is "per proc." an indorsee for value is bound to inquire into the authority to accept. Re Land Credit Co. of Ireland, L. R. 4 Ch. 460.

As to execution of a bill, see sect. 77. The authority under the section must be an authority in fact. Premier Industrial Bank v. Crabtree, (1909) 1 K. B. 106.

Form 113. To undertake and execute any trusts the undertaking whereof may seem desirable, and either gratuitously or otherwise.

To act as trustee.

Where the undertaking of trusts is contemplated, power should be taken, unless Form 119 is used and is considered sufficient.

Form 114. To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the coy or any pt tht for such conson as the coy may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures, or securities of any other coy having objects altogether or in pt similar to those of this coy.

Sale of undertaking.

A clause to this effect may now almost be regarded as a common form, and the power is often found useful. Of course, every company can effect a sale of its undertaking under sect. 192 of the Companies Act of 1908, replacing sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862 [infra, Chap. XXI.], but only by going into liquidation. Occasions, however, sometimes arise in which it is more beneficial to sell without winding-up, especially where the sale is conditional on the floating of a new company, or when the number of dissentients on a sale under sect. 192 is likely to be large, or where a would-be purchaser will not wait for a winding-up. The proceeds of sale of the undertaking, except so far as they can properly be regarded as profit, cannot be distributed among the members except by means of a winding-up, or with the sanction of the Court under sect. 46 of the Companies Act, 1908, the reduction of share capital section. Form 114.

That such a power to sell was effective was for a long time regarded as settled. Grant v. United Switchback Rail., 40 C. Div. 135. In that case the memorandum of association contained a clause to the above effect, and it was held that an agreement to sell, sanctioned by resolution of a general meeting, was unimpeachable. Cotton, L. J., said: "It is clear that a contract of this nature was within the objects of the company"; and Lindley, L. J., said: "Again, it was clearly not ultra vires of the company, for when we look at the memorandum of association we find powers so wide as clearly to include such a transaction." N. C., 37 W. R. 313.

In that case, it is true, the sale did not include the whole undertaking; but in Cotton v. Imperial, &c. Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 454, the whole undertaking was sold for shares, and Chitty, J., held the sale valid. It was contended that such a sale could only be made under sect. 161 of the Act of 1862, but the learned judge held that there was no foundation for this contention. See also New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622, where the case last mentioned was followed by the Court of Appeal.

A still stronger case is Rorax Co., Foster v. Rorax Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326, where the memorandum empowered the company to carry on a specified business, to amalgamate with another company carrying on a similar business, to sell all or any part of its business or property, and to hold debentures or shares in any other company. The company sold all its property, including the goodwill (except certain securities), to a new company, formed to purchase it, for shares and securities in that company, and agreed not to carry on the specified business except in conjunction with and for the benefit of and on behalf of the new company; and the Court of Appeal held that the transaction was valid. See also Mason v. Motor Traction Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 419; Booth v. New Afrikaander Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295; Honig v. Blackett's Mines, 49 S. J. 770; and Nicholson v. Consolidated Kent Collieries, Times, 19th April, 1905, in which Joyce, J., followed the above decisions, and held that a sale of the defendant company's undertaking for shares in a new company was valid, although the sale was made by the directors without the sanction of a duly convened meeting of the company.

These decisions were in accordance with the decisions as to unregistered companies. See Agus Life Assurance Co., 39 C. D. 571; Sovereign Life Co., 42 C. D. 542; Harman's case, 1 C. D. 326; Conquest's case, 1 C. D. 334; Dorman's case, 3 C. D. 21; Clay v. Rufford, 5 De G. & S. 768; Wall v. London and Northern Assets Co., (1898) 2 Ch. 469.

The whole subject has now, however, been re-opened by a recent decision of the Court of Appeal. Bisgood v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 743. In that case a scheme of reconstruction very similar to that held valid in Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Corporation was being carried out by the company under a power in its memorandum, and the Court held it to be ultra vires on the ground that sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862 (now sect. 192 of the Act of 1908), by implication prohibits a company selling its undertaking for shares under a power in its memorandum where the sale is made at a time when a voluntary winding-up and distribution of the shares is "proposed." In other words, the Court's view was that "if the company is proposed to be wound up and the transaction is a sale and distribution, then the statute provides that sale by conversion into money may be replaced by exchange for shares on the terms, but only on the terms, of complying with the provisions of sect. 161," now replaced by sect. 192 of the Act of 1908. The decision does not invalidate a sale under the power in the memorandum for cash, or a Form 114. sale for shares where it is proposed to keep the selling company going. This decision of the Court of Appeal therefore, if correct, qualifies and pro tanto modifies the law as previously laid down, but it is not generally considered by the profession to be good law: see further, infra, Chap. XXI.

Form 115. To advertise products of company. To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals, and by granting prizes, rewards, and donations.

Where, as in some cases, a business lives mainly by advertisement, it is expedient to insert special provision as above.

Form 116. To obtain Acts. To obtain any provisional order or Act of Parliament for enabling the company to carry any of its objects into effect, or for effecting any modification of the company's constitution, or for any other purpose which may seem expedient, and to oppose any proceedings or applications which may seem calculated, directly or indirectly, to prejudice the company's interests.

A company, like any other subject, has a locus standi, without special authority, to apply to Parliament for any purpose; but the funds of a company cannot be used for the purpose of obtaining a parliamentary modification of its constitution unless the memorandum gives the requisite authority. Ware v. Grand Junction Waterworks Co., 2 R. & M. 470; Gt. W. Rail. v. Rushout, 5 De G. & S. 290; Caledonian Co. v. Solway, 23 W. R. 100. Hence the importance of inserting a clause as above when an application is at all probable.

As to opposing a bill in Parliament, see Att.-Gen. v. Mayor of Brecon, 10 C. D. 204; approved and distinguished in Leith Council v. Leith Harbour Comrs., (1899) A. C. 508; Att.-Gen. v. Swansea Corp., (1898) 1 Ch. 602; also Brooks, Jenkins & Co. v. Mayor, &c. of Torquay, (1902) 1 K. B. 601.

Form 117. Foreign registration. To procure the company to be registered or recognized in any foreign country or place [or in — and elsewhere abroad].

Where a company intends to carry on business abroad, the above is sometimes inserted. See also Form 119, which is more commonly used; but if a company is expressly authorized to carry on business abroad, it has an implied power to do all things necessary for the purpose.

Form 118. To sell, &c. To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, mortgage, enfranchise, dispose of, turn to account, or otherwise deal with, all or any part of the property and rights of the company.

This is almost always inserted, and expressly invests the company with ample powers of dealing with its property. Even if the company is already invested by its constitution with a power of dealing with its property, the clause is useful as illustrating modes of doing so.

To do all or any of the above things [in any part of the world and] Form 119.
 as principals, agents, contractors, trees, or otherwise, and by or To act as through trees, agents, or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction trustees, &c.
 with others.

The above is frequently inserted with a view to providing for unforeseen contingencies.

To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the Form 120.
 attainment of the above objects. General words.

As to this, see supra, pp. 471 et seq.

And it is hereby declared that the word "coy" in this clause shall be Form 121.
 deemed to include any partnership or other body of persons, whether Interpreta-incorporated or not incorporated, and whether domiciled in the United tion clause.
 Kingdom or elsewhere, and the intention is that the objects specified in each paragraph [or, in each of the first — paragraphs] of this clause shall, except where otherwise expressed in such paragraph, be in no wise limited or restricted by reference to or inference from the terms of any other paragraph or the name of the coy.

The concluding portion of the above paragraph is inserted in order to exclude or control the application of the artificial novel rule of construction (referred to, supra, p. 470), where the stultifying, sterilising operation of that rule might paralyse the company.

In most cases it seems wiser to insert the bracketed words referring to certain specified paragraphs in lieu of the general reference to each paragraph, for at any rate one learned judge has found a difficulty in applying the general references, supra, p. 470; but where it is specially desirable to emphasize the independence of some of the objects, one of the other courses indicated above can, if preferred, be adopted.

ADDITIONAL OBJECT CLAUSES.

To lay out land for building purposes, and to build on, improve, let Form 122.
 on building leases, advance money to persons building on, and other- To build on wise develop the same, in such manner as may seem expedient to and improve advance the coy's interests. land.

To develop and turn to account any land acquired by the coy or in Form 123.
 which it is interested, and in particular by laying out and preparing Another.
 the same for building purposes, constructing, altering, pulling down, decorating, maintaining, fitting up, and improving buildings and conveniences, and by planting, paving, draining, farming, cultivat-

Form 123. ing, letting on building lease or building agreement, and by advancing money to and entering into contracts and arrangements of all kinds with builders, tenants, and others.

The above is not uncommonly inserted where a company is likely to have surplus land on its hands.

Form 124. To amalgamate with any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of this company.

Amalgamation.

"Amalgamation" is not uncommonly made one of the objects, but it is by no means clear what the extent of the operation of the clause is. "To amalgamate" probably authorizes a company to acquire the business and liabilities of another company. Pulbrook v. New Civil Service Co., 26 W. R. 11; Ero case, 1 D. G. J. & S. 29; South African Supply, &c. Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268; see Chap. XXII. Where it is desired to confer this power, it seems better to do so in express terms. See Form 93. To "amalgamate" also appears to authorize a sale of the company's business in consideration of shares in the purchasing company. Dougan's case, 8 Ch. 545; Pulbrook v. New Civil Service Co., ubi supra; Wynne's case, 8 Ch. 1007; Financial Corp., 28 W. R. 760; and Hall v. London and Northern Assets Corporation, (1898) 2 Ch. 469; Borax Co., Foster v. Borax Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326. But here again it is far better to give this power in express terms, as in Form 114.

Form 125. To distribute any of the property of the company in specie among the members.

To divide assets in specie.

This clause is not uncommonly inserted, and may be found convenient. In the absence of such a clause, either in the memorandum or articles, it is conceived that a majority has no power, as against a dissentient minority, to authorize a distribution of assets, e.g., shares in some other company, in specie, either under sect. 46 of the Companies Act, 1908 (Act of 1877, s. 3), or in a winding-up. However, the Court can, in a winding-up, sanction a distribution in specie, as also under sect. 120 whether in a winding-up or otherwise. English and Foreign Credit Co., 1 T. L. R. p. 1, Bacon, V.-C., 25 Oct. 1884. See also March v. Martin, which was, in effect, an action for winding-up an unregistered association called the Municipal Trusts: Malins, V.-C. (10th June, 1880), sanctioned a scheme for the division of the assets in specie. The assets consisted of municipal bonds and uncollected coupons. And see Tunis Rail. Co., 31 L. T. 264; 10 C. D. 270, n.

The Liquidation Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 68), only applied where winding-up proceedings were pending at the passing of the Act.

Where the above clause is inserted, the articles of association generally contain further provisions as to distribution. It would seem that a provision in the articles is sufficient.

Sometimes it is considered better to use the words "in kind," instead of "in specie." Both mean the same thing. But "in specie" are the words used by Lord Cairns in Houle v. G. W. Ry., 3 Ch. 271; and by the Legislature in the Act of 1868, above referred to; they are the words generally used, and seem to be sufficient. See South African Supply and Cold Storage Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268.

If thought fit to obtain any Act of Parliament dissolving the company and re-incorporating its members as a new company for any of the objects specified in this memorandum, or for effecting any other modification in the company's constitution. Form 126.

To obtain Act of incorporation.

It was by no means uncommon, where it was desired to procure the incorporation of a company by special Act, or to obtain a Provisional Order to be confirmed by Parliament, for the promoters, in the first instance, to form themselves into a company, under the Act of 1862, for the desired objects; and also for the express purpose of applying to Parliament for an Act dissolving the company so formed, and establishing in its place another company for the like objects, but regulated by the "Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845," and the Acts amending the same. And the same is done under the Act of 1908. The advantages of this mode of procedure by incorporation are considerable. If promoters are not incorporated, there is room for much dispute and possible litigation as to their rights and liabilities inter se, especially if the application to Parliament is abortive; but if they are incorporated, the articles of association, and, if necessary, specific agreements made with the preliminary company, preclude all controversy in such matters.

Again, a company incorporated by Act of Parliament is not bound by contracts made before its incorporation by its promoters, unless the Act confirms the agreements. But if the promoters have formed themselves into a preliminary company, such company can enter into all necessary contracts, e.g., to purchase land, to pay compensation, to engage officers, and so forth, and all these contracts will become binding on the Parliamentary company, because clauses are always inserted in an Act which dissolves one company and establishes another in its place, transferring the contracts and liabilities of the former to the latter.

The directors of the preliminary company should be given full powers to take all necessary proceedings, and the company can, of course, from time to time, alter, vary, and control such powers and proceedings.

This course is not uncommonly adopted when it is desired to vest the undertaking of an established company in a new company, and the transaction requires the authority of Parliament.

To purchase or otherwise acquire, on such terms and in such manner as the regulations of the company from time to time provide, any shares in the company's capital.] Form 127.

To acquire the company's own shares.

Such a clause is sometimes inserted; and from some of the earlier reported cases it would seem to have been considered that a company, if authorized by its memorandum, might purchase its own shares without the sanction of the Court.

But it is now clear beyond dispute that it is ultra vires for a company limited by shares to purchase its own shares. Such a purchase necessarily involves a reduction of capital, and no reduction of such a company's capital is permissible without the sanction of the Court. Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409; British, &c. Co. v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 399; Bellerby v. Rowland, &c. Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 14, 22. See further infra, Chap. VII.

In the case of an unlimited company such a power is valid (Borough Commercial, &c. Soc., (1893) 2 Ch. 243), as also in the case of a company limited by guarantee, and in these cases it may be expedient to insert such a clause when the power is desired; for otherwise it may be said that the application of the company's funds to the acquisition of its own shares would be ultra vires.

Form 127.

It should be borne in mind that where a company seeks a quotation for its shares on the London Stock Exchange, its articles must prohibit the purchase of its own shares. See infra, p. 646.

Directors who expend the funds of their company in an ultra vires purchase of its shares are liable to make good the amount. [See Chap. XX., infra.]

Interest out of capital.

Formerly it was not uncommon to find in a memorandum a clause empowering the company "During a period not exceeding — years to apply a competent part of the capital in paying interest on the paid-up capital for the time being at a rate not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum."

But it seems clear that, in the case of a company limited by shares (except under sect. 91 of the Act of 1908), such a power is practically inoperative for here again the exercise of the power would involve a reduction of capital, and such a reduction can only be effected with the sanction of the Court. Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409. Accordingly, the insertion of the clause does not dispense with the necessity of obtaining the sanction of the Court; and it is therefore misleading and objectionable. Some of the Indian railways, with the approval of the Secretary of State, paid interest during construction, under a power in their memorandum of association; but this having been found to be illegal, an Act was obtained (The Indian Railways Act, 1894 (57 Vict. c. 12)), authorizing sub modo payment in the future and sanctioning past payments.

The same concession has now been made by the Legislature in favour of companies under the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 91 replacing sect. 9 of the Companies Act, 1907); but the power, as will be seen by reference to the section, is carefully hedged round with conditions designed to prevent any abuse. The opening words of sect. 91 are: "Where any shares of a company are issued for the purpose of raising money to defray the expenses of the construction of any works or buildings or the provision of any plant which cannot be made profitable for a lengthened period, the company may pay interest on so much of that share capital as is for the time being paid up for the period, and subject to the conditions and restrictions in this section mentioned, and may charge the same to capital."

Form 128.Labour difficulties.

To promote freedom of contract, and to resist, insure against, counteract, and discourage interference therewith, and to subscribe to any action or fund for any such purposes.

There is nothing illegal in subscribing to a trade union if the company is empowered as above. See supra, p. 113.

Form 129.Special for guarantee companies.

(a) To accumulate funds, and to admit any person or persons to participate in the profits or assets of the coy.

(b) To distribute any of the assets for the time being of the coy among the members in kind, and to stipulate for and obtain for the members, or any of them, any ppty, rights, privileges, or options.

(c) To acquire by surrender or otherwise, the whole or any pt of the interest of any member of the coy therein

(d) To assign to any member or class of members any preferential, special or qualified rights or privileges over or as compared with any other members as regards participation in profits or assets, and as regards voting, and as regards winding-up or otherwise howsoever. Form 129.

The above clauses are usually inserted in the memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee when the members are to be interested in varying proportions.

OBJECTS FOR SPECIFIC COMPANIES.

LIST.

Names.	No. of form.	Names.	No. of Form.
Accidents Insurance	131a	Common Rights Protection	207
Aerial Conveyance	157a	Concessions	178
African Concessions	178	Contractors (Public Works)	142
American Railroad	194	Co-operative Store	169
Art Exhibitions	155a	Cotton Spinners	151
Assets Conversion	137	Cricket Club	158
Assurance (Fire)	133	Cycle Manufacturers	157
Assurance (Life and Accident) ..	130	Dairy	147b
Assurance (Marine and Transit) ..	131	Diamond Mining	148a
Assurance (Mutual Ship)	132	Dock	149
Assurance (Workmen's Compensation)	135	Drapers, Warehousemen, &c. ...	153
Bank	136	Electric	147, 147a
Brewery	150	Employers' Liability (Workmen's Compensation) Assurance	135
Brickmakers	162	Engineers (Mechanical), &c. ...	154
Builders' Institute	204	Exchange	197
Building	174	Exploration and Financial ...	139, 140
Carriers	185	Federation	204a
Cattle Importers	186	Financial	138, 141
Chamber of Commerce	203	Fire Insurance	133
Chemists	189	Flat Proprietors	133a
Cinematograph	164a	Gas Works	196
City Buildings	176	Gold Mining	180
Clothiers	153	Goldsmiths	147c
Club	173, 198, 200	Guarantee and Indemnity	134
Club House	199	Hotel Company	170
Coal, Iron and Steel	181	Indemnity and Guarantee	134
Coffee Taverns	165	Infant and Invalid Food	191a
College or School	172	Investment Trust	144, 145
Colonial Importers	187	Iron, Steel and Coal	181
Colonial Loan Agency and Investment	143	Ironmongery	153
Colonization and Land	177	Land and Buildings	175
Colour Process Printers	186a	Laundry	159
Commerce (Chamber of)	203	Law Society	201

Names.	No. of Form.	Names.	No. of Form.
Library	171	Railway	194
Life and Accident Assurance	130	Refreshment Rooms	166
Loan Club	173	Rubber	192a
Magazines, &c.	164	Saw Mills	193
Marine and Transit Insurance ...	131	School or College	172
Meat and Cattle Importers	186	Shipowners	182, 184
Mechanical Engineers, &c.	154	Shoemakers	186b
Medicines (Patent)	191	Single Steamship	183
Memorial to Poet	209	Soap Manufacturers	205
Mining	179	Special Patents	186
Moneylending	138	Stationers, &c.	161
Motor Omnibuses	190a	Steamship Lines	184a
Musical Society	208	Steel, Iron and Coal	181
Mutual Ship Insurance	132	Stores	153, 169
Newspaper Proprietors	163	Surgical Instrument Makers ...	188
Omnibus, &c. Proprietors	190	Tea Planters	192
Patent Medicines	191	Tea Shops	161b
Patents (Special)	156	Telephone	152
Petroleum	179a	Theatre	116
Planters	192	Tobacco	160
Poet (Memorial to)	209	Tourist Agents	160a
Political Club	200	Trade Protection	202
Printers, &c.	164, 186a	Tramways	195
Protection of Common Rights ...	207	Universal Provider	153
Providers (Universal)	153	Wagon Company	158
Public Hall	167	Warehousemen, &c.	153
Public House Trust	206	Waterworks	148
Public Work Contractors	142	Workmen's Compensation (Mu
Quarry	178a	tual Assurance)	155
Race Course	168	Workmen's Homes	160a

Form 130.

Life and accident
insurance.

(1) To carry on the business of life assurance in all its branches, and in particular to grant or effect assurances of all kinds for payment of money by way of a single payment, or by several payments, or by way of immediate or deferred annuities or otherwise, upon the happening of all or any of the following events, namely, the death, or marriage, or birth or survivorship, or failure of issue of or the attainment of a given age by any person or persons, or the expiration of any fixed or ascertainable period, or the occurrence of any contingency or event which would or might be taken to affect the interest, whether in possession, vested, contingent, expectant, prospective, or otherwise, of any person or persons in any ppty. or the loss or recovery of contractual or testamentary capacity in any person or persons, and also (in connection with assurances on the life or lives of the same person or persons, but not otherwise) to grant assurances payable upon or after the happening of personal injuries caused by accident of any description, or upon the happening of sickness or bodily or mental incapacity.

Form 130.

(2) To grant annuities of all kinds, whether dependent on human life or otherwise, and whether perpetual or terminable, and whether immediate or deferred, and whether contingent or otherwise.

(3) To contract with leaseholders, borrowers, lenders, annuitants, and others for the establishment, accumulation, provision, and payment of sinking funds, redemption funds, depreciation funds, renewal funds, endowment funds, and any other special funds, and that either in consideration of a lump sum, or of an annual premium, or otherwise, and generally on such terms and conditions as may be arranged.

(4) To purchase and deal in and lend on life, reversionary, and other interests in property of all kinds, whether absolute or contingent, or expectant, and whether determinable or not; and to acquire, lend money on, redeem, cancel, or extinguish by purchase, surrender, or otherwise, any policy, security, grant, or contract issued, made, or taken over or entered into by the company.

(5) To re-assure or counter-assure all or any risks, and to undertake all kinds of re-assurance and counter-assurance connected with any of the business aforesaid.

(6) To give to any class or section of those who assure, or have other dealings with the company, any rights over or in relation to any fund or funds, or a right to participate in the profits of the company, or in the profits of any particular branch or part of its business, or any other special privileges, advantages or benefits.

Add selection of common forms, supra, Forms 97 to 120.

THE ASSURANCE COMPANIES ACT, 1909 (9 EDW. VII. c. 49).

This Act applies (sect. 1) to all persons or bodies of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate, not being registered under the Acts relating to Friendly Societies or to Trades Unions (hereinafter referred to as Assurance Companies), whether established before or after the commencement of this Act, and whether established within or without the United Kingdom, to carry on within the United Kingdom assurance business of all or any of the following classes, namely, life assurance business or the granting of annuities upon human life, fire insurance business, accident insurance business, employers' liability insurance business, bond investment business, subject as respects any class of assurance business to the special provisions of the Act relating to the business of that class. The Act (sect. 2) requires every assurance company to deposit and keep deposited with the Paymaster General for and on behalf of the Supreme Court the sum of 20,000*l.* and provides that the deposit may be made by the subscribers, and upon the incorporation of the company is to be deemed to have been made by and to be part of the assets of the company, and the Registrar shall not issue a certificate of incorporation of the company until the deposit has been made. The Act also provides that where a company carries on or intends to carry on assurance business of more than one class, a separate sum of 20,000*l.* shall be deposited and kept deposited under this section as respects each class of business, but this requirement is qualified later on. And by sect. 3: "The fund in each case deposited is to be regarded as a separate fund." The Act also provides for annual statements and audit, and divers other provisions corresponding with those in the Life Assurance Companies Acts, 1870 and 1872. The Act will be found discussed in Chap. XVII. Where the requisite 20,000*l.* cannot be Form 130. found before the formation of the company the prospectus can be advertised as of an intended company, and it can state that the amount will be deposited in due course. As to the right to deposit on amalgamation, see Scottish, &c. Economic Society, 45 C. D. 220.

As to tea merchants granting annuities, see Nelson v. The Board of Trade, 84 L. T. 505; 49 W. R. 500; and see Nelson & Co., 22 T. L. R. 406.

As to payment out of the deposit, see Life and Health Assur. Assoc., (1910. 1 Ch. 468.

Form 131.

Marine and transit insurance.

(1) To carry on the business of marine insurance in all its branches, and in particular, without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing words, to make or effect insurances on ships, vessels, boats, and craft of all kinds, and on goods, merchandise, live or dead stock, luggage, effects, specie, bullion, or other ppty, respondentia and bottomry interests, commissions, profits and freights.

(2) To carry on all kinds of transit insurance business, and generally every kind of insurance and re-insurance business, except the issuing of policies of assurance upon human life.

Add (e) and (f) of Form 130, and selection of General Forms. 97 et seq.

Form 131a.

(1) To carry on the business of accident insurance in all its branches, &c.

Form 132.

Insurance of all kinds.

(1) To carry on all kinds of insurance business, and all kinds of guarantee and indemnity business, and in particular, without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing words, to carry on life, fire, marine, accident, employers' liability, workmen's compensation, disease, sickness, survivorship, failure of issue, burglary and robbery, theft, fidelity and transit insurance.

(2) To grant annuities of all kinds, whether dependent on human life or otherwise, and whether perpetual or terminable, immediate or deferred, absolute, contingent, or otherwise.

(3) To contract with leaseholders, borrowers, lenders, &c.

(4) To purchase, &c. reversionary interests, &c.

(5) To act as agents for the issue of any bills, bonds, debenture stock, whether or not offered to the public for subscription, and to guarantee the subscription of any such securities or shares, and to act as trustee, executor, or administrator with or without remuneration, and to undertake trusts of all kinds and the conduct of any business connected with trusts of any description or the estates of deceased persons, and to receive for safe custody.

(6) To lend and advance money upon or without security, including the lending of money upon policies issued by the company or in respect of which it is liable, and to apply any of the funds of the company in buying up, cancelling, extinguishing, or obtaining a release from any policy, contract, or liability.

(7) To pay, satisfy, or compromise, &c.

Form 132.

(8) To borrow, &c.

Add selection of common forms from Form 97 et seq.]

(1) To insure upon the mutual principle against every description of marine risk which may be lawfully undertaken, ships, vessels, and craft of all kinds, in which the members of the coy are interested as owners, managing owners, mortgagees, agents, or otherwise. Form 133.

Mutual ship insurance company.

(2) To establish different classes or clubs of insuring members upon the footing that the members of each class or club shall insure one another on the mutual principle, and to manage and regulate such classes or clubs.

(3) To purchase, take on lease, hire, or otherwise acquire, any real or personal ppty necessary or convenient for the purposes of the coy.

Add selection of common forms, supra, Forms 97 et seq.]

It was formerly thought that mutual insurance societies were not to be considered as formed with a view to gain, so as to require, if consisting of more than twenty members, to be registered under the Act of 1862. See sect. 4 of the Act. Arnould on Marine Insurance, 5th ed., vol. i., p. 152. But in Ex parte Hargrove & Co., 10 Ch. 542, n., Jessel, M. R., decided that a mutual insurance society was within sect. 4 of the Act, and not having been registered, was an illegal association. Since this decision, several hundred mutual insurance societies have been registered. Their objects, for the most part, are the insurance of vessels or freight. In most cases only a particular class of vessels is insured, e.g., iron steamships, or vessels of not less than 1,000 tons burden, or vessels engaged in a particular trade, e.g., coal trade.

In most cases these companies are limited by guarantee, but a considerable number are registered as unlimited companies. The articles require very careful treatment, as many of the forms in common use are full of ambiguity, and frequently lead to dispute. See Marine Mutual v. Young, 43 L. T. 841, as to the contract between the parties, and Baird's case, (1899) 2 Ch. 303, as to amount of contribution on winding up.

(1) If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 133a.

(2) To carry on the business of fire insurance in all its branches, and to grant insurances against injury or damage to or loss of ppty directly or indirectly caused by or resulting from fire, lightning, or explosions.

Fire

Add selection of common forms, supra, Forms 97 et seq.]

To carry on business as proprietors of flats and to let on lease or otherwise apartments therein, and to provide for the tenants and occupiers thereof all or any of the conveniences commonly provided in hotels or clubs. Form 133b.

Flat proprietors

Add selection of common forms, supra, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To guarantee the fidelity of persons filling or about to fill situations of trust or confidence, and the due performance and discharge by such persons of all or any of the duties and obligations imposed on them by contract or otherwise. Form 134.

Guarantee and indemnity

Form 194.

(2) To guarantee the due performance and discharge by receivers, official and other hqrs, committees, guardians, executors, administrators, trustees, attorneys, brokers, and agents of their respective duties and obligations.

(3) To guarantee the payment of money secured by or payable under or in respect of debenture bonds, debenture stock, contracts, mortgages, charges, obligations, and securities of any coy or of any authority, supreme, municipal, local, or otherwise, or of any persons whomsoever, whether corporate or unincorporate.

(4) To guarantee persons filling or about to fill situations of trust or confidence against liabilities in connection therewith, and in particular against liabilities resulting from the misconduct of any co-trustee, co-agent, sub-agent, or other person, or from the insufficiency, imperfection, or deficiency of title to ppty, or from any insufficiency, imperfection or deficiency in any security, or from any bankruptcy, insolvency, fraud, or tortious act on the part of any such persons, or from any error of judgment or misfortune.

(5) To guarantee the title to or quiet enjoyment of ppty owner absolutely or subject to any qualifications or conditions, and to guarantee persons interested about to become interested in any ppty against any loss, actions, proceedings, claims, or demands in respect of any insufficiency or imperfection or deficiency of title in respect of any incumbrances, burdens, or outstanding rights.

(6) Generally, except as below mentioned, to carry on and transact every kind of guarantee business, and every kind of indemnity business, and every kind of counter guarantee and counter indemnity business, and generally every kind of insurance and reinsurance business, whether of the like or of a different kind, and whether now known or hereafter devised, except fire insurance business, marine insurance business, accident insurance business, employers' liability insurance business, and bond investment business.

(7) To contract with leaseholders, borrowers, lenders, annuitants, and others for the establishment, accumulation, provision, and payment of sinking funds, redemption funds, depreciation funds, renewal funds, endowment funds, and any other special funds, and that either in conson of a lump sum or of an annual premium or otherwise, and generally on such terms and conditions as may be arranged.

(8) To undertake the office of trustee, receiver, and hqrs, whether official or otherwise, executor, administrator, committee, manager, attorney, delegate, substitute, treasurer, and any other offices or situations of trust or confidence, and to perform and discharge the duties and functions incident thereto, and generally to transact all kinds of trust and agency business, either gratuitously or otherwise.

(9) To furnish and provide deposits and guarantee funds required in relation to any tender or application for any contract, concession, decree, enactment, ppty, or privilege, or in relation to the carrying out of any contract, concession, decree, or enactment.

(10) To receive money, securities, and valuables of all kinds on deposit at interest or for custody, and generally to carry on the business of a safe deposit coy Form 134

(11) To lend, deposit, or advance money, securities, and ppty to or with such persons and on such terms as may seem expedient.

* * * * *

(16) Generally to purchase, &c.

(17) To pay, satisfy, or compromise any claims made against the coy which it may seem expedient to pay, satisfy or compromise, notwithstanding that the same may not be valid in law. To re-insure and effect counter-guarantees.

Add selection of common forms, supra. 97 et seq.

1. To indemnify the members of the coy against proceedings, costs, damages, claims and demands in respect of any accident, alleged accident, resulting, or alleged to have resulted, in injury, death or otherwise, to any workman or other person employed or in connection with any mines in which any member of the coy is interested, and to which the Coal Mines Regulation Act, 1887, Metalliferous Mines Regulation Act, 1872, apply. Form 135.

Employers'
Mutual Association.

To contract for and grant any such indemnity on such terms, and to such qualifications and conditions, as may seem expedient, to take all such steps, and do all such things, as may seem to the coy expedient, with a view to investigating the circumstances of any accident, or alleged accident, and all other material facts, and to obtaining any information or evidence which may seem to have any bearing upon any claims or demands made, or to be made, in respect of such accident, or alleged accident, and to oppose, resist, compromise, or satisfy, wholly or in part, any such claims and demands.

2. To promote and encourage the adoption of precautionary measures of all kinds, which may seem to the coy calculated to prevent accidents, and to minimise the danger and mitigate the consequences thereof.

3. To inspect and supervise any such mines, and the operations carried on therein.

4. To effect and obtain all such re-insurances, counter-insurances and counter-guarantees, and adopt all such measures for mitigating the risks of the coy as may seem expedient to the coy.

5. To protect and indemnify the members of the coy from and against fraudulent or unfounded claims, and to take steps to expose and detect such claims, and to punish those who are concerned in making, or supporting them.

6. To consider, originate and support improvements in the law which may seem directly or indirectly conducive to any of the coy's objects, and to resist and oppose alterations therein which may seem to the coy directly or indirectly adverse to the interests of the coy or its members, or any section thereof.

Add selection of common forms supra. 97 et seq.

Form 135. Policies issued prior to the passing of the Finance Act, 1899 (June 20, 1899), to employers of labour, by which insurance companies agreed to pay, for and on behalf of the employers, such sums as they should become liable to pay under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897, or by the common law, in respect of personal injury to any workmen in their employ, were held not to be policies "of insurance against accident" within the meaning of sect. 98 and Schedule 1. of the Stamp Act, 1891, which imposed a duty of 1*d.* only, but to be liable to a duty of 10*s.* if under seal, or 6*d.* if in writing only. Lancashire Insurance Co. v. Inland Revenue; Vulcan Boiler Co. v. Same, (1899) 1 Q. B. 353. But by the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 11, the provisions of sect. 98 of the Act of 1891 as to policies of insurance against accident, are to "extend to and include policies of insurance or indemnity against liability incurred by employers in consequence of claims made upon them by workmen who have sustained personal injury when the annual premium on such policies does not exceed one pound."

Such companies now come within the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, as to which see note after Form 663b, infra.

Form 136

Bank.

[1. To establish and carry on the business of a bank, whereof the head office or place of business shall be in London, with such branches or agencies as may from time to time be determined.]

2 To carry on the business of banking in all its branches and departments, including the borrowing, raising or taking up money; the lending or advancing money, securities and property; the discounting, buying, selling and dealing in bills of exchange, promissory notes, coupons, drafts, bills of lading, warrants, debentures, certificates, scrip and other instruments and securities, whether transferable or negotiable, or not; the granting and issuing letters of credit and circular notes; the buying, selling and dealing in bullion and specie; the acquiring, holding, issuing on commission, underwriting and dealing with stocks, funds, shares, debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, securities and investments of all kinds; the negotiating of loans and advances; the receiving money and valuables on deposit, or for safe custody, or otherwise; the collecting and transmitting money and securities; the managing ppty, and transacting all kinds of agency business commonly transacted by bankers

3 [Form 98 confined to banking and discount business.]

4 [Clause 16 of Form 134 down to "liability."]

5, 6, 7. [Forms 100, 101, 113, modified.]

8 To undertake and execute any trusts the undertaking whereof may seem desirable, and also to undertake the office of executor, administrator, receiver, treasurer, registrar or auditor, and to keep for any coy, government authority, or body, any register relating to any stocks, funds, shares or securities, or to undertake any duties in relation to the registration of transfers, the issue of certificates, or otherwise

9. To take or concur in taking all such steps and proceedings as may seem best calculated to uphold and support the credit of the coy, and to obtain and justify public confidence, and to avert or minimise financial disturbances which might affect the company. Form 136.

10 13. [Forms 103, 114, 118 to 120.]

Passed by the Court in several cases under the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890.

Underwriting sanctioned by Farwell, J., in Halifax Commercial Banking Co. (1900), H. 9116, April 3, 1901.

(1) To purchase or otherwise acquire and deal in real and personal ppty of all kinds, and in particular lands, buildings, hereditaments, business concerns and undertakings, mortgages, charges, annuities, patents, licences, shares, stocks, debentures, securities, policies, book debts, claims, and any interest in real or personal ppty, and any claims against such ppty or against any persons or coy, and to carry on any business concern or undertaking so acquired, and to establish and carry on any business (except as to the issuing of policies of assurance on human life), which may seem calculated to enhance the value of any of the ppty or rights of the coy, or to facilitate the disposition thof. Form 137.

Assets
conversion

Add selection of common forms, Forms 57 et seq

(1) To lend money and negotiate loans. (2) To draw, accept, indorse, discount, buy, sell, and deal in bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, debentures, coupons, and other negotiable instruments and securities. (3) To issue on commission, subscribe for, take, acquire, and hold, sell, exchange, and deal in shares, stocks, bonds, obligations, or securities of any government authority or coy. (4) To form, promote, subsidise, and assist cos, syndicates, and partnerships of all kinds. (5) To give any guarantee for the payment of money or the performance of any obligation or undertaking. (6) To undertake and execute any trusts. (7) To acquire, improve, manage, work, develop, exercise all rights in respect of, lease, mortgage, sell, dispose of, turn to account, and otherwise deal with, ppty of all kinds, and in particular land, buildings, concessions, patents, business concerns and undertakings. (8) To enter into any arrangements with any authorities supra, Form 102. (9) Generally to carry on and undertake any business, undertaking, transaction, or operation commonly carried on or undertaken by bankers, capitalists, promoters, financiers, concessionaires, contractors for public works other than any insurance business within 9 Edward 7, c. 49. Form 138.

Financial.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 37 et seq.]

Within the last few years a great many private companies have been formed for financial objects. In many cases these companies are formed by persons who desire to promote public companies, or perhaps a single public company. Such companies or incorporated syndicates are taking the place of unincorporated

Form 138. syndicates, and can promote much more efficiently and advantageously. For the company being distinct from the members which compose it, the members of the promoting company do not become promoters of the promoted company; disclosure is facilitated; dangers are avoided; the interests of the respective members of the company are more easily adjusted, and other benefits accrue from the adoption of this course.

But a promoter company must, of course, act fairly and honestly, otherwise it will be liable just as an individual promoter who is guilty of fraud; thus, if profits are fraudulently made by a promoter company, and divided among its members with knowledge of the fraud, they will be liable to repay. Moreover, if the company, by its directors or other agents, acts fraudulently, such agents will be liable, as well as the company, for "all persons concerned in the commission of a fraud are to be treated as principals; no party can be permitted to excuse himself on the ground that he acted as agent or servant of another." Per Lord Westbury, Cullen v. Thompson's Trustees, 4 Macq. 424; Wells v. Bell, 3 Ex. Div. 248. Pollock, Torts, 7th ed., 190.

Seet. 6 of the Money Lenders Act, 1900, provides that "the expression 'money-lender' in this Act shall include every 'person' whose business is that of money-lending or who advertises or announces himself or holds himself out in any way as carrying on that business, but shall not include" certain societies mentioned below.

"Person" here clearly includes a company, for under sect. 4 certain offences are made misdemeanours if perpetrated by "any person being a director, manager, or other officer of any corporation carrying on the business of money-lender"; and sect. 3 enables regulations to be made as to the registration of money-lenders, whether individuals, firms, societies, or companies.

To proceed with sect. 6, that enactment says that "money-lender" shall include

(a) Pawnbrokers (in respect of pawnbroking business);

A pawnbroker is not a "money-lender," because on an isolated occasion he lends money on a bill of sale. Newman v. Doughton, (1911) 1 K. R. 792.

(b) Friendly societies, societies under the Loan Societies Act, 1840, or building societies;

Any body corporate, incorporated or empowered by a special Act of Parliament to lend money in accordance with such special Act; or

(c) "Any person" which includes "company" "bona fide carrying on the business of banking or insurance or bona fide carrying on any business not having for its primary object the lending of money, in the course of which and for the purposes whereof he lends money; or" any body corporate for the time being exempted from registration under this Act by the Order of the Board of Trade made and published pursuant to regulations of the Board of Trade."

Therefore, companies not within (a) to (c) that is to say, those whose primary object is the lending of money, must

1. Register under the Act; or
2. Obtain the Board of Trade's exemption.

The fee on registration is only 12s.

(2) Exemption

By an Order of the Board of Trade, S. O. No. 25, 1900, " (1) The application for exemption under the above section, 6 shall be made on foolscap paper in the Form A. hereto annexed, and shall be signed by some responsible officer by and on behalf of the body corporate seeking for such exemption." Form 138.

FORMS.

327

The application is as follows:—

A.

THE MONEY LENDERS ACT, 1900.

Application for the Exemption of a Body Corporate from Registration under the above-mentioned Act.

I, [Here insert name and address and official designation of applicant] in the county of —, being duly authorized in that behalf by the Company, Limited, the registered office of which is at No. — Street, in the City of London, hereby make application to the Board of Trade on behalf of the said — Company, Limited, being a body corporate, incorporated by [Here state whether incorporated by charter, deed of settlement, or other document of incorporation, or under the Companies Acts], for an order exempting the said body corporate from registration as a money-lender, under the provisions of the above-mentioned Act, upon the following grounds: [Here state grounds for exemption].

Dated this — day of —, 19 —.

(Signed) A. B.

(Here add official designation.)

To the Secretary,

Board of Trade,

7, Whitehall Gardens,

London, S.W.

Form No. 3.

FORM FOR USE OF INCORPORATED COMPANY OR SOCIETY, RETURNED PURSUANT TO THE MONEY LENDERS ACT, 1900.

Name in which the Incorporated Company or Society carrying on the business of money-lending is to be registered. [£1 stamp to be impressed in this space.]

Name of Places where the business is carried on.

2. Such application shall be accompanied by—

- a. In the case of a body corporate registered under the Companies Acts, a copy of the memorandum and articles of association . . . such copies being certified by some responsible officer of the body corporate as true copies.
- b. A statutory declaration by a responsible officer of the body corporate setting out the nature of the business carried on by the body corporate.
- (c) A copy of the last balance sheet.

Form 135.

3. The Board of Trade may require, and the body corporate (if so required) shall supply such further information by statutory declarations, production of documents, or otherwise, as the Board of Trade may think proper, concerning the constitution, objects, and financial position of the body corporate, and also concerning the manner in which the said body corporate has carried on the business.

4. The Board of Trade may, if they think fit, require notice of the application to be advertised in such papers as they may prescribe.

5. If, in the opinion of the Board of Trade, the body corporate is a proper one for exemption under the Act, the Board will make an order exempting such body corporate from registration under the Act upon such conditions and for such period as the Board may think fit. Such order shall be in the annexed Form B., or in such other form as the Board shall from time to time direct.

B.

THE MONEY LENDERS ACT, 1900.

Order of Exemption.

In pursuance of the powers conferred upon the Board of Trade by sect. 6 (c) of the Money Lenders Act, 1900, the Board of Trade do hereby order that the [Here insert full name and address of body corporate] be exempted from registration as a money lender under the provisions of the above-mentioned Act for a period of three years from the date of the publication of this Order in the Gazette, or until earlier revocation of this Order by the Board of Trade.

Dated this — day of —, 19 —.

Signed on behalf of the Board of Trade.

By sect. 3 (2) of the Act: "The registration shall cease to have effect at the expiration of three years from the date of the registration, but may be renewed from time to time, and if renewed shall have effect for three years from the date of the renewal."

The Board of Trade has power to revoke the registration.

Form 139.

Exploration and financial.

(1) If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.

(2) To seek for and secure openings for the employment of capital in Australia and elsewhere, and with a view thereto to prospect, inquire, examine, explore, and test, and to despatch and employ expeditions, commissioners, experts, and other agents.

(3) To acquire from any sovereign state or authority, supreme, local, or otherwise, any concessions, grants, decrees, rights, or privileges whatsoever, which may seem to the coo capable of being turned to account, and to work, develop, carry out, exercise, and turn to account the same.

(4) To purchase or otherwise acquire, sell, exchange, deal in and turn to account ppty and rights of all kinds, and in particular lands, buildings, mines, mining rights, concessions, patents, licences, mono-pohes, stations, farms, public works, tolls, and business concerns and undertakings. Form 139

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq

(1) If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

2) To carry on all kinds of exploration business, and in particular to search for, prospect, examine, and explore mines and ground supposed to contain minerals or precious stones, and to search for and obtain information in regard to mines, mining claims, mining districts and localities.

(3) To purchase or otherwise acquire, and to sell, dispose of, and deal with mines and mining rights, and ppty supposed to contain minerals or precious stones of all kinds, and undertakings connected therewith, and to work, exercise, develop, and turn to account mines and mining rights, and any undertakings connected therewith, and to buy, sell, refine, manipulate, and deal in minerals of all kinds.

(4) To carry on all kinds of promotion business, and in particular to form, constitute, float, lend money to, assist, and control any corporations, or undertakings whatsoever.

(5) To purchase or otherwise acquire, sell, dispose of, and deal in real and personal ppty of all kinds, and in particular lands, buildings, hereditaments, business concerns and undertakings, mortgages, charges, annuities, patents, licences, shares, stocks, debentures, debenture stock, securities, concessions, options, produce, policies, book debts and claims, and any interest in real or personal ppty, and any claims against such ppty, or against any persons or coy, and to carry on any business, concern, or undertaking so acquired.

(6) To transact and carry on all kinds of agency business, and in particular to collect rents and debts, and to negotiate loans, to find investments, and to issue and place shares, stocks, debentures, debenture stock, or securities.

7. To subscribe for, purchase, or otherwise acquire and hold, sell, dispose of, and deal in shares, stocks, debentures, debenture stock, or securities of any authority, supreme, municipal, local or otherwise.

8) To guarantee the payment of money secured by or payable under or in respect of bonds, debentures, debenture stock, contracts, mortgages, charges, obligations, and securities of any coy or of any authority, supreme, municipal, local, or otherwise, or of any persons whatsoever, whether incorporated or not incorporated.

(9) To guarantee the title to, or quiet enjoyment of, ppty, either absolutely or subject to any qualifications or conditions, and to guarantee persons interested or about to become interested in any ppty against any loss, actions, proceedings, claims, or demands in respect of any insufficiency or imperfection or deficiency of title, or in respect of any incumbrances, burdens, or outstanding rights.

(10) Generally to carry on and transact every kind of guarantee

Form 140.

Another

Form 140. and indemnity business (except employers' liability insurance business), and to undertake obligations of every kind and description, and also to undertake and execute trusts of all kinds.

(11) To furnish and provide deposits and guarantee funds required in relation to any tender or application for any contract, concession, decree, enactment, ppty, or privilege, or in relation to the carrying out of any contract, concession, decree, or enactment.

(12) To lend or advance money on such terms as may seem expedient.

(13) To receive moneys, securities, and valuables of all kinds on deposit or safe custody, and generally to carry on the business of a safe deposit coy.

(14) To carry on and undertake any business transaction or operation commonly carried on or undertaken by promoters of cos, financiers, concessionaires, contractors for public and other works, capitalists, merchants, or traders, and to carry on any other business which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with the above objects, or calculated, directly or indirectly, to enhance the value of, or render profitable, any of the coy's ppty or rights (except insurance business within 9 Edw. 7, c. 49).

(15) To make donations to such persons and in such cases, and either of cash or other assets, as the coy may think directly or indirectly conducive to any of its other objects or otherwise expedient.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 141.

Financial and
general.

1. [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

2. To carry on business as bankers, capitalists, financiers, concessionaires, and merchants, and to undertake, and carry on, and execute all kinds of financial, commercial trading, and other operations, and to carry on any other business (except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life) which may seem to be capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of these objects, or calculated, directly or indirectly, to enhance the value of, or facilitate the realisation of, or render profitable, any of the coy's ppty or rights.

3. To advance, deposit, or lend money, securities, and ppty, to or with such persons and on such terms as may seem expedient, to discount, buy, sell, and deal in bills, notes, warrants, coupons, and other negotiable or transferable securities or documents.

4. To guarantee or become liable for the payment of money or for the performance of any obligations, and generally to transact all kinds of guarantee business; also to transact all kinds of trust and agency business.

5. To purchase or otherwise acquire, and to sell, exchange, surrender, lease, mortgage, charge, convert, turn to account, dispose of, and deal with ppty and rights of all kinds, and in particular, mortgages, debentures, produce, concessions, options, contracts, patents, annuities, licences, stocks, shares, bonds, policies, book debts, business concerns, and undertakings and claims, privileges, and choses in action of all kinds. Form 141.

6. To subscribe for, conditionally or unconditionally, to underwrite, issue on commission or otherwise, take, hold, deal in, and convert stocks, shares, and securities of all kinds, and to enter into partnership, or into any arrangement for sharing profits, union of interest, reciprocal concession or co-operation with any person, partnership, or coo, and to promote, and aid in promoting, constitute, form, or organize coos, syndicates, or partnerships of all kinds, for the purpose of acquiring and undertaking any ppty and liabilities of this coo, or of advancing, directly or indirectly, the objects thof. or for any other purpose which this coo may think expedient.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 94 et seq.]

See the observations on the Money Lenders Act, 1900, supra, p. 527.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 142.

(2) To construct, execute, carry out, equip, improve, work, develop, administer, manage, or control, in [the colony of — — and elsewhere], public works and conveniences of all kinds, which expression, in this memdum, includes railways, tramways, docks, harbours, piers, wharves, canals, reservoirs, embankments, irrigations, reclamation, improvement, sewage, drainage, sanitary, water, gas, electric light, telephonic, telegraphic, and power supply works, and hotels, warehouses, markets and public buildings, and all other works or conveniences of public utility (3) To apply for, purchase, or otherwise acquire, any contracts, decrees, and concessions, for or in relation to the construction, execution, carrying out, equipment, improvement, management, administration, or control of public works and conveniences, and to undertake, execute, carry out, dispose of, or otherwise turn to account the same. (4) To carry on the business of miners, metallurgists, builders and contractors, engineers, farmers, graziers, ship-owners, ship-builders, merchants, importers and exporters, and to buy, sell, and deal in ppty of all kinds. (5) To purchase or otherwise acquire, issue, re-issue, sell, place, and deal in shares, stock, bonds, debentures and securities of all kinds, and to give any guaranty or security for the payment of dividends or interest thof, or otherwise in relation thereto. (6) To negotiate loans, to lend money, securities, and other ppty, to discount bills and securities, to become sureties and guarantors for any purposes, and generally to carry on business as capitalists, financiers, bankers, and merchants, and any other businesses, &c.

Public work contractors.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 143.

Colonial loan agent and investment
company.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To invest money at interest on the security of freehold and leasehold land, stock, stations, wool, cattle, shares, securities, merchandise, and other ppty in the colony of — or elsewhere, and generally to lend and advance money to such persons and upon such terms and subject to such conditions as may seem expedient. (3) To buy, sell, improve, manage, lease, turn to account, dispose of, and deal in land, stock, stations, wool, cattle, shares, securities, merchandise, and other ppty in the sd colony and elsewhere [on the security of which any advances shall have been made by the coy]; and, as regards land, to develop the resources thof by clearing, draining, road-making, farming, grazing, planting, building, or improving, mining, settling, and constructing public works and conveniences. (4) To construct, execute, carry out, equip, improve, work, administer, manage, or control railways, tramways [etc., as in Form 142], markets, parks, churches, chapels, libraries, hospitals, baths, shops, stores, and public and private works of all kinds, in the sd colony and elsewhere, which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of any ppty in which the coy is interested, and generally to carry on any businesses, manufacturing or otherwise, which can be conveniently carried on in connection with any of the coy's objects. (5) To establish and subsidize any institutions, associations, clubs, and conveniences for the benefit of the coy's employés, and of any tenants or other persons in whose welfare the coy is interested, and to provide for their religious, sanitary, and educational welfare, and to grant money for these purposes or any of them. (6) To act as agents for the investment, loan, payment, transmission, and collection of money, and for the purchase, sale, and improvement, development, and management of ppty, including business concerns and undertakings, and generally to transact and undertake all kinds of agency business, whether in respect of agricultural, commercial, or financial matters. (7) To subscribe for, issue on commission or otherwise, and deal in mortgages, bonds, obligations, securities, and other investments, and in particular those charged on or otherwise in connection with land in the sd colony. (8) To give any guarantee in relation to mortgages, loans, investments, and securities, whether made or effected, or acquired through the coy's agency or otherwise, and generally to guarantee or become sureties for the performance of any contracts and obligations. (9) To receive money on deposit at interest or otherwise, and to make, draw, accept, indorse, issue, discount, and otherwise deal with promissory notes, bills of exchange, letters of credit, circular notes, and other mercantile instruments. (10) [Generally to undertake and transact any of the businesses of bankers, merchants, capitalists and financiers which may seem conducive to any of these objects, except insurance business within 9 Edw. 7, c. 49.] (11) To act as trustees for the holders of or otherwise in relation to any debentures, bonds, or debenture stock issued or to be issued by any coy, and generally to undertake and execute any trusts the undertaking whereof may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit this coy. Form 143.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Sometimes the words in brackets in clause (3) are omitted or altered to "on the security of which the company shall have power to make advances." And in using Form 105, the words, "and so that the word 'property' herein shall be deemed to be used in its most extensive sense," may be inserted.

Many colonial and foreign loan and investment companies have been established and worked with great success during the last ten years. Their objects vary considerably, some not taking power to buy and deal in land [supra, clauses 2, 3, 4], but merely to lend, and act as agents. A large part (say 80 per cent.) of the capital is generally left uncalled, and ample funds are raised on debentures. The credit of some of these companies is so good that they are able to raise large sums of money on perpetual debentures [see Part III.] at 4 per cent. per annum, and the dividends paid are usually very large.

To raise money by the issue of the shares and to invest the moneys so raised in the purchase of, or otherwise to acquire and hold any of the investments following, that is to say, any stocks, bonds, debentures, shares, scrip, or securities issued or having any guarantee by the British government, or by any government, ruler, municipality, commissioners, trust, local authority, or other public body in the United Kingdom or India, or in any colony, or dependency, or possession of the United Kingdom, or in any country or state under British protection, or any stock, bonds, debentures, shares, scrip, or securities issued or having any guarantee by any corporation, trust, or coy incorporated, constituted, or carrying on business in the United Kingdom or India, or in any colony, dependency, or possession of the United Kingdom, or in any country or state under British protection, but so that no investment involving unlimited liability shall be deemed to be hby authorized. Form 144.

Investment
trust.

To acquire and hold, or otherwise deal with any stocks, bonds, debentures, shares, scrip, or securities of any government, state, dominion, sovereign, or authority, supreme, municipal, local, or otherwise, and any bonds, debenture stocks, scrip, obligations, shares, stocks, or securities of any coy established for the purpose of any railway, tramway, gas, water, dock, telegraph, electric lighting or other undertaking.

To borrow or raise money by the issue or sale of any bonds, mortgages, debentures, or debenture stock of the coy, whether perpetual or otherwise, and to invest any money so raised in any such investments as aforesaid.

To acquire any such investments as aforesaid by original subscription, tender, participation in syndicates, or otherwise, and whether or not fully paid up, and to make payments thereon as called up, or in advance of calls or otherwise, and to underwrite or subscribe for the same.

Form 144. conditionally or otherwise, and either with a view to investment or for resale, or otherwise, and to vary the investments of the coy, and generally to sell, exchange, or otherwise dispose of, deal with, and turn to account any of the assets of the coy.

To make advances upon any such investments as afd, to negotiate loans, to offer for public subscription, or otherwise aid or assist in placing any such investment - as afd, to give any guarantee in relation to any such investments issued by or acquired through or from the coy, to receive money, documents, and valuables for safe custody, transmission, or deposit at interest, or otherwise to draw, accept, indorse, issue, purchase, and otherwise deal with promissory notes, bills of exchange, letters of credit, circular notes, and other mercantile instruments, to act as agents for all purposes, and to undertake and execute trusts of all kinds.

To offer for public subscription any shares or stocks in the capital of, or debentures or debenture stock or other securities of, or otherwise to establish or promote, or concur in establishing or promoting, any coy, société anonyme, asson, undertaking, or public or private body

To guarantee the payment of dividends or interest on any stocks, shares, debentures, or other securities issued by, or any other contract or obligation of, any such coy, société anonyme, association, undertaking, or public or private body.

To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire, or otherwise acquire any real or personal ppty which the coy may think necessary or desirable, and to sell, improve, manage, develop, lease, mortgage, dispose of, turn to account, or otherwise deal with all or any part of the coy's ppty.

To take, make, execute, or enter into, commence, carry on, prosecute, and defend all steps, contracts, agreemts, negotiations, legal and other proceedings, compromises, arrangements, and schemes, and to do all other acts, matters, and things which shall at any time appear conducive or expedient for the protection of the coy as holders of or interested in any such investments and securities as afd.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Investment companies of the above kind [are not uncommon, and] have been found very attractive. After a considerable period of depression they are again becoming popular. In many cases they are confined to investments of a special class, e.g., foreign and colonial government, municipal, railway, telegraph, &c. The capital is generally raised by the issue of shares to be paid up in full within a few months, and then to be converted into equal moieties of preferred and deferred stock, the preferred taking a fixed preferential dividend at the rate of 4, 4½, or 5 per cent. per annum, and the deferred the balance of the profits. The executive sometimes consists of a body of directors, and sometimes a body of "trustees." In the latter case the articles do not provide for rotation, and not uncommonly the remuneration is furnished by a percentage on paid-up capital: see infra.

The principal object of such companies is, as James, L. J., put it in Smith v. Anderson, 15 C. Div. 247, "to enable persons who choose to invest their money in this way to avail themselves of that which I believe to be one of the most certain things in the world, viz., what is called the doctrine of average - that is to say, that if a large number of different independent securities of a hazardous description are held together, the loss upon some will be compensated by the gain upon others, so that a tolerably uniform average rate of interest will be maintained."

This would be so were the investments made almost at random, but under a judicious selection by an experienced body of directors or trustees the profits realised may be very considerable.

Form 144

(1) To acquire and hold shares, stocks, debentures, debenture stocks, bonds, obligations, and securities issued or guaranteed by any company constituted or carrying on business in the United Kingdom, or in any colony, or dependency, or possession thereof, or in any foreign country, and debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, and securities, issued or guaranteed by any government, sovereign ruler, commissioners, public body, or authority, supreme, municipal, local, or otherwise, whether at home or abroad.

Form 145.

Another, with wider powers.

(2) To acquire any such shares, stocks, debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, or securities by original subscription, tender, purchase, exchange, or otherwise, and to subscribe for the same, either conditionally or otherwise, and to guarantee the subscription thereof, and to exercise and enforce all rights and powers conferred by or incident to the ownership thereof.

(3) To issue debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, and securities of all kinds, and to frame, constitute, and secure the same, as may seem expedient, with full power to make the same transferable by delivery, or by instrument of transfer or otherwise, and either perpetual or terminable, and either redeemable or otherwise, and to charge or secure the same by trust, deed, or otherwise, on the undertaking of the company, or upon any specific property and rights, present and future, of the company (including, if thought fit, uncalled capital), or otherwise howsoever.

(4) To advance and lend money and assets of all kinds upon such terms as may be arranged.

(5) To facilitate and encourage the creation, issue, or conversion of debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, shares, stocks, and securities, and to act as trustees in connection with any such securities, and to take part in the conversion of business concerns and undertakings into companies.

(6) To take part in the management, supervision, or control of the business or operations of any company or undertaking, and for that purpose to appoint and remunerate any directors, accountants, or other experts or agents.

(7) To employ experts to investigate and examine into the condition, prospects, value, character, and circumstances, of any business Form 145. concerns and undertakings, and generally of any assets, ppty, or rights.

(8) To constitute any trusts with a view to the issue of preferred and deferred or any other special stocks or securities based on or representing any shares, stocks, or other assets specifically appropriated for the purposes of any such trust, and to settle and regulate, and, if thought fit, to undertake and execute any such trusts, and to issue, dispose of, or hold any such preferred, deferred, or other special stocks or securities.

(9) To transact or carry on all kinds of agency business, and in particular in relation to the investment of money, the sale of ppty and the collection and receipt of money.

(10) To give any guarantee in relation to the payment of any debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, or securities.

(11) Generally to carry on business as financiers, and to undertake and carry out all such operations and transactions (except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life) as an individual capitalist may lawfully undertake and carry out.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 146. (1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Theatre.

2. To construct at — a theatre, and other buildings and works convenient for the purposes thereof, and to manage, maintain, and carry on the said theatre and other buildings when so erected or constructed.]

3. To carry on the business of theatre proprietors and managers, and in particular to provide for the production, representation, and performance of operas, stage plays, operettas, burlesques, vaudevilles, ballets, pantomimes, spectacular pieces, promenade and other concerts, and other musical and dramatic performances and entertainments.

4. To carry on the business of restaurant keepers, wine and spirit merchants, licensed victuallers, theatrical agents, box office keepers, concert room proprietors, hotel keepers, dramatic and musical publishers and printers, and any other business which can be conveniently carried on in connection with any of those objects as may seem calculated to render profitable any of the coys's ppty and rights for the time being.

5. To enter into agreements with authors or other persons for the dramatic or other rights of operas, plays, operettas, burlesques, vaudevilles, ballets, pantomimes, spectacular pieces, musical compositions, and other dramatic and musical performances and entertainments, or for the representation thereof in the United Kingdom and elsewhere, as well as of foreign, colonial, and American rights, and to enter into engagements of all kinds with artists and other persons.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To carry on [at —, and elsewhere in the county of —] the business of an electric light co. in all its branches, and in particular to construct, lay down, establish, fix, and carry out all necessary cables, wires, lines, accumulators, lamps and works, and to generate, accumulate, distribute, and supply electricity, and to light cities, towns, streets, docks, markets, theatres, buildings and places both public and private. Form 147.

Electric.

(2) To carry on the business of electricians, mechanical engineers, suppliers of electricity for the purposes of light, heat, motive power, or otherwise, and manufacturers of and dealers in all apparatus and things required for or capable of being used in connection with the generation, distribution, supply, accumulation, and employment of electricity.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

See Lighting Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 56), the Electric Light Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 69), and the London Electric Lighting Act, 1904, as to provisional orders.

A power to "supply" electric energy under a Provisional Order will not justify the company in engaging in the sale or hire of apparatus for the use of the energy thus supplied. Att.-Gen. v. Corpn. of Leicester, (1910) 2 Ch. 359. See also as to a company's powers under a Provisional Order, Andrews v. Abertillery Urban Council, (1911) 2 Ch. 398.

To carry on the business of electric engineers and contractors, suppliers of electricity, carriers of passengers and goods, electric manufacturers of, and dealers in, railway, tramway, electric, magnetic, galvanic, and other apparatus, mechanical engineers, suppliers of light, heat, sound, and power, and to acquire any inventions, &c., and to construct railways and tramways, and work the same by steam, gas, oil, electricity, or other power. Form 147a.

Electric engineers and contractors.

(1) To carry on business as dealers in, and producers of, dairy, farm, and garden produce of all kinds, and in particular milk, cream, butter, cheese, poultry and eggs, fruit and vegetables. Form 147b.

Dairymen and farm produce dealers.

(2) To carry on business as cow-keepers, farmers, millers, and market gardeners, and as manufacturers of all kinds of condensed milk, jam, pickles, cider, and preserved provisions of all kinds.

Add selection of common forms, supra, Forms 97 et seq.]

To carry on business as goldsmiths, silversmiths, jewellers, gem merchants, watch and clock makers, electro-platers, dressing-bag makers, importers and exporters of bullion, and to buy, sell, and deal in (wholesale and retail) precious stones, jewellery, watches, clocks, gold and silver plate, electro-plate, cutlery, dressing-bags, bronzes, Form 147c.

Goldsmiths, silversmiths, jewellers, watchmakers, &c., dressing bag makers.

Form 147c. articles of vertu, objects of art, and such other articles and goods as the coy may consider capable of being conveniently dealt in in relation to its businesses, and to manufacture and to establish factories for manufacturing goods for the above businesses.

Form 148. 1. To supply the town of —, in the county of —, and the neighbourhood thereof, with water, and to carry on the business of a waterworks coy in all its branches. 2. To sink wells and shafts, and to make, build and construct, lay down and maintain, reservoirs, waterworks, cisterns, culverts, filter-beds, main and other pipes, and appliances, and to execute and do all other works and things necessary or convenient for obtaining, storing, selling, delivering, measuring and distributing water, or otherwise for the purposes of the coy.
[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 148a. (1) [If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]
 (2) To carry on the business of searching for, mining, getting, obtaining, cutting, polishing and dealing in diamonds and other precious and valuable stones.
[Add selection of Forms 147c, 178, 179 and 180, and selection of common forms, 79 et seq.]

Form 149. (1) [If necessary insert any of Forms 85 to 96.] (2) To construct and establish at — a dock with patent and other slips, workshops, buildings, machinery, warehouses, and other conveniences. (3) To carry on the business of proprietors of docks, wharves, jetties, piers, warehouses and stores, and of shipowners, shipbuilders, shipwrights, engineers, dredgers, tug-owners, wharfingers, warehousemen, commission agents, merchants, and any other businesses which can be conveniently carried on in connection with the above.
[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 150. (1) To acquire and take over as a going concern the business of brewers and otherwise heretofore carried on under the style or firm of "— and Coy," at the — Brewery, —, in the County of Middlesex, and elsewhere, and all or any of the assets and liabilities of that firm in connection therewith, and with a view thereto, &c.
[Form 85, supra.]
 (2) To carry on the business of brewers and maltsters in all its branches.
 (3) To carry on all or any of the businesses of hop merchants and growers, malt factors, corn merchants, wine and spirit merchants and importers, and distillers, coopers and bottlers, bottle makers, bottle stopper makers, potters, manufacturers of and dealers in aerated and mineral waters, and other drinks, licensed victuallers, hotel keepers, beerhouse keepers, restaurant keepers, lodging-house keepers, ice manufacturers and merchants, tobaccoists, farmers, dairymen, yeast dealers, grain sellers and driers, timber merchants, brick makers, finings manufacturers, and isinglass merchants.

Form 150.

(4) To buy, sell, manipulate, and deal both wholesale and retail in commodities, articles and things of all kinds which can conveniently be dealt in by the coy in connection with any of its objects.

(5) To lend or advance money to such parties, and on such terms as may seem expedient, and in particular to customers of, and persons having dealings with the coy, and to give any guarantee or indemnity that may seem expedient, and to discount bills, and to receive money on deposit at interest or otherwise, or valuables, and to transact any of the business of a banker which may seem to the coy expedient.

(6) To carry on any other business, whether manufacturing or otherwise, which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of the above businesses or objects, or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the coy's property or rights for the time being.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

As to the importance of clause 5 in enabling a brewery company to deduct bad debts in respect of loans to customers from profits of the general business for purposes of income tax, see Reid's Brewery Co. v. Male, (1891) 2 Q. B. 1, and p. 99.

As to restricting the clause with reference to the Money Lenders Act, 1900, see notes to Form 138, supra.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 151.

(2) To carry on all or any of the businesses following: namely, cotton spinners and doublers, flax, hemp, and jute spinners, linen manufacturers, flax, hemp, jute, and wool merchants, wool combers, worsted spinners, woollen spinners, yarn merchants, worsted stuff manufacturers, bleachers and dyers, and makers of vitriol, bleaching, and dyeing materials, and to purchase, comb, prepare, spin, dye, and deal in flax, hemp, jute, wool, cotton, silk, and other fibrous substances, and to weave or otherwise manufacture, buy and sell and deal in linen, cloth, and other goods and fabrics, whether textile, felted, netted, or looped, and to supply power.

Cotton
spinners

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 152

(2) To carry on the business of a telephone, telegraph, and electric light, heat, and power supply coy, and in particular to establish, work, manage, control, and regulate telephone exchanges and works

Telephone
company.

Form 152. for the supply of electric light, heat, and motive power, and to transmit and facilitate the transmission of telephonic and telegraphic communications and messages, and to undertake the lighting of towns, streets, buildings, and other places, and the supply of electric heat and motive power for public or private purposes.

(3) To carry on any other business directly or indirectly connected with the supply or employment of electricity, or capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of these objects, or calculated directly or indirectly to render profitable any of the ppty or rights of the coy.

(4) To construct, maintain, lay down, carry out, work, sell, let on hire, and deal in telephones and all kinds of works, machinery, apparatus, conveniences, and things capable of being used in connection with any of these objects, and in particular any cables, wires, lines, stations, exchanges, reservoirs, accumulators, lamps, meters, and engines.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 153.

Drapers,
warehousemen, fur-nishers and outfitters,
general storekeepers, &c.
(universal providers.)

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the business of drapers and furnishing and general warehousemen in all its branches.

(3) To carry on all or any of the businesses of silk mercers, silk weavers, cotton spinners, cloth manufacturers, furriers, haberdashers, hosiery, manufacturers, importers, and wholesale and retail dealers of and in textile fabrics of all kinds, milliners, dressmakers, tailors, hatters, clothiers, outfitters, glovers, lace manufacturers, feather dressers, boot and shoe makers, manufacturers and importers, and wholesale and retail dealers of and in leather goods, household furniture, ironmongery, turnery, and other household fittings and utensils, ornaments, stationery, and fancy goods, dealers in provisions, drugs, chemicals, and other articles and commodities of personal and household use and consumption, and generally of and in all manufactured goods, materials, provisions, and produce.

(4) To carry on all or any of the businesses of undertakers, coach and carriage builders, saddlers, house decorators, sanitary engineers, electrical engineers, and contractors in all their branches, gasfitters, land, estate and house agents, builders, contractors, auctioneers, cabinet makers, upholsterers, furniture removers, owners of depositories, warehousemen, carriers, storekeepers, warehouse keepers, manufacturers of and dealers in hardware, jewellery, plated goods, perfumery, soap, and articles required for ornament, recreation, or amusement; gold and silversmiths, booksellers, dealers in musical instruments, manufacturers of and dealers in bicycles, tricycles, and motor carriages; and also refreshment contractors, restaurant keepers, hotel, boarding and lodging-house keepers, letters of furnished or unfurnished houses, flats or apartments, with or without servants or other accessories or conveniences, licensed vintners, wine and spirit merchants, tobacconists, and dealers in general, distilled, and other liquors; farmers, dairymen, market gardeners, nurserymen, and florists.

Form 153.

(5) To buy, sell, manufacture, repair, alter and exchange, let on hire, export, and deal in all kinds of articles and things which may be required for the purposes of any of the said businesses, or commonly supplied or dealt in by persons engaged in any such businesses, or which may seem capable of being profitably dealt with in connection with any of the said businesses.

(6) To receive money, valuables, and goods and materials of all kinds on deposit or for safe custody.

(7) To provide and conduct refreshment rooms, newspaper rooms, reading and writing rooms, dressing rooms, telephones, and other conveniences for the use of customers and others.

(8) To grant to ticket-holders and others any special privilege and advantages, and to make arrangements with persons engaged in any trade, business, or profession for the concession to the coy's members, ticket-holders and their friends, of any special privileges or advantages.

(9) To carry on the business of a co-operative store and general supply society in all its branches, and to transact all kinds of agency business.

(10) To carry on any other business (manufacturing or otherwise), except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life, which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of the above specified businesses, or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the coy's property or rights.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

1. If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

2. To carry on the business of iron foundries, mechanical engineers, and manufacturers of agricultural implements and other machinery, tool-makers, brass-founders, metal-workers, boiler-makers, millwrights, machinists, iron and steel converters, smiths, wood-workers, builders, painters, metallurgists, electrical engineers, water supply engineers, gas-makers, farmers, printers, carriers, and merchants, and to buy, sell, manufacture, repair, convert, alter, let on hire, and deal in machinery, implements, rolling-stock, and hardware of all kinds, and to carry on any other business (manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with the above, or otherwise calculated, directly or indirectly, to enhance the value of any of the coy's property and rights for the time being.

Form 154.

Mechanical engineer, &c.

Form 154. 3. To carry on any business relating to the winning and working of minerals, the production and working of metals, and the production, manufacture, and preparation of any other materials which may be usefully or conveniently combined with the engineering or manufacturing business of the coy, or any contracts undertaken by the coy, and either for the purpose only of such contracts or as an independent business.

4. To undertake and execute any contracts for works involving the supply or use of any machinery, and to carry out any ancillary or other works comprised in such contracts.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 155. To carry on in the United Kingdom or elsewhere the trade or business of purchasing, hiring, or otherwise acquiring, and making, building or manufacturing railway carriages and wagons, and other carriages, wagons, carts, trucks, vehicles, locomotives, engines, rolling-stock, and conveyances of all kinds, whether for railway, trainway, road, field, or other traffic or purposes, and also rails and railways and tramway plant, and all machinery, materials, and things applicable or used as accessory thereto, and of letting or supplying all or any of the things hereinbefore specified to coal proprietors, railway and other cos, and other persons, from year to year or for a term of years, or otherwise, at annual or other rents, and of repairing and maintaining the same resply, whether belonging to this coy or not, and of selling, exchanging, and otherwise dealing in the same resply.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 155a. (1) To establish in England and elsewhere art galleries for the exhibition of paintings, engravings, sculptures, bronzes, enamels, jewellery, gems, coins, medals, and other works of art, and for social, musical, theatrical, and other entertainments, and for lectures and other purposes, whether of a like or of a different kind, which may seem expedient.

Art exhibitions and art sections.

(2) To form a collection of works of art suitable for exhibition in such galleries, and to encourage the exhibition in such galleries of loan and other collections of works of art

(3) To buy, sell, and deal in works of art of all kinds, and to provide expert advice of all kinds for customers and others.

(4) To carry on all kinds of agency business, and all kinds of guarantee and indemnity business.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To purchase or otherwise acquire any interests in any patents. Form 156.
brevets d'invention, licences, concessions and the like conferring an exclusive or non-exclusive or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention in relation to [e.g., the production, treatment, storage, application, distribution and use of electricity, and of any apparatus therefor], or generally any invention which may seem to the coy capable of being profitably dealt with, and in particular to acquire from A. B., of &c., the benefit of certain existing inventions in relation to, &c., and with a view thereto to enter into and carry into effect the agreement referred to in clause 3 of the arts of asson of this coy with such modifications (if any) as may seem expedient.

"Special
patents
company.

(2) To use, exercise, develop, grant licences in respect of, or otherwise to turn to account any such patents, brevets d'invention, licences, concessions, and the like, and information aforesaid.

(3) To carry on business as [here insert specification of business connected with such invention].

(4) To carry on [subsidiary business].

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To acquire and take over as a going concern the undertaking of the — Coy, Limtd (incorporated in —), and all or any of the assets and liabilities of that coy, and with a view thereto to enter into an agreement in the terms of the draft referred to in clause 3 of the coy's arts of asson, and to carry the same into effect with or without modification. Form 157.

Cycle manufacturers.

(2) To carry on the business of manufacturers of cycles, bicycles, tricycles, velocipedes, and carriages of all kinds, and of all articles and things used in the manufacture, maintenance, and working thereof, and also all apparatus and implements and things for use in sports or games.

(3) To carry on the business of mechanical engineers, machinists, fitters, millwrights, founders, wire drawers, tube makers, metallurgists, saddlers, galvanizers, japanners, annealers, enamellers, electroplaters, painters, and packing case makers.

(4) To buy, sell, repair, alter, and deal in apparatus, machinery, materials, and articles of all kinds which shall be capable of being used for the purposes of any business herein mentioned or likely to be required by customers of any such business.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 157a. (1) *[If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]*Aerial conveyances.

(2) To establish, maintain, and work lines of aerial conveyances between London and Liverpool, and between London and Paris, and between other places to be from time to time selected by the company.

(3) To manufacture, buy, sell, prepare, let on hire, and deal in aerial conveyances of all kinds, and the component parts thereof, and all kinds of machinery and apparatus for use in connection therewith.

(4) To acquire, provide, and maintain hangars, garages, sheds, aerodromes, and accommodation for or in relation to aerial conveyances.

(5) Generally to carry on business as mechanical engineers.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 158.

Cricket club.

(1) To provide a cricket ground at or near —, in the county of —, and to lay out and prepare such ground for cricket and other purposes of the coy, and to provide pavilions, lavatories, refreshment rooms and other conveniences in connection therewith. [Add if suitable, "and with a view thereto to enter into [or adopt] an agreement, &c." [latter part of Form 85].]

(2) To promote the game of cricket and other athletic sports and pastimes.

(3) To hold or arrange cricket and other matches and competitions, and offer and grant, or contribute towards the provision of prizes, awards, and distinctions.

(4) To subscribe to, become a member of, and co-operate with any other association, whether incorporated or not, whose objects are altogether or in part similar to those of this coy.

(5) To buy, sell, and deal in all kinds of apparatus and all kinds of provisions, liquid and solid, required by persons frequenting the coy's cricket grounds.

(6) To purchase, take on lease, or otherwise acquire any lands, buildings, easements, or ppty, real and personal, which may be requisite for the purposes of, or capable of being conveniently used in connection with, any of the objects of the coy.

(7) To raise money by subscriptions, and to grant any rights and privileges to subscribers.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 159.

Laundry.

[If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

To carry on at —, in the county of —, and elsewhere the business of a steam and general laundry, and to wash, clean, purify, scour, bleach, wring, dry, iron, colour, dye, disinfect, renovate, and prepare for use all articles of wearing apparel, household, domestic and other linen, and cotton and woollen goods and clothing and fabrics of all kinds, and to buy, sell, hire, manufacture, repair, let on hire, alter, improve, treat and deal in all apparatus, machines, materials, and articles of all kinds, which are capable of being used for any such purposes.

To carry on business as proprietors of swimming and other baths, wash-houses, and mechanical engineers, and to carry on any other business, &c.

[Add selection of common forms. Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 159.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the businesses of manufacturers of and dealers in tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, matchlights, pipes, and any other articles required by or which may be convenient to smokers, and of snuff grinders and merchants and box merchants, and to deal in any other articles and things commonly dealt in by tobaccoists.

[Add selection of common forms. Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 160.

Tobacco.

To carry on business as tourist agents and contractors, and to facilitate travelling, and to provide for tourists and travellers, or promote the provision of conveniences of all kinds in the way of through tickets, circular tickets, sleeping cars or berths, reserved places, hotel and lodging accommodation, guides, safe deposits, inquiry bureaus, libraries, lavatories, reading rooms, baggage transport and otherwise.

To carry on business as hotel keepers, lodging house and restaurant keepers, transport agents, insurance agents and bankers.

[Add selection of general objects. Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 160a

Tourist
agents.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the businesses of stationers, printers, lithographers, stereotypers, electrotypers, photographic printers, photolithographers, engravers, die-sinkers, envelope manufacturers, bookbinders, account book manufacturers, machine rulers, numerical printers, paper makers, paper bag and account book makers, box makers, cardboard manufacturers, type founders, photographers, manufacturers of and dealers in playing, visiting, railway, festive, complimentary and fancy cards and valentines, dealers in parchment, dealers in stamps, agents for the payment of stamp and other duties, advertising agents, designers, draughtsmen, ink manufacturers, booksellers, publishers, paper manufacturers, and dealers in

Form 161.

Stationers, &c.

- Form 161. the materials used in the manufacture of paper, engineers, cabinet makers, and dealers in or manufacturers of any other articles or things of a character similar or analogous to the foregoing, or any of them, or connected therewith.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

- Form 162. (1) If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.
 Brickmakers, (2) To carry on the business of manufacturers of bricks, tiles, potters, pipes, pottery, earthenware, china and terra cotta, and ceramic ware of all kinds. paviors, &c.

(3) To carry on the businesses of paviors and manufacturers of and dealers in artificial stone, whether for building, paving, or other purposes.

(4) To carry on business as manufacturing chemists.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

- Form 163. (1) If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.
 Newspaper (2) To establish, print, and publish a newspaper or newspapers proprietors. in —, and to carry on the business of newspaper proprietors, printers, publishers, type-founders, booksellers, stationers, and advertising agents, and to carry on any other, &c.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Such companies are common nowadays. The Newspaper Libel and Registration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 18), declares that the provisions of the Act as to the registration of newspaper proprietors are not to apply to a joint stock company registered under the Act of 1862.

A company may be liable to an action for a libel. Whitfield v. South Eastern Ry. Co., E. B. & E. 115; and see Edwards v. Midland Ry., 6 Q. B. D. 287, 703; Cornford v. Carlton Bank, (1899) 1 Q. B. 392. Nevill v. Fine Arts, Ltd., (1895) 2 Q. B. 156, and Citizens' Life Assurance Co. v. Brown, (1904) A. C. 423.

Directors of a company that prints or publishes a newspaper containing a libel are not liable criminally any more than they are civilly (Emmens v. Pottle, 16 Q. B. D. 354) if they had no knowledge of the libel. Reg. v. Judd, 37 W. R. 143.

Enquiries involving imputations on the solvency of persons, contained in a paper issued only to the members by a voluntary society for the protection of trade, are not published on a privileged occasion. Elkington v. London Assoc. for the Protection of Trade, 28 T. L. R. 117.

- Form 164. (1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]
 Newspaper (2) To carry on business as proprietors and publishers of newspapers, journals, magazines, books, and other literary works and proprietors. undertakings.

(3) To carry on all or any of the businesses of printers, stationers, lithographers, type-founders, stereotypers, electrotypers, photographic printers, photo-lithographers, chromo-lithographers, engravers, die-sinkers, bookbinders, designers, draughtsmen, paper and ink manufacturers, booksellers, publishers, advertising agents, engineers, and dealers in or manufacturers of any other articles or things of a character similar or analogous to the foregoing or any of them or connected therewith. Form 164.

(4) To establish competitions in respect of contributions or information suitable for insertion in any publication of the coy, or otherwise for any of the purposes of the coy, and to offer and grant prizes, rewards, and premiums of such character and on such terms as may seem expedient.

(5) To undertake and transact all kinds of agency or business which an ordinary individual may legally undertake.

(6) To provide for and furnish or secure to any members or customers of the coy, or to any subscribers to or purchasers or possessors of, any publication of the coy, or of any coupons or tickets issued with any publications of the coy, any chattels, conveniences, advantages, benefits, or special privileges which may seem expedient, and either gratuitously or otherwise.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

(1) If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.

Form 164a.

(2) To carry on the business of proprietors or managers of theatres, palaces and halls, cinematographic shows, and exhibitions, and to permit the coy's premises to be used for such other purposes as may seem expedient. Cinematograph shows.

(3) To purchase, hire, or otherwise acquire any photographic and other apparatus in connection with cinematograph shows and exhibitions.

[Add selection of forms, 97 et seq.]

(1) If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.

Form 164b.

(2) To establish in the city of — and elsewhere in the Republic of —, tea shops and in connection therewith to carry on the business of tea-shop keepers, restaurant keepers, and suppliers of provisions both solid and liquid. Tea shops.

[Add selection of common forms, 97 et seq.]

Form 165.Coffee taverns.

- (1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]
- (2) To establish at — coffee taverns, and to carry on there the business of refreshment-house keepers, upon the principle that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold by the coy, and to provide and work, upon the same principle, refreshment stalls, carts, and barrows.
- (3) To establish libraries, reading rooms, and other conveniences, and to provide for the recreation and instruction of the coy's customers and their friends.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 166.Refreshment rooms.

- (1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]
- (2) To carry on the business of [temperance] refreshment-rooms proprietors and refreshment caterers and contractors in all its respcive branches.
- (3) To carry on business as bakers, confectioners, butchers, milk-sellers, butter-sellers, dairymen, grocers, poulterers, greengrocers, farmers, and ice merchants.

(4) To manufacture, buy, sell, refine, prepare, grow, import, export, and deal in provisions of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, and whether s. lid or liquid.

(5) To establish and provide all kinds of conveniences and attractions for customers and others, and in particular reading, writing, and smoking rooms, lockers, and safe deposits, telephones, telegraphs, clubs, stores, shops, lodgings, and lavatories.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 166a.Workmen's homes.

- (1) To provide clean, comfortable, and inexpensive sleeping accommodation for workmen and others, and in connection therewith to afford to such persons facilities and conveniences for washing, bathing, cooking, reading, writing and finding employment, and for the purchase, sale, and consumption of provisions, both liquid and solid, and for the safe custody of goods.

(2) To work, construct, and maintain buildings, works, and conveniences of all kinds suitable for any of the purposes of the coy.

(3) To carry on any other business, whether manufacturing or otherwise, which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of the above specified objects.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 167.

Public hall.

1. To provide at — a hall and other suitable rooms, buildings, and places, and to permit the same or any pt thof to be used on such terms as the coy shall think fit, for any purposes, public or private, and in particular for public meetings, exhibitions, concerts, lectures, dinners, theatrical performances, and other entertainments, and for reading, writing, and newspaper rooms, libraries, baths, laundries, refreshment rooms, dressing rooms, shops, business offices, and residences. [Add, if necessary, a reference to some agreement in the articles as in Form 85.] 2. To furnish the coy's ppty with such furniture, implements, machinery, and conveniences as may be thought desirable with a view to the sale, letting, or user thof. 3. To provide gardens, greenhouses, and grounds for recreation and amusement. 4. To carry on the business of an hotel and restaurant proprietor and wine merchant. 5. To provide amusement, entertainment, and instruction for shareholders of the coy and others.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 167.

(1) To purchase, take or lease, or otherwise acquire, the land and hereditaments known as the ——— estate, situate, &c. [Add, if necessary, a reference to some agreement in the articles as in Form 85.]

(2) To carry on the business of a racecourse coy in all its branches, and in particular to lay out and prepare any lands for the running of horse races, steeplechases, or races of any other kind, and for the drilling or reviewing of troops, and for any kind of athletic sports, and for playing thon games of cricket, bowls, golf, curling, lawn tennis, polo, or any other kind of amusement, recreation, sport or entertainment, and to construct grand or other stands, booths, stabling for horses, paddocks, refreshment rooms, and other erections, buildings, and conveniences, whether of a permanent or temporary nature, which may seem directly or indirectly conducive to the coy's objects, and to conduct, hold, and promote race meetings and athletic sports, polo, lawn tennis, and other matches, agricultural, horse, flower, and other shows and exhibitions, and otherwise utilize the coy's ppty and rights, and to give and contribute towards prizes, cups, stakes, and other rewards. (3) To establish any clubs, hotels, or othe conveniences in connection with the coy's ppty. (4) To carry on the business of hotel keepers, tavern keepers, licensed victuallers, refreshment purveyors, and market gardeners, &c.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 168.

Racecourse.

1. [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

2. To carry on the business of a storekeeper in all its branches, and in particular to buy, sell, manufacture, and deal in goods, stores, consumable articles, chattels and effects of all kinds, both wholesale and retail, and to transact every kind of agency business, and generally to engage in any business or transaction which may seem to the coy directly or indirectly conducive to the interests or convenience of the coy's members or ticket-holders or their friends, or any section thof.

Form 169.

Co-operative store.

Form 169.

3. To make arrangements with persons engaged in any trade, business, or profession, for the concession to the coy's members, ticket-holders, and their friends, of any special rights, privileges, and advantages, and in particular in regard to the supply of goods.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Form 170.

Hotel
company.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the business of hotel, restaurant, café, tavern, beer-house, refreshment-room, and lodging-house keepers, licensed victuallers, wine, beer, and spirit merchants, brewers, maltsters, distillers, importers and manufacturers of aerated, mineral, and artificial waters and other drinks, purveyors, caterers for public amusements generally, coach, cab, and carriage proprietors, livery-stable keepers, jobmasters, farmers, dairymen, ice merchants, importers and brokers of food, live and dead stock, and colonial and foreign produce of all descriptions, hairdressers, perfumers, chemists, proprietors of clubs, baths, dressing rooms, laundries, reading, writing, and newspaper rooms, libraries, grounds, and places of amusement, recreation, sport, entertainment, and instruction of all kinds, tobacco and cigar merchants, agents for railway and shipping cos and carriers, theatrical and opera box office proprietors, entrepreneurs and general agents, and any other business which can be conveniently carried on in connection therewith.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 171.

Library.

(1) To establish and maintain in the city of — and elsewhere, circulating libraries, and also reading and writing rooms, and a reference library, and to furnish the same resply with books, reviews, magazines, newspapers, and other publications, including instrumental and vocal music. [Add, if necessary, a reference to some agreement in the articles, as in Form 85.] (2) To carry on the business of booksellers, stationers, publishers, and restaurant proprietors, and to carry on the business of booking seats at theatres and other places of entertainment.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 172.

School or college.

(1) To establish and carry on at — a school [or, college] where students may obtain on moderate terms a sound religious, classical, mathematical, and general education of the highest order. [If necessary, add a reference to some agreement in the articles, as in Form 85.] (2) To provide for the delivery and holding of lectures, exhibitions, public meetings, classes, and conferences calculated directly or indirectly to advance the cause of education, whether Form 172.

 general, professional, or technical.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

A considerable number of school and college companies have been incorporated. Sometimes they obtain a licence from the Board of Trade to register without the word "limited" and with a more suitable name than "company." See supra, pp. 498 et seq.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.] (2) The accumulation of capital by means of monthly subscriptions or otherwise from members, and also by borrowing money from members or any other persons on such security and on such terms as may from time to time be arranged. (3) To advance or lend any of the aforesaid capital or other moneys of the company for the time being on the security of freeholds, leaseholds, bills of exchange, promissory notes, bonds, stock-in-trade, chattels, and other property, real or personal. (4) To acquire any real and personal property which the company may think it desirable to acquire by way of investment, or with a view to re-sale or otherwise, and in particular any freeholds, leaseholds, mortgages, shares and securities. Form 173.

Loan club.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

A great many loan clubs have been formed within recent years. In Nottingham there seems to be a mania for them. In most cases they are formed as unlimited companies with a share capital not of any fixed amount, divided into shares of, say, 100l., to be paid by monthly instalments. The articles generally authorize the directors to make general rules as to the payment of entrance fees, loans, repayments, fines, &c., and declare that they are to be binding. The common plan is to have a monthly meeting for payment of subscriptions, and advances are made in accordance with lots drawn, provided sufficient security is found. Many of these clubs are held at inns or taverns, and are named accordingly, e.g., "The Unicorn Inn Third Thursday Mutual Loan Club." An unlimited company, if its memorandum and articles so provide, may allow a member to withdraw. See Borough Commercial Soc., (1893) 2 Ch. 242.

As to the necessity for registering such a company under the Money Lenders Act, 1900, see notes to Form 138, supra.

(1) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, or otherwise acquire any lands and buildings in the county of — or elsewhere, and any estate or interest in, and any rights connected with, any such lands and buildings [and in particular to acquire a certain piece or parcel of land and buildings situate, &c., and with a view thereto to enter into the agreement, &c., as in Form 85]. (2) To develop and turn to account any land acquired by or in which the company is interested, and in particular by laying out and preparing the same for building purposes, constructing, altering, pulling down, decorating, maintaining, Form 174.

Building estate.

Form 174. furnishing, fitting up, and improving buildings, and by planting, paving, draining, farming, cultivating, letting on building lease or building agreement, and by advancing money to and entering into contracts and arrangements of all kinds with builders, tenants, and others. (3) To construct, maintain, improve, develop, work, control, and manage any waterworks, gasworks, reservoirs, roads, tramways, electric power, heat and light supply works, telephone works, hotels, clubs, restaurants, baths, places of worship, places of amusement, pleasure grounds, parks, gardens, reading rooms, stores, shops, dairies, and other works and conveniences which the coy may think directly or indirectly conducive to these objects, and to contribute or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, maintenance, development, working, control, and management thereof. (4) To carry on all or any of the following businesses, namely, builders and contractors, decorators, merchants, and dealers in stone, sand, lime, bricks, timber, hardware, and other building requisites, brick and tile and terra-cotta makers, jobbers, carriers, licensed victuallers, and house agents. (5) To lend money, either with or without security, and generally to such persons and upon such terms and conditions as the coy may think fit, and in particular to persons undertaking to build on or improve any ppty in which the coy is interested, and to tenants, builders, and contractors. (6) [Form 110.] (7) To undertake and execute any trusts the undertaking of which may seem to the coy desirable.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 175.

Land and building
company.

(1) To purchase for investment or resale, and to traffic in land and house and other ppty of any tenure and any interest therein, and to create, sell, and deal in freehold and leasehold ground rents, and to make advances upon the security of land or house or other ppty, or any interest therein, and generally to deal in, traffic by way of sale, lease, exchange, or otherwise with land and house ppty and any other ppty whether real or personal.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 176.

City buildings.

1. To acquire by purchase, lease, exchange, or otherwise, land, buildings and hereditaments of any tenure or description situate in the City of — and its neighbourhood, and any estate or interest therein, and any rights over or connected with land so situate, and to turn the same to account as may seem expedient, and in particular by preparing building sites, and by constructing, reconstructing, altering, improving, decorating, furnishing, and maintaining offices, flats, houses, factories, warehouses, shops, wharves, buildings, works and conveniences of all kinds, and by consolidating, or connecting, or subdividing properties, and by leasing and disposing of the same. [Add, if suitable, a reference to some agreement in the articles, as in Form 176.

Form 85.]

2. To manage land, buildings, and other ppty situate as aforesaid, whether belonging to the coy or not, and to collect rents and income, and to supply to tenants and occupiers, and others, refreshments, attendance, messengers, light, waiting rooms, reading rooms, meeting rooms, lavatories, laundry conveniences, electric conveniences, stables, and other advantages.

3. To acquire and take over any business or undertaking carried on upon, or in connection with, any land or building which the coy may desire to acquire as aforesaid, or become interested in, and the whole or any of the assets and liabilities of such business or undertaking, and to carry on the same, or to dispose of, remove, or put an end thereto, or otherwise deal with the same as may seem expedient.

4. To establish and carry on, and to promote the establishment and carrying on, upon any ppty in which the coy is interested, of any business which may be conveniently carried on upon or in connection with such ppty, and the establishment of which may seem calculated to enhance the value of the coy's interest in such ppty, or to facilitate the disposal thereof.

5. To advance and lend money to builders, tenants, and others who may be willing to build on or improve any land or buildings in which the coy is interested, and generally to advance money to such persons and on such terms as may be arranged.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To purchase or otherwise acquire any landed ppty in the State of — in the United States of America, and in particular an estate known as, &c. (2) To develop the resources of and turn to account the lands, buildings, and rights for the time being of the coy in such manner as the coy may think fit, and in particular by clearing, draining, fencing, planting, building, improving, farming, grazing, mining, and by promoting immigration, establishing towns, villages, and settlements. (3) To carry on the business of farmers, graziers, meat and fruit preservers, brewers, planters, miners, metallurgists, quarry owners, brickmakers, builders, contractors for the construction of works, both public and private, merchants, importers and exporters, printers, publishers, bankers, ship builders, ship owners, brokers, and any other businesses which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to develop the coy's ppty. (4) To construct, carry out, support, maintain, improve, manage, work, operate, control, and superintend railways, tramways, &c. [see Form 142, cl. 2], hotels, exchanges, churches, chapels, parks, schools, museums, places of recreation, racecourses, baths, washhouses, and any other works and conveniences which may seem directly or indirectly conducive to any

Form 177.

Colonization and land.

Form 177. of these objects, and to contribute to or otherwise aid or take part in the construction, carrying out, support, maintenance, improvement, management, working, operating, controlling, and superintending the same. (5) To lend money and other ppty, to guarantee the performance of contracts and obligations of all kinds, to act as agents in the management, sale, and purchase of ppty, and generally to transact business as capitalists, bankers, and financiers. (6) To carry on and transact any other businesses and operations, manufacturing, commercial, or otherwise, except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life, which the coy may think directly or indirectly conducive to any of its objects, or capable of being conveniently carried on in connection therewith.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Form 178.

African concessions.

1. To acquire the concessions granted to --- by ---, King of the --- nation, and, with a view thereto, to enter into the agreement referred to in clause 3 of this coy's arts of assn. and to carry the same into effect with or without modification.

2. To acquire from any other sovereign, state, or authorities in Africa or elsewhere any concessions, grants, decrees, rights, powers and privileges whatsoever, which may seem to the coy capable of being turned to account, and to work, develop, carry out, exercise and turn to account the same.

3. To prospect, examine, and explore any territories and places in Africa and elsewhere, and to employ and equip expeditions, commissions, experts and other agents.

4. To develop the resources of and turn to account any lands and any rights over or connected with land belonging to or in which the coy is interested, and in particular by clearing, draining, fencing, planting, cultivating, building, improving, farming, irrigating, grazing, and by promoting immigration and emigration and the establishment of towns, villages, and settlements.

5. To carry out, establish, construct, maintain, improve, manage, work, control, and superintend any roads, ways, tramways, railways, bridges, harbours, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, embankments, fortifications, hydraulic works, telegraphs, telephones, saw-mills, smelting works, furnaces, factories, warehouses, hotels, viaducts, exchanges, mints, transport and postal arrangements, stores, shops, churches, chapels, stations, and other works and conveniences, and to contribute to, or assist in the carrying out, establishment, construction, maintenance, improvement, management, working control, or superintendence of the same.

6. To govern any territories in Africa, and to make and enforce such laws and ordinances as may seem expedient, and to provide for the administration of justice, and for the establishment and maintenance of good order, and for the welfare of the inhabitants.

and for the advancement of trade and commerce, and for the protection of such territories from invasion or attack. Form 178.

7. To promote the abolition of slavery, and the advance of civilization.

8. To negotiate, arrange, and effect treaties and arrangements with any chiefs, rulers, or authorities, supreme, local, or otherwise, in Africa and elsewhere, and to subsidise any such chiefs, rulers, or authorities.

9. To grant monopolies, patents, and other special rights and privileges, whether as regards the carrying on of any particular trade or business, or the use of any invention or process, or the growth, preparation, or manufacture or sale of any particular article, or as regards any of these operations or matters, and to grant the same for a term of years, or in perpetuity or otherwise.

10. To buy, sell, import, export, manipulate, prepare for market, and deal in merchandise of all kinds, and generally to carry on business as merchants, importers, and exporters.

11. To carry on business as miners, store-keepers, farmers, cattle breeders, stockmen, carriers, provision preservers, mechanical engineers, builders, and contractors.

12. To promote the establishment, carrying on, and development of trades and businesses of all kinds within any territories in which the coy is interested, and to subsidise, grant special rights to, or otherwise assist, support, protect, and encourage all persons and cos engaged or proposing to engage therein.

13. To undertake, transact, and execute all kinds of agency business, and also trusts of all kinds.

14. To carry on and undertake all kinds of guarantee and insurance business (except life assurance), and all kinds of banking and financial business and operations.

15. To form, constitute, and promote cos, syndicates, associations, and undertakings of all kinds.

16. To enter into partnership or into any arrangements for sharing profits, union of interests, reciprocal concessions, or co-operation with any partnership, person, or coy, and either in perpetuity or otherwise.

17. To lend or advance money, and to issue or place any stocks, bonds, shares, or securities of any government, sovereign, state, or coy.

18. To make donations to such persons and in such cases as may seem expedient, and to subscribe for any purposes, whether charitable or benevolent, or for any public, general, or useful object.

19. Generally to undertake and carry out any operations or transactions whatsoever (except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life) which may lawfully be undertaken and carried out by capitalists, and which the coy may think it expedient to undertake and carry out.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 178a.

Quarry
masters and paviors.

(1) To carry on business as quarry masters and stone merchants, and to buy, sell, get, work, shape, hew, carve, polish, crush, and prepare for market or use stone of all kinds.

(2) To carry on business as road and pavement makers and repairers and manufacturers of and dealers in lime, cement, mortar, concrete, and building materials of all kinds, and as builders and contractors for the execution of works and buildings of all kinds in the construction of which stone is required.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Form 179.

Mining.

(1) To purchase, take on lease, or otherwise acquire, any mines, mining rights, and metalliferous land in the county of — [or, the kingdom of —], or elsewhere, and any interest therein, and to explore, work, exercise, develop, and turn to account the same.

Add, if suitable, a reference to some agreement in the articles, as in Form 85.] (2) To crush, win, get, quarry, smelt, calcine, refine, dress, amalgamate, manipulate, and prepare for market, ore, metal, and mineral substances of all kinds, and to carry on any other metallurgical operations which may seem conducive to any of the coy's objects. (3) To buy, sell, manufacture, and deal in minerals, plant, machinery, implements, conveniences, provisions, and things capable of being used in connection with metallurgical operations, or required by workmen and others employed by the coy. (4) To construct, carry out, maintain, improve, manage, work, control, and superintend any roads, ways, tramways, railways, bridges, reservoirs, water-courses, aqueducts, wharves, furnaces, saw-mills, crushing works, hydraulic works, electrical works, factories, warehouses, shops, and other works and conveniences which may seem directly or indirectly conducive to any of the objects of the coy, and to contribute to, subsidise, or otherwise aid or take part in any such operations.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 179a.

Petroleum.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the business of extracting, pumping, drawing, transporting, and purifying and dealing in petroleum and other mineral oils.

(3) To search for, inspect, examine and explore, work, take on lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire lands and places which may seem to the coy capable or possibly capable of affording a supply of mineral oil, and to establish, utilize and turn to account pumping stations, pipe-lines and other works and conveniences suitable for the purpose.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) To acquire gold mines, mining rights and auriferous land [in Form 180.
Western Australia, or elsewhere in Australasia], and any interest (Gold mining.
therein, and in particular to acquire the mines known as, &c., situate &c., and with a view to the acquisition of such last-mentioned mines, to adopt and carry into effect, with or without modification, the agreement referred to in clause 3 of the company's articles of association.

(2) To search for, win, get, quarry, reduce, amalgamate, dress, refine and prepare for market, auriferous quartz and ore, and other mineral substances (whether auriferous or not) and precious stones, and generally to carry on any metallurgical operations which may seem conducive to any of the company's objects.

(3) To buy, sell, refine and deal in bullion, specie, coin and precious metals.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

In the case of mining companies it is very common to take still wider powers, e.g., to clear lands, make roads and other public works, open stores, &c., and to insert paragraphs 2, 4, 5, 10, 11, 13 of Form 178, p. 555, supra.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on the trades or businesses of iron masters, steel makers, steel converters, colliery proprietors, coke manufacturers, miners, smelters, engineers, tin-plate makers and iron founders, in all their respective branches.

(3) To search for, get, work, raise, make merchantable, sell and deal in iron, coal, ironstone, brick-earth, bricks, and other metals, minerals and substances, and to manufacture and sell patent fuel.

(4) To carry on business as manufacturers of chemicals and manures, distillers, dye makers, gas makers, metallurgists, and mechanical engineers, and to carry on, &c. [Form 97].

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 181.

Coal, iron, and steel.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.] (2) To purchase, charter, hire, build, or otherwise acquire, steam and other ships or vessels, with all equipments and furniture, and to employ the same in the conveyance of passengers, mails, troops, munitions of war, live stock, meat, corn and other produce, and of treasure and merchandise of all kinds, between such ports in any part of the world as may seem expedient, and to acquire any postal subsidies. (3) To buy, sell, prepare for market, and deal in coal, timber, live stock, meat, and other merchandise or produce. (4) To carry on the business of merchants, carriers by land and water, shipowners, warehousemen, wharfingers, barge owners, lightermen, forwarding agents, underwriters and insurers of ships, goods and other property, and ice merchants and refrigerating store keepers.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 182.

Shipowners.

Form 183.Single steamship.

(1) To purchase or otherwise acquire the [steam] ship "Strand" [or a steamship now in course of construction at — and intended to be called], together with all requisite equipment for the same [and with a view thereto to enter into the agreement, &c. Form 85].

(2) In the event of the loss or sale of the sd vessel or any substituted vessel, to build, purchase, contract for, or otherwise acquire from time to time one or more other vessels or shares therein, but so that the coy shall not work, trade with, or carry on the business of a shipowner with more than one vessel at one time, and in any such case the objects herein mentd shall apply to any vessel from time to time so purchased or acquired.

(3) To charter, hire, equip, load on commission, or otherwise use, repair, let out on hire, and trade with the sd vessel or substituted vessel.

(4) To purchase goods, produce, cattle and other live stock, and any other merchandise whatsoever, for the purpose of freighting the sd vessel or substituted vessel, and to dispose of the same by sale or otherwise.

(5) To carry on the business of a shipowner in all its branches with respect to the sd vessel or substituted vessel only.

(6) To employ as ship's husband and managing agent of and for the sd vessel or substituted vessel, any person, firm, or coy, whether limtd or not, and that although he or they may not be entld to any share or interest in the vessel in question, or in the coy.

(7) To effect all such insurances in relation to the carrying on of the coy's business and any risks incidental thereto as may seem expedient, and, if thought fit, to join or become a member of any mutual insurance coy.

(8) To subscribe to any assn, institution, or coy calculated to benefit the coy, or persons employed by the coy, or persons having dealings with the coy.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

The formation of "single ship" companies has made extensive progress at the chief ports. A well-known Liverpool firm were among the first to set the example. In the month of May, 1880, they transferred eighteen vessels to as many private companies, and since then large numbers of other firms and individuals have followed this example. Very commonly the company is formed for the purpose of buying a ship which is in course of construction. In some cases the capital is divided into sixty-four shares, but 107 shares are frequently adopted, and are found more convenient. All the shares, except, perhaps, a few for extra subscribers, are issued to the owner or owners as the consideration for the transfer or sale of the ship. The owner or owners are generally appointed manager or managers, and the control of the company is vested in them subject to general meetings of the members. Sometimes directors are appointed. The name is usually framed thus, "The Egeria Steamship Company, Limited," or "The Ship Carmen, Limited." (See supra, p. 450.) It seems probable that these private companies for working single ships will be generally adopted.

Their advantages are obvious, inasmuch as they invest the members with the clearly-defined powers and privileges of members of a statutory company, and relieve them from the difficulties and uncertainties incident to the ownership in common of a ship. Moreover, they relieve the members from many onerous liabilities in which they might be involved by the negligence, misconduct, or improvidence of their servants.

An English company may be the owner of a British ship, though some or even all the shareholders are foreigners. Reg. v. Arnaud, 9 Q. B. 806; and see Princess of Reuss v. Bos, L. R. 5 H. L. 176.

Inconvenience has in some cases been caused by the objects being too limited. e.g., after conversion of several ships, it was found that the funds of one company could not, as desired, be lent to another. No ad valorem duty is payable on the conveyance of a ship or on an agreement for sale of it. See p. 338, supra.

But a majority of the co-owners of a ship have no right to change the character of the ownership without the consent of all parties, e.g., by turning the co-ownership into a limited company, and if they do so a minority of holders of shares in the ship may obtain an order for sale. See The Hereward, (1895) P. 284.

Form 183.

1) To purchase, take in exchange, or otherwise acquire and hold ships and vessels, or any shares or interests in ships or vessels, and also shares, stocks, and securities of any cos possessed of, or interested in, any ships or vessels, and to maintain, repair, improve, alter, sell, exchange, or let out to hire or charter, or otherwise deal with and dispose of any ships, vessels, or shares, or securities aforesaid.

Form 184.

General
shipowners.

(2) To carry on all or any of the businesses of shipowners, ship-brokers, insurance brokers, managers of shipping ppty, freight contractors, carriers by land and sea, barge owners, lightermen, forwarding agents, ice merchants, refrigerating storekeepers, warehousemen, wharfingers, and general traders.

(3) To insure with any other coy or person against losses, damages, risks, and liabilities of all kinds which may affect this coy, and also to carry on the business of marine insurance and marine accidental insurance in all its respective branches, and to effect re-insurance and counter insurance.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 184a.

Lines of steamships.

(2) To establish and maintain lines of steam and other ships between the ports of — and —, and any other ports which may seem to the company expedient, and generally to transport passengers, mails, troops, munitions of war, live stock, meat, corn and other produce, and of treasure and merchandise of all kinds, and to purchase, charter, hire, build, or otherwise acquire ships and vessels accordingly, and to obtain postal subsidies and to comply with the terms on which the same are granted.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 185. (1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Carriers.

(2) To carry on all or any of the following businesses, that is to say, general carriers, railway and forwarding agents, warehousemen, bonded carmen, and common carmen, and any other businesses which can conveniently be carried on in connection with the above.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 186.

Meat and cattle
importers.

(a) To acquire and amalgamate the undertakings of, &c., and with a view thereto to adopt, &c. [Form 85].

(b) To carry on the business of importers of meat, live cattle, and sheep, and also that of dealers in cattle and sheep generally, and in all branches of such respective trades or businesses.

(c) To buy and sell by wholesale or retail in the United Kingdom, the Empire of — or elsewhere, all kinds of meat, and generally to carry on the trade or business of a meat salesman in all its branches.

(d) To acquire by purchase or otherwise estancias, ranches, and sheep farms, and to carry on the trades or businesses of cattle rearers and sheep farmers, fellmongering, tanning, and warehousing generally, preserved meat manufacturers, dealers in hides, fat, tallow, grease, offal, and other animal products.

(e) To erect and build abattoirs, freezing-houses, warehouses, sheds and other buildings necessary or expedient for the purposes of the coy.

(f) To purchase, charter, hire, build, or otherwise acquire, steam and other ships or vessels, and to employ the same in the conveyance of passengers, mails, and merchandise of all kinds, and to carry on the business of ship owners, barge owners, and lightermen in all its branches.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 186a.

Colour process
engravers, &c.

To carry on the business of colour process and half-tone engravers, stationers, printers, lithographers, stereotypers, electric photographic printers, photo-lithographers, engravers, die-sinkers, advertising agents, traders, draughtsmen, ink manufacturers, &c.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 186b.

Shoemakers.

To carry on business as boot and shoe manufacturers and dealers, leather merchants and manufacturers, leather dressers, tanners, dealers in hides, skins and other materials, manufacturers of and dealers in rubber goods.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 187.

(2) To carry on all or any of the businesses of importers, exporters, refrigerators, shipowners, shipbuilders, charterers of ships or other vessels, warehousemen, merchants, ship and insurance brokers, carriers, forwarding agents, wharfingers, sheep farmers, stock owners and breeders, pasturers, graziers, manufacturers of extract of meat, preservers and packers of provisions of all kinds, brewers, metallurgists, quarry owners, brickmakers, wool washers, tallow melters, tanners, artificial manure makers, coopers, carpenters, and mechanical engineers.

Colonial
importers.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 188.

(2) To carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in anatomical, orthopaedic, and surgical appliances of all kinds.

Surgical instrument
makers.

(3) To carry on the businesses of bootmakers, staymakers, corset makers, artificial eye and limb makers, bandage makers, crutch, chair, and stretcher makers, carriage makers, ambulance makers, chemists and druggists, and providers of all requisites for hospitals, patients, and invalids.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 189.

(2) To carry on the businesses of chemists, druggists, drysalter, oil and colour men, importers and manufacturers of and dealers in pharmaceutical, medicinal, chemical, industrial, and other preparations and articles, compounds, cements, oils, paints, pigments and varnishes, drug, dyeware, paint and colour grinders, makers of and dealers in proprietary articles of all kinds, and of electrical, chemical, photographic, surgical, and scientific apparatus and materials.

Chemists.

(3) To buy, sell, manufacture, refine, manipulate, import, export, and deal in all substances, apparatus, and things capable of being used in any such business as aforesaid, or required by any customers of or persons having dealings with the company, either by wholesale or retail.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

Form 190

(2) To carry on the business of jobmasters, omnibus, cab, fly and other public or private conveyance proprietors, livery-stable keepers, horse, omnibus, carriage, cab, fly and cart dealers, omnibus, coach, carriage, cab, fly, cart or other vehicle manufacturers and repairers, coach-house and stable builders and horse breeders and dealers, farmers, graziers, dealers in corn, straw, fodder of all kinds, carriers, and saddlery and harness makers in all their respective branches.

Omnibus proprietors, &c.

Form 190.

3. To manufacture, buy, sell, exchange, alter or improve and deal in vehicles of any kind so constructed as to progress by means of automatic power, whether by means of electricity, steam, gas, oil, or otherwise.

4. To manufacture, buy, sell, exchange, alter, improve, manipulate, prepare for market, and otherwise deal in all kinds of plant, machinery, apparatus, tools, utensils, substances, materials, and things necessary or convenient for carrying on any of the above specified businesses or proceedings, or usually dealt in by persons engaged in the like.

Form 190a.

Motor
omnibuses.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To carry on in the City of — and elsewhere in the kingdom of — the business of running motor omnibuses of all kinds and on such lines as the company may think fit, and to transport passengers and goods, and generally to carry on the business of common carriers.

(3) To carry on the business of manufacturers of motor omnibuses, and generally of all kinds of omnibuses and vehicles for the transport of persons and goods, whether propelled or moved by electricity, steam, oil, vapour, or other motive or mechanical power.

(4) To carry on the business of mechanical engineers in all its branches and carriage builders in all their respective branches.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 191.

Patent medicines.

(1) To acquire and take over as a going concern the undertaking of —, and all or any of its assets and liabilities, and in particular the recipes and full information as to the processes of manufacturing, and the right to manufacture and deal in certain medicinal preparations known as, &c., and with a view thereto, &c.

(2) To carry on the manufacture and sale of the said medicines and preparations, and generally to carry on the business of manufacturers, buyers, and sellers of and dealers in all kinds of medicines and medical preparations and drugs whatsoever.

(3) To carry on all or any of the businesses of chemists, druggists, chemical manufacturers, and dealers, drysalts, importers, and manufacturers of and dealers in pharmaceutical and medicinal preparations.

(4) To manufacture, buy, sell, and deal in mineral waters, wines, cordials, liqueurs, soups, broths, and other restoratives or food, specially suitable or deemed to be suitable for invalids and convalescents.

(5) To assist, promote, establish, and contribute to, manage, control or support sick funds, and any associations or institutions for providing, upon any terms or conditions, medicines, drugs, medical and surgical preparations and apparatus, and restoratives or food used during sickness or illness.

(6) To adopt such means of making known the products of the coy as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the Press, by circulars, by purchase and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals, and by granting prizes, rewards and donations.

(7) To construct, maintain, and alter any building or works necessary or convenient for the purposes of the coy.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

As to the rights of co-owners to use secret process, see Heyl-Dia v. Edmunds, W. N. (1899) 222.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) To manufacture, buy, sell, prepare for market, and deal in foods of all kinds suitable for infants and invalids, and in particular, condensed milk, cocoa.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Form 191.

Form 191a.

Infant and invalid food.

1. [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]

2. To cultivate tea, coffee, cinchona, rubber and other produce, and to carry on the business of tea planters in all its branches, to carry on and work the business of cultivators, winners and buyers of every kind of vegetable, mineral, or other produce of the soil, to prepare, manufacture and render marketable any such produce, and to sell, dispose of and deal in any such produce, either in its prepared, manufactured or raw state, and either by wholesale or retail.

3. To acquire the business and all or any part of the assets and ppty of any other coy.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 192.

Tea, &c. planters.

(1) [If necessary, insert one of the Forms 85 to 96.]

(2) Generally to purchase, take on lease, or otherwise acquire, hold and work any lands producing rubber trees, or suitable for the planting, cultivation and growth of rubber trees, and any concessions, rights, powers, and privileges over any such lands.

(3) To carry on the business of planters and cultivators of rubber plants, and any other plants producing anything of a similar character.

(4) To carry on business as tea-planters, cinchona planters, &c.

[Add selection from Forms 177 and 178, and also selections from the common Forms 297 et seq.]

Form 192a.

Rubber.

Form 193.

Saw mills.

1. [If necessary, insert one of Forms 85 to 96.]
2. To carry on business as timber merchants, saw-mill proprietors, and timber growers, and to buy, sell, grow, prepare for market, manipulate, import, export, and deal in timber and wood of all kinds, and to manufacture and deal in articles of all kinds in the manufacture of which timber or wood is used, and to carry on business as shipowners and carriers by land and sea, and, so far as may be deemed expedient, the business of general merchants, and to buy, clear, plant, and work timber estates, and to carry on any other businesses which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with any of the above, or calculated directly or indirectly to render profitable or enhance the value of the coy's ppty or rights for the time being.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 194.

American railroad.

- (1) To purchase or otherwise acquire the whole or any of the ppty and rights formerly possessed by the N. Railroad Coy, but recently sold under certain decrees and orders of the Circuit Court of the United States, for — in a suit, &c., and with a view thereto to enter into an agreement [Form 85].
- (2) To equip, work, maintain, improve, and operate the sd railroad and any other railroads and tramways which the coy may be possessed of or interested in, or over which it may have running powers.
- (3) To construct, purchase, take on lease, or otherwise acquire, any railways or tramways, which may seem capable of being worked in connection with any of the coy's lines for the time being, or calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the coy, and to acquire rights over or in connection with any such railways or tramways.
- (4) To carry on the business of a telegraph and telephone coy in their respective branches.
- (5) To carry on the business of rolling stock manufacturers, mechanical engineers, shipowners, shipbuilders, carriers by land or water, warehousemen, forwarding agents, and insurance agents against loss or damage to goods by accident or otherwise.
- (6) [Add, if desired, the clauses 1, 2 and 3 of Form 178, and some of the clauses of Form 142.]
- (7) To improve, work, and facilitate the navigation of any rivers, lakes, canals, and other waters.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

When a foreign company, e.g., a railway company, gets into difficulties, it is not at all uncommon to form an English company to acquire and work the undertaking. In some cases where this has been done the line has been bought up in the first instance by a financier, who subsequently has sold his bargain to the company in consideration of deferred shares. Occasionally it is found desirable to form a local company to work the line, all the shares being held by nominees of the English company. Sometimes the English company is formed in the first place to acquire certain securities of the foreign company.

and then to acquire the line by foreclosure. The above form can readily be adapted to a company formed to acquire a concession, e.g., "To acquire and undertake a concession granted by the Republic of — for the construction of a railway from — to —, and with a view, &c., and to carry out and perform the works and obligations specified in the said concession, with or without modification."

If the foreign company has been acting under statutory powers, difficulties may arise as to the transfer of such powers.

Form 194.

(1) To construct, purchase, lease, or otherwise acquire tramways and light railways in the county of —, and in the vicinity thereof, and in particular to enter into and carry into effect the agreement referred to in clause 3 of the company's articles of association.

Form 195.Tramways.

2) To equip and maintain and work by electricity, steam, horse, or other mechanical power all tramways and railways belonging to the company, or in which the company may be interested.

(3) To carry on the business of tramway, railway, omnibus, and van proprietors and carriers of passengers and goods, and of manufacturers of and dealers in tramways, carriages, trucks, locomotives, accumulators, dynamos, and other chattels and effects and conveniences required for making, maintaining, equipping and working tramways.

(4) To carry on in the town of — and, and in the vicinity thereof, the business of suppliers of electricity, whether for the purpose of light, heat, motive power, telephonic, telegraphic, industrial or other purposes, and generally to provide, work, maintain, and carry out all necessary cables, wires, accumulators, lamps, exchanges, telephones, and apparatus connected with the generation and distribution, supplying, accumulation and employment of electricity.

(5) To carry on any other business, manufacturing or otherwise (except the issuing of policies of assurance on human life), which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently, &c.

(6) To enter into contracts with any other company or persons as to interchange of traffic, running powers, or otherwise, which the company may think expedient.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Under the Tramways Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 78), the Board of Trade can make provisional orders in certain cases authorizing the construction of tramways. One of the rules of the Board provides that if the promoters require incorporation, they must register themselves under the Companies Act, 1908, and many companies have been registered under this rule. The rules can be obtained from the publishers of this work, and forms of provisional orders will be found in the Schedule to the Confirmatory Acts passed each year. And see Wheeler's Practice of Private Bills, 269.

Tramway undertakings can be sold with the sanction of the Board of Trade. Sects. 43 and 44 of the Act of 1870. Hartlepool Electric Tramways Co. v. West Hartlepool Corp., 9 L. G. R. 1095. But it has now been held by the Form 195. Court of Appeal, overruling a series of decisions, that a tramway company cannot delegate its power of sale to its debenture holders. Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 36.

And on the same principle—that an undertaking sanctioned by Parliament as one of public utility must not be interfered with or destroyed—there is no power to appoint a receiver and manager. Gardner v. London, Chatham & Dover Co., 2 Ch. 202, applies.

Form 196.

Gasworks
company.

(1) [Insert, if necessary, one of Forms 85 to 96.] (2) To manufacture, sell, and supply light in the town of —, and elsewhere in the parishes of, &c., in the county of —, and to carry on the business of a gasworks coy in all its branches. (3) To deal with, manufacture, and render saleable, coke, coal-tar, pitch, asphaltum, ammoniacal liquor, and other residual products obtained in the manufacture of gas. (4) To construct, manufacture, and maintain works for holding, receiving, and purifying gas, and all other buildings and works, meters, pipes, fittings, machinery, apparatus, and appliances convenient or necessary for the purposes of the coy. (5) To manufacture, buy, sell, let on hire, and deal in, stoves, engines, and other apparatus and conveniences which may seem calculated, directly or indirectly, to promote the consumption of gas.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

The Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, enables the Board of Trade in certain cases to make provisional orders, authorizing the construction of gas and water works and the acquisition of land, &c. One of the rules of the Board is—as in the case of tramways, supra—that if the promoters desire incorporation, they must register themselves under the Companies Act, 1908, and a considerable number of companies have been formed in compliance with this rule. Copies of the rules can be obtained from the publishers of this work, and forms of orders can be found in the schedule to the Confirmatory Acts passed each year. See, also, the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 89), as repealed by S. L. Rev. Act, 1882; and see 38 & 39 Vict. c. 55, and 45 & 46 Vict. c. 242; also Michael and Will, 5th ed. (1901), and Reeson's Gas and Water, ed. 1902.

It is now generally thought desirable to take powers to supply electric light as well as gas. See Form 147.

Form 197.

Exchange.

(1) To provide, regulate, and maintain a suitable building, room, or rooms, for a [—] exchange, in the city of — [and with a view thto to enter into the agreemt, &c., Form 85]; to adjust controversies between its members: to establish just and equitable principles in the — trade (hmftr called the trade): to maintain uniformity in rules, regulations, and usages of the trade; to adopt standards of classification in the trade; to acquire, preserve, and disseminate useful information connected with the trade throughout all markets: to decrease the local risks attendant upon the business.

and generally to promote the trade of the city of . . . , increase its amount, and augment the facilities with which it may be conducted.

(2) To communicate with chambers of commerce and other mercantile and public bodies throughout the world, and concert and promote measures for the protection of the trade and persons engaged therein.

(3) To subscribe to, become a member of, subsidise, and co-operate with, any other association, whether incorporated or not, whose objects are altogether, or in part, similar to those of this coy, and to procure from, and communicate to, any such association, such information as may be likely to forward the objects of the society.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

Form 197.

To establish, maintain, and conduct a club 'of a non-political character' for the accommodation of members of the coy and their friends, and to provide a club-house and other conveniences, and generally to afford to members and their friends all the usual privileges, advantages, convenience, and accommodation of a club. [Add reference to an agreement, if necessary, as in Form 85.]

Form 198.

Club.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

A club can be formed as a company limited by shares or by guarantee. The latter form is the more convenient. The necessary capital can be provided out of entrance fees or by way of loan.

Sometimes a club is formed on the footing that the members of the company are to be the members of the club, as in the above form, and sometimes on the footing that the company shall own the club house, and that the club shall be a separate unincorporated association—a members' club. In the past, one reason for making the club a separate association was, that the licensing difficulty was thus avoided. See Graff v. Evans, 8 Q. B. D. 373, in which it was held that a bona fide unincorporated members' club was not bound to take out a licence for the sale of intoxicating liquors on the ground that the members were joint holders of the property, and that where a member took and paid for goods the transaction was not a sale, as he was himself a part owner of the goods. On the other hand, it was held that a proprietary club required a licence. Bouryer v. Percy Supper Club, (1903) 2 Q. B. 154; National Sporting Club v. Cope (1900), 48 W. R. 446. But now, by the Licensing Act, 1902 (2 Edw. 7, c. 24), Pt. III., all clubs in which intoxicating liquor is supplied to the members or their guests have to be registered under the Act, and there are heavy penalties for supplying or keeping liquor in an unregistered club. And by sect. 24, intoxicating liquor shall not be supplied in a club for consumption off the premises except to a member on the premises, thus modifying Davies v. Bennett, (1902) 1 K. B. 666. Sect. 28 of the Act provides for striking a club off the register. See Plaistow Working Men's Club v. Harrod, (1910) 1 K. B. 382. Where a company owns a club house and the club is a separate association, it is very commonly provided that no person shall be a member of the club unless he holds a share in the company, and that any person ceasing to be a member of the company shall cease to be a member of the club. The object of this is to prevent divergence of interest. "Clubs," says Lord Lindley, in Wise v. Perpetual Trustee Co., (1903) A. C. P. C. 139, 148, "are associations of a peculiar nature; they are societies, the members of which are perpetually Form 198. changing. They are not partnerships. They are not associations for gain, and the feature which distinguishes them from other societies is that no member as such becomes liable to pay to the fund of the society or to anyone else any money beyond the subscription required by the rules of the club to be paid so long as he remains a member. It is upon this fundamental condition, not usually expressed but understood by everyone, that clubs are formed, and this distinguishing feature has been often judicially recognized." But these expressions relate to members' clubs, not to clubs formed as companies. See further, Encyclopedia of the Laws of England, 2nd ed.

Form 199. To provide a club-house and other conveniences for the use of the members of the — club now in course of formation, and if any club established in succession thereto; and to furnish and maintain the same, and to permit the same to be used by the members of the said club and their friends, either gratuitously, or upon such terms as shall be agreed on, and, if thought fit, to manage the affairs of the club, or any of them, and generally to do whatever may seem best calculated to promote the interests of the club, and in particular to lend money to or subsidise the club. Add, if necessary, reference to some agreement, as in Form 85.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 200. (1) To afford to its members all the usual privileges, advantages, conveniences, and accommodation of a club. (2) To take over the effects and liabilities of the present unincorporated assn, known as the — [Liberal] club. Refer to an agreement, if necessary, Form 85. (3) To promote the cause of [Liberalism], and to provide means of social intercourse between persons professing [Liberal] principles. (4) To consider and discuss all questions affecting the interests of the community, or the alteration or administration of the law. (5) To procure the delivery of lectures on political and other subjects. (6) To form and maintain a library of political, historical, and other literature in —. (7) To render voluntary aid to [Liberal] candidates in the parliamentary, municipal, and other elections in the boroughs of — and the counties of —. (8) To petition Parliament. (9) To purchase, hire, or otherwise acquire, for the purposes of the club, any real or personal ppty, and in particular any lands, buildings, furniture, club and household effects, utensils, books, newspapers, periodicals, musical instruments, fittings, apparatus, appliances, conveniences, and accommodation, and, so far as the law or the licence of the Board of Trade may from time to time allow, to sell, demise, let, mortgage, or dispose of the same. (10) To erect, maintain, improve, or alter any buildings for the purposes of the club. (11) To borrow or raise money by the issue of or upon bonds, debentures, bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other

Club (political).

obligations or securities of the club, or by mortgage or charge of all or any pt of the ppty of the club. (12) To do, &c. Form 200.

Add selection of common forms. Forms 97 et seq.

The above is taken from the memorandum of a Liberal club which was registered by licence of the Board of Trade without the word "limited." See p. 498.

But the Board will not now license clubs to dispense with the word "limited."

1) To support and protect the character, status, and interest of the legal profession generally, and particularly of solors practising within a circuit having a radius of twenty-five miles from the Guildhall of the city of —. (2) To promote honourable practice, to repress malpractice, to settle disputed points of practice, and to decide all questions of professional usage or courtesy between or amongst solors. (3) To consider all questions affecting the interests of the profession, and to initiate and watch over, and, if necessary, to petition Parliament or promote deputations in relation to general measures affecting the profession, and to procure changes of law or practice, and the promotion of improvements in the principles and administration of the law. (4) To acquire by purchase, donation, or otherwise, the library now belonging to the society known as the — Law Society, and to maintain, extend, and improve such library. (5) To provide rooms and other facilities for the holding and conducting of sales of ppty, meetings of creditors, arbitration meetings, and other like matters. (6) To acquire by purchase, taking on lease, or otherwise, lands and buildings, and all other ppty, real and personal, which the society, for the purposes thof, may from time to time think proper to acquire, and which may lawfully be held by them, and to re-sell, under-lease, or sub-let, surrender, turn to account, or dispose of, such ppty, or any part thof, and to erect upon any such land any building, for the purposes of the society, and to alter or add to any building erected upon any such land. (7) To borrow [&c.]. (8) To encourage the study of law by articled clerks of solors, and for that purpose the donation, on such terms and conditions as may from time to time be prescribed, of a prize or prizes, or other rewards or distinctions. (9) To promote information on legal subjects by lectures, discussions, books, correspondence with public bodies and individuals, or otherwise. (10) [Add selection of common forms. Forms 97 et seq.] Form 201.
Law society.

Taken from a form recently passed by the Board of Trade. This form, with slight variation, has also been adopted in the case of societies of local accountants.

1. To protect the members of the society against persons whose character or circumstances render them unworthy of mercantile credit, and to facilitate the prompt and economical realisation of the Form 202.
Trade protection.

Form 202. estates of bankrupts and persons making or seeking to make arrangements or compositions with their creditors.

2. To diffuse information as to sound principles of trading, and to impress upon the mercantile community the necessity of maintaining an intimate knowledge of the state of their affairs by periodical investigations, and by keeping correct sets of business books.

3. To procure information for members as to the standing and responsibility of parties with whom they propose to transact business.

4. To collect debts for members upon such terms as may be determined.

5. To communicate with chambers of commerce, and other mercantile and public bodies throughout the United Kingdom, and concert and promote measures for the protection and advancement of trade and traders.

6. To consider, originate, and support improvements in the commercial laws.

7. To subscribe to, become a member of, and co-operate with any other assen, whether incorporated or not, whose objects are, altogether or in part, similar to those of this society, and to procure from and communicate to any such assen such information as may be likely to forward the objects of this society.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Taken from a form which has been approved by the Board of Trade on several occasions.

Form 203.

Chamber of commerce.

(1) To promote and protect the home, colonial and foreign trade and commerce, and the manufactures of the United Kingdom, and in particular the trade, commerce, and manufactures of the [borough] of — (2) To consider all questions connected with such trade, commerce, and manufactures. (3) To promote or oppose legislative and other measures affecting such trade, commerce, and manufactures. (4) To collect and circulate statistics, and other information, relating to such trade, commerce, and manufactures. (5) To act as arbitrator in the settlement of disputes arising out of commercial transactions. (6) To borrow any moneys required for the purposes of the chamber upon such securities as may be determined.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Taken from a form passed by the Board of Trade on several occasions.

1. To take over the whole or any of the assets and liabilities of the unincorporated assen known as the Builders' Society, established 1834, and with a view thereto to enter into an agreement, &c. [Form 85.] Form 204. Builders' institute.

2. To promote the conson and discussion of all questions affecting the building trade (which expression in this memdum includes the trade of builders and of contractors for the execution of public and private works, and all ancillary and allied trades, and every branch of any such trade), and generally to watch over and protect the interests of persons engaged in the building trade.

3. To give the Legislature and public bodies and others facilities of conferring with and ascertaining the views of persons engaged in the building trade as regards matters directly or indirectly affecting that trade.

4. To confer with the Royal Institute of British Architects, the County Councils, Local Boards, and any other public bodies, in regard to all matters affecting the building trade.

5. To originate and promote improvements in the law, and to support or oppose alterations therein, and to effect improvements in administration, and, for the purposes afoe, to petition Parliament, and take such other steps and proceedings as may be deemed expedient.

6. To diffuse among its members information on all matters affecting the building trade, and to print, publish, issue, and circulate such papers, periodicals, books, circulars, and other literary undertakings as may seem conducive to any of these objects.

7. To improve and elevate the technical and general knowledge of persons engaged in, or about to engage in, the building trade, or in any employment, manual or otherwise, in connection therewith, and with a view thereto to provide for the delivery of lectures and the holding of classes, and to test by examination or otherwise the competence of such persons, and to award certificates and distinctions, and to institute and establish scholarships, grants, rewards, and other benefactions.

8. To promote excellence in the construction of buildings, and just and honourable practice in the conduct of business, and to suppress malpractice.

9. To establish, form, and maintain a library and collection of models, designs, drawings, and other articles of interest in connection with the building trade.

10. To arrange and promote the adoption of equitable forms of contracts and other documents used in the building trade, and to encourage the settlement of disputes by arbitration, and to act as or nominate arbitrators and umpires on such terms and in such cases as may seem expedient.

11. To encourage the discovery of and investigate and make known the nature and merits of inventions which may seem capable of being used by persons engaged in the building trade, and to acquire any patents or licences relating to any such inventions with a view to the use thereof by the members of the institute and others, either gratuitously or upon such terms as may seem expedient.

Form 204.

12. To establish, subsidise, promote, co-operate with, receive into union, become a member of, act as or appoint trustees, agents, or delegates for, control, manage, superintend, lend monetary assistance to, or otherwise assist any associations and institutions, incorporated or not incorporated, with objects altogether or in part similar to those of the institute and not being a trade union.

13. To establish, undertake, superintend, administer, and contribute to any charitable or benevolent fund from whence may be made donations or advances to deserving persons who may be or have been engaged in the building trade, or connected with any person engaged therein, and to contribute to or otherwise assist any charitable or benevolent institutions or undertakings.

14. To undertake and execute any trusts which may seem to the institute conducive to any of its objects.

15. To provide facilities for social intercourse between the members of the institute and their friends, and, if thought fit, to afford them all or any of the usual privileges, advantages, conveniences, and accommodation of a club.

16. To admit any persons (whether eligible or not eligible for membership) to be associates or honorary members of the institute on such terms, and to confer on them such rights and privileges as may seem expedient.

17. To borrow any moneys required for the purposes of the institute upon such terms and on such securities as may be determined.

18. Subject to the provisions of sect. 19 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to purchase, take, lease, exchange, hire, or otherwise acquire any real and personal property and any rights or privileges necessary or convenient for the purposes of the institute. To construct, alter, and maintain any buildings required for the purposes of the institute.

19. To obtain an Act of Parliament for the dissolution of the institute and the re-incorporation of its members for any of these objects, and any other Act which may seem conducive to any of these objects.

20. To sell, improve, manage, develop, lease, mortgage, dispose of, turn to account, or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property of the institute.

21. To invest the moneys of the institute not immediately required upon such securities or otherwise in such manner as may from time to time be determined.

22. To do all such other lawful things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects or any of them.

Provided that the institute shall not support with its funds or impose on its members or endeavour to procure the observance of any regulation which, if an object of the institute, would make it a trade union.

Form 204

Passed by the Board of Trade.

(1) To promote commerce, and in particular in relation to the industry. — Form 204a.

(2) To enable assons for the time being and from time to time of — manufacturers to unite or co-operate by becoming members or associates of the coy, by themselves or their nominees, and to act as the representative mouthpiece of such assons.

A federation of trade societies.

(3) To promote the settlement of disputes by conciliation or arbitration, and to assist in the formation, development, and maintenance of boards of conciliation and arbitration.

Add clauses 3, 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 22 of Form 204.

Passed by the Board of Trade.

(1) To acquire and take over, &c. Form 85.

Form 205.

(2) To carry on the business of soap manufacturers.

Soap manufacturers.

(3) To buy, sell, manufacture, refine, prepare, and deal in all kinds of oils and oleaginous and saponaceous substances, and all kinds of unguents and ingredients.

(4) To carry on business as pharmaceutical, manufacturing, and general chemists and druggists, and manufacturers of and dealers in all kinds of toilet requisites, and manufacturers of all kinds of boxes and cases wholly of card, wood, metal or otherwise, and printers, colour printers, publishers, stationers, candle makers, manufacturers of perfumes, collectors of flowers and perfume-producing vegetation.

Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.

(1) To encourage temperance and to discourage intemperance, and with a view thto to adopt all such measures as may seem to the coy expedient, whether huftr specified or not. Form 206.

Public-house trust.

(2) To manage and conduct public-house and other licensed premises so that whilst all reasonable facilities shall be given for the purchase of alcoholic drinks, equal or greater facilities shall be given for the purchase and consumption of food and non-alcoholic drinks of the best quality in the most attractive form, and that there shall be no pressure, temptation, or inducement to purchase alcoholic drinks,

Form 206. and that it shall be in the interest of those employed to sell non-alcoholic drinks and food rather than alcoholic drinks.

(3) To carry on the business of public-house, restaurant, inn, tavern, beerhouse, hotel, refreshment room and canteen keepers and licensed victuallers; and to buy, sell, manufacture and deal in provisions and goods of all kinds which may be conveniently supplied in connection with any of the sd businesses, and to establish and conduct clubs, reading, writing, and newspaper rooms and libraries.

(15) To make provision for the applicon of any of the profits or assets of the coy to any charitable, benevolent, provident or public purposes whatsoever which may seem expedient, and whether the same shall or shall not be conducive to any of the above objects.

[Add selection of general objects, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 207. To oppose and resist any proceedings in Parliament or elsewhere which may seem calculated to deprive the inhabitants of — of their accustomed rights over the open space, known as the — Common, and to watch over and protect those rights, &c.

Protection of common rights.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 208. To promote the study, practice and knowledge of music in the town of —, and the neighbourhood, and to give or arrange concerts and musical entertainments, and to employ writers and composers, and to purchase copyrights, and to give prizes and awards, &c.

Musical society.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

Form 209. To acquire the buildings and grounds known as —, formerly belonging to the poet —, and to maintain and preserve the same, and to collect and preserve memorials of the sd poet, and to open the same for public inspection on such terms as may seem expedient, and to promote the study of the works of the sd poet, both at home and abroad, &c.

Memorial to poet.

[Add selection of common forms, Forms 97 et seq.]

CAPITAL CLAUSES

The fifth clause of the memorandum of association of a company limited by shares must specify "the amount of the capital with which the company proposes to be registered, divided into shares of a certain fixed amount." See sect. 3 of the Act of 1908, replacing sect. 8 of the Act of 1862, and Form 79, supra, p. 490. The Act allows a company complete freedom as to its capital. It may be fixed at a high figure or at a low one, at, say, 1*l.* divided into 240 shares of 1*d.* each, or at, say, 10,000,000*l.* divided into 1*l.* shares; if thought expedient, the clause can divide the shares into different classes, whether preferred, ordinary, deferred, founders', or otherwise; but even where there is no such division in the share capital, it is customary to provide therein for the issue of shares with preferential or special rights attached. This practice owed its origin to the doubts (occasioned by the decision in Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff Co. (1865), 2 De G. J. & S. 672) whether, in the absence of qualifying words, the memorandum did not by implication place all shares on an equality, and therefore preclude the issue of preference shares. But Harrison v. Mexican Rail. Co., 19 Eq. 358, and South Durham Brewery Co., 31 C. D. 261 (C. A.), made it clear that this implication of equality could be controlled by apt provisions in the original articles of association, and the Court of Appeal in Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 361, in effect decided that there was really no such implication of equality arising on the memorandum. Hence, the words are no longer necessary: they are a survival only from past controversies, and are inserted merely to preclude discussion.

Requirements of the Act.

Provision for issue of preference shares.

Besides these words, it will be seen that others are added to the effect that where shares are issued with any preferential or qualified rights or privileges attached thereto, such rights shall not be alterable otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the accompanying articles of association. The object of these words is to fortify the position of such shares by precluding the alteration of the rights attached to a class without the consent of the holders of a specified majority of the members of the class. This protective proviso is commonly deemed expedient having regard to the decisions in Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 361; and Allen v. Gold Reefs of West Africa, supra, that preferential and other special rights attached only by the articles may be altered by special resolution. See supra, p. 480.

Protection against alteration of preferential rights.

Where it is intended at once to divide the initial capital into two or more classes of shares, it is generally desirable to effect the division in the memorandum, and to set out therein the rights and privileges and conditions to be attached, e.g., as in Form 210. At one time there was a question whether, where rights and privileges were attached in this way by the memorandum, it was allowable to make therein provision for altering those rights if occasion arose, the suggestion being on the authority of Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376, that the specification of the rights in the memorandum made them a condition, and so unalterable by sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 (now replaced by sect. 41 of the Act of 1908).

When to specify preferential and special rights in memorandum.

Power to modify rights may be reserved.

*Ashbury v.
Watson*
distinguished.

This important question came before the Court of Appeal in Welsbach Incandescient Gas Co. (1904) 1 Ch. 87. There the capital was, by the memorandum of association, divided into several classes of shares, with special rights attached thereto, as in Form 215, infra, but the memorandum (which was settled by the writer) also contained express power to modify those rights. See paragraph (f) of the form. Circumstances having arisen which rendered it desirable to exercise this power of modification, it was (under the advice of the writer) exercised in connection with a reduction of capital, and the Court was then asked to sanction such reduction. Buckley, J., held the power to have been validly exercised and sanctioned the reduction, and the Court of Appeal affirmed this decision, holding that the power to modify was valid, and that Ashbury v. Watson, supra, was distinguishable on the ground that there the rights were unconditionally attached by the memorandum, whereas the presence in the memorandum of the Welsbach Company of the power to modify showed that the intention was to attach the rights conditionally, not unconditionally, and that sect. 12 of the Act of 1862 (sect. 7 of the Act of 1908) did not make such rights unalterable. The difficulties discussed in the last edition but one of this work were thus removed. Briefly then, where the initial capital is, by the memorandum, to be divided into several classes of shares, it is desirable, as a rule, to insert therein power by reference to the articles or otherwise to modify those rights, whether there is a likelihood of the share capital being consolidated or equalised or not. But if it is contemplated that it may be desirable before long to abrogate altogether the distinction between the classes and to unify them, it is best to effect the division into classes by the articles, with power to modify or deal with the same [clause 50, infra, p. 685], in which case, if they are altered so as to unify the classes, there will be nothing in the memorandum to call attention to the original division.

In framing the capital clause, where there are to be several classes of shares, the following points, as well as those above referred to, must be borne in mind:—

1. As to Preference Shares.

Preference
shares.

- (a) Are they to confer a right to a cumulative dividend, i.e., a dividend which, if the profits of one year are not sufficient to pay it, will accumulate as a charge against subsequent profits; or are they to be non-cumulative, i.e., payable as to each year only if and so far as the profits of that year suffice?

Primâ facie where the clause defining the preferential rights declares that the preference shares are to be entitled to a preferential dividend at a specified rate per cent., the dividend is cumulative. See Henry v. The Great Northern Co., 1 De G. & J. 606; Webb v. Earle, 20 Eq. 556; but for the benefit of the lay mind the word "cumulative" is sometimes inserted in the definition of rights, e.g., a fixed cumulative preferential dividend, &c. This prevents any mistake.

Cumulative
dividend

If the dividend is to be non-cumulative, the clause must be carefully framed accordingly, e.g., it should say that "the preference shares are to confer the right to receive out of the profits of each year a preferential dividend for such year" at the specified rate per cent., or the definition may declare that the profits of each year available for dividend are to be applied first to the payment of a dividend for such year on the preference shares at the specified rate, and that the surplus shall be applicable to dividend on the other shares. All that is necessary is that it should appear with sufficient clearness that the preferential dividend for each year is to come out of the profits of that particular year only. If this intention is plain, the Court will give effect to it even though imperfectly expressed. Staples v. Eastman Photographic Materials Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 303; Re Taylor's Trusts, (1905) 1 Ch. 734. In addition to a fixed preferential dividend, preference shares are sometimes given the right to participate in surplus profits.

Non-cumulative
dividend.

See further, infra, p. 814.

These rights as to dividend are only some of the special rights and privileges commonly attached to preference shares.

See further, infra, pp. 814-819 et seq.

The right of a preference shareholder is primâ facie confined to a preferential dividend. Unless otherwise provided he is not entitled to have his capital on a winding-up paid off in priority to the other shareholders (London India Rubber Co., 5 Eq. 519); but preferential rights as to capital may be and often are attached. Then the clause sometimes runs that the preference shareholders are to be entitled, not only to a preferential dividend, but to priority as regards capital in the winding-up. If so, the capital paid up on the preference shares in accordance with the clause must, in winding-up, be paid off out of the surplus assets before the ordinary shareholder can get anything.

No preference in capital unless provided

See Bangor, &c. Co., 20 Eq. 59. The ordinary shareholders are then to be paid off, and any surplus remaining is distributable prima facie among all the members in proportion to their shares. Birch v. Cropper, 14 App. Cas. 525.

But very commonly the preference shareholders are precluded from sharing in such surplus, and in such cases the further questions arise—

- (b) Are the preference shares to confer the right to participate in surplus profits, e.g., after a like dividend in each year has been paid on the ordinary shares?
- (c) Are they to confer the right in a winding-up to priority in return of capital?
- (d) Are they in a winding-up to confer a right to participate in the surplus after paying off the whole of the paid-up capital?
- (e) Are they to have any special voting rights or none?

See these questions further considered, infra, p. 814.

2. As to Founders' Shares.

- (a) Are they to confer a right to a percentage of the divisible profits of each year or of the surplus profits after paying specified dividends on the other shares?
- (b) What rights are they to confer in a winding-up?
- (c) Are they to confer any special voting rights?

See further as to classes of shares, pp. 812 et seq., infra.

Form 210.

Cumulative preference
shares.

The capital is 400,000*l.*, divided into 20,000 preference shares of 10*l.* each, and 20,000 ordinary shares of 10*l.* each; and such preference shares shall confer the right to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being paid up thereon, and shall rank as regards return of capital in priority to the ordinary shares but shall not confer the right to any further participation in profits or assets. And upon any increase of capital the coy. is to be at liberty to issue any new shares with any preferential, deferred, qualified, or special rights, privileges or conditions attached thereto. [The rights for the time being attached to the preference shares in the initial capital or to any shares having preferential, deferred, qualified, or special rights, privileges or conditions attached thereto, may be altered or dealt with in accordance with clause [50] of the accompanying arts of assen, but not otherwise.]

In framing such a clause it must be considered whether the dividend is or is not to be cumulative (see supra, p. 576), and whether in a winding-up the preference shares are to confer a right to participate in surplus assets after paying off the whole of the paid-up capital. Prima facie they are entitled so to participate. Birk v. Cropper, Re Bridgewater Navigation Co., 14 A. C. 525. Form 210.

If it is desired that they should so participate, omit the words in brackets, which commence "but shall not confer." See further, infra, Forms 213 and 214, and p. 812.

It seems that under such a clause pre-preference shares might be created upon any increase of capital. Underwood v. London Music Hall, (1901) 2 Ch. 309; Welsbach Incandescent Gas Light Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 87. If desired, it can be altered by adding "but not so as to prejudice the preferential rights hereby attached to the preference shares in the initial capital."

Sometimes after the word "thereon" the words following are inserted: "and the right in the event of a winding-up for the purpose of reconstruction or amalgamation to a bonus of [15] per cent. on their nominal value." In such case insert before the words "in priority" the words "and the said bonus."

As to the meaning of reconstruction or amalgamation, see infra, Chapters XX. and XXII., and Wild v. South African Supply, &c. Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268.

The rights and privileges hereby attached to the sd preference shares and preferred ordinary shares may be altered or dealt with as regards each class by an agreement in writing made by some member of the class on behalf of the class and ratified by the holders of at least two-thirds of the shares of the class, but not otherwise. Form 211.

Power to alter without reference to the articles.

The rights hby attached to the preference [and founders'] shares Form 211a.
resply. may be altered by special resolution passed with the approval in writing of the holders of two-thirds of the issued shares of such class, but not otherwise. Form 211a.

Power to alter.

See also paragraph (f) of Form 215, which was held valid, and supra, p. 480 (Welsbach Incandescent Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 87), and may generally be adopted.

One person holding all the preference shares may for this purpose constitute a meeting. East v. Bennett Brothers, Ltd., (1911) 1 Ch. 163.

The capital is £ —, divided into — preference shares of £ — each, and — ordinary shares of £ — each. The sd preference shares shall confer on the holder the right to be pd out of the profits of each year a fixed dividend for such year at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being pd up thereon, and such shares shall rank, &c., as above in Form 210. Form 212.

Non-cumulative preference shares.

Another mode of expressing this is to say, "the right to a fixed preferential dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the capital paid up thereon, such dividend to be paid, as regards each year, out of the profits of such year only."

The capital of the coy is 100,000£., divided into 125,000 preference shares of 10s. each, and 75,000 ordinary shares of 10s. each. The sd preference shares shall be entld to be pd out of the profits of each year, in priority to all other dividends, a fixed dividend for that year at the rate of 8 p.c.p.a. on the capital paid up thereon, and shall be Form 213.

Preference shares fixed dividend and to participate pari passu in surplus.

Form 213. entitled to participate pari passu with the ordinary shares in the surplus profits of each year which shall remain after paying the fixed dividend aforesaid for such year on the said preference shares, and a like dividend for such year on the capital paid up on the ordinary shares, and such preference shares shall be entitled in a winding-up to have the capital paid up thereon to be paid off in priority to the other shares. Dividends may be paid in cash or by the distribution of specific assets. The rights, &c.

Form 214. Subject as hereafter provided the rights following shall be attached to the preference shares aforesaid:

Preference shares fixed dividend and half surplus profits.

- (1) The holders of the said preference shares shall be entitled to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 7 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being paid up on the said preference shares respectively, and to half the surplus profits, which in respect of each year it shall from time to time be determined to distribute, remaining after paying or providing for the payment of a dividend for such year at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being paid up on the ordinary shares.
- (2) The holders of the said preference shares shall in a winding-up have priority as to return of capital [and payment off of arrears of the said preferential dividend whether declared or not up to the commencement of the winding-up] over all other shares in the capital for the time being of the company, but shall not have any further right to participate in profits or assets.
- (3) The rights hereby attached to the said preference shares may be modified in accordance with clause — of the accompanying arts of assent, but not otherwise, and that clause and also clauses — and — of the said articles shall be deemed to be incorporated herein and have effect accordingly.

Form 215.

Preference shares.

The rights following shall be attached to the shares aforesaid inter se subject as hereafter provided, that is to say:—

- (a) The said preference shares shall confer the right to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being paid up thereon respectively, and shall rank both as regards such dividend and as to capital in priority to all other shares in the original capital, but shall not confer any further right to participate in profits or assets.
- (b) Subject as aforesaid, the ordinary shares shall confer on the holders the right to a fixed cumulative dividend at the rate of 7 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being pd up thereon resply, and shall rank both as regards such dividend and as to capital next after the sd preference shares. Form 215.

- (c) Subject as aforesaid, the sd deferred shares shall confer the right to a fixed cumulative dividend at the rate of 7 p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being pd up thereon resply, and shall rank both as regards such dividend and capital next after the ordinary shares.
- (d) Subject as aforesaid, any profits which it may at any time be determined to distribute amongst the members, and in a winding-up any surplus assets, after repayment of capital, shall be divided as to one-half between the holders of the ordinary shares aforesaid in proportion to the ordinary shares held by them resply, and as to the other half among the holders of the deferred shares aforesaid in proportion to the deferred shares held by them resply.
- (e) Any shares issued as fully paid pursuant to the agreement referred to in clause 3 of the accompanying arts of assen shall for the purposes of dividend be treated as having been pd up at the date of the incorporation of the coy.
- (f) The rights for the time being attached to the sd several classes of shares resply may be modified or dealt with in the manner mentd in clause 52 of the accompanying arts of assen, but not otherwise, and that clause and also clauses 157 and 159 of the sd arts shall be deemed to be incorporated herein and have effect accordingly.

Upon any increase of capital, &c.

The above is the form used in the Weldbach Incorporated Company, (1904) 1 Ch. 87, and referred to above, p. 480.

The capital of the coy is 500,000*l.*, divided into 50,000 shares of 10*l.* each, to be converted as and when pd up into equal moieties of preferred stock and deferred stock, the preferred stock to bear a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 6 p.c.p.a., and is to rank, both as regards dividend and capital, in priority to the ordinary stock. Form 216.

Preferred and deferred
stock.

The capital of the coy is 22,000*l.*, divided into 20,000 ordinary shares of 1*l.* each, and 2,000 B shares of 1*l.* each, and each of the sd B shares shall confer on the holder the right to rank for dividend and in a distribution of assets in a winding-up and for voting purposes as if it were five ordinary shares of 1*l.* each fully pd up in the company's capital. Form 217.

B shares
confering
spec. rights.

Sometimes a vendor instead of taking a mass of paper capital takes B shares as above.

Form 218.

Founders'
Shares.

The capital of the coy is 2,000,000*l.*, divided into 200,000 shares of 10*l.*, whof 199,800 shall be called ordinary shares, and 200 (to be numbered 1 to 200 inclusive) are to be called founders' shares, and are to confer on the holders thof rateably and in proportion to the number of the founders' shares held by them resply the rights following, that is to say

- (1) The right to half the surplus profits of the coy of each year which shall remain after paying or providing for the payment out of such profits of a dividend to the close of such year at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. on the capital pd up on the ordinary shares, and of a dividend to the close of such year at such rate (not exceeding the sd rate) as may be attached to any further shares, whether in the original or any increased capital hereafter issued, and after making such provision for reserve as may seem expedient.
- (2) The right to one-half of any part of the reserve fund afcd, or the income thof, which it may at any time be determined to divide among the members.
- (3) The right to one-half the surplus assets which in the winding-up of the coy shall remain, after paying off the whole of the pd-up capital, including that pd up on the founders' shares.

Any of the shares in the capital, original or increased, may be issued with any preferential, special or qualified rights or conditions as regards dividends, capital, voting, or otherwise attached thof, but so that the rights hby attached to the founders' shares shall not be infringed. Dividends may be pd in cash or by the distribution of specific assets or otherwise as provided by the regulations of the coy.

Form 219.

Another.

The holders of the founders' shares shall be entld rateably in proportion to the founders' shares held by them resply (a) to 5 p.c. of the profits which in each year it shall be determined to distribute by way of dividend, and (b) to 5 p.c. of the surplus assets of the coy which, in a winding-up, shall remain after paying off the whole of the pd-up capital, including that pd up on the founders' shares

In the case of founders' and deferred shares, the terms of issue not unfrequently lead to difficulty and dispute as regards the determination of the amount of the profits to be distributed. The holders of the founders' shares may complain that too much is carried to reserve, that the profits are ascertained on too conservative a basis, and that the directors unduly favour the other shareholders. On the other hand, if dividends on a large scale are paid on the founders' shares, the other shareholders commonly complain that the founders get too much, that the directors unduly favour them, and that the desire to pay a dividend to the founders leads to speculative business and diverts to the founder shareholders' pockets what ought to go to reserve. These difficulties can, to a great extent, be met by giving to the holders of the founders' shares, as in the above form, a fixed aliquot share in the profits which it shall be determined to distribute, and not merely in the surplus profits themselves.

Where the expression "surplus assets" is used it is necessary to make it clear whether surplus after paying debts and liabilities is meant, or surplus after paying debts and liabilities and paid-up capital. Re Penbody Gold Mining Co., W. N. (1897) 170; Ramel v. Syndicate, Ltd., (1911) 1 Ch. 740.

Form 219.

The capital of the coy is 330,000*l.*, divided into 22,000 cumulative preference shares of 5*l.* each, entitl to the preferential payment of dividend and return of capital, mentd in the arts of asson registered herewith, and 215,000 ordinary shares and 5,000 management shares of 1*l.* each, which management shares are to confer on the holders thof, rateably and in proportion to the number of such shares held by them resply, the rights following, that is to say

Form 220.

Management
shares

1. the right to half the profits or other moneys of the coy av^l Table for dividend which it shall from time to time be determined to distribute, and which shall remain in each year after paying or providing for the payment out of such profits or other moneys (a) of a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 5½ p.c.p.a. on the capital pd up on the sd preference shares; (b) of a dividend for such share at the rate of 7 p.c.p.a. on the capital pd up on the sd ordinary shares; (c) of the remuneration payable to the directors for that year under the regulations of the coy for the time being; and (d) of a dividend for such year at such rate (not exceeding 7 p.c.p.a.) as may be attached to any further shares whether in the original or any increased capital hereafter issued.
- (2) The right to one-half of the surplus assets which in the winding-up of the coy shall remain after paying off the whole of the coy's pd-up capital.

1. The capital of the coy is £—, divided into — preference shares of £— each, — management shares of £— each, and — ordinary shares of £— each, with power to divide the shares in any increased capital into several classes, and to attach thereto resply any preferential, qualified, special or deferred rights, privileges or conditions.

Form 221.

Preference and management shares

2. The sd management shares shall confer on the holders for the time being thof resply the right to the management of the business and the control of the coy, and they alone resply shall be capable of being directors of the coy.

3. Save as provided by clause — of the accompanying arts of asson in regard to the preference shares afd, the shares in the capital for the time being, other than the management shares, shall not confer on the holders the right to stand a —, either in person or

Form 221. by proxy, at any general meeting, or to have notice of such meeting, or to have any voice in the management of the business or control of the coy, or to interfere in such management or control, or to inspect the account books and documents of the coy (except as by law entld), and such holders shall be bound by the accounts from time to time furnished by the directors and passed at a general meeting.

4. The sd preference shares shall confer the right to a fixed cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of — p.c.p.a. on the capital for the time being pd thereon respectively, and shall have preference as to dividend and capital over the sd management shares and the ordinary shares, and all other shares in the capital for the time being of the coy, but shall not confer any further right to participate in the profits or assets.

5. The rights and privileges hby attached to the management shares shall not be altered; they are fundamental. The rights and privileges attached to the sd preference shares, and to any shares hereafter created with preferential or special rights attached thereto, shall not be alterable otherwise than pursuant to the provisions contained in clause — or — of the accompanying arts of asson, which clauses shall as regards such shares be deemed to be incorporated herein.

Form 221a. 1. The capital of the coy is £ — divided into — shares. One of these shares, namely, that for which A. B. subscribes the memdum, shall be numbered 1, and shall, whilst held by him, be called the Life Governor's share.

Life governor's share.

2 The Life Governor's share, whilst the sd A. B. holds such share and also at least — p.c. of the issued capital for the time being of the coy, shall confer on the holder the rights and privileges following, that is to say:—

- (a) The right to — p.c. of the surplus profits of the coy of each year which shall remain after a dividend for such year at the rate of 10 p.c. shall have been pd on the other shares in the capital.
- (b) The right to — p.c. of the surplus assets of the coy which shall in a winding-up remain after payment off of the whole of the pd-up capital.
- (c) The right at any time by notice in writing to the coy to take office as a director and to hold such office as long as he chooses, and at any time by notice in writing to the coy to resign, and at any time to take office again as afd.
- (d) The right from time to time and at any time by notice in writing to the coy to appoint any other persons to be directors of the coy, and by notice in writing to the coy to remove any director so appointed, but so that not more than four directors shall at any time be in office by virtue of Form 221a.

such appointment.

- e) The right at every general meeting to one-third of the votes in the coy, that is to say, to one vote as against every two votes conferred by all the other outstanding shares for the time being in the capital of the coy.
- f) The right whether the holder is or is not a director to attend and vote either in person or by proxy at all meetings of the directors of the coy, and to have due notice of all such meetings, but any proxy must be appointed by writing under the hand of the appointor.
- g) The right when such share ceases to be held by the sd A. B. to rank as an ordinary share.

3. Upon any increase of capital any new shares may be issued with any preferential or special rights or conditions attached thereto, but so that the rights attached to the Life Governor's share shall not be altered or modified without the consent in writing of the holder thof.

1. The holders of the ordinary shares for the time being issued shall be exclusively entld to participate in the profits of the coy until the dividends actually declared on the 250,000 ordinary shares forming the first issue shall in the aggregate amount to a sum equal to the capital pd up thereon, and that whether such dividends are pd or satisfied or to be pd or satisfied in cash or other assets, and whether at the time when such event happens the whole or part only of the ordinary shares shall have been issued, and whether the whole or only part of the amount thof shall have been called or pd up.

Form 222.

Ordinary and deferred: the former taking all profits till 100 per cent. paid.

2. After the happening of the event afsd and from thenceforth the profits of the coy, which it shall from time to time be determined to distribute, shall be applied as to one-half in paying dividends on the shares other than the deferred shares afsd, and as to the other half in paying dividends on the deferred shares pari passu.

3. In case of a winding-up of the coy before the happening of the event afsd, the assets available for distribution among the members shall be applied, first, in paying off the capital pd up on the shares other than the deferred shares afsd; secondly, in paying to the holders of the first issue of 250,000 ordinary shares afsd such a sum as, with the dividends then already pd thereon, shall be equal to a dividend of 200 p.c. on the capital pd up thereon at the commencement of the winding-up; and, thirdly, the balance (if any) shall be divided, as to one-half among the holders of the shares other than the deferred shares afsd, rateably in proportion to the number held, and as to the other half among the holders of the deferred shares afsd rateably in proportion to the number held.

4. In case of a winding-up of the coy after the happening of the event afsd, the assets afsd shall be divided as to one-half among

Form 222. the holders of the shares other than the deferred shares rateably in proportion to the number held, and the other half shall be divided among the holders of the deferred shares rateably in proportion to the number held.

5. The deferred shares aforesaid shall also confer on the holders rateably in proportion to the number of the deferred shares held by them respectively the right to subscribe for at par and take up one-half of the shares in the capital not subscribed in the memorandum of association which it shall from time to time be determined to issue, and each holder of the deferred share or shares aforesaid shall in the manner provided in the arts of association be given notice of every such determination, and shall have not less than fourteen days within which to subscribe for his proportion or less amount.

6. The deferred shares aforesaid shall confer on the holders present in person or by proxy at any general meeting of the company the right to as many votes as the number of votes conferred by all the other shares for the time being issued, and each holder of deferred shares aforesaid present in person or by proxy at any such meeting shall be entitled to such proportion of the votes conferred by the deferred shares collectively as the number of his deferred shares bears to the full number of the deferred shares.

7. The shares in the initial capital of the company not subscribed for in this memorandum of association and any shares created by increase of capital may be divided into several classes, and may be issued with any preferential, special or qualified rights, privileges and conditions attached thereto, but so that the rights hereby attached to the deferred shares shall not be altered or infringed except as above mentioned.

Form 223. The capital of the company is £—, divided into — ordinary shares of £— each, and — founders' shares of £— each, and there shall be attached to the said ordinary shares and founders' shares respectively the rights, privileges, and conditions in that behalf specified in the accompanying arts of association.

Ordinary and founders'.

The above clause is framed so as to mention the two classes in the memorandum, and thus to secure their position. See Collins v. Birmingham Breweries, 15 T. L. R. 180, and supra, p. 575. But, of course, they take subject to any qualifying provisions in the articles.

Form 223a. Each of the 200 founders' shares shall confer on the holder the right to one two-hundredth part of 5 p.c. of the profits which it shall from time to time be determined to distribute, and in a winding-up to the same fraction of 5 p.c. on the surplus assets remaining after paying off the paid-up capital of the company.

Another.

The holders of the founders' shares shall, in respect thereof, be collectively entitled to as many votes as the holders of all the other shares for the time being issued shall be entitled to in respect of such other shares, and each of the founders' shares shall confer on the holder a rateable proportion of such votes.

Form 224.

Special voting power to holders of founders' shares.

Founders' Shares.

Founders' shares are far from being a new invention. As appears from the first edition of this work, published in 1877, they were then well known, and to the writer's knowledge companies with founders' shares were registered under the Act of 1862 as early as the year 1873. Founders' shares are generally few in number and of small nominal value. Thus, with a capital of hundreds of thousands of pounds, or perhaps millions, the founders' shares may be only 200 of 10*l.* each or of 1*l.* each. Founders' shares are generally created for and appropriated to the remuneration of the founders or promoters of the company, they undertaking to pay the preliminary expenses and guarantee the placing of the shares which are to be offered for public subscription or part thereof. But occasionally the vendor stipulates that as part of the consideration for the sale to the company of his mine, business, concession, or other property, he shall have some founders' shares; and sometimes the founders' shares are offered as a bait to subscribers for the ordinary shares—that is to say, the prospectus states that for every 1,000*l.* of ordinary shares subscribed the subscriber will be entitled to an allotment of one founders' share; or the subscribers to the memorandum are allowed each to subscribe for one founders' share for every 5,000*l.* of ordinary shares subscribed for by them respectively.

One reason why founders' shares have from time to time found favour, is the phenomenal prices to which the founders' shares in several well-known companies have risen. In some cases 10*l.* founders' shares have risen to 5,000*l.*, 8,000*l.*, and 10,000*l.* each, and a rise to 200*l.*, 300*l.*, or 500*l.* has been considered quite disappointing. Another reason for the more extensive adoption of founders' shares was the decision of Kay, J., in Faure Electric Accumulator Co., 40 C. Div. 141, November, 1888, to the effect that a company could not legally pay commission for placing its capital, a decision now rendered obsolete by sect. 89 of the Companies Act, 1908. Prior to this decision it was common enough for a company to pay a moderate commission to those who underwrote or agreed to place its capital, but that decision rendered it doubtful whether such payments could be supported, and accordingly, in many cases, the expedient was adopted of having founders' shares imposing on the subscribers the obligation to pay preliminary expenses, and to guarantee the placing of the ordinary shares, e.g., 500*l.* ordinary for each founders' share subscribed for.

By this means it became practicable, without infringing the principles laid down in the case referred to, to get the capital effectually and legitimately underwritten, for in the case of a promising undertaking a man may be ready to underwrite 1,000*l.* of ordinary shares, provided he gets at par a 10*l.* founders' share, which may rise in value to 500*l.* or for that matter to 5,000*l.* And this mode of remuneration is still available. Hilder v. Dexter, (1902) A. C. 474.

Where there are founders' shares, it is well to have them subscribed for in the memorandum of association. However, it must not be supposed that it is essential to have the founders' shares so subscribed for: for where the subscription of the founders' shares imposes onerous liabilities, e.g., to pay expenses, and the shares are of purely speculative value, it would seem that the directors may, under a general power to allot (Form 152, clause 5), allot such founders' shares at par to any bonâ fide and reasonable subscribers, including themselves.

Form 224.

But, of course, in such cases as this, the directors have a discretion, and are not bound to allot. What they do—they must remember—will be open to observation, e.g., if they allot to themselves or their relations an undue proportion; and it may, of course, be contended that as the directors are trustees of their powers for the company, they ought not to allot at par if the shares are worth much more, and so present themselves with a premium, though primâ facie it seems that if the company gets par for its shares it ought not to complain. See London and Colonial Finance Corporation, 13 T. L. R. 576 (C. A.); Shaw v. Holland, (1900) 2 Ch. 305, infra, p. 647; Perceval v. Wright, (1902) 2 Ch. 421; Hilder v. Dexter, per Lord Davey, supra.

Not uncommonly the rights and obligations attached to the founders' shares are specified in the memorandum of association, in order to get the benefit of the decision in Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. Div. 376, and thus render their rights impregnable; for there have been cases in which the rights attached to founders' shares, being naturally unpopular, have led to hostile action on the part of the other shareholders.

Sometimes it is provided that the share of profits appropriated to the founders' shares shall be divided among them, but it has not yet been settled whether this provision can be enforced as against the company. An action will lie for a dividend, but only after it has been declared, and the declaration vests in the directors' discretion. On the other hand, according to the decision in Ashbury v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653, a company is not only prohibited from altering the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, but from doing anything in contravention of those conditions. If, therefore, a company proposes to apply the share of profits belonging to the founders' shares otherwise than in accordance with the rights attached to those shares, it might, no doubt, be restrained at the suit of any holder of founders' shares, and it would seem that the Court would have jurisdiction to order a division among the holders of founders' shares of profits which ought, in accordance with the contract contained in the memorandum of association, to be divided among them. The point, however, is one of considerable difficulty. See Bond v. Bayard Hematite Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 353, 362; Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83.

As appears from the forms below, founders' shares are usually given a right to a share (say one-third) of the surplus profits of the company, after paying a fixed dividend (say seven per cent. per annum) on the other shares; and the reason why founders' shares attain such high prices, in some cases, is that such share of surplus profits, though not very large in itself, may, when spread over a few founders' shares, amount to a very large percentage. Thus, if the surplus is 6,000*l.*, it follows that there will be 2,000*l.* for distribution among 200 founders' shares of 1*l.* each, giving them a dividend of 1,000 per cent.

It is not uncommonly deemed expedient to give the holders of founders' shares the right to a specified proportion of the surplus assets of the company in a winding-up. Unless this is done there is a danger that the other shareholders, if the founders' shares take a large amount of profit, may grow jealous and reconstruct the company, and thus, in effect, squeeze out the founders' shares, for they in winding-up, primâ facie, would only be entitled to share in the surplus assets in such proportion as the nominal amount of the founders' shares bears to the whole nominal amount of the issued capital (Birch v. Cropper, 14 App. Cas. 525); e.g., suppose that the issued capital is 198,000*l.*, ordinary shares and 200 founders' shares of 10*l.* each, and that there is a surplus of 6,000*l.*, the founders would take only 60*l.*, whereas, if entitled to one-third, they would get 2,000*l.* It must be remembered, however, that any interference with the rights of a class of shareholders by a majority proposing to benefit themselves at the expense of such class would be restrained by the Court as unfair and oppressive. See Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Co., L. R. 9 Ch. 350; and Allen v. Gold Reefs of West Africa, (1900) 1 Ch. 656. See also sect. 45 of the Companies Act, 1908, dealing with the re-organization of capital.

Occasionally founders' shares are, by the memorandum of association, given special voting powers, so that they may be able to protect themselves and to exercise some authority in the direction of the company, but such a provision is not at all usual. It was adopted in one case where a goodwill of great value was made over to a company in consideration of founders' shares. Sometimes, also, the holders of founders' shares are given a right to appoint a director, but this, again, is not very common.

Sometimes when the subscribers for founders' shares are bound to pay the preliminary expenses, an agreement is made with some third party or company to indemnify them. See Form 19 in 7th edition.

In determining the rights to be attached to founders' and other deferred shares, it is necessary to bear in mind the decision of Chitty, J., in Floating Dock of St. Thomas, (1895) 1 Ch. 691. It follows from that case that if founders' shares are made to rank, as regards capital, after the other shares, and the company sustains a loss equal to or exceeding the amount of the founders' shares, it can, by special resolution, reduce its capital by extinguishing those shares, subject to the sanction of the Court. Now, as founders' shares are generally of small nominal amount, a very trifling loss may thus expose them to the danger of destruction; but this is a danger which can be avoided by taking care that in a winding-up they rank for payment, at any rate pari passu with the ordinary shares, taking perhaps a share of the surplus assets.

Underwriting obligations. Sometimes the memorandum of association provides that a subscriber for founders' shares shall be treated as underwriting so many ordinary shares. See supra, Form 22.

Where the memorandum provided that the holder of every founders' share should apply for and take at least fifty ordinary shares, it was held that the company were justified in placing a person who subscribed only for founders' shares on the register for the corresponding ordinary shares, viz., fifty for each founders' share. Gen. Phosphate Corp. v. Horrocks, 8 T. L. R. 359.

As to the power to reorganize the capital, see sect. 45 of the Act of 1908.

One-half the amount of every share in the initial capital shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event and for the purpose of the coy being wound up.

Form 224.

Form 225.

Reserve capital.

Such a provision in the memorandum is effective, though it does not operate under the Companies Act, 1908, s. 59. But where the provision is only contained in the original articles it is alterable. Mallison v. 2nd Canal, &c. Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 538. Such reserve capital can, however, be constituted at any time by special resolution under 59 of the Act, and can be wiped out by reducing the capital. See infra, Chap. XVII.

The capital of the coy is 250,000*l.* divided into 25,000 shares of 10*l.* each, with power to increase, and to attach to the shares in such increased capital such preferential, deferred, or special rights, privileges, or conditions as may be determined upon by or in accordance

Form 226.

Statement of capital and shares where

Form 226.

company formed to acquire mining property in France (stamp duty lessened).

with the regulations of the coy. The sd A. B. hby brings into the coy by way of contribution (apport) the concession of the mines and the undertaking, and all the other ppty mentd in paragraph — hof, and in consideration thof he shall receive an allotment of 24,000 of the sd shares fully pd up, which shall be issued to him after the completion of the formalities necessary to the transcription of the ppty required by French law, and undertakes to execute and do all further acts and things which may be necessary to effectuate the sd contribution (apport) according to French law. Each of the seven subscribers hto is hby bound to contribute to the capital of the coy the sum of 10*l.*, and accordingly shall be allotted the share set opposite his signature hto fully pd up.

This form was adopted in the case of a company which was formed here to acquire and work a mining property in France. According to French law, the stamp duty on a transfer of property brought into a company by way of contribution is much less than the duty on a sale to a company of the same property. The transaction was succes-fully carried through.

ON THE CONSTRUCTION OR INTERPRETATION OF MEMORANDA AND ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER VII.

It may be convenient here to set forth some of the leading rules applicable to the construction or interpretation of the memoranda and articles of association * of a company.

Some leading rules of construction.

Some of these rules are of a special character and override the ordinary rules applicable to the construction of instruments in writing, but, so far as not excluded, the ordinary rules apply. "I cannot," said Selwyn, L. J., in International Contract Co., 17 W. R. 159; 20 L. T. 100, "at all accede to the argument of counsel that there is any such rule of this Court as he has alluded to, as to the necessity of the Court taking upon itself to construe memoranda and articles of association in the strictest possible manner, or in any other manner than that in which the Court construes documents of an ordinary kind. I think that the ordinary rules of construction apply to memoranda and articles of association just as much as to any other kind of document."

Ordinary rules apply where no special ones.

* The term "articles of association" in this note is to be taken to mean the regulations for the time being of the company, that is to say, the regulations which the members of the company are for the time being and from time to time under an implied statutory covenant to observe, whether contained in articles of association, or in Table A, or in regulations adopted by special resolution, or partly in articles of association and partly in Table A, and partly as adopted by special resolution.

The following are definitions given by the Companies Act, 1908:—

285. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them (that is to say):—

"Articles" means the articles of association of a company, as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, including, so far as they apply to the company, the regulations contained (as the case may be) in Table B in the Schedule annexed to the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Companies Act, 1862, or in that Table as altered in pursuance of section seventy-one of that Act, or in Table A in the First Schedule to this Act;

"Memorandum" means the memorandum of association of a company, as originally framed or as altered in pursuance of the provisions of this Act.

1. Memorandum controls articles, but may be explained by latter.

1. The memorandum of association is the dominant instrument. In specifying the objects of the company it limits and restricts the company's powers to such objects and to things incidental or conducive thereto. Supra, p. 455 et seq. It effectually controls the articles of association in the sense that any provision in the articles inconsistent with the provisions contained in the memorandum is invalid. "The memorandum," as Lord Cairns said in Ashbury Railway Co. v. Riche, L. B. 7 H. L. 653, 670, "is, as it were, the area beyond which the action of the company cannot go; inside that area the shareholders may make such regulations for their own government as they think fit." In that case a power in the articles to extend the company's objects by special resolution was held inconsistent with the memorandum and ultra vires, and so in Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376, an article providing for the distribution of the company's profits in a manner inconsistent with the provisions in the memorandum of association was held to be invalid. Nevertheless it has been held that, although the articles cannot alter or control the memorandum, yet they may in some cases be referred to for the purpose of explaining an ambiguity in the memorandum. Thus, in Anderson's case, 7 C. D. 75, 1878, Jessel, M. R., considered that it was allowable to explain an ambiguity in the memorandum in regard to the capital by reference to contemporaneous articles. "I am not now," said his Lordship, "speaking of those portions of the memorandum of association which the Act of Parliament requires to be stated in the memorandum. Something might be said on that question, but all the Act of Parliament requires to be stated is the amount of capital for which the company is proposed to be registered divided into shares of a fixed amount. It does not prevent your stating that the shares are to be paid for partially in money and partially in property, or even partially in property and partially in remuneration for services. There is nothing about that in the Act of Parliament. Where there are two contemporaneous documents, executed and assented to by the same persons at the same time (and these really are so substantially and are therefore to be treated as contemporaneous documents), it appears to me that the ordinary rule applies, according to which contemporaneous documents are to be read together so that, if there is any ambiguity in one it may be explained by the other, and even if there is any inconsistency, you must take the two documents together and see how you can explain the inconsistency." But this principle must be acted on with great caution, having regard to the criticisms of Bowen, L. J., in Guinness v. Land Corporation of Ireland, 22 C. D. 377: "The memorandum contains the fundamental conditions upon which alone the company is allowed to be incorporated. They are conditions introduced for the benefit of the creditors and the outside public as well as shareholders. The articles are the internal regulations of the company. How can it be said that in all cases the fundamental conditions of the charter of incorporation and the internal regulations of a company are to be construed together? . . . In any case it is, as it seems to me, certain that for anything which the Act of Parliament says shall be in the memorandum, you must look to the memorandum alone. If the Legislature has said one instrument is to be dominant, you cannot turn to another instrument and read it in order to modify the provisions of the dominant instrument."

2. Both the memorandum and articles of association must be read and construed subject to the provisions of the Companies Act, 1908 (consolidating the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1908), for any provision inconsistent with the Act or derogating from rights given by the Act is void. See the cases last mentioned, and in particular Trevor v. Whitworth; also Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299; Re Peveril Mines, (1898) 1 Ch. 122; and Re Sharpe, (1892) 1 Ch. 154.

2. Companies Acts to be borne in mind.

3. In considering whether any clause in the articles is or is not inconsistent with the Act or Acts, the provisions contained in Table A should be borne in mind, for it must be assumed, prima facie, that those provisions and similar provisions, as approved by the Legislature, were regarded by the Legislature as legal. Witness Lock v. Queensland, &c. Co., (1896) A. C. 461, in which it was held that a company could pay interest on calls paid in advance, even though there were no profits; and Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, in which the fact that Table A contained provisions for forfeiture of shares was referred to as showing the validity of such provisions.

3. Assumed validity of Table A provisions.

4. The documents must be read and construed with due regard to the general law. Thus, if they contain provisions contrary to the general law, they are pro tanto invalid; e.g., if they contain clauses in undue restraint of trade, those clauses cannot be relied on. See supra, p. 458.

4. Applicability of general and common law and Acts relating to particular classes of companies.

On the other hand, the law supplements the documents in various respects. Thus, under the Labouring Classes Dwelling Houses Act, 1866, companies established for trading or manufacturing purposes, in the course of whose business persons of the labouring classes are employed, may be and are by the Act authorized to erect dwellings for the accommodation of the persons of the labouring class employed by them, and may borrow money for the purpose.

Again, the common law rules apply in so far as the same are not validly excluded by the memorandum or articles of association. Thus, prima facie questions arising at a general meeting are to be decided in the first instance by a show of hands (Horbury Bridge, &c. Co., 11 C. D. 109), and there is a prima facie right to demand a poll. (Reg. v. Wimbledon, 46 L. T. 47; 8 Q. B. D. 459.) Again, unless otherwise provided, the common law rule applies that no notice need be given of an adjourned meeting.

No also the rules of equity apply, and accordingly a director cannot be interested in any contract with the company unless the articles otherwise provide. See Albion, &c. Co. v. Martin, and other cases cited at p. 732, infra.

Again, a director cannot hold an incompatible office. See Milman v. Thatcher, and other cases cited at p. 729, infra.

The doctrine of the fiduciary relationship of the promotor supplies another illustration.

5. "Expressed" intention to be given effect to.

5. In construing the documents the expressed intention is to be sought for and given effect to—not the intention, but the expressed intention.

"It is unquestionable that the object of exposition of all the written instruments must be to ascertain the expressed meaning or intention of the writer; the expressed meaning being equivalent to the intention." Per Coleridge, J., Shaw v. Wellesley, 9 Cl. & Fin. 355.

"The question is not what the parties to a deed may have intended to do by executing it, but what is the meaning of the words used in that deed." Per Lord Wensleydale, Money Penny v. Money, 9 H. L. C. 146.

"To construe is nothing more than to arrive at the meaning of the parties to the agreement." Per Lord Chelmsford, Scott v. Corporation of Liverpool, 2 De G. & J. 360; it should be added, "as expressed by the language they have used."

6. Whole document, not picked clauses, to be read.

6. The whole document must be read; it is not allowable to pick out one clause and treat it as indicating the intention of the parties, without regard to the rest of the document, for that may throw light on and qualify the particular clause.

"Every part of the deed ought to be compared with the other, and one entire sense ought to be made thereof." Throgmorton v. Tracey, 1 Plowd. 161.

"It is the duty of the Court to collect the intention from the whole instrument taken together." Per Lord Ellenborough, C. J., Barlon v. Fitzgerald, 15 East. 540; and see Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 65, where, to ascertain the meaning of an expression in the articles, the whole of the articles were scrutinised.

"One rule of construction which must prevail is that you must give effect to every part of a document if you can—you must read the whole." Per Lord Halsbury, L. C., Elderslie Steamship Co. v. Borthwick, (1905) A. C. 96.

7. Surrounding circumstances at time of signature.

7. It is allowable to refer to the surrounding circumstances at the time when the instrument was signed, so that the interpreter may be put as nearly as may be in the situation of the parties to the instrument. Gray v. Pearson, 6 H. L. C. 106.

"That which he has written is to be construed by every part of it being taken into consideration, according to its grammatical construction and the ordinary acceptance of the words used, with the assistance of such parol evidence of the surrounding circumstances as is admissible to place the Court in the position of the [writer]." Per Lord Wensleydale, Roddy v. Fitzgerald, 6 H. L. C. 876.

The Court it is which when once it is in possession of the circumstances surrounding the instrument, and of any peculiarity of meaning which may be attached by the custom of trade to any of the words of that contract has to place the construction upon the contract." Per Lord Cairns, Bowen v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 468.

8. In construing the document the general rule is applicable that, in the case of a contract reduced to writing, "evidence is not allowed to be given of what passed between the parties, either before the written contract was made or during the time it was in a state of preparation, so as to add to or subtract from or in any manner to vary or qualify the written contract." Per Lord Denman, C. J., Goss v. Lord Nugent, 5 B. & Ad. 65; Inglis v. John Battery & Co., 3 App. Cas. 554; Lee v. Alexander, 8 App. Cas. 853.

8. Parol modifications of written contract not valid:

Everything that takes place before a written contract signed by the parties is entirely to be disregarded in construing the contract by which they are bound." North British Railway Co. v. Tod, 12 Cl. & Fin. 722, 738.

Thus, in construing the memorandum or articles, it is not permissible to refer to the drafts thereof, or to the instructions for the same, or to any preliminary correspondence or other matters, as tending to throw light on the meaning of the words used.

e.g., reference to drafts or instructions, correspondence, &c.:

Moreover, acts or declarations of the parties subsequent to the registration of the company are not admissible for the purpose of construing documents. Monro v. Taylor, 8 Hare, 51; Lewis v. Nicholson, 18 Q. B. 503.

or subsequent acts or declarations.

9. In reading the instrument the words are to be taken, prima facie, to be used, as to popular words, in their popular sense, and, as to technical or scientific words, in their technical or scientific sense; but the prima facie meaning is to be displaced if it sufficiently appears from the context that the word is used in some other than its primary sense.

9. Popular words and technical or scientific words.

In my view, the principle on which words are to be construed in instruments is very plain. Where there is a popular and common word used in an instrument, that word must be construed prima facie in its popular and common sense. If it is a word of a technical or legal character, it must be construed according to its technical or legal meaning. If it is a word which is of a technical or scientific character, then it must be construed according to that which is its primary meaning—namely, its technical and scientific meaning. But before you can give evidence of the secondary meaning of a word, you must satisfy the Court, from the instrument itself or from the circumstances of the case, that the word ought to be construed, not in its popular or primary signification, but according to its secondary intention." Per Fry, J., Holt v. Collier, 16 C. D. 720; and see Leach v. Jay, 9 C. D. 45, as to technical words.

"If the parties have used terms which bear not only an ordinary meaning, but also one peculiar to the department of trade or business to which the contract relates: the parties must have intended to use the words in the peculiar sense." Per Cockburn, C. J., Miers v. Sarll, 3 El. & El. 306, 315.

But it is for those who allege that the words used have some special meaning to establish the fact. "It was," said Lord Cairns, in Bowes v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 468, "competent to those who were resisting the application of this natural construction of the contract to have said, We will prove by evidence that, according to the custom of trade, these words, which have this natural signification, are used in a wider or different sense. . . . That, of course, would according to the well-known rule of law which admits parol evidence not to contradict a document, but to explain the words used in it, supply, as it were, the mercantile dictionary in which you are to find the mercantile meaning of the words which are used. That would be a legitimate and well-known mode of construing the document."

10. Decisions
as to meaning of words.

10. Again, where a word or expression is used to which a special meaning has been attached by decisions of the Court, the word or expression is prima facie to be taken to be used in the sense thus attached; for, as Jessel, M. R., said, in Wallis v. Smith (1882), 21 C. D. 254, "If cases have laid down a rule that in certain events words are to have a particular meaning, and that has become a settled rule, it may be assumed that persons in framing their agreement have had regard to settled law, and may have properly used words which, though on the face of them they may have a different meaning, they know by reason of the decided cases must bear a particular or special meaning." Thus, by the decision in Pulbrook v. Richmond, &c. Co., 9 C. D. 610, a special meaning was attached to the expression "in his own right" in a qualification clause in articles of association. This decision was acted on for many years; and when, in Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 C. D. 462, it was called in question, it was held to be too late to overrule the case, as it had no doubt been largely acted on. Lindley, L. J., said (p. 474), "If we had not to consider for the first time what the meaning of the phrase 'holding in his own right' is, I am not sure that I should take the view which I understand the Master of the Rolls did take, but it is one thing to say that, and another thing to overrule the construction then put upon the phrase, and to overthrow the practical acknowledgment acted upon ever since that decision. The words in question were acquired, by usage and upon the strength of that decision, a conventional meaning which I for one am not inclined to disturb." So also in Cooper v. Griffin, (1892, 1 Q. Lord Herschell said that he agreed "with Lindley having regard to the constant transactions depending upon the construction of articles of association, it would be dangerous to interfere with the decision which has remained unopposed for so many years. To do so would be an injustice to persons who have acted on the faith of the decision.

11. Where the language is clear and unambiguous the effect must be given to it and no other effect taken to express the intention.

11. Language clear and unambiguous.

In construing a written instrument the grammatical and ordinary sense of the words is to be adhered to, unless that could lead to absurdity or repugnance or inconsistency with the rest of the instrument, in which case the grammatical and ordinary sense of the words may be modified so as to avoid that absurdity, repugnance or inconsistency, but no further." Per Lord Wensleydale in Grey v. Pearson, 11 L. C. 106.

12. Where language is used in a sense which in its primary meaning is unambiguous, and in which that meaning is not excluded by the context, and is sensible with reference to the extrinsic circumstances

12. Primary meaning where no ambiguity which the writer was placed at the time of writing, such primary meaning must be taken conclusively to be that in which the writer

Such meaning in that case conclusively states the writer's and no evidence is receivable to show that in fact the writer intended in any other sense or had any other intention. Per Lord Alderson in Scott v. Wilson, 9 Cl. & Fin. 355.

However capricious, unreasonable, or unjust, may be the intention, yet if it is clear and unequivocally expressed, every instrument is governed by it unless it is plainly controlled by other parts of the instrument. Per Lord Abinger in Hume v. Riddell, 2 Sim. & S. 41. See also 7 H. L. C. 89. See also per Lord Cottenham, Lloyd v. Lloyd, 1837, 2 My. & Cr. 191, 31 L. J. 202.

Intention, if plainly expressed must be given effect to.

Thus, where the articles of association provided that dividends were to be paid to the members "in proportion to their shares in it was held that dividends must be paid according to the amount of the shares a greater amount was paid to Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crom, 8 App. Cas. 651.

It was argued that it could not have been intended that A., who had only paid up 5*l.* on his 10*l.* share, should get as much as B., who had paid up 10*l.* on his 10*l.* share; but the House of Lords held that the words were plain and must have effect.

So, where the articles of association provided that, if the company should be wound up, the surplus assets should be applied first in repaying to the holders of the preference shares the amount paid up thereon, and that the residue, if any, should be divided amongst the members in proportion to the shares held by them respectively, and in the winding-up the surplus, after paying off the preference shares, was not sufficient to pay off the ordinary shares, it was held nevertheless that the words must have full effect and that the surplus ought to be divided in proportion to the shares, though in the result the preference shares got more than par while the ordinary shares got less than par. "I cannot think," said the Lord Chancellor, in that

[the Hotel Metropole, Blackpool case, "that the language is either doubtful or ambiguous. I think that it was competent for the subscribers to make such a bargain; and if it was so unreasonable and unjust, as suggested, I do not think that this Court or any other can place upon language so clear and unambiguous as this language any other meaning than the sense conveyed by the ordinary and natural meaning of the words and sentences employed." This case was decided in the House of Lords, 6th Aug. 1900.

And in cases where the words are clear and unambiguous, the mere fact that giving effect to them will involve hardship to one class of the members is no justification for departing from the words. Thus, where there were two classes of shares, preference and ordinary, and the preference shares were given a preferential right to dividend, but no provision was made in regard to winding-up, it was held that on a winding-up both classes ranked pari passu for repayment of capital Griffith v. Paget, 6 C. D. 517.

"Of course," said Jessel, M. R., in that case, "some observations were made on the possible hardship of such a result; but the answer is simple. People who enter into these partnerships under articles of association—that is, articles of partnership—must be taken to have read and understood them; and if they are to be taken to have read them and to have understood them, which they ought to do before entering into these contracts, they cannot complain if the contract is afterwards carried out. That appears to me a conclusive answer to any notion of hardship. Whether it is conclusive in fact or not is a matter upon which men who have experience in the world may have different opinions, but I must hold it to be conclusive in the law. See also Peel's case, 2 Ch. 674. So also, in Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, supra, Lord Selborne, L. C., said: "We cannot decide the case upon any a priori argument at all; we must see what the actual contract is. Each party must be taken to have made himself acquainted with the terms of the written contract contained in the articles of association and the Acts of Parliament so far as they are important. He also, in law, must be taken—though that is sometimes different from what the fact may be—to have understood the terms of the contract according to their proper meaning; and, that being so, he must take the consequences, whatever they may be, of the contract which he has made."

14. Ambiguous words—the more reasonable construction to apply.

14. Ambiguous words. Where the words are ambiguous and equivocal, and one construction is reasonable and the other unreasonable, or less reasonable, unjust, or capricious, that construction should be preferred which is most consonant with justice and best calculated to give effect to what must be assumed to be the intention of the parties.

"Where by acting on one interpretation of the words used we are driven to the conclusion that the person using them is acting capriciously, without any intelligible motive, contrary to the ordinary mode in which men in general act in similar cases, then, if the language admits of two constructions, we may reasonably and properly adopt that which avoids these anomalies, even though the construction adopted is not the most obvious or the most grammatically accurate. But if the words used are unambiguous, they cannot be departed from merely because they lead to consequences which we consider capricious, or even harsh and unreasonable." Per Lord Cranworth. Abbott v. Middleton (1858), 7 H. L. C. 88.

It is now, I believe, universally admitted that, in construing that writing, the rule is to read it in the ordinary and grammatical sense of the words, unless some obvious absurdity, or some repugnance or inconsistency with the declared intentions of the writer to be extracted from the whole instrument, should follow from so reading it. Then the sense may be modified, extended or abridged, so as to avoid those consequences, but no further." Per Lord Wensleydale, in the same case.

"I take it," said Jessel, M. R., in Selby v. Whittaker, 6 C. D. 239, that no rule of construction is better settled than that where two meanings are open to a judge, and the one is reasonable and sensible, and the other, though not absolutely unreasonable in the sense of supposing the testator to be a lunatic, yet is extremely unlikely, he ought to select that meaning which is consonant to ordinary reason and not liable to the imputation of excessive caprice."

15. If any clause be found obscure or doubtful, the proper mode of discovering its true meaning is to compare it with the other clauses and find out the sense of one clause from the obvious intent of another. See Co. Litt. 381a; Trenchard v. Hoskins, Winch. 93; Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 65.

16. The meaning of a word may sometimes be ascertained by reference to the meaning of words associated with it: noscitur ex sociis.

Thus, where the objects of a company were to make and sell, or lend on hire, railway carriages or waggons, and all kinds of railway plant, fittings, machinery, and rolling stock, and to carry on the business of mechanical engineers and general contractors, to purchase, lease, work, and sell mines, minerals and buildings, purchase and sell as merchants timber, coal, metals, and other minerals, and to buy and sell any such materials on commission or as agents: it was held that the rule "noscitur ex sociis" applied to the words "general contractors," and accordingly that the company was not entitled to enter into a contract for the construction of a railway. "It appears to me," said Lord Cairns, L. C., in that case, "upon all ordinary principles of construction, these words must be referred to the part of the sentence which immediately precedes them. The sentence which I have read is divided into four classes of works - first, to make and sell, or lend on hire railway carriages . . . that is an object sui generis and complete in the specification which I have read. The second is to 15. Context.

16. Meaning of word from associated words.

Noscitur ex sociis, or Ejusdem generis.

E.g., "general contractors."

carry on the business of mechanical engineers and general contractors. That, again, is the specification of an object complete in itself, and according to the principles of construction the term 'general contractors' would be referred to that which goes immediately before, and would indicate the making generally of contracts connected with the business of mechanical engineers—such contracts as mechanical engineers are in the habit of making and are in their business required to find it convenient to make, for the purpose of carrying on their business. . . . My Lords, if the term 'general contractors' were not to be interpreted as I have suggested, the consequence would be that it would stand absolutely without any limit of any kind. It would authorize the making, therefore, of contracts of any and every description, and the memorandum, in place of specifying a particular kind of business, would virtually point to the carrying on of business of any kind whatever, and would therefore be altogether unmeaning." Ashbury Railway Carriage Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653.

Attempts to make rule subordinate to the alleged "main object" of the company.

But this canon of construction must be applied with great caution. See Bath's case, 8 C. D. 334. And in some cases the Court appears to have been run away with by the rule. See German Date Coffee Co., 20 Ch. D. 169; Haven Gold Mining Co., 20 Ch. D. 151; Crown Bank, 44 C. D. 834; Amalgamated Syndicate (1897), 77 L. T. 432; and Coolgardie Consolidated Gold Mines (1897), 76 L. T. 269; Stephens v. Mysore Reefs (Kangundy) Mining Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 745, in which there are dicta to the effect that in construing a memorandum the Court should search for what may be regarded as the main or primary object of the company and read all the other objects as merely subsidiary and ancillary to that. For criticisms on this novel rule of construction, see supra, p. 469 et seq.

Advisable to provide in memorandum that each object paragraph is independent of others.

To preclude such a misconstruction of the objects, it is now very common to insert words expressly providing that certain of the objects are to be construed as independent objects. See supra, p. 470.

Again, it is a common thing in a memorandum of association to provide for the carrying on of a specified business, or the acquisition of property in some named country or place, "or elsewhere," so that the power may not be limited to the named country or place. Now prima facie the words "or elsewhere" are world-wide, even in a criminal case (see Trial of Earl Russell before the King in Parliament), (1901) A. C. 446; yet, strange to say, the Courts have on more than one occasion read these words in a memorandum in a non-natural sense, and as referring not to the rest of the world, but to some place in close proximity to the country or place named. See, for example, Coolgardie Consolidated Gold Mines (1897), 76 L. T. 269, and Stephens v. Mysore Reefs (Kangundy) Mining Co., (1902) 1 Ch. 745. In neither case, it is submitted, was there anything in the context sufficient to justify a departure from the plain meaning of the words used. But in view of such unfortunate misconstructions, it seems desirable to fortify the expression "or elsewhere" by other expressions, e.g., as in Form 119, supra, p. 513. They have not, however, passed unchallenged, for in Pedlar v. Road Block Gold Mines, (1905) 2 Ch. 427, Warrington, J., held that the words "in Mysore or elsewhere," were to have full effect. The object therefore, said his Lordship, was gold mining generally, and not the working of a particular gold mine. To say otherwise was to reduce the clause to an absurdity. See also Butler v. Northern Territories of Australia, 96 L. T. 41.

As to the construction of general words in the memorandum, to the effect that the company may do all such things as are conducive to the above objects, see supra, p. 471 et seq.

17. The ejusdem generis doctrine is sometimes applicable, according to which general words following specific words are ordinarily construed as limited to things ejusdem generis with those before enumerated. Per Erle, C. J., Hallam v. Blackburn, 17 C. B. N. S. 678.

"Conducive clause."

17. "Ejusdem generis" doctrine—general words following specific words.

But this statement is too wide. General words should be given their full force. "Nothing can be plainer than that, primâ facie, general words are to be taken in their larger sense, unless you can find that in the particular case the true construction of the instrument requires you to conclude that they are intended to be used in a sense limited to things ejusdem generis with those which have been specifically mentioned before. . . . I reject the supposed rule that general words are primâ facie to be taken in a restricted sense." Per Lord Esher, M. R., Anderson v. Anderson, (1895) 1 Q. B. 749. In the same case Rigby, L. J., said that, "the doctrine known as that of ejusdem generis has, I think, frequently led to wrong conclusions on the construction of instruments."

The doctrine is not applicable, for instance, where the particular words exhaust the whole genus. In such case the general words must be taken to refer to a larger genus. Fenwick v. Schmalz, Willes, J., L. R. 3 C. P. 313; Bath's case, 8 C. D. 334. In the case last mentioned the objects were expressed in some detail, and were followed by general words empowering the company to make and effect assurances against all and every kind of risk which might be effected according to law; and Jessel, M. R., said: "I cannot see that there is any ground for restricting the meaning of the terms of the latter part of that clause, or for applying that which is so often called the doctrine 'noscitur a sociis,' when you cannot suggest a single instance of a risk, having any connection with life insurance, which is not included in the express terms of the prior part of the clause. It seems to me that the only fair mode of reading the latter part of the third clause is to read it in its natural and unrestrained sense."

In Smelting Company v. Inland Revenue, (1897) 1 Q. B. 175, 182. Rigby, L. J., said: "The rule of construction which is called 'the ejusdem generis doctrine' or sometimes 'the doctrine noscitur ex sociis' is one which I think ought to be applied with great caution, because it implies a departure from the natural meaning of words in order to give them a meaning which may or may not have been the intention of the Legislature."

For many years the jurisdiction of the Court in winding-up was crippled by the application of this ejusdem generis rule restricting the words in sect. 79 of the Act of 1862 (sect. 129 of the Act of 1908), empowering the Court to make a winding-up order "whenever" it "is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up," to cases similar to those enumerated in the four preceding clauses. This construction has now been deliberately abandoned. See Amalgamated Syndicate, (1897) 2 Ch. 600; T. E. Brinsmead & Sons, (1897) 1 Ch. 45, 406; Sailing Ship Kentmere, W. N. (1897) 58.

When the word "whatsoever" follows the general words, that word, as a rule, excludes the application of the ejusdem generis construction. See Earl of Jersey v. Guardians of Poor of Neath, 22 Q. B. D. 555.

In that case, Fry, J., said that "where you find the word 'whatsoever' following, as it does, upon certain substantives, it is often intended to repel, and in this case does effectually repel, the implication of the so-called doctrine of ejusdem generis, which I think, has often been urged for the sake of giving not the true effect to the contracts of parties, but a narrower effect than they were intended to have." In the same case Bowen, L. J., said: "The words 'all mines and minerals whatsoever' are as large as they can be, and I do not think that they can be cut down by the previous words 'coal, culm, and iron.' It seems to me, although that is a question of construction, that they are intended to be words which exclude the operation of the rule of construction of ejusdem generis."

18. *Expressio
omnis est
exclusio
alterius.*

18. The rule embodied in the maxim "expressio unius est exclusio alterius" is very often applied. Thus, where the articles give power to refuse to register transfers in certain specified cases, that implies that the right is confined to those cases (Weston's case, 4 Ch. 20); and where there is an express power to pay dividends in proportion to the shares, that impliedly negatives any power to pay in proportion to the capital paid up (Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Cas. 65).

Nevertheless, the Court is often too prone to adopt the rule as stated above, and by doing so to render general words practically inoperative.

19. Relative words usually refer to last antecedent.

19. Relative words like "thereon" or "theretofore" must be taken ordinarily to refer to the last antecedent, but not so as to interfere with the general intent of the instrument. See Ewing v. Ewing,

8 App. Cas. 822, 831: Mayor of Portsmouth v. Smith, 10 App. Cas. 364, 373. In the case last cited Lord Blackburn said: "I do not think that the last 'antecedent' is necessarily the nearest, nor even that the word 'antecedent' is confined to what in the collocation of words comes before the word of relation." As to "such," see Ex parte Burnes, (1896) A. C. 146; Eastern Counties Rly. v. Marriage, 9 H. L. C. 32.

20. A liberal construction is to be put upon the words of a document so as to uphold them if possible, and carry into effect what appears to be the intention of the parties. 20. Liberal construction.

The memorandum ought to be read fairly, and not so as to make the scheme ultra vires which is otherwise unobjectionable." Per Davey, L. J., New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 632.

Such a construction ought to be made of deeds ut res magis valeat quam pereat, and the deeds should take effect rather than the contrary." Per Willis, C. J., Smith v. Packhurst, 3 Atkins, 136.

Where words are capable of a twofold construction, even in the case of a deed . . . it is just and reasonable that such construction should be received as tends to make it good." Per Lord Talbot, L. C., Atkinson v. Hutchinson, 3 P. Wms. 258.

21. Where the directors of a company are invested by the regulations with certain powers, the authority thus conferred is to be read subject to the general rules applicable to the exercise by directors of the powers vested in them, and in particular to the rule that the directors are to exercise the powers for the benefit of the company and in the true interests of the company, and according to the best of their judgment, for they stand in a fiduciary position, and must act accordingly. Gilbert's case, 5 Ch. 559; Alexander v. Automatic Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56. 21. Powers of directors.

22. Where the articles define the respective powers of general meetings and directors, they must respectively keep within their respective realms. Automatic Self Clearing Co. v. Cunningham, (1906) 2 Ch. 34; Gramophone and Typewriter, (1908) 2 K. B. 89; Salmon v. Quin & Axtens, (1908) A. C. 433. 22. Powers of directors and general meetings.

23. The legality of a clause or provision depends "upon the natural and probable results of the due exercise of the power which it confers, and not upon the consequences of its possible abuse by unscrupulous or fraudulent directors." Murray v. Scott, 9 App. Cas. 519, 558, per Lord Watson. 23. On what the legality of a clause or provision depends.

"It would be, to my mind, a most perverse proceeding to construe these words in any different sense because, by some improper use of the power thus given, it might be made mischievous in its operation." Lock v. Queensland Investment, &c. Co., (1896) A. C. 467.

24. Any rule of construction is liable to be excluded or modified where from the instrument a contrary intention appears. Earl of Jersey v. Guardians of Poor of Neath, 22 Q. B. D. 561.

